

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. - 18 c 8. W agrees with A Y against F in μηχανωμένους.
- 22 d-e. W has λνόμενος, so that the corruption, if, as is probable, there is one, is 'primitive'.
- 24 e 6. καλεῖτε] καλεῖται A (in ras.) F W Y. Unless, as is possible, καλεῖτε was the original reading of A, it is a necessary conjecture (of Bt.).
- 25 d 5. W according to Rivaud agrees with F in καταβραχέος. A seems to have originally read κάρτα βραχέος. The earliest testimonium is the 'crasso limo' of Chalcidius. Dr. E. R. Bevan suggests to me that this represents a κάρτα παχέος which may be the true text. If the ρ of κάρτα were accidentally omitted in transcription and then carelessly reinserted supra lineam a little to the right, this might explain the corruption κατὰ βραχέος.
- 26 c 1. παιδικῆς is also the reading of W.
- 29 b 8. W agrees with F Y in ἀκινήτοις.
- 33 a 3. W, like Y, has ξυνιστᾶν τῷ.
- 35 a 4. W agrees with A F Y P in having the second αὖ περί, and in a 5 with A P Y in reading κατὰ ταῦτα.
- 36 a-b (notes, p. 145). Adrastus (ap. Theon. Smyrn., Hiller 67) and Macrobius (Somn. Scip. ii. 1. 23) also imply by their silence the absence of the ἀποτομή from Plato's scale.
- 37 c 6. τῶν αἰδίων θεῶν. Dr. E. R. Bevan suggests to me θείων as a correction of θεῶν. But this would destroy the chiasmus and give ἄγαλμα a second otiose epitheton; γεγονός itself is the necessary and relevant epitheton.
- 39 a 1. W agrees in ιούσης τε καὶ κρατουμένης.
- 39 b 4. After αὐτὸν χορεύοιτο would construe, if we take it as impersonal and τὰ περὶ τὰς ὀκτὼ φορές as adverbial accusative.
- 40 b 8 ff. I ought to have quoted Diogenes Laertius iii. 75 γῆν δὲ πρεσβυτάτην μὲν εἶναι τῶν ἐν τῷ οὐρανῷ θεῶν, οὕσαν δ' ἐπὶ τοῦ μέσου κινεῖσθαι περὶ τὸ μέσον. The source of this statement saw that the dialogue ascribes a motion to the earth, but wrongly supposed it to be a 'diurnal revolution', as Grote did. That is, he

PREFACE

THE English and Scottish Popular Ballads, edited by the late Francis James Child, was published in ten parts, forming five large volumes, from 1882 to 1898. It contains three hundred and five distinct ballads, but the number of texts printed in full is much larger than this, for Professor Child's plan was to give every extant version of every ballad. Thus of No. 4, 'Lady Isabel and the Elf-Knight,' he published nine different versions; of No. 58, 'Sir Patrick Spens,' eighteen; of No. 173, 'Mary Hamilton,' twenty-eight, — and so on. Each ballad has an introduction dealing with the history and bibliography of the piece, and containing a full account of parallels in foreign languages, and, in general, of the diffusion of the story, with other pertinent matter. There are also exhaustive collations, elaborate bibliographies, an index of published ballad airs, a collection of tunes, — and, in a word, all the apparatus necessary for the study of this kind of literature.

The present volume offers a selection from the materials collected and edited by Mr Child, and is prepared in accordance with a plan which he had approved. Each of the three hundred and five ballads in his large collection (except Nos. 33, 279, 281, 290, and 299) is represented by one or more versions, without the apparatus criticus, and with very short introductions. The notes, which are necessarily brief, give specimens (and specimens only) of significant stanzas from versions not included in the volume. The numbers (1–305) and letters (A, B, etc.) correspond to the designations used in the large collection, and there is, in every case, an implied reference to that work for further information. For instance, 'The Twa Sisters' (No. 10) is here represented by two versions, A and B, selected from those published by Mr Child, which (as the note on p. 642 indicates) are twenty-seven in number. To A is prefixed (both in this volume and in the large collection) a memorandum of the four sources (a, b, c, d) from which Mr Child derived this version. The text, as printed on pp. 18, 19, is identical with the text of A as printed by Mr Child, but the variant readings, fully registered in the large collection, are omitted. The short introduction to No. 10 is extracted from Mr Child's eight-page introduction, to which the student who wishes to pursue the subject will naturally have recourse. Mr Child's own words are retained whenever that is possible. The present volume, it will be observed, is neither a new edition of the collection of Mr Child nor a substitute for it. It differs from that work in type and purpose. Yet it is, in a manner, complete in itself. It affords a compactus of English and Scottish ballad literature which, it is hoped, may be useful to the general reader and may lead those who feel a more particular interest in the subject to acquaint themselves at first hand with the full collection of texts and other apparatus in Mr Child's admirable volumes.

The Glossary is based on that in the larger work. It is not intended to furnish material for linguistic investigations, but merely to assist the reader.

For obvious reasons, it has seemed best to reproduce the List of Sources entire. For other bibliographical lists the large collection may be consulted.

The general Introduction has been written especially for this book. It attempts to sum up, as simply and judicially as may be, the present state of a very complicated discussion.

The portrait of Mr Child is from a photograph belonging to Miss Catharine Innes Ireland.

Professor Neilson has had the great kindness to relieve the editors of the difficult task of preparing the glossary, and Miss Ireland has rendered invaluable assistance in proof-reading. Without the help of these generous and self-sacrificing friends the appearance of the book would have been long delayed.

INTRODUCTION

A BALLAD is a song that tells a story, or — to take the other point of view — a story told in song. More formally, it may be defined as a short narrative poem, adapted for singing, simple in plot and metrical structure, divided into stanzas, and characterized by complete impersonality so far as the author or singer is concerned. This last trait is of the very first consequence in determining the quality or qualities which give the ballad its peculiar place in literature. A ballad has no author. At all events, it appears to have none. The teller of the story for the time being is as much the author as the unknown (and for our purposes unimportant) person who first put it into shape. In most forms of artistic literature the personality of the writer is a matter of deep concern to the reader. The style, we say, is the man. The individuality of one poet distinguishes his works, however they may vary among themselves, from the works of all other poets. Chaucer, for instance, has his way, or his ways, of telling a tale that are not the way, or the ways, of William Morris. If a would-be creative literary artist has no individuality that we can detect, we set him down as conventional, and that is an end of him and of his works. In the ballad it is not so. There the author is of no account. He is not even present. We do not feel sure that he ever existed. At most, we merely infer his existence, at some indefinite time in the past, from the fact of his product: a poem, we think, implies a poet; therefore somebody must have composed this ballad. (Until we begin to reason, we have no thought of the author of any ballad, because, so far as we can see, he had no thought of himself.)

We may go a step farther in this matter of impersonality. Not only is the author of a ballad invisible, and, so far as the effect which the poem produces on the hearer is concerned, practically non-existent, but the teller of the tale has no rôle in it. Unlike other songs, it does not purport to give utterance to the feelings or the mood of the singer.¹ The first person does not occur at all, except in the speeches of the several characters. Finally, there are no comments or reflections by the narrator. He does not dissect or psychologize. He does not take sides for or against any of the dramatis personae. He merely tells what happened and what people said, and he confines the dialogue to its simplest and most inevitable elements. The story exists for its own sake. If it were possible to conceive a tale as telling itself, without the instrumentality of a conscious speaker, the ballad would be such a tale.²

So far we have dealt in generalities and impressions. What has been said is obvious enough, and it is admitted by everybody. There is, as we shall see presently, no agreement among scholars as to the origin and history of what are called popular ballads, but as to the fact of their impersonal quality there is no dispute. Nor will it be denied that this quality puts them in a class by themselves. Whatever the cause or causes,

¹ This distinguishes the ballad, strictly so called, from the purely lyrical poem. Such a song as 'Waly, waly, gin love be bony' (p. 667) is, then, not a ballad, though it tells a story. It should be noted that, in common parlance, the term ballad is very loosely applied.

² There are, of course, slight departures from the type in particular cases, but these are readily accounted for, and do not affect the integrity of the type.

the bare fact is clear and undeniable. No one can read 'The Hunting of the Cheviot,' or 'Mary Hamilton,' or 'Johnie Armstrong,' or 'Robyn and Gandeleyne,' or 'The Wife of Usher's Well,' and fail to recognize that, different as they are from each other in theme and in effect, they belong together. Yet no two of them are the works of the same author. Their common element is not the personality of the writer but his impersonality; and this distinguishes the ballad, as a class, from the productions of the conscious literary artist. In studying ballads, then, we are studying the "poetry of the folk," and the "poetry of the folk" is different from the "poetry of art."

Poetry of the folk is, perhaps, a dangerous phrase; but it is too convenient to be lightly rejected, and, if we proceed with caution, we may employ it without disaster. Let us hasten to acknowledge that in introducing the term at this stage of our discussion we have gone somewhat farther than the logic of the situation warrants. We have seen, to be sure, that all poetry is divisible into two great classes, — that which is manifestly the work of the conscious artist, and that which is not. We have recognized a characteristic difference between 'The Prioress's Tale' and 'Julian and Maddalo' on the one hand, and 'Johnie Armstrong' and 'The Wife of Usher's Well' on the other. But we have not yet discovered anything that justifies us in calling the ballads folk-poetry, and we have not defined the folk, though that is a term which assuredly requires explanation.

The alphabet was no doubt a great invention, and everybody should be happy to know that he can write. But now and then it would be convenient if one's thoughts could dissociate literature for a moment from the written or printed page. In theory this is easy enough to do. Practically, however, it is difficult for even a professed student of linguistics to remember that a word is properly a sign made with the vocal organs, and that the written word is merely a conventional symbol standing for the word that is spoken. We are in the habit of thinking that a word should be pronounced as it is spelled, rather than that it should be spelled as it is pronounced. Author means to us a man with a pen in his hand, — a writer, as we call him. It requires a combined effort of the reason and the imagination to conceive a poet as a person who cannot write, singing or reciting his verses to an audience that cannot read. History, as we understand it, is the written record or even the printed volume; it is no longer the accumulated fund of tribal memories, handed down from father to son by oral tradition. Yet everybody knows that, quite apart from what we usually call literature, there is a great mass of song and story and miscellaneous lore which circulates among those who have neither books nor newspapers. To this oral literature, as the French call it, education is no friend. Culture destroys it, sometimes with amazing rapidity. When a nation learns to read, it begins to disregard its traditional tales; it feels a little ashamed of them; and finally it loses both the will and the power to remember and transmit them. What was once the possession of the folk as a whole, becomes the heritage of the illiterate only, and soon, unless it is gathered up by the antiquary, vanishes altogether.

To this oral literature belong the popular ballads, and we are justified, therefore, in calling them "folk-poetry." They are not, like written literature, the exclusive possession of the cultivated classes in any community. They belonged, in the first instance, to the whole people, at a time when there were no formal divisions of literate and illiterate; when the intellectual interests of all were substantially identical, from the king to the peasant. As civilization advanced, they were banished from polite society, but they lived on among the humble, among shepherds and ploughboys and "the spinsters and the knitters in the sun," until even these became too sophisticated to care for them and they were heard no more.

The process just sketched is not imaginary or merely inferential. It is, to be sure, impossible, from the nature of the case, to cite documentary evidence for every step in the history of the ballads of a given people. But we are not confined to the limits of a single nationality. Every country of Europe may be laid under contribution for evidence, and not a little testimony has come in from other continents. All stages of civilization are represented in the material that scholars have brought together, so that we are enabled to speak with entire confidence. Positive chronology may be out of the question, but relative chronology is all that one can require in such matters. The hostility between education and balladry is not conjectural; its history is known in Great Britain for at least two hundred years. The homogeneous folk — that is, the community whose intellectual interests are the same from the top of the social structure to the bottom — is no fiction; examples in abundance have been observed and recorded. The ability of oral tradition to transmit great masses of verse for hundreds of years is proved and admitted. Ballads themselves exist in plenty, fortunately preserved in old manuscripts or broadsides or taken down from singing or recitation in recent years. It is possible to be ignorant of the evidence, no doubt, but it is not possible to doubt when once the evidence is known. The popular ballads are really popular, that is, they belong to the folk. So much is clear. There are problems enough remaining, — the relation of the ballads to written literature, their sources, their origin, the manner of composition, and so on. But these are secondary questions. The main point is established, and, indeed, there has never been any reason to dispute it.

The authorship of popular ballads is a question of great difficulty, which must be considered in due season, but which may be deferred for the present. Before discussing the different theories that have been proposed it is well to refer to other matters that admit of a more satisfactory settlement.

Professor Child's great collection, The English and Scottish Popular Ballads, in five volumes (Boston, 1882-98), comprises the whole extant mass of this material. It includes three hundred and five pieces, most of them in a number of different versions, with full collations and other pertinent apparatus. A few variants of this or that ballad have come to light since the publication of this admirable work, but no additional ballads have been discovered. Ballad-making, so far as the English-speaking nations are concerned, is a lost art; and the same may be said of ballad-singing. A few of the ballads in Mr Child's collection are still in oral circulation; but most of them are completely forgotten or are known only in versions derived from print. Among those which survive may be mentioned 'Lord Randal,' 'The Wife of Usher's Well,' 'The Maid Freed from the Gallows,' 'Sir Hugh,' and 'The Twa Sisters.' Much has been lost, and some of the most precious relics of tradition that we possess have been saved by mere accident and in a sadly mutilated condition. Yet what has been preserved is considerable in amount and, on the whole, of excellent quality. No country has better ballads than those of England and Scotland.

On pages 677-684 of the present volume will be found a chronological list of the manuscripts, broadsides, and printed books from which Professor Child derived the texts which make up his collection. Only eleven ballads, it will be observed, are extant in manuscripts older than the seventeenth century. The unique copy of 'Judas' (No. 29) dates from the thirteenth century; next, by a long interval, comes 'Riddles Wisely Expounded' (No. 1), which occurs in a manuscript of about 1445; slightly later, perhaps, are the manuscripts which contain 'Robin Hood and the Monk' (No. 119), 'St Stephen and Herod' (No. 22), and 'Robyn and Gandeleyne' (No. 115); from about 1500 come our copies of 'Robin Hood and the Potter' (No. 121) and 'Crow and Pie' (No. 111); from about 1550 those of 'The Battle of Otterburn' (No. 161) and the older version of 'The Hunting of the Cheviot' (No. 162); 'Sir Andrew Barton' (No. 167) and 'Captain Car' (No. 178) occur in manuscripts of the seventeenth century. The Percy Folio, which is the most important of all our ballad manuscripts, is in a hand of about 1650. A few ballads are found in printed copies of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. Miscellanies of the seventeenth century preserve a number of texts, and broadsides of the same century are plentiful. Then we come to the collectors of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, to whose enthusiasm for popular poetry are due the majority of the texts which we possess.

Evidently, then, the written and printed documents which we are studying are, in the main, modern documents. But we are not to infer that the ballads themselves are necessarily of recent origin. A sharp distinction must be made between the date of the book or manuscript in which a ballad occurs and the date of the ballad itself.

There is ample evidence for the antiquity of popular ballads in England. Nobody doubts that the Angles and Saxons had them in abundance when they invaded Britain, and the mediæval chroniclers testify to the continuance of the ballad-singing habit. Indeed, there is no difficulty in proving beyond a reasonable doubt that there were ballads in plenty from the dawn of English history (not to speak of what lies before this epoch) down to the seventeenth century, when written and printed documents begin to abound. From the nature of the case, however, such songs very seldom got written down. The substance of many Anglo-Saxon ballads may be preserved in Béowulf, but this is an epic poem of considerable pretensions to artistic structure and finish, and we cannot hope to extract from it the separate songs which its author or authors utilized. Much ballad material is doubtless preserved in chronicles, but the ballads themselves are not there. Only a limited class of ballads (those of an heroic or historical character) were likely to afford material to chroniclers and epic poets. What the people sang would only be recorded by accident. Thus it is not surprising that we have but a single ballad written down in the thirteenth century. The existence of this one text, the 'Judas,' completely popular in metre, in phraseology, and in what we call atmosphere, is a valuable piece of evidence. The lack of similar texts for the next two hundred years is no evidence at all, except, perhaps, of the fact that such pieces were in the possession of the folk and circulated from mouth to mouth, but that nobody cared to commit them to writing. 'St Stephen and Herod' is just such another piece as 'Judas' and may be quite as old, yet it did not achieve the perpetuity of pen and ink until about 1450. 'The Maid and the Palmer' (No. 21), which is a popular version of the story of the Samaritan woman in the gospel, belongs to the same class. So far as we know, however, it was not written down until about 1650, when it was included in that extraordinary miscellany known as Bishop Percy's Folio Manuscript. When Percy discovered this manuscript it was lying under a bureau in the parlor of a country gentleman's house, and the maids were using it to light fires. Suppose it had escaped Percy's notice. Another month, another week, would have sent it up Humphrey Pitts's chimney in smoke. We should then have no knowledge of the existence of 'The Maid and the Palmer' in English, except for three stanzas and half of the burden, which Sir Walter Scott remembered and which were first printed in 1880 in the second edition of Sharpe's Ballad Book; but we should make a great mistake if we inferred that 'The Maid and the Palmer' was to be dated in accordance with the time when it was first printed or even the time when it was communicated to Sharpe by Scott. To avoid a possible misapprehension it may be added that Scott was not aware that this ballad occurs in the Percy Manuscript, the date of an knowledge of it, in other words, came from pure oral tradition which was in no manner affected by the accident that some scribe in the seventeenth century wrote down a version that was then in circulation. The case of 'The Maid and the Palmer' is so instructive that we must dwell on it a little longer. The ballad is not confined to England. There are versions in Danish, in Färöe, in Norwegian, in Swedish, and in Finnish. The Danish ballad was printed as a broadside about 1700, and was also taken down from recitation in 1848 and again in 1869. The Färöe version is known from about the end of the eighteenth century, and the same is true of one of the Swedish texts. A memorandum in the handwriting of Arne Magnusson proves that the ballad existed in Iceland in the seventeenth or early eighteenth century. All these facts are quite independent of the scribe of the Percy Manuscript and of the recollection of Sir Walter Scott. Geographical distribution, then, may give valuable testimony to the antiquity of a ballad. A striking example is 'Lady Isabel and the Elf-Knight' (No. 4). This was first printed, so far as we know, in a broadside of about 1765,¹ and next in 1776 by Herd, who took it down from singing or recitation. But these dates are of no value in determining the age of the ballad. What convinces us that 'Lady Isabel and the Elf-Knight' came to the printer of the broadside and to Herd from an oral tradition of indeterminable antiquity is its existence among all the nations of Europe. "It is nearly as well known to the southern as to the northern nations. It has an extraordinary currency in Poland. The Germans, Low and High, and the Scandinavians, preserve it, in a full and evidently ancient form, even in the tradition of this generation."² No one can turn over the pages of Mr Child's introduction to 'Lady Isabel' without perceiving that nothing has less significance for the date of any ballad than the precise moment at which it first excited the interest of some collector who reduced it to writing, or of some catchpenny publisher who had it struck off on poor paper in battered type for the gratification of those who, like Mopsa, love a ballad in print a-life.

So long as a ballad continues to be handed down by oral tradition, it is, of course, continuously subjected to the processes of change which every language undergoes. Hence, a version derived from recitation or singing in the nineteenth century will conform, in the main, to the habitual dialect of the singer or reciter, and thus will be, in a real sense, modern. But this has nothing to do with the age of the ballad itself. In printed versions, the linguistic forms may be considerably older than the date of publication, and the same is true of copies preserved in manuscript. Thus, the language of the 'Gest of Robin Hood' (No. 117) is much earlier than 1500, the approximate date of the first edition that we know of. There is nothing surprising in this, for Robin Hood ballads were in circulation a good while before 1377, as the casual mention of them in Piers Plowman proves.

The considerations set forth in the preceding paragraphs have an important bearing on another question which has been much debated,—the relation between ballads and metrical romances. Such romances are, on the whole, preserved in manuscripts much older than the sources from which we derive our ballad texts, and it has therefore seemed natural to many scholars to assume without argument that when a romance and a ballad tell the same story, the ballad is merely a rifacimento of the romance. Such an inference is, however, by no means a matter of course. Most romances were literary productions, composed as modern novels are composed, pen in hand. Clearly, then, if a written

Given case based upon a ballad which had never been committed to writing, and which continued to circulate from mouth to mouth for a century or two before anybody took it down, the romance, though in fact later than the ballad, would appear, so far as documentary evidence is concerned, to be the older of the two. No doubt certain ballads are based upon metrical romances. Such appears to be the case with 'The Lord of Lorn and the False Steward' (No. 271), which may probably be a retelling of 'Roswall and Lillian,' but in general, there is no presumption in favor of the priority of the romance; and even when the extant ballad does demonstrably go back to a romance, it is sometimes probable that the romance itself goes back to a still older ballad which has perished. A priori considerations are of little or no value in solving these problems. Each case requires to be investigated by itself. The reader may find abundant materials for such investigation in Professor Child's introductions to 'Hind Horn' (No. 17), 'Sir Lionel' (No. 18), 'King Orfeo' (No. 19), 'Sir Aldingar' (No. 59), and 'Fair Annie' (No. 62). What has been said of ballads and romances is equally true of ballads and literary material in general. 'Lady Diamond' (No. 269) is unquestionably derived in some way from Boccaccio's Decameron, but nothing is more certain than that Boccaccio's own tale goes back in the long run to distinctly popular sources. Certain historical ballads may come from chronicles, but, on the other hand, it is well known that chroniclers have often drawn without scruple from legendary songs and other forms of oral tradition. Only by comparative study of extensive material and patient scrutiny of details can one hope to arrive at a satisfactory result in these matters, and it often happens that the truth lies too far back for us to discover.

Some ballads are historical, or at least are founded on actual occurrences. In such cases, we have a manifest point of departure for our chronological investigation. The ballad is likely to have sprung up shortly after the event and to represent the common rumor of the time. Accuracy is not to be expected, and indeed too great historical fidelity in detail is rather a ground of suspicion than a certificate of the genuinely popular character of the piece. There can be no object in enumerating the obviously historical ballads in the present collection; the reader will easily find most of them for himself by running through the Table of Contents. But two cautionary observations are necessary. Since history repeats itself, the possibility and even the probability must be entertained that every now and then a ballad which had been in circulation for some time was adapted to the circumstances of a recent occurrence and has come down to us only in such an adaptation. It is also far from improbable that many ballads which appear to have no definite localization or historical antecedents may be founded on fact, since one of the marked tendencies of popular narrative poetry is to alter or eliminate specific names of persons and places in the course of oral tradition. A good example, though not in a case of historical derivation, may be seen in 'Hind Horn' (No. 17), and another in 'King Orfeo' (No. 19). In 'Hind Horn,' but one name is kept, that of the hero himself, which happened to afford the opportunity for a kind of pun ("Drink to Horn from the horn"), and so was preserved. Were it not for this name, we could only say that the ballad belongs to a great class of stories of which the romance of 'King Horn' is also a member; we should have no right to postulate any special connection between the romance and the ballad. The pretty little Shetland ballad of 'King Orfeo' comes in some way from the classical tale of Orpheus and Eurydice, apparently by way of a Middle English lay or romance, but it has lost the name of the hero and has transformed that of the heroine into Isabel.

A popular ballad, as we have seen, seldom or never has an ascertainable date. In fact the precise date of its composition is not significant in the sense in which the date of an ode or a sonnet is significant. An artistic poem receives its final form at the hands of the author at the time of composition. That form is fixed and authoritative. Nobody either has or supposes that he has the right to modify it. Any such alteration is an offence, a corruption, and the critic's duty is to restore the text to its integrity so that we may have before us what the poet wrote and nothing else.¹ The composition of an ode or a sonnet, then, may be regarded as a single creative act. And with the accomplishment of this creative act, the account is closed; once finished, the poem is a definite entity, no longer subject to any process of development. Not so with the popular ballad. Here the mere act of composition (which is quite as likely to be oral as written) is not the conclusion of the matter; it is rather the beginning. The product as it comes from the author is handed over to the folk for oral transmission, and thus passes out of his control. If it is accepted by those for whom it is intended, it ceases to be the property of the author; it becomes the possession of the folk, and a new process begins, that of oral tradition, which is hardly second in importance to the original creative act. As it passes from singer to singer it is changing unceasingly. Old stanzas are dropped and new ones are added; rhymes are altered; the names of the characters are varied; portions of other ballads work their way in; the catastrophe may be transformed completely. Finally, if the tradition continues for two or three centuries, as it frequently does continue, the whole linguistic complexion of the piece may be so modified with the development of the language in which it is composed, that the original author would not recognize his work if he heard it recited. Taken collectively, these processes of oral tradition amount to a second act of composition, of an inextricably complicated character, in which many persons share (some consciously, others without knowing it), which extends over many generations and much geographical space, and which may be as efficient a cause of the ballad in question as the original creative act of the individual author. It would be a great mistake to regard the results of what we may call, for want of a better term, collective composition, as identical with the corruptions of scribes and editors in the case of a classical text.² Individually they are sometimes indistinguishable from such corruptions, but in the aggregate they amount to a distinct kind of authorship which every student of popular literature is obliged to recognize, not only as actually operative in the production of ballads, but as legitimate. They may even result in the production of new ballads to which no individual author can lay claim, so completely is the initial act of creative authorship overshadowed by the secondary act of collective composition. We may compare the processes of language. A word is created by somebody. It then becomes the property of the whole body of those who speak the language, and is subjected to continuous modification from generation to generation. The primary act of the original creator of the word is not more important, and may be far less so, than the secondary acts of his countrymen who transmit his creation and make it their own as they pass it on.

It follows that a genuinely popular ballad can have no fixed and final form, no sole authentic version. There are texts, but there is no text. Version A may be nearer the original than versions B and C, but that does not affect the pretensions of B and C to exist and hold up their heads among their fellows. It would be interesting if we could have every one of Mr Child's three hundred and five ballads exactly as it came from the lips or hands of its first composer ; but such versions, if we could arrive at them, would not cancel the variants that have come down to us. Oral transmission and its concomitants are not the accidents of the ballad, they are essential to it ; they are constituent elements of its very nature. Without them the ballad would not be the ballad.

² Of course there are also headlong, blundering corruptions which are comparable to those that take place in the transmission of a written or printed text; but these may, if necessary, be distinguished from the proper and lawful modifications which are of the very nature of oral tradition.

Hitherto we have assumed that ballads are initially the work of individual authors like any other poem, and this may probably be the truth with respect to most and perhaps all of the English and Scottish ballads which have survived, although, as we have seen, the function of the individual author is far less significant in the production of a genuinely popular ballad than in the case of poems which are made by the well-defined process of artistic composition. A different theory of ballad origins was held by James Grimm ; and the mystery in which his indistinct utterances involved the subject has long been a matter of controversy. Grimm's general views on myth, popular poetry, and fairy tales are well known, and need not here be particularized. He held that they were, in the fullest sense, the expression of the spirit of the folk, and that they perpetuated themselves, ever changing and continually fitting themselves to new environments, but with little or no intentional alteration on the part of any given reciter. That these theories were somewhat too far-reaching was pointed out by his own contemporaries. In the main, however, if understood with some reserves in particular cases and with ample allowance for exceptions, little fault can be found with them. The "mystery" is reached when Grimm declares that the people, as a whole, composes poetry ; das Volk dichtet.¹ It is easy enough to understand that the material for ballads is in the possession of the folk. It is not more difficult to see that a ballad, when once it exists, becomes the possession of the folk, and is subjected to those vicissitudes of oral tradition which, as we have seen, are hardly less important than the initial act of composition. But the difficulty comes when we try to figure to ourselves the actual production of a ballad in the first instance without the agency of an individual author. For this difficulty Grimm has nowhere provided, nor is it certain that he was entirely clear in his own mind as to the scope or the bearings of his theory in this crucial point.

Modern criticism has made merry with Grimm's theory of ballad authorship. Composition, it is held, must be the act of an individual ; it is inconceivable otherwise ; ballads were composed like other poems ; the folk has no voice as a community ; it cannot pour forth unpremeditated and original song in unison. Thus baldly stated, the objections to Grimm's theory are unanswerable, for they speak the words of truth and soberness. But Grimm, though he has not expressed himself with precision, — though perhaps he may even be charged with avoiding the direct issue, — cannot have meant anything so grossly unreasonable as the tenets which his opponents ascribe to him. He was not deficient in common sense, and he certainly had a profound and rarely sympathetic knowledge of popular literature and of the popular spirit in all its manifestations. No doubt he uttered dark oracles, but, though we cannot accept his doctrine in any literal sense, still that is no valid reason for flying off to the opposite pole, — for denying the existence of any problem and asserting that the only difference between ballads and other poems turns on the question of anonymity. Such an explanation is far too simple ; it ignores too many observed facts and leaves uncorrelated too many phenomena which seem to be connected and which bear at least the appearance of being significant. Before we allow ourselves to be quite so radical as this, we should at all events examine Professor Gummere's theories as to the beginnings of poetry and as to the connection between communal composition and the ballad.¹

"Folk" is a large word. It suggests a whole nation, or at all events a huge concourse of people. Let us abandon it, then, for the moment, and think rather of a small tribal gathering, assembled, in very early times, or — what for the anthropologist amounts to the same thing — under very simple conditions of life, for the purpose of celebrating some occasion of common interest, — a successful hunt, or the return from a prosperous foray, or the repulse of a band of marauding strangers. The object of the meeting is known to all; the deeds which are to be sung, the dance which is to accompany and illustrate the singing, are likewise familiar to every one. There is no such diversity of intellectual interests as characterizes even the smallest company of civilized men. There is unity of feeling and a common stock, however slender, of ideas and traditions. The dancing and singing, in which all share, are so closely related as to be practically complementary parts of a single festal act. Here, now, we have the "folk" of our discussion, reduced, as it were, to its lowest terms, — a singing, dancing throng subjected as a unit to a mental and emotional stimulus which is not only favorable to the production of poetry, but is almost certain to result in such production. And this is no fancy picture. It is the soberest kind of science, — a mere brief chapter of descriptive anthropology, for which authorities might be cited without number.

Let us next consider the manner in which poetry (the word is of course used under pardon) is produced in such an assembly. Here again we can proceed upon just grounds of anthropological evidence. Different members of the throng, one after another, may chant each his verse, composed on the spur of the moment, and the sum of these various contributions makes a song. This is communal composition, though each verse, taken by itself, is the work of an individual. A song made in this way is no man's property and has no individual author. The folk is its author.

Communal composition, as just described, is a very simple matter and its products are infinitely crude. That, however, was to be expected. Nobody will hold that 'Robin Hood and the Monk' or 'King Estmere' is the direct result of communal composition. It is unlikely that even the simplest of our extant ballads were made in this fashion. We are not now concerned with the connection, if any there be, between the ballad and the composing folk. That question will come up presently. What is of importance at this stage of the discussion is to get clearly in mind not merely the theoretical possibility of communal composition on a small scale, but the actual fact of its occurrence. The danger of misapprehension comes from attaching too dignified a sense to the phrase or from conceiving the process which it designates as something systematic or elaborate. All that is required is a starting-place. It is necessary to know whether men in a low stage of advancement are familiar with this method of composing, and that point is satisfactorily established. Further, the persistence of the habit among civilized peoples in modern times is a matter of common knowledge. In the Färöe Islands, a few generations ago, it was common for a group to surround some fisherman who had been unlucky, or had otherwise laid himself open to ridicule, and to improvise a song about him, each contributing his verse or stanza. In the Russian cigarette factories, the girls who roll the cigarettes amuse themselves, while at work, by composing songs about each other in a similar way. One girl begins the song, another follows, and so on, till the result of this act of strictly communal composition is a piece of verse which, in some instances, is retained in the memory and achieves a more or less permanent local reputation. Everybody has heard children engaged in the communal composition of satirical rhymes.

Communal composition, then, is nothing unusual or paradoxical. Not only do we find it among simple peoples in a low state of civilization, but everybody can remember instances of it which have come under his own observation among his contemporaries or in which he has taken part himself. With us it has sunk to the position of a mere amusement, a children's game perhaps, just as the elaborate dances of our forefathers have survived only in such childish dancing games as "Here we go round the gooseberry bush."¹ The products of communal composition among us are trivial and ephemeral, and we fail to observe them, or, at all events, we seldom think of associating them with literature. We have come to associate "authorship" with something quite different from the singing and dancing throng. To us, as has already been said, an author is a solitary individual sitting in his study, pen in hand. When, therefore, we read of "communal authorship," the very idea seems strange and even preposterous. Yet as soon as we begin to consider, we perceive that we have always been familiar with the phenomenon in some form or other; only we have not associated it in our minds with "authorship" at all.

The origin of poetry, like the origin of language, lies too far back for us to find. The singing, dancing throng, with its few rude staves, primitive as it seems in comparison with the multifariousness of artistic literature, must still be very far from primitive in the literal sense. For our purpose, however, we need follow the trail no farther back than this throng. What came before it is, like the probably arboreal, no concern of ours in the present discussion. Our business is with the later history of poetry. Our task is to discern the connection between the authorship of the extant English and Scottish ballads and the conditions of communal composition as described by the anthropologists.

As we examine the most characteristic of these extant ballads with a view to any peculiarities of technique that may distinguish them from other poetry, we immediately note certain features which point straight back to the singing, dancing throng and to communal composition. These elements have been carefully studied by Mr Gummere, so that their significance is unmistakable. First comes the refrain, which, though its history is one of the obscurest chapters in literature and art, is manifestly a point of connection between the ballad and the throng. The refrain can never have been the invention of the solitary, brooding author of our modern conditions. It presupposes a crowd of singers and dancers. Accordingly, as ballads get farther and farther away from the people or from singing, they tend to lose their refrains; the recited ballad has no need of them. It is not meant that all the ballads in this collection were composed for singing; still less that all of them once possessed the refrain. Mr Child's three hundred and five numbers include, as we shall see in a moment, ballads of many kinds and illustrate every grade of popularity. What is meant is rather that there is abundant evidence for regarding the refrain in general as a characteristic feature of ballad poetry which gradually ceased to be essential. Some ballads, therefore, retain this feature; others occur both with and without the refrain; still others took shape at a time when its use was no longer obligatory. Exact dates in a matter of this sort are quite out of the question, and indeed would be destitute of significance if we could arrive at them, for periods in the history of literary forms are not like dynasties; one does not come to an end when the next begins. The refrain, wherever it occurs, whether in 'Robyn and Gandeleyne,' which was written down about 1450, or in 'The Bonny Birdy,' as sung by Mrs Brown about 1783, is a very ancient survival which brings the whole category of ballads into close relations with the singing, dancing throng.

Other elements which point in the same direction are commonplaces, or recurrent passages, varying from a line to several stanzas in length. These are to the ballad very much what idiomatic phrases are to language. Each of them must, at some time, have been the creation of an individual, but all of them have become common property. The balladist who utilizes, for example, the stock stanzas —

'Whare will I get a bonny boy,
Wad fain wun hos and shoon,
That wud rin on to my Wayets,
And quickly come again?'

'Here am I, a bonny boy,
Wad fain wun hos and shoon,
Wha wull run on to your Wayets,
And quickly come again,'¹ is not inventing. We may go farther. He is not even quoting from an individual predecessor, any more than you and I are when, in the course of conversation, we say "That depends upon circumstances," or "without let or hindrance."² The testimony of commonplaces is, indeed, to some extent ambiguous. Their occurrence is consistent with several different theories of ballad authorship and ballad growth. Yet they warn us away from our modern prepossession for the solitary writer, and direct our thoughts toward less sophisticated and more communal conditions of authorship.

Simple repetition is so familiar a feature of the ballad style that it may be dismissed with a word. A message, for instance, is regularly delivered at full length and in precisely the terms in which it was entrusted to the messenger. A similar trait, to which Mr Gummere has given the apposite name of "incremental repetition," is even more noteworthy. It may be seen, for instance, in 'The Twa Sisters' (No. 10), 'The Cruel Brother' (No. 11), and many other ballads. Thus in stanzas 21-26 of 'The Cruel Brother' we have: —

'O what will you leave to your father dear?'
'The silver-shod steed that brought me here.'

'What will you leave to your mother dear?'
'My velvet pall and my silken gear.'

² Examples of commonplaces are No. 82, st. 4, lines 1, 2; No. 39, A 8; No. 42, A 6, lines 1, 2; No. 47, A 2, lines 1, 2; No. 49, B 3; No. 63, A 2, lines 1, 2; No. 64, B 21, lines 1, 2. For a long list, see Child, v, 474, 475 (Index, s. v.).

'What will you leave to your sister Anne?'
'My silken scarf and my gowden fan.'

'What will you leave to your sister Grace?'
'My bloody cloaths to wash and dress.'

'What will you leave to your brother John?'
'The gallows-tree to hang him on.'

'What will you leave to your brother John's wife?'
'The wilderness to end her life.'

With these stanzas before us, incremental repetition defines itself: — each stanza repeats the substance of the preceding, but with some variation which advances the story. Here again, a composing throng is not necessary to explain the phenomenon, but, given the composing throng as an historical fact, we cannot fail to recognize this kind of repetition as a stylistic feature that suits the conditions admirably, and may probably have arisen in the communal period. Once established, such a feature would become what we find it — a bit of ballad technique.

It appears, then, that there is no lack of characteristic traits — besides the general air of impersonality — which justify the conjecture that the history of balladry, if we could follow it back in a straight line without interruptions, would lead us to very simple conditions of society, to the singing and dancing throng, to a period of communal composition. Demonstration, however, is not to be expected, since, from the very nature of the material, the evidence can never be even approximately complete in the case of any particular people. Fortunately, we are not confined to the boundaries of a single nation or language. What has perished in one country has often survived in another, and for the earlier stages of the process we can adduce the plentiful materials which travellers and anthropologists have collected, — materials which have the greater value for our purposes because they were gathered by men who had no thought of any theory of ballad authorship and were not concerned with the origin of poetry.

So far we have said nothing of the professional minstrel, to whom it was formerly the practice of scholars to ascribe the authorship of ballads. Undoubtedly the minstrel is a very ancient figure; we can trace him, in various guises, to remote antiquity. In England, for example, we can follow him back to a time earlier by many centuries than the oldest ballad text that has come down to us.¹ But, during the periods which we are able to study, we do not find that the minstrel stands in any such relation to the genuine and characteristic popular ballad as justifies us in imagining that he is to have the credit of originating or perpetuating that class of popular literature. Such ballads as have been recovered from oral tradition in recent times (and these, as we have seen, comprise the vast majority of our texts) have not, except now and then, been taken down from the recitation or the singing of minstrels, or of any order of men who can be regarded as the descendants or the representatives of minstrels. They have almost always been found in the possession of simple folk whose relation to them was in no sense professional. They were the property of the people, not of a limited class or guild of entertainers. A great number of them (among all nations) have been derived from women, — the most stationary part of the community and the farthest removed, by every instinct and habit, from the roving and irresponsible professionalism which characterizes the minstrel.

Take an example. 'The Cruel Brother' (No. 11) was furnished to Professor Child by Miss Margaret Reburn in a version ¹ current in Ireland about 1860. With this as a starting-point, let us see how far back we can trace the ballad as actually in oral circulation. In 1858 Aytoun remarks that "this is, perhaps, the most popular of all the Scottish ballads, being commonly sung and recited even at the present day." In 1846 Dixon notes that it is still popular among the peasantry in the west of England. In 1827 Kinloch recorded it in his manuscripts from the recitation of Mary Barr of Clydesdale. In 1800 Alexander Fraser Tytler obtained a copy from Mrs Brown of Falkland, to whose well-stored memory we owe some of the best versions of the Scottish ballads. In the last years of the eighteenth century Mrs Harris learned the piece, as a child, and she recited it to her daughter long afterward. In 1869 it was printed in Notes and Queries as "sung in Cheshire amongst the people" in the preceding century. In 1776 David Herd recorded it in his manuscript as he had heard it sung. Thus we have a succession of testimonia for 'The Cruel Brother' from 1860 back to 1776. Nowhere is there any contact with professional minstrelsy. So much for very modern times.

With 'Johnie Armstrong' (No. 169) the test may be applied for a century earlier. Goldsmith, who was born in 1728, recalls, in a famous passage in his Essays (1765), the effect which this ballad had upon him when a child: "The music of the finest singer is dissonance to what I felt when our old dairymaid sung me into tears with Johnny Armstrong's Last Good Night, or the Cruelty of Barbara Allen." In 1658 the ballad was in existence and was printed in Wit Restor'd under the title of 'A Northern Ballet,' and there is no more reason for supposing that it had been in the possession of the minstrel class between that date and Goldsmith's boyhood than for supposing that it was their property between Goldsmith's boyhood and the middle of the nineteenth century. It is superfluous to multiply examples. The reader can collect as many as he likes from Mr Child's volumes. The following proposition will hardly be controverted by any scholar who is familiar with the subject: It is capable of practically formal proof, that for the last two or three centuries the English and Scottish ballads have not, as a general thing, been sung and transmitted by professional minstrels or their representatives. There is no reason whatever for believing that the state of things between 1300 and 1600 was different, in this regard, from that between 1600 and 1900, — and there are many reasons for believing that it was not different.

One other piece of evidence, complementary to that which we have been discussing, makes the case against minstrel authorship almost superfluously convincing. We not only fail to find any special connection between the professional minstrel and the great mass of popular ballads, but we do find an intimate connection between the minstrels and works of an altogether different order. Ballads are one thing: the mediæval Spielmannsdichtung or minstrel poetry is another. The two categories are recognized as distinct by all literary historians. In fact, they are much more than distinct, — they are incommensurable. It is not conceivable that the same order of mind and the same habits of thought should have produced them both. The ballads, then, belong to the folk; they are not the work of a limited professional class, whether of high or of low degree.

Let us not misunderstand the situation. It is not maintained that the minstrels never meddled with ballads at all. It was their business to know all kinds of poetry so as to make themselves acceptable to all sorts and conditions of men. No doubt they had a share in carrying ballads from place to place and in transmitting them to posterity. There is direct proof of this. We owe our early copy of the 'Hunting of the Cheviot'

(No. 162) to Richard Sheale, a humble member of the guild; but we know that he did not compose the ballad, for we have not only strong external evidence to the contrary but also four pieces of Sheale's own (not ballads) which settle the question forever. Of course the minstrels did sometimes compose in the popular strain. We have a few minstrel ballads, like 'The Boy and the Mantle' (No. 29) and 'Crow and Pie' (No. 111), which put this beyond peradventure. Not all ballads are of the same origin, as we shall see presently. But the existence of such ballads is only additional proof that the bulk of our traditional material is not of minstrel authorship. The difference between 'The Boy and the Mantle' and the ballads that come straight from the folk is very striking. It is the difference between sophistication and artlessness.

It is time to gather up the threads of our discussion. We have examined the popular ballad from various points of view, and have weighed and measured a good many opinions about it. Let us apply our conclusions to the material that survives, and, so far as possible, let us see what is to be thought of the origin of the three hundred and five ballads that lie before us in Professor Child's collection.

The extant ballads of England and Scotland represent, in the main, the end of a process of which the beginning may not improbably be discovered in the period of communal composition. They were not themselves composed in this way, but were, in the first instance, the work of individual authors, at least in the great majority of cases. These authors, however, were not professional poets or minstrels, but members of the folk, and their function was in many respects different from that which we ascribe to an author to-day. Let us try to figure to ourselves a typical instance. In the first place, the ballad poet stands in a relation both to his material and to his audience that distinguishes his activity from that of the conscious literary artist. His subject is not his own, — it belongs to the folk. It is a popular tradition of immemorial antiquity, or a situation so simple and obvious as to be matter of general experience, or a recent occurrence which has been taken up by the mouth of common fame. He has no wish to treat the theme in a novel way, — no desire to utter his peculiar feelings about it or to impress it with his individuality. He is not, like the artistic poet among us, an exceptional figure with a message, either of substance or form. He takes no credit to himself, for he deserves none. What he does, many of his neighbors could do as well. Accordingly, he is impersonal and without self-consciousness. He utters what everybody feels, — he is a voice rather than a person. Further, his composition is not a solitary act. He improvises orally,¹ with his audience before him, — or rather, with his audience about him. There is the closest emotional contact between him and his hearers, — a contact which must have a distinct effect on the composer, so that the audience, even if they kept silence (as they can hardly be supposed to do), would still have a kind of share in his poetic act. Here is the strongest contrast to the situation of the modern literary artist, who, in the solitude of his sound-proof study, writes down his own thoughts and feelings, uncertain who will read them, or even if anybody will read them, — addressing himself to an audience in posse, who know neither his face nor his voice, nor even his handwriting. And the difference, it will be observed, consists in the function which the throng (the "folk") performs — by its mere presence, if nothing more — in the production (the "authorship") of ballad poetry.

Commonly, however, the audience will have a far larger function than that of sympathetic and stimulative emotional contact with the author, as we must still call him for want of a better name. As he composes, the author draws freely on a large stock of commonplaces which are public property. These are, of course, entirely familiar to every person in the company, as well as the points in any narrative (for these are also fixed by long-standing tradition) at which the conventional stanzas must come in. When the author arrives at such a point, the audience join their voices with his. So also in passages which merely repeat, in identical terms, what has already been said or sung, as in the delivery of a message. Again, in a succession of stanzas constructed on the principle of incremental repetition, the author and the audience may become merged in the same way, even if the first stanza of the series is in some degree original. Thus we have arrived at a state of things which is in effect scarcely to be distinguished from the supposedly inconceivable phenomenon of a unanimous throng composing poetry with one voice. That dark oracle das Volk dichtet has interpreted itself in action, though not without the license which every Delphic utterance may claim.

For the sake of concreteness, let us apply what has just been said to a specific example, — ‘The Hangman’s Tree,’¹ — taken down from singing in America a few years ago. Miss Backus, who obtained the ballad, remarks, on the basis of local information: “This is an old English song, . . . which was brought over to Virginia before the Revolution. It has not been written for generations, for none of the family have been able to read or write.”

THE HANGMAN’S TREE

- 1 ‘ Hangman, hangman, howd yo hand,
O howd it wide and far!
For theer I see my feyther coomin,
Riding through the air.
- 2 ‘ Feyther, feyther, ha yo brot me goold?
Ha yo paid my fee?
Or ha yo coom to see me hung,
Beneath tha hangman’s tree?’
- 3 ‘ I ha naw brot yo goold,
I ha naw paid yo fee,
But I ha coom to see yo hung
Beneath tha hangman’s tree.’
- 4 ‘ Hangman, hangman, howd yo hand,
O howd it wide and far!
For theer I see my meyther coomin,
Riding through the air.
- 5 ‘ Meyther, meyther, ha yo brot me goold?
Ha yo paid my fee?
Or ha yo coom to see me hung,
Beneath tha hangman’s tree?’
- 6 ‘ I ha naw brot yo goold,
I ha naw paid yo fee,
But I ha coom to see yo hung
Beneath tha hangman’s tree.’

¹ ‘The Hangman’s Tree’ is a version of ‘The Maid Freed from the Gallows’ (No. 95), and was first printed in the Additions and Corrections in Mr Child’s fifth volume (p. 296).

7 ' Hangman, hangman, howd yo hand,
O howd it wide and far!
For theer I see my sister coomin,
Riding through the air.

8 ' Sister, sister, ha yo brot me goold?
Ha yo paid my fee?
Or ha yo coom to see me hung,
Beneath tha hangman's tree? '

9 ' I ha naw brot yo goold,
I ha naw paid yo fee,
But I ha coom to see yo hung
Beneath tha hangman's tree.'

10 ' Hangman, hangman, howd yo hand,
O howd it wide and far!
For theer I see my sweetheart coomin,
Riding through the air.

11 ' Sweetheart, sweetheart, ha yo brot me goold?
Ha yo paid my fee?
Or ha yo coom to see me hung,
Beneath tha hangman's tree? '

12 ' O I ha brot yo goold,
And I ha paid yo fee,
And I ha coom to take yo froom
Beneath tha hangman's tree.'

Suppose now that 'The Hangman's Tree' is a new ballad, sung for the first time by the improvising author. The audience are silent for the first two stanzas and until the first line of the third has been finished. After that, they join in the song. So inevitable is the course of the narrative, so conventionally fixed the turn of the phraseology, that they could almost finish the piece by themselves if the author remained silent. At most they would need his prompting for "meyther," "sister," and "sweetheart" in stanzas 4, 7, and 10, and for a few words in stanza 12. If, in accordance with an hypothesis which is justifiable in many cases, they were familiar with the outline of the plot, though they had never heard a ballad on the subject, they would not require even so much assistance as this. The song is ended, the creative act of composition is finished, — and what has become of the author? He is lost in the throng.

'The Hangman's Tree' is, to be sure, an extreme instance of simplicity in plot and of inevitableness in both structure and diction; but that does not make it an unfair example. It is a survival¹ of an archaic type-specimen, in full vigor of traditional life, at a very late date, when most of our ballads belong to much more highly developed genera. As we study it, we are carried farther back in the direction of communal composition than we could reasonably hope to get at this age of the world, — so far, in truth, that a sanguine theorist might regard the broken line as repaired again. And 'The Hangman's Tree' is by no means a solitary specimen of its kind. The ballad literature of Europe affords examples enough of almost or quite as high a degree of structural and stylistic simplicity, and similar traits are visible in many English and Scottish pieces, though seldom to quite the same extent.

We have described the characteristic method of ballad authorship as improvisation in the presence of a sympathetic company which may even, at times, participate in the process. Such a description is in general warranted by the evidence; and though it cannot be proved for any of the English and Scottish ballads, is not improbable for some of them. The actual facts with regard to any particular piece in this collection are beyond our knowledge, and the matter need not be insisted on. Even if none of our ballads were composed in this way, still many of them conform to a type which was established under the conditions of authorship referred to. It makes no difference whether a given ballad was in fact composed in the manner described, or whether it was composed (or even written) in solitude, provided the author belonged to the folk, derived his material from popular sources, made his ballad under the inherited influence of the method described, and gave it to the folk as soon as he had made it, — and provided, moreover, the folk accepted the gift and subjected it to that course of oral tradition which, as we have seen, is essential to the production of a genuine ballad. That most of the three hundred and five numbers in Mr Child's collection satisfy these conditions is beyond question. In other words, most of these poems are genuine popular ballads within the limits of any reasonable definition of that term. It remains to speak of certain other pieces and to account for their inclusion in the book.¹

The "minstrel ballad" has already been referred to. Three undoubted examples, all of first-rate quality, are 'The Boy and the Mantle' (No. 29), 'King Arthur and King Cornwall' (No. 30), and 'The Marriage of Sir Gawain' (No. 31). Their characteristics are felicitously summed up by Professor Child in his introduction to 'The Boy and the Mantle.' They are, he says, "clearly not of the same rise, and not meant for the same ears, as those which go before. They would come down by professional rather than by domestic tradition, through minstrels rather than knitters and weavers. They suit the hall better than the bower, the tavern or public square better than the cottage, and would not go to the spinning-wheel at all." All three, it should be noticed, stand in close relation to the materials of mediæval romantic fiction, even if they are not directly derived from metrical romances. Yet they are indubitably ballads, composed in the popular style and perpetuated for a time by oral tradition. With them should be compared 'Sir Cawline' (No. 61). This looks as if it were simplified from a romance in stanzas, which, however, would very probably itself have been constructed on the basis of ballads now lost. Minstrel ballads of a later and less popular type are such historical pieces as 'Durham Field' (No. 159), 'The Rising in the North' (No. 175), 'Northumberland Betrayed by Douglas' (No. 176), and 'The Rose of England' (No. 166). The last-mentioned is remarkable for its use of allegory, which makes it seem far more artificial than the others. 'The Earl of Westmoreland' (No. 177) is a curious combination of historical material with romantic fiction of a conventional order. The cynical 'Crow and Pie' (No. 111) is clearly the work of a minstrel, and stands in a class by itself; as a whole, it might be refused the designation of popular ballad, but it contains one passage (stanzas 9–14) which justifies its inclusion in a collection of this kind, especially in view of the age of the manuscript.

"Broadside ballads" are of two main classes, which are really quite distinct: those that are traditional and those that are not. In the seventeenth century there was a great demand for printed ballads, and there grew up a class of professional "purveyors to the press," as Mr Child calls them, who were kept busy in supplying materials for the single-page issues which were hawked about by pedlars and with which every alehouse seems to have been papered. Many traditional ballads were printed in this form, usually in debased versions. Now and then a good old ballad was made over by some hack-writer, and when this was the case, the broadside text, though a pitiful specimen of Grub Street versification, may preserve the substance of a lost traditional ballad. A probable instance is 'The Famous Flower of Serving-Men' (No. 106). Still more remarkable is 'The Suffolk Miracle' (No. 272), which is the only representative in English of the so-called Lénore cycle. The great majority of the broadside ballads, however, belong to the second, or non-traditional class, and have no claim to be admitted into a collection like that of Professor Child. It is to rubbish of this character that the scornful allusions to ballad-mongers in Shakspeare and the other Elizabethan dramatists have reference. Hundreds of such pieces have been reprinted by the Ballad Society. They are generally composed in some form of the ballad stanza, and they use some of the commonplaces of the ballad style, but they are destitute of merit, and, though they are of value to the student of language and manners, they have nothing to do with the subject of this essay.

Several broadside ballads of the poorer sort will be found among the thirty-eight numbers (117-154) relating to Robin Hood. Some of these are inserted because they presumably or conceivably are based on earlier and more traditional pieces; others because they embody a situation which occurs in genuine ballads; still others because, though of no value in themselves and destitute of any claim to traditional antecedents, they are a part of the evidence about the famous outlaw and illustrate the literary history of balladry. Taken as a whole, the Robin Hood pieces afford materials of the highest interest for the study of ballad and epic. The older ballads are in the best traditional vein. The 'Gest' (No. 117) is, as Mr Child says, "a popular epic, composed from several ballads by a poet of a thoroughly congenial spirit. No one of the ballads from which it is made up is extant in a separate shape, and some portions of the story may have been of the compiler's own invention." It may be contrasted with Nos. 149 and 154. The former, 'Robin Hood's Birth, Breeding, Valor, and Marriage,' is a jocular piece, the work of some seventeenth-century rhymester who cared nothing for tradition and to whom the simplicity of the ballad style suggested only a temptation to good-humored caricature. The latter, Martin Parker's 'True Tale of Robin Hood,' is a prosaic omnium gatherum, professing to be authentic biography. It is the only text in Mr Child's whole collection which is the work of a known author. 'Robin Hood and the Prince of Aragon' (No. 129) is a kind of metrical romance in the ballad stanza. Garlands, or little pamphlets of verse, differing from broadsides only in their form, are the authorities for several of our Robin Hood texts.¹

The mere fact that a ballad is derived from recitation is of course no positive proof that it is traditional. Imitations and counterfeits may be fabricated orally or may be written down and furnished to guileless collectors as from the mouths of the people. Some of the later pieces in this collection are very suspicious and others are almost certainly spurious. What to include and what to reject is a difficult question, which no two scholars would answer in precisely the same way. It is fitting, however, that the student of literary history should have before him specimens of the decadent period. Occasionally, too, such imitations contain stanzas of value, or are otherwise significant. Thus 'Willie's Fatal Visit' (No. 255) is a hotch-potch of three ballads with one stanza from a fourth; yet it contains a very spirited passage (stanzas 15-17) which is unknown elsewhere and worthy of preservation for its own sake. Who put the piece together we cannot tell, — perhaps the blind beggar whom Buchan employed to collect for him. In any case, the conglomerate is instructive; for it shows how new ballads may come into existence by a process of amalgamation, and this is a process which is quite as active among the folk as in the laboratory of the counterfeiter. David Herd is above suspicion, and he lived at a time when good ballads were abundant and tradition was still pure and vigorous; whatever occurs in his manuscripts may be unhesitatingly accepted as a faithful transcript from the lips of the people. Yet he records a copy of 'Clerk Saunders' (No. 69) consisting of forty-one stanzas, the last fifteen of which are merely 'Sweet William's Ghost' (No. 77) slightly modified so as to fit what precedes. This is the simplest kind of traditional compounding. A similar example may be seen in the copy of 'The Clerk's Twa Sons o Owsenford' (No. 72) preserved in the memory of the grandmother of Robert Chambers, which concludes with a beautiful fragment of 'The Wife of Usher's Well' (No. 79). Complications less easy to disentangle may be seen by studying the relations of 'Willie o Douglas Dale' (No. 101), 'Willie and Earl Richard's Daughter' (No. 102), and 'Rose the Red and White Lily' (No. 103) to each other and to 'Leesome Brand' (No. 15). Here both tradition and manufacture have been operative. A good example of contamination which has not resulted in the genesis of a new ballad occurs in the "old lady's" version of 'The Mother's Malison' (No. 216 A), which has appropriated an incident that belongs to 'The Lass of Roch Royal' (No. 76). To appreciate the full effects of oral tradition in this and other directions, the investigator must have recourse to the full body of variants printed by Professor Child in his large collection. The present volume, however, contains examples enough to illustrate and enforce what has been said of the significance of oral tradition in the problem of ballad "authorship."¹ It was no doubt the feeling that the popular ballad is a fluid and unstable thing that has prompted so many editors — among them Sir Walter Scott, whom it is impossible to assail, however much the scholarly conscience may disapprove — to deal freely with the versions that came into their hands. "Doch Homeride zu seyn, auch nur als letzter, ist schön"!

Of literary "imitations of the ancient ballad" little need be said. Even when the polite authors of such pieces have palmed them off as genuine, one must rather wonder that the imposture succeeded than give way to anger at the attempt. Nobody who is at all well-read in genuine "oral literature" can be deceived. Lady Wardlaw's 'Hardy-cnutte,' which puzzled many brains in its time, has not a single ballad touch; its two good lines, —

Stately stept he east the wa'
And stately stept he west, have nothing popular about them. The Rev. Mr Lamb's 'Laidley Worm of Spindleston Henghs,' which he gave out as "made by the old Mountain Bard, Duncan Frasier, living on Cheviot, A. D. 1270,"² was hardly meant to deceive, and would not be dangerous if it had been so meant. In short, the traditional ballad appears to be inimitable by any person of literary cultivation, and we may well feel grateful to those poets and poetasters who have tried their hands at it, for their invariable failure is one of the strongest proofs — amounting almost to demonstration — that there is a difference between the "poetry of the folk" and "the poetry of art." A solitary, though doubtful, exception is 'Kinmont Willie' (No. 186), which is under vehement suspicion of being the work of Sir Walter Scott. Sir Walter's success, however, in a special kind of balladry for which he was better adapted by nature and habit of mind than for any other, would only emphasize the universal failure. And it must not be forgotten that 'Kinmont Willie,' if it be Scott's work, is not made out of whole cloth; it is a working-over of one of the best traditional ballads known ('Jock o the Side'), with the intention of fitting it to an historical exploit of Buccleuch's. Further, the exploit itself was of such a nature that it might well have been celebrated in a ballad, — indeed, one is tempted to say that it must have been so celebrated. And finally, Sir Walter Scott felt towards "the Kinmont" and "the bold Buccleuch" precisely as the moss-trooping author of such a ballad would have felt. For once, then, the miraculous happened, — and, when we study the situation, we perceive that, for this once, it was not so great a miracle after all.

Peter Buchan's blind beggar has been casually mentioned, but he is too notorious a personage to dismiss without more formality. There is a good deal of his work in Mr Child's collection (most of it omitted in the present volume), and an attempt must be made to determine his position, and in particular his significance, in the history of oral tradition. It is hard to be patient with James Rankin (for that was his name), but perhaps we may see occasion for something better than patience before we have done with him. Liar though he was, his falsehoods may give evidence that a truth-teller could not afford us.

Buchan's Ancient Ballads and Songs of the North of Scotland, for which Rankin's industry as collector, composer, and rhapsodist furnished much of the material, appeared in 1828. Some of the ballads which it contains are found nowhere else, and most of these are suspicious enough, though several of them are reproduced by Mr Child, and repeated in this volume, on the same principle which has led to the inclusion of certain dubious broadsides — because they may preserve more or less genuine material in a disguised shape. Most of Buchan's texts, however, are versions of ballads otherwise vouched for. In this case, they are almost always the longest versions known, padded with superfluous details (often silly beyond expression), tricked out with pinchbeck finery, and thoroughly vulgarized in style and spirit. Here we have the work of Rankin, who seems to have been paid by the yard, and who found his honest patron an easy man to cajole. Now the significance of James Rankin lies in the fact that he was in effect a professional minstrel of the humbler order, or at least the lineal descendant or representative of the minstrel class of former times. When we compare his own productions, or the versions which he has recomposed, with those which other collectors were deriving at about the same time from non-professional sources, — shepherds, ploughmen, nurses, and other simple bodies who had no touch of literature and no ambition except to sing the old songs as they had heard them sung, — we see in a moment the absurdity of the notion that our popular ballads were composed or even largely transmitted by minstrels. And thus one chapter, and a troublesome one, of our investigation is brought to a satisfactory close.

We have touched upon most of the problems that confront the investigator of the popular ballad. Certain others, like that of the transmission of ballads from country to country, which includes the special question of kinship between the English and Scottish ballads and those of Scandinavia, do not come within the scope of this introduction. The same is true of the history of ballad collections, which would take much space, and in lieu of which the reader is referred once more to the List of Sources on pp. 677–684.

Of the merit of the English and Scottish ballads nothing need be said. It is unhesitatingly admitted by all persons who care for ballads at all. There is no occasion to make comparisons as to excellence between these pieces and the poetry of art. Such comparisons are misleading ; they tend only to confound the distinctions between two very different categories of literature. The ballads must stand or fall by themselves, not by reason of their likeness or unlikeness to Dante or Shakspeare or Milton or Browning. ~~or dramas~~ Above all things, they should not be judged indiscriminately or in the lump. There are good ballads and poor ballads, as there are good dramas and poor dramas, and this volume contains an abundance of both sorts. On the whole, however, the average of excellence is probably as high as in most volumes of verse of equal dimensions. Finally, the popular ballad, though it may be despised, cannot be ignored by the student of literature. Whatever may be thought of the importance of such verse in its bearing on the origin of poetry in general, or of epic poetry in particular, the ballad, like other forms of popular material, has in the last two centuries exercised a powerful influence on artistic literature, and it will always have to be reckoned with by the literary historian.

ENGLISH AND SCOTTISH POPULAR BALLADS

In the oldest version (A*) the devil threatens to carry off a maiden if she cannot answer certain riddles. She solves them all, and (at the end) calls the devil by his right name, thus no doubt putting him to flight. The "good ending" of A (sta. 19-23) is a modern perversion.

Riddles play an important part in popular story, and that from very remote times. No one needs to be reminded of Samson, Oedipus, Apollonius of Tyre. Riddle tales, which, if not so old as the oldest of these, may be carried in all likelihood some centuries beyond our era, still live in Asiatic and European tradition, and have their representatives in popular ballads. The largest class of these tales is that in which one party has to guess another's riddles, or two rivals compete in giving or guessing, under penalty in either instance of forfeiting life or some other heavy wager (see No. 45). In a second class, a suitor can win a lady's hand only by guessing riddles (see No. 46); there is sometimes a penalty of loss of life for the unsuccessful. Thirdly, there is the tale of the Clever Lass, who wins a husband, and sometimes a crown, by guessing riddles, solving difficult but practicable problems, or matching and evading impossibilities (see No. 2).

Which also lived in the North.
- 3 The knight, of courage stout and brave,
A wife he did desire to have.

'Thy suit, fair maid, shall not be deny'd.

The knight became exceeding glad.

He much commended her for it.

THE ELFIN KNIGHT

This ballad is related to a remarkable group of stories, covering, by representatives which are still extant or may be shown to have existed, a large part of Asia and Europe. In the particular type to which our ballad belongs, a clever girl wins a husband by her quickness of wit ; the man imposes tasks, of which the girl stands acquitted if she can match each of them with another of no less difficulty. The elf is an interloper from some other ballad (cf. No. 4); the suitor should be a mortal.

'A proper new ballad entituled The Wind hath blown my Plaid away, or, A Discourse betwixt a young [Wo]man and the Elphin Knight;' a black letter broadside, of about 1670, in the Pepysian library, bound up at the end of a copy of Blind Harry's 'Wallace,' Edinburgh, 1678.

My plaid awa, my plaid awa,
And ore the hill and far awa,
And far awa to Norrowa,
My plaid shall not be blown awa.

- 1 The elphin knight sits on yon hill,
Ba, ba, ba, lilli ba
He blaws his horn both lowd and shril.
The wind hath blown my plaid awa
- 2 He blowes it east, he blowes it west,
He blowes it where he lyketh best.
- 3 'I wish that horn were in my kist,
Yea, and the knight in my armes two.'
- 4 She had no sooner these words said,
When that the knight came to her bed.
- 5 'Thou art over young a maid,' quoth he,
'Married with me thou il wouldst be.'
- 6 'I have a sister younger than I,
And she was married yesterday.'
- 7 'Married with me if thou wouldst be,
A courtesie thou must do to me.
- 8 'For thou must shape a sark to me,
Without any cut or heme,' quoth he.
- 9 'Thou must shape it knife-and-sheer-
lesse,
And also sue it needle-threedlesse.'
- 10 'If that piece of courtesie I do to thee,
Another thou must do to me.

- 11 'I have an aiker of good ley-land,
Which lyeth low by yon sea-strand.
- 12 'For thou must eare it with thy horn,
So thou must sow it with thy corn.
- 13 'And bigg a cart of stone and lyme,
Robin Redbreast he must trail it hame.
- 14 'Thou must barn it in a mouse-holl,
And thrash it into thy shoes soll.
- 15 'And thou must winnow it in thy looff,
And also seek it in thy glove.
- 16 'For thou must bring it over the sea,
And thou must bring it dry home to me.
- 17 'When thou hast gotten thy turns well
done,
Then come to me and get thy sark then.'
- 18 'I'll not quite my plaid for my life;
It haps my seven bairns and my wife.'
The wind shall not blow my plaid awa
- 19 'My maidenhead I'll then keep still,
Let the elphin knight do what he will.'
The wind's not blown my plaid awa

THE FALSE KNIGHT UPON
THE ROAD

This singular ballad is known only through Motherwell. The idea at the bottom of the piece is that the devil will carry off the wee boy if he can nonplus him. There is a curious Swedish ballad of the same description, in which an old crone, possibly a witch, is substituted for the false knight.

LADY ISABEL AND THE ELF-
KNIGHT

Of all ballads this has perhaps obtained the widest circulation. It is nearly as well known to the southern as to the northern nations of Europe. It has an extraordinary currency in Poland. The Germans, Low and High, and the Scandinavians, preserve it, in a full and evidently ancient form, even in the tradition of this generation. Among the Latin nations it has, indeed, shrunk to very meagre proportions, and though the English forms are not without ancient and distinctive marks, most of these have been eliminated, and the better ballads are very brief. In A and B the supernatural character of the Elf-Knight is retained (less clearly in B); in others it is lost completely, and he has become merely "false Sir John" or the like.

The Dutch ballad, 'Halewijn,' is far better preserved than the English. Heer Halewijn sang such a song that those who heard it longed to be with him. A king's daughter asked her father if she might go to Halewijn. "No," he said; "those who go that way never come back." So said mother and sister, but her brother's answer was, "I care not where you go, so long as you keep your honor." She dressed herself splendidly, took the best horse from her father's stable, and rode to the wood, where she found Halewijn waiting for her. They then rode on further, till they came to a gallows, on which many women were hanging.

Halewijn offers her the choice between hanging and the sword. She chooses the sword. "Only take off your coat first; for a maid's blood spirts a great way, and it would be a pity to spatter you." His head was off before his coat, but the tongue still spake. This dialogue ensues:—

'Go yonder into the corn,
And blow upon my horn,
That all my friends you may warn.'

'Into the corn I will not go,
And on your horn I will not blow:
A murderer's bidding I will not do!

'Go yonder under the gallows-tree,
And fetch a pot of salve for me,
And rub my red neck lustily.'

'Under the gallows I will not go,
Nor will I rub your red neck, no,
A murderer's bidding I will not do.'

She takes the head by the hair and washes it in a spring, and rides back through the wood. Half-way through she meets Halewijn's mother, who asks after her son; and she tells her that he is gone hunting, that he will never be seen again, that he is dead, and she has his head in her lap. When she came to her father's gate, she blew the horn like any man.

And when the father heard the strain,
He was glad she had come back again.

Thereupon they held a feast,
The head was on the table placed.

Aye as the gowans grow gay
There she heard an elf-knight blawing his horn.
The first morning in May

2 'If I had yon horn that I hear blawing,
And yon elf-knight to sleep in my bosom.'

3 This maiden had scarcely these words spoken,
Till in at her window the elf-knight hae luppen.

4 'It's a very strange matter, fair maiden,'
said he,
'I canna blaw my horn but ye call on
me.

5 'But will ye go to yon greenwood side?
If ye canna gang, I will cause you to ride.'

6 He leapt on a horse, and she on another,
And they rode on to the greenwood together.

7 'Light down, light down, lady Isabel,'
said he,
'We are come to the place where ye are to die.'

GIL BRENTON

'Gil Brenton' was taken down from recitation in Scotland about 1783. It has many Scandinavian relatives. In some of these the father of the heroine had built her bower by the sea-strand, and it was broken open by a company of men, one of whom had robbed her of her honor. This knight proves to be the hero of the ballad. (So, for example, in Grundtvig, No. 274.)

- 18 'But he's cutted the paps frae their breast-bane,
An sent them mourning hame again.
- 19 'But whan you come to the palace yate,
His mither a golden chair will set.
- 20 'An be you maid or be you nane,
O sit you there till the day be dane.
- 21 'An gin you're sure that you are a maid,
Ye may gang safely to his bed.
- 22 'But gin o that you be na sure,
Then hire some woman o youre bowr.'
- 23 O whan she came to the palace yate,
His mither a golden chair did set.
- 24 An was she maid or was she nane,
She sat in it till the day was dane.
- 25 An she's calld on her bowr woman,
That waiting was her bowr within.
- 26 'Five hundred pound, maid, I'll gi to
the,
An sleep this night wi the king for
me.'
- 27 Whan bells was rung, an mass was sung,
An a' man unto bed was gone,
- 28 Gil Brenton an the bonny maid
Intill ae chamber they were laid.
- 29 'O speak to me, blankets, an speak to me, sheets,
An speak to me, cods, that under me
sleeps;
- 30 'Is this a maid that I ha wedded?
Is this a maid that I ha bedded?'
- 31 'It's nae a maid that you ha wedded,
But it's a maid that you ha bedded.
- 32 'Your lady's in her bigly bowr,
An for you she drees mony sharp showr.'
- 33 O he has taen him thro the ha,
And on his mither he did ca.
- 34 'I am the most unhappy man
That ever was in christend lan.
- 35 'I woo'd a maiden meek an mild,
An I've marryed a woman great wi child.'
- 36 'O stay, my son, intill this ha,
An sport you wi your merry men a'.
- 37 'An I'll gang to yon painted bowr,
An see how 't fares wi yon base whore.'
- 38 The auld queen she was stark and strang;
She gard the door flee aff the ban.
- 39 The auld queen she was stark an steer;
She gard the door lye i the flier.
- 40 'O is your bairn to laird or loon?
Or is it to your father's groom?'
- 41 'My bairn's na to laird or loon,
Nor is it to my father's groom.
- 42 'But hear me, mither, on my knee,
An my hard wierd I'll tell to thee.
- 43 'O we were sisters, sisters seven,
We was the fairest under heaven.
- 44 'We had nae mair for our seven years
wark
But to shape and sue the king's son a sark.
- 45 'O it fell on a Saturday's afternoon,
Whan a' our langsome wark was dane,
- 46 'We keist the cavils us amang,
To see which shoud to the greenwood gang.
- 47 'Ohone, alas! for I was youngest,
An ay my wierd it was the hardest.

- 48 'The cavi' it did on me fa,
Which was the cause of a' my wae.
- 49 'For to the greenwood I must gae,
To pu the nut but an the slae ;
- 50 'To pu the red rose an the thyme,
To strew my mother's bowr and mine.
- 51 'I had na pu'd a flowr but ane,
Till by there came a jelly hind greeme,
- 52 'Wi high-coll'd hose an laigh-coll'd
shoone,
An he 'peard to be some kingis son.
- 53 'An be I maid or be I nane,
He kept me there till the day was dane.
- 54 'An be I maid or be I nae,
He kept me there till the close of day.
- 55 'He gae me a lock of yallow hair,
An bade me keep it for ever mair.
- 56 'He gae me a carkit o gude black beads,
An bade me keep them against my needs.
- 57 'He gae to me a gay gold ring,
An bade me ke[e]p it aboon a' thing.
- 58 'He gae to me a little pen-kniffe,
An bade me keep it as my life.'
- 59 'What did you wi these tokens rare
That ye got frae that young man there ?'
- 60 'O bring that coffer hear to me,
And a' the tokens ye sal see.'
- 61 An ay she ranked, an ay she flang,
Till a' the tokens came till her han.
- 62 'O stay here, daughter, your bowr within,
Till I gae parley wi my son.'
- 63 O she has taen her thro the ha,
An on her son began to ca.
- 64 'What did you wi that gay gold ring
I bade you keep aboon a' thing ?
- 65 'What did you wi that little pen-kniffe
I bade you keep while you had life ?

- 66 'What did you wi that yallow hair
I bade you keep for ever mair ?
- 67 'What did you wi that good black beads
I bade you keep against your needs ?'
- 68 'I gae them to a lady gay
I met i the greenwood on a day.
- 69 'An I would gi a' my father's lan,
I had that lady my yates within.
- 70 'I would gi a' my ha's an towrs,
I had that bright burd i my bowrs.'
- 71 'O son, keep still your father's lan;
You hae that lady your yates within.
- 72 'An keep you still your ha's an towrs;
You hae that bright burd i your bowrs.'
- 73 Now or a month was come and gone,
This lady bare a bonny young son.
- 74 An it was well written on his breast-
bane
'Gil Brenton is my father's name.'

WILLIE'S LADY

This ballad, like No. 5, was written down, from recitation, about 1783. It is extant in two copies, differing very slightly and both derived from Mrs. Brown of Falkland. Danish versions are numerous (see Grundtvig, Nos. 84, 85).

A

a. A copy, by Miss Mary Fraser Tytler, of a transcript made by her grandfather from William Tytler's manuscript. b. Jamieson-Brown MS., No. 15, p. 33.

- 1 WILLIE has taen him oer the fame,
He's woo'd a wife and brought her
hame.
- 2 He's woo'd her for her yellow hair,
But his mother wrought her mickle care.
- 3 And mickle dolour gard her dree,
For lighter she can never be.

| 4 But in her bower she sits wi pain,
And Willie mourns oer her in vain. 5 And to his mother he has gone,
That vile rank witch of vilest kind. 6 He says : ' My ladie has a cup,
Wi gowd and silver set about. 7 ' This goodlie gift shall be your ain,
And let her be lighter o her young bairn.' 8 ' Of her young bairn she 'll neer be lighter,
Nor in her bower to shine the brighter. 9 ' But she shall die and turn to clay,
And you shall wed another may.' 10 ' Another may I 'll never wed,
Another may I 'll neer bring home.' 11 But sighing says that weary wight,
' I wish my life were at an end.' 12 ' Ye doe [ye] unto your mother again,
That vile rank witch of vilest kind. 13 ' And say your ladie has a steed,
The like o 'm 's no in the lands of Leed. 14 ' For he [i]s golden shod before,
And he [i]s golden shod behind. 15 ' And at ilka tet of that horse's main,
There 's a golden chess and a bell ringing. 16 ' This goodlie gift shall be your ain,
And let me be lighter of my young bairn.' 17 ' O her young bairn she 'll neer be

38 'And wha has loosed her left-foot shee,
And lotten that ladie lighter be?'

39 O Willie has loosed the nine witch knots
That was amo that ladie's locks.

40 And Willie's taen out the kaims o care
That hang amo that ladie's hair.

41 And Willie's taen down the bush o woodbine
That hang atween her bower and thine.

42 And Willie has killed the master kid
That ran beneath that ladie's bed.

43 And Willie has loosed her left-foot
shee,
And letten his ladie lighter be.

44 And now he's gotten a bonny young
son,
And mickle grace be him upon.

EARL BRAND

'Earl Brand' has preserved most of the incidents of a very ancient story with a faithfulness unequalled by any ballad that has been recovered from English oral tradition. It has, however, all but lost a circumstance that forms the turning-point in related Scandinavian ballads with which it must once have agreed in all important particulars. This is the so-called "dead-naming," which has an important place in popular superstition. The incident appears as follows in the Danish 'Ribold and Guldberg,' (Grundtvig, No. 82): Ribold is fleeing with his love Guldberg. They are pursued by Guldberg's father and her brothers. Ribold bids Guldberg hold his horse, and, whatever may happen, not to call him by name. Ribold cuts down six or seven of her brothers and her father, besides others of her kin; the youngest brother only is left, and Guldberg in an agony calls upon Ribold to spare him, to carry tidings to her mother. No sooner was his name pronounced than Ribold received a mortal wound. The English and Scottish ballads preserve only the faintest trace of the knight's injunction not to name him. Cf. A*, st. 27, with 'Erlinton,' A*, st. 15, B, st. 14.

'Earl Brand,' with the many Scandinavian ballads of the same group, would seem to belong among the numerous ramifications of the Hildesaga. Of these, the second lay of Helgi Hundingslayer, in the Poetic Edda, and 'Waltharius,' the beautiful poem of Ekkehard, are most like the ballads. See also 'Erlinton' (No. 8). Percy, in his Reliques, expanded the fragmentary version C to five times its actual length.

'The Earl o Bran,' "Scotch Ballads, Materials for Border Minstrelsy," No. 22 b, Abbotsford; in the handwriting of Richard Heber.

1 DID ye ever hear o guid Earl o Bran
An the queen's daughter o the south-lan?

2 She was na fifteen years o age
Till she came to the Earl's bed-side.

3 'O guid Earl o Bran, I fain wad see
My grey hounds run over the lea.'

4 'O kind lady, I have no steeds but one,
But ye shall ride, an I shall run.'

5 'O guid Earl o Bran, but I have tua,
An ye shall hae yere wael o those.'

6 The 're ovr moss an the 're over muir,
An they saw neither rich nor poor.

7 Till they came to ald Carl Hood,
He's ay for ill, but he's never for good.

8 'O guid Earl o Bran, if ye loe me,
Kill Carl Hood an gar him die.'

9 'O kind lady, we had better spare;
I never killd ane that wore grey hair.

10 'We'll gie him a penny-fie an let him
gae,
An then he'll carry nae tidings away.'

11 'Where hae been riding this lang simmer-day?
Or where hae stolen this lady away?'

12 'O I hae not riden this lang simmer-
day,
Nor hae I stolen this lady away.

13 'For she is my sick sister
I got at the Wamshester.'

- 14 'If she were sick an like to die,
She wad na be wearing the gold sae
high.'
- 15 Ald Carl Hood is over the know,
Where they rode one mile, he ran four.
- 16 Till he came to her mother's yetts,
An I wat he rapped rudely at.
- 17 'Where is the lady o this ha ?'
'She 's out wie her maidens, playing at the ba.'
- 18 'O na ! fy na !
For I met her fifteen miles awa.
- 19 'She 's over moss, an she 's over muir,
An a' to be the Earl o Bran's whore.'
- 20 Some rode wie sticks, an some wie rungs,
An a' to get the Earl o Bran slain.
- 21 That lady lookd over her left shoudder-
bane :
'O guid Earl o Bran, we 'll a' be taen !
For yond 'r a' my father's men.
- 22 'But if ye 'll take my claiths, I 'll take thine,
An I 'll fight a' my father's men.'
- 23 'It 's no the custom in our land
For ladies to fight an knights to stand.
- 24 'If they come on me ane by ane,
I 'll smash them a' down bane by bane.
- 25 'If they come on me ane and a',
Ye soon will see my body fa.'
- 26 He has luppen from his steed,
An he has gein her that to had.
- 27 An bad her never change her cheer
Untill she saw his body bleed.
- 28 They came on him ane by ane,
An he smashed them doun a' bane by
bane.
- 29 He sat him doun on the green grass,
For I wat a wearit man he was.

- 30 But ald Carl Hood came him behind,
An I wat he gae him a deadly wound.
- 31 He 's awa to his lady then,
He kissed her, and set her on her steed again.
- 32 He rode whistlin out the way.
An a' to hearten his lady gay.
- 33 'Till he came to the water-flood:
'O guid Earl o Bran, I see blood !'
- 34 'O it is but my scarlet hood,
That shines upon the water-flood.'
- 35 They came on 'till his mother's yett,
An I wat he rappit poorly at.
- 36 His mother she 's come to the door :
'O son, ye 've gotten yere dead wie an English whore !'
- 37 'She was never a whore to me ;
Sae let my brother her husband be.'
- 38 Sae ald Carl Hood was not the dead o
ane,
But he was the dead o hale seeventeen.

'The Douglas Tragedy,' Scott's Minstrelsy,
III, 246, ed. 1808; III, 6, ed. 1833: the copy principally used supplied by C. K. Sharpe, the last three stanzas from a penny pamphlet and from tradition.

- 1 'RISE up, rise up, now, Lord Douglas,'
she says,
'And put on your armour so bright ;
Let it never be said that a daughter of thine
Was married to a lord under night.
- 2 'Rise up, rise up, my seven bold sons,
And put on your armour so bright,
And take better care of your youngest sister,
For your eldest 's awa the last night.'
- 3 He 's mounted her on a milk-white steed,
And himself on a dapple grey,
With a bugelet horn hung down by his
side,
And lightly they rode away.

4 Lord William lookit oer his left shoulder,
To see what he could see,
And there he spy'd her seven brethren
bold,
Come riding over the lee.

5 'Light down, light down, Lady Mar-gret,' he said,
'And hold my steed in your hand,
Until that against your seven brethren
bold,
And your father, I mak a stand.'

6 She held his steed in her milk-white
hand,
And never shed one tear,
Until that she saw her seven brethren
fa,
And her father hard fighting, who lovd her so dear.

7 'O hold your hand, Lord William !' she
said,
'For your strokes they are wondrous
sair ;
True lovers I can get many a ane,
But a father I can never get mair.'

8 O she's taen out her handkerchief,
It was o the holland sae fine,
And aye she dighted her father's bloody wounds,
That were redder than the wine.

9 'O chuse, O chuse, Lady Margret,' he
said,
'O whether will ye gang or bide ?'
'I'll gang, I'll gang, Lord William,'
she said,
'For ye have left me no other guide.'

10 He's lifted her on a milk-white steed,
And himself on a dapple grey,
With a bugelet horn hung down by his
side,
And slowly they baith rade away.

11 O they rade on, and on they rade,
And a' by the light of the moon,
Until they came to yon wan water,
And there they lighted down.

12 They lighted down to tak a drink
Of the spring that ran sae clear,

And down the stream ran his gude heart's blood,
And sair she gan to fear.

13 'Hold up, hold up, Lord William,' she
says,
'For I fear that you are slain ;'
'Tis naething but the shadow of my scarlet cloak,
That shines in the water sae plain.'

14 O they rade on, and on they rade,
And a' by the light of the moon,
Until they cam to his mother's ha door,
And there they lighted down.

15 'Get up, get up, lady mother,' he says,
'Get up, and let me in !'
Get up, get up, lady mother,' he says,
'For this night my fair lady I've win.'

16 'O mak my bed, lady mother,' he says,
'O mak it braid and deep,
And lay Lady Margret close at my back,
And the sounder I will sleep.'

17 Lord William was dead lang ere midnight,
Lady Margret lang ere day,
And all true lovers that go thegither,
May they have mair luck than they !

18 Lord William was buried in St. Mary's kirk,
Lady Margret in Mary's quire;
Out o the lady's grave grew a bonny
red rose,
And out o the knight's a briar.

19 And they twa met, and they twa plat,
And fain they wad be near;
And a' the warld might ken right weel
They were twa lovers dear.

20 But bye and rade the Black Douglas,
And wow but he was rough !
For he pulld up the bonny brier,
And flang 't in St. Mary's Loch.

'The Child of Ell,' Percy MS., p. 57; ed.
Hales and Furnivall, I, 133.

1

Sayes 'Christ thee saue, good Child of Ell !
Christ saue thee and thy steede!

2 'My father sayes he will [eat] noe
meate,
Nor his drinke shall doe him noe
good,
Till he haue slaine the Child of Ell,
And haue seene his harts blood.'

3 'I wold I were in my sadle sett,
And a mile out of the towne;
I did not care for your father
And all his merry men !

4 'I wold I were in my sadle sett,
And a little space him free;
I did not care for your father
And all that long him to !'

5 He leaned ore his saddle bow
To kisse this lady good;
The teares that went them two betweene
Were blend water and blood.

6 He sett himselfe on one good steed,
This lady on a palfray,
And sett his litle horne to his mouth,
And roundlie he rode away.

7 He had not ridden past a mile,
A mile out of the towne,

8 Her father was readye with her seuen
brether,
He said, 'Sett thou my daughter
downe !
For it ill beseemes thee, thou false
churles sonne,
To carry her forth of this towne !'

9 'But lowd thou lvest, Sir Iohn the
knight,
Thou now doest lye of me ;
A knight me gott, and a lady me bore ;
Soe neuer did none by thee.

10 'But light now downe, my lady gay,
Light downe and hold my horsse, Whilest I and your father and your
brether
Doe play vs at this crosse.

11 'But light now downe, my owne trew
loue,
And meeklye hold my steede,
Whilest your father [and your seuen
brether] bold

ERLINTON

This ballad has only with much hesitation been separated from the foregoing. Versions A and B have one correspondence with the Scandinavian Ribold ballad not found in 'Earl Brand,' — the strict watch kept over the lady. But notwithstanding the resemblances to the Ribold story, there is a difference in the larger part of the details, and all the 'Erlinton' ballads have a fortunate ending. The copy in Scott's Minstrelsy, III, 235, ed. 1803, was compounded from A* and a closely related version.

Abbotsford MS., Scotch Ballads, Materials for Border Minstrelsy, No. 20, obtained from Nelly Laidlaw, and in the handwriting of William Laidlaw.

1 LORD ERLINTON had ae daughter,
I trow he 's weird her a grit sin ;
For he has bugn a bigly bower,
An a' to pit his ae daughter in.
An he has buggin, etc.

2 An he has warn her sisters six,
Her sisters six an her brethren se'en,
Thei 'r either to watch her a' the night.
Or than to gang i the mornin soon.

3 She had na been i that bigly bower
Not ae night but only ane
Untill that Willie, her true-love, Chappit at the bower-door, no at the gin.

4 'Whae 's this, whae 's this chaps at my bower-door,
At my bower-door, no at the gin ?'
'O it is Willie, thy ain true-love ;
O will ye rise an let me in ?'

5 'In my bower, Willie, there is a wane,
An in the wane there is a wake ;
But I will come to the green woods
The morn, for my ain true-love's sake.'

- 6 This lady she 's lain down again,
An she has lain till the cock crew
thrice ;
She said unto her sisters baith,
Lasses, it 's time at we soud rise.
- 7 She 's putten on her breast a silver tee,
An on her back a silken gown ;
She 's taen a sister in ilka hand,
An away to the bonnie green wood she 's gane.
- 8 They hadna gane a mile in that bonnie
green wood,
They had na gane a mile but only
ane,
Till they met wi Willie, her ain true-
love,
An thrae her sisters he has her taen.
- 9 He 's taen her sisters ilk by the hand,
He 's kissd them baith, an he 's sent them hame ;
He 's muntit his ladie him high behind,
An thro the bonnie green wood thei 'r
gane.
- 10 They 'd ridden a mile i that bonnie
green wood,
They hadna ridden but only ane,
When there cam fifteen o the baldest
knights
That ever boor flesh, bluid an bane.
- 11 Than up bespak the foremost knight,
He woor the gray hair on his chin ;
'Yield me yer life or your lady fair,
An ye sal walk the green woods
within.'
- 12 'For to gie my wife to thee,
I wad be very laith,' said he ;
'For than the folk wad think I was gane
mad,
Or that the senses war taen frae me.'
- 13 Up than bespak the niest foremost
knight,
I trow he spak right boustronslie ;
'Yield me yer life or your ladie fair,
An ye sall walk the green woods wi
me.'
- 14 'My wife, she is my warld's meed,
My life, it lyes me very near ;

But if ye be man o your manhood
I serve will while my days are near.'

- 15 He 's luppen off his milk-white steed,
He 's gien his lady him by the head :
'See that ye never change yer cheer
Till ance ye see my body bleed.'
- 16 An he 's killd a' the fifteen knights,
He 's killed them a' but only ane ;
A' but the auld grey-headed knight,
He bade him carry the tiddins hame.
- 17 He 's gane to his lady again,
I trow he 's kissd her, baith cheek an chin ;
'Now ye 'r my ain, I have ye win,
An we will walk the green woods
within.'

'True Tammas,' MS. of Robert White, Esq., of Newcastle, from James Telfer's collection.

- 1 THERE was a knight, an he had a daughter,
An he wad wed her, wi muckle sin ;
Sae he has biggit a bonnie bower, love,
An a' to keep his fair daughter in.
- 2 But she hadna been in the bonnie bower,
love,
And no twa hours but barely ane,
Till up started Tammas, her ain true lover,
And O sae fain as he wald been in.
- 3 'For a' sae weel as I like ye, Tammas,
An for a' sae weel as I like the gin,
I wadna for ten thousand pounds, love,
Na no this night wad I let thee in.
- 4 'But yonder is a bonnie greenwud,
An in the greenwud there is a wauk,
An I'll be there an sune the morn, love,
It's a' for my true love's sake.
- 5 'On my right hand I'll have a glove,
love,
An on my left ane I'll have nane ;
I'll have wi' me my sisters six, love,
An we will wauk the wuds our lane.'
- 6 They hadna waukd in the bonnie green-
wud,
Na no an hour but barely ane,

Till up start Tammis, her ain true lover,
He 's taen her sisters her frae mang.

7 An he has kissed her sisters six, love,
An he has sent them hame again,
But he has keepit his ain true lover,
Saying, ' We will wauk the wuds our lane.'

8 They hadna waukd in the bonnie green-
wud
Na no an hour but barely ane,
Till up start fifteen o the bravest outlaws
That ever bure either breath or bane.

9 An up bespake the foremost man, love,
An O but he spake angrily:
' Either your life — or your lady fair,
sir,
This night shall wauk the wuds wi
me.'

10 ' My lady fair, O I like her weel, sir,
An O my life, but it lies me near!
But before I lose my lady fair, sir,
I 'll rather lose my life sae dear.'

11 Then up bespak the second man, love,
An aye he spake mair angrily,
Saying, ' Baith your life, and your lady fair, sir,
This night shall wauk the wuds wi
me.'

12 ' My lady fair, O I like her weel, sir,
An O my life, but it lies me near!
But before I lose my lady fair, sir,
I 'll rather lose my life sae dear.

13 ' But if ye 'll be men to your manhood,
As that I will be unto mine,
I 'll fight ye every ane man by man,
Till the last drop's blude I hae be slain.

14 ' O sit ye down, my dearest dearie,
Sit down and hold my noble steed,
And see that ye never change your cheer
Until ye see my body bleed.'

15 He 's feughten a' the fifteen outlaws,
The fifteen outlaws every ane,
He 's left naething but the auldest man
To go and carry the tidings hame.

16 An he has gane to his dearest dear,
An he has kissed her, cheek and chin,
Saying, ' Thou art mine ain, I have bought thee dear,

THE FAIR FLOWER OF NORTHUMBERLAND

The earliest copy of this ballad is introduced as ' The Maiden's Song ' in Deloney's Pleasant History of John Winchcomb, in his younger yeares called Jacke of Newberie, a book written as early as 1597. Halliwell reprinted the " 9th " edition, of the date 1633, in 1859. We do not find the story of this ballad repeated as a whole among other European nations, but there are interesting agreements in parts with Scandinavian, Polish, and German ballads. There is also some resemblance in the first half to a pretty ballad of the northern nations which treats in a brief way the theme of our exquisite romance of ' The Nutbrown Maid ' (see Grundtvig, No. 249). The ballad of ' Young Andrew ' (No. 48) has points in common with ' The Fair Flower of Northumberland.'

1 It was a knight in Scotland borne
Follow, my love, come over the strand
Was taken prisoner, and left forlorne,
Even by the good Earle of Northumberland.

2 Then was he cast in prison strong,
Where he could not walke nor lie along,
Even by the goode Earle of Northumberland.

3 And as in sorrow thus he lay,
The Earle's sweete daughter walkt that
way,
And she the faire flower of Northum-
berland.

4 And passing by, like an angell bright,
The prisoner had of her a sight,

- And she the faire flower of Northumberland.
- 5 And loud to her this knight did crie,
The salt teares standing in his eye,
And she the faire flower of Northumberland.
- 6 'Faire lady,' he said, 'take pity on me,
And let me not in prison dye,
And you the faire flower of Northumberland.'
- 7 'Faire Sir, how should I take pity on thee,
Thou being a foe to our countrey,
And I the faire flower of Northumberland.'
- 8 'Faire lady, I am no foe,' he said,
'Through thy sweet love heere was I stayd,
For thee, the faire flower of Northumberland.'
- 9 'Why shouldst thou come heere for love of me,
Having wife and children in thy countrie?
And I the faire flower of Northumberland.'
- 10 'I sweare by the blessed Trinitie,
I have no wife nor children, I,
Nor dwelling at home in merrie Scotland.
- 11 'If curteously you will set me free,
I vow that I will marrie thee,
So soone as I come in faire Scotland.
- 12 'Thou shalt be a lady of castles and towers,
And sit like a queene in princely bowers,
When I am at home in faire Scotland.'
- 13 Then parted hence this lady gay,
And got her father's ring away,
To helpe this sad knight into faire Scotland.
- 14 Likewise much gold she got by sleight,
And all to helpe this forlorne knight
To wend from her father to faire Scotland.
- 15 Two gallant steedes, both good and able,
She likewise tooke out of the stable,
To ride with this knight into faire Scotland.
- 16 And to the jaylor she sent this ring,
The knight from prison forth to bring,
To wend with her into faire Scotland.
- 17 This token set the prisoner free,
Who straight went to this faire lady,
To wend with her into faire Scotland.
- 18 A gallant steede he did bestride,
And with the lady away did ride,
And she the faire flower of Northumberland.
- 19 They rode till they came to a water cleare:
'Good Sir, how should I follow you heere,
And I the faire flower of Northumberland?'
- 20 'The water is rough and wonderfull deepe,
An[d] on my saddle I shall not keepe,
And I the faire flower of Northumberland.'
- 21 'Feare not the foord, faire lady,' quoth he,
'For long I cannot stay for thee,
And thou the faire flower of Northumberland.'
- 22 The lady prickt her wanton steed,
And over the river swom with speede,
And she the faire flower of Northumberland.
- 23 From top to toe all wet was shee:
'This have I done for love of thee,
And I the faire flower of Northumberland.'
- 24 Thus rode she all one winter's night,
Till Edenborow they saw in sight,
The chiefest towne in all Scotland.
- 25 'Now chuse,' quoth he, 'thou wanton flower,

Whe'r thou wilt be my paramour,
Or get thee home to Northumber-
land.

26 'For I have wife, and children five,
In Edenborow they be alive;
Then get thee home to faire England.

27 'This favour shalt thou have to boote,
He have thy horse, go thou on foote,
Go, get thee home to Northumber-
land.'

28 'O false and faithlesse knight,' quoth
shee,
'And canst thou deale so bad with me,
And I the faire flower of Northum-
berland ?

29 'Dishonour not a ladie's name,
But draw thy sword and end my shame,
And I the faire flower of Northum-
berland.'

30 He tooke her from her stately steed,
And left her there in extreme need,
And she the faire flower of Northum-
berland.

31 Then sate she downe full heavily;
At length two knights came riding by,
Two gallant knights of faire England.

32 She fell downe humbly on her knee,
Saying, 'Courteous knights, take pittie
on me,
And I the faire flower of Northum-
berland.

33 'I have offended my father deere,
And by a false knight that brought me
heere,
From the good Earle of Northumber-
land.'

34 They tooke her up behind them then,
And brought her to her father's againe,
And he the good Earle of Northumberland.

35 All you faire maidens be warned by
me,
Scots were never true, nor never will
be,
To lord, nor lady, nor faire England.

THE TWA SISTERS

This is one of the very few old ballads which are not extinct as tradition in the British Isles. Even drawing-room versions are spoken of as current, "generally traced to some old nurse, who sang them to the young ladies." It has been found in England, Scotland, Wales, and Ireland, and was very early in print. The ballad is as popular with the Scandinavians as with their Saxon cousins: we have Danish, Icelandic, Norwegian, Färöe, and Swedish versions. There is a remarkable agreement between the Norse and English ballads till we approach the conclusion of the story, with a natural diversity as to some of the minuter details. According to all complete and uncorrupted forms of the ballad, either some part of the body of the drowned girl is taken to furnish a musical instrument, a harp or a viol, or the instrument is wholly made from the body. Perhaps the original conception was the simple and beautiful one which we find in English B and also in the Icelandic ballads, that the king's harper, or the girl's lover, takes three locks of her yellow hair to string his harp with. Infelicitous additions were, perhaps, successively made; as a harp-frame from the breast-bone, and fiddle-pins formed of the finger joints, and so one thing and another added or substituted, till we end with the buffoonery of English A. All the Norse ballads (see Grundtvig, No. 95) make the harp or fiddle to be taken to a wedding, which chances to be that of the elder sister with the drowned girl's betrothed. Unfortunately, many of the English versions are so injured towards the close that the full story cannot be made out. There is no wedding feast preserved in any of them.

Though the range of the ballad proper is somewhat limited, popular tales equivalent as to the characteristic circumstances are very widely diffused.

playing,
With a hie downe downe a downe-a

- To see their father's ships come sayling
in.
With a hy downe downe a downe-a
- 2 And when they came unto the sea-brym,
The elder did push the younger in.
- 3 'O sister, O sister, take me by the
gowne,
And drawe me up upon the dry ground.'
- 4 'O sister, O sister, that may not bee,
Till salt and oatmeale grow both of a
tree.'
- 5 Somtymes she sanke, somtymes she swam,
Until she came unto the mill-dam.
- 6 The miller runne hastily downe the cliffe.
And up he betook her withouten her life.
- 7 What did he doe with her brest-bone?
He made him a violll to play thereupon.
- 8 What did he doe with her fingers so small?
He made him peggs to his violll with-
all.
- 9 What did he doe with her nose-ridge?
Unto his violll be made him a bridge.
- 10 What did he doe with her veynes so blew?
He made him strings to his violll thereto.
- 11 What did he doe with her eyes so bright?
Upon his violll he played at first sight.
- 12 What did he doe with her tongue so rough?
Unto the violll it spake enough.
- 13 What did he doe with her two shinnes?
Unto the violll they danc'd Moll Syme.
- 14 Then bespake the treble string,
'O yonder is my father the king.'
- 15 Then bespake the second string,
'O yonder sitts my mother the queen.'

- 16 And then bespake the strings all three,
'O yonder is my sister that drowned
mee.'

- 17 'Now pay the miller for his payne,
And let him bee gone in the divel's
name.'

- 1 THERE was twa sisters in a bowr,
Edinburgh, Edinburgh
There was twa sisters in a bowr,
Stirling for ay
There was twa sisters in a bowr,
There came a knight to be their wooer.
Bonny Saint Johnston stands upon Tay
- 2 He courted the eldest wi glove an
ring,
But he lovd the youngest above a' thing.
- 3 He courted the eldest wi brotch an knife,
But lovd the youngest as his life.
- 4 The eldest she was vexed sair,
An much envi'd her sister fair.
- 5 Into her bowr she could not rest,
Wi grief an spite she almos brast.
- 6 Upon a morning fair an clear,
She cried upon her sister dear:
- 7 'O sister, come to yon sea stran,
An see our father's ships come to lan.'
- 8 She's taen her by the milk-white han,
An led her down to yon sea stran.
- 9 The younges[t] stood upon a stane,
The eldest came an threw her in.
- 10 She tooke her by the middle sma,
An dashd her bonny back to the jaw.
- 11 'O sister, sister, tak my han,
An Ise mack you heir to a' my lan.'

- 12 'O sister, sister, tak my middle,
An yes get my goud and my gouden girdle.
- 13 'O sister, sister, save my life,
An I swear Ise never be nae man's wife.'
- 14 'Foul fa the han that I should tacke,
It twin'd me an my wardles make.
- 15 'Your cherry cheeks an yallow hair
Gars me gae maiden for evermair.'
- 16 Sometimes she sank, an sometimes she
swam,
Till she came down yon bonny mill-dam.
- 17 O out it came the miller's son,
An saw the fair maid swimmin in.
- 18 'O father, father, draw your dam,
Here 's either a mermaid or a swan.'
- 19 The miller quickly drew the dam,
An there he found a drownd woman.
- 20 You coudna see her yallow hair
For gold and pearle that were so rare.
- 21 You coudna see her middle sma
For gouden girdle that was sae braw.
- 22 You coudna see her fingers white,
For gouden rings that was sae gryte.
- 23 An by there came a harper fine,
That harped to the king at dine.
- 24 When he did look that lady upon,
He sighd and made a heavy moan.
- 25 He 's taen three locks o her yallow hair,
An wi them strung his harp sae fair.
- 26 The first tune he did play and sing,
Was, 'Farewell to my father the king.'
- 27 The nextin tune that he playd syne,
Was, 'Farewell to my mother the queen.'
- 28 The lasten tune that he playd then,
Was, 'Wae to my sister, fair Ellen.'

THE CRUEL BROTHER

This was formerly one of the most popular of Scottish ballads. There are many versions, most of which agree in all essentials. The point of the story is the mortal offense given by the neglect to ask the brother's consent to the marriage. The same idea occurs in a number of Scandinavian ballads. In a very common German ballad, 'Graf Friedrich' (Uhland, No. 122), the bride receives a fatal wound during the bringing home, but accidentally, and from the bridegroom's hand. The peculiar testament made by the bride in 'The Cruel Brother,' by which she bequeaths good things to her friends, but ill things to the author of her death, is highly characteristic of ballad poetry. See 'Lord Randal' (No. 12) and 'Edward' (No. 13).

A

'[The] Cruel Brother, or the Bride's Testament.' a. Alex. Fraser Tytler's Brown MS. b. Jamieson's Popular Ballads, I, 66, purporting to be from the recitation of Mrs Arrot of Aberbrothick (probably by mistake for Mrs Brown).

- 1 THERE was three ladies playd at the ba,
With a hey ho and a lillie gay
There came a knight and played oer
them a'.
As the primrose spreads so sweetly
- 2 The eldest was baith tall and fair,
But the youngest was beyond compare.
- 3 The midmost had a graceful mien,
But the youngest lookd like beautie's
queen.
- 4 The knight bowd low to a' the three,
But to the youngest he bent his knee.
- 5 The ladie turned her head aside,
The knight he woo'd her to be his bride.
- 6 The ladie blusht a rosy red,
And sayd, 'Sir knight, I 'm too young to wed.'
- 7 'O ladie fair, give me your hand,
And I 'll make you ladie of a' my land.'
- 8 'Sir knight, ere ye my favor win,
You maun get consent frae a' my kin.'

- 9 He 's got consent frae her parents dear,
And likewise frae her sisters fair.
- 10 He 's got consent frae her kin each
one,
But forgot to spiek to her brother
John.
- 11 Now, when the wedding day was come,
The knight would take his bouny bride
home.
- 12 And many a lord and many a knight
Came to behold that ladie bright.
- 13 And there was nae man that did her
see,
But wishd himself bridegroom to be.
- 14 Her father dear led her down the stair,
And her sisters twain they kissd her
there.
- 15 Her mother dear led her thro the closs,
And her brother John set her on her horse.
- 16 She leand her oer the saddle-bow,
To give him a kiss ere she did go.
- 17 He has taen a knife, baith lang and
sharp,
And stabbd that bonny bride to the
heart.
- 18 She hadno ridden half thro the town,
Until her heart's blude staid her gown.
- 19 'Ride softly on,' says the best young
man,
'For I think our bonny bride looks pale and wan.'
- 20 'O lead me gently up yon hill,
And I 'll there sit down, and make my will.'
- 21 'O what will you leave to your father
dear?'
'The silver-shode steed that brought me
here.'
- 22 'What will you leave to your mother
dear?'
'My velvet pall and my silken gear.'

- 23 'What will you leave to your sister
Aune?'
'My silken scarf and my gowden fan.'
- 24 'What will you leave to your sister
Grace?'
'My bloody cloaths to wash and dress.'
- 25 'What will you leave to your brother
John?'
'The gallows-tree to hang him on.'
- 26 'What will you leave to your brother
John's wife?'
'The wilderness to end her life.'
- 27 This ladie fair in her grave was laid,
And many a mass was oer her said.
- 28 But it would have made your heart right sair,
To see the bridegroom rive his haire.

B

Kinloch's MSS., i, 21, from Mary Barr, May, 1827, Clydesdale.

- 1 A GENTLEMAN cam oure the sea,
Fine flowers in the valley
And he has courted ladies three.
With the light green and the yellow
- 2 One o them was clad in red :
He asked if she wad be his bride.
- 3 One o them was clad in green :
He asked if she wad be his queen.
- 4 The last o them was clad in white :
He asked if she wad be his heart's delight.
- 5 'Ye may ga ask my father, the king :
Sae maun ye ask my mither, the queen.
- 6 'Sae maun ye ask my sister Anne :
And dinna forget my brither John.'
- 7 He has asked her father, the king :
And sae did he her mither, the queen.
- 8 And he has asked her sister Anne :
But he has forgot her brother John.

- 9 Her father led her through the ha,
Her mither danced afore them a'.
- 10 Her sister Anne led her through the closs,
Her brither John set her on her horse.
- 11 It 's then he drew a little penknife,
And he reft the fair maid o her life.
- 12 ' Ride up, ride up,' said the foremost
man ;
' I think our bride comes hooly on.'
- 13 ' Ride up, ride up,' said the second man ;
' I think our bride looks pale and wan.'
- 14 Up than cam the gay bridegroom,
And straucht unto the bride he cam.
- 15 ' Does your side-saddle sit awry ?
Or does your steed . . .
- 16 ' Or does the rain run in your glove ?
Or wad ye chuse anither love ?'
- 17 ' The rain runs not in my glove,
Nor will I e'er chuse anither love.
- 18 ' But O an I war at Saint Evron's well,
There I wad licht, and drink my fill !
- 19 ' Oh an I war at Saint Evron's closs,
There I wad licht, and bait my horse !'
- 20 Whan she cam to Saint Evron's well,
She dought na licht to drink her fill.
- 21 Whan she cam to Saint Evron's closs,
The bonny bride fell aff her horse.
- 22 ' What will ye leave to your father, the
king ?'
' The milk-white steed that I ride on.'
- 23 ' What will ye leave to your mother, the queen ?'
' The bluidy robes that I have on.'
- 24 ' What will ye leave to your sister
Anne ?'
' My gude lord, to be wedded on.'
- 25 ' What will ye leave to your brither
John ?'
' The gallows pin to hang him on.'

- 26 ' What will ye leave to your brither's
wife ?'
' Grief and sorrow a' the days o her life.'
- 27 ' What will ye leave to your brither's
bairns ?'
' The meal-pock to hang oure the arms.'
- 28 Now does she neither sigh nor groan :
She lies aneath yon marble stone.

LORD RANDAL

This ballad may be traced back about a century in English. In Italy it has been popular for more than 250 years. According to the Italian tradition, a young man and his true-love are the object and the agent of the crime. This is also the case in several of the English versions and in some of the German. It is not unlikely, as Scott suggests, that the young man was changed to a child poisoned by a stepmother when the ballad was sung to children.

A

From a small manuscript volume, lent to Professor Child by Mr. William Macmath, of Edinburgh, containing four pieces written in or about 1710, and this ballad in a later hand (probably of the beginning of the 19th century). Charles Mackie, August, 1808, is scratched upon the binding.

- 1 ' O WHERE ha you been, Lord Randal,
my son ?
And where ha you been, my handsome young man ?'
' I ha been at the greenwood ; mother,
mak my bed soon,
For I 'm wearied wi hunting, and fain
wad lie down.'
- 2 ' An wha met ye there, Lord Randal,
my son ?
An wha met you there, my handsome
young man ?'
' O I met wi my true-love ; mother,
mak my bed soon,
For I 'm wearied wi huntin, an fain wad lie down.'
- 3 ' And what did she give you, Lord Randal, my son ?

And what did she give you, my handsome young man ?

'Eels fried in a pan ; mother, mak my bed soon,
For I'm wearied wi huntin, and fain wad lie down.'

4 ' And wha gat your leavins, Lord Randal, my son ?

And wha gat your leavins, my handsome young man ?

'My hawks and my hounds ; mother, mak my bed soon,
For I'm wearied wi hunting, and fain wad lie down.'

5 ' And what becam of them, Lord Randal, my son ?

And what becam of them, my handsome young man ?

'They stretched their legs out an died ; mother, mak my bed soon,
For I'm wearied wi huntin, and fain wad lie down.'

6 ' O I fear you are poisoned, Lord Randal, my son !

I fear you are poisoned, my handsome young man !

'O yes, I am poisoned ; mother, mak my bed soon,
For I'm sick at the heart, and I fain wad lie down.'

7 ' What d'ye leave to your mother, Lord Randal, my son ?

What d'ye leave to your mother, my handsome young man ?

'Four and twenty milk kye ; mother, mak my bed soon,
For I'm sick at the heart, and I fain wad lie down.'

8 ' What d'ye leave to your sister, Lord Randal, my son ?

What d'ye leave to your sister, my handsome young man ?

'My gold and my silver ; mother, mak my bed soon,
For I'm sick at the heart, an I fain wad lie down.'

9 ' What d'ye leave to your brother, Lord Randal, my son ?

What d'ye leave to your brother, my handsome young man ?

'My houses and my lands ; mother, mak my bed soon,
For I'm sick at the heart, and I fain wad lie down.'

10 ' What d'ye leave to your true-love, Lord Randal, my son ?

What d'ye leave to your true-love, my handsome young man ?

'I leave her hell and fire ; mother, mak my bed soon,
For I'm sick at the heart, and I fain wad lie down.'

1 ' O WHARE hae ye been a' day, Lord Donald, my son ?

O whare hae ye been a' day, my jollie young man ?

'I've been awa courtin ; mither, mak my bed sune,
For I'm sick at the heart, and I fain wad lie down.'

2 ' What wad ye hae for your supper, Lord Donald, my son ?

What wad ye hae for your supper, my jollie young man ?

'I've gotten my supper ; mither, mak my bed sune,
For I'm sick at the heart, and I fain wad lie down.'

3 ' What did ye get to your supper, Lord Donald, my son ?

What did ye get to your supper, my jollie young man ?

'A dish of sma fishes ; mither, mak my bed sune,
For I'm sick at the heart, and I fain wad lie down.'

4 ' Whare gat ye the fishes, Lord Donald, my son ?

Whare gat ye the fishes, my jollie young man ?

'In my father's black ditches ; mither, mak my bed sune,

For I'm sick at the heart, and I fain
wad lie doun.'

5 'What like were your fishes, Lord
Donald, my son ?

What like were your fishes, my jollie
young man ?'

'Black backs and spreckld bellies ;
mither, mak my bed sune,
For I'm sick at the heart, and I fain
wad lie doun.'

6 'O I fear ye are poisond, Lord Donald,
my son !

O I fear ye are poisond, my jollie young
man !'

'O yes ! I am poisond ; mither mak
my bed sune,
For I'm sick at the heart, and I fain
wad lie doun.'

7 'What will ye leave to your father,
Lord Donald my son ?

What will ye leave to your father, my
jollie young man ?'

'Baith my houses and land ; mither,
mak my bed sune,
For I'm sick at the heart, and I fain
wad lie doun.'

8 'What will ye leave to your brither,
Lord Donald, my son ?

What will ye leave to your brither, my
jollie young man ?'

'My horse and the saddle ; mither, mak
my bed sune,
For I'm sick at the heart, and I fain
wad lie doun.'

9 'What will ye leave to your sister,
Lord Donald, my son ?

What will ye leave to your sister, my
jollie young man ?'

'Baith my gold box and rings ; mither,
mak my bed sune,
For I'm sick at the heart, and I fain
wad lie doun.'

10 'What will ye leave to your true-love,
Lord Donald, my son ?

What will ye leave to your true-love,
my jollie young man ?'

'The tow and the halter, for to hang on yon tree,
And lat her hang there for the poysoning o me.'

EDWARD

The affectedly antique spelling in Percy's copy (B) has given rise to vague suspicions concerning the authenticity of the ballad or of the language : but as spelling will not make an old ballad, so it will not unmake one. We have, but do not need, the later traditional copy (A) to prove the other genuine. 'Edward' is not only unimpeachable, but has ever been regarded as one of the noblest and most sterling specimens of the popular ballad. It has an exact counterpart in Swedish and Danish; also in Finnish, probably from the Swedish, but with traits of its own. The last stanza of 'Edward' is peculiar in implicating the mother in the guilt of the murder.

BABYLON; OR, THE BONNIE BANKS O FORDIE

This ballad, with additional circumstances, is familiar to all branches of the Scandinavian race. The Danish 'Herr Truels' Daughters'

(Grundtvig-Olrik, No. 338) may serve as a specimen:—Herr Truels' three daughters oversleep their matins one morning, and are roused by their mother. If we have overslept our matins, they say, we will make up at high mass. They set out for church, and in a wood fall in with three robbers, who say:

'Whether will ye be three robbers' wives,
Or will ye rather lose your lives ?'

Much rather death, say they. The two elder sisters submitted to their fate without a word;
the third made a hard resistance. With her last breath she adjured the robbers to seek a lodging at Herr Truels' that night. This they did. They drank so long that they drank Herr Truels to bed. Then they asked his wife to promise herself to all three. First, she said, she must look into their bags. In their bags she saw her daughters' trinkets. She excused herself for a moment, barred the door strongly, roused her husband, and made it known to him that these guests had killed his three daughters. Herr Truels called on all his men to arm. He asked the robbers who was their father. They said that they had been stolen by robbers, on their way to school, one day;
had had a hard life for fourteen years; and the first crime they had committed was killing three maids yesterday. Herr Truels revealed to them that they had murdered their sisters, and offered them new clothes, in which they might go away. "Nay," they said, "not so; life for life is meet." They were taken out of the town, and their heads struck off.

12 Says, 'Will ye be a rank robber's wife,
Or will ye die by my wee pen-knife?'

13 'I'll not be a rank robber's wife,
Nor will I die by your wee pen-knife.

14 'For I hae a brother in this wood,
And gin ye kill me, it's he'll kill thee.'

15 'What's thy brother's name? come tell to me.'
'My brother's name is Baby Lon.'

16 'O sister, sister, what have I done!
O have I done this ill to thee!

17 'O since I've done this evil deed,
Good sall never be seen o me.'

18 He's taken out his wee pen-knife,
And he's twyned himsel o his ain sweet
life.

LEESOME BRAND

This is one of the cases in which a remarkably fine ballad has been worse preserved in Scotland than anywhere else. Without light from abroad we cannot fully understand even so much as we have saved. Though injured by the commixture of foreign elements, A has still much of the original story. B has, on the contrary, so little that distinctively and conclusively belongs to this story that it might almost as well have been put with No. 16.

The ballad which 'Leesome Brand' represents is preserved among the Scandinavian races under four forms. One form of the story in Danish, 'Redselille og Medelvold' (Grundtvig, No. 271), runs thus: A daughter is forced to acknowledge to her mother that she has been beguiled by a knight. The mother threatens both with punishment, and the daughter, alarmed, goes to her lover's house at night, and informs him of the fate that awaits them. They ride off on his horse and come to a wood. Then her pangs seize her, but unwilling that a man should help her, she sends the knight in search of water. When he comes to the spring, there sits a nightingale and sings, "Redselille lies dead in the wood, with two sons in her bosom." All that the nightingale has said is found to be true. In some versions the knight digs a grave, and lays mother and children in it; in two versions he lays himself in the grave with them. It is not said whether the children are dead or living, and the point would hardly be raised, but for what follows. In certain Danish and Swedish versions, however, it is expressly mentioned that the children are alive, and in some Danish and Norwegian versions the children are heard, or seem to be heard, shrieking from under the ground. Nearly all the versions make the knight run himself through with his sword, either immediately after the others are laid in the grave, or after he has ridden far and wide, because he cannot endure the cries of the children from under the earth. This would seem to be the original conclusion of the story; the horrible circumstance of the children being buried alive is much more likely to be slurred over or omitted at a later day than to be added.

'Leesome Brand.' a. Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, I, 38. b. Motherwell's MS., p. 626.

- 1 My boy was scarcely ten years auld,
Whan he went to an unco land,
Where wind never blew, nor cocks ever crew,
Ohon for my son, Leesome Braud !
- 2 Awa to that king's court he went,
It was to serve for meat an fee ;
Gude red gowd it was his hire,
And lang in that king's court stayd
he.
- 3 He hadna been in that unco land
But only twallmonths twa or three,
Till by the glancing o his ee,
He gaird the love o a gay ladye.
- 4 This ladye was scarce eleven years auld,
When on her love she was right
bould ;
She was scarce up to my right knee,
When oft in bed wi men I 'm tauld.
- 5 But when nine months were come and
gane,
This ladye's face turnd pale and wane.
- 6 To Leesome Brand she then did say,
'In this place I can nae mair stay.
- 7 'Ye do you to my father's stable,
Where steeds do stand baith wight and able.
- 8 'Strike ane o them upo the back,
The swiftest will gie his head a wap.
- 9 'Ye take him out upo the green,
And get him saddled and bridled seen.
- 10 'Get ane for you, anither for me,
And lat us ride out ower the lee.
- 11 'Ye do you to my mother's coffer,
And out of it ye 'll take my tocher.
- 12 'Therein are sixty thousand pounds,
Which all to me by right belongs.'
- 13 He 's done him to her father's stable,
Where steeds stood baith wicht and
able.
- 14 Then he strake ane upon the back,
The swiftest gae his head a wap.
- 15 He 's taen him out upo the green,
And got him saddled and bridled
seen.
- 16 Ane for him, and another for her,
To carry them baith wi might and virr.
- 17 He 's done him to her mother's coffer,
And there he 's taen his lover's tocher ;
- 18 Wherein were sixty thousand pound,
Which all to her by right belougd.
- 19 When they had ridden about six mile,
His true love than began to fail.
- 20 'O wae 's me,' said that gay ladye,
'I fear my back will gang in three !
- 21 'O gin I had but a gude midwife,
Here this day to save my life,
- 22 'And ease me o my misery,
O dear, how happy I woud be !'
- 23 'My love, we 're far frae ony town,
There is nae midwife to be foun.
- 24 'But if ye 'll be content wi me,
I 'll do for you what man can dee.'
- 25 'For no, for no, this maunna be,'
Wi a sigh, replied this gay ladye.
- 26 'When I endure my grief and pain,
My companie ye maun refrain.
- 27 'Ye 'll take your arrow and your bow,
And ye will hunt the deer and roe.
- 28 'Be sure ye touch not the white hynde,
For she is o the woman kind.'
- 29 He took sic pleasure in deer and roe,
Till he forgot his gay ladye.
- 30 Till by it came that milk-white hynde,
And then he mind on his ladye syne.
- 31 He hasted him to yon greenwood tree,
For to relieve his gay ladye ;
- 32 But found his ladye lying dead,
Likeways her young son at her head.

- 33 His mother lay ower her castle wa,
And she beheld baith dale and down ;
And she beheld young Leesome Brand,
As he came riding to the town.
- 34 'Get minstrels for to play,' she said,
'And dancers to dance in my room ;
For here comes my son, Leesome Brand,
And he comes merrilie to the town.'
- 35 'Seek nae minstrels to play, mother,
Nor dancers to dance in your room ;
But tho your son comes, Leesome Brand,
Yet he comes sorry to the town.
- 36 'O I hae lost my gowden knife ;
I rather had lost my ain sweet life !
- 37 'And I hae lost a better thing,
The gilded sheath that it was in.'
- 38 'Are there nae gowdsmiths here in Fife,
Can make to you anither knife ?
- 39 'Are there nae sheath-makers in the
land,
Can make a sheath to Leesome Brand ?'
- 40 'There are nae gowdsmiths here in Fife,
Can make me sic a gowden knife ;
- 41 'Nor nae sheath-makers in the land,
Can make to me a sheath again.
- 42 'There ne'er was man in Scotland born,
Ordaind to be so much forlorn.
- 43 'I've lost my ladye I lovd sae dear, Likeways the son she did me bear.'
- 44 'Put in your hand at my bed head,
There ye'll find a gude grey horn ;
In it three draps o' Saint Paul's ain
blude,
That hae been there sin he was born.
- 45 'Drap twa o them o your ladye,
And ane upo your little young son ;
Then as lively they will be
As the first night ye brought them
hame.'
- 46 He put his hand at her bed head,
And there he found a gude grey
horn,

Wi three draps o' Saint Paul's ain blude,
'That had been there sin he was born.

- 47 Then he drappd twa on his ladye,
And ane o them on his young son,
And now they do as lively be,
As the first day he brought them
hame.

'The Broom blooms bonnie,' etc., Mother-well's MS., p. 365. From the recitation of Agnes Lyle, Kilbarchan.

- 1 'THERE is a feast in your father's house,
The broom blooms bonnie and so is it fair
It becomes you and me to be very douce.
And we'll never gang up to the broom nae mair
- 2 'You will go to yon hill so hie;
Take your bow and your arrow wi thee.'
- 3 He's tane his lady on his back,
And his auld son in his coat lap.
- 4 'When ye hear me give a cry,
Ye'll shoot your bow and let me lye.
- 5 'When ye see me lying still,
Throw away your bow and come running me till.'
- 6 When he heard her gie the cry,
He shot his bow and he let her lye.
- 7 When he saw she was lying still,
He threw away his bow and came running her till.
- 8 It was nae wonder his heart was sad
When he shot his auld son at her head.
- 9 He houkit a grave, long, large and wide.
He buried his auld son down by her
side.
- 10 It was nae wonder his heart was sair
When he shoold the mools on her yellow hair.

- 11 'Oh,' said his father, 'son, but thou 'rt sad!
At our braw meeting you micht be glad.'
- 12 'Oh,' said he, 'Father, I've lost my
knife
I loved as dear almost as my own life.'
- 13 'But I have lost a far better thing,
I lost the sheath that the knife was in.'
- 14 'Hold thy tongue, and mak nae din;
I'll buy thee a sheath and a knife therein.'
- 15 'A' the ships eer sailed the sea
Neer'll bring such a sheath and a knife
to me.'
- 16 'A' the smiths that lives on land
Will neer bring such a sheath and knife to my hand.'

From a half-sheet of paper in Motherwell's handwriting.

- 1 ONE king's daughter said to anither,
Brume blumes bonnie and grows sae
fair
'We'll gae ride like sister and brither.'
And we'll neer gae doun to the brume nae mair
- 2 'We'll ride doun into yonder valley,
Whare the greene green trees are budding sae gaily.

- 3 ' Wi hawke and hounde we will hunt sae rarely,
And we 'll come back in the morning early.'
- 4 They rade on like sister and brither,
And they hunted and hawket in the valley thegether.
- 5 ' Now, lady, hauld my horse and my hawk,
For I maun na ride, and I downa walk.
- 6 ' But set me doun be the rute o this tree,
For there hae I dreamt that my bed sall be.'
- 7 The ae king's dochter did lift doun the ither,
And she was licht in her armis like ony fether.
- 8 Bonnie Lady Ann sat doun be the tree,
And a wide grave was houkit whare nane suld be.
- 9 The hawk had nae lure, and the horse had nae master,
And the faithless hounds thro the woods ran faster.
- 10 The one king's dochter has ridden awa,
But bonnie Lady Ann lay in the deed-thraw.

HIND HORN

The story of 'Horn,' of which this ballad gives little more than the catastrophe, is related at full in (i) 'King Horn,' a gest in about 1550 short verses, preserved in three manuscripts: the oldest regarded as of the second half of the 13th century, or older; the others put at 1300 and a little later. (ii) 'Horn et Rymenhild,' a romance in about 5250 heroic verses, preserved likewise in three manuscripts; the best in the Public Library of the University of Cambridge, and of the 14th century. (iii) 'Horn Childe and Maiden Rimnild,' from a manuscript of the 14th century, in not quite 100 twelve-line stanzas. The relations of these versions to each other and to the ballad are not entirely clear. For the whole matter, see Schofield, Publications of the Modern Language

Association of America, xviii, 1 ff., where full references will be found.

Certain points in the story of Horn — the long absence, the sudden return, the appearance under disguise at the wedding feast, and the dropping of the ring into a cup of wine obtained from the bride — repeat themselves in a great number of romantic tales. More commonly it is a husband who leaves his wife for seven years, is miraculously informed on the last day that she is to be remarried on the morrow, and is restored to his home in the nick of time, also by superhuman means. Examples of such stories are the sixteenth-century chapbook of Henry the Lion; the Middle High German Reinfrid von Braunschweig; Der edle Moringer; Torello, in Boccaccio's Decameron, x, 9.

'Hindhorn,' Motherwell's MS., p. 106. From Mrs King, Kilbarchan.

- 1 IN Scotland there was a babie born,
Lill lal, etc.
And his name it was called young Hind Horn.
With a fal lal, etc.
- 2 He sent a letter to our king
That he was in love with his daughter Jean.
- 3 He 's gien to her a silver wand,
With seven living lavrocks sitting thereon.
- 4 She 's gien to him a diamond ring,
With seven bright diamonds set therein.
- 5 ' When this ring grows pale and wan,
You may know by it my love is gane.'
- 6 One day as he looked his ring upon,
He saw the diamonds pale and wan.
- 7 He left the sea and came to land,
And the first that he met was an old beggar man.
- 8 ' What news, what news?' said young Hind Horn;
' No news, no news,' said the old beggar man.
- 9 ' No news,' said the beggar, ' no news at a',
But there is a wedding in the king's ha.

- 10 'But there is a wedding in the king's ha,
That has halden these forty days and twa.'
- 11 'Will ye lend me your begging coat?
And I'll lend you my scarlet cloak.'
- 12 'Will you lend me your beggar's rung?
And I'll gie you my steed to ride upon.'
- 13 'Will you lend me your wig o hair,
To cover mine, because it is fair?'
- 14 The auld beggar man was bound for the mill,
But young Hind Horn for the king's hall.
- 15 The auld beggar man was bound for to
ride,
But young Hind Horn was bound for the bride.
- 16 When he came to the king's gate,
He sought a drink for Hind Horn's sake.
- 17 The bride came down with a glass of wine,
When he drank out the glass, and dropt
in the ring.
- 18 'O got ye this by sea or land?
Or got ye it off a dead man's hand?'
- 19 'I got not it by sea, I got it by land,
And I got it, madam, out of your own
hand.'
- 20 'O I'll cast off my gowns of brown,
And beg wi you frae town to town.'
- 21 'O I'll cast off my gowns of red,
And I'll beg wi you to win my bread.'
- 22 'Ye needna cast off your gowns of
brown,
For I'll make you lady o many a town.'
- 23 'Ye needna cast off your gowns of red,
It's only a sham, the begging o my bread.'
- 24 The bridegroom he had wedded the
bride,
But young Hind Horn he took her to bed.

What news hae ye got to tell to me?'
- 12 'Na news, na news,' the puir man did
say,
'But this is our queen's wedding-day.'
- 13 'Ye'll lend me your begging-weed,
And I'll lend you my riding-steed.'
- 14 'My begging-weed is na for thee,
Your riding-steed is na for me.'

- 15 He has changed wi the puir auld beggar-man.
- 16 'What is the way that ye use to gae?
And what are the words that ye beg wi?'
- 17 'Whan ye come to yon high hill,
Ye'll draw your bent bow nigh until.
- 18 'Whan ye come to yon town-end,
Ye'll lat your bent bow low fall down.
- 19 'Ye'll seek meat for St Peter, ask for St Paul,
And seek for the sake of your Hynde Horn all.
- 20 'But tak ye frae nane o them aw
Till ye get frae the bonnie bride herself O.'
- 21 Whan he cam to yon high hill,
He drew his bent bow nigh until.
- 22 And when he cam to yon town-end,
He loot his bent bow low fall down.
- 23 He sought for St Peter, he askd for St Paul,
And he sought for the sake of his Hynde Horn all.
- 24 But he took na frae ane o them aw
Till he got frae the bonnie bride herself O.
- 25 The bride cam tripping down the stair,
Wi the scales o red gowd on her hair.
- 26 Wi a glass o red wine in her hand,
To gie to the puir beggar-man.
- 27 Out he drank his glass o wine,
Into it he dropt the ring.
- 28 'Got ye't by sea, or got ye't by land,
Or got ye't aff a drownd man's hand?'
- 29 'I got na't by sea, I got na't by land,
Nor gat I it aff a drownd man's hand;
- 30 'But I got it at my wooing,
And I'll gie it to your wedding.'

- 31 'I'll tak the scales o gowd frae my head,
I'll follow you, and beg my bread.
- 32 'I'll tak the scales o gowd frae my hair,
I'll follow you for evermair.'
- 33 She has tane the scales o gowd frae her head,
She's followed him, to beg her bread.
- 34 She has tane the scales o gowd frae her hair,
And she has followd him evermair.
- 35 Atween the kitchen and the ha,
There he loot his cloutie cloak fa.
- 36 The red gowd shined oure them aw,
And the bride frae the bridegroom was stown awa.

SIR LIONEL

One half of A (the second and fourth quarters) is wanting in the Percy MS. B can be traced in Banffshire for more than a hundred years through the old woman that sang it, and her forbears. What we can gather of the story is this. A knight finds a lady sitting in (or under) a tree, who tells him that a wild boar has slain (or worried) her lord and killed (or wounded) thirty of his men. The knight kills the boar, and seems to have received bad wounds in the process. The boar belonged to a giant, or to a wild woman. The knight is required to forfeit his hawks and leash and the little finger of his right hand (or his horse, his hound, and his lady). He refuses to submit to such disgrace, though in no condition to resist; the giant allows him time to heal his wounds, and he is to leave his lady as security for his return. At the end of the time the knight comes back sound and well, and kills the giant as he had killed the boar. C and D say nothing of the knight having been wounded. The wild woman, to revenge her "pretty spotted pig," flies fiercely at him, and he cleaves her in two. The last quarter of the Percy copy would, no doubt, reveal what became of the lady who was sitting in the tree, as to which traditional copies give no light.

The ballad has much in common with the romance of 'Sir Eglamour of Artois' (Percy MS., Hales and Furnivall, II, 338; Thornton Romances, ed. Halliwell, p. 121). It has also taken up something from the romance of 'Eger and Grime' (Percy MS., i, 341; Laing, Early Metrical Tales, p. 1).

'Sir Lionell,' Percy MS., p. 32, Hales and Furnivall, i, 75.

- 1 Sir Egrabell had sonnes three,
Blow thy horne, good hunter
Sir Lyonell was one of these.
As I am a gentle hunter
- 2 Sir Lyonell wold on hunting ryde,
Vntill the forrest him beside.
- 3 And as he rode thorow the wood,
Where trees and harts and all were good,
- 4 And as he rode over the plaine,
There he saw a knight lay slaine.
- 5 And as he rode still on the plaine,
He saw a lady sitt in a graine.
- 6 'Say thou, lady, and tell thou me,
What blood shedd heere has bee.'
- 7 'Of this blood shedd we may all rew,
Both wife and childe and man alsoe.
- 8 'For it is not past 3 days right
Since Sir Broninge was mad a knight.
- 9 'Nor it is not more than 3 dayes agoe
Since the wild bore did him sloe.'
- 10 'Say thou, lady, and tell thou mee,
How long thou wilt sitt in that tree.'
- 11 She said, 'I will sitt in this tree
Till my friends doe feitch me.'
- 12 'Tell me, lady, and doe not misse,
Where that your friends dwellings is.'
- 13 'Downe,' shee said, 'in yonder towne,
There dwells my freinds of great renowne.'
- 14 Says, 'Lady, Ile ryde into yonder towne
And see wether your friends beenc bowne.
- 15 'I my self wilbe the formost man
That shall come, lady, to feitch you
home.'
- 16 But as he rode then by the way,
He thought it shame to goe away ;
- 17 And vmbethought him of a wile,
How he might that wilde bore beguile.
- 18 'Sir Egrabell,' he said, 'my father was ;
He neuer left lady in such a case ;
- 19 'Noe more will I' . . .
* * * * *
- 20 'And a[fter] that thou shalt doe mee
Thy hawkes and thy lease alsoe.
- 21 'Soe shalt thou doe at my command
The litle fingar on thy right hand.'
- 22 'Ere I wold leaue all this with thee,
Vpon this ground I rather dyee.'
- 23 The gyant gaue Sir Lyone/l such a blow,
The fyre out of his eyen did throw.
- 24 He said then, 'If I were saffe and sound,
As with-in this hower I was in this
ground,
- 25 'It shold be in the next towne told
How deare thy buffett it was sold ;
- 26 'And it shold haue beene in the next towne said
How well thy buffett it were paid.'
- 27 'Take 40 daies into spite,
To heale thy wounds that beene soe wide.
- 28 'When 40 dayes beene at an end,
Heere meete thou me both safe and sound.
- 29 'And till thou come to me againe,
With me thoust leaue thy lady alone.'
- 30 When 40 dayes was at an end,
Sir Lyonell of his wounds was healed
sound.
- 31 He tooke with him a litle page,
He gaue to him good yeomans wage.

32 And as he rode by one hawthorne,
Even there did hang his hunting horne.

33 He sett his bugle to his mouth,
And blew his bugle still full south.

34 He blew his bugle lowde and shrill;
The lady heard, and came him till.

35 Sayes, 'The gyant lyes vnder yond low,
And well he heares your bugle blow.

36 'And bidds me of good cheere be,
This night heele supp with you and me.'

37 Hee sett that lady vppon a steede,
And a litle boy before her yeede.

38 And said, 'Lady, if you see that I must dye,
As euer you loued me, from me flye.

39 'But, lady, if you see that I must line,'

'Isaac-a-Bell and Hugh the Græme,' Christie, Traditional Ballad Airs, 1, 110. From the singing of an old woman in Buckie, Enzie, Banff-shire.

1 A KNIGHT had two sons o sma fame,
Hey nien nanny
Isaac-a-Bell and Hugh the Græme.
And the norlan flowers spring bonny

2 And to the youngest he did say,
'What occupation will you hae?
When the, etc.

3 'Will you gae fee to pick a mill?
Or will you keep hogs on yon hill?
While the, etc.

4 'I winna fee to pick a mill,
Nor will I keep hogs on yon hill.
While the, etc.

5 'But it is said, as I do hear,
That war will last for seven year,
And the, etc.

6 'With a giant and a boar
That range into the wood o Tore.
And the, etc.

7 'You'll horse and armour to me provide,
That through Tore wood I may safely
ride.'
When the, etc.

8 The knight did horse and armour provide,
That through Tore wood Græme might safely ride.
When the, etc.

9 Then he rode through the wood o Tore,
And up it started the grisly boar.
When the, etc.

10 The firsten bout that he did ride,
The boar he wounded in the left side.
When the, etc.

11 The nexten bout at the boar he gaed,
He from the boar took aff his head.
And the, etc.

12 As he rode back through the wood o
Tore,
Up started the giant him before.
And the, etc.

13 'O cam you through the wood o Tore,
Or did you see my good wild boar?'
And the, etc.

14 'I cam now through the wood o Tore,
But woe be to your grisly boar.
And the, etc.

15 'The firsten bout that I did ride,
I wounded your wild boar in the side.
And the, etc.

16 'The nexten bout at him I gaed,
From your wild boar I took aff his
head.'
And the, etc.

17 'Gin you have cut aff the head o my boar,
It's your head shall be taen therfore.
And the, etc.

18 'I'll gie you thirty days and three,
To heal your wounds, then come to
me.'
While the, etc.

19 'It's after thirty days and three,
When my wounds heal, I'll come to
thee.'
When the, etc.

20 So Græme is back to the wood o
Tore,
And he's killd the giant, as he killd the boar.
And the, etc.

tiquities and Folk-Lore of Worcestershire,

min Brown, of Upper Wick, about 1845. b.
Ancient Poems, Ballads and Songs of the Peasantry of England, edited by Robert Bell,
p. 124.

1 SIR ROBERT BOLTON had three sons,
Wind well thy horn, good hunter
And one of them was called Sir Ryalas.
For he was a jovial hunter

2 He rang'd all round down by the wood-
side,
Till up in the top of a tree a gay lady he spy'd.
For he was, etc.

3 'O what dost thou mean, fair lady?'
said he;
'O the wild boar has killed my lord and his men thirty.'
As thou beest, etc.

4 'O what shall I do this wild boar to
see?'
'O thee blow a blast, and he'll come unto thee.'
As thou beest, etc.

5 [Then he put his horn unto his mouth],
Then he blowd a blast full north, east,
west and south.
As he was, etc.

6 And the wild boar heard him full into his den;
Then he made the best of his speed unto
him.
To Sir Ryalas, etc.

7 Then the wild boar, being so stout and so strong,
He thrashd down the trees as he came along.
To Sir Ryalas, etc.

8 'O what dost thou want of me?' the wild boar said he;
'O I think in my heart I can do enough for thee.'
For I am, etc.

9 Then they fought four hours in a long summer's day,
Till the wild boar fain would have gotten away.
From Sir Ryalas, etc.

10 Then Sir Ryalas drawd his broad sword
with might,
And he fairly cut his head off quite.
For he was, etc.

11 Then out of the wood the wild woman flew:
'Oh thou hast killed my pretty spotted pig!
As thou beest, etc.

12 'There are three things I do demand of
thee,
It's thy horn, and thy hound, and thy gay lady.'
As thou beest, etc.

13 'If these three things thou dost demand
of me,
It's just as my sword and thy neck can agree.'
For I am, etc.

14 Then into his locks the wild woman flew,
Till she thought in her heart she had torn him through.
As he was, etc.

15 Then Sir Ryalas drawd his broad sword
again,
And he fairly split her head in twain.
For he was, etc.

16 In Bromsgrove church they both do
lie;
There the wild boar's head is picturd by Sir Ryalas, etc.

KING ORFEO

Mr Edmonston, from whose memory this ballad was derived, notes that though stanzas are probably lost after the first, which would give some account of the king in the east wooing the lady in the west, no such verses were sung to him. He had forgotten some stanzas after the fourth, of which the substance was that the lady was carried off by fairies, that the king went in quest of her, and one day saw a company passing along a hillside, among whom he recognized his lost wife. The troop went to what seemed a great "ha-house," or castle, on the hillside. Stanzas after the eighth were also forgotten, the purport being that a messenger from behind the grey stane appeared and invited the king in.

We have here in traditional song the story of the mediæval romance of Orpheus, in which fairy-land supplants Tartarus, faithful love is rewarded, and Eurydice (Heurodis, Erodys, Eroudys) is retrieved. There are three versions of this tale (edited respectively by Laing, Select Remains of the Ancient Popular Poetry of Scotland, No. 3; Halliwell, Illustrations of Fairy Mythology, p. 37; and Ritson, Metrical Romanceës, II, 248). See the critical edition by O. Zielke, Breslau, 1880.

THE CRUEL MOTHER

The Cruel Mother' is strikingly similar to a Danish ballad, recovered by Kristensen in 1870 (Jydske Folkeviser, I, 329). Versions A and B of the English ballad, which are fragmentary, were printed in the last quarter of the eighteenth century. P is from a broadside of about 1690.

'The Duke's Daughter's Cruelty,' broadside
from the Osterley Park library, British Museum, C. 39, k. 6 (60). About 1690.

1 THERE was a duke's daughter lived in York,
Come bend and bear away the bows
of yew
So secretly she loved her father's clark.
Gentle hearts, be to me true.

2 She lovd him long and many a day,
Till big with child she went away.

- 3 She went into the wide wilderness;
Poor she was to be pitied for her heaviness.
- 4 She leant her back against a tree,
And there she endured much misery.
- 5 She leant her back against an oak,
With bitter sighs these words she spoke.
- 6 She set her foot against a thorne,
And there she had two pritty babes born.
- 7 She took her filliting off her head,
And there she ty'd them hand and leg.
- 8 She had a penknife long and sharp,
And there she stuck them to the heart.
- 9 She dug a grave, it was long and deep,
And there she laid them in to sleep.
- 10 The coldest earth it was their bed,
The green grass was their coverlid.
- 11 As she was a going by her father's hall,
She see three children a playing at ball.
- 12 One was drest in scarlet fine,
And the other as naked as ere they was born.
- 13 'O mother, O mother, if these children

THE MAID AND THE PALMER

The only English copy of this ballad that approaches completeness is furnished by the Percy manuscript, A. Sir Walter Scott remembered, and communicated to Kirkpatrick Sharpe, three stanzas, and half of the burden, of another version, B. The English ballad speaks only of a maid, who does not appear to be any particular person, and of a mysterious palmer, who seems authorized to impose on the sinner certain penances, but whose identity is not declared. In the Scandinavian versions, as well as in a Finnish version, their true characters are seen. In all of these the story of the woman of Samaria (John, iv) is blended with mediæval traditions concerning Mary Magdalen, who is assumed to be the same with the woman "which was a sinner," in Luke, vii, 37, and also with Mary, sister of Lazarus. This is the view of the larger part of the Latin ecclesiastical writers, while most of the Greeks distinguish the three. It was reserved for ballads, says Grundtvig, to confound the Magdalen with the Samaritan woman. The names Maria, or Magdalena, Jesus, or Christ, are found in most of the Scandinavian ballads. There are several Slavic ballads which blend the story of the Samaritan woman and that of 'The Cruel Mother,' without admixture of the Magdalen. The popular ballads of some of the southern nations give us the legend of the Magdalen uncombined.

ST STEPHEN AND HEROD

The manuscript which preserves this delightful little legend has been judged by the handwriting to be of the age of Henry VI. The manuscript was printed entire by Thomas Wright, in 1856, for the Warton Club, under the title, Songs and Carols, from a manuscript in the British Museum of the fifteenth century. The story, with the Wise Men replacing Stephen, is also found in the carol, still current, of 'The Carnal and the Crane' (No. 55). The legend of Stephen and Herod, with the miracle of the roasted cock, occurs in a number of Scandinavian ballads. The same miracle is found in other ballads, which, for the most part, relate to the wide-spread legend of the Pilgrims of St James. The miracle occurs as an interpolation in two late Greek manuscripts of the so-called Gospel of Nicodemus (Tischendorf, Evangelia Apocrypha, p. 269, note 3), and seems to have originated in the East.

JUDAS

This legend, which was first printed (in 1845) in Wright and Halliwell's Reliquiae Antiquae, i, 144, is, so far as is known, unique in several particulars. The common tradition gives Judas an extraordinary domestic history, but does not endow him with a sister as perfidious as himself. Neither is his selling his Master for thirty pieces accounted for elsewhere as it is here, if it may be strictly said to be accounted for here. A popular explanation, founded upon John, xii, 3-8, and current for six centuries and more, is that Judas, bearing the bag, was accustomed to take tithes of all moneys that came into his hands, and that he considered he had lost thirty pieces on the precious ointment which had not been sold for three hundred pence, and took this way of indemnifying himself. There is a Wendish ballad (Haupt and Schmalzer, i, 276) in which Judas receives from Jesus thirty pieces of silver to buy bread, and loses them while gambling with the Jews. At their suggestion he then sells his Master for thirty pieces.

BONNIE ANNIE

Had an old copy of this still pretty and touching, but much disordered, ballad been saved, we should perhaps have had a story like this: Bonnie Annie, having stolen her father's gold and her mother's fee, and fled with her paramour, the ship in which she is sailing encounters a storm and cannot get on. Annie is seized with the pangs of travail, and deplores the absence of women. The sailors say there is somebody on board who is marked for death, or flying from a just doom. They cast lots, and the lot falls on Annie. Conscious only of her own guilt, she asks to be thrown overboard. Her paramour offers great sums to the crew to save her, but their efforts prove useless, and Annie again begs, or they now insist, that she shall be cast into the sea with her babe. This done, the ship is able to sail on; Annie floats to shore and is buried there.

If the narrative in Jonah, i, is the ultimate source of this and similar stories, it must be owned that the tradition has maintained its principal traits in this ballad remarkably well. Cf. also 'Brown Robyn's Confession' (No. 57).

'Bonnie Annie,' Kinloch's Ancient Scottish Ballads, p. 123.

- 1 THERE was a rich lord, and he lived in Forfar,
He had a fair lady, and one only dochter.
- 2 O she was fair, O dear, she was bonnie!
A ship's captain courted her to be his honey.
- 3 There cam a ship's captain out owre the sea sailing,
He courted this young thing till he got her wi bairn.
- 4 'Ye'll steal your father's gowd, and your mother's money.
And I'll mak ye a lady in Ireland bonnie.'
- 5 She's stown her father's gowd, and her mother's money,

But she was never a lady in Ireland
bonnie.

Do all ye can to save my dear Annie.'

12 'I've laid about, steerd about, laid about cannie,
But all I can do, she winna sail for me.'

13 'Ye'll tak her in your arms twa, lo, lift her cannie,
And throw her out owre board, your ain
dear Annie.'

14 He has tane her in his arms twa, lo, lifted her cannie,
He has thrown her out owre board, his ain dear Annie.

15 As the ship sailed, bonnie Annie she swam,
And she was at Ireland as soon as them.

16 He made his love a coffin of the gowd
sae yellow,
And buried his bonnie love doun in a sea valley.

- 16 They made her a coffin o the gowd sae
yellow,
And buried her deep on the high banks
o Yarrow.

WILLIE'S LYKE-WAKE

Of this piece there is a broadside version of 1810 (not here printed). All other copies that have been recovered date from about 1825. The device of a lover's feigning death as a means of winning a shy mistress enjoys considerable popularity in European ballads. Even more favorite is a ballad in which the woman adopts this expedient, in order to escape from the control of her relations. See the 'Gay Goshawk' (No. 96). A Danish ballad answering to our Feigned Lyke-Wake is preserved in many manuscripts, some of them of the 16th century, and is still living in tradition. The corresponding south-European ballad, which is very gay and pretty, is well represented by the Italian 'Il Genovese' (Ferraro, Canti popolari monferrini, No. 40).

'Willie, Willie,' Kinloch's MSS., I, 53, from the recitation of Mary Barr, Lesmahagow, aged upwards of seventy. May, 1827.

- 3 'Ye maun gie the bellman his bell-groat,
To ring your dead-bell at your lover's

- 4 He lay doun just as he war dead,
And took his winding-sheet round his
head.
- 5 He gied the bellman his bell-groat,
To ring his dead-bell at his lover's yett.
- 6 'O wha is this that is dead, I hear?'
'O wha but Willie that loed ye sae dear.'
- 7 She is to her father's chamber gone,
And on her knees she's fallen doun.
- 8 'O father, O father, ye maun grant me

THE THREE RAVENS

First printed in Melismata, 1611. Chappell remarked, about 1855 (Popular Music of the Olden Time, i, 59), that the ballad was still so popular in some parts of the country that he had "been favored with a variety of copies of it, written down from memory, and all differing in some respects, both as to words and tune, but with sufficient resemblance to prove a similar origin."

'The Twa Corbies,' first printed in Scott's Minstrelsy, and known in several versions in Scotland, is, as Scott says, "rather a counterpart than a copy" of 'The Three Ravens.'

Melismata. Muscally Phansies. Fitting the Court, Cittie, and Countrey Humours. London, 1611. [T. Ravenscroft.]

- 1 THERE were three rauens sat on a tree,
Downe a downe, hay down, hay
downe
There were three rauens sat on a tree,
With a downe
There were three rauens sat on a tree,
They were as blacke as they might be.
With a downe derrie, derrie, derrie,
downe, downe
- 2 The one of them said to his mate,
'Where shall we our breakefast take?'
- 3 'Downe in yonder greene field,
There lies a knight slain vnder his shield.

4 'His hounds they lie downe at his feete,
So well they can their master keepe.

5 'His hankes they flie so eagerly,
There's no fowle dare him come nie.'

6 Downe there comes a fallow doe,
As great with yong as she might goe.

7 She lift vp his bloudy hed,
And kist his wounds that were so red.

8 She got him vp vpon her backe,
And carried him to earthen lake.

9 She buried him before the prime,
She was dead herselfe ere euen-song
time.

10 God send euery gentleman,
Such hankes, such hounds, and such a leman.

THE TWA CORBIES

Minstrelsy of the Scottish Border, iii, 239, ed. 1803, communicated by C. K. Sharpe, as written down from tradition by a lady (cf. Sharpe's Letters, ed. Allardyce, i, 136).

- 1 As I was walking all alane,
I heard twa corbies making a mane;
The tane unto the t'other say,
'Where sall we gang and dine to-day?'
- 2 'In behint yon auld fail dyke,
I wot there lies a new slain knight;
And naebody kens that he lies there,
But his hawk, his hound, and lady fair.
- 3 'His hound is to the hunting gane,
His hawk to fetch the wild-fowl hame,
His lady's ta'en another mate,
So we may mak our dinner sweet.
- 4 'Ye'll sit on his white hause-bane,
And I'll pike out his bonny blue een;
Wi ae lock o his gowden hair
We'll theek our nest when it grows bare.
- 5 'Mony a one for him makes mane,
But nane sall ken where he is gane;
Oer his white banes, when they are bare,
The wind sall blaw for evermair.'

THE WHUMMIL BORE

This ballad, if it ever were one, seems not to have been met with, or at least to have been thought worth notice, by anybody but Motherwell.

a. Motherwell's MS., p. 191. b. Motherwell's Minstrelsy, Appendix, p. xvi, No. III.

TAMLANE

This fragment seems to have no connection with what is elsewhere handed down concerning Tamlane (see No. 39), or with the story of any other ballad.

Maidment's North Countrie Garland, 1824, p. 21. Communicated by R. Pitcairn, "from the recitation of a female relative, who had heard it frequently sung in her childhood," about sixty years before the above date. Here from Pitcairn's MSS., III, 49.

THE BOY AND THE MANTLE

This ballad and the two which follow it are clearly not of the same rise, and not meant for the same ears, as those which go before. They would come down by professional rather than by domestic tradition, through minstrels rather than knitters and weavers. They suit the hall better than the bower, the tavern or public square better than the cottage, and would not go to the spinning-wheel at all. 'The Boy and the Mantle' is an exceedingly good piece of minstrelsy; much livelier than most of the numerous variations on the somewhat overhandled theme. Its nearest relative is the fabliau or "romance" of Le Mantel Mautailié, 'Cort Mantel' (Montaignon et Raynaud, Recueil Général des Fabliaux, III, 1), of which there are manuscripts of the thirteenth century. The outline of a similar tale is preserved in the Lanzelet of Ulrich von Zatzikhoven.

The probation by the Horn runs parallel with that of the Mantle, with which it is combined in the English ballad. Whether this or that is the anterior creation it is not possible to say, though the 'Lai du Corn' is of a more original stamp, fresher and more in the popular vein than the fabliau of the Mantle, as we have it. The 'Lai du Corn,' by Robert Bizez, is ascribed to the middle of the twelfth century. Like the ballad, it makes Caradoc (Garadue) the hero. This is also the case in the 'Livre de Caradoc,' inserted in the verse romance of Percival li Gallois (ed. Potvin, vv. 15,640 ff.). There are several other versions.

Besides the stories of probation by the Mantle and by the Horn or cup there are a number of others in which other objects have the same testing power; — viz.: a crown; a bridge; a girdle; an arch; a glove; a garland; a cup of congealed tears; bedclothes and bed (as in No. 5); a stepping-stone by the bed-side; a chair; flowers; a shirt, a sword, a picture; a wax image; a ring (as in the romance of Horn Child); a mirror; a harp; a crystal brook; a stone; a magnet; a statue; a shield; a chess-board, etc.

Percy MS., p. 284; Hales and Furnivall, II, 304.

- 1 In the third day of May to Carleile did come
A kind curteous child,
that cold much of wisdom.
- 2 A kirtle and a mantle
this child had vpon,
With branches and ringes
full richelye bedone.
- 3 He had a sute of silke,
about his middle drawne;
Without he cold of curtesye,
he thought itt much shame.
- 4 'God speed thee, King Arthur;
sitting att thy meate!
And the goodly Queene Gueneuer!
I canott her fforgett.
- 5 'I tell you lords in this hall,
I hett you all heede,
Except you be the more surer,
is you for to dread.'
- 6 He plucked out of his potewer,
and longer wold not dwell,
He pulled forth a pretty mantle,
betweene two nut-shells.
- 7 'Hane thou here, King Arthure,
hane thou heere of mee;
Gine itt to thy comely queene,
shapen as itt is alreadye.
- 8 'Itt shall neuer become that wiffe that hath once done amisse:
Then euery knight in the kings court
began to care for his.
- 9 Forth came dame Gueneuer,
to the mantle shee her bed;

The ladye shee was new-fangle,
but yett shee was affrayd.

- 10 When shee had taken the mantle,
shee stode as she had beene madd;
It was from the top to the toe as sheeres had itt shread.
- 11 One while was itt gaule,
another while was itt greene;
Another while was itt wadded;
ill itt did her beseeme.
- 12 Another while was it blacke,
and bore the worst hue;
'By my troth,' quoth King Arthur,
'I thinke thou be not true.'
- 13 Shee threw downe the mantle,
that bright was of blee,
Fast with a rudd redd
to her chamber can shee flee.
- 14 Shee curst the weaner and the walker
that clothe that had wrought,
And bade a vengeance on his crowne that hither hath itt brought.
- 15 'I had rather be in a wood,
vnder a greene tree,
Then in King Arthurs court shamed for to bee.'
- 16 Kay called forth his ladye,
and bade her come neere;
Saies, 'Madam, and thou be guiltye,
I pray thee hold thee there.'
- 17 Forth came his ladye
shortlye and anon,
Boldlye to the mantle
then is shee gone.
- 18 When she had tane the mantle,
and cast it her about,
Then was shee bare
all aboue the buttockes.
- 19 Then euery knight
that was in the kings court
Talked, laughed, and showted, full oft att that sport.
- 20 Shee threw downe the mantle.
that bright was of blee,

Ffast with a red rudd
to her chamber can shee flee.

21 Forth came an old knight,
pattering ore a creede,
And he proferred to this little boy
twenty markes to his meede,

22 And all the time of the Christmasse willinglye to ffeede;
For why, this mantle might doe his wiffe some need.

23 When shee had tane the mantle,
of cloth that was made,
Shee had no more left on her
but a tassell and a threed:
Then euery knight in the kings court
bade euill might shee speed.

24 Shee threw downe the mantle,
that bright was of blee,
And fast with a redd rudd
to her chamber can shee flee.

25 Craddocke called forth his ladye,
and bade her come in;
Saith, 'Winne this mantle, ladye,
with a litle dinne.

26 'Winne this mantle, ladye, and it shalbe thine
If thou neuer did amisse
since thou wast mine.'

27 Forth came Craddockes ladye
shortlye and anon,
But boldlye to the mantle
then is shee gone.

28 When shee had tane the mantle,
and cast itt her about,
Vpp att her great toe
itt began to crinkle and crows;
Shee said, 'Bowe downe, mantle,
and shame me not for nought.

29 'Once I did amisse,
I tell you certainlye,
When I kist Craddockes mouth
vnder a greene tree,
When I kist Craddockes mouth
before he marryed mee.'

30 When shee had her shreenen, and her sines shee had tolde,

The mantle stoode about her right as shee wold;

31 Seemelye of coulour,
glittering like gold;
Then euery knight in Arthurs court
did her behold.

32 Then spake dame Gueneuer
to Arthur our king:
'She hath tane yonder mantle,
not with wright but with wronge!

33 'See you not yonder woman that maketh her selfe soe clene?
I haue seene tane out of her bedd
of men flueteene;

34 'Preists, clarkes, and wedded men,
from her by-deene;
Yett shee taketh the mantle,
and maketh her-selfe cleane!'

35 Then spake the litle boy that kept the mantle in hold;
Sayes 'King, chasten thy wiffe;
of her words shee is to bold.

36 'Shee is a bitch and a witch,
and a whore bold;
King, in thine owne hall
thou art a cuchold.'

37 The litle boy stoode
looking ouer a dore;
He was ware of a wyld bore,
wold haue werryed a man.

38 He pulld forth a wood kniffe, fast thither that he ran;
He brought in the bores head,
and quitted him like a man.

39 He brought in the bores head,
and was wonderous bold;
He said there was neuer a cucholds kniffe
carue itt that cold.

40 Some rubbed their kniues
vppon a whetstone;
Some threw them vnder the table,
and said they had none.

41 King Arthur and the child stood looking them vpon;

All their kniues edges turned backe againe.

42 Craddoccke had a litle kniue
of iron and of steele;
He birtled the bores head
wonderous weele,
That euery knight in the kings court had a morssell.

43 The litle boy had a horne,
of red gold that ronge;
He said, 'there was noe cuckolde shall drinke of my horne,
But he shold itt sheede,
either behind or beforne.'

44 Some shedd on their shoulder,
and some on their knee;
He that cold not hitt his mouth
put it in his eye;
And he that was a cuckold, euery man might him see.

45 Craddoccke wan the horne and the bores head;
His ladye wan the mantle
vnto her meede;
Euerye such a louely ladye,
God send her well to speede!

KING ARTHUR AND KING CORNWALL

The mutilation of the early pages of the Percy manuscript leaves us in possession of only one half of this ballad, and that half in eight fragments, so that even the outline of the story cannot be fully made out. Apparently it should run as follows: King Arthur, while boasting to Gawain of his Round Table, is told by Guenever that she knows of one immeasurably finer, and the palace it stands in is worth all Little Britain besides, but not a word will she say as to where this table and this goodly building may be. Arthur makes a vow never to sleep two nights in one place till he sees that round table; and, taking for companions Gawain, Tristram, Sir Bredbeddle, and Sir Marramiles, sets out on the quest. The five assume a palmer's weed simply for disguise, and travel east and west, only to arrive at Cornwall, so very little a way from home. The proud porter of Cornwall's gate, clad in a suit of gold, for his master is the richest king in Christendom, or yet in heathenesse, is evidently impressed with Arthur's bearing. Cornwall, finding that the pilgrims come from Little Britain, asks if they ever knew King Arthur, and boasts that he had lived seven years in Arthur's kingdom, and had had a daughter by Arthur's wife, now a lady of radiant beauty. He then sends for his wonderful steed and probably his horn and sword (which also have remarkable properties), and a Burlow-Beanie, or Billy-Blin, a seven-headed, fire-breathing fiend, whom he has in his service. Arthur is then conducted to bed, and the Billy-Blin, shut up, as far as we can make out, in some sort of barrel or other vessel (called a thrub chadler, or trub chandler), is set by Arthur's bedside to hear and report the talk of the pilgrims. Now it would seem that the knights make each their vow or brag. Arthur's is that he will be the death of Cornwall King before he sees Little Britain. Gawain will have Cornwall's daughter home with him. Here there is a gap. Tristram should undertake to blow the horn, Marramiles to ride the steed, and Arthur to kill Cornwall with the sword. But first it would be necessary to subdue the loathly fiend. Bredbeddle bursts open the "rub-chadler," and fights the monster in a style that is a joy to see; but sword, knife, and axe all break, and he is left without a weapon. Yet he had something better to fall back on, and that was a little book which he had found by the seaside. It was probably a book of Evangiles; our Lord had written it with his hands and sealed it with his blood. With this little book Bredbeddle conjures the Burlow-Beanie, and shuts him up till wanted in a "wall of stone." He then reports to Arthur, who has a great desire to see the fiend in all his terrors, and makes the fiend start out again. The Billy-Blin is now entirely amenable to command. Bredbeddle has only to conjure him to do a thing, and it is done. First he fetches down the steed. Marramiles considers that he is the man to ride him, but finds he can do nothing with him, and has to call on Bredbeddle for help. The Billy-Blin is required to tell how the steed is to be ridden, and reveals that three strokes of a gold wand which stands in Cornwall's study-window will make him spring like spark from brand. And so it comes out that Cornwall is a magician. Next the horn has to be fetched, but, when brought, it cannot be sounded. For this a certain powder is required. This the fiend procures. Tristram blows a blast which rends the horn up to the midst. Finally, the Billy-Blin is conjured to fetch the sword, and with this sword Arthur goes and strikes off Cornwall's head. So Arthur keeps his vow, and so far as we can see all the rest are in a condition to keep theirs.

The ballad bears a close relation to the eleventh-century chanson de geste of Charlemagne's Journey to Jerusalem and Constantinople. Perhaps the two are derived from a common source.

- 1 [SAIES, 'Come here, cuzen Gawaine so gay,
My sisters sonne be yee;
Ffor you shall see one of the fairest round tables
That euer you see with your eye.'
- 2 Then bespake Lady Queen Gueneuer,
And these were the words said shee:
'I know where a round table is, thou noble king,
Is worth thy round table and other such three.
- 3 'The trestle that stands vnder this round table,' she said,
'Lowe downe to the mould,
It is worth thy round table, thou worthy king,
Thy halls, and all thy gold.
- 4 'The place where this round table stands in,
It is worth thy castle, thy gold, thy fee,
And all good Litle Britaine.'
- 5 'Where may that table be, lady?' quoth hee,
'Or where may all that goodly building be?'
'You shall it seeke,' shee says, 'till you it find,
For you shall neuer gett more of me.'
- 6 Then bespake him noble King Arthur
These were the words said hee:
'Ile make mine avow to God,
And alsoe to the Trinity,
- 7 'Ile never sleepe one night there as I doe another,
Till that round table I see:

Sir Marramiles and Sir Tristeram,
Fellowes that ye shall bee.

- 8
'Weele be clad in palmers weede,
Fiue palmers we will bee;
- 9 'There is noe outlandish man will vs abide,
Nor will vs come nye.'
Then they riued east and thé riued west,
In many a strange country.
- 10 Then they tranckled a litle further,
They saw a battle new sett:
'Now, by my faith,' saies noble King Arthur,
. well .
* * * * *
- 11 But when he cam to this . . . e . . .
And to the palace gate,
Soe ready was ther a proud porter,
And met him soone therat.
- 12 Shooes of gold the porter had on,
And all his other rayment was vnto the same:
'Now, by my faith,' saies noble King Arthur,
'Yonder is a minion swaine.'
- 13 Then bespake noble King Arthur,
These were the words says hee:
'Come hither, thou proud porter,
I pray thee come hither to me.
- 14 'I haue two poore rings of my finger,
The better of them Ile giue to thee;
Tell who may be lord of this castle,' he sayes,
'Or who is lord in this cuntry?'
- 15 'Cornewall King,' the porter sayes,
'There is none soe rich as hee;
Neither in christendome, nor yet in heathennest,
None hath soe much gold as he.'
- 16 And then bespake him noble King Arthur,
These were the words sayes hee:

' I haue two poore rings of my finger,
The better of them Ile gine thee,
If thou wilt greete him well, Cornwall
King,
And greete him well from me.

17 ' Pray him for one nights lodging and two meales meate,
For his love that dyed vppon a tree;
Of one ghesting and two meales meate,
For his loue that dyed vppon a tree.

18 ' Of one ghesting, of two meales meate,
For his love that was of virgin borne,
And in the morning that we may scape
away,
Either without scath or scorne.'

19 Then forth is gone this proud porter,
As fast as he cold hye,
And when he came befor Cornwall
King,
He kneeled downe on his knee.

20 Sayes, ' I haue beene porter-man, at thy gate,
This thirty winter and three . . .

21
Our Lady was borne; then thought
Cornwall King
These palmers had beene in Brittain.

22 Then bespake him Cornwall King,
These were the words he said there:
' Did you euer know a comely king,
His name was King Arthur?'

23 And then bespake him noble King Arthur,
These were the words said hee:
' I doe not know that comly king,
But once my selfe I did him see.'
Then bespake Cornwall King againe,
These were the words said he:

24 Sayes, ' Seuen yeere I was clad and fed,
In Litle Brittain, in a bower;
I had a daughter by King Arthurs wife,
That now is called my flower;

For King Arthur, that kindly cockward,
Hath none such in his bower.

25 ' For I durst sweare, and saue my othe,
That same lady soe bright,
That a man that were laid on his death
bed
Wold open his eyes on her to haue sight.'
' Now, by my faith,' sayes noble King
Arthur,
' And that 's a full faire wight!'

26 And then bespake Cornwall [King]
again,
And these were the words he said:
' Come hither, fye or three of my
knights,
And feitch me downe my steed;
King Arthur, that foule cockward,
Hath none such, if he had need.

27 ' For I can ryde him as far on a day
As King Arthur can doe any of his on three;
And is it not a pleasure for a king
When he shall ryde forth on his iour-ney?

28 ' For the eyes that beene in his head,
Thé glister as doth the gleed.'
' Now, by my faith,' says noble King
Arthur,
' That is a well faire steed.'

* * * * *

29
' Nobody say
But one that 's learned to speake.'

30 Then King Arthur to his bed was brought,
A greeined man was hee;
And soe were all his fellowes with him,
From him thé thought neuer to flee.

31 Then take they did that lodly groome,
And under the rub-chadler closed was
hee,
And he was set by King Arthurs bed-
side,
To heere theire talke and theire comuaye;

32 That he might come forth, and make proclamation,
Long before it was day ;
It was more for King Cornwalls pleasure,
Then it was for King Arthurs pay.

33 And when King Arthur in his bed was laid,
These were the words said hee :
'Ile make mine avow to God,
And alsoe to the Trinity,
That Ile be the bane of Cornwall Kinge,
Litle Brittain or euer I see !'

34 'It is an vnaduised vow,' saies Gawaine
the gay,
'As ever king hard make I ;
But wee that beene flue christian men,
Of the christen faith are wee,
And we shall fight against anoynted
king
And all his armorie.'

35 And then bespake him noble Arthur,
And these were the words said he :
'Why, if thou be afraid, Sir Gawaine
the gay,
Goe home, and drinke wine in thine
owne country.'

36 And then bespake Sir Gawaine the gay,
And these were the words said hee :
'Nay, seeing you have made such a hearty vow,
Heere another vow make will I.

37 'Ile make mine avow to God,
And alsoe to the Trinity,
That I will haue yonder faire lady
To Litle Brittain with mee.

38 'Ile hose her hourly to my heart,
And with her Ile worke my will ;'

* * * * *

39
These were the words sayd hee :
'Befor I wold wrestle with yonder
feend,
It is better be drowned in the sea.'

40 And then bespake Sir Bredbeddle,
And these were the words said he :
'Why, I will wrestle with you lodly
feend,
God, my gouernor thou wilt bee !'

41 Then bespake him noble Arthur,
And these were the words said he :
'What weapons wilt thou haue, thou gentle knight ?
I pray thee tell to me.'

42 He sayes, 'Collen brand Ile haue in my
hand,
And a Millaine knife fast by me knee,
And a Danish axe fast in my hands,
That a sure weapon I thinke wilbe.'

43 Then with his Collen brand that he had in his hand
The bunge of that rub-chandler he burst in three ;
With that start out a lodly feend,
With seuen heads, and one body.

44 The fyer towards the element flew,
Out of his mouth, where was great
plentie ;
The knight stode in the middle and
fought,
That it was great ioy to see.

45 Till his Collaine brand brake in his
hand,
And his Millaine knife burst on his
knee,
And then the Danish axe burst in his hand first,
That a sur weapon he thought shold
be.

46 But now is the knight left without any weapons,
And alacke ! it was the more pitty ;
But a surer weapon then he had one,
Had neuer lord in Christentye ;
And all was but one litle booke,
He found it by the side of the sea.

47 He found it at the sea-side,
Wrucked up in a floode ;
Our Lord had written it with his hands,
And sealed it with his bloode.

48 'That thou doe not s . . .
But ly still in that wall of stone,
Till I haue beene with noble King Arthur,
And told him what I haue done.'

49 And when he came to the kings chamber,
He cold of his curtesie :
Says, 'Sleepe you, wake you, noble
King Arthur ?
And euer Iesus waken yee !'

50 'Nay, I am not sleeping, I am waking,'
These were the words said hee ;
'Ffor thee I haue card; how hast thou fared ?
O gentle knight, let me see.'

51 The knight wrought the king his booke,
Bad him behold, reede and see ;
And euer he found it on the backside of the leafe
As noble Arthur wold wish it to be.

52 And then bespake him King Arthur,
'Alas ! thow gentle knight, how may this be,
That I might see him in the same lick-
nesse
'That he stood vnto thee ?'

53 And then bespake him the Greene
Knight,
These were the words said hee :
'If youle stand stifly in the battell
stronge,
For I haue won all the victory.'

54 Then bespake him the king againe,
And these were the words said hee :
'If wee stand not stifly in this battell
strong,
Wee are worthy to be hanged all on a tree.'

55 Then bespake him the Greene Knight,
These were the words said he :
Saies, 'I doe coniure thee, thou fowle
feend,
In the same licknesse thou stood vnto
me.'

56 With that start out a lodly feend,
With seuen heads, and one body ;

The fier towards the element flaugh,
Out of his mouth, where was great plenty.

Knight,
And these were the words said he:
Saith, 'I coniure thee, thou fowle feend,
That thou feitch downe the steed that we see.'

60 And then forth is gone Burlow-beanie,
As fast as he cold hie,
And feitch he did that faire steed,
And came againe by and by.

61 Then bespake him Sir Marramiles,
And these were the words said hee:
'Riding of this steed, brother Bredbed-dle,
The mastery belongs to me.'

62 Marramiles tooke the steed to his hand,
To ryd him he was full bold;
He cold noe more make him goe
Then a child of three yeere old.

63 He laid vppon him with heele and hand,
With yard that was soe fell;
'Helpe ! brother Bredbeddle,' says Mar-
ramile,
'For I thinke he be the devill of hell.

64 'Helpe ! brother Bredbeddle,' says Mar-
ramile,
'Helpe ! for Christs pittye;
Ffor without thy help, brother Bred-beddle,
He will neuer be rydden for me.'

65 Then bespake him Sir Bredbeddle,
These were the words said he:

'I coniure thee, thou Burlow-beane,
Thou tell me how this steed was rid-din in his country.'

66 He saith, 'there is a gold wand
Stands in King Coruwalls study windowe;

67 'Let him take that wand in that window,
And strike three strokes on that
steed;
And then he will spring forth of his
hand
As sparke doth out of gleede.'

68 And then bespake him the Greene
Knight,

69
A lowd blast he may blow then.

70 And then bespake Sir Bredebeddle,
To the ffeend these words said hee :
Says, 'I coniure thee, thou Burlow-
beanie,
The powder-box thou feitch me.'

71 Then forth is gone Burlow-beanie,
As fast as he cold hie,
And feich he did the powder-box,
And came againe by and by.

72 Then Sir Tristeram tooke powder forth of that box,
And blent it with warme sweet milke,
And there put it vnto that borne,
And swilled it about in that ilke.

73 Then he tooke the borne in his hand,
And a lowd blast he blew;
He rent the horne vp to the midst,
All his ffellowes this the knew.

74 Then bespake him the Greene Knight,
These were the words said he:

Saies, 'I coniure thee, thou Burlow-
beanie,
That thou feitch me the sword that
I see.'

75 Then forth is gone Burlow-beanie,
As fast as he cold hie,
And feitch he did that faire sword,
And came againe by and by.

76 Then bespake him Sir Bredbeddle,
To the king these words said he :
'Take this sword in thy hand, thou
noble King Arthur,
For the vowes sake that thou made
Ile giue it th[ee,]
And goe strike off King Cornewalls
head,
In bed were he doth lye.'

77 Then forth is gone noble King Arthur,
As fast as he cold hye,
And strucken he hath off King Corn-walls head,
And came againe by and by.

78 He put the head vpon a swords point,

THE MARRIAGE OF SIR GA- WAIN

We have here again half a ballad, in seven fragments, but the essentials of the story, which is well known from other versions, happen to be preserved, or may be inferred: Arthur, apparently some day after Christmas, had been encountered at Tarn Wadling, in the forest of Inglewood, by a bold baron armed with a club, who offered him the choice of fighting or ransoming himself by coming back on New Year's day and bringing word what women most desire. Arthur puts this question in all quarters, and having collected many answers, in which, possibly, he had little confidence, he rides to keep his day. On the way he meets a frightfully ugly woman; she intimates that she can help him. Arthur promises her Gawain in marriage, if she will, and she imparts to him the right answer. Arthur finds the baron waiting for him at the tarn, and presents first the answers which he had collected and written down. These are contemptuously rejected. Arthur then says that he had met a lady on a moor, who had told him that a woman would have her will. The baron says that the misshapen lady on the moor was his sister, and he will burn her if he can get hold of her. Upon Arthur's return he tells his knights that he has a wife for one of them. When they see the bride they decline the match in vehement terms, all but Gawain, who is somehow led to waive "a little foul sight and misliking." He takes her in all her repulsiveness, and she turns to a beautiful young woman. She asks Gawain whether he will have her in this likeness by night only or only by day. Gawain leaves the choice to her, and this is all that is needed to keep her perpetually beautiful. For a stepmother had bewitched her to go on the wild moor in that fiendly shape until she should meet some knight who would let her have all her will. Her brother, under a like spell, was to challenge men either to fight with him at odds or to answer his hard questions.

These incidents, with the variation that Arthur waits for Gawain's consent before he promises him in marriage, are found in a romance, probably of the fifteenth century, printed in Madden's Syr Gawayne, and somewhat hastily pronounced by the editor to be "unquestionably the original of the mutilated poem in the Percy folio." Gower (Confessio Amantis, Book I, vv. 1407 ff.) and Chaucer (Wife of Bath's Tale) both have this tale, though with a different setting, and with the variation, beyond doubt original in the story, that the man whose life is saved by rightly answering the question has himself to marry the monstrous woman in return for her prompting him. The ballad of 'The Knight and Shepherd's Daughter' (No. 110) has much in common with The Wife of Bath's Tale and should also be compared. The incident of a hag turned into a beautiful woman after a man has bedded with her occurs several times in ancient Irish story, one text being found in the Book of Leinster, a twelfth-century manuscript. For a full discussion of the whole cycle of tales see Maynadier, The Wife of Bath's Tale, its Sources and Analogues, 1901.

1 KINGE ARTHUR liues in merry Carleile,
And seemely is to see,

And there he hath with him Queene
Genever,
That bride soe bright of blee.

2 And there he hath with [him] Queene
Genever,
That bride soe bright in bower,
And all his barons about him stode,
That were both stiffe and stowre.

3 The king kept a royall Christmasse,
Of mirth and great honor,
And when

4 'And bring me word what thing it is
That a woman [will] most desire;
This shalbe thy ransome, Arthur,' he
sayes,
'For Ile haue noe other hier.'

5 King Arthur then held vp his hand,
According thene as was the law;
He tooke his leaue of the baron there,
And homward can he draw.

6 And when he came to merry Carlile,
To his chamber he is gone,
And ther came to him his cozen Sir
Gawaine,
As he did make his mone.

7 And there came to him his cozen Sir
Gawaine,
That was a curteous knight;
'Why sigh you soe sore, vnckle Arthur,'
he said,
'Or who hath done thee vuright?'

8 'O peace, O peace, thou gentle Gawaine,
That faire may thee befall!
For if thou knew my sighing soe deepe,
Thou wold not meruaile att all.

9 'Ffor when I came to Tearne Wadling,
A bold barron there I fand,
With a great club vpon his backe,
Standing stiffe and strong.

10 'And he asked me wether I wold fight
Or from him I shold begone,
O[r] else I must him a ransome pay,
And soe depart him from.

11 'To fight with him I saw noe cause;
Methought it was not meet;
For he was stiffe and strong with-all,
His strokes were nothing sweete.

12 'Therefor this is my ransome, Gawaine,
I ought to him to pay;
I must come againe, as I am sworne,
Vpon the New Yeers day;

13 'And I must bring him word what thing it is

14 Then king Arthur drest him for to
ryde,
In one soe rich array,
Toward the fore-said Tearne Wadling,
That he might keepe his day.

15 And as he rode over a more,
Hee see a lady where shee sate
Betwixt an oke and a greene hollen;
She was cladd in red scarlett.

16 Then there as shold haue stood her
mouth,
Then there was sett her eye;
The other was in her forehead fast,
The way that she might see.

17 Her nose was crooked and turnd outward,
Her mouth stood foule a-wry;
A worse formed lady than shee was,
Neuer man saw with his eye.

18 To halch vpon him, King Arthur,
This lady was full faine,
But King Arthur had forgott his lesson,
What he shold say againe.

19 'What knight art thou,' the lady sayd,
'That will not speak to me?
Of me be thou nothing dismayd,
Tho I be vgly to see.

20 'For I hane halched you curteouslye,
And you will not me againe;
Yett I may happen Sir Knight,' shee
said,
'To ease thee of thy paine.'

21 'Giue thou ease me, lady,' he said,
'Or helpe me any thing,
Thou shalt have gentle Gawaine, my cozen,
And marry him with a ring.'

22 'Why, if I help thee not, thou noble
King Arthur,
Of thy owne hearts desiringe,
Of gentle Gawaine
* * * * *

23 And when he came to the Tearne Wad-ling,
The baron there cold he finde,
With a great weapon on his backe,
Standing stiffe and stronge.

24 And then he tooke King Arthurs letters in his hands,
And away he cold them fling,
And then he puld out a good browne
sword,
And cryd himselfe a king.

25 And he sayd, 'I have thee and thy land,
Arthur,
To doe as it pleaseth me,
For this is not thy ransome sure,
Therefore yeeld thee to me.'

26 And then bespoke him noble Arthur,
And bad him hold his hand:
'And giue me leaue to speake my mind
In defence of all my land.'

27 He said, 'As I came over a more,
I see a lady where shee sate
Betweene an oke and a green hollen;
Shee was clad in red scarlett.

28 'And she says a woman will haue her
will,
And this is all her cheef desire:
Doe me right, as thou art a baron of skill,
This is thy ransome and all thy hyer.'

29 He sayes, 'An early vengeance light on her!
She walkes on yonder more;
It was my sister that told thee this.
And she is a misshappen hore.

30 'But heer Ile make mine avow to God
To doe her an euill turne,
For an euer I may thate fowle theefe get,
In a fyer I will her burne.'

* * * * *

31 Sir Lancelott and Sir Steven bold,
They rode with them that day,
And the formost of the company
There rode the steward Kay.

32 Soe did Sir Banier and Sir Bore,
Sir Garrett with them soe gay,
Soe did Sir Tristeram that gentle
knight,
To the forrest fresh and gay.

33 And when he came to the greene forrest,
Vnderneath a greene holly tree,
Their sate that lady in red scarlet
That vnseemly was to see.

34 Sir Kay beheld this ladys face,
And looked vpon her swire;
'Whosoener kisses this lady,' he sayes,
'Of his kisse he stands in feare.'

35 Sir Kay beheld the lady againe,
And looked vpon her snout;
'Whosoener kisses this lady,' he saies,
'Of his kisse he stands in doubt.'

36 'Peace, cozen Kay,' then said Sir Ga-
waine,
'Amend thee of thy life;
For there is a knight amongst vs all
That must marry her to his wife.

37 'What! wedd her to wiffe!' then said
Sir Kay,
'In the diuells name anon!
Gett me a wiffe where-ere I may,
For I had rather be slaine!'

38 Then some tooke vp their hawkes in hast,
And some tooke vp their hounds,
And some sware they wold not marry
her
For citty nor for towne.

39 And then be-spake him noble King Arthur,

And sware there by this day,
For a litle foule sight and misliking

* * * * *

40 Then shee said, 'Choose thee, gentle Ga-
waine,
Truth as I doe say,
Wether thou wilt haue me in this lik-
nesse
In the night or else in the day.'

41 And then bespake him gentle Gawaine,
Was one soe mild of moode,
Sayes, 'Well I know what I wold say,
God grant it may be good!'

42 'To haue thee fowle in the night
When I with thee shold play —
Yet I had rather, if I might,
Haue thee fowle in the day.'

43 'What! when lords goe with ther
feires,' shee said,
'Both to the ale and wine,
Alas! then I must hyde my selfe,
I must not goe withinne.'

44 And then bespake him gentle Gawaine,
Said, 'Lady, that's but skill;
And because thou art my owne lady,
Thou shalt haue all thy will.'

45 Then she said, 'Blesed be thou, gent^ls
Gawain,
This day that I thee see,
For as thou seest me att this time,
From hencforth I wilbe.

46 'My father was an old knight,
And yett it chanced soe
That he married a younge lady
That brought me to this woe.

47 'Shee witched me, being a faire young lady,
To the greene forrest to dwell,
And there I must walke in womans lik-
nesse,
Most like a feend of hell.

48 'She witched my brother to a carlish
b . . .

49

'That looked soe foule, and that was wont
On the wild more to goe.'

50 'Come kisse her, brother Kay,' then said Sir Gawaine,
'And amend thé of thy liffe;
I sweare this is the same lady
That I married to my wiffe.'

51 Sir Kay kissed that lady bright,
Standing vpon his fleete;
He swore, as he was trew knight,
The spice was neuer soe sweete.

52 'Well, cozen Gawaine,' sayes Sir Kay,
'Thy chance is fallen arright,
For thou hast gotten one of the fairest maids
I euer saw with my sight.'

53 'It is my fortune,' said Sir Gawaine;
'For my vnckle Arthurs sake
I am glad as grasse wold be of raine,
Great ioy that I may take.'

54 Sir Gawaine tooke the lady by the one arme,
Sir Kay tooke her by the tother,
They led her straight to King Arthur,
As they were brother and brother.

55 King Arthur welcomed them there all,
And soe did Lady Geneuer his queene,
With all the knights of the Round
Table,
Most seemly to be seene.

56 King Arthur beheld that lady faire
That was soe faire and bright,
He thanked Christ in Trinity
For Sir Gawaine that gentle knight.

57 Soe did the knights, both more and
lesse,
Reioyced all that day
For the good chance that hapened was
To Sir Gawaine and his lady gay.

KING HENRY

Scott describes his copy of 'King Henry' as "edited from the MS. of Mrs. Brown, corrected by a recited fragment." This manuscript was William Tytler's, now lost. The story is a variety of that which is found in 'The Marriage of Sir Gawain' (No. 31), and has its parallel, as Scott observes, in an episode in the saga of Hrólfr Kraki. Every point of the Norse saga, except the stepmother's weird, is found in the Gaelic tale 'The Daughter of King Under-waves' (Campbell's Popular Tales of the West Highlands, No. 86, III, 403 f.). Campbell had a fragment of a Gaelic ballad upon this story (vol. xvii, p. 212, of his manuscript collection), 'Collun gun Cheann,' or 'The Headless Trunk,' twenty-two lines. In this case, as the title imports, a body without a head replaces the hideous, dirty, and unkempt draggie-tail who begs shelter of the Finn successively and obtains her boon only from Diarmaid (see Campbell's Gaelic Ballads, p. ix). On the whole matter see Dr. Maynardier's monograph on The Wife of Bath's Tale (p. 55, above).

'King Henry.' a. Jamieson-Brown MS., p. 31. b. Minstrelsy of the Scottish Border, 1802, II, 132.

1 LAT never a man a wooing wend
That lacketh thingis three;
A routh o gold, an open heart,
Ay fu o charity.

2 As this I speak of King Henry,
For he lay burd-alone;
An he's doen him to a jelly hunt's ha,
Was seven miles frae a town.

3 He chas'd the deer now him before,
An the roe down by the den,
Till the fattest buck in a' the flock
King Henry he has slain.

4 O he has doen him to his ha,
To make him beerly cheer;
An in it came a griesly ghost,
Steed stappin i the floor.

5 Her head hat the reef-tree o the house,
Her middle ye mot wel span;
He's thrown to her his gay mantle,
Says, 'Lady, hap your lingcan.'

- 6 Her teeth was a' like teather stakes,
Her nose like club or mell;
An I ken naething she 'peard to be,
But the fiend that wons in hell.
- 7 'Some meat, some meat, ye King Henry,
Some meat ye gie to me !'
'An what meat 's in this house, lady,
An what ha I to gie ?'
'O ye do kill your berry-brown steed,
An you bring him here to me.'
- 8 O whan he slew his berry-brown steed,
Wow but his heart was sair !
Shee eat him [a'] up, skin an bane,
Left naething but hide an hair.
- 9 'Mair meat, mair meat, ye King Henry,
Mair meat ye gi to me !'
'An what meat 's in this house, lady,
An what ha I to gi ?'
'O ye do kill your good gray-hounds,
An ye bring them a' to me.'
- 10 O whan he slew his good gray-hounds,
Wow but his heart was sair !
She eat them a' up, skin an bane,
Left naething but hide an hair.
- 11 'Mair meat, mair meat, ye King Henry,
Mair meat ye gi to me !'
'An what meat 's i this house, lady,
An what ha I to gi ?'
'O ye do kill your gay gos-hawks,
An ye bring them here to me.'
- 12 O whan he slew his gay gos-hawks,
Wow but his heart was sair !
She eat them a' up, skin an bane,
Left naething but feathers bare.
- 13 'Some drink, some drink, now, King
Henry,
Some drink ye bring to me !'
'O what drink 's i this house, lady,
That you 're nae welcome ti ?'
'O ye sew up your horse's hide,
An bring in a drink to me.'
- 14 And he's sewd up the bloody hide,
A puncheon o wine put in ;
She drank it a' up at a waught,
Left na ae drap ahin.
- 15 'A bed, a bed, now, King Henry,
A bed you mak to me !

For ye maun pu the heather green,
An mak a bed to me.'

- 16 O pu'd has he the heather green,
An made to her a bed,
An up has he taen his gay mantle,
An oer it has he spread.
- 17 'Tak aff your claiths, now, King Henry,
An lye down by my side !'
'O God forbid,' says King Henry,
'That ever the like betide ;
That ever the fiend that wons in hell
Shoud streak down by my side.'
- * * * * *
- 18 Whan night was gane, and day was
come,
An the sun shone throw the ha,
The fairest lady that ever was seen
Lay atween him an the wa.
- 19 'O well is me !' says King Henry,
'How lang 'll this last wi me ?'
Then out it spake that fair lady,
'Even till the day you dee.
- 20 'For I've met wi mony a gentle knight
That's gien me sic a fill,
But never before wi a courteous knight
That ga me a' my will.'

KEMP OWYNE

The Icelandic saga of 'Hjálmter and Olver' comes near enough to the story of the ballad to show where its connections lie (Rafn, Fornaldar Sögur, III, 472 ff., 514 ff.). In many tales of the sort a single kiss suffices to undo the spell and reverse the transformation; in others, as in the ballad, three are required. The incidents have been carefully studied by Schofield in his investigation of the romance of Li Beans Desconeüs (Studies and Notes in Philology and Literature, IV, 199 ff.).

'Kemp Owyne,' Buchan, Ballads of the North of Scotland, II. 78, from Mr Nicol of Strichen, as learned in his youth from old people; Motherwell's Minstrelsy, p. 374; 'Kemp Owayne,' Motherwell's MS., p. 448.

- 1 HER mother died when she was young,
Which gave her cause to make great
moan;
Her father married the warst woman
That ever lived in Christendom.
- 2 She served her with foot and hand,
In every thing that she could dee,
Till once, in an unlucky time,
She threw her in ower Craigy's sea.
- 3 Says, 'Lie you there, dove Isabel,
And all my sorrows lie with thee;
Till Kemp Owyne come ower the sea,
And borrow you with kisses three,
Let all the warld do what they will,
Oh borrowed shall you never be!'
- 4 Her breath grew strang, her hair grew
lang,
And twisted thrice about the tree,
And all the people, far and near,
Thought that a savage beast was she.
- 5 These news did come to Kemp Owyne,
Where he lived, far beyond the sea;
He hasted him to Craigy's sea,
And on the savage beast lookd he.
- 6 Her breath was strang, her hair was
lang,
And twisted was about the tree,
And with a swing she came about:
'Come to Craigy's sea, and kiss with
me.
- 7 'Here is a royal belt,' she cried,
'That I have found in the green
sea;
And while your body it is on,
Drawn shall your blood never be;
But if you touch me, tail or fin,
I vow my belt your death shall be.'
- 8 He stepped in, gave her a kiss,
The royal belt he brought him wi;
Her breath was strang, her hair was
lang,
And twisted twice about the tree,
And with a swing she came about:
'Come to Craigy's sea, and kiss with
me.
- 9 'Here is a royal ring,' she said,
'That I have found in the green sea;

And while your finger it is on,
Drawn shall your blood never be;
But if you touch me, tail or fin,
I swear my ring your death shall be.'

- 10 He stepped in, gave her a kiss,
The royal ring he brought him wi;
Her breath was strang, her hair was
lang,
And twisted ance about the tree,
And with a swing she came about:
'Come to Craigy's sea, and kiss with
me.
- 11 'Here is a royal brand,' she said,
'That I have found in the green sea;
And while your body it is on,
Drawn shall your blood never be;
But if you touch me, tail or fin,
I swear my brand your death shall
be.'
- 12 He stepped in, gave her a kiss,
The royal brand he brought him wi;
Her breath was sweet, her hair grew short,
And twisted nane about the tree,
And smilingly she came about,
As fair a woman as fair could be.

'Kempion.' a. Jamieson-Brown MS., p. 29.
b. Scott's Minstrelsy, II, 93, 1802, from William Tytler's Brown MS., No. 9, "with corrections from a recited fragment."

- 1 'COME here, come here, you freely feed,
An lay your head low on my knee;
The hardest weird I will you read
That eer was read to a lady.
- 2 'O meikle dollour sall you dree,
An ay the sat seas oer ye ['s] swim;
An far mair dollour sall ye dree
On Eastmuir craigs, or ye them clim.
- 3 'I wot ye's be a weary wight,
An releived sall ye never be
Till Kempion, the kingis son,
Come to the craig and thrice kiss
thee.'
- 4 O meickle dollour did she dree,
An ay the sat seas oer she swam;

An far mair dollour did she dree
On Eastmuir craigs, or them she clam;
An ay she cried for Kempion,
Gin he would come till her han.

5 Now word has gane to Kempion
That sich a beast was in his lan,
An ay be sure she would gae mad
Gin she gat nae help frae his han.

6 'Now by my sooth,' says Kempion,
'This fiery beast I [']ll gang to see;'
'An by my sooth,' says Segramour,
'My ae brother, I'll gang you wi.'

7 O biggit ha they a bonny boat,
An they hae set her to the sea,
An Kempion an Segramour
The fiery beast ha gane to see:
A mile afore they reachd the shore,
I wot she gard the red fire flee.

8 'O Segramour, keep my boat afloat,
An lat her no the lan so near;
For the wicked beast she'll sure gae
mad,
An set fire to the land an mair.'

9 'O out o my stye I winna rise —
An it is na for the fear o thee —
Till Kempion, the kingis son,
Come to the craig an thrice kiss me.'

10 He's louted him oer the Eastmuir
craig,
An he has gien her kisses ane;
Awa she gid, an again she came,
The fieriest beast that ever was seen.

11 'O out o my stye I winna rise —
An it is na for fear o thee —
Till Kempion, the kingis son,
Come to the craig an thrice kiss me.'

12 He louted him oer the Eastmuir craig,
An he has gien her kisses twa;
Awa she gid, an again she came,
The fieriest beast that ever you saw.

13 'O out o my stye I winna rise —
An it is na for fear o ye —
Till Kempion, the kingis son,
Come to the craig an thrice kiss me.'

14 He's louted him oer the Eastmuir
craig,
An he has gien her kisses three;
Awa she gid, an again she came,
The fairest lady that ever coud be.

15 'An by my sooth,' say[s] Kempion,
'My ain true love — for this is she —
O was it wof into the wood,
Or was it fish intill the sea,
Or was it man, or wile woman,
My true love, that misshapit thee?'

16 'It was na wof into the wood,
Nor was it fish into the sea,
But it was my stepmother,
An wae an weary mot she be.

17 'O a heavier weird light her upon
Than ever fell on wile woman;
Her hair's grow rough, an her teeth's grow lang,
An on her four feet sal she gang.

18 'Nane sall tack pitty her upon,
But in Wormie's Wood she sall ay won,
An relieved sall she never be,
Till St Mungo come oer the sea.'

ALLISON GROSS

The queen of the fairies undoing the spell of the witch is a remarkable feature, not paralleled in English or northern tradition. The Greek nereids, however, who do pretty much everything, good or bad, that is ascribed to northern elves or fairies, and even bear an appellation resembling that by which fairies are spoken of in Scotland and Iceland, "the good damsels," "the good ladies," have a queen who is described as taking no part in the unfriendly acts of her subjects, but as being kindly disposed towards mankind, and even as repairing the mischief which subordinate spirits have done against her will. If now the fairy queen might interpose in behalf of men against her own kith and kin, much more likely would she be to exert herself to thwart the malignity of a witch.

'Allison Gross,' Jamieson-Brown MS., p. 40;
Jamieson's Popular Ballads, II, 187.

1 O ALLISON GROSS, that lives in yon
towr,
The ugliest witch i the north country,
Has trysted me ae day up till her
bowr,
An monny fair speech she made to
me.

2 She stroaked my head, an she kembed
my hair,
An she set me down saftly on her
knee;
Says, Gin ye will be my lemman so
true,
Sae monny braw things as I woud
you gi.

3 She showd me a mantle o red scarlet,
Wi gouden flowrs an fringes fine;
Says, Gin ye will be my lemman so
true,
This goodly gift it sal be thine.

4 'Awa, awa, ye ugly witch,
Hand far awa, an lat me be;
I never will be your lemman sae true,
An I wish I were out o your company.'

5 She neist brought a sark o the saftest silk,
Well wrought wi pearles about the ban;
Says, Gin you will be my ain true love,
This goodly gift you sal comman.

6 She showd me a cup of the good red
gold,
Well set wi jewls sae fair to see;
Says, Gin you will be my lemman sae
true,
This goodly gift I will you gi.

7 'Awa, awa, ye ugly witch,
Had far awa, and lat me be;
For I woudna ance kiss your ugly mouth
For a' the gifts that ye coud gi.'

8 She's turnd her right and roun about,
An thrice she blaw on a grass-green
horn,
An she sware by the meen and the stars
abeen,
That she'd gar me rue the day I was born.

9 Then out has she taen a silver wand,
An she's turnd her three times roun
an roun;
She's mutterd sich words till my strength it faild,
An I fell down senceless upon the groun.

10 She's turnd me into an ugly worm,
And gard me toddle about the tree;
An ay, on ilka Saturdays night,
My sister Maisry came to me,

11 Wi silver bason an silver kemb,
To kemb my heady upon her knee;
But or I had kissd her ugly mouth,
I'd rather a toddled about the tree.

12 Bnt as it fell out on last Hallow-even,
When the seely court was ridin by,
The queen lighted down on a gowany
bank,
Nae far frae the tree where I wont to
lye.

13 She took me up in her milk-white han,
An she's stroakd me three times oer
her knee;
She chang'd me again to my ain proper shape,
An I nae mair maun toddle about the
tree.

THE LAILY WORM AND THE MACHREL OF THE SEA

Though this ballad is somewhat mutilated and defaced, it is pure tradition, and has never been retouched by a pen. It has the first stanza in common with 'Kemp Owyne' (No. 34), and shares more than that with 'Allison Gross' (No. 35). But it is independent of 'Allison Gross,' and has a far more original sound.

The Old Lady's MS., No. 2.

1 'I WAS bat seven year alld
Fan my mider she did dee,
My father marr'd the ae warst woman
The wardle did ever see.

2 'For she has made me the laily worm
That lays att the fitt of the tree,

- An o my sister Meassry
The machrel of the sea.
- 3 'An every Saterdag att noon
The machrl comes to me,
An she takes my laylë head,
An lays it on her knee,
An keames it we a silver kemm,
An washes it in the sea.
- 4 'Seven knights ha I slain
Sane I lay att the fitt of the tree ;
An ye war na my ain father,
The eight an ye sud be.'
- 5 'Sing on your song, ye l[a]ily worm,
That ye sung to me ;'
'I never sung that song
But fatt I wad sing to ye.
- 6 'I was but seven year aull
Fan my mider she [did] dee,
My father marrëd the a warst woman
The wardle did ever see.
- 7 'She changed me to the layel[y] worm
That layes att the fitt of the tree,
An my sister Messry
[To] the makrell of the sea.
- 8 'And every Saterdag att noon
The machrell comes to me,
An she takes my layly head,
An layes it on her knee,
An kames it weth a siller kame,
An washes it in the sea.
- 9 'Seven knights ha I slain
San I lay att the fitt of the tree ;
An ye war na my ain father,
The eight ye sud be.'
- 10 He sent for his lady
As fast as sen cod he :
'Far is my son,
That ye sent fra me,
And my daughter,
Lady Messry ?'
- 11 'Yer son is att our king's court,
Sarving for meatt an fee,
And yer daugh[t]er is att our quin's
court,
A mary suit an free.'

- 12 'Ye lee, ye ill woman,
Sa loud as I hear ye lea,
For my son is the layelly worm
That lays at the fitt of the tree,
An my daughter Messry
The machrell of the sea.'
- 13 She has tain a silver wan
An gine him stroks three,
An he started up the bravest knight
Your eyes did ever see.
- 14 She has tane a small horn
An loud an shill blue she,
An a' the fish came her tell but the proud machrell,
An she stood by the sea :
Ye shaped me ance an unshemly shape,
An ye's never mare shape me.'
- 15 He has sent to the wood
For hathorn an fun,
An he has tane that gay lady,
An ther he did her burne.

THOMAS RYMER

Thomas of Erceldoune, otherwise Thomas the Rhymer, has had a fame as a seer, which, though progressively narrowed, is, after the lapse of nearly or quite six centuries, far from being extinguished. The common people throughout the whole of Scotland, according to Mr Robert Chambers (1870), continue to regard him with veneration, and to preserve a great number of his prophetic sayings, which they habitually seek to connect with "dear years" and other notable public events. A prediction of Thomas of Erceldoune's is recorded in a manuscript which is put at a date before 1320, and he is referred to with other soothsayers in the Scalacronica, a French chronicle of English history begun in 1355. Erceldoune is spoken of as a poet in Robert Mannyng's translation of Langtoft's Chronicle, finished in 1338, and in the Auchinleck copy of 'Sir Tristrem,' thought to have been made about 1350, a Thomas is said to have been consulted at Erpeldoun touching the history of Tristrem. So that we seem safe in holding that Thomas of Erceldoune had a reputation both as prophet and poet in the earlier part of the fourteenth century. The vaticinations of Thomas are cited by various late chroniclers, and had as much credit in England as in Scotland. All this might have been if Thomas of Erceldoune had not been more historical than Merlin. But the name is known to have belonged to a real person. Just when he lived is not certain, but it was somewhere between 1210 and 1296 or 1297.

Thomas of Erceldoune's prophetic power was a gift of the queen of the elves; the modern elves, equally those of northern Europe and of Greece, resembling in respect to this attribute the nymphs of the ancient Hellenic mythology. How Thomas attained this grace is set forth in the first three fits of a poem which bears his name. This poem has come down in four somewhat defective copies: the earliest written a little before the middle of the fifteenth century, two others about 1450, the fourth later. There is a still later manuscript copy of the second and third fits. All the manuscripts are English, but it is manifest from the nature of the topics that the original poem was the work of a Scotsman. All four of the complete versions speak of an older story. This was undoubtedly a romance which narrated the adventure of Thomas with the elf-queen simply, without specification of his prophecies. In all probability it concluded with Thomas's return to fairy-land after a certain time passed in this world. The story of Thomas and the Elf-queen is but another version of what is related of Ogier le Danois and Morgan the Fay. The fairy adventures of Thomas and of Ogier have the essential points in common, and even the particular trait that the fairy is taken to be the Virgin. The occurrence of this trait again in the ballad, viewed in connection with the general similarity of the two, will leave no doubt that the ballad had its source in the romance. Yet it is an entirely popular ballad as to style, and must be of considerable age, though the earliest version (A) can be traced at furthest only into the first half of the eighteenth century.

'Thomas Rymer and Queen of Elfland,' Alexander Fraser Tytler's Brown MS., No. 1; Jamieson's Popular Ballads, II, 7.

- 1 TRUE THOMAS lay oer yond grassy bank,
And he beheld a ladie gay,
A ladie that was brisk and bold,
Come riding oer the fernie brae.
- 2 Her skirt was of the grass-green silk,
Her mantel of the velvet fine,

At ilka tett of her horse's mane
Hung fifty silver bells and nine.

- 3 True Thomas he took off his hat,
And bowed him low down till his knee:
'All hail, thou mighty Queen of Heaven!
For your peer on earth I never did see.'

- 4 'O no, O no, True Thomas,' she says,
'That name does not belong to me;
I am but the queen of fair Elfland,
And I'm come here for to visit thee.

* * * * *

- 5 'But ye maun go wi me now, Thomas,
True Thomas, ye maun go wi me,
For ye maun serve me seven years,
Thro weel or wae as may chance to be.'

- 6 She turned about her milk-white steed,
And took True Thomas up behind,
And aye whenever her bridle rang,
The steed flew swifter than the wind.

- 7 For forty days and forty nights
He wade thro red blude to the knee,
And he saw neither sun nor moon,
But heard the roaring of the sea.

- 8 O they rade on, and further on,
Until they came to a garden green:
'Light down, light down, ye ladie free,
Some of that fruit let me pull to thee.'

- 9 'O no, O no, True Thomas,' she says,
'That fruit maun not be touched by thee,
For a' the plagues that are in hell
Light on the fruit of this countrie.

- 10 'But I have a loaf here in my lap,
Likewise a bottle of claret wine,
And now ere we go farther on,
We'll rest a while, and ye may dine.'

- 11 When he had eaten and drunk his fill,
'Lay down your head upon my knee,'
The lady said, 'ere we climb yon hill,
And I will show you fairlies three.

12 'O see not ye yon narrow road,
So thick beset wi thorns and briers?
That is the path of righteousness,
Tho after it but few enquires.

13 'And see not ye that braid braid road,
That lies across yon lillie leven?
That is the path of wickedness,
Tho some call it the road to heaven.

14 'And see not ye that bonny road,
Which winds about the fernie brae?
That is the road to fair Elfland,
Whe[re] you and I this night maun
gae.

15 'But Thomas, ye maun hold your tongue,
Whatever you may hear or see,
For gin ae word you should chance to speak,
You will neer get back to your ain
countrie.'

16 He has gotten a coat of the even cloth,
And a pair of shoes of velvet green,
And till seven years were past and gone
True Thomas on earth was never seen.

'Thomas the Rhymer,' Scotch Ballads,
Materials for Border Minstrelsy, No. 97, Abbotsford; communicated to Sir Walter Scott
by Mrs Christiana Greenwood, London, May 27. 1806 (Letters, I, 189), from the recitation of her mother and of her aunt, both then above sixty, who learned it in their childhood from Kirstan Scot, a very old woman, at Longnew-ton, near Jedburgh.

1 THOMAS lay on the Huntlie bank,
A spying ferlies wi his eee,
And he did spy a lady gay,
Come riding down by the lang lee.

2 Her steed was o the dapple grey,
And at its mane there hung bells nine;
He thought he heard that lady say,
'They gowden bells sall a' be thine.'

3 Her mantle was o velvet green,
And a' set round wi jewels fine;
Her hawk and hounds were at her side,
And her bugle-horn wi gowd did shine.

4 Thomas took aff baith cloak and cap,
For to salute this gay lady:
'O save ye, save ye, fair Queen o
Heavn,
And ay weel met ye save and see!'

5 'I'm no the Queen o Heavn, Thomas;
I never carried my head sae hee;
For I am but a lady gay,
Come out to hunt in my follee.

6 'Now gin ye kiss my mouth, Thomas,
Ye mauna miss my fair bodee;
Then ye may een gang hame and tell
That ye've lain wi a gay ladee.'

7 'O gin I loe a lady fair,
Nae ill tales o her wad I tell,
And it's wi thee I fain wad gae,
Tho it were een to heavn or hell.'

8 'Then harp and carp, Thomas,' she
said,
'Then harp and carp alang wi me;
But it will be seven years and a day
Till ye win back to yere ain coun-trie.'

9 The lady rade, True Thomas ran,
Untill they cam to a water wan;
O it was night, and nae delight,
And Thomas wade aboon the knee.

10 It was dark night, and nae starn-light,
And on they waded lang days three,
And they heard the roaring o a flood,
And Thomas a waefou man was he.

11 Then they rade on, and farther on,
Untill they came to a garden green;
To pu an apple he put up his hand,
For the lack o food he was like to tyne.

12 'O haud yere hand, Thomas,' she cried,
'And let that green flourishing be;
For it's the very fruit o hell,
Beguiles baith man and woman o yere
countrie.

13 'But look afore ye, True Thomas,
And I shall show ye ferlies three;
Yon is the gate leads to our land,
Where thou and I sae soon shall
be.

14 'And dinna ye see yon road, Thomas,
That lies out-owr you lilly lee?
Weel is the man yon gate may gang,
For it leads him straight to the heavens hie.

15 'But do you see yon road, Thomas,
That lies out-owr yon frosty fell?
Ill is the man yon gate may gang,
For it leads him straight to the pit o hell.

16 'Now when ye come to our court,
Thomas,
See that a weel-learnd man ye be;
For they will ask ye, one and all,
But ye maun answer nae but me.

17 'And when nae answer they obtain,
Then will they come and question
me,
And I will answer them again
That I gat yere aith at the Eildon
tree.

* * * * *

18 'Ilka seven years, Thomas,
We pay our teindings unto hell,
And ye're sae leesome and sae strang
That I fear, Thomas, it will be yeresell.'

THE WEE WEE MAN

There is a poem in eight-line stanzas, in a fourteenth-century manuscript (Cotton, Julius, A, v), edited by Wright (Pierre de Langtoft, II, 452), which stands in somewhat the same relation to this ballad as the poem of Thomas of Erceldoune does to the ballad of 'Thomas Rymer' (No. 37), but with the important difference that there is no reason for deriving the ballad from the poem in this instance. There seems to have been an intention to make it, like Thomas of Erceldoune, an introduction to a string of prophecies which follows, but no junction has been effected.

'The Wee Wee Man,' Herd's MSS., I, 153; Herd's Ancient and Modern Scottish Songs, 1776, I, 95.

1 As I was wa'king all alone,
Between a water and a wa,
And there I spy'd a wee wee man,
And he was the least that ere I saw.

2 His legs were scarce a shathmont's
length,
And thick and thimber was his thigh;
Between his brows there was a span,
And between his shoulders there was
three.

3 He took up a meikle stane,
And he flang 't as far as I could see;
Though I had been a Wallace wight,
I couldna liften 't to my knee.

4 'O wee wee man, but thou be strang!
O tell me where thy dwelling be?'
'My dwelling's down at yon bonny
bower;
O will you go with me and see?'

5 On we lap, and awa we rade,
Till we came to yon bonny green;
We lighted down for to bait our horse,
And out there came a lady fine.

6 Four and twenty at her back,
And they were a' clad out in green;
Though the King of Scotland had been
there,
The warst o them might hae been his
queen.

7 On we lap, and awa we rade,
Till we came to yon bonny ha,
Whare the roof was o the beaten gould,
And the floor was o the cristal a'.

8 When we came to the stair-foot,
Ladies were dancing, jimp and sma,
But in the twinkling of an eye,
My wee wee man was clean awa.

TAM LIN

'The Tayl of the 3ong Tamlene' is spoken of as told among a company of shepherds in Vedderburn's Complaint of Scotland, 1549. 'Thom of Lyn' is mentioned as a dance of the same party, a little further on, and 'Young Thomlin' is the name of an air in a medley in Wood's MS., inserted, as David Laing thought, between 1600 and 1620, and printed in Forbes's Cantus, 1666 (Stenhouse's ed. of The Scots Musical Museum, 1853, iv, 440). 'A ballett of Thomalyn' is licensed to Master John Wallye and Mistress Toye in 1538 (Arber, Registers of the Company of Stationers, 1, 22).

This fine ballad stands by itself, and is not, as might have been expected, found in possession of any people but the Scottish. Yet it has connections, through the principal feature in the story, the retransformation of Tam Lin, with Greek popular tradition older than Homer. There is a Cretan fairy tale cited by Bernhard Schmidt (Volkleben der Neugriechen, pp. 115-117) which comes surprisingly near to the principal event of the Scottish ballad. A young peasant, who was a good player on the rote, used to be taken by the nereids into their grotto, for the sake of his music. He fell in love with one of them, and, not knowing how to help himself, had recourse to an old woman of his village. She gave him this advice: that just before cock-crow he should seize his beloved by the hair, and hold on, unterrified, till the cock crew, whatever forms she should assume. The peasant gave good heed, and the next time he was taken into the cave fell to playing, as usual, and the nereids to dancing. But as cock-crow drew nigh, he put down his instrument, sprang upon the object of his passion, and grasped her by her locks. She instantly changed shape; became a dog, a snake, a camel, fire. But he kept his courage and held on, and presently the cock crew, and the nereids vanished, all but one. His love returned to her proper beauty, and went with him to his home. After the lapse of a year she bore a son, but in all this time never uttered a word. The good husband was fain to ask counsel of the old woman again, who told him to heat the oven hot, and say to his wife that if she would not speak he would throw the boy into the oven. He acted upon this prescription; the nereid cried out, 'Let go my child, dog!' tore the infant from his arms, and vanished.

This Cretan tale, recovered from tradition even later than our ballad, repeats all the important circumstances of the forced marriage of Thetis with Peleus (Apollodorus, Bibliotheca, III, 13, 5, 6). The Cretan tale does not differ from the one repeated by Apollodorus from earlier writers a couple of thousand years ago more than two versions of a story gathered from oral tradition in these days are apt to do. Whether it has come down to our time from mouth to mouth through twenty-four centuries or more, or whether, having died out of the popular memory, it was reintroduced through literature, is a question that cannot be decided with certainty; but there will be nothing unlikely in the former supposition to those who bear in mind the tenacity of tradition among people who have never known books.

'Tam Lin,' Johnson's Museum, 1792, p. 423, No. 411. Communicated by Robert Burns.

- 1 O I FORBID you, maidens a',
That wear gowd on your hair,
To come or gae by Carterhaugh,
For young Tam Lin is there.
- 2 There's nane that gaes by Carter-
haugh
But they leave him a wad,
Either their rings, or green mantles,
Or else their maidenhead.
- 3 Janet has kilted her green kirtle
A little aboon her knee,
And she has broded her yellow hair
A little aboon her bree,
And she's awa to Carterhaugh,
As fast as she can hie.
- 4 When she came to Carterhaugh
Tam Lin was at the well,
And there she fand his steed standing,
But away was himsel.
- 5 She had na pu'd a double rose,
A rose but only twa,
Till up then started young Tam Lin,
Says, Lady, thou's pu nae mae.
- 6 Why pu's thou the rose, Janet,
And why breaks thou the wand?
Or why comes thou to Carterhaugh
Withoutten my command?
- 7 'Carterhaugh, it is my ain,
My daddie gave it me;
I'll come and gang by Carterhaugh,
And ask nae leave at thee.'
- * * * * *
- 8 Janet has kilted her green kirtle
A little aboon her knee,
And she has snooded her yellow hair
A little aboon her bree,
And she is to her father's ha,
As fast as she can hie.

- 9 Four and twenty ladies fair
Were playing at the ba,
And out then cam the fair Janet,
Ance the flower amang them a'.
- 10 Four and twenty ladies fair
Were playing at the chess,
And out then cam the fair Janet,
As green as onie glass.
- 11 Out then spak an auld grey knight,
Lay oer the castle wa,
And says, Alas, fair Janet, for thee
But we'll be blamed a'.
- 12 'Haud your tongue, ye auld fac'd
knight,
Some ill death may ye die!
Father my bairn on whom I will,
I'll father nane on thee.'
- 13 Out then spak her father dear,
And he spak meek and mild;
'And ever alas, sweet Janet,' he says,
'I think thou gaes wi child.'
- 14 'If that I gae wi child, father,
Mysel maun bear the blame;
There's neer a laird about your ha
Shall get the bairn's name.
- 15 'If my love were an earthly knight,
As he's an elfin grey,
I wad na gie my ain true-love
For nae lord that ye hae.
- 16 'The steed that my true-love rides on
Is lighter than the wind;
Wi siller he is shod before,
Wi burning gowd behind.'
- 17 Janet has kilted her green kirtle
A little aboon her knee,
And she has snooded her yellow hair
A little aboon her bree,
And she's awa to Carterhaugh,
As fast as she can hie.
- 18 When she cam to Carterhaugh,
Tam Lin was at the well,
And there she fand his steed standing,
But away was himsel.
- 19 She had na pu'd a double rose,
A rose but only twa,
- Till up then started young Tam Lin,
Says, Lady, thou pu's nae mae.
- 20 Why pu's thou the rose, Janet,
Amang the groves sae green,
And a' to kill the bonie babe
That we gat us between?
- 21 'O tell me, tell me, Tam Lin,' she
says,
'For's sake that died on tree,
If eer ye was in holy chapel,
Or christendom did see?'
- 22 'Roxbrugh he was my grandfather,
Took me with him to bide,
And ance it fell upon a day
That wae did me betide.
- 23 'And ance it fell upon a day,
A cauld day and a snell,
When we were frae the hunting come,
That frae my horse I fell;
The Queen o Fairies she caught me,
In yon green hill to dwell.
- 24 'And pleasant is the fairy land,
But, an eerie tale to tell,
Ay at the end of seven years
We pay a tiend to hell;
I am sae fair and fu o flesh,
I'm feard it be mysel.
- 25 'But the night is Halloween, lady,
The morn is Hallowday;
Then win me, win me, an ye will,
For weel I wat ye may.
- 26 'Just at the mirk and midnight hour
The fairy folk will ride,
And they that wad their true-love win,
At Miles Cross they maun bide.'
- 27 'But how shall I thee ken, Tam Lin,
Or how my true-love know,
Amang sae mony unco knights
The like I never saw?'
- 28 'O first let pass the black, lady,
And syne let pass the brown,
But quickly run to the milk-white steed,
Pu ye his rider down.
- 29 'For I'll ride on the milk-white steed,
And ay nearest the town;

Because I was an earthly knight
They gie me that renown.

- 30 'My right hand will be glovd, lady,
My left hand will be bare,
Cockt up shall my bonnet be,
And kaimd down shall my hair,
And thae 's the takens I gie thee,
Nae doubt I will be there.
- 31 'They 'll turn me in your arms, lady,
Into an esk and adder;
But hold me fast, and fear me not,
I am your bairn's father.
- 32 'They 'll turn me to a bear sae grim,
And then a lion bold;
But hold me fast, and fear me not,
As ye shall love your child.
- 33 'Again they 'll turn me in your arms
To a red het gaud of airn;
But hold me fast, and fear me not,
I 'll do to you nae harm.
- 34 'And last they 'll turn me in your arms
Into the burning glead;
Then throw me into well water,
O throw me in wi speed.
- 35 'And then I 'll be your ain true-love,
I 'll turn a naked knight;
Then cover me wi your green mantle,
And cover me out o sight.'
- 36 Gloomy, gloomy was the night,
And eerie was the way,
As fair Jenny in her green mantle
To Miles Cross she did gae.
- 37 About the middle o the night
She heard the bridles ring;
This lady was as glad at that
As any earthly thing.
- 38 First she let the black pass by,
And syne she let the brown;
But quickly she ran to the milk-white
steed,
And pu'd the rider down.
- 39 Sae weel she minded what he did say,
And young Tam Lin did win;
Syne coverd him wi her green mantle,
As blythe 's a bird in spring.

40 Out then spak the Queen o Fairies,
Out of a bush o broom:
'Them that has gotten young Tam Lin
Has gotten a stately groom.'

41 Out then spak the Queen o Fairies,
And an angry woman was she:
'Shame betide her ill-far'd face,
And an ill death may she die,
For she 's taen awa the boniest knight
In a' my companie.

42 'But had I kend, Tam Lin,' she says,
'What now this night I see,
I wad hae taen out thy twa grey een,
And put in twa een o tree.'

THE QUEEN OF ELFAN'S
NOURICE

We learn from this pretty fragment, which, after the nature of the best popular ballad, forces you to chant it and will not be read, that a woman had been carried off, four days after bearing a son, to serve as nurse in the Elf-queen's family. Stanzas 10-12 are out of place here, and properly belong to No. 37. It is well known that elves and water spirits have frequently solicited the help of mortal women at lying-in time.

Skene MS., No. 8, p. 25; Sharpe's Ballad Book, ed. Laing, p. 169.

1 I HEARD a cow low, a bonnie cow low,
An a cow low down in yon glen;
Lang, lang will my young son greet
Or his mither bid him come ben.

2 I heard a cow low, a bonnie cow low,
An a cow low down in yon fauld;
Lang, lang will my young son greet
Or his mither take him frae cauld.

Waken, Queen of Elfan,
An hear your nourice moan.'

4 'O moan ye for your meat,
Or moan ye for your fee,

Or moan ye for the ither bounties
That ladies are wont to gie ?'

5 'I moan na for my meat,
Nor moan I for my fee,
Nor moan I for the ither bounties
That ladies are wont to gie.

6
But I moan for my young son
I left in four nights auld.

7 'I moan na for my meat,
Nor yet for my fee,
But I mourn for Christen land,
It's there I fain would be.'

8 'O nurse my bairn, nourice,' she says,
'Till he stan at your knee,
An ye's win hame to Christen land,
Whar fain it's ye wad be.

9 'O keep my bairn, nourice,
Till he gang by the hauld,
An ye's win hame to your young son
Ye left in four nights auld.'

10 'O nourice lay your head
Upo my knee :
See ye na that narrow road
Up by yon tree ?

11
That's the road the righteous goes,
And that's the road to heaven.

12 'An see na ye that braid road,
Down by yon sunny fell ?
Yon's the road the wicked gae,
An that's the road to hell.'

HIND ETIN

This ballad has suffered severely by the accidents of tradition. A has been not simply damaged by passing through low mouths, but has been worked over by low hands. Something considerable has been lost from the story, and fine romantic features, preserved in Norse and German ballads, have been quite effaced. The etin of the Scottish story is in Norse and German a dwarf-king, elf-king, hill-king, or even a merman. The ballad is still sung in Scandinavia and Germany, but only the Danes have versions taken down before the nineteenth century (see Grundtvig, No. 37). One of the three Danish sixteenth-century versions tells how a knight, expressing a strong desire to obtain a king's daughter, is overheard by a dwarf, who says this shall never be. The dwarf pretends to bargain with the knight for his services in forwarding the knight's object, but consults meanwhile with his mother how he may get the lady for himself. The mother tells him that the princess will go to even-song, and the dwarf writes runes on the way she must go by, which compel her to come to the hill. The dwarf holds out his hand and asks, "How came ye to this strange land?" to which the lady answers mournfully, "I wot never how." The dwarf says, "You have pledged yourself to a knight, and he has betrayed you with runes: this eve you shall be the dwarf's guest." She stayed there the night, and was taken back to her mother in the morning. Eight years went by; her hand was sought by five kings, nine counts, but no one of them could get a good answer. One day her mother asked, "Why are thy cheeks so faded? Why can no one get thee?" She then revealed that she had been beguiled by the dwarf, and had seven sons and a daughter in the hill, none of whom she ever saw. She thought she was alone, but the dwarf-king was listening. He strikes her with an elf-rod, and bids her hie to the hill after him. Late in the evening the poor thing dons her cloak, knocks at her father's door, and says good night to the friends that never will see her again, then sadly turns to the hill. Her seven sons advance to meet her, and ask why she told of their father. Her tears run sore; she gives no answer; she is dead ere midnight.

In another series of Scandinavian versions, which offers the type of the much-corrupted Scottish ballad, the woman has been living eight or nine years in the hill, and has there borne her children. She longs to go home or to church, and permission is granted on condition that she keep silence about the hill-man and observe certain other restrictions. These terms she violates, with the consequence that the hill-man appears and orders her back to his abode. The German versions, from which the Norse are derived, are somewhat nearer to the Scottish.

'Young Akin,' Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, I, 6; Motherwell's MS., p. 554.

- 1 LADY MARGARET sits in her bower door,
Sewing at her silken seam;
She heard a note in Elmond's wood,
And wishd she there had been.
- 2 She loot the seam fa frae her side,
And the needle to her tae,
And she is on to Elmond's wood
As fast as she coud gae.
- 3 She hadna pu'd a nut, a nut,
Nor broken a branch but ane,
Till by it came a young hind chiel,
Says, Lady, lat alane.
- 4 O why pu ye the nut, the nut,
Or why brake ye the tree?
For I am forester o this wood:
Ye shoud spier leave at me.
- 5 'I'll ask leave at no living man,
Nor yet will I at thee;
My father is king oer a' this realm,
This wood belongs to me.'
- 6 She hadna pu'd a nut, a nut,
Nor broken a branch but three,
Till by it came him Young Akin,
And gard her lat them be.
- 7 The highest tree in Elmond's wood,
He's pu'd it by the reet,
And he has built for her a bower,
Near by a hallow seat.
- 8 He's built a bower, made it secure
Wi carbuncle and stane;
Tho travellers were never sae nigh,
Appearance it had nane.
- 9 He's kept her there in Elmond's wood,
For six lang years and one,
Till six pretty sons to him she bear,
And the seventh she's brought home.
- 10 It fell ance upon a day,
This guid lord went from home,
And he is to the hunting gane,
Took wi him his eldest son.
- 11 And when they were on a guid way,
Wi slowly pace did walk,
The boy's heart being something wae,
He thus began to talk:
- 12 'A question I woud ask, father,
Gin ye woudna angry be:'
'Say on, say on, my bonny boy,
Ye'se nae be quarrelld by me.'
- 13 'I see my mither's cheeks aye weet,
I never can see them dry;
And I wonder what aileth my mither,
To mourn continually.'
- 14 'Your mither was a king's daughter,
Sprung frae a high degree,
And she might hae wed some worthy prince,
Had she nae been stown by me.
- 15 'I was her father's cup-bearer,
Just at that fatal time;
I catchd her on a misty night,
Whan summer was in prime.
- 16 'My luve to her was most sincere,
Her luve was great for me,
But when she hardships doth endure,
Her folly she does see.'
- 17 'I'll shoot the buntin o the bush,
The linnet o the tree,
And bring them to my dear mither,
See if she'll merrier be.'
- 18 It fell upo another day,
This guid lord he thought lang,
And he is to the hunting gane,
Took wi him his dog and gun.
- 19 Wi bow and arrow by his side,
He's aff, single, alane,
And left his seven children to stay
Wi their mither at hame.
- 20 'O I will tell to you, mither,
Gin ye wadna angry be:'
'Speak on, speak on, my little wee boy.
Ye'se nae be quarrelld by me.'
- 21 'As we came frae the hynd-hunting,
We heard fine music ring:'
'My blessings on yon, my bonny boy.
I wish I'd been there my lane.'

- 22 He's taen his mither by the hand,
His six brithers also,
And they are on thro Elmond's wood,
As fast as they coud go.
- 23 They wistna weel where they were gaen,
Wi the stratlins o their feet;
They wistna weel where they were gaen,
Till at her father's yate.
- 24 'I hae nae money in my pocket,
But royal rings hae three;
I'll gie them you, my little young son,
And ye'll walk there for me.
- 25 'Ye'll gie the first to the proud porter,
And he will lat you in;
Ye'll gie the next to the butler-boy,
And he will show you ben;
- 26 'Ye'll gie the third to the minstrel
That plays before the king;
He'll play success to the bonny boy
Came thro the wood him lane.'
- 27 He gae the first to the proud porter,
And he opend an let him in;
He gae the next to the butler-boy,
And he has shown him ben;
- 28 He gae the third to the minstrel
That playd before the king;
And he playd success to the bonny boy
Came thro the wood him lane.
- 29 Now when he came before the king,
Fell low down on his knee;
The king he turned round about,
And the saut tear blinded his ee.
- 30 'Win up, win up, my bonny boy,
Gang frae my companie;
Ye look sae like my dear daughter,
My heart will birst in three.'
- 31 'If I look like your dear daughter,
A wonder it is none;
If I look like your dear daughter,
I am her eldest son.'
- 32 'Will ye tell me, ye little wee boy,
Where may my Margaret be?'
'She's just now standing at your yates,
And my six brithers her wi.'

- 33 'O where are all my porter-boys
That I pay meat and fee,
To open my yates baith wide and braid?
Let her come in to me.'
- 34 When she came in before the king,
Fell low down on her knee;
'Win up, win up, my daughter dear,
This day ye'll dine wi me.'
- 35 'Ae bit I canno eat, father,
Nor ae drop can I drink,
Till I see my mither and sister dear,
For lang for them I think.'
- 36 When she came before the queen,
Fell low down on her knee;
'Win up, win up, my daughter dear,
This day ye'se dine wi me.'
- 37 'Ae bit I canno eat, mither,
Nor ae drop can I drink,
Until I see my dear sister,
For lang for her I think.'
- 38 When that these two sisters met,
She haild her courteouslie;
'Come ben, come ben, my sister dear,
This day ye'se dine wi me.'
- 39 'Ae bit I canno eat, sister,
Nor ae drop can I drink,
Until I see my dear husband,
For lang for him I think.'
- 40 'O where are all my rangers bold
That I pay meat and fee,
To search the forest far an wide,
And bring Akin to me?'
- 41 Out it speaks the little wee boy:
Na, na, this maunna be;
Without ye grant a free pardon,
I hope ye'll nae him see.
- 42 'O here I grant a free pardon,
Well seald by my own han;
Ye may make search for Young Akin,
As soon as ever you can.'
- 43 They searchd the country wide and braid,
The forests far and near,
And found him into Elmond's wood,
Tearing his yellow hair.

- 44 'Win up, win up now, Young Akin,
Win up, and boun wi me;
We're messengers come from the
court,
The king wants you to see.'
- 45 'O lat him take frae me my head,
Or hang me ou a tree;
For since I've lost my dear lady,
Life's no pleasure to me.'
- 46 'Your head will nae be touchd, Akin,
Nor hangd upon a tree;
Your lady's in her father's court,
And all he wants is thee.'
- 47 When he came in before the king,
Fell low down on his knee;
'Win up, win up now, Young Akin,
This day ye'se dine wi me.'
- 48 But as they were at dinner set,
The boy asked a boun:
'I wish we were in the good church,
For to get christendoun.'
- 49 'We hae lived in guid green wood
This seven years and ane;
But a' this time, since eer I mind,
Was never a church within.'
- 50 'Your asking's nae sae great, my boy,
But granted it shall be;
This day to guid church ye shall gang,
And your mither shall gang you wi.'
- 51 When unto the guid church she came,
She at the door did stan;
She was sae sair sunk down wi shame,
She coudna come farer ben.
- 52 Then out it speaks the parish priest,
And a sweet smile gae he:
'Come ben, come ben, my lily flower,
Present your babes to me.'
- 53 Charles, Vincent, Sam and Dick,
And likewise James and John;
They calld the eldest Young Akin,
Which was his father's name.
- 54 Then they staid in the royal court,
And livd wi mirth and glee,
And when her father was decaasd,
Heir of the crown was she.

'Hynde Etin,' Kinloch's Ancient Scottish
Ballads, p. 228.

- 1 MAY MARGRET stood in her bouer door,
Kaining down her yellow hair;
She spied some nuts growin in the wud,
And wishd that she was there.
- 2 She has plaited her yellow locks
A little abune her bree,
And she has kilted her petticoats
A little below her knee,
And she's aff to Mulberry wud,
As fast as she could gae.
- 3 She had na pu'd a nut, a nut,
A nut but barely ane,
Till up started the Hynde Etin,
Says, Lady, let thae alane!
- 4 'Mulberry wuds are a' my ain;
My father gied them me,
To sport and play when I thought lang;
And they sall na be tane by thee.'
- 5 And ae she pu'd the tither berrie,
Na thinking o the skaith,
And said, To wrang ye, Hynde Etin,
I wad be unco laith.
- 6 But he has tane her by the yellow locks,
And tied her till a tree,
And said, For slichting my commands,
An ill death sall ye dree.
- 7 He pu'd a tree out o the wud,
The biggest that was there,
And he howkit a cave monie fathoms
deep,
And put May Margret there.
- 8 'Now rest ye there, ye saucie may;
My wuds are free for thee;
And gif I tak ye to mysell,
The better ye'll like me.'
- 9 Na rest, na rest May Margret took,
Sleep she got never nane;
Her back lay on the cauld, cauld floor,
Her head upon a stane.
- 10 'O tak me out,' May Margret cried,
'O tak me hame to thee,

And I sall be your bounden page
Until the day I dee.'

- 11 He took her out o the dungeon deep,
And awa wi him she's gane;
But sad was the day an earl's dochter
Gaed hame wi Hynde Etin.

* * * *

- 12 It fell out ance upon a day
Hynde Etin's to the hunting gane,
And he has tane wi him his eldest son,
For to carry his game.

- 13 'O I wad ask ye something, father,
An ye wadna angry be;
'Ask on, ask on, my eldest son,
Ask onie thing at me.'

- 14 'My mother's cheeks are aft times
weet,
Alas! they are seldom dry;
'Na wonder, na wonder, my eldest son,
Tho she should brast and die.

- 15 'For your mother was an earl's dochter,
Of noble birth and fame,
And now she's wife o Hynde Etin,
Wha neer got christendame.

- 16 'But we'll shoot the laverock in the lift,
The buntlin on the tree,
And ye'll tak them hame to your mother,
And see if she'll comforted be.'

- 17 'I wad ask ye something, mother,
An ye wadna angry be;
'Ask on, ask on, my eldest son,

- 18 'Your cheeks they are aft times weet,
Alas! they're seldom dry;
'Na wonder, na wonder, my eldest son,
Tho I should brast and die.

- 19 'For I was ance an earl's dochter,
Of noble birth and fame,
And now I am the wife of Hynde Etin,
Wha neer got christendame.'

CLERK COLVILL

All the English versions are deplorably imperfect. Clerk Colvill is not, as his representative is or may be in other ballads, the guiltless and guileless object of the love or envy of a water-sprite or elf. It is clear that before his marriage with his gay lady he had been in the habit of resorting to this mermaid, and equally clear, from the impatient answer which he renders his dame, that he means to visit her again. His death is the natural penalty of his desertion of the water-nymph; for no point is better established than the fatal consequences of inconstancy in such connections. His history, were it fully told, would closely resemble that of the Knight of Staufenberg, as narrated in a German poem of about the year 1310. Clerk Colvill and the mermaid are represented by Sir Oluf and an elf in Scandinavian ballads to the number of about seventy. The oldest of these is derived from a Danish manuscript of 1550, two centuries and a half later than the Staufenberg poem, but two earlier than Clerk Colvill, the oldest ballad outside of the Scandinavian series (see Grundtvig, No. 47). The Breton 'Seigneur Nann' is closely akin to the Scandinavian versions, and the ballad has spread, apparently from Brittany, over all France ('Jean Renaud').

'Clark Colven,' from a transcript of No. 13 of William Tytler's Brown MS.

- 1 CLARK COLVEN and his gay ladie,
As they walked to yon garden green,
A belt about her middle gimp,
Which cost Clark Colven crowns fifteen:

- 2 'O hearken weel now, my good lord,
O hearken weel to what I say;
When ye gang to the wall o Stream,
O gang nae neer the well-fared may.'

- 3 'O haud your tongue, my gay ladie,
Tak nae sic care o me;
For I nae saw a fair woman
I like so well as thee.'

- 4 He mounted on his berry-brown steed,
And merry, merry rade he on,
Till he came to the wall o Stream,
And there he saw the mermaiden.

5 'Ye wash, ye wash, ye bonny may,
And ay's ye wash your sark o silk:'
'It's a' for you, ye gentle knight,
My skin is whiter than the milk.'

6 He's taen her by the milk-white hand,
He's taen her by the sleeve sae green,
And he's forgotten his gay ladie,
And away with the fair maiden.

* * * * *

7 'Ohon, alas!' says Clark Colven,
'And aye sae sair's I mean my head!'
And merrily leugh the mermaiden,
'O win on till you be dead.'

8 'But out ye tak your little pen-knife,
And frae my sark ye shear a gare;
Row that about your lovely head,
And the pain ye'll never feel nae mair.'

9 Out he has taen his little pen-knife,
And frae her sark he's shorn a gare,
Rowed that about his lovely head,
But the pain increased mair and mair.

10 'Ohon, alas!' says Clark Colven,
'An aye sae sair's I mean my head!'
And merrily laughd the mermaiden,
'It will ay be war till ye be dead.'

11 Then out he drew his trusty blade,
And thought wi it to be her dead,
But she's become a fish again,
And merrily sprang into the feed.

12 He's mounted on his berry-brown steed,
And dowy, dowy rade he home,
And heavily, heavily lighted down
When to his ladie's bower-door he came.

13 'Oh, mither, mither, mak my bed,
And, gentle ladie, lay me down;
Oh, brither, brither, unbend my bow,
'T will never be bent by me again.'

14 His mither she has made his bed,
His gentle ladie laid him down,
His brither he has unbent his bow,
'T was never bent by him again.

'Clerk Colvill, or, The Mermaid,' Herd's Ancient and Modern Scots Songs, 1769, p. 302;
ed. 1776, I, 161.

1 CLERK COLVILL and his lusty dame
Were walking in the garden green;
The belt around her stately waist
Cost Clerk Colvill of pounds fifteen.

2 'O promise me now, Clerk Colvill,
Or it will cost ye muckle strife,
Ride never by the wells of Slane,
If ye wad live and brook your life.'

3 'Now speak nae mair, my lusty dame,
Now speak nae mair of that to me;
Did I neer see a fair woman,
But I wad sin with her body?'

4 He's taen leave o his gay lady,
Nought minding what his lady said,
And he's rode by the wells of Slane,
Where washing was a bonny maid.

5 'Wash on, wash on, my bonny maid,
That wash sae clean your sark of silk;'
'And weel fa you, fair gentleman,
Your body whiter than the milk.'

* * * * *

6 Then loud, loud cry'd the Clerk Colvill,
'O my head it pains me sair;'
'Then take, then take,' the maiden said,
'And frae my sark you'll cut a gare.'

7 Then she's gied him a little bane-knife,
And frae her sark he cut a share;
She's ty'd it round his whey-white face,
But ay his head it aaked mair.

8 Then louder cry'd the Clerk Colvill,
'O sairer, sairer akes my head;'
'And sairer, sairer ever will,'
The maiden crys, 'till you be dead.'

9 Out then he drew his shining blade,
Thinking to stick her where she stood,
But she was vanishd to a fish,
And swam far off, a fair mermaid.

10 'O mother, mother, braid my hair;
My lusty lady, make my bed;
O brother, take my sword and spear,
For I have seen the false mermaid.'

THE BROOMFIELD HILL

A song of 'Brume, brume on hil' is named in The Complaint of Scotland, 1549 (ed. Murray, p. 64). The foot of the song is sung in Wager's comedy "The Longer thou Livest, the More Fool thou art" (about 1568), as follows: —

Brome, brome on hill,
The gentle brome on hill, hill,
Brome, brome on Hive hill,
The gentle brome on Hive hill,
The brome stands on Hive hill a.

If "Hive Hill" in A, st. 8, is a genuine traditional reading, the song and the ballad are doubtless identical; but we cannot be quite sure of this stanza.

The main features of the story are widely known, in ballads, romances, and tales. The magic may be vulgarized into a sleeping draught (as in the Pecorone of Ser Giovanni Fiorentino, iv, 1), and the tables are sometimes turned on the maiden.

A

'The Broomfield Hill.' a. Scott's Minstrelsy, III, 271, ed. 1803. b. Sts. 8-14; the same, II, 229, ed. 1802.

- 1 THERE was a knight and a lady bright,
Had a true tryste at the broom;
The ane gaed early in the morning,
The other in the afternoon.
- 2 And ay she sat in her mother's bower
door,
And ay she made her mane:
'O whether should I gang to the Broomfield Hill,
Or should I stay at hame?
- 3 'For if I gang to the Broomfield Hill,
My maidenhead is gone;
And if I chance to stay at hame,
My love will ca me mansworn.'
- 4 Up then spake a witch-woman,
Ay from the room aboon:
'O ye may gang to the Broomfield Hill,
And yet come maiden hame.
- 5 'For when ye gang to the Broomfield
Hill,
Ye'll find your love asleep,

With a silver belt about his head,
And a broom-cow at his feet.

- 6 'Take ye the blossom of the broom,
The blossom it smells sweet,
And strew it at your true-love's head,
And likewise at his feet.
- 7 'Take ye the rings off your fingers,
Put them on his right hand,
To let him know, when he doth awake,
His love was at his command.'
- 8 She pu'd the broom flower on Hive
Hill,
And strewd on's white hals-bane,
And that was to be wittering true
That maiden she had gane.
- 9 'O where were ye, my milk-white steed,
That I hae coft sae dear,
That wadna watch and waken me
When there was maiden here?'
- 10 'I stamped wi my foot, master,
And gard my bridle ring,
But na kin thing wald waken ye,
Till she was past and gane.'
- 11 'And wae betide ye, my gay goss-hawk,
That I did love sae dear,
That wadna watch and waken me
When there was maiden here.'
- 12 'I clapped wi my wings, master,
And aye my bells I rang,
And aye cry'd, Waken, waken, master,
Before the ladye gang.'
- 13 'But haste and haste, my gude white
steed,
To come the maiden till,
Or a' the birds of gude green wood
Of your flesh shall have their fill.'
- 14 'Ye need na burst your gude white
steed
Wi racing oer the howm;
Nae bird flies faster through the wood,
Than she fled through the broom.'

B

'I'll wager, I'll wager,' etc., Herd, Ancient and Modern Scots Songs, 1769, p. 310.

1 'I'll wager, I'll wager, I'll wager with you
Five hundred merks and ten,
That a maid shanae go to yon bonny
green wood,
And a maiden return agen.'

2 'I'll wager, I'll wager, I'll wager with
you
Five hundred merks and ten,
That a maid shall go to you bonny green
wood,
And a maiden return agen.'

* * * * *

3 She's pu'd the blooms aff the broom-
bush,
And strewd them on 's white hass-bane:
'This is a sign whereby you may know
That a maiden was here, but she's
gane.'

4 'O where was you, my good gray steed,
That I hae loed sae dear?
O why did you not awaken me
When my true love was here?'

5 'I stamped with my foot, master,
And gard my bridle ring,
But you wadnae waken from your sleep
Till your love was past and gane.'

6 'Now I may sing as dreary a sang
As the bird sung on the brier,
For my true love is far removd,
And I'll neer see her mair.'

THE TWA MAGICIANS

This is a base-born cousin of a pretty ballad known over all Southern Europe, and elsewhere (as among the Slavs), but in especially graceful forms in France. The French ballad generally begins with a young man's announcing that he has won a mistress, and intends to pay her a visit on Sunday, or to give her an aubade. She declines his visit or his music. To avoid him she will turn, for example, into a rose; then he will turn bee, and kiss her. She will turn quail; he sportsman, and bag her. She will turn carp; he angler, and catch her. She will turn hare; and he hound. She will turn nun; he priest, and confess her day and night. She will fall sick; he will watch with her, or be her doctor. She will become a star; he a cloud, and muffle her. She will die; he will turn earth, into which they will put her, or St Peter, and receive her into Paradise. In the end she says, "Since you are inevitable, you may as well have me as another;" or more complaisantly, "Je me donnerai à toi, puisque tu m'aimes tant."

There can be little doubt that the ballads are derived, or take their hint, from popular tales, in which (1) a youth and maid, pursued by a sorcerer, fiend, giant, ogre, are transformed by the magical powers of one or the other into such shapes as enable them to elude, and finally to escape, apprehension; or (2) a young fellow, who has been apprenticed to a sorcerer, fiend, etc., and has acquired the black art by surreptitious reading in his master's books, being pursued, as before, assumes a variety of forms, and his master others, adapted to the destruction of his intended victim, until the tables are turned by the fugitive's taking on the stronger figure and despatching his adversary.

Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, i, 24; Motherwell's MS., p. 570.

1 THE lady stands in her bower door,
As straight as willow wand;
The blacksmith stood a little forebye,
Wi hammer in his hand.

2 'Weel may ye dress ye, lady fair,
Into your robes o red;
Before the morn at this same time,
I'll gain your maidenhead.'

3 'Awa, awa, ye coal-black smith,
Woud ye do me the wrang
To think to gain my maidenhead,
That I hae kept sae lang!'

4 Then she has hadden up her hand,
And she sware by the mold,
'I wudna be a blacksmith's wife
For the full o a chest o gold.

5 'I'd rather I were dead and gone,
And my body laid in grave,
Ere a rusty stock o coal-black smith
My maidenhead shoud have.'

6 But he has hadden up his hand,
And he sware by the mass,
'I'll cause ye be my light leman
For the hauf o that and less.'

O bide, lady, bide,
And aye he bade her bide;
The rusty smith your leman shall
be,
For a' your muckle pride.

7 Then she became a turtle dow,
To fly up in the air,
And he became another dow,
And they flew pair and pair.
O bide, lady, bide, &c.

8 She turnd hersell into an eel,
To swim into yon burn,
And he became a speckled trout,
To gie the eel a turn.
O bide, lady, bide, &c.

9 Then she became a duck, a duck,
To puddle in a peel,
And he became a rose-kaimd drake,
To gie the duck a dreel.
O bide, lady, bide, &c.

10 She turnd hersell into a hare,
To rin upon yon hill,
And he became a gude grey-hound,
And boldly he did fill.
O bide, lady, bide, &c.

11 Then she became a gay grey mare,
And stood in yonder slack,
And he became a gilt saddle,
And sat upon her back.
Was she wae, he held her sae,
And still he bade her bide;
The rusty smith her leman was,
For a' her muckle pride.

12 Then she became a het girdle,
And he became a cake,
And a' the ways she turnd hersell,
The blacksmith was her make.
Was she wae, &c.

13 She turnd hersell into a ship,
To sail out ower the flood;
He ca'ed a nail intill her tail,
And syne the ship she stood.
Was she wae, &c.

14 Then she became a silken plaid,
And stretchd upon a bed,
And he became a green covering,
And gaird her maidenhead.
Was she wae, &c.

KING JOHN AND THE BISHOP

Version B was printed for P. Brooksby, who published from 1672 to 1695. It was "allowed" by Roger L'Estrange, who was licenser from 1663 to 1685. The title of B is 'A New Ballad of King John and the Abbot of Canterbury. To the Tune of The King and the Lord Abbot.' The older ballad seems not to have come down.

The story is apparently of Oriental origin. The oldest known version was discovered by Professor C. C. Torrey in the Conquest of Egypt, an Arabic historical work of about 850 A. D., and is thought by him to be "a genuine bit of Coptic folk-lore," current in Egypt long before the Arab invasion in the seventh century. In this tale a wicked king gives his vezirs certain questions: if they answer them, he promises to increase their pay; if they fail, he will cut off their heads. They are assisted by a potter, who disguises himself as a vezir and tricks the king (Journal of the American Oriental Society, xx, 209). There are a multitude of other versions, Oriental and Occidental. Among those which resemble the ballad closely may be mentioned the Middle High German tale of Amis and the Bishop, in the Stricker's Pfaffe Amis (about 1236), and the fourth novella of Sacchetti. In the latter we have the prizing of the questioner at twenty-nine deniers, as in the English. Riddle stories in which a forfeit is to be paid by the vanquished party are a very extensive class. The oldest example is that of Samson's riddle in Judges xiv, 12 ff. Death is often the penalty, as in the Poetic Edda (Vafþrúðnismál).

'Kinge John and the Bishoppe,' Percy MS., p. 184; Hales and Furnivall, i, 508.

1 Off an ancient story Ile tell you anon,
Of a notable prince that was called King
Iohn,
In England was borne, with maine and
with might;
Hee did much wrong and mainteined litle right.

2 This noble prince was vexed in veretye,
For he was angry with the Bishopp of Canterbury;
Ffor his house-keeping and his good
cheere,
Thé rode post for him, as you shall heare.

3 They rode post for him verry hastilye;
The king sayd the bishopp kept a better
house then hee:
A hundred men euen, as I [have heard]
say,
The bishopp kept in his house euerye
day,
And fifty gold chaines, without any
doubt,
In veluett coates waited the bishopp
about.

4 The bishopp, he came to the court anon,
Before his prince that was called King
Iohn.
As soone as the bishopp the king did
see,
'O,' quoth the king, 'bishopp, thow art
welcome to mee.
There is noe man soe welcome to towne
As thou that workes treason against my crowne.'

5 'My leege,' quoth the bishopp, 'I wold
it were knowne
I spend, your grace, nothing but that
that's my owne;
I trust your grace will doe me noe
deare
For spending my owne trew gotten geere.'

6 'Yes,' quoth the king, 'bishopp, thou must needs dye,
Except thou can answere mee questions
three;
Thy head shalbe smitten quite from thy bodye,
And all thy liuing remayne vnto mee.

7 'First,' quoth the king, 'tell me in this steade,
With this crowne of gold heere vpon
my head,
Amongst my nobilitye, with ioy and
much mirth,
Lett me know within one penny what
I am worth.

8 'Secondlye, tell me without any dowbt
How soone I may goe the whole world
about;
And thirdly, tell mee or euer I stinte,
What is the thing, bishopp, that I doe
thinke.

Twenty dayes pardon thoust haue
trulye,
And come againe and answere mee.'

9 The bishopp bade the king god night att
a word;
He rode betwixt Cambridge and Oxen-
ford,
But neuer a doctor there was soe wise
Cold shew him these questions or enterprise.

10 Wherewith the bishopp was nothing
gladd,
But in his hart was heauy and sadd,
And byed him home to a house in the
countrie,
To ease some part of his melanchollye.

11 His halfe-brother dwelt there, was feirce and fell,
Noe better but a shepard to the bish-
oppe himsell;
The shepard came to the bishopp anon,
Saying, My Lord, you are welcome
home!

12 'What ayles you,' quoth the shepard,
'that you are soe sadd,
And had wonte to haue beene soe merry and gladd?'
'Nothing,' quoth the bishopp, 'I ayle
att this time;
Will not thee availe to know, brother mine.'

13 'Brother,' quoth the shepard, 'you
haue heard itt,
That a ffoole may teach a wisemane
witt;
Say me therfore whatsoener you will,
And if I doe you noe good, Ile doe you noe ill.'

14 Quoth the bishop: I haue beene att the court anon,
Before my prince is called King Iohn,
And there he hath charged mee
Against his crowne with traitorye.

15 If I cannott answer his misterye,
Three questions hee hath propounded to
mee,
He will hane my land soe faire and free,
And alsoe the head from my bodye.

16 The first question was, to tell him in that stead,
With the crowne of gold vpon his head,
Amongst his nobilitye, with ioy and
much mirth,
To lett him know within one peny
what hee is worth.

17 And secondlye, to tell him with-out any
doubt
How soone he may goe the whole world
about;
And thirdlye, to tell him, or ere I stint,
What is the thinge that he does thinke.

18 'Brother,' quoth the shepard, 'you are a man of learninge;
What neede you stand in doubt of soe
small a thinge?
Lend me,' quoth the shepard, 'your ministers apparrell,
He ryde to the court and answere your quarrell.

19 'Lend me your serving men, say me
not nay,
With all your best horssees that ryd on the way;
He to the court, this matter to stay;
He speake with King Iohn and heare
what heele say.'

20 The bishopp with speed prepared then
To sett forth the shepard with horsse
and man;
The shepard was liuely without any
doubt;
I wott a royall compaigne came to the
court.

21 The shepard hee came to the court anon
Before [his] prince that was called King Iohn.
As soone as the king the shepard did see,
'O,' quoth the king, 'bishopp, thou art
welcome to me.'
The shepard was soe like the bishopp
his brother,
The king cold not know the one from the other.

22 Quoth the king, Bishopp, thou art welcome to me
If thou can answer me my questions
three.

Said the shepard, If it please your
grace,
Show mee what the first quest[i]on
was.

23 'First,' quoth the king, 'tell mee in this stead,
With the crowne of gold vpon my head,
Amongst my nobilitye, with ioy and
much mirth,
Within one pennye what I am worth.'

24 Quoth the shepard, To make your grace
noe offence,
I thinke you are worth nine and twenty pence;
For our Lord Iesus, that bought vs all,
For thirty pence was sold into thrall
Amongst the cursed Iewes, as I to you doe shewe;
But I know Christ was one peny better
then you.

25 Then the king laught, and swore by St
Andrew
He was not thought to bee of such a small value.
'Secondlye, tell mee with-out any doubt
How soone I may goe the world round
about.'

26 Saies the shepard, It is noe time with your grace to scorne,
But rise betime with the sun in the morne,
And follow his course till his vprising,
And then you may know without any leasing.

27 And this [to] your grace shall prone the same,
You are come to the same place from whence you came;
[In] twenty-four houres, with-out any
doubt,
Your grace may the world goe round
about;
The world round about, euen as I doe
say,
If with the sun you can goe the next
way.

28 'And thirdlye tell me or euer I stint,
What is the thing, bishoppe, that I doe
thinke.'

'That shall I doe,' quoth the shepard;
'for veretye,
You thinke I am the bishopp of Canterburye.'

29 'Why, art not thou? the truth tell to
me;
For I doe thinke soe,' quoth the king,
'by St Marye.'
'Not soe,' quoth the shepard; 'the truth shalbe knowne,
I am his poore shepard; my brother is att home.'

30 'Why,' quoth the king, 'if itt soe bee,
Ile make thee bishopp here to mee.'
'Noe, Sir,' quoth the shepard, 'I pray
you be still,
For Ile not bee bishop but against my
will;
For I am not fitt for any such deede,
For I can neither write nor reede.'

31 'Why then,' quoth the king, 'Ile giue thee cleere
A pattent of three hundred pound a
yeere;
That I will giue thee franke and free;
Take thee that, shepard, for coming to
me.

32 'Free pardon Ile giue,' the kings grace
said,
'To saue the bishopp, his land and his
head;
With him nor thee Ile be nothing
wrath;
Here is the pardon for him and thee
both.'

33 Then the shepard he had noe more to
say,
But tooke the pardon and rode his
way:
When he came to the bishopps place,
The bishopp asket anon how all things
was.

34 'Brother,' quoth the shepard, 'I haue
well sped,
For I haue saued both your land and
your head;
The king with you is nothing wrath,
For heere is the pardon for you and mee
both.'

35 Then the bishopes hart was of a merry
cheere:

'Brother, thy paines Ile quitt them
cleare;
For I will giue thee a patent to thee
and to thine
Of fifty pound a yeere, land good and fine.'

36
'I will to thee noe longer croche nor creepe,
Nor Ile serue thee noe more to keepe thy sheepe.'

37 Whereeuer wist you shepard before,
That had in his head witt such store
To pleasure a bishopp in such a like case,
To answer three questions to the kings
grace?
Whereeuer wist you shepard gett cleare
Three hundred and fifty pound a yeere?

38 I neuer hard of his fellow before,
Nor I neuer shall: now I need to say
noe more.
I neuer knew shepard that gott such a liuinge
But David, the shepard, that was a
king.

B

'King John and the Abbot of Canterbury,' broadside, printed for P. Brooksby, at the Golden Ball in Pye-corner (1672-95).

1 I'LL tell you a story, a story anon,
Of a noble prince, and his name was
King John;
For he was a prince, and a prince of great might,
He held up great wrongs, he put down great right.
Derry down, down hey, derry down.

2 I'll tell you a story, a story so merry,
Concerning the Abbot of Canterbury,
And of his house-keeping and high renown,
Which made him resort to fair London
town.

3 'How now, father abbot? 'Tis told unto me

- That thou keepest a far better house
than I;
And for [thy] house-keeping and high
renown,
I fear thou has treason against my crown.'
- 4 'I hope, my liege, that you owe me no
grudge
For spending of my true-gotten goods.'
'If thou dost not answer me questions
three,
Thy head shall be taken from thy body.'
- 5 'When I am set so high on my steed,
With my crown of gold upon my head,
Amongst all my nobility, with joy and
much mirth,
Thou must tell me to one penny what I am worth.'
- 6 'And the next question you must not
flout,
How long I shall be riding the world
about;
And the third question thou must not shrink,
But tell to me truly what I do think.'
- 7 'O these are hard questions for my shallow wit,
For I cannot answer your grace as yet;
But if you will give me but three days
space,
I'll do my endeavor to answer your
grace.'
- 8 'O three days space I will thee give,
For that is the longest day thou hast to live.
And if thou dost not answer these questions right,
Thy head shall be taken from thy body quite.'
- 9 And as the shepherd was going to his
fold,
He spy'd the old abbot come riding
along:
'How now, master abbot? You 'r welcome home;
What news have you brought from good
King John?'
- 10 'Sad news, sad news I have thee to give,
For I have but three days space for to
live;
If I do not answer him questions three,
My head will be taken from my body.'
- 11 'When he is set so high on his steed,
With his crown of gold upon his head,
Amongst all his nobility, with joy and
much mirth,
I must tell him to one penny what he is worth.'
- 12 'And the next question I must not flout,
How long he shall be riding the world
about;
And the third question I must not shrink,
But tell him truly what he does think.'
- 13 'O master, did you never hear it yet,
That a fool may learn a wiseman wit?
Lend me but your horse and your apparel,
I'll ride to fair London and answer the quarrel.'
- 14 'Now I am set so high on my steed,
With my crown of gold upon my head,
Amongst all my nobility, with joy and
much mirth,
Now tell me to one penny what I am
worth.'
- 15 'For thirty pence our Saviour was sold,
Amongst the false Jews, as you have been told,
And nine and twenty's the worth of thee,
For I think thou are one penny worser than he.'
- 16 'And the next question thou mayst not
flout;
How long I shall be riding the world
about.'
'You must rise with the sun, and ride
with the same,
Until the next morning he rises again,
And then I am sure you will make no
doubt
But in twenty-four hours you'll ride it
about.'
- 17 'And the third question you must not
shrink,
But tell me truly what I do think.'

'All that I can do, and 't will make you merry;
For you think I'm the Abbot of Canterbury,
But I'm his poor shepherd, as you may see,
And am come to beg pardon for he and for me.'

18 The king he turned him about and did smile,
Saying, Thou shalt be the abbot the other while:
'O no, my grace, there is no such need,
For I can neither write nor read.'

19 'Then four pounds a week will I give unto thee
For this merry jest thou hast told unto me;
And tell the old abbot, when thou comest home,
Thou hast brought him a pardon from good King John.'

CAPTAIN WEDDERBURN'S COURTSHIP

'Captain Wedderburn's Courtship' is a counterpart of the ballad in which a maid wins a husband by guessing riddles (cf. Nos. 1 and 2). The ingenious suitor, though not so favorite a subject as the clever maid, is of an old and celebrated family. We find him in the Gesta Romanorum (cap. 70, Oesterley, p. 383), in Apollonius of Tyre (which has been carried back to the third or fourth century), in a Persian poem by Nisami (died 1180), and in the Persian story of Prince Calaf in Pétis de La Croix's Thousand and One Days. On Prince Calaf is founded Carlo Gozzi's play of La Turandot, now best known through Schiller's translation. There are also parallels in European popular tales. The Elder Edda presents us with a similar story in the lay of Alvíss.

a. 'I'll no ly neist the wa,' Herd's MS., I, 161. b. The same, II, 100.

1 THE laird of Bristoll's daughter was in the woods walking,
And by came Captain Wetherbourn, a servant to the king;

And he said to his livery man, Wer 't not against the law,
I would tak her to mine ain bed, and lay her neist the wa.

2 'I'm into my father's woods, amongst my father's trees,
O kind sir, let mee walk alane, O kind sir, if you please;
The butler's bell it will be rung, and I'll be mist awa;
I'll lye into mine ain bed, neither at stock nor wa.'

3 'O my bonny lady, the bed it's not be mine,
For I'll command my servants for to call it thine;
The hangings are silk satin, the sheets are holland sma,
And we's baith lye in ae bed, but you's lye neist the wa.

4 'And so, my bonny lady, — I do not know your name, —
But my name's Captain Wetherburn, and I'm a man of fame;
Tho your father and a' his men were here, I would na stand in awe
To tak you to mine ain bed, and lay you neist the wa.

5 'Oh my bonny, bonny lady, if you'll gie me your hand,
You shall hae drums and trumpets to sound at your command;
Wi fifty men to guard you, sae weel their swords can dra,
And wee's baith lye in ae bed, but you's lye neist the wa.'

6 He's mounted her upon a steid, behind his gentleman,
And he himself did walk afoot, to had his lady on,
With his hand about her midle sae jimp, for fear that she should fa;
She man lye in his bed, but she'll not lye neist the wa.

7 He's taen her into Edinburgh, his land-lady cam ben:
'And monny bonny ladys in Edinburgh hae I seen,

But the like of this fine creature my eyes they never sa;
'O dame bring ben a down-bed, for she's lye neist the wa.'

8 'Hold your tongue, young man,' she said, 'and dinna trouble me,
Unless you get to my supper, and that is dishes three;
Dishes three to my supper, tho I eat
nane at a',
Before I lye in your bed, but I winna
lye neist the wa.'

9 'You maun get to my supper a cherry
but a stane,
And you man get to my supper a capon
but a bane,
And you man get a gentle bird that flies
wanting the ga,
Before I lye in your bed, but I'll not
lye neist the wa.'

10 'A cherry whan in blossom is a cherry
but a stane;
A capon when he's in the egg canna
hae a bane;
The dow it is a gentle bird that flies
wanting the ga;
And ye man lye in my bed, between me
and the wa.'

11 'Hold your tongue, young man,' she said, 'and dinna me perplex,
Unless you tell me questions, and that is questions six;
Tell me them as I shall ask them, and
that is twa by twa,
Before I lye in your bed, but I'll not
lye neist the wa.'

12 'What is greener than the grass, what's higher than the tree?
What's war than a woman's wiss, what's deeper than the sea?
What bird sings first, and whereupon
the dew down first does fa?
Before I lye in your bed, but I'll not
lye neist the wa.'

13 'Virgus is greener than the grass, heaven's higher than the tree;
The deil's war than a woman's wish,
hell's deeper than the sea;

The cock sings first, on the Sugar Loaf
the dew down first does fa;
And ye man lye in my bed, betweest me
and the wa.'

14 'Hold your tongue, young man,' she said, 'I pray you give it oer,
Unless you tell me questions, and that is questions four;
Tell me them as I shall ask them, and
that is twa by twa,
Before I lye in your bed, but I winna
lye neist the wa.'

15 'You man get to me a plumb that does in winter grow;
And likewise a silk mantle that never
waft gaed thro;
A sparrow's horn, a priest unborn, this night to join us twa,
Before I lye in your bed, but I winna
lye neist the wa.'

16 'There is a plumb in my father's yeard that does in winter grow;
Likewise he has a silk mantle that never
waft gaed thro;
A sparrow's horn, it may be found,
there's ane in every tae,
There's ane upo the mouth of him, perhaps there may be twa.'

17 'The priest is standing at the door, just ready to come in;
Nae man could sae that he was born, to lie it is a sin;
For a wild boar bored his mother's side,
he out of it did fa;
And you man lye in my bed, between me and the wa.'

18 Little kent Grizey Sinclair, that morning when she raise,
'T was to be the hindermost of a' her single days;
For now she's Captain Wetherburn's wife, a man she never saw,
And she man lye in his bed, but she'll not lye neist the wa.'

1 THE Lord of Rosslyn's daughter gaed
through the wud her lane,
And there she met Captain Wedderburn, a servant to the king.
He said unto his livery-man, Were 't na
agen the law,
I wad tak her to my ain bed, and lay her at the wa.

2 'I'm walking here my lane,' she says,
'amang my father's trees;
And ye may lat me walk my lane, kind sir, now gin ye please.
The supper-bell it will be rung, and I'll be missd awa;
Sae I'll na lie in your bed, at neither
stock nor wa.'

3 He said, My pretty lady, I pray lend me your hand,
And ye'll hae drums and trumpets always at your command;
And fifty men to guard ye wi, that weel
their swords can draw;
Sae we'll baith lie in ae bed, and ye'll
lie at the wa.

4 'Haud awa frae me, kind sir, I pray let go my hand;
The supper-bell it will be rung, nae
langer mann I stand.
My father he'll na supper tak, gif I be missd awa;
Sae I'll na lie in your bed, at neither
stock nor wa.'

5 'O my name is Captain Wedderburn, my name I'll neer deny,
And I command ten thousand men, upo yon mountains high.
Tho your father and his men were here,
of them I'd stand na awe,
But should tak ye to my ain bed, and lay ye neist the wa.'

6 Then he lap aff his milk-white steed, and set the lady on,
And a' the way he walkd on foot, he held her by the hand;

He held her by the middle jimp, for fear that she should fa;
Saying, I'll tak ye to my ain bed, and lay thee at the wa.

7 He took her to his quartering-house, his landlady looked ben,
Saying, Mouie a pretty ladie in Edin-bruch I've seen;
But sic 'na pretty ladie is not into
it a':
Gae, mak for her a fine down-bed, and lay her at the wa.

8 'O haud awa frae me, kind sir, I pray
ye lat me be,
For I'll na lie in your bed till I get dishes three;
Dishes three maun be dressd for me,
gif I should eat them a',
Before I lie in your bed, at either stock
or wa.

9 'Tis I maun hae to my supper a chicken
without a bane;
And I maun hae to my supper a cherry
without a stane;
And I maun hae to my supper a bird
without a gaw,
Before I lie in your bed, at either stock
or wa.'

10 'Whan the chicken's in the shell, I am sure it has na bane;
And whan the cherry's in the bloom, I
wat it has na stane;
The dove she is a genty bird, she flees
without a gaw;
Sae we'll baith lie in ae bed, and ye'll
be at the wa.'

11 'O haud awa frae me, kind sir, I pray
ye give me owre,
For I'll na lie in your bed, till I get presents four;
Presents four ye maun gie me, and that is twa and twa,
Before I lie in your bed, at either stock
or wa.

12 'Tis I maun hae some winter fruit that in December grew;
And I maun hae a silk mantil that waft
gaed never through;

A sparrow's horn, a priest unborn, this nicht to join us twa,
Before I lie in your bed, at either stock
or wa.'

13 'My father has some winter fruit that
in December grew;
My mither has a silk mantil the waft
gaed never through;
A sparrow's horn ye soon may find,
there's ane on evry claw,
And twa upo the gab o it, and ye shall get them a'.

14 'The priest he stands without the yett,
just ready to come in;
Nae man can say he eer was born, nae
man without he sin;
He was haill cut frae his mither's side,
and frae the same let fa;
Sae we'll baith lie in ae bed, and ye'se
lie at the wa.'

15 'O haud awa frae me, kind sir, I pray
don't me perplex,
For I'll na lie in your bed till ye answer questions six:
Questions six ye maun answer me, and that is four and twa,
Before I lie in your bed, at either stock
or wa.

16 'O what is greener than the gress, what's higher than thae trees?
O what is worse than women's wish,
what's deeper than the seas?
What bird craws first, what tree buds
first, what first does on them fa?
Before I lie in your bed, at either stock
or wa.'

17 'Death is greener than the gress, heaven higher than thae trees;
The devil's waur than women's wish,
hell's deeper than the seas;
The cock craws first, the cedar buds first,
dew first on them does fa;
Sae we'll baith lie in ae bed, and ye'se
lie at the wa.'

18 Little did this lady think, that morning
whan she raise,
That this was for to be the last o a' her maiden days.

But there's na into the king's realm to be found a blither twa,
And now she's Mrs. Wedderburn, and she lies at the wa.

PROUD LADY MARGARET

A was communicated to Scott "by Mr. Hamilton, music-seller, Edinburgh, with whose mother it had been a favorite." Two stanzas (sts. 6 and 11 of the present text) and one line were wanting, and were supplied by Scott "from a different ballad, having a plot somewhat similar." Later Hamilton sent Scott certain verses "to come in at the first break." There were still four lines, which should come before these, which he could not recollect. The present text is Scott's, with the insertion of the verses sent by Hamilton (sts. 7-8). A is plainly compounded of two ballads, the conclusion being derived from E. The lady's "looking oer her castle wa," her putting riddles, and her having "gard so mony die," make the supposition far from incredible that the Proud Lady Margaret of the first part of the ballad may have originally been one of the Perilous Princesses well-known in popular story (cf. No. 46).

'Proud Lady Margaret,' Scott's Minstrelsy, III, 275, ed. 1803. Communicated "by Mr. Hamilton, music-seller, Edinburgh." Sts. 7. 8. Abbotsford MS., Scotch Ballads, Materials for Border Minstrelsy, No. 117 (also from Hamilton).

1 'T WAS on a night, an evening bright,
When the dew began to fa,
Lady Margaret was walking up and
down,
Looking oer her castle wa.

2 She looked east and she looked west,
To see what she could spy,
When a gallant knight came in her
sight,
And to the gate drew nigh.

3 'You seem to be no gentleman,
You wear your boots so wide;
But you seem to be some cunning
hunter,
You wear the horn so syde.'

- 4 'I am no cunning hunter,' he said,
 'Nor neer intend to be;
 But I am come to this castle
 To seek the love of thee.
 And if you do not grant me love,
 This night for thee I'll die.'
- 5 'If you should die for me, sir knight,
 There's few for you will meane;
 For mony a better has died for me,
 Whose graves are growing green.
- 6 ['But ye maun read my riddle,' she
 said,
 'And answer my questions three;
 And but ye read them right,' she
 said,
 'Gae stretch ye out and die.']
- 7 'O wherein leems the beer?' she said,
 'Or wherein leems the wine?
 O wherein leems the gold?' she said,
 'Or wherein leems the twine?'
- 8 'The beer is put in a drinking-horn,
 The wine in glasses fine,
 There's gold in store between two kings,
 When they are fighting keen,
 And the twine is between a lady's two hands
 When they are washen clean.'
- 9 'Now what is the flower, the ae first flower,
 Springs either on moor or dale?
 And what is the bird, the bonnie bonnie bird,
 Sings on the evening gale?'
- 10 'The primrose is the ae first flower
 Springs either on moor or dale,
 And the thistlecock is the bonniest
 bird
 Sings on the evening gale.'
- 11 ['But what's the little coin,' she said,
 'Wald buy my castle bound?
 And what's the little boat,' she said,
 'Can sail the world all round?']
- 12 'O hey, how mony small pennies
 Make thrice three thousand pound?
 Or hey, how mony salt fishes
 Swims a' the salt sea round?'
- 13 'I think you maun be my match,' she
 said,
 'My match and something mair;
 You are the first eer got the grant
 Of love frae my father's heir.
- 14 'My father was lord of nine castles,
 My mother lady of three;
 My father was lord of nine castles,
 And there's nane to heir but me.
- 15 'And round about a' thae castles
 You may baith plow and saw,
 And on the fifteenth day of May
 The meadows they will maw.'
- 16 'O hald your tongue, Lady Margaret,'
 he said,
 'For loud I hear you lie;
 Your father was lord of nine castles,
 Your mother was lady of three;
 Your father was lord of nine castles,
 But ye fa heir to but three.
- 17 'And round about a' thae castles
 You may baith plow and saw,
 But on the fifteenth day of May
 The meadows will not maw.
- 18 'I am your brother Willie,' he said,
 'I trow ye ken na me;
 I came to humble your haughty heart,
 Has gard sae mony die.'
- 19 'If ye be my brother Willie,' she said,
 'As I trow weel ye be,
 This night I'll neither eat nor drink,
 But gae alang wi thee.'
- 20 'O hold your tongue, Lady Margaret,'
 he said,
 'Again I hear you lie;
 For ye've unwashen hands and ye've
 unwashen feet,
 To gae to clay wi me.
- 21 'For the wee worms are my bedfellows,
 And cauld clay is my sheets,
 And when the stormy winds do blow,
 My body lies and sleeps.'

 lads and Songs, etc., etc., from the recitation of old people. Never published. MS., 1829, p. 6.

- 1 FAIR MARGRET was a young ladye,
An come of high degree;
Fair Margret was a young ladye,
An proud as proud coud be.
- 2 Fair Margret was a rich ladye,
The king's cousin was she;
Fair Margaret was a rich ladye,
An vain as vain coud be.
- 3 She war'd her wealth on the gay cleedin
That comes frae yont the sea,
She spent her time frae morning till
night
Adorning her fair bodye.
- 4 Ae night she sate in her stately ha,
Kainin her yellow hair,
When in there cum like a gentle knight,
An a white scarf he did wear.
- 5 'O what's your will wi me, sir knight,
O what's your will wi me?
You're the likest to my ae brother
That ever I did see.
- 6 'You're the likest to my ae brother
That ever I hae seen,
But he's buried in Dunfermline kirk,
A month an mair bygane.'
- 7 'I'm the likest to your ae brother
That ever ye did see,
But I canna get rest into my grave,
A' for the pride of thee.
- 8 'Leave pride, Margret, leave pride,
Margret,
Leave pride an vanity;
Ere ye see the sights that I hae seen,
Sair altered ye maun be.
- 9 'O ye come in at the kirk door
Wi the gowd plaits in your hair;
But wud ye see what I hae seen,
Ye maun them a' forbear.
- 10 'O ye come in at the kirk-door
Wi the gowd prins i your sleeve;
But wad ye see what I hae seen,
Ye maun gie them a' their leave.
- 11 'Leave pride, Margret, leave pride,
Margret,
Leave pride an vanity;

Ere ye see the sights that I hae seen,
Sair altered ye maun be.'

- 12 He got her in her stately ha,
Kaimin her yellow hair,
He left her on her sick sick bed,
Sheding the saut saut tear.

YOUNG ANDREW

'Young Andrew' is known only from the Percy manuscript. The story recalls both 'Lady Isabel and the Elf-Knight' (No. 4) and 'The Fair Flower of Northumberland' (No. 9). The conclusion is mutilated and hard to make out. Young Andrew seems to have been pursued and caught. Why he was not promptly disposed of, and how the wolf comes into the story, will probably never be known.

Percy MS., p. 292; Hales and Furnivall, II, 328.

- 1 As I was cast in my ffirst sleepe,
A dreadffull draught in my mind I
drew,
Ffor I was dreamed of a yong man,
Some men called him yonge Andrew.
- 2 The moone shone bright, and itt cast a
ffayre light,
Sayes shee, Welcome, my honey, my hart, and my sweete!
For I haue loued thee this seuen long
yeere,
And our chance itt was wee cold
neuer meete.
- 3 Then he tooke her in his armes two,
And kissed her both cheeke and chin,
And twise or thrise he pleased this may
Before they tow did part in twinn.
- 4 Saies, Now, good sir, you haue had your
will,
You can demand no more of mee;
Good sir, remember what you said before,
And goe to the church and marry
mee.
- 5 Ffaire maid, I cannott doe as I wold;

- Goe home and fett thy fathers redd gold,
And I 'le goe to the church and marry thee.
- 6 This ladye is gone to her ffathers hall,
And well she knew where his red gold lay,
And counted fforth five hundred pound,
Besides all other iuells and chaines :
- 7 And brought itt all to younge Andrew,
Itt was well counted vpon his knee;
Then he tooke her by the lillye white hand,
And led her vp to an hill soe hye.
- 8 Shee had vpon a gowne of blacke veluett,
(A pittyfull sight after yee shall see:)
'Put of thy clothes, bonny wenche,' he sayes,
'For noe ffoote further thoust gang with mee.'
- 9 But then shee put of her gowne of veluett,
With many a salt teare from her eye,
And in a kirtle of ffine breaden silke
Shee stood beffore young Andrews eye.
- 10 Sais, O put off thy kirtle of silke,
Ffor some and all shall goe with mee;
And to my owne lady I must itt beare,
Who I must needs loue better then thee.
- 11 Then shee put of her kirtle of silke,
With many a salt teare still ffrom her eye;
In a peticoate of scarlett redd
Shee stood before young Andrewes eye.
- 12 Saies, O put of thy peticoate,
For some and all of itt shall goe with mee;
And to my owne lady I will itt beare,
Which dwells soe ffarr in a strange countrye.
- 13 But then shee put of her peticoate,
With many a salt teare still from her eye,

- And in a smocke of braue white silke
Shee stood before young Andrews eye.
- 14 Saies, O put of thy smocke of silke,
For some and all shall goe with mee;
Vnto my owne ladye I will itt beare,
That dwells soe ffarr in a strange countrye.
- 15 Sayes, O remember, young Andrew,
Once of a woman you were borne;
And ffor that birth that Marye bore,
I pray you let my smocke be vpon !
- 16 'Yes, ffayre ladye, I know itt well,
Once of a woman I was borne;
Yett ffor noe birth that Mary bore,
Thy smocke shall not be left here vpon.'
- 17 But then shee put of her head-geere ffine;
Shee hadd billaments worth a hundred pound;
The hayre that was vpon this bony wench head
Couered her bodye downe to the ground.
- 18 Then he pulled forth a Scottish brand,
And held itt there in his owne right hand;
Saies, Whether wilt thou dye vpon my swords point, ladye,
Or thou wilt goe naked home againe ?
- 19 'Liffe is sweet,' then, 'sir,' said shee,
'Therefore I pray you leaue mee with mine;
Before I wold dye on your swords point,
I had rather goe naked home againe.
- 20 'My ffather,' shee sayes, 'is a right good erle
As any remaines in his countrye;
If euer he doe your body take,
You 'r sure to fflower a gallow tree.
- 21 'And I haue senen brethren,' shee sayes,
'And they are all hardy men and bold;
Giff euer the doe your body take,
You must neuer gang quicke ouer the mold.'

22 'If your ffather be a right good erle
As any remaines in his owne coun-
trye,
Tush! he shall neuer my body take,
I 'le gang soe ffast ouer the sea.

23 'If you haue seuen brethren,' he sayes,
'If they be neuer soe hardy or bold,
Tush! they shall neuer my body take,
I 'le gang soe ffast into the Scottish mold.'

24 Now this ladye is gone to her fathers
hall,
When euery body their rest did take;
But the Erle which was her ffather
Lay waken for his deere daughters
sake.

25 'But who is that,' her ffather can say,
'That soe priuilye knowes the pinn?'
'It's Hellen, your owne deere daughter, ffather,
I pray you rise and lett me in.'

26 .
'Noe, by my hood!' quoth her ffa-ther then,
'My [house] thoust neuer come within,
Without I had my red gold againe.'

27 'Nay, your gold is gone, ffather!' said
shee,

'Then naked thou came into this world,
And naked thou shalt returne againe.'

28 'Nay! God fforgaue his death, father,' shee sayes,
'And soe I hope you will doe mee';
'Away, away, thou cursed woman,
I pray God an ill death thou may
dye!'

29 Shee stood soe long quacking on the
ground
Till her hart itt burst in three;
And then shee ffell dead downe in a
swoond,
And this was the end of this bonny
ladye.

30 Ithe morning, when her ffather gott
vpp,
A pittyyfull sight there he might see;

His owne deere daughter was dead,
without clothes,
The teares they trickeled fast ffrom
his eye.

31 .
Sais, Fye of gold, and ffye of ffee!
For I sett soe much by my red gold
That now itt hath lost both my daughter and mee!'

32 .
But after this time he neere dought
good day,
But as flowers doth fade in the frost,
Soe he did wast and weare away.

33 But let vs leaue talking of this ladye,
And talke some more of young Andrew;
Ffor ffalse he was to this bonny ladye,
More pittyy that he had not beene
true.

34 He was not gone a mile into the wild forrest,
Or halfe a mile into the bart of Wales,
But there they cought him by such a braue wyle
That hee must come to tell noe more tales.

* * * * *

35 .
Ffull soone a wolfe did of him
smell,
And shee came roaring like a beare,
And gaping like a ffeend of hell.

36 Soe they ffought together like two lyons,
And fire betweene them two glashet
out;
Thé raught eche other such a great
rappe,
That there young Andrew was slaine,
well I wott.

37 But now young Andrew he is dead,
But he was neuer buried vnder
mold,
For ther as the wolfe devoured him,
There lyes all this great erles gold.

THE TWA BROTHERS

All the Scottish versions (six in number) were obtained within the first third of the nineteenth century, and since then no others have been heard of, but the ballad has been obtained within recent years from the singing of poor children in American cities. B is considerably corrupted. It need hardly be mentioned that the age of the boys in the first two stanzas does not suit the story. The conclusion of B belongs to 'Sweet William's Ghost' (No. 77).

1 THERE were twa brethren in the north,
They went to school thegithar;
The one unto the other said,
Will you try a warsle afore?

2 They wrestled up, they wrestled down,
Till Sir John fell to the ground,
And there was a knife in Sir Willie's pouch,
Gied him a deadlie wound.

3 'Oh brither dear, take me on your back,
Carry me to yon burn clear,
And wash the blood from off my wound,
And it will bleed nae mair.'

4 He took him up upon his back,
Carried him to yon burn clear,
And washd the blood from off his wound,
And aye it bled the mair.

5 'Oh brother dear, take me on your
back,
Carry me to yon kirk-yard,
And dig a grave baith wide and deep,
And lay my body there.'

6 He's taen him up upon his back,
Carried him to yon kirk-yard,
And dug a grave both deep and wide,
And laid his body there.

7 'But what will I say to my father dear,
Should he chance to say, Willie,
whar's John?'

'Oh say that he's to England gone,
To buy him a cask of wine.'

8 'And what shall I say to my mother
dear,
Should she chance to say, Willie,
whar's John?'

'Oh say that he's to England gone,
To buy her a new silk gown.'

9 'And what will I say to my sister dear,
Should she chance to say, Willie,
whar's John?'

'Oh say that he's to England gone,
To buy her a wedding ring.'

10 'What will I say to her you loe dear,
Should she cry, Why tarries my
John?'

'Oh tell her I lie in fair Kirk-land,
And home will never come.'

B

'The Cruel Brother,' Motherwell's MS., p. 259. From the recitation of Widow McCormick, January 19, 1825.

1 THERE was two little boys going to the school,
And twa little boys they be,
They met three brothers playing at the ba,
And ladies dansing hey.

2 'It's whether will ye play at the ba,
brither,
Or else throw at the stone?'
'I am too little, I am too young,
O brother let me alone.'

3 He pulled out a little penknife,
That was baith sharp and sma,
He gave his brother a deadly wound
. That was deep, long and sair.

4 He took the holland sark off his back,
He tore it frae breast to gare,
He laid it to the bloody wound,
That still bled mair and mair.

5 'It's take me on your back, brother,'
he says,

'And carry me to yon kirk-yard,
And make me there a very fine grave,
That will be long and large.

6 'Lay my bible at my head,' he says,
'My chaunter at my feet,
My bow and arrows by my side,
And soundly I will sleep.

7 'When you go home, brother,' he says,
'My father will ask for me;
You may tell him I am in Saussif town,
Learning my lesson free.

8 'When you go home, brother,' he says,
'My mother will ask for me;
You may tell her I am in Sausaf town,
And I'll come home merrily.

9 'When you go home, brother,' he says,
'Lady Margaret will ask for me;
You may tell her I'm dead and in grave laid,
And buried in Sausaff toun.'

10 She put the small pipes to her mouth,
And she harped both far and uear,
Till she harped the small birds off the briers,
And her true love out of the grave.

11 'What's this? what's this, lady Margaret?' he says,
'What's this you want of me?'
'One sweet kiss of your ruby lips,
That's all I want of thee.'

12 'My lips they are so bitter,' he says,
'My breath it is so strong,
If you get one kiss of my ruby lips,
Your days will not be long.'

THE BONNY HIND

This piece is transcribed three times in Herd's manuscripts, with a note prefixed in each instance that it was copied from the mouth of a milkmaid in 1771. In the first half of the story 'The Bonny Hind' comes very near to the fine Scandinavian ballad of 'Margaret' (Grundtvig and Sigurðsson. No. 1³). The conclusions differ altogether. The story of Kullervo, incorporated in what is called the national epic of the Finns, the Kalevala, has striking resemblances with the ballads of the 'Bonny Hind' class (Schiefner, runes 85, 86).

'The Bonny Hyn,' Herd's MSS., II, fol. 65.
"Copied from the mouth of a milkmaid, by W. L., in 1771."

1 O MAY she comes, and may she goes,
Down by yon gardens green,
And there she spied a gallant squire
As squire had ever been.

2 And may she comes, and may she goes,
Down by yon hollin tree,
And there she spied a brisk young
squire,
And a brisk young squire was he.

3 'Give me your green manteel, fair maid,
Give me your maidenhead;
Gif ye winna gie me your green manteel,
Gie me your maidenhead.'

4 He has taen her by the milk-white
hand,
And softly laid her down,
And when he's lifted her up again
Given her a silver kaim.

5 'Perhaps there may be bairns, kind
sir,
Perhaps there may be nane;
But if you be a courtier,
You'll tell to me your name.'

6 'I am nae courtier, fair maid,
But new come frae the sea;
I am nae courtier, fair maid,
But when I court 'ith thee.

7 'They call me Jack when I'm abroad,
Sometimes they call me John;
But when I'm in my father's bower
Jock Randal is my name.'

8 'Ye lee, ye lee, ye bonny lad,
Sae loud's I hear ye lee!
Ffor I'm Lord Randal's yae daughter,
He has nae mair nor me.'

9 'Ye lee, ye lee, ye bonny may,
Sae loud's I hear ye lee!
For I'm Lord Randal's yae yae son,
Just now come oer the sea.'

10 She's putten her hand down by her spare,
And out she's taen a knife,
And she has putn't in her heart's bluid,
And taen away her life.

11 And he's taen up his bonny sister,
With the big tear in his een,
And he has buried his bonny sister
Amang the hollins green.

12 And syne he's hyed him oer the dale,
His father dear to see:
'Sing O and O for my bonny hind,
Beneath yon hollin tree!'

13 'What needs you care for your bonny
hyn?
For it you needna care;
There's aught score hyns in yonder
park,
And five score hyns to spare.

14 'Four score of them are siller-shod,
Of thae ye may get three;'
'But O and O for my bonny hyn,
Beneath you hollin tree!'

15 'What needs you care for your bonny
hyn?
For it you need na care;
Take you the best, gi me the warst,
Since plenty is to spare.'

16 'I care na for your hyns, my lord,
I care na for your fee;
Bnt O and O for my bonny hyn,
Beneath the hollin tree!'

17 'O were ye at your sister's bower,
Your sister fair to see,
Ye'll think na mair o your bonny
hyn
Beneath the hollin tree.'

LIZIE WAN

First printed in Herd's Scottish Songs, 1776, and here given from his manuscript.

'Lizie Wan.' Herd's MSS., I, 151; stanzas 1-
6, II, p. 78. Herd's Scottish Songs, 1776, I, 91.

1 LIZIE WAN sits at her father's bower-
door,
Weeping and making a mane,
And by there came her father dear:
'What ails thee, Lizie Wan?'

2 'I ail, and I ail, dear father,' she said,
'And I'll tell you a reason for why;
There is a child between my twa sides,
Between my dear billy and I.'

3 Now Lizie Wan sits at her father's bower-door,
Sighing and making a mane,
And by there came her brother dear:
'What ails thee, Lizie Wan?'

4 'I ail, I ail, dear brither,' she said,
'And I'll tell you a reason for why;
There is a child between my twa sides,
Between you, dear billy, and I.'

5 'And hast thou tald father and mother o that?
And hast thou tald sae o me?'
And he has drawn his gude braid sword,
That hang down by his knee.

6 And he has cutted aff Lizie Wan's head,
And her fair body in three,
And he's awa to his mothers bower,
And sair aghast was he.

7 'What ails thee, what ails thee, Geordy
Wan?
What ails thee sae fast to rin?
For I see by thy ill colour
Some fallow's deed thou hast done.'

8 'Some fallow's deed I have done, mother,
And I pray you pardon me;
For I've cutted aff my greyhound's head;
He wadna rin for me.'

9 'Thy greyhound's bluid was never sae
red,
O my son Geordy Wan!
For I see by thy ill colour
Some fallow's deed thou hast done.'

10 'Some fallow's deed I hae done, mother,
And I pray you pardon me;
For I hae cutted aff Lizie Wan's head
And her fair body in three.'

11 'O what wilt thou do when thy father comes hame,
O my son Geordy Wan?'
'I'll set my foot in a bottomless boat,
And swim to the sea-ground.'

12 'And when will thou come hame again,
O my son Geordy Wan?'
'The sun and the moon shall dance on the green
That night when I come hame.'

THE KING'S DOCHTER LADY JEAN

At the beginning of this ballad there is resemblance to 'Tam Lin' (No. 39) and to 'Hind Etin' (No. 41).

A

a. 'The King's Dochter Lady Jean,' Motherwell's MS., p. 657. From the recitation of Mrs Storie, Lochwinich. b. 'Lady Jean,' Motherwell's Minstrelsy, Appendix, p. xxi, No. xxiii, one stanza (st. 1).

1 THE king's young dochter was sitting in her window,
Sewing at her silken seam;
She lookt out o the bow-window,
And she saw the leaves growing green, my luv,
And she saw the leaves growing green.

2 She stuck her needle into her sleeve,
Her seam down by her tae,
And she is awa to the merrie green-wood,
To pu the nit and slae.

3 She hadna pu't a nit at a',
A nit but scarcely three,
Till out and spak a braw young man,
Saying, How daur ye bow the tree?

4 'It's I will pu the nit,' she said,
'And I will bow the tree,
And I will come to the merrie green wud,
And na ax leive o thee.'

5 He took her by the middle sae sma,
And laid her on the gerss sae green,
And he has taen his will o her,
And he loot her up agen.

6 'Now syn ye hae got your will o me,
Pray tell to me your name;
For I am the king's young dochter,' she said,
'And this nicht I daurna gang hame.'

7 'Gif ye be the king's young dochter,' he said,
'I am his auldest son;
I wish I had died on some frem isle,
And never had come hame!'

8 'The first time I came hame, Jeanie,
Thou was na here nor born.
I wish my pretty ship had sunk,
And I had been forlorn.'

9 'The neist time I came hame, Jeanie.
Thou was sittin on the nourice knee;
And I wish my pretty ship had sunk,
And I had never seen thee!'

10 'And the neist time I came hame, Jeanie,
I met thee here alane;
I wish my pretty ship had sunk,
And I had neer come hame!'

11 She put her hand down by her side,
And doun into her spare,
And she pou't out a wee pen-knife,
And she wounded hersell fu sair.

12 Hooly, hooly rase she up,
And hooly she gade hame,
Until she came to her father's parlour,
And there she did sick and mane.

13 'O sister, sister, mak my bed,
O the clean sheets and strae,
O sister, sister, mak my bed,
Down in the parlour below.'

14 Her father he came tripping down the stair,
His steps they were fu slow;

'I think, I think, Lady Jean,' he said,
'Ye're lying far ower low.'

15 'O late yestreen, as I came hame,
Down by yon castil wa,
O heavy, heavy was the stane
That on my briest did fa !'

16 Her mother she came tripping down the stair,
Her steps they were fu slow;
'I think, I think, Lady Jean,' she
said,
'Ye're lying far ower low.'

17 'O late yestreen, as I cam hame,
Down by yon castil wa,
O heavy, heavy was the stane
That on my breast did fa !'

18 Her sister came tripping down the
stair,
Her steps they were fu slow;
'I think, I think, Lady Jean,' she said,
'Ye're lying far ower low.'

19 'O late yestreen, as I cam hame,
Doun by yon castil wa,
O heavy, heavy was the stane
That on my breast did fa !'

20 Her brither he cam trippin down the
stair,
His steps they were fu slow;
He sank into his sister's arms,
And they died as white as snaw.

YOUNG BEICHAN

Professor Child prints fifteen versions of this ballad, all but one from Scotland. The story of Beichan agrees in the general outline and also in some details, with a well-known legend about Gilbert Beket, father of St Thomas. The earlier and more authentic biographies lack this particular bit of romance, but the legend nevertheless goes back to a date not much later than a century after the death of the saint, being found in a poetical narrative preserved in a manuscript of about 1300. That our ballad has been affected by the legend of Gilbert Beket is altogether likely. But the ballad is not derived from the legend. Stories and ballads of the general cast of 'Young Beichan' are extremely frequent. The legend lacks some of the main points of these stories, and the ballad (in one version or another) has them. A number of heroes, — among them Henry of Brunswick, Alexander von Metz, and the Noble Moringer, go to the East and have adventures similar to Young Beichan's. Just as Susie Pye is warned that Beichan is to be married next day, and is conveyed to Beichan's hall with miraculous dispatch, so are Henry and others warned, and transported to their homes by devil, angel, or necromancer. Norse, Spanish, and Italian ballads likewise preserve a story essentially the same as that of 'Young Beichan.' It should also be compared with 'Hind Horn' (No. 17).

A

'Young Bicham,' Jamieson-Brown MS., p. 13, c. 1783.

1 In London city was Bicham born,
He longd strange countries for to see,
But he was taen by a savage Moor,
Who handld him right cruely.

2 For thro his shoulder he put a bore,
An thro the bore has pitten a tree,
An he's gard him draw the carts o wine,
Where horse and oxen had wont to be.

3 He's casten [him] in a dungeon deep,
Where he coud neither hear nor see;
He's shut him up in a prison strong,
An he's handld him right cruely.

4 O this Moor he had but ae daughter,
I wot her name was Shusy Pye;
She's doen her to the prison-house,
And she's calld Young Bicham one word by.

5 'O hae ye ony lands or rents,
Or citys in your ain country,
Cond free you out of prison strong,
An coud mantain a lady free ?'

6 'O London city is my own,
An other citys twa or three,
Cond loose me out o prison strong.
An coud mantain a lady free.

7 O she has bribed her father's men
Wi meikle goud and white money,
She's gotten the key o the prison doors,
An she has set Young Bicham free.

- 8 She's gi'n him a loaf o good white bread,
But an a flask o Spanish wine,
An she bad him mind on the ladie's love
That sae kindly freed him out o pine.
- 9 'Go set your foot on good ship-board,
An haste you back to your ain country,
An before that seven years has an end,
Come back again, love, and marry me.'
- 10 It was long or seven years had an end
She longd fu sair her love to see;
She's set her foot on good ship-board,
An turnd her back on her ain country.
- 11 She's saild up, so has she down,
Till she came to the other side;
She's landed at Young Bicham's gates,
An I hop this day she sal be his
bride.
- 12 'Is this Young Bicham's gates?' says
she,
'Or is that noble prince within?'
'He's up the stairs wi his bonny bride,
An monny a lord and lady wi him.'
- 13 'O has he taen a bonny bride,
An has he clean forgotten me!'
An sighing said that gay lady,
I wish I were in my ain country!
- 14 But she's pitten her han in her pocket,
An gin the porter guineas three;
Says, 'Take ye that, ye proud porter,
An bid the bridegroom speak to me.'
- 15 O whan the porter came up the stair,
He's fa'n low down upon his knee:
'Won up, won up, ye proud porter,
An what makes a' this courtesy?'
- 16 'O I've been porter at your gates
This mair nor seven years an three,
But there is a lady at them now
The like of whom I never did see.'
- 17 'For on every finger she has a ring,
An on the mid-finger she has three,
An there's as meikle goud aboon her brow
As woud buy an earldome o lan to me.'
- 18 Then up it started Young Bicham,
An sware so loud by Our Lady,

'It can be nane but Shusy Pye,
That has come oer the sea to me.'

- 19 O quickly ran he down the stair,
(O fifteen steps he has made but three;
He's tane his bonny love in his arms,
An a wot he kissd her tenderly.
- 20 'O hae you tane a bonny bride?
An hae you quite forsaken me?
An hae ye quite forgotten her
'That gae you life an liberty?'
- 21 She's lookit oer her left shoulder
To hide the tears stood in her ee;
'Now fare thee well, Young Bicham,'
she says,
'I'll strive to think nae mair on thee.'
- 22 'Take back your daughter, madam,' he
says,
'An a double dowry I'll gi her wi;
For I maun marry my first true love,
'That's done and suffered so much for
me.'
- 23 He's take his bonny love by the han,
And led her to yon fountain stane;
He's changd her name frae Shusy Pye,
An he's cald her his bonny love, Lady
Jane.

C

'Young Bekie.' a. Jamieson-Brown MS.,
p. 11, c. 1733. b. Jamieson's Popular Ballads,
II, 127.

- 1 YOUNG BEKIE was as brave a knight
As ever saild the sea;
An he's doen him to the court of France,
To serve for meat and fee.
- 2 He had nae been i the court of France
A twelvemonth nor sae long,
Til he fell in love with the king's daughter,
An was thrown in prison strong.
- 3 The king he had but ae daughter,
Burd Isbel was her name;
An she has to the prison-house gane,
To hear the prisoner's mane.
- 4 'O gin a lady woud borrow me,
At her stirrup-foot I woud rin;

- Or gin a widow wad borrow me,
I woud swear to be her son.
- 5 'Or gin a virgin woud borrow me,
I woud wed her wi a ring;
I'd gi her ha's, I'd gie her bowers,
The bonny towrs o Linne.'
- 6 O barefoot, barefoot gaed she but,
An barefoot came she ben;
It was no for want o hose an shoone,
Nor time to put them on.
- 7 But a' for fear that her father dear
Had heard her making din:
She's stown the keys o the prison-house dor
An latten the prisoner gang.
- 8 O whan she saw him, Young Bekie,
Her heart was wondrous sair!
For the mice but an the bold rottens
Had eaten his yallow hair.
- 9 She's gien him a shaver for his beard,
A comber till his hair,
Five hunder pound in his pocket,
To spen, an nae to spair.
- 10 She's gien him a steed was good in need,
An a saddle o royal bone,
A leash o hounds o ae litter,
An Hector called one.
- 11 Atween this twa a vow was made,
'T was made full solemnly,
That or three years was come an gane,
Well married they shoud be.
- 12 He had nae been in 's ain country
A twelvemonth till an end,
Till he's forced to marry a duke's daugh-
ter,
Or than lose a' his land.
- 13 'Ohon, alas!' says Young Beckie,
'I know not what to dee;
For I canno win to Burd Isbel,
And she kensnae to come to me.'
- 14 O it fell once upon a day
Burd Isbel fell asleep,
An up it starts the Belly Blin,
An stood at her bed-feet.
- 15 'O waken, waken, Burd Isbel,
How [can] you sleep so soun,
Whan this is Bekie's wedding day,
An the marriage gain on?
- 16 'Ye do ye to your mither's bowr,
Think neither sin nor shame;
An ye tak twa o your mither's marys,
To keep ye frae thinking lang.
- 17 'Ye dress yoursel in the red scarlet,
An your marys in dainty green,
An ye pit girdles about your middles
Woud buy an earldome.
- 18 'O ye gang down by yon sea-side,
An down by yon sea-stran;
Sae bonny will the Hollans boats
Come rowin till your han.
- 19 'Ye set your milk-white foot aboard,
Cry, Hail ye, Domine!
An I shal be the steerer o't,
To row you oer the sea.'
- 20 She's tane her till her mither's bowr,
Thought neither sin nor shame,
An she took twa o her mither's marys,
To keep her frae thinking lang.
- 21 She dressd hersel i the red scarlet,
Her marys i dainty green,
And they pat girdles about their middles
Woud buy an earldome.
- 22 An they gid down by you sea-side,
An down by yon sea-stran;
Sae bonny did the Hollan boats
Come rowin to their han.
- 23 She set her milk-white foot on board,
Cried, Hail ye, Domine!
An the Belly Blin was the steerer o't,
To row her oer the sea.
- 24 Whan she came to Young Bekie's gate,
She heard the music play;
Sae well she kent frae a' she heard,
It was his wedding day.
- 25 She's pitten her han in her pocket,
Gin the porter guineas three;
'Hae, tak ye that, ye proud porter,
Bid the bride-groom speake to me.'

26 O whan that he cam up the stair,
He fell low down on his knee:
He haild the king, an he haild the
queen,
An he haild him, Young Bekie.

27 'O I've been porter at your gates
This thirty years an three;
But there's three ladies at them now,
Their like I never did see.

28 'There's ane o them dressd in red scarlet,
And twa in dainty green,
An they hae girdles about their mid-
dles
Woud buy an earldome.'

29 Then out it spake the bierly bride,
Was a' goud to the chin;
'Gin she be braw without,' she says,
'We's be as braw within.'

30 Then up it starts him, Young Bekie,
An the tears was in his ee:
'I'll lay my life it's Burd Isbel,
Come oer the sea to me.'

31 O quickly ran he down the stair,
An whan he saw 't was shee,
He kindly took her in his arms,
And kissd her tenderly.

32 'O hae ye forgotten, Young Bekie,
The vow ye made to me,
Whan I took you out o the prison
strong,
Whan ye was condemnd to die?

33 'I gae you a steed was good in need,
An a saddle o royal bone,
A leash o hounds o ae litter,
An Hector called one.'

34 It was well kent what the lady said,
That it wasnae a lee,
For at ilka word the lady spake,
The hound fell at her kuee.

35 'Tak hame, tak hame your daughter
dear,
A blessing gae her wi,
For I maun marry my Burd Isbel,
That's come oer the sea to me.'

36 'Is this the custom o your house
Or the fashion o your lan,
To marry a maid in a May mornin,
An send her back at even?'

THE CHERRY-TREE CAROL

The proper story of this highly popular carol is derived from the Pseudo-Matthew's gospel, chapter xx. What succeeds after A 9, B 8, is probably founded on the angel's words to the shepherds in Luke ii. and on Jesus's predictions in the authentic gospels.

A

a. 'Joseph was an old man,' Sandys, Christmas Carols, p. 123, West of England. b. Sandys, Christmastide, p. 241.

1 JOSEPH was an old man,
and an old man was he,
When he wedded Mary,
in the land of Galilee.

2 Joseph and Mary walked through an orchard good,
Where was cherries and berries,
so red as any blood.

3 Joseph and Mary walked through an orchard green,
Where was berries and cherries,
as thick as might be seen.

4 O then bespoke Mary,
so meek and so mild:
'Pluck me one cherry, Joseph,
for I am with child.'

5 O then bespoke Joseph,
with words most unkind:
'Let him pluck thee a cherry that brought thee with child.'

6 O then bespoke the babe,
within his mother's womb:
'Bow down then the tallest tree,
for my mother to have some.'

7 Then bowed down the highest tree unto his mother's hand;

Then she cried, See, Joseph,
I have cherries at command.

8 O then bespake Joseph:
'I have done Mary wrong;
But cheer up, my dearest,
and be not cast down.'

9 Then Mary plucked a cherry,
as red as the blood,
Then Mary went home with her heavy load.

10 Then Mary took her babe,
and sat him on her knee,
Saying, My dear son, tell me
what this world will be.

11 'O I shall be as dead, mother,
as the stones in the wall;
O the stones in the streets, mother,
shall mourn for me all.

12 'Upon Easter-day, mother,
my uprising shall be;
O the sun and the moon, mother,
shall both rise with me.'

Sylvester, A Garland of Christmas Carols, p. 45. d. Birmingham chap-book, of about 1843, in B. Harris Cowper's Apocryphal Gospels, p. xxxviii.

1 JOSEPH was an old man,
and an old man was he,
And he married Mary,
the Queen of Galilee.

2 When Joseph was married, and Mary home had brought,
Mary proved with child,
and Joseph knew it not.

3 Joseph and Mary walked through a garden gay,
Where the cherries they grew upon every tree.

4 O then bespoke Mary,
with words both meek and mild:

'O gather me cherries, Joseph,
they run so in my mind.'

5 And then replied Joseph,
with words so unkind:
'Let him gather thee cherries that got thee with child.'

6 O then bespoke our Saviour,
all in his mother's womb:
'Bow down, good cherry-tree,
to my mother's hand.'

7 The uppermost sprig bowed down to Mary's knee:
'Thus you may see, Joseph,
these cherries are for me.'

8 'O eat your cherries, Mary,
O eat your cherries now;
O eat your cherries, Mary,
that grow upon the bough.'

9 As Joseph was a walking,
he heard an angel sing:
'This night shall be born
our heavenly king.

10 'He neither shall be born in housen nor in hall,
Nor in the place of Paradise,
but in an ox's stall.

11 'He neither shall be clothed
in purple nor in pall,
But all in fair linen,
as were babies all.

12 'He neither shall be rocked in silver nor in gold,
But in a wooden cradle,
that rocks on the mould.

13 'He neither shall be christened
in white wine nor red,
But with fair spring water,
with which we were christened.

14 Then Mary took her young son,
and set him on her knee:
'I pray thee now, dear child,
tell how this world shall be.'

15 'O I shall be as dead, mother,
as the stones in the wall;

O the stones in the street, mother,
shall mourn for me all.

16 'And upon a Wednesday
my vow I will make,
And upon Good Friday
my death I will take.

17 'Upon Easter-day, mother,
my rising shall be;
O the sun and the moon
shall uprise with me.

18 'The people shall rejoice,
and the birds they shall sing,
To see the uprising
of the heavenly king.'

THE CARNAL AND THE CRANE

Mr Husk, who had access to a remarkably good collection of carols, had met with no copy of 'The Carnal and the Crane' of earlier date than the middle of the eighteenth century. Internal evidence points us much further back. The carol had obviously been transmitted from mouth to mouth before it was fixed in its present incoherent and corrupted form by print. The well-informed Crane instructs his catechumen, the Crow, in several matters pertaining to the birth and earliest days of Jesus: the Nativity, the conference of Herod with the Wise Men, including the miracle of the roasted cock; the Flight into Egypt, with the Adoration of the Beasts and the Instantaneous Harvest; the Massacre of the Innocents. Of the apocryphal incidents, the miracle of the cock has been spoken of under 'Stephen and Herod' (No. 22). The adoration of the beasts is derived from the Historia de Nativitate Mariae, etc. (Pseudo-Matthaei Evangelium), and is of course frequent in legends of the infancy of the Saviour, but is not remarkable enough to be popular in carols. The miraculous harvest by which the Holy Family evaded Herod's pursuit, is, on the contrary, a favorite subject with popular poetry, as also, like the bowing of the palm-tree, with pictorial art.

'The Carnal and the Crane.' a. Sandys, Christmas Carols, p. 152, Christmastide, p. 246, from a broadside. b. Husk, Songs of the Nativity, p. 97, apparently from a Worcester broadside. c. Birmingham chap-book, of about 1843, in B. Harris Cowper's Apocryphal Gospels, p. xli.

1 As I passed by a river side,
And there as I did reign,
In argument I chanced to hear
A Carnal and a Crane.

2 The Carnal said unto the Crane,
If all the world should turn,
Before we had the Father,
But now we have the Son!

3 'From whence does the Son come,
From where and from what place?'
He said, In a manger,
Between an ox and ass.

4 'I pray thee,' said the Carnal,
'Tell me before thou go,
Was not the mother of Jesus
Conceivd by the Holy Ghost?'

5 She was the purest virgin,
And the cleanest from sin;
She was the handmaid of our Lord
And mother of our king.

6 'Where is the golden cradle
That Christ was rocked in?
Where are the silken sheets
That Jesus was wrapt in?'

7 A manger was the cradle
That Christ was rocked in:
The provender the asses left
So sweetly he slept on.

8 There was a star in the east land,
So bright it did appear,
Into King Herod's chamber,
And where King Herod were.

9 The Wise Men soon espied it,
And told the king on high
A princely babe was born that night
No king could eer destroy.

10 'If this be true,' King Herod said,
'As thou tellest unto me,
This roasted cock that lies in the dish
Shall crow full fences three.'

11 The cock soon freshly featherd was,
By the work of God's own hand,
And then three fences crowed he,
In the dish where he did stand.

- 12 'Rise up, rise up, you merry men all,
See that you ready be;
All children under two years old
Now slain they all shall be.'
- 13 Then Jesus, ah, and Joseph,
And Mary, that was so pure,
They travelld into Egypt,
As you shall find it sure.
- 14 And when they came to Egypt's land,
Amongst those fierce wild beasts,
Mary, she being weary,
Must needs sit down to rest.
- 15 'Come sit thee down,' says Jesus,
'Come sit thee down by me,
And thou shalt see how these wild beasts
Do come and worship me.'
- 16 First came the lovely lion,
Which Jesus's grace did bring,
And of the wild beasts in the field
The lion shall be king.
- 17 We'll choose our virtuous princes
Of birth and high degree,
In every sundry nation,
Whereer we come and see.
- 18 Then Jesus, ah, and Joseph,
And Mary, that was unknown,
They travelled by a husbandman,
Just while his seed was sown.
- 19 'God speed thee, man,' said Jesus,
'Go fetch thy ox and wain,
And carry home thy corn again
Which thou this day hast sown.'
- 20 The husbandman fell on his knees,
Even upon his face:
'Long time hast thou been looked for,
But now thou art come at last.
- 21 'And I myself do now believe
Thy name is Jesus called;
Redeemer of mankind thou art,
Though undeserving all.'
- 22 'The truth, man, thou hast spoken,
Of it thou mayst be sure,
For I must lose my precious blood
For thee and thousands more.

- 23 'If any one should come this way,
And enquire for me alone,
Tell them that Jesus passed by
As thou thy seed did sow.'
- 24 After that there came King Herod,
With his train so furiously,
Enquiring of the husbandman
Whether Jesus passed by.
- 25 'Why, the truth it must be spoke,
And the truth it must be known;
For Jesus passed by this way
When my seed was sown.
- 26 'But now I have it reapen,
And some laid on my wain,
Ready to fetch and carry
Into my barn again.'
- 27 'Turn back,' says the captain,
'Your labor and mine's in vain;
It's full three quarters of a year
Since he his seed has sown.'
- 28 So Herod was deceived,
By the work of God's own hand,
And further he proceeded
Into the Holy Land.
- 29 There's thousands of children young
Which for his sake did die;
Do not forbid those little ones,
And do not them deny.
- 30 The truth now I have spoken,
And the truth now I have shown;
Even the Blessed Virgin
She's now brought forth a son.

DIVES AND LAZARUS

A ballet "of the Ryche man and poor Lazarus" was licensed to Master John Wallye and Mistress Toye, 19 July, 1557-9 July, 1558. W. Pekerynge pays his license for printing "of a ballett, Dyves and Lazarus," 22 July, 1570-22 July, 1571 (Arber, Registers of the Company of Stationers, i. 76, 436). A fiddler in Fletcher's Monsieur Thomas, printed 1639, says he can sing 'The merry ballad of Diverus and Lazarus (act iii, scene 3).

'Dives and Lazarus.' a. Sylvester, A Garland of Christmas Carols, p. 50, from an old Birmingham broadside. b. Husk, Songs of the Nativity, p. 94, from a Worcestershire broadside of the eighteenth century.

- 1 As it fell out upon a day,
Rich Dives he made a feast,
And he invited all his friends,
And gentry of the best.
- 2 Then Lazarus laid him down and down,
And down at Dives' door:
'Some meat, some drink, brother Dives,
Bestow upon the poor.'
- 3 'Thou art none of my brother, Lazarus,
That lies begging at my door;
No meat nor drink will I give thee,
Nor bestow upon the poor.'
- 4 Then Lazarus laid him down and down,
And down at Dives's wall:
'Some meat, some drink, brother Dives,
Or with hunger starve I shall.'
- 5 'Thou art none of my brother, Lazarus,
That lies begging at my wall;
No meat nor drink will I give thee,
But with hunger starve you shall.'
- 6 Then Lazarus laid him down and down,
And down at Dives's gate:
'Some meat, some drink, brother Dives,
For Jesus Christ his sake.'
- 7 'Thou art none of my brother, Lazarus,
That lies begging at my gate;
No meat nor drink will I give thee,
For Jesus Christ his sake.'
- 8 Then Dives sent out his merry men,
To whip poor Lazarus away;
They had no power to strike a stroke,
But flung their whips away.
- 9 Then Dives sent out his hungry dogs,
To bite him as he lay;
They had no power to bite at all,
But licked his sores away.
- 10 As it fell out upon a day,
Poor Lazarus sickened and died;
Then came two angels out of heaven
His soul therein to guide.

- 11 'Rise up, rise up, brother Lazarus,
And go along with me;
For you've a place prepared in heaven,
To sit on an angel's knee.'
- 12 As it fell out upon a day,
Rich Dives sickened and died;
Then came two serpents out of hell,
His soul therein to guide.
- 13 'Rise up, rise up, brother Dives,
And go with us to see
A dismal place, prepared in hell,
From which thou canst not flee.'
- 14 Then Dives looked up with his eyes,
And saw poor Lazarus blest:
'Give me one drop of water, brother
Lazarus,
To quench my flaming thirst.'
- 15 'Oh had I as many years to abide
As there are blades of grass,
Then there would be an end, but now
Hell's pains will ne'er be past.'
- 16 'Oh was I now but alive again,
The space of one half hour!
Oh that I had my peace secure!
Then the devil should have no power.'

BROWN ROBYN'S CONFESSION

The only version of 'Brown Robyn's Confession' is the one printed in Ballads of the North of Scotland, the copy in Motherwell's MS. having been derived from Buchan. The ballad celebrates a miracle of the Virgin, and is our only example of that extensive class of legends, unless we choose to include 'The Jew's Daughter' (No. 155) and to take Robin Hood's view of the restoration of his loan, in the fourth Fit of the Little Gest (No. 117). A fine ballad very common in Sweden ('Sir Peder's Voyage'), and preserved by tradition also in Denmark and Norway, has the same story with a tragical termination for the hero, saving a single instance, in which there is also a supernatural interference in his behalf. Compare also the throwing over of Bonnie Annie in No. 24.

Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, I, 110; Motherwell's MS., p. 580.

- 1 It fell upon a Wodensday
Brown Robyn's men went to sea,
But they saw neither moon nor sun,
Nor starlight wi their ee.
- 2 'We'll cast kevels us amang,
See wha the unhappy man may be;'
The kevel fell on Brown Robyn,
The master-man was he.
- 3 'It is nae wonder,' said Brown Robyn,
'Altho I dinna thrive,
For wi my mither I had twa bairns,
And wi my sister five.
- 4 'But tie me to a plank o wude,
And throw me in the sea;
And if I sink, ye may bid me sink,
But if I swim, just lat me bee.'
- 5 They've tyed him to a plank o wude,
And thrown him in the sea;
He didna sink, tho they bade him sink;
He swimd, and they bade lat him bee.
- 6 He hadna been into the sea
An hour but barely three,
Till by it came Our Blessed Lady,
Her dear young son her wi.
- 7 'Will ye gang to your men again,
Or will ye gang wi me?
Will ye gang to the high heavens,
Wi my dear son and me?'
- 8 'I winna gang to my men again,
For they would be feared at mee;
But I woud gang to the high heavens,
Wi thy dear son and thee.'
- 9 'It's for nae honour ye did to me, Brown
Robyn,
It's for nae guid ye did to mee;
But a' is for your fair confession
You've made upon the sea.'

SIR PATRICK SPENS

This ballad is one of many which were first made known to the world through Percy's Reliques. Percy's version remains, poetically, the best. It may be a fragment, but the imagination easily supplies all that may be wanting.

The versions fall into two classes. Of the copies here printed, A and B belong to the first group; G belongs to the second, which is distinguished by additional circumstances. Thus in the second group the destination of the ship is Norway; the object of the voyage (not told in G) is to bring home the king of Norway's daughter (or the Scottish king's daughter), or to take out the Scottish king's daughter to Norway, where she is to be queen.

The ballad may or may not be historical. Motherwell has suggested a sufficiently plausible foundation. Margaret, daughter of Alexander III, was married, in 1281, to Eric, King of Norway. She was conducted to her husband, "brought home," in August of that year, by many knights and nobles. Many of these were drowned on the return voyage. Margaret died in 1283, leaving a newly-born daughter, to whom the crown of Scotland fell in 1286. A match was proposed between the infant Margaret, called the Maid of Norway, and the eldest son of Edward I of England. A deputation was sent to Norway in 1290 to bring the princess over, but she died on the voyage. According to one (untrustworthy) account she perished, apparently in a storm, on the coasts of Boshan (Buchan?). No such name as Patrick Spens is historically connected with any of these occurrences; but the ballad might be substantially historical though the command of the ship were invariably given (as it is in one version) to Sir Andrew Wood, a distinguished admiral, who was born a couple of centuries after the supposed event, and it might be substantially historical though we could prove that Patrick Spens was only a ship-master, of purely local fame, who was lost off Aberdour a couple of hundred years ago. The question cannot be decided, and is of slight importance.

- 1 THE king sits in Dumferling toune,
Drinking the blude-reid wine:
'O whar will I get guid sailor,
To sail this schip of mine?'
- 2 Up and spak an eldern knight,
Sat at the kings richt kne:
'Sir Patrick Spence is the best sailor -
That sails upon the se.'
- 3 The king has written a braid letter,
And sigud it wi his hand,

And sent it to Sir Patrick Spence,
Was walking on the sand.

4 The first line that Sir Patrick red,
A loud lauch lauched he;
The next line that Sir Patrick red,
The teir blinded his ee.

5 'O wha is this has don this deid,
This ill deid don to me,
To send me out this time o' the yeir,
To sail upon the se!

6 'Mak hast, mak haste, my mirry men all,
Our guid schip sails the morne:'
'O say na sae, my master deir,
For I feir a deadlie storme.

7 'Late late yestreen I saw the new moone,
Wi the auld moone in hir arme,
And I feir, I feir, my deir master,
That we will cum to harme.'

8 O our Scots nobles wer richt laith
To weet their cork-heild schoone;
Bot lang owre a' the play wer playd,
Thair hats they swam aboone.

9 O lang, lang may their ladies sit,
Wi thair fans into their hand,
Or eir they se Sir Patrick Spence
Cum sailing to the land.

10 O lang, lang may the ladies stand,
Wi thair gold kems in their hair,
Waiting for thair ain deir lords,
For they'll se thame na mair.

11 Haf owre, haf owre to Aberdour,
It's fiftie fathom deip,
And thair lies guid Sir Patrick Spence,
Wi the Scots lords at his feit.

B

'Sir Patrick Spence,' Herd's MSS., II, 27, 1, 49.

1 THE king he sits in Dumferling,
Drinking the blude reid wine: O
'O where will I get a gude sailor,
That'll sail the ships o mine?' O

2 Up then started a yallow-haird man,
Just be the kings right knee:

'Sir Patrick Spence is the best sailor
That ever saild the see.'

3 Then the king he wrote a lang letter,
And sealld it with his hand,
And sent it to Sir Patrick Spence,
That was lyand at Leith Sands.

4 When Patrick lookd the letter on,
He gae loud laughters three;
But afore he wan to the end of it
The teir blindit his ee.

5 'O wha is this has tald the king,
Has tald the king o me?
Gif I but wist the man it war,
Hanged should he be.

6 'Come eat and drink, my merry men all,
For our ships maun sail the morn;
Bla'd wind, bla'd weet, bla'd sna or sleet,
Our ships maun sail the morn.'

7 'Alake and alas now, good master,
For I fear a deidly storm;
For I saw the new moon late yestreen,
And the auld moon in her arms.'

8 They had not saild upon the sea
A league but merely three,
When ugly, ugly were the jaws
That rowd unto their knee.

9 They had not saild upon the sea
A league but merely nine,
When wind and weit and snaw and sleit
Came blawing them behind.

10 'Then where will I get a pretty boy
Will take my steer in hand,
Till I go up to my tap-mast,
And see gif I see dry laud?'

11 'Here am I, a pretty boy
That'll take your steir in hand,
Till you go up to your tap-mast,
And see an you see the land.'

12 Laith, laith were our Scottish lords
To weit their coal-black shoon;
But yet ere a' the play was playd,
They wat their hats aboon.

13 Laith, laith war our Scottish lords
To weit their coal-black hair;

But yet ere a' the play was playd,
They wat it every hair.

14 The water at St Johnston's wall
Was fifty fathom deep,
And there ly a' our Scottish lords,
Sir Patrick at their feet.

15 Lang, lang may our ladies wait
Wi the tear blinding their ee,
Afore they see Sir Patrick's ships
Come sailing oer the sea.

16 Lang, lang may our ladies wait,
Wi their babies in their hands,
Afore they see Sir Patrick Spence
Come sailing to Leith Sands.

G

'Sir Patrick Spence,' Jamieson's Popular
Ballads, I, 157, communicated by Scott.

1 THE king sits in Dunfermlin town,
Sae merrily driukin the wine:
'Whare will I get a mariner,
Will sail this ship o mine?'

2 Then up bespak a bonny boy,
Sat just at the king's knee:
'Sir Patrick Spence is the best seaman,
That eer set foot on sea.'

3 The king has written a braid letter,
Seald it wi his ain hand;
He has sent word to Sir Patrick,
To come at his command.

4 'O wha is this, or wha is that,
Has tald the king o me?
For I was never a good seaman,
Nor ever intend to be.'

5 They mounted sail on Munnenday morn,
Wi a' the haste they may,
And they hae landed in Norraway,
Upon the Wednesday.

6 They hadna been a month, a month
In Norraway but three,
Till lads o Norraway began to say,
Ye spend a' our white monie.

7 'Ye spend a' our good kingis goud,
But and our queenis fee:'

'Ye lie, ye lie, ye liars loud,
Sae weel's I hear you lie.

8 'For I brought as much white money
As will gain my men and me;
I brought half a fou o good red goud
Out oer the sea with me.

9 'Be 't wind or weet, be 't snaw or sleet,
Our ships maun sail the morn:'
'O ever alack! my master dear,
I fear a deadly storm.

10 'I saw the new moon late yestreen,
Wi the auld moon in her arm;
And if we gang to sea, master,
I fear we'll suffer harm.'

11 They hadna sailed a league on sea,
A league but barely ane,
Till anchors brak, and tap-masts lap;
There came a deadly storm.

12 'Whare will I get a bonny boy
Will tak thir sails in hand,
That will gang up to the tap-mast,
See an he ken dry land?'

13 Laith, laith were our good Scots lords
To weet their leathern shoon;
But or the morn at fair day-light,
Their hats were wat aboon.

14 Mony was the feather bed,
That flotterd on the faem,
And mony was the good Scots lord
Gaed awa that neer cam hame,
And mony was the fatherless bairn
That lay at hame greetin.

15 It's forty miles to Aberdeen,
And fifty fathoms deep;
And there lyes a' our good Scots lords,
Wi Sir Patrick at their feet.

16 The ladies crackt their fingers white,
The maidens tore their hair,
A' for the sake o their true loves,
For them they neer saw mair.

17 Lang, lang may our ladies stand,
Wi their fans in their hand,
Ere they see Sir Patrick and his men
Come sailing to the land.

SIR ALDINGAR

This ballad, one of the most important of all that the Percy manuscript has saved from oblivion, was first given to the world in the Reliques of Ancient English Poetry (II, 48, ed. 1763; II, 49, ed. 1767), with conjectural emendations by the editor, and the insertion of some stanzas to complete the story. A second version (B), very much humbled in diction, and otherwise corrupted, but of indubitable antiquity, as Scott remarks, was published in the Minstrelsy of the Scottish Border in 1803. Tales of the same general description as this ballad are extremely often to be met with in ballad, romance, chronicle, or saga; nor is the number small of those which have the special traits that the accusation is made by a trusted officer of the husband, who has attempted to seduce the lady, and has failed, and that the wife is cleared by a judgment of God. Our ballad belongs with a very distinct Scandinavian variety of these last, but has adopted one characteristic trait from another source. The Scandinavian ballad in question is 'Ravengaard og Memering,' (Grundtvig, No. 13), of which there are versions from Denmark, Iceland, and the Färöes, as well as a Norwegian prose redaction.

A story essentially the same as that of the English and Scandinavian ballads is told by William of Malmesbury (De Gestis Regum Anglorum, ii, 12), of Gunhild, daughter of Cnut the Great and Emma, who was married in 1036 to King Henry, afterwards the Emperor Henry III. William was apparently following ballad authority. Gunhild never had any trouble with her husband. The story was probably transferred to her from St Cunigund, the consort of the Emperor St Henry II, in whose legendary history there is a passage essentially similar. A still earlier instance is that of Gundeberg, wife of the Lombard king Arioald (about 630 A. D.).

The incident of the leper, which does not occur in 'Ravengaard og Memering,' links the English ballad with the story of Oliva, or Sibilla, in the Charlemagne cycle (see the Karlsmagnus Saga, Unger, p. 51; the old French chanson de geste of Doon l'Aleman, etc.). Compare also the Middle English romances Sir Triamour and The Erl of Tolous (the latter professedly a "lay of Britain"), and the old French romance of Joufrois.

A

'Sir Aldingar,' Percy MS., p. 68; Hales and Furnivall, I, 166.

- 1 Our king he kept a ffalse steward,
Men called him Sir Aldingar.
- 2 He wold haue layen by our comely
queene,
Her deere worshipp to haue betraide;
Our queene shee was a good woman,
And euer more said him nay.
- 3 Aldingar was offended in his mind,
With her hee was neuer content,
But he sought what meanes he cold find
out,
In a fyer to haue her brent.
- 4 There came a lame lazer to the kings
gates,
A lazer was blind and lame;
He tooke the lazer vpon his backe,
Vpon the queenes bed he did him lay.
- 5 He said, Lye still, lazer, wheras thou
lyest;
Looke thou goe not away;
Ile make thee a whole man and a sound
In two howres of a day.
- 6 And then went forth Sir Aldingar,
Our queene for to betray,
And then he mett with our comlye king,
Saies, God you saue and see!
- 7 'If I had space, as I haue grace,
A message I wold say to thee:'
'Say on, say on, Sir Aldingar,
Say thou on and vnto me.'
- 8 'I can let you now see one of [the]
greinos[est] sights
That euer Christen king did see;
Our queene hath chosen a new, new
loue,
She will haue none of thee.
- 9 'If shee had chosen a right good knight,
The lesse had beene her shame;
But she hath chosen a lazer man,
Which is both blinde and lame.'
- 10 'If this be true, thou Aldingar,
That thou dost tell to me,
Then will I make thee a rich knight
Both of gold and fee.

11 'But if it be false, Sir Aldingar,
That thou doest tell to me,
Then looke for noe other death
But to be hangd on a tree.
Goe with me,' saide our comly king,
'This lazar for to see.'

12 When the king he came into the queenes chamber,
Standing her bed befor,
'There is a lodly lome,' says Harry
King,
'For our dame Queene Elinor !

13 'If thou were a man, as thou art none,
Here thou sholdest be slaine;
But a paire of new gallows shall be built,
Thoust hang on them soe hye.

14 'And [a] fayre fyer there shalbe bett,
And brent our queene shalbee : '
Fforth then walked our comlye king,
And mett with our comly queene.

15 Saies, God you saue, our queene, Madam,
And Christ you saue and see !
Heere you [haue] chosen a new, new
loue,
And you will haue none of mee.

16 'If you had chosen a right good knight,
The lesse had beene your shame;
But you haue chosen a lazar man,
That is both blind and lame.'

17 'Euer alacke !' said our comly queene,
'Sir Aldingar is false to mee;
But euer alacke !' said our comly queene,
'Euer alas, and woe is mee !

18 'I had thought sweuens had neuer been
true;
I haue prooued them true at the last;
I dreamed in my sweanen on Thursday at eueninge,
In my bed wheras I lay,

19 'I dreamed a grype and a grimlie beast
Had carryed my crowne away,
My gorgett and my kirtle of golde,
And all my faire heade-geere.

20 'How he wold haue worryed me with his tush,
And borne me into his nest,

Saving there came a little hawk,
Flying out of the east.

21 'Saving there came a little hawke,
Which men call a merlion;
Vntill the ground he stroke him downe,
That dead he did fall downe.

22 'Giffe I were a man, as I am none,
A battell I would proue;
I wold fight with that false traitor;
Att him I cast my gloue !

23 'Seing I am able noe battell to make,
You must grant me, my leege, a
knight,
To fight with that traitor, Sir Aldingar,
To maintaine me in my right.'

24 'I'le giue thee forty dayes,' said our
king,
'To seeke thee a man therin;
If thou find not a man in forty dayes,
In a hott fyer thou shall brenn.'

25 Our queene sent forth a messenger;
He rode fast into the south;
He rode the countrys through and through,
Soe ffar vnto Portsmouth.

26
He cold find never a man in the south
country
That wold fight with the knight soe keene.

27 The second messenger the queen forth sent
Rode far into the east;
But, blessed be God made sunn and moone !
He sped then all of the best.

28 As he rode then by one riuer side,
There he mett with a little child;
He seemed noe more in a mans likenesse
Then a child of four yeeres old.

29 He askt the queenes messenger how far he rode;
Loth he was him to tell;
The little one was offended att him,
Bid him adew, farwell.

- 30 Said, Turne thou againe, thou messenger,
Greete our queene well from me;
When bale is att hyest, boote is att next;
Helpe enough there may bee.
- 31 'Bid our queene remember what she did dreame
In her bedd wheras shee lay;
Shee dreamed the grype and the grimly beast
Had carryed her crowne away;
- 32 'Her gorgett and her kirtle of gold,
Alsoe her faire head-geere;
He wold haue werryed her with his tushe,
And borne her into his nest.
- 33 'Saving there came a little hawke,
Men call him a merlyon;
Vntill the ground he did strike him downe,
That dead he did ffall downe.
- 34 'Bidd the queene be merry att her hart,
Euermore light and glad;
When bale is att hyest, boote is at next,
Helpe enoughe there shalbe.'
- 35 Then the queenes messenger rode backe,
A gladed man then was hee;
When he came before our queene,
A gladd woman then was shee.
- 36 Shee gaue the messenger twenty pound,
O lord, in gold and ffee;
Saies, Spend and spare not while this doth last,
Then feitch thou more of me.
- 37 Our queene was put in a tunne to burne,
She thought no thing but death;
Thé were ware of the little one
Came ryding forth of the east.
- 38 With a mu
A lonelie child was hee;
When he came to that fier,
He light the queene full nigh.
- 39 Said, Draw away these brands of fire
Lie burning before our queene,
And feitch me hither Sir Aldingar,
That is a knight soe keene.
- 40 When Aldingar see that little one,
Ffull litle of him hee thought;
If there had beene halfe a hundred such,
Of them he wold not haue wrought.
- 41 Hee sayd, Come hither, Sir Aldingar;
Thou seemust as bigge as a ffooder;
I trust to God, ere I haue done with thee,
God will send to vs [an] anger.
- 42 Saies, The first stroke that 's giuen, Sir Aldingar,
I will giue vnto thee,
And if the second giue thou may,
Looke then thou spare not mee.
- 43 The litle one pulld forth a well good sword,
I-wis itt was all of guilt;
It cast light there over that feild,
It shone soe all of guilt.
- 44 He stroke the first stroke att Aldingar,
He stroke away his leggs by his knee;
.
.
- 45 Sayes, Stand vp, stand vp, thou false traitor,
And fight vpon thy feete;
For and thou thrine as thou begins,
Of a height wee shalbe meete.
- 46 'A preist, a preist,' sayes Aldingar,
'Me for to honzle and shrine!
A preist, a preist,' sayes Aldingar,
'While I am a man liuing a-lie!
- 47 'I wold haue laine by our comlie queene;
To it shee wold neuer consent;
I thought to haue betrayd her to our king,
In a fyer to haue had her brent.
- 48 'There came a lame lazar to the kings gates,
A lazar both blind and lame;
I tooke the lazar vpon my backe,
In the Queenes bed I did him lay.
- 49 'I bad him, Lie still, lazar, where he lay,
Looke he went not away;
I wold make him a whole man and a sound
In two houres of a day.

- 50
 'Euer alacke !' sayes Sir Aldingar,
 'Falsing neuer doth well;
- 51 'Forgiue, forgiue me, queene, Madam !
 For Christs loue forgiue me !'
 'God forgaue his death, Aldingar,
 And freely I forgiue thee.'
- 52 'Now take thy wife, thou King Harry,
 And loue her as thou shold;
 Thy wiffe shee is as true to thee
 As stone that lies on the castle wall.'
- 53 The lazar vnder the gallow tree
 Was a pretty man and small;
 The lazar vnder the gallow tree
 Was made steward in King Henerys
 hall.

B

'Sir Hugh le Blond,' Minstrelsy of the Scottish Border, III, 51, 1803. Communicated to Scott by K. Williamson Burnet, of Mouboddo, as written down from the recitation of an old woman, long in the service of the Arbuthnot family.

- 1 THE birds sang sweet as ony bell,
 The world had not their make;
 The queen she's gone to her chamber,
 With Rodingham to talk.
- 2 'I love you well, my queen, my dame,
 Bove land and rents so clear,
 And for the love of you, my queen,
 Would thole pain most severe.'
- 3 'If well you love me, Rodingham,
 I'm sure so do I thee;
 I love you well as any man,
 Save the king's fair bodye.'
- 4 'I love you well, my queen, my dame,
 'Tis truth that I do tell;
 And for to lye a night with you,
 The salt seas I would sail.'
- 5 'Away, away, O Rodingham !
 You are both stark and stoor;
 Would you defile the king's own bed,
 And make his queen a whore ?

- 6 'To-morrow you 'd be taken sure,
 And like a traitor slain,
 And I 'd be burned at a stake,
 Altho I be the queen.'
- 7 He then steppd out at her room-door,
 All in an angry mood,
 Untill he met a leper-man,
 Just by the hard way-side.
- 8 He intoxicate the leper-man,
 With liquors very sweet,
 And gave him more and more to drink,
 Until he fell asleep.
- 9 He took him in his arms two,
 And carried him along,
 Till he came to the queen's own bed,
 And there he laid him down.
- 10 He then steppd out of the queen's
 bower,
 As swift as any roe,
 Till he came to the very place
 Where the king himself did go.
- 11 The king said unto Rodingham,
 What news have you to me ?
 He said, Your queen's a false woman,
 As I did plainly see.
- 12 He hastend to the queen's chamber,
 So costly and so fine,
 Until he came to the queen's own bed,
 Where the leper-man was lain.
- 13 He looked on the leper-man,
 Who lay on his queen's bed;
 He lifted up the snaw-white sheets,
 And thus he to him said.
- 14 'Plooky, plooky are your cheeks,
 And plooky is your chin,
 And plooky are your armis twa,
 My bonny queen's layne in.
- 15 'Since she has lain into your arms,
 She shall not lye in mine;
 Since she has kissd your ugsome mouth,
 She never shall kiss mine.'
- 16 In anger he went to the queen,
 Who fell upon her knee;
 He said, You false, unchaste woman,
 What's this you've done to me ?

- 17 The queen then turnd herself about,
The tear blinded her ee:
'There's not a knight in a' your court
Dare give that name to me.'
- 18 He said, 'Tis true that I do say;
For I a proof did make;
You shall be taken from my bower,
And burned at a stake.
- 19 'Perhaps I'll take my word again,
And may repent the same,
If that you'll get a Christian man
To fight that Rodingham.'
- 20 'Alass! alass!' then cried our queen,
'Alas, and woe to me!
There's not a man in all Scotland
Will fight with him for me.'
- 21 She breathed unto her messengers,
Sent them south, east, and west;
They could find none to fight with
him,
Nor enter the contest.
- 22 She breathed on her messengers,
She sent them to the north;
And there they found Sir Hugh le Blond,
To fight him he came forth.
- 23 When unto him they did unfold
The circumstance all right,
He bade them go and tell the queen
That for her he would fight.
- 24 The day came on that was to do
That dreadful tragedy;
Sir Hugh le Blond was not come up,
To fight for our lady.
- 25 'Put on the fire,' the monster said,
'It is twelve on the bell;'
'Tis scarcely ten, now,' said the
king,
'I heard the clock mysell.'
- 26 Before the hour the queen is brought,
The burning to proceed;
In a black velvet chair she's set,
A token for the dead.
- 27 She saw the flames ascending high,
The tears blinded her ee:
'Where is the worthy knight,' she said,
'Who is to fight for me?'
- 28 Then up and spak the king himsell:
'My dearest, have no doubt,
For youder comes the man himsel,
As bold as eer set out.'
- 29 They then advanced to fight the duel,
With swords of temperd steel;
Till down the blood of Rodingham
Came running to his heel.
- 30 Sir Hugh took out a lusty sword,
'T was of the metal clear,
And he has pierced Rodingham
Till 's heart-blood did appear.
- 31 'Confess your treachery, now,' he said,
'This day before you die;'
'I do confess my treachery,
I shall no longer lye.
- 32 'I like to wicked Haman am,
This day I shall be slain:'
The queen was brought to her chamber,
A good woman again.
- 33 The queen then said unto the king,
Arbattle's near the sea;
Give it unto the northern knight,
That this day fought for me.
- 34 Then said the king, Come here, Sir
Knight,
And drink a glass of wine,
And, if Arbattle's not enough,
To it we'll Fordoun join.

Note-Book, January 1, 1830, p. 8.
- 1 THEY've putten her into prison strang,
A twalmon lang and mair,
Until the mice and wild rottens
Did tear her yallow hair.
- * * * * *
- 2 'One shake o your han,' said Rodingham,
'One shak o your han gie me:'
'I cam na here for shaking hans,
But to fight maist desperatelie.'

- 3 'It's nae ten strucken on the clock,
Nor eleven on the bell:'
'We'll doe ill deeds anew ere night,
Tho it were strucken twall.'

KING ESTMERE

'King Estmere' occurred at page 249 of Percy's folio manuscript, but the three leaves on which it was written were "unfortunately torn out" by Percy to send to the press, and the genuine form of the ballad was thereby put beyond recovery.

We are told by Percy in a note to stanza 63, that though liberties have been taken with that portion of the ballad which follows, yet wherever the fourth edition differs from the preceding ones it has been brought nearer to the folio. Some notes of readings of the folio are also furnished in the fourth edition (and are here restored) which were not given in the others. While we cannot but be vexed that so distinguished a ballad, not injured much, so far as we can see, by time, should not come down to us as it came to Percy, our loss must not be exaggerated. The changes made by the editor, numerous enough, no doubt, cannot be very material until we approach the end. Stanzas 63-66 are entirely suspicious.

'King Estmere' resembles in a general way a series of German poems in which a young king (or his guardians) is nice about a wife, and the princess proposed to him is won only with great difficulty: Ornit, Hugdietrich, Oswald, Orendel, Dietwart (in Dietrichs Flucht). The names of Adler and Estmere appear again in a short romance in the Percy manuscript (Hales and Furnivall, II, 296), in which the story is that of Hugdietrich in the Heldenbuch.

a. Percy's Reliques, ed. of 1794, I, 64. b. Edition of 1765, I, 58.

- 1 HEARKEN to me, gentlemen,
Come and you shall heare;
He tell you of two of the boldest brether
That ever borne were.
- 2 The tone of them was Adler Younge,
The tother was Kyng Estmere;
The were as bolde men in their deeds
As any were, farr and neare.
- 3 As they were drinking ale and wine
Within his brother's hall,

- 'When will ye marry a wyfe, brother,
A wyfe to glad us all?'

- 4 Then bespake him Kyng Estmere,
And answered him hartilye:
'I know not that ladye in any land,
That's able to marrye with mee.'
- 5 'Kyng Adland hath a daughter, brother,
Men call her bright and sheene;
If I were kyng here in your stead,
That ladye shold be my queene.'
- 6 Saies, Reade me, reade me, deare brother,
Throughout merry England,
Where we might find a messenger
Betwixt us towe to sende.
- 7 Saies, You shal ryde yourselfe, brother,
He beare you companye;
Many a man throughe fals messengers
is deceived,
And I feare lest soe shold wee.
- 8 Thus the renisht them to ryde,
Of twoe good renisht steeds,
And when the came to King Adlands
halle,
Of redd gold shone their weeds.
- 9 And when the came to Kyng Adlands
hall,
Before the goodlye gate,
There they found good Kyng Adland
Rearing himselfe theratt.
- 10 'Now Christ thee save, good Kyng Adland;
Now Christ you save and see:'
Sayd, You be welcome, King Estmere,
Right hartilye to mee.
- 11 'You have a daughter,' said Adler
Younge,
'Men call her bright and sheene;
My brother wold marrye her to his
wiffe,
Of Englande to be queene.'
- 12 'Yesterday was att my deere daughter
The king his sonne of Spayn,
And then she nicked him of naye,
And I doubt sheele do you the same.

- 13 'The kyng of Spayne is a foule paynim,
And 'leeveth on Mahound,
And pitye it were that fayre ladye
Shold marry a heathen hound.'
- 14 'But grant to me,' sayes Kyng Estmere,
'For my love I you praye,
That I may see your daughter deere
Before I goe hence awaye.'
- 15 'Although itt is seven yeers and more
Since my daughter was in halle,
She shall come once downe for your
sake,
To glad my guestes alle.'
- 16 Downe then came that mayden fayre,
With ladyes laced in pall,
And halfe a hundred of bold knightes,
To bring her [from] bowre to hall,
And as many gentle squiers,
To tend upon them all.
- 17 The talents of golde were on her head
sette
Hanged low downe to her knee,
And everye ring on her small finger
Shone of the chrystall free.
- 18 Saies, God you save, my deere madam,
Saies, God you save and see:
Said, You be welcome, Kyng Estmere,
Right welcome unto mee.
- 19 'And, if you love me, as you saye,
Soe well and hartilee,
All that ever you are comen about
Soone sped now itt shal bee.'
- 20 Then bespake her father deare:
My daughter, I saye naye;
Remember well the kyng of Spayne,
What he sayd yesterdaye.
- 21 'He wold pull downe my halles and castles,
And reave me of my lyfe;
I cannot blame him if he doe,
If I reave him of his wyfe.
- 22 'Your castles and your towres, father,
Are stronglye built aboute,
And therefore of the king his sonne of Spaine
Wee neede not stande in doubt.
- 23 'Plight me your troth, now, Kyng
Estmere,
By heaven and your righte hand,
That you will marrye me to your wyfe,
And make me queene of your land.'
- 24 Then Kyng Estmere he plight his troth,
By heaven and his righte hand,
That he wolde marrye her to his wyfe,
And make her queene of his land.
- 25 And he tooke leave of that ladye fayre,
To goe to his owne countree,
To fetch him dukes and lordes and knightes,
That marryed the might bee.
- 26 They had not ridden scant a myle,
A myle forthe of the towne,
But in did come the kyng of Spayne,
With kempes many one.
- 27 But in did come the kyng of Spayne,
With manye a bold barone,
Tone day to marrye Kyng Adlands
daughter,
Tother daye to carrye her home.
- 28 Shee sent one after Kyng Estmere,
In all the spede might bee,
That he must either turne againe and fghte,
Or goe home and loose his ladye.
- 29 One whyle then the page he went,
Another while he ranne;
Till he had oretaken King Estmere,
I-wis he never blanne.
- 30 'Tydings, tydings, Kyng Estmere !'
'What tydings now, my boye ?'
'O tydings I can tell to you,
That will you sore annoye.
- 31 'You had not ridden scant a mile,
A mile out of the towne,
But in did come the kyng of Spayne,
With kempes many a one.
- 32 'But in did come the kyng of Spayne,
With manye a bold barone,
Tone daye to marrye King Adlands
daughter,
Tother daye to carry her home.

33 'My ladye fayre she greetes you well,
And ever-more well by mee;
You must either turne againe and fighte,
Or goe home and loose your ladye.'

34 Saies, Reade me, reade me, deere brother,
My reade shall ryse at thee,
Whether it is better to turne and fighte,
Or goe home and loose my ladye.

35 'Now hearken to me,' sayes Adler
Yonge,
'And your reade must rise at me;
I quicklye will devise a waye
To sette thy ladye free.

36 'My mother was a westerne woman,
And learned in gramarye,
And when I learned at the schole,
Something shee taught itt mee.

37 'There growes an hearbe within this field,
And iff it were but knowne,
His color, which is whyte and redd,
It will make blacke and browne.

38 'His color, which is browne and blacke,
Itt will make redd and whyte;
That sworde is not in all Englande
Upon his coate will byte.

39 'And you shal be a harper, brother,
Out of the north cuntrye,
And Ile be your boy, soe faine of fighte,
And beare your harpe by your knee.

40 'And you shal be the best harper
That ever tooke harpe in hand,
And I wil be the best singer
That ever sung in this lande.

41 'Itt shal be written in our forheads,
All and in grammarye,
That we towe are the boldest men
That are in all Christentye.'

42 And thus they renisht them to ryde,
Of tow good renisht steedes,
And when they came to King Adlands
hall,
Of redd gold shone their weedes.

43 And whan the came to Kyng Adlands
hall
Untill the fayre hall-yate,

There they found a proud porter,
Rearing himselfe thereatt.

44 Sayes, Christ thee save, thou proud por-
ter,
Sayes, Christ thee save and see:
'Nowe you be welcome,' sayd the porter,
'Of what land soever ye bee.'

45 'Wee beene harpers,' sayd Adler Younge,
'Come out of the northe cuntrye;
Wee beene come hither untill this place
This proud weddinge for to see.'

46 Sayd, And your color were white and redd,
As it is blacke and browne,
I wold saye King Estmere and his brother
Were comen untill this towne.

47 Then they pulled out a ryng of gold,
Layd itt on the porters arme:
'And ever we will thee, proud porter,
Thow wilt saye us no harme.'

48 Sore he looked on Kyng Estmere,
And sore he handled the ryng,
Then opened to them the fayre hall-yates,
He lett for no kind of thyng.

49 Kyng Estmere he stabled his steede
Soe fayre att the hall-bord;
The froth that came from his brydle
bitte
Light in Kyng Bremors beard.

50 Saies, Stable thy steed, thou proud
harper,
Saies, Stable him in the stalle;
It doth not beseeme a proud harper
To stable his steed in a kyngs halle.

51 'My ladde he is so lither,' he said,
'He will doe nought that's meete;
And is there any man in this hall
Were able him to beate?'

52 'Thou speakst proud words,' sayes the king of Spaine,
'Thou harper, here to mee;
There is a man within this halle
Will beate thy ladd and thee.

53 'O let that man come downe,' he said,
'A sight of him wold I see;

And when hee hath beaten well my ladd,
Then he shall beate of mee.'

54 Downe then came the kemperye man,
And looked him in the eare;
For all the gold that was under heaven,
He durst not neigh him neare.

55 'And how now, kempe,' said the kyng of Spaine,
'And how, what aileth thee?'
He saies, It is writt in his forehead,
All and in gramarye,
That for all the gold that is under heaven,
I dare not neigh him nye.

56 Then Kyng Estmere pulld forth his
harpe,
And plaid a pretty thinge;
The ladye upstart from the borde,
And wold have gone from the king.

57 'Stay thy harpe, thou proud harper,
For Gods love I pray thee;
For and thou playes as thou beginns,
Thou 'lt till my bryde from mee.'

58 He stroake upon his harpe againe,
And playd a pretty thinge;
The ladye lough a loud laughter,
As shee sate by the king.

59 Saies, Sell me thy harpe, thou proud
harper,
And thy stringes all;
For as many gold nobles thou shalt have,
As heere bee ringes in the hall.

60 'What wold ye doe with my harpe,' he
sayd,
'If I did sell itt yee?'
'To playe my wiffe and me a fitt,
When abed together wee bee.'

61 'Now sell me,' quoth hee, 'thy bryde
soe gay,
As shee sits by thy knee;
And as many gold nobles I will give
As leaves been on a tree.'

62 'And what wold ye doe with my bryde
soe gay,
Iff I did sell her thee?

More seemelye it is for her fayre bodye
To lye by mee then thee.'

63 Hee played agayne both loud and shrille,
And Adler he did syng,
'O ladye, this is thy owne true love,
Noe harper, but a kyng.

64 'O ladye, this is thy owne true love,
As playnlye thou mayest see,
And Ile rid thee of that foule paynim
Who partes thy love and thee.'

65 The ladye looked, the ladye blushte,
And blushte and lookt agayne,
While Adler he hath drawne his brande,
And hath the sowdan slayne.

66 Up then rose the kemperye men,
And loud they gan to crye:
'Ah! traytors, yee have slayne our
kyng,
And therefore yee shall dye.'

67 Kyng Estmere threwe the harpe asyde,
And swith he drew his brand,
And Estmere he and Adler Yonge
Right stiffe in stour can stand.

68 And aye their swordes soe sore can byte,
Throughe help of gramarye,
That soone they have slayne the kem-
perye men,
Or forst them forth to flee.

69 Kyng Estmere tooke that fayre ladye,
And marryed her to his wiffe,
And brought her home to merry Eng-
land,
With her to lead his life.

SIR CAWLIN

The copy of this ballad in the Percy manuscript, the only one known to exist, shows very great carelessness on the part of the tran-scriber, or of some predecessor. It begins with two stanzas, which manifestly belong to an historical ballad, and have only a verbal connection with what follows. There is a large omission after the 125th verse (the 28th stanza as here printed), though the writing is continuous. There are also several difficult or unintelligible passages, even more than are usually met with in this manuscript. As published in the Reliques of Ancient English Poetry, 'Sir Cawline' is extended to nearly twice the amount of what is found in the manuscript, and a tragical turn is forced upon the story.

'Sir Cawline' may possibly be formed upon a romance in stanzas which itself was composed from earlier ballads. The first adventure resembles one in the romance of Eger, Grime and Gray-Steel. Gervase of Tilbury has a story of an ancient entrenchment in the bishopric of Ely, where anybody could have a passage at arms with an unearthly warrior, by moonlight only, by simply calling out, "Come, knight, and meet knight." Scott has introduced a spectral combat of this sort into his Marmion, Canto iii, sts. 23-25. Cf. also the Old French Lai de l'Espine, wrongly ascribed to Marie de France. There is a close resemblance between 'Sir Cawline' and the story of Sir Eglamour (Thornton Romances, p. 121; Percy MS., Hales and Furnivall, II, 341).

Percy MS., p. 368; Hales and Furnivall, III, 3.

- 1 AND in that land dwells a king
Which does beare the bell ouer all,
And with him there dwelled a curteous
knight,
Sir Cawline men him call.
- 2 And he hath a ladye to his daughter,
Of ffashyon shee bath noe peere;
Knights and lordes they wooed her both,
Trusted to haue beene her feere.
- 3 Sir Cawline lounes her best of onë,
But nothing durst hee say
To discreene his counsell to noe man,
But deerlye louned this may.
- 4 Till itt beffell vpon a day,
Great dill to him was dight;
The maydens loue remoued his mind,
To care-bed went the knight.
- 5 And one while he spread his armes him
ffroe,
And cryed soe pittiouslye:
'Ffor the maydens lone that I haue
most minde
This day may comfort mee,

Or else ere noone I shalbe dead '
Thus can Sir Cawline say.

- 6 When our parish masse that itt was
done,
And our king was bowne to dine,
He sayes, Where is Sir Cawline,
That was wont to serue me with ale and wine ?
- 7 But then answered a curteous knight,
Ffast his hands wringing:
'Sir Cawline's sicke, and like to be dead
Without and a good leedginge.'
- 8 'Ffeitch yee downe my daughter deere,
Shee is a leeche ffull ffine;
I, and take you doe and the baken
bread,
And drinke he on the wine soe red,
And looke no daynti is ffor him to deare,
For ffull loth I wold him tine.'
- 9 This ladye is gone to his chamber,
Her maydens ffollowing nye;
'O well,' shee sayth, 'how doth my
lord ?'
'O sicke !' againe saith hee.
- 10 'I, but rise vp wightlye, man, for shame !
Neuer lye here soe cowardlye !
Itt is told in my ffathers hall,
Ffor my loue you will dye.'
- 11 'Itt is ffor your loue, ffayre ladye,
That all this dill I drye;
Ffor if you wold comfort me with a kisse,
Then were I brought ffrom bale to blisse,
Noe longer here wold I lye.'
- 12 'Alas ! soe well you know, Sir knight,'
.
- 13
I cannott bee your peere:
'Ffor some deeds of armes ffaine wold
I doe,
To be your bacheeleere.'
- 14 'Vpon Eldrige Hill there growes a thorne,
Vpon the mores brodinge;

And wold you, sir knight, wake there all night
To day of the other morninge ?

15 ' Ffor the eldrige king, that is mickle of might,
Will examine you beforne;
And there was neuer man that bare his liffe away
Since the day that I was borne.'

16 ' But I will ffor your sake, faire ladye,
Walke on the bents [soe] browne,
And Ile either bring you a readye token,
Or Ile neuer come to you againe.'

17 But this ladye is gone to her chamber,
Her maydens ffollowing bright,
And Sir Cawlin 's gone to the mores soe
broad,
Ffor to wake there all night.

18 Vnto midnight [that] the moone did rise,
He walked vp and downe,
And a lightsome bugle then heard he
blow,
Ouer the bents soe browne;
Saies hee, And if cryance come vntill my
hart,
I am ffarr ffrom any good towne.

19 And he spyed, ene a litle him by,
A ffurious king and a ffell,
And a ladye bright his brydle led,
That seemlye itt was to see.

20 And soe fast hee called vpon Sir Caw-line,
Oh man, I redd the fflye !
Ffor if cryance come vntill thy hart,
I am a-feard least thou mun dye.

21 He sayes, [No] cryance comes to my
hart,
Nor ifaith I ffear not thee;
Ffor because thou minged not Christ before,
Thee lesse me dreadeth thee.

22 But Sir Cawline he shooke a speare;
The king was bold, and abode;
And the timber these two children bore
Soe soone in sunder slode;

Ffor they tooke and two good swords,
And they layden on good loades.

23 But the elridge king was mickle of
might,
And stiffly to the ground did stand;
But Sir Cawline, with an aukeward
stroke,
He brought ffrom him his hand,
I, and fflying ouer his head soe hye,
[It] fell downe of that lay land.

24 And his lady stood a litle thereby,
Ffast ringing her hands:
' For the maydens loue that you haue
most minde,
Smyte you my lord no more.

25 ' And hees neuer come vpon Eldrige
[Hill],
Him to sport, gamon, or play,
And to meete noe man of middle-earth
And that liues on Christs his lay.'

26 But he then vp and that eldryge king,
Sett him in his sadle againe,
And that eldryge king and his ladye .
To their castle are they gone.

27 And hee tooke then vp and that eldryge
sword,
As hard as any fflynt,
And soe he did those ringes fine,
Harder then ffyer, and brent.

28 Ffirst he presented to the kings daughter
The hand, and then the sword,

* * * * *

29 ' Bnt a serre buffett you haue him giuen,
The king and the crowne,' shee sayd:
' I, but four and thirty stripes
Comen beside the rood.'

30 And a gyant that was both stiffe [and]
strong,
He lope now them amonge,
And vpon his squier flue heads he bare,
Vnmackley made was hee.

31 And he dranke then on the kings wine,
And hee put the cup in his sleue,

And all the trembled and were wan,
Ffor feare he shold them greeffe.

32 'He tell thee mine arrand, king,' he
sayes,
'Mine errand what I doe beere;
Ffor I will bren thy temples hye,
Or Ile haue thy daughter deere;
I, or else vpon yond more soe brood
Thou shalt ffind mee a ppeare.'

33 The king he turned him round about,
Lord, in his heart he was woe!
Says, Is there noe knight of the Round
Table
This matter will vndergoe?

34 'I, and hee shall haue my broad lands,
And keepe them well his liue;
I, and soe hee shall my daughter deere,
To be his weded wiffe.'

35 And then stood vp Sir Cawline,
His owne errand ffor to say:
'Ifaith, I wold to God, Sir,' sayd Sir
Cawline,
'That soldan I will assay.'

36 'Goe ffeitch me downe my eldrige
sword,
Ffor I woone itt att ffray:'
'But away, away!' sayd the hend sol-dan,
'Thou tarryest mee here all day!'

37 But the hend soldan and Sir Cawline
The ffought a summers day;
Now has hee slaine that hend soldan,
And brought his fine heads away.

38 And the king has betaken him his broade lands,
And all his venison;

39 'But take you doo and your lands [soe]
broad,
And brooke them well your liffe;
Ffor you promised mee your daughter deere,
To be my weded wiffe.'

40 'Now by my ffaith,' then sayes our king,
'Ffor that wee will not striffe,

Ffor thou shalt haue my daughter dere,
To be thy weded wiffe.'

41 The other morninge Sir Cawline rose
By the dawning of the day,
And vutill a garden did he goe
His mattins ffor to say;
And that bespyed a ffalse steward,
A shames death that he might dye!

42 And he lett a lyon out of a bande,
Sir Cawline ffor to teare;
And he had noe wepon him vpon,
Nor noe wepon did weare.

43 But hee tooke then his mantle of greene,
Into the lyons mouth itt thrust;
He held the lyon soe sore to the wall
Till the lyons hart did burst.

44 And the watchmen cryed vpon the walls
And sayd, 'Sir Cawline's slaine!
And with a beast is not ffull litle,
A lyon of mickle mayne:'
Then the kings daughter shee fell
downe,
'For peerlesse is my payne!'

45 'O peace, my lady!' sayes Sir Caw-
line,
'I hane bought thy loue ffull deere;
O peace, my lady!' sayes Sir Cawline,
'Peace, lady, ffor I am heere!'

46 Then he did marry this kings daughter,
With gold and silner bright,
And fiftene sonnes this ladye beere
To Sir Cawline the knight.

FAIR ANNIE

A and B were not printed till the beginning of the nineteenth century. A was obtained "chiefly from the recitation of an old woman," but we are not informed who supplied the rest. A fragment (D) printed by Herd in 1769 (before any of the nine other versions), furnished stanzas 2-6, 12, 17, 19. A doubt may be hazarded whether stanzas 8-10 came from the old woman.

The Scandinavian ballad of 'Fair Annie' (Gründtvig, No. 258) is preserved in Danish and Swedish, and is in the main identical in plot with the English. It was perhaps transmitted from Low German. Various Dutch and German versions are also preserved. The story is also told in the Lai del Fresne of Marie de France (about 1180). This tale, of Breton origin, is some four hundred years older than any manuscript of the ballad. Comparison, however, shows that it is not the source either of the English or of the Low German and Scandinavian ballad. The tale and the ballad have a common source, which lies too far back for us to find.

'Lord Thomas and Fair Annie,' Minstrelsy of the Scottish Border, II, 102, 1802, chiefly from the recitation of an old woman residing near Kirkhill, in West Lothian.

- 1 'It's narrow, narrow, make your bed,
And learn to lie your lane;
For I'm ga'n oer the sea, Fair Annie,
A braw bride to bring hame.
Wi her I will get gowd and gear;
Wi you I neer got nane.
- 2 'But wha will bake my bridal bread,
Or brew my bridal ale?
And wha will welcome my brisk bride,
That I bring oer the dale?'
- 3 'It's I will bake your bridal bread,
And brew your bridal ale,
And I will welcome your brisk bride,
That you bring oer the dale.'
- 4 'But she that welcomes my brisk
bride
Maun gang like maiden fair;
She maun lace on her robe sae jimp,
And braid her yellow hair.'
- 5 'But how can I gang maiden-like,
When maiden I am nane?
Have I not born seven sons to thee,
And am with child again?'
- 6 She's taen her young son in her arms,
Another in her hand,
And she's up to the highest tower,
To see him come to land.
- 7 'Come up, come up, my eldest son,
And look oer yon sea-strand,
And see your father's new-come bride,
Before she come to land.'
- 8 'Come down, come down, my mother
dear,
Come frae the castle wa!
I fear, if langer ye stand there,
Ye'll let yoursell down fa.'
- 9 And she gaed down, and farther down,
Her love's ship for to see,
And the topmast and the mainmast
Shone like the silver free.
- 10 And she's gane down, and farther down,
The bride's ship to behold,
And the topmast and the mainmast
They shone just like the gold.
- 11 She's taen her seven sons in her hand,
I wot she didna fail;
She met Lord Thomas and his bride,
As they came oer the dale.
- 12 'You're welcome to your house, Lord
Thomas,
You're welcome to your land;
You're welcome with your fair ladye,
That you lead by the hand.
- 13 'You're welcome to your ha's, ladye,
You're welcome to your bowers;
You're welcome to your hame, ladye,
For a' that's here is yours.'
- 14 'I thank thee, Annie; I thank thee,
Annie,
Sae dearly as I thank thee;
You're the likest to my sister Annie,
That ever I did see.
- 15 'There came a knight out oer the sea,
And steald my sister away;
The shame scoup in his company,
And land where'er he gae!'
- 16 She hang ae napkin at the door,
Another in the ha,
And a' to wipe the trickling tears,
Sae fast as they did fa.
- 17 And aye she served the lang tables,
With white bread and with wine,
And aye she drank the wan water,
To had her colour fine.
- 18 And aye she served the lang tables,
With white bread and with brown;

- And ay she turned her round about,
Sae fast the tears fall down.
- 19 And he's taen down the silk napkin,
Hung on a silver pin,
And aye he wipes the tear trickling
A' down her cheik and chin.
- 20 And aye he turn'd him round about,
And smil'd amang his men;
Says, Like ye best the old ladye,
Or her that's new come hame?
- 21 When bells were rung, and mass was
sung,
And a' men bound to bed,
Lord Thomas and his new-come bride
To their chamber they were gaed.
- 22 Annie made her bed a little forbye,
To hear what they might say;
'And ever alas!' Fair Annie cried,
'That I should see this day!
- 23 'Gin my seven sons were seven young-rats,
Running on the castle wa,
And I were a grey cat mysell,
I soon would worry them a'.
- 24 'Gin my seven sons were seven young-
hares,
Running oer yon lilly lee,
And I were a grew hound mysell,
Soon worried they a' should be.'
- 25 And wae and sad Fair Annie sat,
And drearie was her sang,
And ever, as she sobbd and grat,
'Wae to the man that did the wrang!'
- 26 'My gown is on,' said the new-come
bride,
'My shoes are on my feet,
And I will to Fair Annie's chamber,
And see what gars her greet.
- 27 'What ails ye, what ails ye, Fair
Annie,
That ye make sic a moan?
Has your wine barrels cast the girds,
Or is your white bread gone?
- 28 'O wha was 't was your father, Annie,
Or wha was 't was your mother?

And had ye ony sister, Annie,
Or had ye ony brother?'

- 29 'The Earl of Wemyss was my father,
The Countess of Wemyss my mother;
And a' the folk about the house
To me were sister and brother.'
- 30 'If the Earl of Wemyss was your father,
I wot sae was he mine;
And it shall not be for lack o' gowd
That ye your love sall tine.
- 31 'For I have seven ships o' mine ain,
A' loaded to the brim,
And I will gie them a' to thee,
Wi' four to thine eldest son:
But thanks to a' the powers in heaven
That I gae maiden hame!'

B

'Burd Helen,' Jamieson's Popular Ballads,
II, 876, from the recitation of Mrs Arrot, of Aberbrothick.

- 1 THERE livd a lord on yon sea-side,
And he thought on a wile,
How he would go over the saut sea
A lady to beguile.
- 2 'O learn to mak your bed, Helen,
And learn to ly your lane,
For I'm gaun over the saut seas
A bright bride to bring hame.'
- 3 'How can I mak my bed,' she says,
'Unless I mak it wide,
Whan I have seven o' your sons
To lie down by my side?
- 4 'And the first o' your seven sons,
He rides a milk-white steed;
The second o' your seven sons
He wears a milk-white weed.
- 5 'The third ane o' your seven sons,
He draws baith ale and wine;
The fourth ane o' your seven sons,
He serves you when you dine.
- 6 'The fifth ane o' your seven sons,
He can baith read and write;
And the sixth ane o' your seven sons,
He is a' your heart's delight.

- 7 'And the youngest o your seven sons,
He sleeps on my breast-bane;
Whan him and I ly down at night,
For him rest get I nane.'
- 8 'O wha will bake my bridal bread,
And brew my bridal ale?
And wha will welcome my gae lady,
That I bring oer the dale?
- 9 'And sin ye've taen the turn in hand,
See that ye do it right,
And ilka chimly o the house,
That they be dearly dight.'
- 10 O a' the day she washd and wrang,
And a' the night she buik,
And she's awa to her chamber,
To gie her young son suck.
- 11 'Come here, come here, my eldest son,
And see what ye may see;
For yonder comes your father dear,
Your mother-in-law side be.'
- 12 She's taen a cake o the best bread,
A bottle o the best wine,
And a' the keys upon her arm,
And to the yates she's gaen.
- 13 'Ye are welcome hame, gay lady,' she
said,
'And ay ye are welcome hame;
And sae is a' the gentlewomen
That's wi you ridden and gane.
- 14 'You are welcome hame, gay lord,' she
said,
'And ay ye are welcome hame;
And sae is a' the gentlemen
That's wi you ridden and gane.'
- 15 She saird them up, she saird them down,
She saird them till and frae;
But when she went behind their backs,
The tear did blind her ee.
- 16 Whan day was gane, and night was
come,
And a' man boun to bed,
The bridegroom and the bonny bride
In their chamber was laid.
- 17 Burd Helen and her seven sons
Lay in a bower near by;

- 18 'If my seven sons were seven grey ratts,
To rin frae wa to wa,
And I mysel a good grey cat,
I would bite their back a-twa.
- 19 'If my seven sons were seven grey hares,
And them to rin a race,
And I mysel a good greyhound,
I would gie them a chace.'
- 20 Up and spak the bonny bride,
In chamber where she lay:
'There is a lady in this bower,
She will gae mad or day.'
- 21 'Lye still, lye still, my bonny bride,
Lie still and tak a sleep;
It's but ane o my wine puncheons;
Nae langer wad it keep.'
- 22 'King Henry was my father dear,
Queen Catherine was my mother,
Lady Anne she was my sister dear,
And Frederick was my brother.
- 23 'And whan I was six years of age,
They ca'd me Mary Mild;
I was stown frae my father's yate,
Whan I was but a child.'
- 24 Then up and spak the bonny bride,
By her lord as she lay:
'Lye down, lye down, my dear sister,
There's nae ill done for me.
- 25 'O seven ships conveyd me here,
And seven came oer the main;
And four o them shall stay wi you,
And three convey me hame.
- 26 'But when I gae hame to my father's
house,
They will laugh me to scorn,
To come awa a wedded wife,
Gae hame a maid the morn.'

E

'Lady Jane,' Jamieson-Brown MS., p. 20;
Jamieson's Popular Ballads, II, 371.

- 1 'O WHA will bake my bridal bread,
And brew my bridal ale?

- Wha will welcome my bright bride,
That I bring oer the dale ?'
- 2 'O I will bake your bridal bread,
An brew your bridal ale;
An I will welcome your bright bride,
That you bring oer the dale.'
- 3 'O she that welcomes my bright bride
Maun gang like maiden fair;
She maun lace her in her green cloathin,
And braid her yallow hair.'
- 4 'O how can I gang maiden like,
Whan maiden I am nane ?
Whan I ha born you seven sons,
An am wi bairn again ?'
- 5 The lady stood in her bowr door
An lookit oer the lan,
An there she saw her ain good lord.
Leadin his bride by the han.
- 6 She's dressd her sons i the scarlet
red,
Hersel i the dainty green,
An tho her cheek lookd pale and wan,
She well might ha been a queen.
- 7 She calld upon her eldest son:
'Look yonder what you see;
For yonder comes your father dear,
Your step-mother him wi.
- 8 'O you'r welcome hame, my ain good
lord,
To your ha's but an your bowrs;
You'r welcome hame, my ain good
lord,
To your castles an your towrs:
Sae is your bright bride yon beside,
She's fairer nor the flowers.'
- 9 'O whatn a lady's that ?' she says,
'That welcoms you an me ?
If I'm lang lady about this place,
Some good I will her dee.
She looks sae like my sister Jane,
Was stoln i the bowr frae me.'
- 10 O she has servd the lang tables,
Wi the white bread an the wine;
Bnt ay she drank the wan water,
To keep her colour fine.
- 11 An she gid by the first table,
An leugh amo them a';
But ere she reachd the second table,
She let the tears down fa.
- 12 She's taen a napkin lang an white,
An hung 't upon a pin;
It was to dry her watry eyes,
As she went out and in.
- 13 Whan bells were rung, an mass was
sung,
An a' man boun to bed,
The bride but an the bonny bridegroom
In ae chamber was laid.
- 14 She's taen her harp intill her han,
To harp this twa asleep;
An ay as she harped an she sang,
Full sorely did she weep.
- 15 'O seven fu fair sons I have born
To the good lord o this place,
An I wish that they were seven hares,
To run the castle race,
An I mysel a good gray houn,
An I woud gi them chase.
- 16 'O seven fu fair sons I have born
To the good lord o this ha;
I wish that they were seven rottens,
To rin the castle wa,
An I mysell a good gray cat,
I wot I woud worry them a'.
- 17 'The earle o Richmond was my father,
An the lady was my mother,
An a' the bairns bisides mysel
Was a sister an a brother.'
- 18 'Sing on, sing on, ye gay lady,
I wot ye hae sung in time;
Gin the earle o Richmond was your father,
I wot sae was he mine.'
- 19 'Rise np, rise up, my bierly bride;
I think my bed's but canl;
I woudna hear my lady lament
For your tocher ten times taul.
- 20 'O seven ships did bring you here,
An an sal tak you haine;
The leve I'll keep to your sister Jane,
For tocher she gat nane.'

CHILD WATERS

The variations in the several versions of this charming ballad, which has perhaps no superior in English, and if not in English perhaps nowhere, are not material. An exceedingly popular Scandinavian ballad (Grundtvig, No. 267) is manifestly of the same source, though the story is told in a very different way, the cruel trials to which the woman's love is put being entirely lacking. Another Scandinavian ballad (Grundtvig, No. 249) has a limited resemblance to 'Child Waters,' and there is a Piedmontese ballad (Nigra, No. 35) which has a good many similar incidents.

'Childe Waters,' Percy MS., p. 274; Hales and Furnivall, II, 269.

1 CHILDE WATTERS in his stable stoode,
And stroaket his milke-white steede;
To him came a faire young ladye
As ere did weare womans wee[de].

2 Saies, Christ you saue, good Chyld Waters!
Sayes, Christ you saue and see!
My girdle of gold, which was too longe,
Is now to short ffor mee.

3 'And all is with one chyld of yours,
I ffeelee sturre att my side;
My gowne of greene, it is to strayght;
Before it was to wide.'

4 'If the child be mine, Faire Ellen,' he sayd,
'Be mine, as you tell mee,
Take you Cheshire and Lancashire both,
Take them your owne to bee.

5 'If the child be mine, Ffaire Ellen,' he said,
'Be mine, as you doe sweare,
Take you Cheshire and Lancashire both,
And make that child your heyre.'

6 Shee saies, I had rather haue one kisse,
Child Waters, of thy mouth,
Then I wold haue Cheshire and Lancashire both,
That lyes by north and south.

7 'And I had rather haue a twinkling,
Child Waters, of your eye,
Then I wold haue Cheshire and Lancashire both,
To take them mine oune to bee.'

8 'To-morrow, Ellen, I must forth ryde
Soe ffarr into the north countrey;
The fairest lady that I can ffind,
Ellen, must goe with mee.'
'And euer I pray you, Child Watters,
Your ffootpage let me bee!'

9 'If you will my ffootpage be, Ellen,
As you doe tell itt mee,
Then you must cutt your gownne of greene
An inche aboue your knee.

10 'Soe must you doe your yellow lockes,
Another inch aboue your eye;
You must tell noe man what is my name;
My ffootpage then you shall bee.'

11 All this long day Child Waters rode,
Shee ran bare ffoote by his side;
Yett was he neuer soe curteous a knight
To say, Ellen, will you ryde?

12 But all this day Child Waters rode,
Shee ran barffoote thorow the broome;
Yett he was neuer soe curteous a knight
As to say, Put on your shoone.

13 'Ride softlye,' shee said, 'Child Waters;
Why doe you ryde soe ffast?
The child which is no mans but yours
My bodye itt will burst.'

14 He sayes, Sees thou yonder water, Ellen,
That fflowes from banke to brim?
'I trust to God, Child Waters,' shee said,
'You will neuer see mee swime.'

15 But when shee came to the waters side,
Shee sayled to the chinne:
'Except the lord of heauen be my speed,
Now must I learne to swime.'

16 The salt waters bare vp Ellens clothes,
Our Ladye bare vpp he[r] chinne,

And Child Waters was a woe man, good
Lord,
To ssee Faire Ellen swime.

- 17 And when shee ouer the water was,
Shee then came to his knee:
He said, 'Come hither, Ffaire Ellen,
Loe yonder what I see !
- 18 'Seest thou not yonder hall, Ellen ?
Of redd gold shine the yates;
There's four and twenty ffayre ladies,
The ffairest is my wordlye make.
- 19 'Seest thou not yonder hall, Ellen ?
Of redd gold shineth the tower;
There is four and twenty ffaire ladies,
The fairest is my paramoure.'
- 20 'I doe see the hall now, Child Waters,
That of redd gold shineth the yates;
God giue good then of your selfe,
And of your wordlye make !
- 21 'I doe see the hall now, Child Waters,
That of redd gold shineth the tower;
God giue good then of your selfe,
And of your paramoure !'
- 22 There were four and twenty ladies,
Were playing att the ball,
And Ellen, was the ffairest ladye,
Must bring his steed to the stall.
- 23 There were four and twenty faire ladies
Was playing att the chesse;
And Ellen, shee was the ffairest ladye,
Must bring his horsse to grasse.
- 24 And then bespake Child Waters sister,
And these were the words said shee:
You haue the prettyest ffootpage, brother,
That euer I saw with mine eye;
- 25 'But that his belly it is soe bigg,
His girdle goes wonderous hye;
And euer I pray you, Child Waters, Let him goe into the chamber with
mee.'
- 26 'It is more meete for a little ffootpage,
That has run through mosse and mire,
To take his snpper vpon his knee
And sitt downe by the kitchin fyre,

Then to goe into the chamber with any
ladye
That weares soe [rich] attyre.'

- 27 But when the had supped euery one,
To bedd they took the way;
He sayd, Come hither, my little footpage,
Harken what I doe say.
- 28 And goe thee downe into yonder towne,
And low into the street;
The ffairest ladye that thou can find,
Hyer her in mine armes to sleepe,
And take her vp in thine armes two,
For filing of her ffete.
- 29 Ellen is gone into the towne,
And low into the streete;
The fairest ladye that shee cold find
Shee hyred in his armes to sleepe,
And tooke her in her armes two,
For filing of her ffete.
- 30 'I pray you now, good Child Waters,
That I may creepe in att your bedds
ffete;
For there is noe place about this house
Where I may say a sleepe.'
- 31 This [night] and itt drone on affterward
Till itt was neere the day:
He sayd, Rise vp, my litle ffoote-page,
And giue my steed corne and hay;
And soe doe thou the good blacke oates,
That he may carry me the better away.
- 32 And vp then rose Ffaire Ellen,
And gaue his steed corne and hay,
And soe shee did and the good blacke
oates,
That he might carry him the better
away.
- 33 Shee layned her backe to the manger
side,
And greinouslye did groane;
And that beheard his mother deere,
And heard her make her moane.
- 34 Shee said, Rise vp, thou Child Waters,
I thinke thou art a cursed man;
For yonder is a ghost in thy stable,
That greinouslye doth groane,
Or else some woman laboures of child,
Shee is soe woe begone.

35 But vp then rose Child Waters,
And did on his shirt of silke;
Then he put on his other clothes
On his body as white as milke.

36 And when he came to the stable-dore,
Full still that hee did stand,
That hee might heare now Faire Ellen,
How shee made her monand.

37 Shee said, Lullabye, my owne deere
child!
Lullabye, deere child, deere!
I wold thy father were a king,
Thy mother layd on a beere!

38 'Peace now,' he said, 'good Faire Ellen,
And be of good cheere, I thee pray,
And the bridall and the churching both,
They shall bee vpon one day.'

B

a. 'Burd Ellen,' Jamieson-Brown MS., p. 22, taken down from Mrs Brown's recitation before 1783. b. A. Fraser Tytler's Brown MS.,
No. 9, as recited by Mrs Brown in 1800.

1 'I WARN ye all, ye gay ladies,
That wear scarlet an brown,
That ye dinna leave your father's house,
To follow young men frae town.'

2 'O here am I, a lady gay,
That wears scarlet an brown,
Yet I will leave my father's house,
An follow Lord John frae the town.'

3 Lord John stood in his stable-door,
Said he was bound to ride;
Burd Ellen stood in her bowr-door,
Said she'd rin by his side.

4 He's pitten on his cork-heeld shoone,
An fast awa rade he;
She's clade hersel in page array,
An after him ran she.

5 Till they came till a wan water,
An folks do ca it Clyde;
Then he's lookit oer his left shoulder,
Says, Lady, can ye wide?

6 'O I learnt it i my father house,
An I learnt it for my weal,

Wenneer I came to a wan water,
To swim like ony eel.'

7 But the firstin stap the lady stappit,
The water came til her knee;
'Ohon, alas!' said the lady,
'This water's oer deep for me.'

8 The nextin stap the lady stappit,
The water came till her middle;
An sighin says that gay lady,
I've wat my gouden girdle.

9 The nextin stap the lady stappit,
The water came till her pap;
An the bairn that was in her twa sides
For caul begane to quake.

10 'Lye still, lye still, my ain dear babe,
Ye work your mither wae;
Your father rides on high horse-back,
Cares little for us twae.'

11 O about the midst o Clyden water
There was a yeard-fast stane;
He lightly turnd his horse about,
An took her on him behin.

12 'O tell me this now, good Lord John,
An a word ye dinna lee,
How far it is to your lodgin,
Whare we this night maun be?'

13 'O see you nae yon castle, Ellen,
That shines sae fair to see?
There is a lady in it, Ellen,
Will sunder you an me.

14 'There is a lady in that castle
Will sunder you and I:'
'Betide me well, betide me wae,
I sal go there an try.'

15 'O my dogs sal eat the good white bread,
An ye sal eat the bran;
Then will ye sigh, an say, alas!
That ever I was a mau!'

16 'O I sal eat the good white bread,
An your dogs sal eat the bran;
An I hope to live an bless the day,
That ever ye was a man.'

17 'O my horse sal eat the good white meal,
An ye sal eat the corn;

- Then will ye curse the heavy hour
That ever your love was born.'
- 18 'O I sal eat the good white meal,
An your horse sal eat the corn;
An I ay sall bless the happy hour
That ever my love was born.'
- 19 O four an twenty gay ladies
Welcomd Lord John to the ha,
But a fairer lady then them a'
Led his horse to the stable sta.
- 20 An four an twenty gay ladies
Welcomd Lord John to the green,
But a fairer lady than them a'
At the manger stood alane.
- 21 Whan bells were rung, an mass was sung,
An a' men boun to meat,
Burd Ellen at a bye-table
Amo the foot-men was set.
- 22 'O eat an drink, my bonny boy,
The white bread an the beer:'
'The never a bit can I eat or drink,
My heart's sae full of fear.'
- 23 'O eat an drink, my bonny boy,
The white bread an the wine:'
'O I canna eat nor drink, master,
My heart's sae full of pine.'
- 24 But out it spake Lord John's mother,
An a wise woman was she:
'Whare met ye wi that bonny boy,
That looks sae sad on thee?
- 25 'Sometimes his cheek is rosy red,
An sometimes deadly wan;
He's liker a woman big wi bairn,
Than a young lord's serving man.'
- 26 'O it makes me laugh, my mother dear,
Sic words to hear frae thee;
He is a squire's ae dearest son,
That for love has followd me.
- 27 'Rise up, rise up, my bonny boy,
Gi my horse corn an bay:'
'O that I will, my master dear,
As quickly as I may.'
- 28 She's taen the hay under her arm,
The corn intill her han,

- An she's gane to the great stable,
As fast as eer she can.
- 29 'O room ye roun, my bonny broun steeds,
O room ye near the wa;
For the pain that strikes me thro my sides
Full soon will gar me fa.'
- 30 She's leand her back against the wa;
Strong travail seizd her on;
An even amo the great horse feet
Burd Ellen brought forth her son.
- 31 Lord John'[s] mither intill her bowr
Was sitting all alone,
Whan, i the silence o the night,
She heard fair Ellen's moan.
- 32 'Won up, won up, my son,' she says,
'Go se how a' does fare;
For I think I hear a woman's groans,
An a bairn greeting sair.'
- 33 O hastily he gat him up,
Stayd neither for hose nor shoone,
An he's doen him to the stable-door,
Wi the clear light o the moon.
- 34 He strack the door hard wi his foot,
An sae has he wi his knee,
An iron locks an iron bars
Into the floor flung he:
'Be not afraid, Burd Ellen,' he says,
'Ther's nane come in but me.'
- 35 Up he has taen his bonny young son,
An gard wash him wi the milk;
An up has he taen his fair lady,
Gard row her in the silk.
- 36 'Cheer up your heart, Burd Ellen,' he
says,
'Look nae mair sad nor wae;
For your marriage an your kirkin too
Sal baith be in ae day.'

There are points of resemblance between 'Fair Janet' and a ballad very popular in Scandinavia, 'King Valdemar and his Sister' (Grundtvig, No. 126), and also in Germany

(e. g., Müllenhoff, Sagen u. s. w. der Herzogthümer Schleswig-Holstein und Lauenburg, p. 492; Wunderhorn, 1808, II, 272). In both the Scandinavian and the German, however, the dancing is expressly devised as a test, and there are unspeakably ferocious features which are wanting in the Scottish ballad. A Breton ballad (Luzel, II, 6-15) likewise has the probation by dancing.

'Fair Janet,' Sharpe's Ballad Book, p. 1, as sung by an old woman in Perthshire.

- 1 'YE maun gang to your father, Janet,
Ye maun gang to him soon;
Ye maun gang to your father, Janet,
In case that his days are dune.'
- 2 Janet's awa to her father,
As fast as she could hie:
'O what's your will wi me, father?
O what's your will wi me?'
- 3 'My will wi you, Fair Janet,' he said,
'It is both bed and board;
Some say that ye loe Sweet Willie,
But ye maun wed a French lord.'
- 4 'A French lord maun I wed, father?
A French lord maun I wed?
Then, by my sooth,' quo Fair Janet,
'He's neer enter my bed.'
- 5 Janet's awa to her chamber,
As fast as she could go;
Wha's the first ane that tapped there,
But Sweet Willie her jo?
- 6 'O we maun part this love, Willie,
That has been lang between;
There's a French lord coming oer the
sea,
To wed me wi a ring;
There's a French lord coming oer the
sea,
To wed and tak me hame.'
- 7 'If we maun part this love, Janet,
It causeth mickle woe;
If we maun part this love, Janet,
It makes me into mourning go.'
- 8 'But ye maun gang to your three sisters,
Meg, Marion, and Jean;

Tell them to come to Fair Janet,
In case that her days are dune.'

- 9 Willie's awa to his three sisters,
Meg, Marion, and Jean:
'O haste, and gang to Fair Janet,
I fear that her days are dune.'
- 10 Some drew to them their silken hose,
Some drew to them their shoon,
Some drew to them their silk manteils,
Their coverings to put on,
And they're awa to Fair Janet,
By the hie light o the moon.
- * * * * *
- 11 'O I have born this babe, Willie,
Wi mickle toil and pain;
Take hame, take hame, your babe,
Willie,
For nurse I dare be nane.'
- 12 He's tane his young son in his arms,
And kisst him cheek and chin,
And he's awa to his mother's bower,
By the hie light o the moon.
- 13 'O open, open, mother,' he says,
'O open, and let me in;
The rain rains on my yellow hair,
And the dew drops oer my chin,
And I hae my young son in my arms,
I fear that his days are dune.'
- 14 With her fingers lang and sma
She lifted up the pin,
And with her arms lang and sma
Received the baby in.
- 15 'Gae back, gae back now, Sweet Willie,
And comfort your fair lady;
For where ye had but ae nourice,
Your young son shall hae three.'
- 16 Willie he was scarce awa,
And the lady put to bed,
Whan in and came her father dear:
'Make haste, and busk the bride.'
- 17 'There's a sair pain in my head, father,
There's a sair pain in my side;
And ill, O ill, am I, father,
This day for to be a bride.'

18 'O ye mann busk this bonny bride,
And put a gay mantle on;
For she shall wed this auld French
lord,
Gin she should die the morn.'

19 Some pat on the gay green robes,
And some pat on the brown;
But Janet put on the scarlet robes,
To shine foremost throw the town.

20 And some they mounted the black steed,
And some mounted the brown;
But Janet mounted the milk-white steed,
To ride foremost throw the town.

21 'O wha will guide your horse, Janet?
O wha will guide him best?'
'O wha but Willie, my true-love?
He kens I loe him best.'

22 And when they cam to Marie's kirk,
To tye the haly ban,
Fair Janet's cheek looked pale and wan,
And her colour gaed an cam.

23 When dinner it was past and done,
And dancing to begin,
'O we'll go take the bride's maidens,
And we'll go fill the ring.'

24 O ben than cam the auld French lord,
Saying, Bride, will ye dance with me?
'Awa, awa, ye auld French lord,
Your face I downa see.'

25 O ben than cam now Sweet Willie,
He cam with ane advance:
'O I'll go tak the bride's maidens,
And we'll go tak a dance.'

26 'I've seen ither days wi you, Willie,
And so has mony mae,
Ye would hae danced wi me mysel,
Let a' my maidens gae.'

27 O ben than cam now Sweet Willie,
Saying, Bride, will ye dance wi me?
'Aye, by my sooth, and that I will,
Gin my back should break in three.'

28 She had nae turned her throw the dance,
Throw the dance but thrice,
Whan she fell down at Willie's feet,
And up did never rise.

29 Willie's taen the key of his coffer,
And gien it to his man:
'Gae hame, and tell my mother dear
My horse he has me slain;
Bid her be kind to my young son,
For father he has naue.'

30 The tane was buried in Marie's kirk,
And the tither in Marie's quire;
Out of the tane there grew a birk,
And the tither a bonny brier.

'Fair Janet and Sweet William,' Mother-
well's MS., p. 857, from the recitation of
Agnes Lyle, Kilbarchan.

1 'If you do love me weel, Willie,
Ye'll shew to me truelie;
Ye'll build to me a bonnie ship,
And set her on the sea.'

2 He did love her very weel,
He shewed to her trulie;
He builded her a bonnie ship,
And set her on the sea.

3 They had not sailed one league, one league,
One league but only three,
Till sharp, sharp showers fair Janet took,
She grew sick and like to die.

4 'If you do love me weel, Willie,
Ye'll shew to me trulye;
Ye'll tak me to my mother's bower,
Whare I was wont to be.'

5 He did love her very weel,
He shewed to her trulye;
He took her to her mother's bower,
Whare she was wont to be.

6 'It's ye'll stand up at my richt side,
You will on tiptaes stand,
Until you hear your auld son weep,
But an your Janet mourn.

7 'Come take your auld son in your arms,
He is both large and lang;
Come take your auld son in your arms,
And for a nourice gang.'

8 He is to his mother's bowers,
An hour or it struck nine:

- 'I have a babe into my arms,
He'll die for nouricing.'
- 9 'Goe home, go home, my son,' she
says,
'And mak thy Jenny blythe;
If ae nurse winna sere her son,
It's I'll provide him five.'
- 10 Fair Janet was nae weel lichtre,
Nor weel down on her side,
Till ben and cam her father dear,
Saying, Wha will busk our bride?
- 11 Ben and cam her brethren dear,
Saying, Wha will busk our bride?
And wha will saddle our bride's horse?
Whom ahint will she ride?
- 12 'Hold your tongue, my brethren dear,
And let your folly be,
For I'm sae fair and full of hair
Sma busking will serve me.
- 13 'Hold your tongue, my brethren dear,
And let your folly be,
For I will ride behint William,
He will best wait on me.
- 14 'Willie, lay the saddle saft,
And lead the bridle soun,
And when we come to Mary's Kirk,
Ye'll set me hooly down.'
- 15 Supper scarslie was owre,
Nor musick weel fa'n to,
Till ben and cam the bride's brethren,
Saying, Bride, ye'll dance wi me:
'Awa, awa, my brethren dear,
For dancing's no for me.'
- 16 Ben and came her ain bridegroom,
Saying, Bride, ye'll dance wi me;
She says, Awa, awa, ye southland dog,
Your face I downa see.
- 17 Ben and cam then Sweet Willie,
Saying, Bride, ye'll dance wi me:
'Oh I will dance the floor once owre,
Tho my heart should break in three.'
- 18 'Oh no, oh no,' said Sweet William,
'Let no such things eer be;
But I will cut my glove in two,
And I'll dance for thee and me.'

- 19 She hadna danced the floor once owre,
I'm sure she hadna thrice,
Till she fell in a deadly swound,
And from it neer did rise.
- 20 Out and spak her ain bridegroom,
And an angry man was he:
'This day she has gien me the gecks,
Yet she must bear the scorn;
There's not a bell in merry Linkum
Shall ring for her the morn.'
- 21 Out and spoke then Sweet William,
And a sorry man was he:
'Altho she has gien you the gecks,
She will not bear the scorn;
There's not a bell in merry Linkum
But shall ring for her the morn.'
- 22 There was not a bell in merry Linkum
But they tinkled and they rang,
And a' the birds that flew above,
They changed their notes and sang.

LADY MAISRY

'Lady Maisry' has a limited, and perhaps quite accidental resemblance to the Scandinavian-German ballad spoken of in the preface to 'Fair Janet' (No. 64).

A

'Lady Maisry,' Jamieson-Brown MS., p. 24; Jamieson's Popular Ballads, i, 73.

1. THE young lords o the north country
Have all a wooing gone,
To win the love of Lady Maisry,
But o them she woud hae none.
- 2 O they hae courted Lady Maisry
Wi a' kin kind of things;
An they hae sought her Lady Maisry
Wi broches an wi rings.
- 3 An they ha sought her Lady Maisry
Frae father and frae mother;
An they ha sought her Lady Maisry
Frae sister an frae brother.
- 4 An they ha followd her Lady Maisry
Thro chamber an thro ha;

- But a' that they could say to her,
Her answer still was Na.
- 5 'O had your tongues, young men,' she
says,
'An think nae mair o me;
For I've gien my love to an English
lord,
An think nae mair o me.'
- 6 Her father's kitchy-boy heard that,
An ill death may he dee!
An he is on to her brother,
As fast as gang could he.
- 7 'O is my father an my mother well,
But an my brothers three?
Gin my sister Lady Maisry be well,
There's naething can ail me.'
- 8 'Your father and your mother is well,
But an your brothers three;
Your sister Lady Maisry's well,
So big wi bairn gangs she.'
- 9 'Gin this be true you tell to me,
My mailison light on thee!
But gin it be a lie you tell,
You sal be hangit hie.'
- 10 He's done him to his sister's bowr,
Wi meikle doole an care;
An there he saw her Lady Maisry,
Kembing her yallow hair.
- 11 'O wha is aught that bairn,' he says,
'That ye sae big are wi?
And gin ye winna own the truth,
This moment ye sall dee.'
- 12 She turnd her right an roun about,
An the kem fell frae her han;
A trembling seizd her fair body,
An her rosy cheek grew wan.
- 13 'O pardon me, my brother dear,
An the truth I'll tell to thee;
My bairn it is to Lord William,
An he is betrothd to me.'
- 14 'O cond na ye gotten dukes, or lords,
Intill your ain country,
That ye draw up wi an English dog,
To bring this shame on me?
- 15 'But ye maun gi up the English lord,
Whan youre young babe is born;
For, gin you keep by him an hour
langer,
Your life sall be forlorn.'
- 16 'I will gi up this English blood,
Till my young babe be born;
But the never a day nor hour langer,
Tho my life should be forlorn.'
- 17 'O whare is a' my merry young men,
Whom I gi meat and fee,
To pu the thistle and the thorn,
To burn this wile whore wi?'
- 18 'O whare will I get a bonny boy,
To help me in my need,
To rin wi hast to Lord William,
And bid him come wi speed?'
- 19 O out it spake a bonny boy,
Stood by her brother's side:
'O I would rin your errand, lady,
Oer a' the world wide.
- 20 'Aft have I run your errands, lady,
Whan blawn baith win and weet;
But now I'll rin your errand, lady,
Wi sat tears on my cheek.'
- 21 O whan he came to broken briggs,
He bent his bow and swam,
An whan he came to the green grass
growin,
He slackd his shoone and ran.
- 22 O whan he came to Lord William's
gates,
He baed na to chap or ca,
But set his bent bow till his breast,
An lightly lap the wa;
An, or the porter was at the gate,
The boy was i the ha.
- 23 'O is my biggins broken, boy?
Or is my towers won?
Or is my lady lighter yet,
Of a dear daughter or son?'
- 24 'Your biggin is na broken, sir,
Nor is your towers won;
But the fairest lady in a' the lan
For you this day maun burn.'

25 'O saddle me the black, the black,
Or saddle me the brown;
O saddle me the swiftest steed
That ever rade frae a town.'

26 Or he was near a mile awa,
She heard his wild horse sneeze:
'Mend up the fire, my false brother,
It's na come to my knees.'

27 O whan he lighted at the gate,
She heard his bridle ring:
'Mend up the fire, my false brother,
It's far yet frae my chin.'

28 'Mend up the fire to me, brother,
Mend up the fire to me;
For I see him comin hard an fast
Will soon men 't up to thee.

29 'O gin my hands had been loose,
Willy,
Sae hard as they are boun,
I would have turnd me frae the gleed,
And castin out your young son.'

30 'O I'll gar burn for you, Maisry,
Your father an your mother;
An I'll gar burn for you, Maisry,
Your sister an your brother.

31 'An I'll gar burn for you, Maisry,
The chief of a' your kin;
An the last boufire that I come to,
Mysel I will cast in.'

B

Motherwell's MS., p. 422, communicated by Charles Kirkpatrick Sharpe.

1 In came her sister,
Stepping on the floor;
Says, It's telling me, my sister Janet,
That you're become a whore.

2 'A whore, sister, a whore, sister?
That's what I'll never be;
I'm no so great a whore, sister,
As liars does on me lee.'

3 In came her brother,
Stepping on the floor;
Says, It's telling me, my sister Janet,
That you're become a whore.

4 'A whore, brother, a whore, brother?
A whore I'll never be;
I'm no so bad a woman, brother,
As liars does on me lee.'

5 In came her mother,
Stepping on the floor:
'They are telling me, my daughter,
That you're so soon become a whore.'

6 'A whore, mother, a whore, mother?
A whore I'll never be;
I'm only with child to an English lord,
Who promised to marry me.'

7 In came her father,
Stepping on the floor;
Says, They tell me, my daughter Janet,
That you are become a whore.

8 'A whore, father, a whore, father?
A whore I'll never be;
I'm but with child to an English lord,
Who promised to marry me.'

9 Then in it came an old woman,
The lady's nurse was she,
And ere she could get out a word
The tear blinded her ee.

10 'Your father's to the fire, Janet,
Your brother's to the whin;
All for to kindle a bold bonfire,
To burn your body in.'

11 'Where will I get a boy,' she said,
'Will gain gold for his fee,
That would run unto fair England
For my good lord to me?'

12 'O I have here a boy,' she said,
'Will gain gold to his fee,
For he will run to fair England
For thy good lord to thee.'

13 Now when he found a bridge broken,
He bent his bow and swam,
And when he got where grass did grow,
He slacked it and ran.

14 And when he came to that lord's gate,
Stopt not to knock or call,
But set his bent bow to his breast
And lightly leapt the wall;

And ere the porter could open the
gate,
The boy was in the hall,

15 In presence of that noble lord,
And fell down on his knee:
'What is it, my boy,' he cried,
'Have you brought unto me?'

16 'Is my building broke into?
Or is my towers won?
Or is my true-love delivered
Of daughter or of son?'

17 'Your building is not broke,' he cried,
'Nor is your towers won,
Nor is your true-love delivered
Of daughter nor of son;
But if you do not come in haste,
Be sure she will be gone.'

18 'Her father is gone to the fire,
Her brother to the whin,
To kindle up a bold bonfire,
To burn her body in.'

19 'Go saddle to me the black,' he cried,
'And do it very soon;
Get unto me the swiftest horse
That ever rade from the town.'

20 The first horse that he rade upon,
For he was raven black,
He bore him far, and very far,
But failed in a slack.

21 The next horse that he rode upon,
He was a bonny brown;
He bore him far, and very far,
But did at last fall down.

22 The next horse that he rode upon,
He as the milk was white;
Fair fall the mare that foaled that foal
Took him to Janet's sight!

23 And boots and spurs, all as he was,
Into the fire he lap,
Got one kiss of her comely month,
While her body gave a crack.

24 'O who has been so bold,' he says,
'This bonfire to set on?
Or who has been so bold,' he says,
'Her body for to burn?'

25 'O here are we,' her brother said,
'This bonfire who set on;
And we have been so bold,' he said,
'Her body for to burn.'

26 'O I'll cause burn for you, Janet,
Your father and your mother;
And I'll cause die for you, Janet,
Your sister and your brother.

27 'And I'll cause mony back be bare,
And mony shed be thin,
And mony wife be made a widow,
And mony ane want their son.'

LORD INGRAM AND CHIEL WYET

There is a Danish ballad (Grundtvig-Olrik, No. 354) which has certain resemblances to our English ballad. Ebbe Skammelsøn, being obliged to absent himself from his plighted maid for a considerable time, loses her through the artifices of his brother, who pretends first that Ebbe is unfaithful, and then that he is dead. Ebbe is warned by a dream that his brother is about to wed his mistress, goes home in great haste, and arrives on the wedding day. He kills the bride, and then his brother, who, at the last moment, offers to cede the bride to him, as Lord Ingram, in B 17, says he meant to do. Ebbe after this begs his bread, or goes on a pilgrimage weighted with iron on his hands and loins; wherein his part resembles Mairry's.

A

a. 'Lord Ingram and Chiel Wyet,' C. K. Sharpe's MS., "second collection"; Motherwell's Minstrelsy, p. 173, communicated by Charles Kirkpatrick Sharpe. b. Maidment's North Countrie Garland, p. 24, from tradition in Aberdeenshire.

1 LORD INGRAM and Chiel Wyet
Was baith born in one bower;
Laid baith their hearts on one lady,
The less was their honour.

2 Chiel Wyet and Lord Ingram
Was baith born in one hall;
Laid baith their hearts on one lady,
The worse did them befall.

- 3 Lord Ingram wood her Lady Maisery
From father and from mother;
Lord Ingram wood her Lady Maisery
From sister and from brother.
- 4 Lord Ingram wood her Lady Maisery
With leave of a' her kin;
And every one gave full consent,
But she said no to him.
- 5 Lord Ingram wood her Lady Maisery
Into her father's ha;
Chiel Wyet wood her Lady Maisery
Amang the sheets so sma.
- 6 Now it fell out upon a day,
She was dressing her head,
That ben did come her father dear,
Wearing the gold so red.
- 7 He said, Get up now, Lady Maisery,
Put on your wedding gown;
For Lord Ingram he will be here,
Your wedding must be done.
- 8 'I'd rather be Chiel Wyet's wife,
The white fish for to sell,
Before I were Lord Ingram's wife,
To wear the silk so well.
- 9 'I'd rather be Chiel Wyet's wife,
With him to beg my bread,
Before I were Lord Ingram's wife,
To wear the gold so red.
- 10 'Where will I get a bonny boy,
Will win gold to his fee,
And will run unto Chiel Wyet's,
With this letter from me?'
- 11 'O here I am,' the boy says,
'Will win gold to my fee,
And carry away any letter
To Chiel Wyet from thee.'
- 12 And when he found the bridges broke,
He bent his bow and swam;
And when he found the grass growing,
He hastened and he ran.
- 13 And when he came to Chiel Wyet's
castle,
He did not knock nor call,
But set his bent bow to his breast,
And lightly leaped the wall;
- And ere the porter opened the gate,
The boy was in the hall.
- 14 The first line that he looked on,
A grieved man was he;
The next line that he looked on,
A tear blinded his ee:
Says, I wonder what ails my one brother
He'll not let my love be!
- 15 'But I'll send to my brother's bridal —
The bacon shall be mine —
Full four and twenty buck and roe,
And ten tun of the wine:
And bid my love be blythe and glad,
And I will follow syne.'
- 16 There was not a groom about that castle
But got a gown of green,
And all was blythe, and all was glad,
But Lady Maisery was neen.
- 17 There was no cook about that kitchen
But got a gown of gray,
And all was blythe, and all was glad,
But Lady Maisery was wae.
- 18 Between Mary Kirk and that castle
Was all spread ower with garl,
To keep Lady Maisery and her maidens
From tramping on the marl.
- 19 From Mary Kirk to that castle
Was spread a cloth of gold,
To keep Lady Maisery and her maidens
From treading on the mold.
- 20 When mass was sung, and bells was
rung,
And all men bound for bed,
Then Lord Ingram and Lady Maisery
In one bed they were laid.
- 21 When they were laid into their bed —
It was baith saft and warm —
He laid his hand over her side,
Says, I think you are with bairn.
- 22 'I told you once, so did I twice,
When ye came me to woo,
That Chiel Wyet, your only brother,
One night lay in my bower.
- 23 'I told you twice, so did I thrice,
Ere ye came me to wed,

That Chiel Wyet, your one brother,
One night lay in my bed.'

24 'O will you father your bairn on me,
And on no other man?
And I'll give him to his dowry
Full fifty ploughs of land.'

25 'I will not father my bairn on you,
Nor on no wrongeous man,
Though ye would give him to his dowry
Five thousand ploughs of land.'

26 Then up did start him Chiel Wyet,
Shed by his yellow hair,
And gave Lord Ingram to the heart
A deep wound and a sair.

27 Then up did start him Lord Ingram,
Shed by his yellow hair,
And gave Chiel Wyet to the heart
A deep wound and a sair.

28 There was no pity for that two lords,
Where they were lying slain;
But all was for her Lady Maisery,
In that bower she gaed brain.

29 There was no pity for that two lords,
When they were lying dead;
But all was for her Lady Maisery,
In that bower she went mad.

30 Said, Get to me a cloak of cloth,
A staff of good hard tree;
If I have been an evil woman,
I shall beg till I dee.

31 'For a bit I'll beg for Chiel Wyet,
For Lord Ingram I'll beg three;
All for the good and honorable marriage
At Mary Kirk [he] gave me.'

'Lord Ingram and Gil Vielt,' Skene MS.,
p. 16; taken down in the North of Scotland, 1802-1803.

1 LORD INGRAM and Gil Vielt
Were baith born in ae ha;
They laid their love on ae lady,
An fate they coud na fa.

2 Lord Ingram and Gil Vielt
Were baith laid in ae wame;

They laid their love on ae lady,
The greater was their shame.

3 Lord Ingram wood her Lady Masery
Frae father and frae mither;
Gil Vielt wood her Lady Masery
Frae sister and frae brither.

4 Lord Ingram courted her Lady Masery
Among the company a';
Jill Vielt he wood her Lady Masery
Among the sheets so sma.

5 'Get up, my daughter dear,
Put on your bridal gown;
This day's your bridal day
Wi Lord Ingram.'

6 'How can I get up,
An put on my bridal gown,
Or how marry the ae brither,
An the tither's babe in my womb?'

* * * * *

7 'O laugh you at mysell, brither,
Or at my companie?
Or laugh ye at my bonnie bride,
She wad na laugh at thee?'

8 'I laugh na at yoursel, brither,
Nor at your companie;
Nor laugh I at your buirlie bride,
She wad na laugh at me.

9 'But there's a brotch on a breast-bane,
A garlan on ane's hair;
Gin ye kend what war under that,
Ye wad neer love woman mair.

10 'There is a brotch on a breast-bane,
An roses on ane's sheen;
Gin ye kend what war under that,
Your love wad soon be deen.'

11 Whan bells were rung, and mass was
sung,
And a' man boun to bed,
Lord Ingram and Lady Masery
In ae chamer were laid.

12 He put his hand out oure his bonnie bride,
The babe between her sides did quake:

13 'O father your babe on me, Lady Masery,
O father your babe on me.'

14 'I may father my babe on a stock,
Sae may I on a stane,
But my babe shall never hae
A father but its ain.'

15 He took out a brand,
And laid it atween them twa;

16 Gill Vielt took out a long brand,
And stroakd it oer a stro,
An thro and thro Lord Ingram's bodie
He made it come and go.

17 'Wae mat worth ye, Gill Vielt,
An ill died mat ye die!
For I han the cup in my hand
To hae drunken her oer to thee.'

18 '[For] ae mile [I wad gae] for Gil Vielt,
For Lord Ingram I wad hae gaen
three;
An a' for that in good kirk-door
Fair wedding he gave me.'

19 Gil Vielt took a long brand,
An stroakd it on a stro,
An through and thro his ain bodie
He made it come and go.

20 There was nae mean made for that godd lords,
In bowr whar they lay slain,
But a' was for that lady,
In bowr whar she gaed brain.

21 There was nae mean made for that lady,
In bowr whar she lay dead,
But a' was for the bonnie babe
That lay blabbering in her bleed.

C

'Auld Ingram,' Herd's MSS., i, 169. ii, 84;
'Lord Wa'yates and Auld Ingram,' Jamieson's Popular Ballads, ii, 263.

1 LADY MAISDRY was a lady fair,
She maid her mither's bed;

Auld Ingram was an aged knight,
And hee sought her to wed.

2 'Tis I forbid ye, Auld Ingram,
For to seek me to spouse;
For Lord Wayets, your sister's son,
Has been into my bowrs.

3 'Tis I forbid ye, Auld Ingram,
For to seek me to wed;
For Lord Wayets, your sister's son,
Has been into my bed.'

4 'Tis he has bought to this lady
The robes of the brown;
'And ever alas,' says this lady,
'The robs will pit mee down!'

5 And he has bought to this lady
The robs of the red;
'And ever alas,' says this lady,
'The robs will be my dead!'

6 And he has bought to this lady
The chrystal and the lammer,
Sae has hee bought to her mither
The curches of the canmer.

7 Every ane o her se'n brethren
They had a hawk in hand,
And every lady i the place
They got a goud garland.

8 Every cuk in that kitchen
They gat a noble claith;
A' was blyth at Auld Ingram's cuming
But Lady Maisdrey was wraith.

9 'Whare will I get a bonny boy,
Wad fain wun hos and shoon,
That wud rin on to my Wayets,
And quickly come again?'

10 'Here am I, a bonny boy,
Wad fain wun hoes and shoon,
Wha wull rin on to your Wayets,
And quickly come again.'

11 'Ye 'l bid him, and ye 'l pray him baith,
Gif ony prayer can dee,
To Mary Kirk to come the morn,
My weary wadding to see.'

12 Lord Wayets lay our his castle wa,
Beheld baith dale and down,

And he beheld a bonny boy
Cume rinnen to the town.

13 'What news, what news, ye bonny boy?
What news ye hae to mee?

14 'O is my ladie's fauld's brunt?
Or is her towrs wun?
Or is my Maisdrey lighter yet
A dear dochter or sun?'

15 'Your ladie's faulds they are not brunt,
Nor yet are her towrs wun,
Neither is Maisdrey lighter yet
A dear dochter or sun.

16 'But she bids ye and she prays ye baith,
Gif ony prayer can dee,
To Mary Kirk to cume the morn,
Her weary wadding to see.'

17 He dung the boord up wi his fit,
Sae did he wi his tae;
The silver cup that sat upon 't
I the fire he gard it flee:
'O what na a lord in a' Scotland
Dare marry my Maisdrey?'

18 'O 't is but a feeble thought
To tell the tane and not the tither;
O 't is but a feeble thought
To tell 't is your mither's brither.'

19 'T is I wull send to that wadding,
And I wul follow syne,
The fitches o the fallow deer
An the gammons o the swine,
An the nine hides o the noble cow;
'T was slain in season time.

20 'T is I wul send to that wadding
Ten ton of the red wyne;
Much more I'll send to that wadding,
An I wul follow syne.'

21 When he came in unto the ha,
Lady Maisdrey she did ween,
And twenty times he kist her mou
Before Auld Ingram's een.

22 Nor to the kirk she wud ne gae,
Nor til 't she wudn ride,

Till four and twuntty men she gat her before,
An twuntty on ilka side,
An four and twuntty milk-white dows
To flee aboon her head.

23 A loud laughter gae Lord Wayets
Mang the mids o his men:
'Marry the lady wham they weel,
A maiden she is nane.'

24 'O laugh ye at my men, Wayets?
Or di ye laugh at me?
Or laugh ye at the beerly bride,
That's gane to marry me?'

25 'I laugh na at your men, uncle,
Nor yet dive I at thee,
Bit I laugh at my lands sae braid,
Sae weel 's I do them see.'

26 Whan ene was cume, and ene-bells rung,
An a' man gane to bed,
The bride bit and the silly bridegroom
In chambers they were laid.

27 Was na it a fell thing for to see,
Twa heads lye on a coad,
Lady Maisdrey like the moten goud,
Auld Ingram like a toad?

28 He turnd his face unto the stock,
And sound he fell asleep;
She turnd her fair face unto the wa,
An sa't tears she did weep.

29 It fell about the mark midnight,
Auld Ingram began to turn him;
He pat his hands on 's lady's sides,
An waly, sair was she murnin.

30 'What aileth thee, my lady dear?
Ever alas and wae 's me,
There is a baube betwixt thy sides!
O sae sair 's it grieves me.'

31 'Didn I tell ye that, Auld Ingram,
Or ye saught me to wed,
That Lord Wayets, your sister's son,
Had been into my bed?'

32 'O father that bairn on me, Maisdrey,
O father it on me,
An ye sall hae a rigland shire
Your morniu's gift to bee.'

33 'O sarbit,' says the Lady Maisdrey,
 'That ever the like me befa,
 To father my bairn on Auld Ingram,
 Lord Wayets in my father's ha !

34 'O sarbit,' says the Lady Maisdrey,
 'That ever the like me betide,
 To father my bairn on Auld Ingram,
 An Lord Wayets beside !'

GLASGERION

'Glasgerion' was first printed in Percy's Reliques, III, 43, 1765, and was not thought by the editor to require much correction. Certainly the English ballad is one which it would be hard to mend. Scottish B is mainly of good derivation (a poor old woman in Aberdeenshire), and has some good stanzas, but Jamieson unfortunately undertook to improve a copy in which the story was complete, but "the diction much humbled," by combining with it a fragment of another version. 'The Bret Glascurion' is joined in Chaucer's House of Fame, iii, 111-118, with the harpers Orpheus, Orion (Arion), and Chiron. 'Bret' is Briton, and Y Bardd Glas Keraint, in English Keraint the Blue Bard (Blue Bard being an appellation of a chief bard, who wore an official robe of blue), is recorded to have been an eminent poet of distinguished birth, son of Owain, Prince of Glamorgan. There is at least no absurdity in the suggestion that the Glascurion of Chaucer and the Glasgerion of the ballad may represent the Welsh Glas Keraint.

'Glasgerion,' Percy MS., p. 94; Hales and Furnivall, I, 248.

1 GLASGERION was a kings owne sonne,
 And a harper he was good;
 He harped in the kings chamber,
 Where cuppe and candle stode,
 And soe did hee in the queens chamber,
 Till ladies waxed wood.

2 And then bespake the kings daughter,
 And these words thus sayd shee:

3 Saide, Strike on, strike on, Glasgerion,
 Of thy striking doe not bliune;

There's neuer a stroke comes ouer thin
 harpe
 But it glads my hart within.

4 'Faire might you fall, lady !' quoth hee;
 'Who taught you now to speake ?
 I haue loued you, lady, seuen yeere;
 My hart I durst neere breake.'

5 'But come to my bower, my Glasgerryon,
 When all men are att rest;
 As I am a ladie true of my promise,
 Thou shalt bee a welcome guest.'

6 But hom then came Glasgerryon,
 A glad man, Lord, was hee:
 'And come thou hither, Iacke, my boy,
 Come hither vnto mee.

7 'For the kings daughter of Normandye,
 Her loue is granted mee,
 And beffore the cocke haue crowen,
 Att her chamber must I bee.'

8 'But come you hither, master,' quoth hee,
 'Lay your head downe on this stone;
 For I will waken you, master deere,
 Afore it be time to gone.'

9 But vpp then rose that lither ladd,
 And did on hose and shoone;
 A coller he cast vpon his necke,
 Hee seemed a gentleman.

10 And when he came to that ladies chamber,
 He thrild vpon a pinn;
 The lady was true of her promise,
 Rose vp and lett him in.

11 He did not take the lady gay
 To boulster nor to bedd,
 But downe vpon her chamber-flore
 Full soone he hath her layd.

12 He did not kisse that lady gay
 When he came nor when he youd;
 And sore mistrusted that lady gay
 He was of some churlës blood.

13 But home then came that lither ladd,
 And did of his hose and shoone,
 And cast that coller from about his necke;
 He was but a churlës sonne:

'Awaken,' quoth hee, 'my master deere,
I hold it time to be gone.

14 'For I haue sadled your horsse, master,
Well bridled I haue your steed;
Haue not I serued a good breakfast,
When time comes I haue need.'

15 But vp then rose good Glasgerryon,
And did on both hose and shoone,
And cast a collar about his necke;
He was a kinges sonne.

16 And when he came to that ladies cham- ber,
He thrild vpon a pinn;
The lady was more then true of promise,
Rose vp and let him in.

17 Saies, Whether haue you left with me
Your braclett or your gloue?
Or are you returned backe againe
To know more of my loue?

18 Glasgerryon swore a full great othe,
By oake and ashe and thorne,
'Lady, I was neuer in your chamber
Sith the time that I was borne.'

19 'O then it was your litle foote-page
Falsly hath beguiled me:'
And then shee pulld forth a litle pen-
knife,
That hanged by her knee,
Says, There shall neuer noe churlës blood
Spring within my body.

20 But home then went Glasgerryon,
A woe man, good [Lord], was hee;
Sayes, Come hither, thou lacke, my boy,
Come thou hither to me.

21 Ffor if I had killed a man to-night,
Lacke, I wold tell it thee;
But if I haue not killed a man to-night,
Lacke, thou hast killed three!

22 And he puld out his bright browne
sword,
And dryed it on his sleene,
And he smote off that lither ladds head,
And asked noe man noe leane.

23 He sett the swords poynt till his brest,
The pumill till a stone;

Thorrow that falsenese of that lither ladd
These three liues werne all gone.

'Glenkindie,' Jamieson's Popular Ballads, i. 93, taken from the recitation of an old woman by Professor Scott, of Aberdeen, and "some-what improved" by a fragment communicated by the Rev. William Gray, of Lincoln.

1 GLENKINDIE was ance a harper gude,
He harped to the king;
And Glenkindie was ance the best harper
That ever harpd on a string.

2 He 'd harpit a fish out o saut water,
Or water out o a stane,
Or milk out o a maiden's breast,
That bairn had never nane.

3 He 's taen his harp intil his hand,
He harpit and he sang,
And ay as he harpit to the king,
To haud him unthought lang.

4 'I'll gie you a robe, Glenkindie,
A robe o the royal pa,
Gin ye will harp i the winter's night
Afore my nobles a'.'

* * * * *

5 He 's taen his harp intill his hand,
He 's harpit them a' asleep,
Except it was the young countess,
That love did waukin keep.

6 And first he has harpit a grave tune,
And syne he has harpit a gay,
And mony a sich atween hands
I wat the lady gae.

7 Says, Whan day is dawen, and cocks hae
crawen,
And wappit their wings sae wide,
It's ye may come to my bower-door,
And streek you by my side.

8 But look that ye tell na Gib, your man,
For naething that ye dee;
For, an ye tell him Gib, your man,
He'll beguile baith you and me.

9 He 's taen his harp intill his hand,
He harpit and he sang,

And he is hame to Gib, his man,
As fast as he could gang.

10 'O mith I tell you, Gib, my man,
Gin I a man had slain?'
'O that ye micht, my gude master,
Altho ye had slain ten.'

11 'Then tak ye tent now, Gib, my
man,
My bidden for to dee;
And but an ye wauken me in time,
Ye sall be hangit hie.

12 'Whan day has dawen, and cocks hae
crawen,
And wappit their wings sae wide,
I 'm bidden gang till yon lady's
bower,
And streek me by her side.'

13 'Gae hame to your bed, my good mas-
ter;
Ye 've waukit, I fear, oer lang;
For I 'll wauken you in as good time
As ony cock i the land.'

14 He 's taen his harp intill his hand,
He harpit and he sang,
Until he harpit his master asleep,
Syne fast awa did gang.

15 And he is till that lady's bower,
As fast as he could rin;
When he cam till that lady's bower,
He chappit at the chin.

16 'O wha is this,' says that lady,
'That opens nae and comes in?'
'It 's I, Glenkindie, your ain true-
love,
O open and lat me in!'

17 She kent he was nae gentle knight
That she had latten in,
For neither when he gaed nor cam,
Kist he her cheek or chin.

18 He neither kist her when he cam,
Nor clappit her when he gaed,
And in and at her bower window,
The moon shone like the gleed.

19 'O ragged is your hose, Glenkindie,
And riven is your sheen,

And reaveld is your yellow hair,
That I saw late yestreen.'

20 'The stockings they are Gib, my man's,
They came first to my hand,
And this is Gib, my man's shoon,
At my bed-feet they stand;
I 've reavelld a' my yellow hair
Coming against the wind.'

21 He 's taen the harp intill his hand,
He harpit and he sang,
Until he cam to his master,
As fast as he could gang.

22 'Won up, won up, my good master,
I fear ye sleep oer lang;
There 's nae a cock in a' the land
But has wappit his wings and crawn.'

23 Glenkindie 's tane his harp in hand,
He harpit and he sang,
And he has reachd the lady's bower
Afore that eer he blan.

24 When he cam to the lady's bower,
He chappit at the chin:
'O wha is that at my bower-door,
That opens na and comes in?'
'It 's I, Glenkindie, your ain true-love,
And in I cauna win.'

* * * * *

25 'Forbid it, forbid it,' says that lady,
'That ever sic shame betide,
That I should first be a wild loon's lass,
And than a young knight's bride.'

26 He 's taen his harp intill his hand,
He harpit and he sang,
And he is hame to Gib, his man,
As fast as he could gang.

27 'Come forth, come forth, now, Gib, my
man,
Till I pay you your fee;
Come forth, come forth, now, Gib, my
man,
Weel payit sall ye be.'

28 And he has taen him Gib, his man,
And he has hangd him hie,
And he 's hangit him oer his ain yate,
As high as high could be.

- 29 There was nae pity for that lady,
For she lay cald and dead,
But a' was for him, Glenkindie,
In bower he must go mad.

YOUNG HUNTING

Scott's 'Earl Richard' is mainly from Herd's copies A and G, here given, but partly from independent tradition (Minstrelsy, 1802, II, 42; ed. 1803, II, 44).

A Scandinavian ballad (Grundtvig, No. 208), begins somewhat like 'Young Hunting,' but ends like 'Elveskud,' or 'Clerk Colvill' (No. 42). A young man who has made up his mind to marry is warned by his mother against the wiles of a former mistress. He rides to his old love's house and is welcomed to beer and wine. He tells her that he is on the way to his bride. She wants a word with him, or a kiss, and as he leans over to her on the horse, stabs him to the heart. He rides home bleeding, pretends that he has hurt himself by running against a tree, asks that his bed may be made and a priest sent for, and dies.

- 'Young Hunting.' a. Herd's MSS., I, 182.
b. The same, II, 67.

- 1 O LADY, rock never your young son young
One hour longer for me,
For I have a sweetheart in Garlick's
Wells
I love thrice better than thee.
- 2 'The very soles of my love's feet
Is whiter then thy face:'
'But nevertheless na, Young Hunting,
Ye 'l stay wi me all night.'
- 3 She has bird in him Young Hunting
The good ale and the beer,
Till he was as fou drunken
As any wild-wood steer.
- 4 She has bird in him Young Hunting
The good ale and the wine,
Till he was as fou drunken
As any wild-wood swine.
- 5 Up she has tain him Young Hunting,
And she has had him to her bed,

- 6 And she has minded her on a little pen-
knife,
That hangs low down by her gare,
And she has gin him Young Hunting
A deep wound and a sare.

- 7 Out an spake the bonny bird,
That flew abon her head:
'Lady, keep well thy green clothing
Fra that good lord's blood.'

- 8 'O better I 'll keep my green clothing
Fra that good lord's blood
Nor thou can keep thy flattering tounge,
That flatters in thy head.

- 9 'Light down, light down, my bonny
bird,
Light down upon my hand,

- 10 'O siller, O siller shall be thy hire,
An goud shall be thy fee,
An every month into the year
Thy cage shall changed be.'

- 11 'I winna light down, I shanna light
down,
I winna light on thy hand;
For soon, soon wad ye do to me
As ye done to Young Hunting.'

- 12 She has booted an spird him Young Hunting
As he had been gan to ride,
A hunting-horn about his neck,
An the sharp sourd by his side.

- 13 And she has had him to yon wán
water,
For a' man calls it Clyde,

- 14 The deepest pot intill it all
She has puten Young Hunting in;
A green truff upon his breast,
To hold that good lord down.

- 15 It fell once upon a day
The king was going to ride,

2 They have booted him, and spurred him,
As he was wont to ride,
A hunting-horn around his waist,
A sharp sword by his side.

3 Then up and spake a bonie bird,
That sat upon the tree:
'What hae ye done wi Earl Richard?
Ye was his gay lady.'

4 'Cum down, cum down, my bonie bird,
Cum sit upon my hand;
And ye sall hae a cage o the gowd,
Where ye hae but the wand.'

5 'Awa, awa, ye ill woman,
Nae ill woman for me;
What ye hae done to Earl Richard,
Sae wad ye do to mee.'

* * * *

6 'O there's a bird intill your bowir
That sings sae sad and sweet;
O there's a bird intill your bower
Kept me frae my nicht's sleep.'

* * * *

7 And she sware by the grass sae greene,
Sae did she by the corn,
That she had not seen Earl Richard
Sen yesterday at morn.

CLERK SAUNDERS

'Clerk Saunders' was first given to the world in the Minstrelsy of the Scottish Border, and was there said to be "taken from Herd's MS., with several corrections from a shorter and more imperfect copy in the same volume, and one or two conjectural emendations in the arrangement of the stanzas." Sir Walter arranged his ballad with much good taste, but this account of his dealing with Herd's copies is far from precisely accurate. A, the longer of these, does not end, in Herd's MS., with Margaret's refusal to be comforted, a rather unsufficing conclusion it must be owned. The story is continued by annexing the ballad of 'Sweet William's Ghost,' the lack of which in B makes Scott call that version imperfect. This sequel, found also in F, is omitted here, and will be given under No. 77. F (Jamieson's Ballads) is, like Scott's, a made-up copy, "the stanzas where the seven brothers are introduced" having been "enlarged from two fragments, which, though very defective . . . , furnished lines which, when incorporated in the text, seemed to improve it." But F is important, since it connects 'Clerk Saunders' with a Scandinavian ballad (Grundtvig-Olrik, No. 304) which seems to be preserved, in abbreviated and sometimes perverted forms, by other races as well. Nos. 70 and 71 have connections with 'Clerk Saunders.'

'Clerk Sanders,' Herd's MSS., a, i, 177; b, ii, 419.

1 CLARK SANDERS and May Margret
Walkt ower you graveld green,
And sad and heavy was the love,
I wat, it fell this twa between.

2 'A bed, a bed,' Clark Sanders said,
'A bed, a bed for you and I;'
'Fye no, fye no,' the lady said,
'Until the day we married be.

3 'For in it will come my seven brothers,
And a' their torches burning bright;
They'll say, We hae but ae sister,
And here her lying wi a knight.'

4 'Ye'l take the sourde fray my scabbord,
And lowly, lowly lift the gin,
And you may say, your oth to save,
You never let Clark Sanders in.

5 'Yele take a napken in your hand,
And ye'l ty up baith your een,
An ye may say, your oth to save,
That ye saw na Sandy sen late yestreen.

6 'Yele take me in your armes twa,
Yele carrey me ben into your bed,
And ye may say, your oth to save,
In your bower-floor I never tread.'

7 She has taen the sourde fray his scabbord,
And lowly, lowly lifted the gin;
She was to swear, her oth to save,
She never let Clerk Sanders in.

- 8 She has tain a napkin in her hand,
And she ty'd up baith her een;
She was to swear, her oth to save,
She saw na him sene late yestreen.
- 9 She has taen him in her armes twa,
And carried him ben into her bed;
She was to swear, her oth to save,
He never in her bower-floor tread.
- 10 In and came her seven brothers,
And all their torches burning bright;
Says thay, We hae but ae sister,
And see there her lying wi a knight.
- 11 Out and speaks the first of them,
'A wat they hay been lovers dear;'
Out and speaks the next of them,
'They hay been in love this many a year.'
- 12 Out an speaks the third of them,
'It wear great sin this twa to twain;'
Out an speaks the fourth of them,
'It wear a sin to kill a sleeping man.'
- 13 Out an speaks the fifth of them,
'A wat they 'll near be twained by me;'
Out an speaks the sixt of them,
'We 'l tak our leave an gae our way.'
- 14 Out an speaks the seventh of them,
'Altho there wear no a man but me,
I bear the brand, I 'le gar him die.'
- 15 Out he has taen a bright long brand,
And he has striped it throw the straw,
And throw and throw Clarke Sanders'
body
A wat he has gard cold iron gae.
- 16 Sanders he started, an Margret she lapt,
Intill his arms whare she lay,
And well and wellsom was the night,
A wat it was between these twa.
- 17 And they lay still, and slept sound,
Untill the day began to daw;
And kindly till him she did say
'It's time, trew-love, ye wear awa.'
- 18 They lay still, and slept sound,
Untill the sun began to shine;

She lookt between her and the wa,
And dull and heavy was his een.

- 19 She thought it had been a loathsome
sweat,
A wat it had fallen this twa between;
But it was the blood of his fair body,
A wat his life days wair na lang.
- 20 'O Sanders, I 'le do for your sake
What other ladys would na thoule;
When seven years is come and gone,
There's near a shoe go on my sole.
- 21 'O Sanders, I 'le do for your sake
What other ladies would think mare;
When seven years is come an gone,
Ther's nere a comb go in my hair.
- 22 'O Sanders, I 'le do for your sake
What other ladies would think lack;
When seven years is come an gone,
I 'le wear nought but dowy black.'
- 23 The bells gaed clinking throw the towne,
To carry the dead corps to the clay,
An sighing says her May Margret,
'A wat I bide a doulfou day.'
- 24 In an come her father dear,
Stout steping on the floor;
.
- 25 'Hold your tounge, my doughter dear,
Let all your mourning a bee;
I 'le carry the dead corps to the clay,
An I 'le come back an comfort thee.'
- 26 'Comfort well your seven sons,
For comforted will I never bee;
For it was neither lord nor lounne
That was in bower last night wi mee.'

'Clerk Saunders,' Herd's MSS., a, i, 163; b, ii, 46.

- 1 CLERK SAUNDERS and a gay lady
Was walking in yonder green,
And heavy, heavy was the love
That fell this twa lovers between.
- 2 'A bed, a bed,' Clerk Saunders said,
'And ay a bed for you and me;'

- 'Never a ane,' said the gay lady,
'Till ance we twa married be.
- 3 'There would come a' my seven brethern,
And a' their torches burning bright,
And say, We hae but ae sister,
And behad, she's lying wi you the night.'
- 4 'You'll take a napkain in your hand,
And then you will tie up your een;
Then you may swear, and safe your aith,
You sawna Sandy sin yestreen.
- 5 'You'll take me up upo your back,
And then you'll carry me to your bed;
Then you may swear, and save your aith,
Your board [-floor] Sandy never tred.'
- 6 She's taen him upo her back,
And she's carried him unto her bed,
That she might swear, and safe her aith,
Her board-floor Sandy never tread.
- 7 She's taen a napkin in her hand,
And lo she did tie up her een,
That she might swear, and safe her aith,
She sawna Sandy syne yestreen.
- 8 They were na weel into the room,
Nor yet laid weel into the bed,
.
- 9 When in came a' her seven brethern,
And a' their torches burning bright;
Says they, We hae but ae sister,
And behold, she's lying wi you this night.
- 10 'I,' bespake the first o them,
A wat an ill death mat he die!
'I bear a brand into my hand
Shall quickly gar Clerk Saunders die.'
- 11 'I,' bespake the second of them,
A wat a good death mat he die!
'We will gae back, let him alane,
His father has nae mair but he.'
- 12 'I,' bespake the third o them,
A wat an ill death mat he die!
'I bear the brand into my hand
Shall quickly help to gar him die.'
- 13 'I,' bespake the fourth o them,
A wat a good death mat he die!
'I bear the brand into my hand
Shall never help to gar him die.'
- 14 'I,' bespake the fifth o them,
A wat an ill death mat he die!
'Altho his father hae nae mair,
I'll quickly help to gar him die.'
- 15 'I,' bespake the sixth o them,
A wat a good death mat he die!
'He's a worthy earl's son,
I'll never help to gar him die.'
- 16 'I,' bespake the seventh of them,
A wat an ill death mat he die!
'I bear the brand into my hand
Shall quickly gar Clerk Saunders die.'
- 17 They baith lay still, and sleeped sound,
Untill the sun began to sheen;
She drew the curtains a wee bit,
And dull and drowsie was his een.
- 18 'This night,' said she, 'the sleepest
man
That ever my twa eyes did see
Hay lyen by me, and sweat the sheets;
A wite they're a great shame to see.'
- 19 She rowd the claiths a' to the foot,
And then she spied his deadly wounds:
'O wae be to my seven brethern,
A wat an ill death mat they die!
- 20 'I'm sure it was neither rogue nor loun
I had into my bed wi me;
'T was Clerk Saunders, that good earl's
son,
That pledgd his faith to marry me.'

F

'Clerk Saunders,' Jamieson's Popular Ballads, i, 83, communicated by Mrs Arrot, of Aberbrothick, but enlarged from two fragments.

- 1 CLERK SAUNDERS was an earl's son,
He livd upon sea-sand;
May Margaret was a king's daughter,
She livd in upper land.
- 2 Clerk Saunders was an earl's son,
Weel learned at the scheel;

May Margaret was a king's daughter,
They baith loed ither weel.

3 He's throw the dark, and throw the mark,
And throw the leaves o green,
Till he came to May Margaret's door,
And tirl'd at the pin.

4 'O sleep ye, wake ye, May Margaret,
Or are ye the bower within?'
'O wha is that at my bower-door,
Sae weel my name does ken?'
'It's I, Clerk Saunders, your true-love,
You'll open and lat me in.

5 'O will ye to the cards, Margaret,
Or to the table to dine?
Or to the bed, that's weel down spread,
And sleep when we get time?'

6 'I'll no go to the cards,' she says,
'Nor to the table to dine;
But I'll go to a bed, that's weel down spread,
And sleep when we get time.'

7 They were not weel lyen down,
And no weel fa'en asleep,
When up and stood May Margaret's brethren,
Just up at their bed-feet.

8 'O tell us, tell us, May Margaret,
And dinna to us len,
O wha is aught yon noble steed,
That stands your stable in?'

9 'The steed is mine, and it may be thine,
To ride whan ye ride in hie;

10 'But awa, awa, my bald brethren,
Awa, and mak nae din;
For I am as sick a lady the nicht
As eer lay a bower within.'

11 'O tell us, tell us, May Margaret,
And dinna to us len,
O wha is aught yon noble hawk,
That stands your kitchen in?'

12 'The hawk is mine, and it may be thine,
To hawk whan ye hawk in hie;

13 'But awa, awa, my bald brethren,
Awa, and mak nae din;
For I'm ane o the sickest ladies this nicht
That eer lay a bower within.'

14 'O tell us, tell us, May Margaret,
And diuna to us len,
O wha is that, May Margaret,
You and the wa between?'

15 'O it is my bower-maiden,' she says,
'As sick as sick can be;
O it is my bower-maiden,' she says,
'And she's thrice as sick as me.'

16 'We hae been east, and we've been west,
And low beneath the moon;
But a' the bower-women eer we saw
Hadna goud buckles in their shoon.'

17 Then up and spak her eldest brither,
Ay in ill time spak he:
'It is Clerk Saunders, your true-love,
And never mat I the
But for this scorn that he has done
This moment he sall die.'

18 But up and spak her youngest brother,
Ay in good time spak he:
'O but they are a gudellie pair!
True lovers an ye be,
The sword that hangs at my sword-belt
Sall never sinder ye.'

19 Syne up and spak her nexten brother,
And the tear stood in his ee:
'You've loed her lang, and loed her
weel,
And pity it wad be
The sword that hangs at my sword-belt
Shoud ever siuder ye.'

20 But up and spak her fifthen brother:
'Sleep on your sleep for me;
But we baith sall never sleep again,
For the tane o us sall die.'

21 And up and spak her thirdden brother,
Ay in ill time spak he:

'Curse on his love and comeliness !
Dishonour'd as ye be,
The sword that hangs at my sword-belt
Sall quickly sinder ye.'

22 The eldest brother has drawn his sword,
The second has drawn anither,
Between Clerk Saunders' hause and collar-bane
The cald iron met thegither.

23 'O wae be to you, my fause brethren,
And an ill death mat ye die !
Ye mith slain Clerk Saunders in open field,
And no in bed wi me.'

WILLIE AND LADY MAISRY

'Willie and Lady Maisry,' preserved in two versions, has much in common with 'Clerk Saunders.' The chief point of difference is that of Willie's killing Maisry's brother and the guard (in A, only the guard). Here the ballad has probably been affected by another now represented in English only by a very corrupt version, 'The Bent sae Brown' (No. 71).

A

'Willie, the Widow's Son,' Motherwell's MS., p. 498; 'Sweet Willie and Lady Margerie,' Motherwell's Minstrelsy, p. 370. From the recitation of Mrs Notman, then far advanced in years, with whose grandmother it was a favorite: September 9, 1826.

- 1 WILLIE was a widow's son,
And he wore a milk-white weed, O
And weel could Willie read and write,
Far better ride on steed. O
- 2 Lady Margerie was the first lady
That drank to him the wine,
And aye as the healths gade round and
round,
'Laddy, your love is mine.'
- 3 Lady Margerie was the first ladye
That drank to him the beer,
And aye as the healths gade round and
round,
'Laddy, you 're welcome here.'

- 4 'You must come into my bower
When the evening bells do ring,
And you must come into my bower
When the evening mass doth sing.'
- 5 He 's taen four and twenty braid arrows,
And laced them in a whang,
And he 's awa to Lady Margerie's bower,
As fast as he can gang.
- 6 He set ae foot on the wall,
And the other on a stane,
And he 's killed a' the king's life-guards,
And he 's killed them every man.
- 7 'Oh open, open, Lady Margerie,
Open and let me in;
The weet weets a' my yellow hair,
And the dew draps on my chin.'
- 8 With her feet as white as sleet
She strode her bower within,
And with her fingers long and small
She 's lootin Sweet Willie in.
- 9 She 's louten down unto her foot
To loose Sweet Willie's shoon;
The buckles were sa stiff they wudna
lowse,
The blood had frozen in.
- 10 'O Willie, Willie, I fear that thou
Has bred me dule and sorrow;
The deed that thou has dune this night
Will kythe upon the morrow.'
- 11 In then came her father dear,
And a broad sword by his gare,
And he 's gien Willie, the widow's son,
A deep wound and a sair.
- 12 'Lye yont, lye yont, Willie,' she says,
'Your sweat weets a' my side;
Lye yont, lye yont, Willie,' she says,
'For your sweat I downa bide.'
- 13 She turned her back unto the wa,
Her face unto the room,
And there she saw her auld father,
Walking up and down.
- 14 'Woe be to you, father,' she said,
'And an ill deed may you die !
For ye 've killd Willie, the widow's son,
And he would have married me.'

15 She turned her back unto the room,
Her face unto the wa,
And with a deep and heavy sigh
Her heart it brak in twa.

B

'Willie and Lady Maisry,' Buchan's Ballads
of the North of Scotland, I, 155.

- 1 SWEET WILLIE was a widow's son,
And milk-white was his weed;
It sets him weel to bridle a horse,
And better to saddle a steed, my dear,
And better to saddle a steed.
- 2 But he is on to Maisry's bower-door,
And tirl'd at the pin:
'Ye sleep ye, wake ye, Lady Maisry,
Ye'll open, let me come in.'
- 3 'O who is this at my bower-door,
Sae well that knows my name?'
'It is your ain true-love, Willie,
If ye love me, lat me in.'
- 4 Then huly, huly raise she up,
For fear o making din,
Then in her arms lang and bent,
She caught sweet Willie in.
- 5 She leand her low down to her toe,
To loose her true-love's sheen,
But could, could were the draps o bleed
Fell fae his trusty brand.
- 6 'What frightfu sight is that, my love?
A frightfu sight to see!
What bluid is this on your sharp brand?
O may ye not tell me?'
- 7 'As I came thro the woods this night,
The wolf maist worried me;
O shoud I slain the wolf, Maisry?
Or shoud the wolf slain me?'
- 8 They hadna kiss'd, nor love clapp'd,
As lovers when they meet,
Till up it starts her auld father,
Out o his drowsy sleep.
- 9 'O what's become o my house-cock,
Sae crouse at ane did craw?
I wonder as much at my bold watch,
That's nae shooting ower the wa.

- 10 'My gude house-cock, my only son,
Heir ower my land sae free,
If ony ruffian hae him slain,
High hanged shall he be.'
- 11 Then he's on to Maisry's bower-door,
And tirl'd at the pin:
'Ye sleep ye, wake ye, daughter Maisry,
Ye'll open, lat me come in.'
- 12 Between the curtains and the wa
She rowd her true-love then,
And huly went she to the door,
And let her father in.
- 13 'What's become o your maries, Maisry,
Your bower it looks sae teem?
What's become o your green claithing,
Your beds they are sae thin?'
- 14 'Gude forgie you, father,' she said,
'I wish ye be't for sin;
Sae aft as ye hae dreaded me,
But never found me wrang.'
- 15 He turnd him right and round about,
As he'd been gaun awa;
But sae nimble as he slippet in Behind a screen sae sma.
- 16 Maisry, thinking a' dangers past,
She to her love did say,
'Come, love, and take your silent rest;
My auld father's away.'
- 17 Then baith lock'd in each other's arms,
They fell full fast asleep,
When up it starts her auld father,
And stood at their bed-feet.
- 18 'I think I hae the villain now
That my dear son did slay;
But I shall be reveng'd on him
Before I see the day.'
- 19 Then he's drawn out a trusty brand,
And stroak'd it oer a stray,
And thro and thro Sweet Willie's middle
He's gart could iron gae.
- 20 Then up it wakend Lady Maisry,
Out o her drowsy sleep,
And when she saw her true-love slain,
She straight began to weep.

21 'O gude forgie you now, father,' she
said,
'I wish ye be 't for sin;
For I never lovd a love but ane,
In my arms ye 've him slain.'

22 'This night he's slain my gude bold watch,
Thirty stout men and twa;
Likewise he's slain your ae brother,
To me was worth them a'.'

23 'If he has slain my ae brither,
Himsell had a' the blame,
For mony a day he plots contriv'd,
To hae Sweet Willie slain.

24 'And tho he's slain your gude bold watch,
He might hae been forgien;
They came on him in armour bright,
When he was but alane.'

25 Nae meen was made for this young
knight,
In bower where he lay slain,
But a' was for sweet Maisry bright,
In fields where she ran brain.

THE BENT SAE BROWN

'The Bent sae Brown' combines the story of 'Clerk Saunders' (No. 69) with that of another ballad, not found in an independent form in English, but sufficiently common in Danish and Swedish (Kristensen, No. 80, etc.); whence the non-tragical conclusion, for the killing of a certain number of brothers is not regarded as a very serious matter by the heroine, whether in English or Norse. The introduction and conclusion, and some incidental decorations, of the Scottish ballad will not be found in the Norse, but are an outcome of the invention and the piecing and shaping of that humble but enterprising rhapsodist who has left his trail over so large a part of Buchan's volumes.

Stanzas 21-34 contain the substance of the Norse ballad referred to. A youth has passed the night with his love, either in her bower or in a wood. When they are about to part in the morning, she begs him to be on his guard against her seven brothers, on his way through the wood and over the heath. He makes light of the danger, and in the wood meets the seven brothers. They demand how he comes to be there, and he feigns to have been out with his hawk and hounds. No, they say, you were with our sister last night. He makes no denial. They ask whether he will fly or fight. He has no thought of flight, kills all seven, and goes back to his love. She will not forsake him for killing her brothers; nor would she, in some versions, had he killed her father too.

Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, I, 30.

1 'THERE are sixteen lang miles, I'm sure,
Between my love and me;
There are eight o them in gude dry land,
And other eight by sea.

2 'Betide me life, betide me death,
My love I'll gang and see;
Altho her friends they do me hate,
Her love is great for me.

3 'Of my coat I'll make a boat,
And o my sark a sail,
And o my cane a gude tapmast,
Dry land till I come till.'

4 Then o his coat he's made a boat,
And o his sark a sail;
And o his cane a gude tapmast,
Dry land till he came till.

5 He is on to Annie's bower-door,
And tirl'd at the pin:
'O sleep ye, wake ye, my love, Annie,
Ye'll rise, lat me come in.'

6 'O who is this at my bower-door,
Sae well that kens my name?'
'It is your true-love, Sweet Willie,
For you I've crossd the faem.'

7 'I am deeply sworn, Willie,
By father and by mother;
At kirk or market where we meet,
We darna own each other.

8 'And I am deeply sworn, Willie,
By my bauld brothers three;
At kirk or market where we meet,
I darna speak to thee.'

9 'Ye take your red fan in your hand,
Your white fan ower your een,

- And ye may swear, and save your oath,
Ye sawna me come in.
- 10 'Ye take me in your arms twa,
And carry me to your bed;
And ye may swear, and save your oath,
Your bower I never tread.'
- 11 She's taen her red fan in her hand,
The white fan ower her een;
It was to swear, and save her oath,
She sawna him come in.
- 12 She's taen him in her arms twa,
And carried him to her bed;
It was to swear, and save her oath,
Her bower he never tread.
- 13 They hadna kissd, nor love clapped,
As lovers do when they meet,
Till up it waukens her mother,
Out o her drowsy sleep.
- 14 'Win up, win up, my three bauld sons,
Win up and make ye boun;
Your sister's lover's in her bower,
And he's but new come in.'
- 15 Then up it raise her three bauld sons,
And girt to them their brand,
And they are to their sister's bower,
As fast as they coud gang.
- 16 When they came to their sister's bower,
They sought it up and down;
But there was neither man nor boy
In her bower to be foun.
- 17 Then out it speaks the first o them:
'We'll gang and lat her be;
For there is neither man nor boy
Intill her companie.'
- 18 Then out it speaks the second son:
'Our travel's a' in vain;
But mother dear, nor father dear,
Shall break our rest again.'
- 19 Then out it speaks the third o them,
An ill death mat he die!
'We'll lurk amang the bent sae brown,
That Willie we may see.'
- 20 He stood behind his love's curtains,
His goud rings showd him light;
- And by this ye may a' weell guess
He was a renowned knight.
- 21 He's done him to his love's stable,
Took out his berry-brown steed;
His love stood in her bower-door,
Her heart was like to bleed.
- 22 'O mourn ye for my coming, love?
Or for my short staying?
Or mourn ye for our safe sindring,
Case we never meet again?'
- 23 'I mourn nae for your here coming,
Nor for your staying lang;
Nor mourn I for our safe sindring,
I hope we'll meet again.
- 24 'I wish ye may won safe away,
And safely frae the town;
For ken you not my brothers three
Are mang the bent sae brown?'
- 25 'If I were on my berry-brown steed,
And three miles frae the town,
I woudna fear your three bauld brothers,
Amang the bent sae brown.'
- 26 He leint him ower his saddle-bow,
And kissd her lips sae sweet;
The tears that fell between these twa,
They wat his great steed's feet.
- 27 But he wasna on his berry-brown steed,
Nor twa miles frae the town,
Till up it starts these three fierce men,
Amang the bent sae brown.
- 28 Then up they came like three fierce men,
Wi mony shout and cry:
'Bide still, bide still, ye cowardly youth,
What makes your haste away?'
- 29 'For I must know before you go,
Tell me, and make nae lie;
If ye've been in my sister's bower,
My hands shall gar ye die.'
- 30 'Tho I've been in your sister's bower.
I have nae fear o thee;
I'll stand my ground, and fiercely
fight,
And shall gain victorie.'

- 31 'Now I entreat you for to stay,
Unto us gie a wad;
If ye our words do not obey,
I'se gar your body bleed.'
- 32 'I have nae wad,' says Sweet Willie,
'Unless it be my brand,
And that shall guard my fair body,
Till I win frae your hand.'
- 33 Then two o them stept in behind,
All in a furious meed;
The third o them came him before,
And seizd his berry-brown steed.
- 34 O then he drew his trusty brand,
That hang down by his gare,
And he has slain these three fierce men,
And left them sprawling there.
- 35 Then word has gane to her mother,
In bed where she slept soun,
That Willie had killd her three bauld
sons,
Amang the bent sae brown.
- 36 Then she has cut the locks that hung
Sae low down by her ee,
Sae has she kiltit her green claithing
A little aboon her knee.
- 37 And she has on to the king's court,
As fast as gang coud she;
When Fair Annie got word o that,
Was there as soon as she.
- 38 Her mother, when before the king,
Fell low down on her knee;
'Win up, win up, my dame,' he said,
'What is your will wi me?'
- 39 'My wills they are not sma, my liege,
The truth I'll tell to thee;
There is ane o your courtly knights
Last night hae robbed me.'
- 40 'And has he broke your bigly bowers?
Or has he stole your fee?
There is nae knight into my court
Last night has been frae me;
- 41 'Unless 't was Willie o Lauderdale,
Forbid that it be he!
'And by my sooth,' says the auld woman,
'That very man is he.'

- 42 'For he has broke my bigly bowers,
And he has stole my fee,
And made my daughter Ann a whore,
And an ill woman is she.
- 43 'That was not all he did to me,
Ere he went frae the town;
My sons sae true he fiercely slew,
Amang the bent sae brown.'
- 44 Then out it spake her daughter Ann,
She stood by the king's knee:
'Ye lie, ye lie, my mother dear,
Sae loud's I hear you lie.
- 45 'He has not broke your bigly bowers,
Nor has he stole your fee,
Nor made your daughter Ann a whore;
A good woman I'll be.
- 46 'Altho he slew your three bauld sons,
He weel might be forgien;
They were well clad in armour bright,
Whan my love was him lane.'
- 47 'Well spoke, well spoke,' the king replied,
'This taunking pleases me;
For ae kiss o your lovely mouth,
I'll set your true-love free.'
- 48 She's taen the king in her arms,
And kissd him cheek and chin;
He then set her behind her love,
And they went singing hame.

THE CLERK'S TWA SONS O
OWSENFORD

There are ballads both in Northern and Southern Europe which have a certain amount of likeness with 'The Clerk's Twa Sons,' but if the story of all derives from one original, time has introduced great and even unusual variations. A very well known German ballad ('Das Schloss in Oesterreich,' Böhme's Erk, No. 61), found also in the Low Countries and in Scandinavia, has the following story. A youth is lying in a dungeon, condemned to be hanged. His father comes to the town and they exchange words about the severity of his prison. The father then goes to the lord of the place and offers three hundred florins as a ransom.

Ransom is refused: the boy has a gold chain on his neck which will be his death. The father says that the chain was not stolen, but the gift of a young lady, who reared the boy as a page, or what not. There is no dear-bought love in the case. The father, standing by the gallows, threatens revenge, but his son deprecates that: he cares not so much for his life as for his mother's grief. Within a half year, more than three hundred men pay with their lives for the death of the boy. A Catalan and Italian ballad (Milá, Romancerillo, No. 208; Nigra, No. 4) has resemblances with the Scottish and the German, and may possibly be a common link. Three students meet three girls, and attempt some little jests with them: ask them for a kiss, or throw some pebbles at them; or meet one girl on a bridge and kiss her. For this the girls have them arrested by an accommodating catchpoll, and they are hanged by a peremptory judge. This Southern ballad is originally French (see Journal des Savants, Sept.-Nov., 1889, p. 614).

A

'The Clerk's Twa Sons o Owsenfords,' Kinloch MSS., v, 408, in the handwriting of James Chambers, as sung to his maternal grandmother, Janet Grieve, seventy years before, by an old woman, a Miss Ann Gray, of Neidpath Castle, Peeblesshire; January 1, 1829.

- 1 O I WILL sing to you a sang,
But oh my heart is sair!
The clerk's twa sons in Owsenfords
Has to learn some unco lair.
- 2 They hadna been in fair Parish
A twelvemonth an a day,
Till the clerk's twa sons o Owsenfords
Wi the mayor's twa daughters lay.
- 3 O word's gaen to the mighty mayor,
As he saild on the sea,
That the clerk's twa sons o Owsenfords
Wi his twa daughters lay.
- 4 'If they hae lain wi my twa daughters,
Meg an Marjorie,
The morn, or I taste meat or drink,
They shall be hangit hie.'
- 5 O word's gaen to the clerk himself,
As he sat drinkin wine,
That his twa sons in fair Parish
Were bound in prison strong.

- 6 Then up and spak the clerk's ladye,
And she spak powrfully:
'O tak with ye a purse of gold,
Or take with ye three,
And if ye canna get William,
Bring Andrew hame to me.'

* * * * *

- 7 'O lye ye here for owsen, dear sons,
Or lie ye here for kye?
Or what is it that ye lie for,
Sae sair bound as ye lie?'
- 8 'We lie not here for owsen, dear father,
Nor yet lie here for kye,
But it's for a little o dear bought love
Sae sair bound as we lie.'
- 9 O he's gane to the mighty mayor,
And he spoke powerfully:
'Will ye grant me my twa sons' lives,
Either for gold or fee?
Or will ye be sae gude a man
As grant them baith to me?'
- 10 'I'll no grant ye yere twa sons' lives,
Neither for gold or fee,
Nor will I be sae gude a man
As gie them back to thee;
Before the morn at twelve o'clock
Ye'll see them hangit hie.'
- 11 Up an spak his twa daughters,
An they spak powrfully:
'Will ye grant us our twa loves' lives,
Either for gold or fee?
Or will ye be sae gude a man
As grant them baith to me?'
- 12 'I'll no grant ye yere twa loves' lives,
Neither for gold or fee,
Nor will I be sae gude a man
As grant their lives to thee;
Before the morn at twelve o'clock
Ye'll see them hangit hie.'
- 13 O he's taen out these proper youths,
And hangd them on a tree,
And he's bidden the clerk o Owsenfords
Gang hame to his ladie.
- 14 His lady sits on yon castle-wa,
Beholding dale an doun,

An there she saw her ain gude lord
Come walkin to the toun.

15 'Ye're welcome, welcome, my ain gude
lord,

Ye're welcome hame to me;
But where away are my twa sons?
Ye should hae brought them wi ye.'

16 'It's I've putten them to a deeper lair,
An to a higher schule;
Yere ain twa sons ill no be here
Till the hallow days o Yule.'

17 'O sorrow, sorrow come mak my bed,
An dool come lay me doon!
For I'll neither eat nor drink,
Nor set a fit on ground.'

LORD THOMAS AND FAIR ANNET

The English version of this ballad, 'Lord Thomas and Fair Ellinor' (D), given, with alterations, in Percy's Reliques, III, 82, 1765, is a broadside of Charles the Second's time and licensed by L'Estrange, who was censor from 1663 to 1685. This copy has become traditional in Scotland and Ireland. The Scottish traditional copy, A, given by Percy in the Reliques (unfortunately with some corrections, but these cannot have been many), is far superior, and one of the most beautiful of all ballads. 'Fair Margaret and Sweet William' (No. 74) begins in the same way, but the conclusion is that the forsaken maid dies of grief, not by the hand of her incensed rival. It is most natural that the two stories should be blended in tradition, as they are here in I (and in versions E-H). Sts. 31 ff. of I belong to 'Fair Margaret and Sweet William' (No. 74). Norse ballads (see Grundtvig, IV, 219) have the story of 'Lord Thomas and Fair Annet,' coming very close in details. Those forms which are nearest to the English resemble more the mixed versions than the simple version A. A southern ballad has something of the outline of the English and Norse, and sounds like a thin echo of them.

A

'Lord Thomas and Fair Annet,' Percy's Reliques, 1765, II, 593, "given, with some corrections, from a MS. copy transmitted from Scotland;" III, 240, ed. 1767.

1 LORD THOMAS and Fair Annet
Sate a' day on a hill;
Whan night was cum, and sunn was
sett,
They had not talkt their fill.

2 Lord Thomas said a word in jest,
Fair Annet took it ill:
'A, I will nevir wed a wife
Against my ain friends' will.'

3 'Gif ye wull nevir wed a wife,
A wife wull neir wed yee:'
Sae he is hame to tell his mither,
And knelt upon his knee.

4 'O rede, O rede, mither,' he says,
'A gude rede gie to mee;
O sall I tak the nut-browne bride,
And let Faire Annet bee?'

5 'The nut-browne bride haes gowd and gear,
Fair Annet she has gat nane;
And the little beauty Fair Annet haes
O it wull soon be gane.'

6 And he has till his brother gane:
'Now, brother, rede ye mee;
A, sall I marrie the nut-browne bride,
And let Fair Annet bee?'

7 'The nut-browne bride has oxen, brother,
The nut-browne bride has kye;
I wad hae ye marrie the nut-browne
bride,
And cast Fair Annet bye.'

8 'Her oxen may dye i the house, billie,
And her kye into the byre,
And I sall hae nothing to mysell
Bot a fat fadge by the fyre.'

9 And he has till his sister gane:
'Now, sister, rede ye mee;
O sall I marrie the nut-browne bride,
And set Fair Annet free?'

10 'I'se rede ye tak Fair Annet, Thomas,
And let the browne bride alane;
Lest ye sould sigh, and say, Alace,
What is this we brought hame!'

11 'No, I will tak my mither's counsel,
Aud marrie me cwt o hand;

And I will tak the nut-browne bride,
Fair Annet may leive the land.'

12 Up then rose Fair Annet's father,
Twa hours or it wer day,
And he is gane into the bower
Wherein Fair Annet lay.

13 'Rise up, rise up, Fair Annet,' he says,
'Put on your silken sheene;
Let us gae to St Marie's kirke,
And see that rich weddeen.'

14 'My maides, gae to my dressing-roome,
And dress to me my hair;
Whaireir yee laid a plait before,
See yee lay ten times mair.

15 'My maids, gae to my dressing-room,
And dress to me my smock;
The one half is o the holland fine,
The other o needle-work.'

16 The horse Fair Annet rade upon,
He amblit like the wind;
Wi siller he was shod before,
Wi burning gowd behind.

17 Four and twanty siller bells
Wer a' tyed till his mane,
And yae tift o the norland wind,
They tinkled ane by ane.

18 Four and twanty gay gude knights
Rade by Fair Annet's side,
And four and twanty fair ladies,
As gin she had bin a bride.

19 And whan she cam to Marie's kirk,
She sat on Marie's stean:
The cleading that Fair Annet had on
It skinkled in their een.

20 And whan she cam into the kirk,
She shimmerd like the sun;
The belt that was about her waist
Was a' wi pearles bedone.

.. 21 She sat her by the nut-browne bride,
And her een they wer sae clear,
Lord Thomas he clean forgat the bride,
Whan Fair Annet drew near.

22 He had a rose into his hand,
He gae it kisses three,

And reaching by the nut-browne bride,
Laid it on Fair Annet's knee.

23 Up than spak the nut-browne bride,
She spak wi meikle spite:
'And whair gat ye that rose-water,
That does mak yee sae white?'

24 'O I did get the rose-water
Whair ye wull neir get nane,
For I did get that very rose-water
Into my mither's wame.'

25 The bride she drew a long bodkin
Frae out her gay head-gear,
And strake Fair Annet unto the heart,
That word spak nevir mair.

26 Lord Thomas he saw Fair Annet wex pale,
And marvelit what mote bee;
But whan he saw her dear heart's blude,
A' wood-wroth wexed hee.

27 He drew his dagger, that was sae sharp,
That was sae sharp and meet,
And drave it into the nut-browne bride,
That fell deid at his feit.

28 'Now stay for me, dear Annet,' he sed,
'Now stay, my dear,' he cry'd;
Then strake the dagger untill his heart,
And fell deid by her side.

29 Lord Thomas was buried without kirk-
wa,
Fair Annet within the quiere,
And o the tane thair grew a birk,
The other a bonny briere.

30 And ay they grew, and ay they threw,
As they wad faine be neare;
And by this ye may ken right weil
They were twa luvvers deare.

'Lord Thomas and Fair Ellinor.' a. Pepys Ballads, III, 316, No. 312. b. A Collection of Old Ballads, I, 249, 1723. c. Ritson, Select Collection of English Songs, II, 187, 1783. d. Buchan's Gleanings, p. 86. e, f, g, h, i, recited copies.

1 LORD THOMAS he was a bold forrester,
And a chaser of the king's deer;

- Faire Ellinor was a fair woman,
And Lord Thomas he loved her dear.
- 2 'Come riddle my riddle, dear mother,'
he said,
'And riddle us both as one,
Whether I shall marry Fair Ellinor,
And let the brown girl alone.'
- 3 'The brown girl she has got houses and
lands,
And Fair Ellinor she has got none;
Therefore I charge you on my blessing
To bring me the brown girl home.'
- 4 And as it befell on a high holidaye,
As many did more beside,
Lord Thomas he went to Fair Ellinor,
That should have been his bride.
- 5 But when he came to Fair Ellinor's
bower,
He knocked there at the ring;
But who was so ready as Fair Ellinor
For to let Lord Thomas in.
- 6 'What news, what news, Lord Thomas,'
she said,
'What news hast thou brought unto
me?'
'I am come to bid thee to my wedding,
And that is bad news to thee.'
- 7 'Oh God forbid, Lord Thomas,' she
said,
'That such a thing should be done;
I thought to have been thy bride my own self,
And you to have been the brid's-
groom.'
- 8 'Come riddle my riddle, dear mother,'
she said,
'And riddle it all in one;
Whether I shall go to Lord Thomas's wedding,
Or whether I shall tarry at home.'
- 9 'There's many that are your friends,
daughter,
And many that are your fo;
Therefore I charge you on my bless-
ing,
To Lord Thomas's wedding don't go.'
- 10 'There's many that are my friends,
mother,
If a thousand more were my foe,
Betide my life, betide my death,
To Lord Thomas's wedding I'll go.'
- 11 She cloathed herself in gallant attyre,
And her merry men all in green,
And as they rid thorough everye towne,
They took her to have been a queene.
- 12 But when she came to Lord Thomas's
gate,
She knocked there at the ring;
But who was so ready as Lord Thomas
To lett Fair Ellinor in.
- 13 'Is this your bride?' Fair Ellin she
sayd,
'Methinks she looks wondrous browne;
Thou mightest have had as fair a woman
As ever trod on the ground.'
- 14 'Despise her not, Fair Ellin,' he sayd,
'Despise her not now unto mee;
For better I love thy little finger
Than all her whole body.'
- 15 This browne bride had a little penknife,
That was both long and sharp,
And betwixt the short ribs and the long
Prickd Fair Ellinor to the heart.
- 16 'Oh Christ now save thee,' Lord Thomas
he said,
'Methinks thou lookst wondrous wan;
Thou wast usd for to look with as fresh a colour
As ever the sun shin'd on.'
- 17 'Oh art thou blind, Lord Thomas?' she
sayd,
'Or canst thou not very well see?
Oh dost thou not see my own heart's blood
Runs trickling down my knee?'
- 18 Lord Thomas he had a sword by his side,
As he walked about the hall;
He cut off his bride's head from her shoulders,
And he threw it against the wall.
- 19 He set the hilt against the ground,
And the point against his heart;

There was never three lovers that ever met
More sooner they did depart.

Abbotsford MS., Scotch Ballads, Materials
for Border Minstrelsy, No. 22 h; in the handwriting of William Laidlaw. From Jean Scott.

- 1 FAIR ANNIE an Sweet Willie
Sat a' day on yon hill;
Whan day was gane an night was comd,
They hadna said their fill.
- 2 Willie spak but ae wrang word,
An Annie took it ill:
'I'll never marry a fair woman
Against my friends's will.'
- 3 Annie spak but ae wrang word,
An Willy lookit down:
'If I binna gude enough for yer wife,
I'm our-gude for yer loun.'
- 4 Willie's turnd his horse's head about,
He's turnd it to the broom,
An he's away to his father's bower,
I the ae light o the moon.
- 5 Whan he cam to his father's bower,
[He tirlt at the pin;
Nane was sae ready as his father
To rise an let him in.]
- 6 'An askin, an askin, dear father,
An askin I'll ask thee;
'Say on, say on, my son Willie,
Whatever your askin be.'
- 7 'O sall I marry the nit-brown bride,
Has corn, caitle an kye,
Or sall I marry Fair Annie,
Has nought but fair beauty?'
- 8 'Ye ma sit a gude sate, Willy,
Wi corn, caitle an kye;
But ye'll but sit a silly sate
Wi nought but fair beauty.'
- 9 Up than spak his sister's son,
Sat on the nurse's knee,
Sun-bruist in his mother's wame,
Sun-brunt on his nurse's knee:

- 10 'O yer hogs will die out i the field,
Yer kye ill die i the byre;
An than, whan a' yer gear is gane,
A fusom fag by yer fire!
But a' will thrive at is wi you
An ye get yer heart's desire.'
- 11 Willie's turnd his horse's head about,
He's away to his mother's bour,
etc.
- 12 'O my hogs ill die out i the field,
My kye die i the byre,
An than, whan a' my gear is gane,
A fusom fag bi my fire!
But a' will thrive at is wi me
Gin I get my heart's desire.'
- 13 Willie's, etc.,
He's awae to his brother's bower, etc.
- 14 " " " " sister's bower, etc.
- 15 Than Willie has set his wadin-day
Within thirty days an three,
An he has sent to Fair Annie
His waddin to come an see.
- 16 The man that gade to Fair Annie
Sae weel his errant cou'd tell:
'The morn it's Willie's wadin-day,
Ye maun be there yer sell.'
- 17 'T was up an spak her aged father,
He spak wi muckle care;
'An the morn be Willie's wadin-day,
I wate she maun be there.
- 18 'Gar take a steed to the smiddie,
Caw on o it four shoon;
Gar take her to a merchant's shop,
Cut off for her a gown.'
- 19 She wadna ha't o the red sae red
Nor yet o the grey sae grey,
But she wad ha't o the sky couler
That she woor ilka day.
- * * * *
- 20 There war four-a-twontie gray goss-hawks
A' flaffin their wings sae wide,
To flaff the stour thra off the road
That Fair Annie did ride.

- 21 The[re] war four-an-twontie milk-white
dows
A' fleein aboon her head,
An four-an-twontie milk-white swans
Her out the gate to lead.
- 22 Whan she cam to St Marie's kirk,
She lightit on a stane;
The beauty o that fair creature
Shone oer mouny ane.
- 23 'T was than out cam the nit-brown
bride,
She spak wi muckle spite;
'O where gat ye the water, Annie,
That washes you sae white?'
- 24 'I gat my beauty
Where ye was no to see;
I gat it i my father's garden,
Aneath an apple tree.
- 25 'Ye ma wash i dubs,' she said,
'An ye ma wash i syke,
But an ye wad wash till doomsday
Ye neer will be as white.
- 26 'Ye ma wash i dubs,' she said,
'An ye ma wash i the sea,
But an ye soun wash till doomsday
Ye 'll neer be as white as me.
- 27 'For I gat a' this fair beauty
Where ye gat never none,
For I gat a' this fair beauty
Or ever I was born.'
- 28 It was than out cam Willie,
Wi hats o silks and flowers;
He said, Keep ye thae, my Fair Annie,
An brook them weel for yours.
- 29 'Na, keep ye thae, Willie,' she said,
'Gie them to yer nit-brown bride;
Bid her wear them wi mukle care,
For woman has na born a son
Sal mak my heart as sair.'
- 30 Annie's luppen on her steed
An she has ridden hame,
Than Annie's luppen of her steed
An her bed she has taen.
- 31 When mass was sung, an bells war
rung,
An a' man bound to bed,

- An Willie an his nit-brown bride
I their chamber war laid,
- 32 They war na weel laid in their bed,
Nor yet weel faen asleep,
'Till up an startit Fair Annie,
Just up at Willie's feet.
- 33 'How like ye yer bed, Willie?
An how like ye yer sheets?
An how like ye yer nut-brown bride,
Lies in yer arms an sleeps?'
- 34 'Weel eneugh I like my bed, Annie,
Weel eneugh I like my sheets;
But wae be to the nit-brown bride
Lies in my arms an sleeps!'
- 35 Willie's ca'd on his merry men a'
To rise an pit on their shoon;
'An we 'll awae to Annie's bower,
Wi the ae light o the moon.'
- 36 An whan he cam to Annie's bower,
He tirlt at the pin;
Nane was sae ready as her father
To rise an let him in.
- 37 There was her father a[n] her se'en
brethren
A' makin to her a bier,
Wi ae stamp o the melten goud,
Another o siller clear.
- 38 When he cam to the chamber-door
Where that the dead lay in,
There was her mother an six sisters
A' makin to her a sheet,
Wi ae drap o
Another o silk sae white.
- 39 'Stand by, stand by now, ladies a',
Let me look on the dead;
The last time that I kiss[t] her lips
They war mair bonny red.'
- 40 'Stand by, stand by now, Willie,' they
said,
'An let ye her alane;
Gin ye had done as ye soun done,
She wad na there ha lien.'
- 41 'Gar deal, gar deal at Annie's burrial
The wheat bread an the wine,
For or the morn at ten o clock
Ye's deal'd as fast at mine.'

FAIR MARGARET AND SWEET WILLIAM

A, a, b, c, are broadside or stall copies, a of the end of the seventeenth century, b "modern" in Percy's time. The ballad is twice quoted in Beaumont and Fletcher's Knight of the Burning Pestle, 1611 (ii, 8; iii, 5). David Mallet published as his own, in 1724, 'Margaret's Ghost,' which turns out to be simply 'William and Margaret, an Old Ballad,' printed in 1711, with a few changes. The 1711 text is simply 'Fair Margaret and Sweet William' rewritten in what used to be called an elegant style.

'Fair Margaret and Sweet William' begins like No 73, and from the fifth stanza on is blended with a form of that ballad. The catastrophe of 'Fair Margaret and Sweet William' is repeated in 'Lord Lovel' (No. 75).

- 1 As it fell out on a long summer's day,
Two lovers they sat on a hill;
They sat together that long summer's day,
And could not talk their fill.
- 2 'I see no harm by you, Margaret,
Nor you see none by me;
Before tomorrow eight a clock
A rich wedding shall you see.'
- 3 Fair Margaret sat in her bower-window,
A combing of her hair,
And there she spy'd Sweet William and his bride,
As they were riding near.
- 4 Down she layd her ivory comb,
And up she bound her hair;
She went her way forth of her bower,
But never more did come there.
- 5 When day was gone, and night was
come,
And all men fast asleep,

Then came the spirit of Fair Margaret,
And stood at William's feet.

- 6 'God give you joy, you two true lovers,
In bride-bed fast asleep;
Loe I am going to my green grass grave,
And am in my winding-sheet.'
- 7 When day was come, and night was gone,
And all men wak'd from sleep,
Sweet William to his lady said,
'My dear, I have cause to weep.
- 8 'I dreamd a dream, my dear lady;
Such dreams are never good;
I dreamd my bower was full of red swine,
And my bride-bed full of blood.'
- 9 'Such dreams, such dreams, my honoured lord,
They never do prove good,
To dream thy bower was full of swine,
And [thy] bride-bed full of blood.'
- 10 He called up his merry men all,
By one, by two, and by three,
Saying, I'll away to Fair Margaret's
bower,
By the leave of my lady.
- 11 And when he came to Fair Margaret's
bower,
He knocked at the ring;
So ready was her seven brethren
To let Sweet William in.
- 12 He turned up the covering-sheet:
'Pray let me see the dead;
Methinks she does look pale and wan,
She has lost her cherry red.
- 13 'I'll do more for thee, Margaret,
Than any of thy kin;
For I will kiss thy pale wan lips,
Tho a smile I cannot win.'
- 14 With that bespeak her seven brethren,
Making most pitious moan:
'You may go kiss your jolly brown bride,
And let our sister alone.'
- 15 'If I do kiss my jolly brown bride,
I do but what is right;

For I made no vow to your sister dear,
By day or yet by night.

- 16 'Pray tell me then how much you 'll deal
Of your white bread and your wine;
So much as is dealt at her funeral today
Tomorrow shall be dealt at mine.'
- 17 Fair Margaret dy'd today, today,
Sweet William he dy'd the morrow;
Fair Margaret dy'd for pure true love,
Sweet William he dy'd for sorrow.
- 18 Margaret was buried in the lower chancel,
Sweet William in the higher;
Out of her breast there sprung a rose,
And out of his a brier.
- 19 They grew as high as the church-top,
Till they could grow no higher,
And then they grew in a true lover's
knot,
Which made all people admire.
- 20 There came the clerk of the parish,
As you this truth shall hear,
And by misfortune cut them down,
Or they had now been there.

B

Percy Papers; communicated by the Dean of Derry, as written down from memory by his mother, Mrs Bernard; February, 1776.

- 1 SWEET WILLIAM would a wooing ride,
His steed was lovely brown;
A fairer creature than Lady Margaret
Sweet William could find none.
- 2 Sweet William came to Lady Margaret's
bower,
And knocked at the ring,
And who so ready as Lady Margaret
To rise and to let him in.
- 3 Down then came her father dear,
Clothed all in blue:
'I pray, Sweet William, tell to me
What love's between my daughter and you?'
- 4 'I know none by her,' he said,
'And she knows none by me;

Before tomorrow at this time
Another bride you shall see.'

- 5 Lady Margaret at her bower-window,
Combing of her hair,
She saw Sweet William and his brown
bride
Unto the church repair.
- 6 Down she cast her iv'ry comb,
And up she tossd her hair,
She went out from her bowr alive,
But never so more came there.
- 7 When day was gone, and night was come,
All people were asleep,
In glided Margaret's grimly ghost,
And stood at William's feet.
- 8 'How d' ye like your bed, Sweet William?
How d' ye like your sheet?
And how d' ye like that brown lady,
That lies in your arms asleep?'
- 9 'Well I like my bed, Lady Margaret,
And well I like my sheet;
But better I like that fair lady
That stands at my bed's feet.'
- 10 When night was gone, and day was
come,
All people were awake,
The lady waket out of her sleep,
And thus to her lord she spake.
- 11 'I dreamd a dream, my wedded lord,
That seldom comes to good;
I dreamd that our bowr was lin'd with white swine,
And our brid-chamber full of blood.'
- 12 He called up his merry men all,
By one, by two, by three,
'We will go to Lady Margaret's bower,
With the leave of my wedded lady.'
- 13 When he came to Lady Margaret's
bower,
He knocked at the ring,
And who were so ready as her brethren
To rise and let him in.
- 14 'Oh is she in the parlor,' he said,
'Or is she in the hall?'

Or is she in the long chamber,
Amongst her merry maids all ?'

15 'She's not in the parlor,' they said,
'Nor is she in the hall;
But she is in the long chamber,
Laid out against the wall.'

16 'Open the winding sheet,' he cry'd,
'That I may kiss the dead;
That I may kiss her pale and wan
Whose lips used to look so red.'

17 Lady Margaret [died] on the over night,
Sweet William died on the morrow;
Lady Margaret died for pure, pure
love,
Sweet William died for sorrow.

18 On Margaret's grave there grew a rose,
On Sweet William's grew a briar;
They grew till they joind in a true
lover's knot,
And then they died both together.

LORD LOVEL

In 'Fair Margaret and Sweet William' (No. 74), as also in 'Lord Thomas and Fair Annet' (No. 73), a lover sacrifices his inclination to make a marriage of interest. In 'Lord Lovel' the woman dies, not of affections betrayed, but of hopes too long deferred, and her laggard but not unfaithful lover sinks under his remorse and grief. There are several sets of ballads, very common in Germany and in Scandinavia, which, whether they are or are not variations of the same original, at least have a great deal in common with 'Lord Lovel' and 'Fair Margaret and Sweet William.' Of these, one which more closely resembles the English is 'Der Ritter und die Maid,' of German origin (see Uhland, No. 97; Erk, Liederhort, No. 26), but found also in Scandinavia. A Romaic ballad (Passow, No. 415) has the characteristic features of the English, German, and Scandinavian stories, with a beginning of its own, as these also have.

'Lady Ouncebell,' Percy Papers, communicated by the Rev. P. Parsons, of Wye, from singing; May 22, 1770, and April 19, 1775.

1 'AND I fare you well, Lady Ouncebell,
For I must needs be gone,
And this time two year I'll meet you
again,
To finish the loves we begun.'

2 'That is a long time, Lord Lovill,' said
she,
'To live in fair Scotland;'
'And so it is, Lady Ouncebell,
'To leave a fair lady alone.'

3 He had not been in fair Scotland
Not half above half a year,
But a longin mind came into his head,
Lady Ouncebell he woud go see her.

4 He called up his stable-groom,
To saddle his milk-white stead;
Dey down, dey down, dey down dery
down,
I wish Lord Lovill good speed.

5 He had not been in fair London
Not half above half a day,
But he heard the bells of the high chapel
ring,
They rang with a ceserera.

6 He asked of a gentleman,
That set there all alone,
What made the bells of the high chapel
ring,
The ladys make all their moan.

7 'One of the king's daughters are dead,'
said he,
'Lady Ouncebell was her name;
She died for love of a courtous young
night,
Lord Lovill he was the same.'

8 He caused her corps to be set down,
And her winding sheet undone,
And he made a vow before them all
He'd never kiss wowman again.

9 Lady Ouncebell died on the yesterday,
Lord Lovill on the morrow;
Lady Ouncebell died for pure true love,
Lord Lovill died for sorrow.

10 Lady Ouncebell was buried in the high chancel,
Lord Lovill in the choir;

Lady Ouncebell's breast sprung out a sweet rose,
Lord Lovill's a bunch of sweet brier.

11 They grew till they grew to the top of the church,
And then they could grow no higher;
They grew till they grew to a true-lover's
not,
And then they tyed both together.

12 An old wowman coming by that way,
And a blessing she did crave,
To cut off a bunch of that true-lover's
not,
And buried them both in one grave.

B

'Lord Lavel,' Kinloch MSS., i, 45, from the recitation of Mary Barr, of Lesmahago, "aged upwards of 70," May, 1827.

1 LORD LAVEL he stands at his stable-
door,
Kaiming his milk-white steed;
And by and cam Fair Nancybelle,
And wished Lord Lavel good speed.

2 'O whare are ye going, Lord Lavel?'
she said,
'I pray ye tell to me:'
'O I am going to merry England,
To win your love aff me.'

3 'And whan will ye return again?' she
said,
'Lord Lavel, pray tell to me:'
'Whan seven lang years are past and
gane,
Fair Nancybelle, I'll return to thee.'

4 "'T is too lang, Lord Lavel,' she said,
'T is too lang for me;
'T is too lang, Lord Lavel,' she said,
'A true lover for to see.'

* * * *

5 He had na been in merry England
A month but barely three,
Till languishing thoughts cam into his
mind,
And Nancybelle fain wad he see.

6 He rade, and he rade, along the hieway,
Till he cam to yonder toun;
He heard the sound o a fine chapel-bell,
And the ladies were mourning roun.

7 He rade, and he rade, along the hieway,
Till he cam to yonder hall;
He heard the sound o a fine chapel-bell,
And the ladies were mourning all.

8 He asked wha it was that was dead,
The ladies did him tell:
They said, It is the king's daughter,
Her name is Fair Nancybelle;
She died for the love of a courteous
young knight,
His name is Lord Lavel.

9 'O hast thou died, Fair Nancybelle,
O hast thou died for me!
O hast thou died, Fair Nancybelle!
Then I will die for thee.'

10 Fair Nancybelle died, as it might be,
this day,
Lord Lavel he died tomorrow;
Fair Nancybelle died with pure, pure
love,
Lord Lavel he died with sorrow.

11 Lord Lavel was buried in Mary's kirk,
Nancybelle in Mary's quire;
And out o the ane there grew a birk,
Out the other a bonny brier.

12 And ae they grew, and ae they threw,
Until they twa did meet,
That ilka ane might plainly see
They war twa lovers sweet.

D

'Lord Lovel,' Kinloch MSS., vii, 83, from the recitation of a lady of Roxburghshire;
Kinloch's Ancient Scottish Ballads, p. 31.

1 LORD LOVEL stands at his stable-door,
Mounted upon a grey steed,
And bye cam Ladie Nanciebel,
And wishd Lord Lovel much speed.

2 'O whare are ye going, Lord Lovel?
My dearest, tell unto me:'
'I am going a far journey,
Some strange countrey to see.'

3 'But I'll return in seven long years,
Lady Nanciebel to see.'
'Oh seven, seven, seven long years,
They are much too long for me.'

* * * * *

4 He was gane about a year away,
A year but barely ane,
Whan a strange fancy cam intil his
head
That fair Nanciebel was gane.

5 It's then he rade, and better rade,
Untill he cam to the toun,
And there he heard a disinal noise,
For the church bells aw did soun.

6 He asked what the bells rang for;
They said, It's for Nanciebel;
She died for a discourteous squire,
And his name is Lord Lovel.

7 The lid of the coffin he opened up,
The linens he faulded down,
And ae he kissd her pale, pale lips,
And the tears cam trinkling down.

8 'Weill may I kiss these pale, pale lips,
For they will never kiss me;
I'll mak a vow, and I'll keep it true,
That I'll neer kiss ane but thee.'

9 Lady Nancie died on Tuesday's nicht,
Lord Lovel upon the niest day;
Lady Nancie died for pure, pure love,
Lord Lovel for deep sorraye.

THE LASS OF ROCH ROYAL

A, the oldest copy, published for the first time in Child's English and Scottish Popular Ballads, is from a manuscript of the first half of the eighteenth century. A has a preliminary history wanting in all others, but the story is somewhat obscure and two different relations may have been confounded. The conclusion of A is that of 'Lord Lovel' (No. 75) and 'Fair Margaret and Sweet William' (No. 74), and must perhaps be set aside as not the original one.

'Fair Isabell of Rochroyall,' Elizabeth Cochran's Song-Book, MS., p. 151, No. 114.

1 FAIR ISABELL of Rochroyall,
She dreamed where she lay,
She dreamd a dream of her love Gregory,
A litle before the day.

2 O huly, huly rose she up,
And huly she put on,
And huly, huly she put on
The silks of crimson.

3 'Gar sadle me the black,' she sayes,
'Gar sadle me the broun;
Gar sadle me the swiftest steed.
That ever rode the toun.

4 'Gar shoe him with the beat silver,
And grind him with the gold;
Gar put two bells on every side,
Till I come to some hold.'

5 She had not rode a mile, a mile,
A mile but barely three,
Till that she spyed a companie
Come rakeing oere the lee.

6 'O whether is this the first young may,
That lighted and gaed in;
Or is this the second young may,
That neer the sun shined on?
Or is this Fair Isabell of Roch Royall,
Banisht from kyth and kin?'

7 'O I am not the first young may,
That lighted and gaed in;
Nor neither am I the second young
may,
That neer the sun shone on;

8 'But I'm Fair Isabell of Roch Royall
Banisht from kyth and kin;
I'm seeking my true-love Gregory,
And I woud I had him in.'

9 'O go your way to yon castle,
And ride it round about,
And there you'll find Love Gregory;
He's within, without any doubt.'

10 O she's away to yon castle,
She's tirlid at the pin:
'O open, open, Love Gregory,
And let your true-love in.'

11 'If you be the lass of the Rochroyall,
As I trow not you be,

You will tell me some of our love-
tokens,
That was betwixt you and me.'

12 'Have you not mind, Love Gregory,
Since we sat at the wine;
When we changed the rings off our fingers,
And ay the worst fell mine ?

13 'Mine was of the massy gold,
And thine was of the tin;
Mine was true and trusty both,
And thine was false within.'

14 'If you be [the] lass of the Roch Royall,
As I trow not you be,
You will tell me some other love-token
That was betwixt you and me.'

15 'Have you not mind, Love Gregory,
Since we sat at the wine,
We changed the smocks off our two backs,
And ay the worst fell mine ?

16 'Mine was of the holland fine,
And thine was course and thin;
So many blocks have we two made,
And ay the worst was mine.'

17 'Love Gregory, he is not at home,
But he is to the sea;
If you have any word to him,
I pray you leave 't with me.'

* * * * *

18 'O who will shoe my bony foot ?
Or who will glove my hand ?
Or who will bind my midle jimp
With the broad lilly band ?

19 'Or who will comb my bony head
With the red river comb ?
Or who will be my bairn's father
Ere Gregory he come home ?'

20 'O I's gar shoe thy bony foot,
And I's gar glove thy hand,
And I's gar bind thy midle jimp
With the broad lilly band.

21 'And I's gar comb thy bony head
With the red river comb;

But there is none to be thy bairn's father
Till Love Gregory he come home.'

22 'I'll set my foot on the ship-board,
God send me wind and more !
For there's never a woman shall bear a
son
Shall make my heart so sore.'

23 'I dreamed a dream now since yestreen,
That I never dreamed before;
I dreamd that the lass of the Roch-royall
Was knocking at the door.'

24 'Ly still, ly still, my 6 dear son,
Ly still, and take a sleep;
For it's neither ane hour, nor yet a half,
Since she went from the gate.'

25 'O wo be to you, ill woman,
And ane ill death mott you die !
For you might have come to my bedside,
And then have wakened me.

26 'Gar sadle me the black,' he sayes,
'Gar sadle me the broun;
Gar sadle me the swiftest steed
That ever rode the toun.

27 'Gar shoe him with the beat silver,
Gar grind him with the gold;
Cause put two bells on every side,
Till I come to some hold.'

28 They saddled him the black, the black,
So did they him the broun;
So did they him the swiftest steed
That ever rode to toun.

29 They shoed him with the beat silver,
They grind him with the gold;
They put two bells on every side,
Till he came to some hold.

30 He had not rode a mile, a mile,
A mile but barely three,
Till that he spyed her comely corps
Come raking oere the lee.

31 'Set down, set down these comely corps,
Let me look on the dead :'
And out he's ta'en his little pen-knife,
And slitted her winding sheet.

32 And first he kist her cheek, her cheek,
And then he kist her chin;
And then he kist her rosy lips,
But there was no breath within.

33 'Gar deall, gar deall for my love sake
The spiced bread and the wine;
For ere the morn at this time
So shall you deall for mine.

34 'Gar deall, gar deall for my love sake
The pennys that are so small;
For ere the morn at this time
So shall you deall for all.'

35 The one was buried in Mary kirk,
The other in Mary quire;
Out of the one there sprung a birk,
Out of the other a bryar;
So thus you may well know by that
They were two lovers dear.

D

'Fair Anny,' Jamieson-Brown MS., p. 27;
'Fair Annie of Lochroyan,' Jamieson's Popular Ballads, I, 36.

1 'O WHA will shoe my fu fair foot?
An wha will glove my han?
An wha will lace my middle gimp
Wi the new made London ban?

2 'Or wha will kemb my yallow hair,
Wi the new made silver kemb?
Or wha'll be father to my young bairn,
Till Love Gregor come hame?'

3 Her father shoed her fu fair foot,
Her mother glovd her han;
Her sister lac'd her middle gimp
Wi the new made London ban.

4 Her brother kembd her yallow hair,
Wi the new made silver kemb,
But the king o heaven maun father her
bairn,
Till Love Gregor come hame.

5 'O gin I had a bony ship,
An men to sail wi me,
It's I would gang to my true-love,
Since he winna come to me.'

6 Her father's gien her a bonny ship,
An sent her to the stran;

She's tane her young son in her arms,
An turnd her back to the lan.

7 She had na been o the sea sailin
About a month or more,
Till landed has she her bonny ship
Near her true-love's door.

8 The night was dark, an the win blew
caul,
An her love was fast asleep,
An the bairn that was in her twa arms
Fu sair began to weep.

9 Long stood she at her true-love's door,
An lang tird at the pin;
At length up gat his fa'se mitther,
Says, Wha's that woud be in?

10 'O it is Anny of Roch-royal,
Your love, come oer the sea,
But an your young son in her arms;
So open the door to me.'

11 'Awa, awa, you ill woman,
You've na come here for gude;
You're but a witch, or wile warlock,
Or mermaid o the flude.'

12 'I'm na a witch, or wile warlock,
Nor mermaiden,' said she;
'I'm but Fair Anny o Roch-royal;
O open the door to me.'

13 'O gin ye be Anny o Roch-royal,
As [I] trust not ye be,
What taiken can ye gie that ever
I kept your company?'

14 'O dinna ye mind, Love Gregor,' she
says,
'Whan we sat at the wine,
How we changed the napkins frae our necks,
It's na sae lang sin syne?

15 'An yours was good, an good enough,
But nae sae good as mine;
For yours was o the cumbruk clear,
But mine was silk sae fine.

16 'An dinna ye mind, Love Gregor,' she
says,
'As we twa sat at dine,

- How we changed the riugs frae our
fingers,
But ay the best was mine?
- 17 'For yours was good, an good enough,
Yet nae sae good as mine;
For yours was of the good red gold,
But mine o the diamonds fine.
- 18 'Sae open the door now, Love Gregor,
An open it wi speed,
Or your young son that is in my arms
For cauld will soon be dead.'
- 19 'Awa, awa, you ill woman,
Gae frae my door for shame;
For I hae gotten another fair love,
Sae ye may hye you hame.'
- 20 'O hae you gotten another fair love,
For a' the oaths you sware?
Then fair you well now, fa'se Gregor,
For me you 's never see mair.'
- 21 O heely, heely gi'd she back,
As the day began to peep;
She set her foot on good ship-board,
An sair, sair did she weep.
- 22 Love Gregor started frae his sleep,
An to his mither did say,
I dreamd a dream this night, mither,
That maks my heart right wae.
- 23 'I dreamd that Anny of Roch-royal,
The flowr o a' her kin,
Was standin mournin at my door,
But nane would lat her in.'
- 24 'O there was a woman stood at the
door,
Wi a bairn intill her arms,
But I woud na lat her within the
bowr,
For fear she had done you harm.'
- 25 O quickly, quickly raise he up,
An fast ran to the stran,
An there he saw her Fair Anny,
Was sailin frae the lan.
- 26 An 'Heigh, Anny!' an 'Hou, Anny!
O Anny, speak to me!
But ay the louder that he cried Anny,
The louder roard the sea.

- 27 An 'Heigh, Anny!' an 'Hou, Anny!
O Anny, winna you bide?'
But ay the langer that he cried Anny,
'The higher roard the tide.
- 28 The win grew loud, an the sea grew
rough,
An the ship was rent in twain,
An soon he saw her Fair Anny
Come floating oer the main.
- 29 He saw his young son in her arms,
Baith tossd aboon the tide;
He wrang his hands, than fast he ran,
An plung'd i the sea sae wide.
- 30 He catchd her by the yallow hair,
An drew her to the strand,
But cauld an stiff was every limb
Before he reachd the land.
- 31 O first he kissd her cherry cheek,
An then he kissd her chin;
An sair he kissd her ruby lips,
• But there was nae breath within.
- 32 O he has mournd oer Fair Anny
Till the sun was gaing down,
Then wi a sigh his heart it brast,
An his soul to heaven has flown.

SWEET WILLIAM'S GHOST

The story of this ballad seems to have become disordered in most of the versions. A alone, the first published, has perhaps retained the original form. The principal idea is, however, preserved in all the full versions: the dead lover returns to ask back his unfulfilled troth-plight. His grave is wrongly said in A to be far beyond the sea. B constitutes, in Herd's MSS, and F, in Jamieson's Popular Ballads, the termination of a copy of 'Clerk Saunders' (No. 69).

'Sweet William's Ghost' has much in common with one of the most beautiful and celebrated of the Scandinavian ballads, 'The Betrothed in the Grave' (Grundtvig, No. 90), and may well be a different development of the same story. A man dies as he is to be married. His love grieves for him passionately. The dead hears her under the ground, comes to her bower with his coffin on his back, and knocks. She lets him in after he has proved himself to be "a spirit of health" by uttering the name of Jesus, combs his hair, and asks him how it is under the black earth. It is like the bliss of heaven. May she follow him into the grave? It is like blackest hell. Every time she weeps for him his coffin is filled with lapped blood. But when she sings and is happy, his grave is all hung with rose-leaves. The cock crows, the white, the red, the black; he takes up his coffin and goes wearily back to the graveyard. His love follows through the mirk wood, to the churchyard and into the church. Then his yellow hair falls away, his rosy color wanes. He bids her go home and never weep for him more. "Look up at the sky, the night is going!" and as she looks he slips into his grave. She goes sadly home, prays God that she may not live out a year and a day, falls sick, and dies within a month. The Scandinavian ballad agrees in many particulars with the conclusion of the second lay of Helgi Hundingsbani in the Elder Edda.

'Sweet William's Ghost,' Ramsay's Tea Table Miscellany, "4th volume, 1740;" here from the London edition of 1750, p. 324.

- 1 THERE came a ghost to Margret's door,
With many a grievous groan,
And ay he tirl'd at the pin,
But answer made she none.
- 2 'Is that my father Philip,
Or is 't my brother John?
Or is 't my true-love, Willy,
From Scotland new come home?'
- 3 'Tis not thy father Philip,
Nor yet thy brother John;
But 't is thy true-love, Willy,
From Scotland new come home.
- 4 'O sweet Margret, O dear Margret,
I pray thee speak to me;
Give me my faith and troth, Margret,
As I gave it to thee.'
- 5 'Thy faith and troth thou's never get,
Nor yet will I thee lend,
Till that thou come within my bower,
And kiss my cheek and chin.'
- 6 'If I shoud come within thy bower,
I am no earthly man;

And shoud I kiss thy rosy lips,
Thy days will not be lang.

- 7 'O sweet Margret, O dear Margret,
I pray thee speak to me;
Give me my faith and troth, Margret,
As I gave it to thee.'
- 8 'Thy faith and troth thou's never get,
Nor yet will I thee lend,
Till you take me to yon kirk,
And wed me with a ring.'
- 9 'My bones are buried in yon kirk-yard,
Afar beyond the sea,
And it is but my spirit, Margret,
That's now speaking to thee.'
- 10 She stretchd out her lilly-white hand,
And, for to do her best,
'Hae, there's your faith and troth,
Willy,
God send your soul good rest.'
- 11 Now she has kilted her robes of green
A piece below her knee,
And a' the live-lang winter night
The dead corp followed she.
- 12 'Is there any room at your head, Willy?
Or any room at your feet?
Or any room at your side, Willy,
Wherein that I may creep?'
- 13 'There's no room at my head, Margret,
There's no room at my feet;
There's no room at my side, Margret,
My coffin's made so meet.'
- 14 Then up and crew the red, red cock,
And up then crew the gray:
'Tis time, tis time, my dear Margret,
That you were going away.'
- 15 No more the ghost to Margret said,
But, with a grievous groan,
Evanishd in a cloud of mist,
And left her all alone.
- 16 'O stay, my only true-love, stay,
The constant Margret cry'd;
Wan grew her cheeks, she closd her een,
Stretchd her soft limbs, and dy'd.

B

Herd's MSS., I, 177, II, 49, stanzas 27 ff.

- 1 WHAN bells war rung, an mass was sung,
A wat a' man to bed were gone,
Clark Sanders came to Margret's window,
With mony a sad sigh and groan.
- 2 'Are ye sleeping, Margret,' he says,
'Or are ye waking, presentlie?
Give me my faith and trouthe again,
A wat, trew-love, I gied to thee.'
- 3 'Your faith and trouth ye's never get,
Nor our trew love shall never twain,
Till ye come with me in my bower,
And kiss me both cheek and chin.'
- 4 'My mouth it is full cold, Margret,
It has the smell now of the ground;
And if I kiss thy comely mouth,
Thy life-days will not be long.
- 5 'Cocks are crowing a merry mid-larf,
I wat the wild fule boded day;
Gie me my faith and trouthe again,
And let me fare me on my way.'
- 6 'Thy faith and trouth thou shall na get,
Nor our trew love shall never twin,
Till ye tell me what comes of women
Awat that dy's in strong traveling.'
- 7 'Their beds are made in the heavens high,
Down at the foot of our good Lord's knee,
Well set about wi gilly-flowers,
A wat sweet company for to see.
- 8 'O cocks are crowing a merry midd-larf,
A wat the wilde foule boded day;
The salms of Heaven will be sung,
And ere now I'le be misst away.'
- 9 Up she has tain a bright long wand,
And she has straked her trouth thereon;
She has given [it] him out at the shot-window,
Wi many a sad sigh and heavy groan.

- 10 'I thank you, Margret, I thank you,
Margret,
And I thank you hartilie;
Gine ever the dead come for the quick,
Be sure, Margret, I'll come again for thee.'
- 11 It's hose an shoon an gound alane
She clame the wall and followed him,
Untill she came to a green forest,
On this she lost the sight of him.
- 12 'Is their any room at your head, Sanders?
Is their any room at your feet?
Or any room at your twa sides?
Whare fain, fain woud I sleep.'
- 13 'Their is na room at my head, Margret,
Their is na room at my feet;
There is room at my twa sides,
For ladys for to sleep.
- 14 'Cold meal is my covering owre,
But an my winding sheet;
My bed it is full low, I say,
Down among the hongerey worms I sleep.
- 15 'Cold meal is my covering owre,
But an my winding sheet;
The dew it falls na sooner down
Then ay it is full weet.'

F

Jamieson's Popular Ballads, I, 83, stanzas 26 ff.

- 1 WHEN seven years were come and gane,
Lady Margaret she thought lang;
And she is up to the highest tower,
By the lee licht o the moon.
- 2 She was lookin oer her castle high,
To see what she might fa,
And there she saw a grieved ghost,
Comin waukin oer the wa.
- 3 'O are ye a man of mean,' she says,
'Seekin ony o my meat?
Or are you a rank robber,
Come in my bower to break?'
- 4 'O I'm Clerk Saunders, your true-love,
Behold, Margaret, and see,

And mind, for a' your meikle pride,
Sae will become of thee.'

5 'Gin ye be Clerk Saunders, my true-
love,
This meikle marvels me;
O wherein is your bonny arms,
That wont to embrace me?'

6 'By worms they're eaten, in mools
they're rotten,
Behold, Margaret, and see,
And mind, for a' your mickle pride,
Sae will become o thee.'

* * * * *

7 O, bonny, bonny sang the bird,
Sat on the coil o hay;
But dowie, dowie was the maid
That followd the corpse o clay.

8 'Is there ony room at your head, Saunders?
Is there ony room at your feet?
Is there ony room at your twa sides,
For a lady to lie and sleep?'

9 'There is nae room at my head, Margaret,
As little at my feet;
There is nae room at my twa sides,
For a lady to lie and sleep.

10 'But gae hame, gae hame now, May
Margaret,
Gae hame and sew your seam;
For if ye were laid in your weel made
bed,
Your days will nae be lang.'

Abbotsford MS., Scotch Ballads, Materials
for Border Minstrelsy, No. 141; in the handwriting of James Hogg. Minstrelsy of the Scottish Border, III, 183, ed. 1838.

1 'But plett a wand o bonnie birk
An lay it on my breast,
An drap a tear upon my grave,
An wiss my saul gude rest.

2 'But fair Marget, an rare Marget,
An Marget, o verity,

If eer ye loe another man,
Neer loe him as ye did me.'

3 But up then crew the milk-white cock,
An up then crew the grey;
Her lover vanishd in the air,
An she gaed weepin away.

THE UNQUIET GRAVE

This fragmentary ballad exhibits the universal popular belief that excessive grieving for the dead interferes with their repose. There are many tales and ballads that express this superstition. One of the most striking is contained in the second lay of Helgi Hundingsbani in the Elder Edda (see introduction to No. 77).
Cf. 'The Twa Brothers,' No. 49, B, sta. 10-12.

A

'The Unquiet Grave,' communicated to the Folk Lore Record, I, 60, 1868, by Miss Charlotte Latham, as written down from the lips of a girl in Sussex.

1 'THE wind doth blow today, my love,
And a few small drops of rain;
I never had but one true-love,
In cold grave she was lain.

2 'I'll do as much for my true-love
As any young man may;
I'll sit and mourn all at her grave
For a twelvemonth and a day.'

3 The twelvemonth and a day being up,
The dead began to speak:
'Oh who sits weeping on my grave,
And will not let me sleep?'

4 'Tis I, my love, sits on your grave,
And will not let you sleep;
For I crave one kiss of your clay-cold lips,
And that is all I seek.'

5 'You crave one kiss of my clay-cold lips;
But my breath smells earthy strong;
If you have one kiss of my clay-cold lips,
Your time will not be long.

6 'Tis down in yonder garden green,
Love, where we used to walk,

The finest flower that ere was seen
Is withered to a stalk.

- 7 'The stalk is withered dry, my love,
So will our hearts decay;
So make yourself content, my love,
Till God calls you away.'

THE WIFE OF USHER'S WELL

A motive for the return of the Wife's three sons is not found in A and B. The mother had cursed the sea when she first heard they were lost, and can only go mad when she finds that after all she has not recovered them; nor will a little wee while make any difference. There is no indication that the sons come back to forbid obstinate grief, as the dead often do. C and D, however, say that they return in answer to prayer. But supplying a motive would add nothing to the impressiveness of the verses. Nothing that we have is more profoundly affecting.

'The Wife of Usher's Well,' Minstrelsy of the Scottish Border, II, 111, 1802, from the recitation of an old woman residing near Kirkhill, in West Lothian.

- 1 THERE lived a wife at Usher's Well,
And a wealthy wife was she;
She had three stout and stalwart sons,
And sent them oer the sea.
- 2 They hadna been a week from her,
A week but barely ane,
Whan word came to the carline wife
That her three sons were gane.
- 3 They hadna been a week from her,
A week but barely three,
Whan word came to the carlin wife
That her sons she'd never see.
- 4 'I wish the wind may never cease,
Nor fashes in the flood,
Till my three sons come hame to me,
In earthly flesh and blood.'
- 5 It fell about the Martinmass,
When nights are lang and mirk,
The carlin wife's three sons came hame,
And their hats were o the birk.

- 6 It neither grew in syke nor ditch,
Nor yet in ony sheugh;
But at the gates o Paradise,
That birk grew fair eneugh.

* * * *

- 7 'Blow up the fire, my maidens,
Bring water from the well;
For a' my house shall feast this night,
Since my three sons are well.'

- 8 And she has made to them a bed,
She's made it large and wide,
And she's taen her mantle her about,
Sat down at the bed-side.

* * * *

- 9 Up then crew the red, red cock,
And up and crew the gray;
The eldest to the youngest said,
'T is time we were away.

- 10 The cock he hadna crawd but once,
And clappd his wings at a',
When the youngest to the eldest said,
Brother, we must awa.

- 11 'The cock doth craw, the day doth daw,
The channerin worm doth chide;
Gin we be mist out o our place,
A sair pain we maun bide.

- 12 'Fare ye weel, my mother dear!
Fareweel to barn and byre!
And fare ye weel, the bonny lass
That kindles my mother's fire!

B

Kinloch MSS., v, 403, stanzas 18-23 (as conclusion to No. 72, A). In the handwriting of James Chambers, as sung to his maternal grandmother, Janet Grieve, seventy years before, by an old woman, a Miss Ann Gray, of the Neidpath Castle, Peeblesshire: January 1, 1829.

- 1 THE hallow days o Yule are come,
The nights are lang an dark,
An in an cam her ain twa sons,
Wi their hats made o the bark.

- 2 'O eat an drink, my merry men a,
The better shall ye fare,

For my twa sons the are come hame
To me for evermair.'

3 O she has gaen an made their bed,
An she's made it saft an fine,
An she's happit them wi her gay mantel,
Because they were her ain.

4 O the young cock crew i the merry
Linkem,
An the wild fowl chirpd for day;
The aulder to the younger did say,
Dear brother, we maun away.

5 'Lie still, lie still a little wee while,
Lie still but if we may;
For gin my mother miss us away
She'll gae mad or it be day.'

6 O it's they've taen up their mother's mantel,
An they've hangd it on the pin:
'O lang may ye hing, my mother's mantel,
Or ye hap us again!'

'The Widow-Woman,' Shropshire Folk-Lore, edited by Charlotte Sophia Burne, 1883-86, p. 541; "taken down by Mr Hubert Smith, 24th March, 1883, from the recitation of an elderly fisherman at Bridgworth, who could neither read nor write, and had learnt it some forty years before from his grandmother in Corve Dale."

1 THERE was a widow-woman lived in far
Scotland,
And in far Scotland she did live,
And all her cry was upon sweet Jesus,
Sweet Jesus so meek and mild.

2 Then Jesus arose one morning quite soon,
And arose one morning betime,
And away he went to far Scotland,
And to see what the good woman want.

3 And when he came to far Scotland,
Crying, What, O what, does the good woman want,
That is calling so much on me?

4 'It's you go rise up my three sons,
Their names, Joe, Peter, and John,
And put breath in their breast,
And clothing on their backs,
And immediately send them to far Scot-
land,
That their mother may take some
rest.'

5 Then he went and rose up her three sons,
Their names, Joe, Peter, and John,
And did immediately send them to far
Scotland,
That their mother may take some
rest.

6 Then she made up a supper so neat,
As small, as small, as a yew-tree leaf,
But never one bit they could eat.

7 Then she made up a bed so soft,
The softest that ever was seen,
And the widow-woman and her three sons
They went to bed to sleep.

8 There they lay; about the middle of the night,
Bespeaks the youngest son:
'The white cock he has crowed once,
The second has, so has the red.'

9 And then bespeaks the eldest son:
'I think, I think it is high time
For the wicked to part from their dead.'

10 Then they laid [= led] her along a green road,
The greenest that ever was seen,
Until they came to some far chaperine,
Which was builded of lime and sand;
Until they came to some far chaperine,
Which was builded with lime and stone.

11 And then he opened the door so big,
And the door so very wide;
Said he to her three sons, Walk in!
But told her to stay outside.

12 'Go back, go back!' sweet Jesus replied,
'Go back, go back!' says he;

'For thou hast nine days to repent
For the wickedness that thou hast
done.'

13 Nine days then was past and gone,
And nine days then was spent,
Sweet Jesus called her once again,
And took her to heaven with him.

D

Communicated, 1896, by Miss Emma M. Backus, of North Carolina, who notes that it has long been sung by the "poor whites" in the mountains of Polk County in that State.

1 THERE was a lady fair and gay,
And children she had three:
She sent them away to some northern
land,
For to learn their grammeree.

2 They had n't been gone but a very short
time,
About three months to a day,
When sickness came to that land
And swept those babes away.

3 There is a king in the heavens above
That wears a golden crown:
She prayed that he would send her babies home
To-night or in the morning soon.

4 It was about one Christmas time,
When the nights was long and cool,
She dreamed of her three little lonely
babes
Come running in their mother's room.

5 The table was fixed and the cloth was spread,
And on it put bread and wine:
'Come sit you down, my three little
babes,
And eat and drink of mine.'

6 'We will neither eat your bread, dear
mother,
Nor we'll neither drink your wine;
For to our Saviour we must return
To-night or in the morning soon.'

7 The bed was fixed in the back room;
On it was some clean white sheet,

And on the top was a golden cloth,
To make those little babies sleep.

8 'Wake up! wake up!' says the oldest
one,
'Wake up! it's almost day.
And to our Saviour we must return
To-night or in the morning soon.'

9 'Green grass grows at our head, dear
mother,
Green moss grows at our feet;
The tears that you shed for us three babes
Won't wet our winding sheet.'

OLD ROBIN OF PORTINGALE

The information given by a page, the reward promised and the alternative punishment threatened him, the savage vengeance taken on the lady, and the immediate remorse are repeated in No. 81.

Percy MS., p. 90; Hales and Furnivall, v. 235.

1 { God let neuer see old a man
Marry see yonge a wiffe
As did Old Robin of Portingale;
He may rue all the dayes of his liffe.

2 Ffor the maiors daughter of Lin, God
wott,
He chose her to his wife,
And thought to have liued in quietnesse
With her all the dayes of his liffe.

3 They had not in their wed-bed laid,
Scarcly were both on sleepe,
But vpp shee rose, and forth shee goes
To Sir Gyles, and fast can weepe.

4 Saies, Sleepe you, wake you, faire Sir Gyles?
Or be not you within?

5 'But I am waking, sweete,' he said,
'Lady, what is your will?'
'I haue vnbethought me of a wile,
How my wed lord we shall spill.

- 6 'Four and twenty knights,' she sayes,
 'That dwells about this towne,
 Eene four and twenty of my next cozens,
 Will helpe to dinge him downe.'
- 7 With that beheard his litle foote-page,
 As he was watering his masters steed;
 Soe s
 His verry heart did bleed.
- 8 He mourned, sikt, and wept full sore;
 I sweare by the holy roode,
 The teares he for his master wept
 Were blend water and bloude.
- 9 With that beheard his deare master,
 As [he] in his garden sate;
 Says, Euer alacke, my litle page,
 What causes thee to weepe?
- 10 'Hath any one done to thee wronge,
 Any of thy fellowes here?
 Or is any of thy good friends dead,
 Which makes thee shed such teares?
- 11 'Or if it be my head-kookes-man,
 Greined againe he shalbe,
 Nor noe man within my howse
 Shall doe wrong vnto thee.'
- 12 'But it is not your head-kookes-man,
 Nor none of his degree;
 But [f]or to morrow, ere it be noone,
 You are deemed to die.
- 13 'And of that thanke your head-steward,
 And after, your gay ladie:
 'If it be true, my litle foote-page,
 Ile make thee heyre of all my land.'
- 14 'If it be not true, my-deare master,
 God let me neuer thye:
 'If it be not true, thou litle foot-page,
 A dead corse shalt thou be.'
- 15 He called downe his head-kookes-man,
 Cooke in kitchen super to dresse:
 'All and anon, my deare master,
 Anon att your request.'
- 16
 'And call you downe my faire lady,
 This night to supp with mee.'
- 17 And downe then came that fayre lady,
 Was cladd all in purple and palle;
 The rings that were vpon her fingers
 Cast light thorow the hall.
- 18 'What is your will, my owne wed lord,
 What is your will with mee?'
 'I am sicke, fayre lady,
 Sore sicke, and like to dye.'
- 19 'But and you be sicke, my owne wed lord,
 Soe sore it greiueth mee;
 But my fine maydens and my selfe
 Will goe and make your bedd.
- 20 'And at the wakening of your first sleepe
 You shall haue a hott drinke made,
 And at the wakening of your next sleepe
 Your sorrowes will haue a slake.'
- 21 He put a silke cote on his backe,
 Was thirteen inches folde,
 And put a steele cap vpon his head,
 Was gilded with good red gold.
- 22 And he layd a bright browne sword by his side,
 And another att his ffeete,
 And full well knew Old Robin then
 Whether he shold wake or sleepe.
- 23 And about the middle time of the night
 Came twenty four good knights in;
 Sir Gyles he was the formost man,
 Soe well he knew that ginne.
- 24 Old Robin, with a bright browne sword,
 Sir Gyles head he did winne;
 Soe did he all those twenty four,
 Neuer a one went quicke out [agen].
- 25 None but one litle foot-page,
 Crept forth at a window of stone,
 And he had two armes when he came in,
 And [when he went out he had none].
- 26 Vpp then came that ladie light,
 With torches burning bright;
 Shee thought to haue brought Sir Gyles
 a drinke,
 But shee found her owne wedd knight.
- 27 And the first thing that this ladye stumbled vpon
 Was of Sir Gyles his ffoote;

Sayes, Euer alacke, and woe is me,
Here lyes my sweete hart-roote !

28 And the second thing that this ladie stumbled on

Was of Sir Gyles his head;
Sayes, Euer alacke, and woe is me,
Heere lyes my true-loue deade !

29 Hee cutt the papps beside he[r] brest,
And bad her wish her will;
And he cutt the eares beside her heade,
And bade her wish on still.

30 'Mickle is the mans blood I haue spent,
To doe thee and me some good;'
Sayes, Euer alacke, my fayre lady,
I thinke that I was woode !

31 He calld then vp his litle foote-page,
And made him heyre of all his land,

32 And he shope the crosse in his right
sholder,
Of the white flesh and the redd,
And he went him into the holy land,
Wheras Christ was quicke and dead.

LITTLE MUSGRAVE AND LADY BARNARD

A broadside printed for Henry Gosson (C) appears to be the earliest impression known, but it has not so good a text as A. The ballad is quoted in Beaumont and Fletcher's Knight of the Burning Pestle (about 1611), act v, scene 3, and in other old plays. 'Little Musgrave' is entered to Francis Coules in the Stationers' Registers, June 24, 1630.

'Little Musgrave and the Lady Barnard.' a. Wit Restord, 1658, in the reprint 'Facetiae,' London, 1817, i, 293. b. Wit and Drollery, 1682, p. 81.

1 As it fell one holy-day,
Hay downe
As many be in the yeare,

When young men and inaide together
did goe,
Their mattins and masse to heare,

2 Little Musgrave came to the church-
dore;
The preist was at private masse;
But he had more minde of the faire women
Then he had of our lady['s] grace.

3 The one of them was clad in green,
Another was clad in pall,
And then came in my lord Bernard's
wife,
The fairest amonst them all.

4 She cast an eye on Little Musgrave,
As bright as the summer sun;
And then bethought this Little Mus-
grave,
This lady's heart have I woonn.

5 Quoth she, I have loved thee, Little
Musgrave,
Full long and many a day;
'So have I loved you, fair lady,
Yet never word durst I say.'

6 'I have a bower at Buckelsfordbery,
Full daintily it is deight;
If thou wilt wend thither, thou Little
Musgrave,
Thou 's lig in mine armes all night.'

7 Quoth he, I thank yee, faire lady,
This kindnes thou showest to me;
But whether it be to my weal or woe,
This night I will lig with thee.

8 With that he heard, a little tynë page,
By his lady's coach as he ran:
'All though I am my lady's foot-page,
Yet I am Lord Barnard's man.

9 'My lord Barnard shall knowe of this,
Whether I sink or swim;'
And ever where the bridges were broake
He laid him downe to swimme.

10 'A sleepe or wake, thou Lord Barnard,
As thou art a man of life,
For Little Musgrave is at Bucklesford-
bery,
A bed with thy own wedded wife.'

- 11 'If this be true, thou little tinny page,
This thing thou tellest to me,
Then all the land in Bucklesfordbery
I freely will give to thee.
- 12 'But if it be a ly, thou little tinny
page,
This thing thou tellest to me,
On the hiest tree in Bucklesfordbery
Then hanged shalt thou be.'
- 13 He called up his merry men all:
'Come saddle me my steed;
This night must I to Buckellsford-
bery,
For I never had greater need.'
- 14 And some of them whistld, and some of them sung,
And some these words did say,
And ever when my lord Barnard's horn
blew,
'Away, Musgrave, away!'
- 15 'Methinks I hear the thresel-cock,
Methinks I hear the jaye;
Methinks I hear my lord Barnard,
And I would I were away.'
- 16 'Lye still, lye still, thou Little Mus-
grave,
And huggell me from the cold;
'T is nothing but a shephard's boy,
A driving his sheep to the fold.
- 17 'Is not thy hawke upon a perch?
Thy steed eats oats and hay;
And thou a fair lady in thine armes,
And wouldst thou bee away?'
- 18 With that my lord Barnard came to the
dore,
And lit a stone upon;
He plucked out three silver keys,
And he opened the dores each one.
- 19 He lifted up the coverlett,
He lifted up the sheet:
'How now, how now, thou Littell Mus-
grave,
Doest thou find my lady sweet?'
- 20 'I find her sweet,' quoth Little Mus-
grave,
'The more 't is to my paine;

- I would gladly give three hundred pounds
That I were on yonder plaine.'
- 21 'Arise, arise, thou Littell Musgrave,
And put thy clothës on;
It shall nere be said in my country
I have killed a naked man.
- 22 'I have two swords in one scabberd,
Full deere they cost my purse;
And thou shalt have the best of them,
And I will have the worse.'
- 23 The first stroke that Little Musgrave
stroke,
He hurt Lord Barnard sore;
The next stroke that Lord Barnard
stroke,
Little Musgrave nere struck more.
- 24 With that bespake this faire lady,
In bed whereas she lay:
'Although thou 'rt dead, thou Little
Musgrave,
Yet I for thee will pray.
- 25 'And wish well to thy soule will I,
So long as I have life;
So will I not for thee, Barnard,
Although I am thy wedded wife.'
- 26 He cut her paps from off her brest;
Great pitty it was to see
That some drops of this ladie's heart's
blood
Ran trickling downe her knee.
- 27 'Woe worth you, woe worth, my mery
men all,
You were nere borne for my good;
Why did you not offer to stay my
hand,
When you see me wax so wood?'
- 28 'For I have slaine the bravest sir knight
That ever rode on steed;
So have I done the fairest lady
That ever did woman's deed.
- 29 'A grave, a grave,' Lord Barnard
cryd,
'To put these lovers in;
But lay my lady on the upper hand,
For she came of the better kin.'

'Ffor this same night att [Bucklesfeildberry]
Litle Musgreue is in bed with thy wife.'

2 'If it be trew, thou litle foote-page,
This tale thou hast told to mee,
Then all my lands in Buckle[s]feildberry
I'le freely giue to thee.

3 'But if this be a lye, thou little foot-
page,
This tale thou hast told to mee,
Then on the highest tree in Buckles-feildberry
All hanged that thou shalt bee.'

4 Saies, Vpp and rise, my merrymen all,
And saddle me my good steede,
For I must ride to Bucklesfeildberry;
God wott I had neuer more need !

5 But some they whistled, and some the sunge,
And some they thus cold say,
When euer as Lord Barnetts horne
blowes,
'Away, Musgreue, away !'

6 'Mie thinkes I heare the throstlecocke,
Me thinkes I heare the iay,
Me thinkes I heare Lord Barnetts horne,
Away, Musgreue, away !'

7 'But lie still, lie still, Litle Musgreue,
And huddle me from the cold,
For it is but some sheaperds boy,
Is whistling sheepe ore the mold.

8 'Is not thy hanke vpon a pearch,
Thy horsse eating corne and hay ?
And thou, a gay lady in thine armes,
And yett thou wold goe away !'

9 By this time Lord Barnett was come to the dore,
And light vpon a stone,

And he pulled out three silver kayes,
And opened the dores euery one.

10 And first he puld the couering downe,
And then puld downe the sheete;
Saies, How now ? How now, Litle Musgreue ?
Dost find my gay lady sweet ?

11 'I find her sweete,' saies Litle Musgreue,
'The more is my greefe and paine;'

12
'Soe haue I done the fairest lady
That euer wore womans weede.

13 'Soe haue I done a heathen child,
Which ffull sore greiueth mee,
For which Ile repent all the dayes of
my life,
And god be with them all three !'

THE BONNY BIRDY

Jamieson, in printing this ballad, gave the husband the name Lord Randal, made many changes, and introduced several stanzas, "to fill up chasms." But the chasms, such as they are, are easily leapt by the imagination, and Jamieson's interpolations are mere bridges of carpenter's work. The admirably effective burden is taken into the story at stanza 11.

The main part of the action is the same as in 'Little Musgrave' (No. 81). The superior lyrical quality of the Scottish ballad makes up for its inferiority as a story.

Jamieson-Brown MS., p. 42 ; Jamieson's Popular Ballads, I, 162.

1 THERE was a knight, in a summer's
night,
Was riding oer the lee, diddle
An there he saw a bonny birdy,
Was singing upon a tree. diddle
O wow for day ! diddle
An dear gin it were day ! diddle
Gin it were day, an gin I were away !
For I ha na lang time to stay. diddle

- 2 'Make hast, make hast, ye gentle knight,
What keeps you here so late?
Gin ye kent what was doing at hame,
I fear you woud look blate.'
- 3 'O what needs I toil day an night,
My fair body to kill,
Whan I hae knights at my comman,
An ladys at my will?'
- 4 'Ye lee, ye lee, ye gentle knight,
Sa loud's I hear you lee;
Your lady's a knight in her arms twa
That she lees far better nor the.'
- 5 'Ye lee, you lee, you bonny birdy,
How you lee upo my sweet!
I will tak out my bonny bow,
An in troth I will you sheet.'
- 6 'But afore ye hae your bow well bent,
An a' your arrows yare,
I will flee till another tree,
Whare I can better fare.'
- 7 'O whare was you gotten, and whare was ye clecked?
My bonny birdy, tell me:'
'O I was clecked in good green wood,
Intill a holly tree;
A gentleman my nest herryed,
An ga me to his lady.'
- 8 'Wi good white bread an farrow-cow
milk
He bade her feed me aft,
An ga her a little wee simmer-dale
wanny,
To ding me sindle and saft.'
- 9 'Wi good white bread an farrow-cow
milk
I wot she fed me nought,
But wi a little wee simmer-dale wanny
She dang me sair an aft:
Gin she had deen as ye her bade,
I woudna tell how she has wrought.'
- 10 The knight he rade, and the birdy flew,
The live-lang simmer's night,
Till he came till his lady's bowr-door,
Then even down he did light:
The birdy sat on the crap of a tree,
An I wot it sang fu dight.

- 11 'O wow for day! diddle
An dear gin it were day! diddle
Gin it were day, and gin I were away!
For I ha na lang time to stay.' diddle
- 12 'What needs ye lang for day, diddle.
An wish that you were away? diddle
Is no your hounds i my cellar,
Eating white meal an gray? diddle
O wow, etc.
- 13 'Is nae your steed in my stable,
Eating good corn an hay?
An is nae your hawk i my perch-tree,
Just perching for his prey?
An is nae yoursel i my arms twa?
Then how can ye lang for day?'
- 14 'O wow for day! diddle
An dear gin it were day! diddle
For he that's in bed wi anither man's
wife
Has never lang time to stay.' diddle
- 15 Then out the knight has drawn his
sword,
An straiked it oer a strae,
An thro and thro the fa'se knight's waste
He gard cauld iron gae:
An I hope ilk ane sal sae be servd
That treats ane honest man sae.
Doesn't kill wife.

CHILD MAURICE

A is from the Percy MS. Of B Motherwell says (1827): "By testimony of a most unexceptionable description, but which it would be tedious here to detail, the editor can distinctly trace this ballad as existing in its present shape at least a century ago." The ballad was printed at Glasgow by Foulis in 1755 (and in an earlier edition, now lost), with considerable modern improvements. Hume's tragedy of Douglas, produced in Edinburgh in 1756, was founded upon the story, and the popularity of the play seems to have given vogue to the ballad. The sophisticated copy passed into recitation, and may very likely have more or less infected those which were repeated from earlier tradition. The poet Gray writes to Mason, June, 1757 (?): "I have got the old Scottish ballad on which Douglas was founded; it is divine, and as long as from here [Cambridge] to Aston." He quotes the first fifteen lines, substantially as in Foulis. Percy's version in the Reliques, 1765 (III, 93), is that of Foulis with further "improvements."

A

'Childe Maurice,' Percy MS., p. 346; Hales and Furnivall, II, 502.

1 CHILDE MAURICE hunted ithe siluer wood,

He hunted itt round about,
And noebodye that he ffound therin,
Nor none there was with-out.

2

And he tooke his siluer combe in his hand,
To kembe his yellow lockes.

3 He sayes, Come hither, thou litle ffoot-page,

That runneth lowlye by my knee,
Ffor thou shalt goe to Iohn Stewards wiffe
And pray her speake with mee.

4

'I, and greete thou doe that ladye well,
Euer soe well ffroe mee.

5 'And, as itt ffalls, as many times
As knotts beene knitt on a kell,
Or marchant men gone to leeu London,
Either to buy ware or sell.

6 'And, as itt ffalles, as many times
As any hart can thinke,
Or schoole-masters are in any schoole-house,
Writting with pen and inke:
Ffor if I might, as well as shee may,
This night I wold with her speake.

7 'And heere I send her a mantle of greene,
As greene as any grasse,
And bidd her come to the siluer wood,
To hunt with Child Maurice.

8 'And there I send her a ring of gold,
A ring of precyous stone,

And bidd her come to the siluer wood,
Let ffor no kind of man.'

9 One while this litle boy he yode,
Another while he ran,
Vntill he came to Iohn Stewards hall,
I-wis he neuer blan.

10 And of nurture the child had good,
Hee ran vp hall and bower ffree,
And when he came to this lady ffaire,
Sayes, God you saue and see!

11 'I am come ffrom Ch[i]ld Maurice,
A message vnto thee;
And Child Maurice, he greetes you well,
And euer soe well ffrom mee.

12 'And, as itt ffalls, as oftentimes
As knotts beene knitt on a kell,
Or marchant-men gone to leeu London,
Either ffor to buy ware or sell.

13 'And as oftentimes he greetes you well
As any hart can thinke,
Or schoolemasters [are] in any schoole,
Wryting with pen and inke.

14 'And heere he sends a mantle of greene,
As greene as any grasse,
And he bidds you come to the siluer wood,
To hunt with Child Maurice.

15 'And heere he sends you a ring of gold,
A ring of the precyous stone;
He prayes you to come to the siluer wood,
Let ffor no kind of man.'

16 'Now peace, now peace, thou litle ffoot-page,
Ffor Christes sake, I pray thee!
Ffor if my lord heare one of these words,
Thou must be hanged hye!'

17 Iohn Steward stood vnder the castle-wall,
And he wrote the words euerye one,

18 And he called vnto his hors-keeper,
'Make readye you my steede!'

- I, and soe hee did to his chamber-
laine,
'Make readye thou my weede!'
- 19 And he cast a lease vpon his backe,
And he rode to the siluer wood,
And there he sought all about,
About the siluer wood.
- 20 And there he ffound him Child Maurice Sitting vpon a blocke,
With a siluer combe in his hand,
Keming his yellow locke[s].
- * * * * *
- 21 But then stood vp him Child Maurice,
And sayd these words trulye:
'I doe not know your ladye,' he said,
'If that I doe her see.'
- 22 He sayes, How now, how now, Child
Maurice?
Alacke, how may this bee?
Ffor thou hast sent her loue-tokens,
More now then two or three.
- 23 'Ffor thou hast sent her a mantle of
greene,
As greene as any grasse,
And bade her come to the siluer woode,
To hunt with Child Maurice.
- 24 'And thou [hast] sent her a ring of gold,
A ring of precyous stone,
And bade her come to the siluer wood,
Let ffor noe kind of man.
- 25 'And by my ffaith, now, Child Maurice,
The tone of vs shall dye!'
'Now be my troth,' sayd Child Maurice,
'And that shall not be I.'
- 26 But hee pulled forth a bright browne
sword,
And dryed itt on the grasse,
And soe ffast he smote att Iohn Steward,
I-wisse he neuer [did] rest.
- 27 Then hee pulled fforth his bright browne
sword,
And dryed itt on his sleeue,
And the ffirst good stroke Iohn Stewart
stroke,
Child Maurice head he did cleene.
- 28 And he pricked itt on his swords poynt,
Went singing there beside,
And he rode till he came to that ladye
ffaire,
Wheras this ladye lyed.
- 29 And sayes, Dost thou know Child
Maurice head,
If that thou dost itt see?
And lapp itt soft, and kisse itt offt, Ffor thou louedst him better than
mee.
- 30 But when shee looked on Child Maurice
head,
Shee neuer spake words but three:
'I neuer beare no child but one,
And you haue slaine him trulye.'
- 31 Sayes, Wicked be my merrymen all,
I gaue meate, drinke, and clothe!
But cold they not haue holden me
When I was in all that wrath!
- 32 'Ffor I haue slaine one of the curteousest knights
That euer bestrode a steed,
Soe haue I done one [of] the fairest ladyes
That euer ware womans weede!'

- 'Child Noryce,' Motherwell's MS., p. 255; Motherwell's Minstrelsy, p. 282. From the singing of Widow McCormick, Paisley, January 19, 1825. Learned by her of an old woman in Dumbarton: Motherwell's Note Book, fol. 4.
- 1 CHILD NORRYCE is a clever young man,
He wavers wi the wind;
His horse was silver-shod before,
With the beaten gold behind.
- 2 He called to his little man John,
Saying, You don't see what I see;
O yonder I see the very first woman
That ever loved me.
- 3 'Here is a glove, a glove,' he said,
'Lined with the silver grey;
You may tell her to come to the merry
green-wood,
To speak to Child Nory.

- 4 'Here is a ring, a ring,' he says,
 'It's all gold but the stane;
 You may tell her to come to the merry
 green-wood,
 And ask the leave o nane.'
- 5 'So well do I love your errand, my master,
 But far better do I love my life;
 O would you have me go to Lord Barnard's castle,
 To betray away his wife?'
- 6 'O do I not give you meat,' he says,
 'And do I not pay you fee?
 How dare you stop my errand?' he
 says;
 'My orders you must obey.'
- 7 O when he came to Lord Bernard's
 castle,
 He tinkled at the ring;
 Who was as ready as Lord Barnard himself
 To let this little boy in?
- 8 'Here is a glove, a glove,' he says,
 'Lined with the silver grey;
 You are bidden to come to the merry
 green-wood,
 To speak to Child Nory.
- 9 'Here is a ring, a ring,' he says,
 'It's all gold but the stane;
 You are bidden to come to the merry
 green-wood,
 And ask the leave o nane.'
- 10 Lord Barnard he was standing by,
 And an angry man was he:
 'O little did I think there was a lord in the world
 My lady loved but me!'
- 11 O he dressed himself in the holland
 smock,
 And garments that was gay,
 And he is away to the merry green-
 wood,
 To speak to Child Nory.
- 12 Child Noryce sits on yonder tree,
 He whistles and he sings:
 'O wae be to me,' says Child Noryce,
 'Yonder my mother comes!'

- 13 Child Noryce he came off the tree,
 His mother to take off the horse:
 'Och alace, alace,' says Child Noryce,
 'My mother was neer so gross!'
- 14 Lord Barnard he had a little small
 sword,
 Hung low down by his knee;
 He cut the head off Child Noryce,
 And put the body on a tree.
- 15 And when he came home to his castell,
 And to his ladie's hall,
 He threw the head into her lap,
 Saying, Lady, there's a ball!
- 16 She turned up the bloody head,
 She kissed it frae cheek to chin:
 'Far better do I love this bloody head
 Than all my royal kin.
- 17 'When I was in my father's castel,
 In my virginity,
 There came a lord into the North,
 → Gat Child Noryce with me.'
- 18 'O wae be to thee, Lady Margaret,' he
 sayd,
 'An ill death may you die;
 For if you had told me he was your son,
 He should neer have been slain by me.'

'Gill Morice,' Motherwell's MS., p. 480, from the recitation of Widow Michael, a very old woman, as learned by her in Banffshire seventy years before. August, 1826.

- 1 GILL MORICE stood in stable-door,
 With red gold shined his weed;
 A bonnie boy him behind,
 Dressing a milk-white steed.
- 2 'Woe's me for you, maister,
 Your name it waxes wide;
 It is not for your rich, rich robes,
 Nor for your meikle pride,
 But all is for yon lord's ladie,
 She lives on Ithan side.'
- 3 'Here's to thee, my bonnie wee boy,
 That I pay meat and fee;
 You will run on to Ithan side
 An errand unto me.'

- 4 'If ye gar me that errand run,
Sae sair against my will,
I 'll make a vow, and keep it true,
I 'll do your errand ill.'
- 5 'I fear nae ill of thee, boy,
I fear nae ill of thee;
I fearna ill of my bonnie boy,
My sister's son are ye.
- 6 'Ye 'll tak here this green manteel,
It's lined with the frieze;
Ye 'll bid her come to gude green-wood,
To talk with Gill Morice.
- 7 'Ye 'll tak here this sark o silk,
Her ain hand sewed the sleeve;
Ye 'll bid her come to gude green-wood,
And ask not Burnard's leave.'
- 8 When he gade to Ithan side
They were hailing at the ba,
And four and twenty gay ladies
They lookd ower castle wa.
- 9 'God mak you safe, you ladies all,
God mak you safe and sure;
But Burnard's lady amang you all,
My errand is to her.
- 10 'Ye 'll tak here this green manteel,
It's a' lined wi the frieze;
Ye're bidden come to gude green-wood
And speak to Gill Morice.
- 11 'Ye 'll tak here this sark of silk,
Your ain hand sewed the sleeve;
Ye're bidden come to gude green-wood,
And ask not Burnard's leave.'
- 12 Up it stood the little nurice,
She winked with her ee:
'Welcome, welcome, bonnie boy,
With luv-tidings to me.'
- 13 'Ye lie, ye lie, ye false nurice,
Sae loud 's I hear ye lie;
It's to the lady of the house,
I'm sure ye are not shee.'
- 14 Then out and spoke him bold Burnard,
Behind the door stood he:
'I 'll go unto gude green-wood,
And see what he may be.
- 15 'Come, bring to me the gowns of silk,
Your petticoats so small,
And I 'll go on to gude green-wood,
I 'll try with him a fall.'
- 16 Gill Morice stood in gude green-wood,
He whistled and he sang:
'I think I see the woman come
That I have loved lang.'
- 17 'What now, what now, ye Gill Mor-ice,
What now, and how do ye?
How lang hae ye my lady luv'd?
This day come tell to me.'
- 18 'First when I your lady loved,
In green-wood amang the thyme,
I wot she was my first fair love
Or ever she was thine.
- 19 'First when I your lady loved,
In green-wood amang the flouirs,
I wot she was my first fair love
Or ever she was yours.'
- 20 He's taen out a lang, lang brand
That he was used to wear,
And he's taen aff Gill Morice head,
And put it on a spear:
The soberest boy in a' the court
Gill Morice head did bear.
- 21 He's put it in a braid basin,
And brocht it in the ha,
And laid it in his lady's lap;
Said, Lady, tak a ba!
- 22 'Play ye, play ye, my lady,' he said,
'Play ye frae ha to bower;
Play ye wi Gill Morice head,
He was your paramour.'
- 23 'He was not my paramour,
He was my son indeed;
I got him in my mother's bower,
And in my maiden-weed.
- 24 'I got him in my mother's bower,
Wi meikle sin and shame;
I brocht him up in good green-wood,
Got mony a shower o rain.
- 25 'But I will kiss his bluidy head,
And I will clap his chin;

I 'll make a vow, and keep it true,
I 'll never kiss man again.

26 ' Oftimes I by his cradle sat,
And fond to see him sleep;
But I may walk about his grave,
The sant tears for to weep.'

27 ' Bring cods, bring cods to my ladye,
Her heart is full of wae;'
' None of your cods, Burnet,' she says,
' But lay me on the strae.'

28 ' Pox on you, my lady fair,
That wudna telled it me;
If I had known he was your son,
He had not been slain by me;
And for ae penny ye wud hae gien
I wud hae gien him three.'

29 ' Keep weel your land, Burnet,' she said,
' Your land and white monie;
There 's land eneuch in Norroway
Lies heirless I wot the day.'

30 The one was killed in the mornin air,
His mother died at een,
And or the mornin bells was rung
The threesome were a' gane.

BONNY BARBARA ALLAN

Pepys makes this entry in his Diary, January 2, 1666: "In perfect pleasure I was to hear her [Mrs Knipp, an actress] sing, and especially her little Scotch song of Barbary Allen." Goldsmith, in his third essay, 1765, p. 14, writes: "The music of the finest singer is dissonance to what I felt when our old dairy-maid sung me into tears with 'Johnny Armstrong's Last Good-night,' or 'The Cruelty of Barbara Allen.'"

1 It was in and about the Martinmas time,
When the green leaves were a falling,

That Sir John Græme, in the West
Country,
Fell in love with Barbara Allan.

2 He sent his man down through the town,
'To the place where she was dwelling:
'O haste and come to my master dear,
Gin ye be Barbara Allan.'

3 O hooly, hooly rose she up,
To the place where he was lying,
And when she drew the curtain by,
'Young man, I think you 're dying.'

4 'O it 's I 'm sick, and very, very sick,
And 't is a' for Barbara Allan:'
'O the better for me ye 's never be,
Tho your heart's blood were a spill-
ing.

5 'O dinna ye mind, young man,' said
she,
'When ye was in the tavern a drinking,
That ye made the healths gae round and
round,
And slighted Barbara Allan?'

6 He turnd his face unto the wall,
And death was with him dealing:
'Adieu, adieu, my dear friends all,
And be kind to Barbara Allan.'

7 And slowly, slowly raise she up,
And slowly, slowly left him,
And sighing said, she coud not stay,
Since death of life had reft him.

8 She had not gane a mile but twa,
When she heard the dead-bell ringing,
And every jow that the dead-bell geid,
It cry'd, Woe to Barbara Allan!

9 'O mother, mother, make my bed!
O make it saft and narrow!
Since my love died for me to-day,
I 'll die for him to-morrow.'

- 1 In Scarlet Town, where I was bound,
There was a fair maid dwelling,
Whom I had chosen to be my own,
And her name it was Barbara Allen.
- 2 All in the merry month of May,
When green leaves they was spring-
ing,
This young man on his death-bed lay,
For the love of Barbara Allen.
- 3 He sent his man unto her then,
To the town where she was dwelling:
'You must come to my master dear,
If your name be Barbara Allen.
- 4 'For death is printed in his face,
And sorrow's in him dwelling,
And you must come to my master dear,
If your name be Barbara Allen.'
- 5 'If death be printed in his face,
And sorrow's in him dwelling,
Then little better shall he be
For bonny Barbara Allen.'
- 6 So slowly, slowly she got up,
And so slowly she came to him,
And all she said when she came there,
Young man, I think you are a dying.
- 7 He turnd his face unto her then:
'If you be Barbara Allen,
My dear,' said he, 'come pitty me,
As on my death-bed I am lying.'
- 8 'If on your death-bed you be lying,
What is that to Barbara Allen?
I cannot keep you from [your] death;
So farewell,' said Barbara Allen.
- 9 He turnd his face unto the wall,
And death came creeping to him:
'Then adieu, adieu, and adieu to all,
And adieu to Barbara Allen!'
- 10 And as she was walking on a day,
She heard the bell a ringing,
And it did seem to ring to her
'Unworthy Barbara Allen.'
- 11 She turnd herself round about,
And she spy'd the corps a coming:
'Lay down, lay down the corps of clay,
That I may look upon him.'

- 12 And all the while she looked on,
So loudly she lay laughing,
While all her friends cry'd [out] amain,
'Unworthy Barbara Allen!'
- 13 When he was dead, and laid in grave,
Then death came creeping to she:
'O mother, mother, make my bed,
For his death hath quite undone me.
- 14 'A hard-hearted creature that I was,
To slight one that lov'd me so dearly;
I wish I had been more kinder to him,
The time of his life when he was near
me.'
- 15 So this maid she then did dye,
And desired to be buried by him,
And repented her self before she dy'd,
That ever she did deny him.

LADY ALICE

This little ballad, which is said to be still of the regular stock of the stalls, is a sort of counterpart to 'Lord Lovel' (No. 75).

A

'Lady Alice.' a. Bell's Ancient Poems, Ballads, and Songs of the Peasantry of England, p. 127, a stall copy. b. Edward Hawkins, in Notes and Queries, Second Series, I, 418. c. Notes and Queries, Second Series, I, 854, as heard sung forty years before 1856, "Uneda," Philadelphia.

- 1 LADY ALICE was sitting in her bowerwindow,
Mending her midnight quoil,
And there she saw as fine a corpse
As ever she saw in her life.
- 2 'What bear ye, what bear ye, ye six men tall?
What bear ye on your shoulders?'
'We bear the corpse of Giles Collins,
An old and true lover of yours.'
- 3 'O lay him down gently, ye six men tall,
All on the grass so green,

And tomorrow, when the sun goes
down,
Lady Alice a corpse shall be seen.

4 'And bury me in Saint Mary's church,
All for my love so true,
And make me a garland of marjoram,
And of lemon-thyme, and rue.'

5 Giles Collins was buried all in the east,
Lady Alice all in the west,
And the roses that grew on Giles Col-lins's grave,
They reached Lady Alice's breast.

6 The priest of the parish he chanced to pass,
And he severed those roses in twain;
Sure never were seen such true lovers
before,
Nor eer will there be again.

B

'Giles Collins and Proud Lady Anna,'
Gammer Gurton's Garland, p. 38, ed. 1810.

1 GILES COLLINS he said to his old mother,
Mother, come bind up my head,
And send to the parson of our parish,
For tomorrow I shall be dead. dead,
For tomorrow I shall be dead.

2 His mother she made him some watergruel,
And stirrd it round with a spoon;
Giles Collins he ate up his water-gruel,
And died before 't was noon.

3 Lady Anna was sitting at her window,
Mending her night-robe and coif;
She saw the very prettiest corpse
She'd seen in all her life.

4 'What bear ye there, ye six strong
men,
Upon your shoulders so high?'
'We bear the body of Giles Collins,
Who for love of you did die.'

5 'Set him down, set him down,' Lady
Anna she cry'd,
'On the grass that grows so green;

Tomorrow, before the clock strikes
ten,
My body shall lye by hisn.'

6 Lady Anna was buried in the east,
Giles Collins was buried in the west;
There grew a lilly from Giles Collins
That touchd Lady Anna's breast.

7 There blew a cold north-easterly wind,
And cut this lilly in twain,
Which never there was seen before,
And it never will again.

C

'Giles Collin,' Miss M. H. Mason's Nursery
Rhymes and Country Songs, 1877, p. 46.

1 GILES COLLIN he said to his mother
one day,
Oh, mother, come bind up my head!
For tomorrow morning before it is day
I'm sure I shall be dead.

2 'Oh, mother, oh, mother, if I should die,
And I am sure I shall,
I will not be buried in our churchyard,
But under Lady Alice's wall.'

3 His mother she made him some watergruel,
And stirred it up with a spoon;
Giles Collin he ate but one spoonful,
And died before it was noon.

4 Lady Alice was sitting in her window,
All dressed in her night-coif;
She saw as pretty a corpse go by
As ever she'd seen in her life.

5 'What bear ye there, ye six tall men?
What bear ye on your shourn?'
'We bear the body of Giles Collin,
Who was a true lover of yourn.'

6 'Down with him, down with him, upon the grass,
The grass that grows so green;
For tomorrow morning before it is day
My body shall lie by him.'

7 Her mother she made her some plum-
gruel,
With spices all of the best;

Lady Alice she ate but one spoonful,
And the doctor he ate up the rest.

8 Giles Collin was laid in the lower
chancel,
Lady Alice all in the higher;
There grew up a rose from Lady Alice's
breast,
And from Giles Collin's a briar.

9 And they grew, and they grew, to the very church-top,
Until they could grow no higher,
And twisted and twined in a true-lover's
knot,
Which made all the parish admire.

YOUNG BENJIE

Scott's version in the Border Minstrelsy, 1803, III, 251, contains the whole of A* except the first stanza. It has about twice as many verses as A*, and the other half might well have been supplied by the editor. Scott's title 'Young Benjie' is here retained, and some of the additional stanzas are given in the Notes.

A*

From Jean Scott. In the handwriting of William Laidlaw. Scotch Ballads, Materials for Border Minstrelsy, No. 29, Abbotsford.

1 FAIR Marjorie sat i her bower-door,
Sewin her silken seam,
When by then cam her false true-love,
Gard a' his bridles ring.

2 'Open, open, my true-love,
Open an let me in;
'I dare na, I dare na, my true-love,
My brethren are within.'

3 'Ye lee, ye lee, my ain true-love,
Sae loud I hear ye lee!
For or I cam thrae Lothian banks
They took fare-weel o me.'

4 The wind was loud, that maid was proud,
An leath, leath to be dung,
But or she wan the Lothian banks
Her fair coulour was gane.

5 He took her up in his armis,
An threw her in the lynn.

6 Up then spak her eldest brother,
Said, What is yon I see?
Sure, youn is either a drowned ladie
Or my sister Marjorie.

7 Up then spak her second brother,
Said, How will we her ken?
Up then spak her . . . brother,
'There a hinnie-mark on her chin.

8 About the midle o the night
The cock began to crow;
About the middle o the night
The corpse began to thraw.

9 'O whae has doon ye wrang, sister?
O whae has doon ye wrang?'

10 'Young Boonjie was the ae first man
I laid my love upon;
He was sae proud an hardie
He threw me oer the lynne.'

11 'O shall we Boonjie head, sister?
Or shall we Boonjie hang?
O shall we pyke out his twa grey eyes,
An punish him or he gang?'

12 'O ye sanna Boonjie head, brother,
Ye sana Boonjie hang;
But ye maun pyke out his twa grey
eyes,
An punish him or he gang.'

13 'The ae best man about your house
Maun wait young Boonjie on.'

PRINCE ROBERT

There is a White Russian and a Ruthenian ballad in which a mother prepares wholesome drink for her son, poison for his wife; both son and wife are poisoned. They are buried separately, one in the church, one in the graveyard. Trees from the graves join their tops. There are other ballad-stories of a mother's poisoning because of displeasure at a son's match, but they do not demand comparison with 'Prince Robert.'

A

'Prince Robert,' Scott's Minstrelsy, II, 124, ed. 1802; III, 269, ed. 1833: from the recitation of Miss Christian Rutherford.

- 1 PRINCE ROBERT has wedded a gay ladye,
He has wedded her with a ring;
Prince Robert has wedded a gay ladye,
But he daur na bring her hame.
- 2 'Your blessing, your blessing, my mother dear,
Your blessing now grant to me!' 'Instead of a blessing ye sall have my curse,
And you'll get nae blessing frae me.'
- 3 She has called upon her waiting-maid,
To fill a glass of wine;
She has called upon her fause steward,
To put rank poison in.
- 4 She has put it to her roudes lip,
And to her roudes chin;
She has put it to her fause, fause mouth,
But the never a drop gaed in.
- 5 He has put it to his bonny mouth,
And to his bonny chin,
He's put it to his cherry lip,
And sae fast the rank poison ran in.
- 6 'O ye hae poisoned your ae son, mother,
Your ae son and your heir;
O ye hae poisoned your ae son, mother,
And sons you'll never hae mair.
- 7 'O where will I get a little boy,
That will win hose and shoon,
To rin sae fast to Darlinton,
And bid Fair Eleanor come?'
- 8 Then up and spake a little boy,
That wad win hose and shoon,
'O I'll away to Darlinton,
And bid Fair Eleanor come.'
- 9 O he has run to Darlinton,
And tirl'd at the pin;
And wha was sae ready as Eleanor's sell
To let the bonny boy in?

- 10 'Your gude-mother has made ye a rare dinour,
She's made it baith gude and fine;
Your gude-mother has made ye a gay dinour,
And ye maun cum till her and dine.'
- 11 It's twenty lang miles to Sillertoun town,
The langest that ever were gane;
But the steed it was wight, and the ladye was light,
And she cam linkin in.
- 12 But when she came to Sillertoun town,
And into Sillertoun ha,
The torches were burning, the ladies were mourning,
And they were weeping a'.
- 13 'O where is now my wedded lord,
And where now can he be?
O where is now my wedded lord?
For him I canna see.'
- 14 'Your wedded lord is dead,' she says,
'And just gane to be laid in the clay;
Your wedded lord is dead,' she says,
'And just gane to be buried the day.'
- 15 'Ye'se get nane o his gowd, ye'se get nane o his gear,
Ye'se get nae thing frae me;
Ye'se na get an inch o his gude broad land,
Tho your heart suld burst in three.'
- 16 'I want nane o his gowd, I want nane o his gear,
I want nae land frae thee;
But I'll hae the ring that's on his finger,
For them he did promise to me.'
- 17 'Ye'se na get the ring that's on his finger,
Ye's na get them frae me;
Ye'se na get the ring that's on his finger,
An your heart suld burst in three.'
- 18 She's turn'd her back unto the wa,
And her face unto a rock,
And there, before the mother's face,
Her very heart it broke.

19 The tane was buried in Marie's kirk,
The tother in Marie's quair,
And out o the tane there sprang a birk,
And out o the tother a brier.

20 And thae twa met, and thae twa plat,
The birk but and the brier,
And by that ye may very weel ken
They were twa lovers dear.

'Earl Robert,' Motherwell's MS., p. 149;
Motherwell's Minstrelsy, p. 200 : from the recitation of Mrs Thomson, Kilbarchan, a native of Bonhill, Dumbartonshire, aged betwixt sixty and seventy.

1 It's fifty miles to Sittingen's Rocks,
As eer was ridden or gane;
And Earl Robert has wedded a wife,
But he dare na bring her hame.
And Earl Robert has wedded a wife,
But he dare na bring her hame.

2 His mother, she called to her waiting-maid,
To bring her a pint o wine:
'For I dinna weel ken what hour of the day
That my son Earl Robert shall dine.'

3 She's put it to her fause, fause cheek,
But an her fause, fause chin;
She's put it to her fause, fause lips,
But never a drap went in.

4 But he's put it to his bonny cheek,
Aye and his bonny chin;
He's put it to his red rosy lips,
And the poison went merrily down.

5 'O where will I get a bonny boy,
That will win hose and shoon,
That will gang quickly to Sittingen's Rocks,
And bid my lady come?'

6 It's out then speaks a bonny boy,
To Earl Robert was something akin:
'Many a time have I ran thy errand,
But this day wi the tears I'll rin.'

7 Bat when he came to Sittingin's Rocks,
To the middle of a' the ha,

There were bells a ringing, and music playing,
And ladies dancing a'.

8 'What news, what news, my bonny boy?
What news have ye to me?
Is Earl Robert in very good health,
And the ladies of your countrie?'

9 'O Earl Robert's in very good health,
And as weel as a man can be;
But his mother this night has a drink to be drucken,
And at it you must be.'

10 She called to her waiting-maid,
To bring her a riding-weed,
And she called to her stable-groom,
To saddle her milk-white steed.

11 But when she came to Earl Robert's bonir,
To the middle of a' the ha,
There were bells a ringing, and sheets down hinging,
And ladies mourning a'.

12 'I've come for none of his gold,' she said,
'Nor none of his white monie,
Excepting a ring of his smallest finger,
If that you will grant me.'

13 'Thou'll not get none of his gold,' she said,
'Nor none of his white monie;
Thou'll not get a ring of his smallest finger,
Tho thy heart should break in three.'

14 She set her foot unto a stane,
Her back unto a tree;
She set her foot unto a stane,
And her heart did break in three.

15 The one was buried in Mary's kirk,
The other in Mary's quire;
Out of the one there grew a birk,
From the other a bonnie brier.

16 And these twa grew, and these twa threw,
Till their twa craps drew near;
So all the warld may plainly see
That they loved each other dear.

YOUNG JOHNSTONE

An explanation of Young Johnstone's motive for stabbing his lady was afforded by Motherwell's reciter: "The barbarous act was committed unwittingly, through Young Johnstone's suddenly waking from sleep, and, in that moment of confusion and alarm, unhappily mistaking his mistress for one of his pursuers." The apology may go for what it is worth. Awake or waking, Young Johnstone's first instinct is as duly to stab as a bull-dog's is to bite.

A

'The Cruel Knight,' Herd's Ancient and Modern Scots Songs, 1769, p. 305; I, 165, ed. 1776.

- 1 THE knight stands in the stable-door,
As he was for to ryde,
When out then came his fair lady,
Desiring him to byde.
- 2 'How can I byde? how dare I byde?
How can I byde with thee?
Have I not killd thy ae brother?
Thou hadst nae mair but he.'
- 3 'If you have killd my ae brother,
Alas, and woe is me!
But if I save your fair body,
The better you 'll like me.'
- 4 She's tane him to her secret bower,
Pinnd with a siller pin,
And she's up to her highest tower,
To watch that none come in.
- 5 She had na well gane up the stair,
And entered in her tower,
When four and twenty armed knights
Came riding to the door.
- 6 'Now God you save, my fair lady,
I pray you tell to me,
Saw you not a wounded knight
Come riding by this way?'
- 7 'Yes, bloody, bloody was his sword,
And bloody were his hands;
But if the steed he rides be good,
He's past fair Scotland's strands.

8 'Light down, light down then, gentlemen,
And take some bread and wine;
The better you will him pursue
When you shall lightly dine.'

9 'We thank you for your bread, lady,
We thank you for your wine;
I would gie thrice three thousand pounds
Your fair body was mine.'

10 Then she's gane to her secret bower,
Her husband dear to meet;
But he drew out his bloody sword,
And wounded her sae deep.

11 'What aileth thee now, good my lord?
What aileth thee at me?
Have you not got my father's gold,
But and my mother's fee?'

12 'Now live, now live, my fair lady,
O live but half an hour,
There's neer a leech in fair Scotland
But shall be at thy bower.'

13 'How can I live? how shall I live?
How can I live for thee?
See you not where my red heart's blood
Runs trickling down my knee?'

a. 'Young Johnstone,' Motherwell's Minstrelsy, p. 198, from the recitation of Mrs Gentles, Paisley. b. 'The Young Johnstone,' Finlay's Scottish Historical and Romantic Ballads, II, 71, from two recited copies.

1 YOUNG JOHNSTONE and the young Colnel
Sat drinking at the wine:
'O gin ye wad marry my sister,
It's I wad marry thine.'

2 'I wadna marry your sister
For a' your houses and land;
But I'll keep her for my leman,
When I come oer the strand.

3 'I wadna marry your sister
For a' your gowd so gay;
But I'll keep her for my leman,
When I come by the way.'

- 4 Young Johnstone had a little small sword,
Hung low down by his gair,
And he stabbed it through the young Colnel,
That word he neer spak mair.
- 5 But he's awa to his sister's bower,
He's tirl'd at the pin:
'Whare hae ye been, my dear brither,
Sae late a coming in?'
'I hae been at the school, sister,
Learning young clerks to sing.'
- 6 'I've dreamed a dreary dream this night,
I wish it may be for good;
They were seeking you with hawks and hounds,
And the young Colnel was dead.'
- 7 'Hawks and hounds they may seek me,
As I trow well they be;
For I have killed the young Colnel,
And thy own true-love was he.'
- 8 'If ye hae killed the young Colnel,
O dule and wae is me!
But I wish ye may be hanged on a hie gallows,
And hae nae power to flee.'
- 9 And he's awa to his true-love's bower,
He's tirl'd at the pin:
'Whar hae ye been, my dear Johnstone,
Sae late a coming in?'
'It's I hae been at the school,' he says,
'Learning young clerks to sing.'
- 10 'I have dreamed a dreary dream,' she says,
'I wish it may be for good;
They were seeking you with hawks and hounds,
And the young Colnel was dead.'
- 11 'Hawks and hounds they may seek me,
As I trow well they be;
For I hae killed the young Colnel,
And thy ae brother was he.'
- 12 'If ye hae killed the young Colnel,
O dule and wae is me!
But I care the less for the young Colnel,
If thy ain body be free.
- 13 'Come in, come in, my dear Johnstone,
Come in and take a sleep;
And I will go to my casement,
And carefully I will thee keep.'
- 14 He had not weel been in her bower-door.
No not for half an hour,
When four and twenty belted knights
Came riding to the bower.
- 15 'Well may you sit and see, lady,
Well may you sit and say;
Did you not see a bloody squire
Come riding by this way?'
- 16 'What colour were his hawks?' she says,
'What colour were his hounds?
What colour was the gallant steed,
That bore him from the bounds?'
- 17 'Bloody, bloody were his hawks,
And bloody were his hounds;
But milk-white was the gallant steed,
That bore him from the bounds.'
- 18 'Yes, bloody, bloody were his hawks,
And bloody were his hounds;
And milk-white was the gallant steed,
That bore him from the bounds.
- 19 'Light down, light down now, gentlemen,
And take some bread and wine;
And the steed be swift that he rides on,
He's past the brig o Lyne.'
- 20 'We thank you for your bread, fair lady,
We thank you for your wine;
But I wad gie thrice three thousand pound
That bloody knight was taen.'
- 21 'Lie still, lie still, my dear Johnstone,
Lie still and take a sleep;
For thy enemies are past and gone,
And carefully I will thee keep.'
- 22 But Young Johnstone had a little wee sword,
Hung low down by his gair,
And he stabbed it in fair Annet's breast,
A deep wound and a sair.
- 23 'What aileth thee now, dear Johnstone?
What aileth thee at me?

Hast thou not got my father's gold
Bot and my mither's fee ?'

24 'Now live, now live, my dear ladye,
Now live but half an hour,
And there's no a leech in a' Scotland
But shall be in thy bower.'

25 'How can I live ? how shall I live ?
Young Johnstone, do not you see
The red, red drops o my bonny heart's
blood
Rin trinkling down my knee ?

26 'But take thy harp into thy hand,
And harp out owre yon plain,
And neer think mair on thy true-love
Than if she had never been.'

27 He hadna weel been out o the stable,
And on his saddle set,
Till four and twenty broad arrows
Were thrilling in his heart.

FAUSE FOODRAGE

This ballad, though substantially gennine, has come down to us in an enfeebled form. The rebellion of the nobles in A is evidently a corruption; it is a prosaic touch, and not at all ballad-like. 'Fause Foodrage' is closely related to the Scandinavian ballad of 'Svend of Voldealsv' (Grundtvig-Olrik, No. 298).

'Fa'se Footrage,' Alexander Fraser Tytler's Brown MS., No. 3.

1 KING EASTER has courted her for her
gowd,
King Wester for her fee,
King Honor for her lands sae braid,
And for her fair body.

2 They had not been four months married,
As I have heard them tell,
Until the nobles of the land
Against them did rebel.

3 And they cast kaivles them amang,
And kaivles them between,

And they cast kaivles them amang
Wha shoud gae kill the king.

4 O some said yea, and some said nay,
Their words did not agree;
Till up it gat him Fa'se Footrage,
And sware it shoud be he.

5 When bells were rung, and mass was
sung,
And a' man boon to bed,
King Honor and his gay ladie
In a hie chammer were laid.

6 Then up it raise him Fa'se Footrage,
While a' were fast asleep,
And slew the porter in his lodge,
That watch and ward did keep.

7 O four and twenty silver keys
Hang hie upon a pin,
And ay as a door he did unlock,
He has fastend it him behind.

8 Then up it raise him King Honor,
Says, What means a' this din !
Now what's the matter, Fa'se Foot-
rage ?
O wha was 't loot you in ?

9 'O ye my errand well shall learn
Before that I depart ;'
Then drew a knife baith lang and
sharp
And pierced him thro the heart.

10 Then up it got the Queen hersell,
And fell low down on her knee:
'O spare my life now, Fa'se Footrage !
For I never injured thee.

11 'O spare my life now, Fa'se Footrage !
Until I lighter be,
And see gin it be lad or lass
King Honor has left me wi.'

12 'O gin it be a lass,' he says,
'Well nursed she shall be;
But gin it be a lad-bairn,
He shall be hanged hie.

13 'I winna spare his tender age,
Nor yet his hie, hie kin;
But as soon as eer he born is,
He shall mount the gallows-pin

14 O four and twenty valiant knights
Were set the Queen to guard,
And four stood ay at her bower-door,
To keep baith watch and ward.

15 But when the time drew till an end
That she should lighter be,
She cast about to find a wile
To set her body free.

16 O she has birlled these merry young men
Wi strong beer and wi wine,
Until she made them a' as drunk
As any wallwood swine.

17 'O narrow, narrow is this window,
And big, big am I grown !'
Yet thro the might of Our Ladie
Out at it she has won.

18 She wanderd up, she wanderd down,
She wanderd out and in,
And at last, into the very swines' sty,
The Queen brought forth a son.

19 Then they cast kaivles them amang
Wha should gae seek the Queen,
And the kaivle fell upon Wise William,
And he's sent his wife for him.

20 O when she saw Wise William's wife,
The Queen fell on her knee;
'Win up, win up, madame,' she says,
'What means this courtesie ?'

21 'O out of this I winna rise
Till a boon ye grant to me,
To change your lass for this lad-bairn
King Honor left me wi.

22 'And ye maun learn my gay gose-hawke
Well how to breast a steed,
And I shall learn your turtle-dow
As well to write and read.

23 'And ye mann learn my gay gose-hawke
To wield baith bow and brand,
And I shall learn your turtle-dow
To lay gowd wi her hand.

24 'At kirk or market where we meet,
We dare nae mair avow
But, Dame, how does my gay gose-hawk ?
Madame, how does my dow ?'

25 When days were gane, and years came on,
Wise William he thought long;
Out has he taen King Honor's son,
A hunting for to gang.

26 It sae fell out at their hunting,
Upon a summer's day,
That they cam by a fair castle,
Stood on a sunny brae.

27 'O dinna ye see that bonny castle,
Wi wa's and towers sae fair ?
Gin ilka man had back his ain,
Of it you shoud be heir.'

28 'How I shoud be heir of that castle
In sooth I canna see,
When it belongs to Fa'se Footrage,
And he's nae kin to me.'

29, 'O gin ye shoud kill him Fa'se Foot-
rage,
You woud do what is right;
For I wot he killd your father dear,
Ere ever you saw the light.

30 'Gin ye should kill him Fa'se Foot-
rage,
There is nae man durst you blame;
For he keeps your mother a prisoner,
And she dares no take you hame.'

31 The boy stared wild like a gray gosehawke,
Says, What may a' this mean !
'My boy, you are King Honor's son,
And your mother's our lawful queen.'

32 'O gin I be King Honor's son,
By Our Ladie I swear,
This day I will that traytour slay
And relieve my mother dear.'

33 He has set his bent bow till his breast,
And lap the castle-wa,
And soon he's siesed on Fa'se Footrage,
Wha loud for help gan ca.

34 'O hold your tongue now, Fa'se Foot-
rage,
Frae me you shanno flee ;'
Syne pierced him through the foul fa'se
heart,
And set his mother free.

35 And he has rewarded Wise William
 Wi the best half of his land,
 And sae has he the turtle-dow
 Wi the truth of his right hand.

B

'The Eastmure King and the Westmure King,' Motherwell's MS., p. 341.

1 THE Eastmure king, and the Westmure king,
 And the king of Onorie,
 They have all courted a pretty maid,
 And guess wha she micht be.

2 The Eastmure king courted her for gold,
 And the Westmure king for fee,
 The king of Onore for womanheid,
 And for her fair beautie.

3 The Eastmure king swore a solemn oath,
 He would keep it till May,
 That he would murder the king of Onore,
 Upon his wedding day.

4 When bells was rung, and psalms was sung,
 And all men boune for sleep,
 Up and started the Eastmure king
 At the king of Onore's head.

5 He has drawn the curtains by —
 Their sheets was made of dorn —
 And he has murdered the king of Onore,
 As innocent as he was born.

6 This maid she awak'd in the middle of the night,
 Was in a drowsy dream;
 She found her bride's-bed swim with blood,
 Bot and her good lord slain.

7 'What will the court and council say?
 What will they say to me?
 What will the court and council say
 But this night I've murderd thee?'

8 Out and speaks the Eastmure king:
 'Hold your tongue, my pretty may,
 And come along with me, my dear,
 And that court ye'll never see.'

9 He mounted her on a milk-white steed,
 Himself upon a gray;
 She turnd her back against the court,
 And weeping rode away.

10 'Now if you be with child,' he says,
 'As I trew well you be,
 If it be of a lassie-bairn,
 I'll give her nurses three.

11 'If it be a lassie-bairn,
 If you please she'll get five;
 But if it be a bonnie boy,
 I will not let him live.'

12 Word is to the city gone,
 And word is to the town,
 And word is to the city gone,
 She's delivered of a son.

13 But a poor woman in the town
 In the same case does lye,
 Wha gived to her her woman-child,
 Took awa her bonnie boy.

14 At kirk or market, whereer they met,
 They never durst avow,
 But 'Thou be kind to my boy,' she says,
 'I'll be kind to your bonnie dow.'

15 This boy was sixteen years of age,
 But he was nae seventeen,
 When he is to the garden gone,
 To slay that Eastmure king.

16 'Be aware, be aware, thou Eastmure king,
 Be aware this day of me;
 For I do swear and do declare
 Thy botcher I will be.'

17 'What aileth thee, my bonnie boy?
 What aileth thee at me?
 I'm sure I never did thee wrang;
 Thy face I neer did see.'

18 'Thou murdered my father dear,
 When scarce conceived was I;
 Thou murdered my father dear,
 When scarce conceived was me:
 So then he slew that Eastmure king,
 Beneath that garden tree.

'Eastmuir King,' Harris MS., No. 18, fol. 22: derived from Jannie Scott, an old Perthshire nurse, about 1790.

- 1 EASTMUIR king, and Wastmuir king,
And king o Luve, a' three,
It's they coost kevils them amang,
About a gay ladie.
- 2 Eastmuir king he wan the gowd,
An Wastmuir king the fee,
But king o Luve, wi his lands sae broad,
He's won the fair ladie.
- 3 Thae twa kings, they made an aith,
That, be it as it may,
They wad slay him king o Luve,
Upon his waddin day.
- 4 Eastmuir king he brak his aith,
An sair penance did he;
But Wastmuir king he made it oot,
An an ill deid mat he dee!

JELLON GRAME

'Jellon Grame' may be regarded as a counterpart to 'Fause Foodrage' (No. 89). It has certainly suffered very much in transmission. There is a material difference in plot between the story furnished by A and what we learn from the three other copies (of which B is here printed).

A

a. 'Jellon Grame and Lillie Flower,' A. Fraser Tytler's Brown MS., No. 4. b. 'Jellon Grame,' Scott's Minstrelsy, II, 20, 1802.

- 1 O JELLON GRAME sat in Silver Wood,
He whistled and he sang,
And he has call'd his little foot-page,
His errand for to gang.
- 2 'Win up, my bonny boy,' he says,
'As quick as eer you may;
For ye maun gang for Lillie Flower,
Before the break of day.'
- 3 The boy he's buckled his belt about,
And thro the green-wood ran,

And he came to the ladie's bower-door,
Before the day did dawn.

- 4 'O sleep ye, or wake ye, Lillie Flower?
The red run's i the rain:'
'I sleep not aft, I wake right aft;
Wha's that that kens my name?'
- 5 'Ye are bidden come to Silver Wood,
But I fear you'll never win hame;
Ye are bidden come to Silver Wood,
And speak wi Jellon Grame.'
- 6 'O I will gang to Silver Wood,
Though I shoud never win hame;
For the thing I most desire on earth
Is to speak wi Jellon Grame.'
- 7 She had no ridden a mile, a mile,
A mile but barely three,
Ere she came to a new made grave,
Beneath a green oak tree.
- 8 O then up started Jellon Grame,
Out of a bush hard bye:
'Light down, light down now, Lillie
Flower,
For it's here that ye maun ly.'
- 9 She lighted aff her milk-white steed,
And knelt upon her knee:
'O mercy, mercy, Jellon Grame!
For I'm nae prepar'd to die.'
- 10 'Your bairn, that stirs between my sides,
Maun shortly see the light;
But to see it weltring in my blude
Woud be a piteous sight.'
- 11 'O shond I spare your life,' he says,
'Until that bairn be born,
I ken fu well your stern father
Woud hang me on the morn.'
- 12 'O spare my life now, Jellon Grame!
My father ye neer need dread;
I'll keep my bairn i the good green
wood,
Or wi it I'll beg my bread.'
- 13 He took nae pity on that ladie,
Tho she for life did pray;
But pierced her thro the fair body,
As at his feet she lay.

14 He felt nae pity for that ladie,
Tho she was lying dead;
But he felt some for the bonny boy,
Lay weltring in her blude.

15 Up has he taen that bonny boy,
Gien him to nurices nine,
Three to wake, and three to sleep,
And three to go between.

16 And he's brought up that bonny boy,
Calld him his sister's son;
He thought nae man would eer find
out
The deed that he had done.

17 But it sae fell out upon a time,
As a hunting they did gay,
That they rested them in Silver Wood,
Upon a summer-day.

18 Then out it spake that bonny boy,
While the tear stood in his eye,
'O tell me this now, Jellon Grame,
And I pray you dinna lie.

19 'The reason that my mother dear
Does never take me hame?
To keep me still in banishment
Is baith a sin and shame.'

20 'You wonder that your mother dear
Does never send for thee;
Lo, there's the place I slew thy mother,
Beneath that green oak tree.'

21 Wi that the boy has bent his bow,
It was baith stout and lang,
And through and thro him Jellon Grame
He's gard an arrow gang.

22 Says, Lye you thare now, Jellon Grame,
My mellison you wi;
The place my mother lies buried in
Is far too good for thee.

B

'Hind Henry,' Motherwell's MS., p. 443.

1 WORD has come to May Margerie,
In her bower where she sat:
'You are bid come to good green-wood,
To make your love a shirt.'

2 'I wonder much,' said May Margerie,
'At this message to me;
There is not a month gone of this year
But I have made him three.'

3 Then out did speak her mother dear,
A wise woman was she;
Said, Stay at home, my daughter May,
They seek to murder thee.

4 'O I'll cast off my gloves, mother,
And hang them up, I say;
If I come never back again,
They will mind you on May.

5 'Go saddle my horseback,' she said,
'It's quick as ever you may,
And we will ride to good green-wood;
It is a pleasant day.'

6 And when she came to good green-wood,
It's through it they did ride;
Then up did start him Hind Henry,
Just at the lady's side.

7 Says, Stop, O stop, you May Margerie,
Just stop I say to thee;
The boy that leads your bridle reins
Shall see you red and blue.

8 It's out he drew a long, long brand,
And stroked it ower a strae,
And through and through that lady's sides
He made the cauld weapon gae.

9 Says, Take you that now, May Margerie,
Just take you that from me,
Because you love Brown Robin,
And never would love me.

10 There was less pity for that lady,
When she was lying dead,
As was for her bony infant boy,
Lay swathed amang her bleed.

11 The boy fled home with all his might,
The tear into his ee:
'They have slain my lady in the wood,
With fear I'm like to die.'

12 Her sister's ran into the wood,
With greater grief and care,
Sighing and sobbing all the way,
Tearing her cloaths and hair.

- 13 Says, I'll take up that fair infant,
And lull him on my sleeve;
Altho his father should wish me woe,
His mother to me was leeve.
- 14 Now she has taken the infant up,
And she has brought him hame,
And she has called him Brown Robin,
That was his father's name.
- 15 And when he did grow up a bit,
She put him to the lair,
And of all the youths was at that school
None could with him compare.
- 16 And it fell once upon a day
A playtime it was come,
And when the rest went from the school,
Each one to their own home,
- 17 He bied him unto good green-wood,
And leapt from tree to tree;
It was to pull a hollin wand,
To play his ownself wi.
- 18 And when he thus had passed his time,
To go home he was fain,
He chanced to meet him Hind Henry,
Where his mother was slain.
- 19 'O how is this,' the youth cried out,
'If it to you is known,
How all this wood is growing grass,
And on that small spot grows none?'
- 20 'Since you do wonder, bonnie boy,
I shall tell you anon;
That is indeed the very spot
I killed your mother in.'
- 21 He catched hold of Henry's brand,
And stroked it ower a strae,
And thro and thro Hind Henry's sides
He made the cauld metal gae.
- 22 Says, Take you that, O Hind Henry,
O take you that from me,
For killing of my mother dear,
And her not hurting thee.

FAIR MARY OF WALLINGTON

'Fair Mary of Wallington' (A) was communicated to Bishop Percy, with other "old Scots Songs," in 1775, by Roger Halt, and presumably in a copy of the garland from which it is here printed. The story is well preserved in this version. A Breton ballad, 'Pontplan-coat' (Luzel, I, 382 ff.), exhibits such correspondences with the English and Scottish that it may be assumed to have the same source. The localization of A in Northumberland is of no special significance.

A

'Fair Mary of Wallington,' Lovely Jenny's Garland, three copies, as early as 1775, but without place or date.

- 1 WHEN we were silly sisters seven,
sisters were so fair,
Five of us were brave knights' wives,
and died in childbed lair.
- 2 Up then spake Fair Mary,
marry woud she nane;
If ever she came in man's bed,
the same gate wad she gang.
- 3 'Make no vows, Fair Mary,
for fear they broken be;
Here's been the Knight of Walling-
ton,
asking good will of thee.'
- 4 'If here's been the knight, mother,
asking good will of me,
Within three quarters of a year
you may come bury me.'
- 5 When she came to Wallington,
and into Wallington hall,
There she spy'd her mother dear,
walking about the wall.
- 6 'You're welcome, daughter dear,
to thy castle and thy bowers;
'I thank you kindly, mother,
I hope they'll soon be yours.'
- 7 She had not been in Wallington
three quarters and a day,
Till upon the ground she could not walk,
she was a weary prey.
- 8 She had not been in Wallington
three quarters and a night,
Till on the ground she could not walk,
she was a weary wight.

- 9 'Is there neer a boy in this town,
who'll win hose and shun,
That will run to fair Pudlington,
and bid my mother come?'
- 10 Up then spake a little boy,
near unto a-kin;
'Full oft I have your errands gone,
but now I will it run.'
- 11 Then she call'd her waiting-maid
to bring up bread and wine:
'Eat and drink, my bonny boy,
thou'll neer eat more of mine.
- 12 'Give my respects to my mother,
[as] she sits in her chair of stone,
And ask her how she likes the news,
of seven to have but one.
- 13 ['Give my respects to my mother,
as she sits in her chair of oak,
And bid her come to my sickening,
or my merry lake-wake.]
- 14 'Give my love to my brother
William, Ralph, and John,
And to my sister Betty fair,
and to her white as bone.
- 15 'And bid her keep her maidenhead,
be sure make much on 't,
For if eer she come in man's bed,
the same gate will she gang.'
- 16 Away this little boy is gone,
as fast as he could run;
When he came where brigs were broke,
he lay down and swum.
- 17 When he saw the lady, he said,
Lord may your keeper be!
'What news, my pretty boy,
hast thou to tell to me?'
- 18 'Your daughter Mary orders me, as you sit in a chair of stone,
To ask you how you like the news,
of seven to have but one.
- 19 'Your daughter gives commands,
as you sit in a chair of oak,
And bids you come to her sickening,
or her merry lake-wake.
- 20 'She gives command to her brother
William, Ralph, and John,
[And] to her sister Betty fair,
and to her white as bone.
- 21 'She bids her keep her maidenhead,
be sure make much on 't,
For if eer she came in man's bed,
the same gate woud she gang.'
- 22 She kickt the table with her foot,
she kickt it with her knee,
The silver plate into the fire,
so far she made it flee.
- 23 Then she call'd her waiting-maid
to bring her riding-hood,
So did she on her stable-groom to bring her riding-steed.
- 24 'Go saddle to me the black [the black,]
go saddle to me the brown,
Go saddle to me the swiftest steed that eer rid [to] Wallington.'
- 25 When they came to Wallington,
and into Wallington hall,
There she spy'd her son Fenwick,
walking about the wall.
- 26 'God save you, dear son,
Lord may your keeper be!
Where is my daughter fair,
that used to walk with thee?'
- 27 He turnd his head round about,
the tears did fill his ee:
''T is a month,' he said, 'since she took her chambers from me.'
- 28 She went on . . .
and there were in the hall
Four and twenty ladies, letting the tears down fall.
- 29 Her daughter had a scope
into her cheek and into her chin,
All to keep her life
till her dear mother came.
- 30 'Come take the rings off my fingers,
the skin it is so white,
And give them to my mother dear,
for she was all the wite.

31 'Come take the rings off my fingers,
the veins they are so red,
Give them to Sir William Fenwick,
I'm sure his heart will bleed.'

32 She took out a razor
that was both sharp and fine,
And out of her left side has taken the heir of Wallington.

33 There is a race in Wallington,
and that I rue full sare;
Tho the cradle it be full spread up,
the bride-bed is left bare.

'The Bonny Earl of Livingston,' Alexander
Fraser Tytler's Brown MS., No. 5.

1 'O WE were sisters seven, Maisry,
And five are dead wi child;
There is nane but you and I, Maisry,
And we'll go maidens mild.'

2 She hardly had the word spoken,
And turnd her round about,
When the bonny Earl of Livingston
Was calling Maisry out.

3 Upon a bonny milk-white steed,
That drank out of the Tyne,
And a' was for her Ladie Maisry,
To take her hyne and hyne.

4 Upon a bonny milk-white steed,
That drank out o the Tay,
And a' was for her Lady Maisry,
To carry her away.

5 She had not been at Livingston
A twelve month and a day,
Until she was as big wi bairn
As any ladie coud gae.

6 She calld upon her little foot-page,
Says, Ye maun run wi speed,
And bid my mother come to me,
For of her I'll soon have need.

7 'See, there is the brootch frae my hause-
bane,
It is of gowd sae ried;
Gin she winna come when I'm alive,
Bid her come when I am dead.'

8 But ere she wan to Livingston,
As fast as she coud ride,
The gaggs they were in Maisry's mouth,
And the sharp sheers in her side.

9 Her good lord wrang his milk-white
hands,
Till the gowd rings flaw in three:
'Let ha's and bowers and a' gae waste,
My bonny love's taen frae me!'

10 'O hold your tongue, Lord Livingston,
Let a' your mourning be;
For I bare the bird between my sides,
Yet I maun thole her to die.'

11 Then out it spake her sister dear,
As she sat at her head:
'That man is not in Christendoom
Shall gar me die sicken dead.'

12 'O hold your tongue, my ae daughter,
Let a' your folly be,
For ye shall be married ere this day week
Tho the same death you should die.'

BONNY BEE HOM

The talisman in this ballad reminds one of 'Hind Horn' (No. 17); the vows, of 'Clerk
Saunders' (No. 69). Similar vows occur in a song called 'The Lowlands of Holland' (see the Notes).

A

'Bonny Bee Ho'm,' Alexander Fraser Tytler's
Brown MS., No. 6.

1 By Arthur's Dale as late I went
I heard a heavy moan;
I heard a ladie lammenting sair,
And ay she cried Ohone!

2 'Ohon, alas! what shall I do,
Tormented night and day!
I never loved a love but ane,
And now he's gone away.

3 'But I will do for my true-love
What ladies woud think sair;
For seven year shall come and go
Ere a kaim gang in my hair.

- 4 'There shall neither a shoe gang on my foot,
Nor a kaim gang in my hair,
Nor eer a coal nor candle-light
Shine in my bower nae mair.'
- 5 She thought her love had been on the sea,
Fast sailling to Bee Hom;
But he was in a quiet chammer,
Hearing his ladie's moan.
- 6 'Be husht, be husht, my ladie dear,
I pray thee mourn not so;
For I am deep sworn on a book
To Bee Hom for to go.'
- 7 She has gien him a chain of the beaten gowd,
And a ring with a ruby stone:
'As lang as this chain your body binds,
Your blude can never be drawn.'
- 8 'But gin this ring shoud fade or fail,
Or the stone shoud change its hue,
Be sure your love is dead and gone,
Or she has proved untrue.'
- 9 He had no been at Bonny Bee Hom
A twelve month and a day,
Till, looking on his gay gowd ring,
The stone grew dark and gray.
- 10 'O ye take my riches to Bee Hom,
And deal them presentlie,
To the young that canna, the auld that maunna,
And the blind that does not see.'
- 11 Now death has come into his bower,
And split his heart in twain;
So their twa souls flew up to heaven,
And there shall ever remain.

LAMKIN

The versions are very numerous, — Professor Child prints twenty-six, including fragments, — but the story does not vary essentially. Only three are given here. One of these (K) is defective, but it is the oldest version, except perhaps P, which is greatly inferior. The tale has been localized in various places in Scotland. The name Lamkin is probably an ironical designation for the bloody mason, the terror of countless nurseries.

A

'Lamkin,' Jamieson's Popular Ballads, I, 176; communicated by Mrs Brown.

- 1 It's Lamkin was a mason good as ever built wi stane;
He built Lord Wearie's castle,
but payment got he nane.
- 2 'O pay me, Lord Wearie, come, pay me my fee:'
'I canna pay you, Lamkin,
for I maun gang oer the sea.'
- 3 'O pay me now, Lord Wearie, come, pay me out o hand:'
'I canna pay you, Lamkin,
unless I sell my land.'
- 4 'O gin ye winna pay me,
I here sall mak a vow,
Before that ye come hame again,
ye sall hae cause to rue.'
- 5 Lord Wearie got a bonny ship,
to sail the saut sea faem;
Bade his lady weel the castle keep,
ay till he should come hame.
- 6 But the nonrice was a fause limmer
as eer hung on a tree;
She laid a plot wi Lamkin,
whan her lord was oer the sea.
- 7 She laid a plot wi Lamkin,
when the servants were awa,
Loot him in at a little shot-window,
and brought him to the ha.
- 8 'O whare's a' the men o this house,
that ca me Lamkin?'
'They're at the barn-well thrashing;
't will be lang ere they come in.'
- 9 'And whare's the women o this house,
that ca me Lamkin?'
'They're at the far well washing;
't will be lang ere they come in.'

- 10 'And whare's the bairns o this house,
that ca me Lamkin?'
'They're at the school reading;
't will be night or they come hame.'
- 11 'O whare's the lady o this house, that ca's me Lamkin?'
'She's up in her bower sewing,
but we soon can bring her down.'
- 12 Then Lamkin's tane a sharp knife,
that hang down by his gaire,
And he has gien the bonny babe
a deep wound and a sair.
- 13 Then Lamkin he rocked,
and the fause nourice sang,
Till frae ilkae bore o the cradle
the red blood out sprang.
- 14 Then out it spak the lady,
as she stood on the stair:
'What ails my bairn, nourice,
that he's greeting sae sair?
- 15 'O still my bairn, nourice,
O still him wi the pap!'
'He winna still, lady,
for this nor for that.'
- 16 'O still my bairn, nourice,
O still him wi the wand!'
'He winna still, lady,
for a' his father's land.'
- 17 'O still my bairn, nourice,
O still him wi the bell!'
'He winna still, lady,
till ye come down yoursel.'
- 18 O the firsten step she steppit,
she steppit on a stane;
But the neisten step she steppit,
she met him Lamkin.
- 19 'O mercy, mercy, Lamkin,
hae mercy upon me!
Though you've taen my young son's
life,
ye may let mysel be.'
- 20 'O sall I kill her, nourice, or sall I lat her be?'
'O kill her, kill her, Lamkin,
for she neer was good to me.'

- 21 'O scour the bason, nourice,
and mak it fair and clean,
For to keep this lady's heart's blood,
for she's come o noble kin.'
- 22 'There need nae bason, Lamkin,
lat it run through the floor;
What better is the heart's blood
o the rich than o the poor?'
- 23 But ere three months were at an end,
Lord Wearie came again;
But dowie, dowie was his heart
when first he came hame.
- 24 'O wha's blood is this,' he says,
'that lies in the chamer?'
'It is your lady's heart's blood;
't is as clear as the lamer.'
- 25 'And wha's blood is this,' he says,
'that lies in my ha?'
'It is your young son's heart's blood;
't is the clearest ava.'
- 26 O sweetly sang the black-bird
that sat upon the tree;
But sairer grat Lamkin,
when he was condemnd to die.
- 27 And bonny sang the mavis,
out o the thorny brake;
But sairer grat the nourice,
when she was tied to the stake.

B

'Lambert Linkin,' Motherwell's MS., p. 15;
from the recitation of Mrs Thomson, Kilbarchan, February 25, 1825.

- 1 BALANKIN was as gude a mason
as eer picked a stane;
He built up Prime Castle,
but payment gat nane.
- 2 The lord said to his lady,
when he was going abroad,
O beware of Balankin,
for he lyes in the wood.
- 3 The gates they were bolted,
baith outside and in;
At the sma peep of a window
Balankin crap in.

- 4 'Good morrow, good morrow,'
said Lambert Linkin:
'Good morrow to yoursell, sir,'
said the false nurse to him.
- 5 'O where is your good lord?
said Lambert Linkin:
'He's awa to New England,
to meet with his king.'
- 6 'O where is his auld son?'
said Lambert Linkin:
'He's awa to buy pearlings,
gin our lady lye in.'
- 7 'Then she'll never wear them,'
said Lambert Linkin:
'And that is nae pity,'
said the false nurse to him.
- 8 'O where is your lady?'
said Lambert Linkin:
'She's in her bower sleeping,'
said the false nurse to him.
- 9 'How can we get at her?'
said Lambert Linkin:
'Stab the babe to the heart,
wi a silver bokin.'
- 10 'That would be a pity,'
said Lambert Linkin:
'No pity, no pity,'
said the false nurse to him.
- 11 Balankin he rocked,
and the false nurse she sang,
Till all the tores of the cradle wi the red blood down ran.
- 12 'O still my babe, nurice,
O still him wi the knife!'
'He'll no be still, lady,
tho I lay doun my life.'
- 13 'O still my babe, nurice,
O still him wi the kame!'
'He'll no be still, lady,
till his daddy come hame.'
- 14 'O still my babe, nurice,
O still him wi the bell!'
'He'll no be still, lady,
till ye come doun yoursell.'
- 15 'It's how can I come down,
this cauld winter nicht,
Without eer a coal,
or a clear candle-light?'
- 16 'There's two smocks in your coffer,
as white as a swan;
Put one of them about you,
it will shew you licht down.'
- 17 She took ane o them about her,
and came tripping doun;
But as soon as she viewed,
Balankin was in.
- 18 'Good morrow, good morrow,'
said Lambert Linkin:
'Good morrow to yoursell, sir,'
said the lady to him.
- 19 'O save my life, Balankin,
till my husband come back,
And I'll gie you as much red gold as you'll hold in your hat.'
- 20 'I'll not save your life, lady,
till your husband come back,
Tho you would give me as much red
gold
as I could hold in a sack
- 21 'Will I kill her?' quo Balankin,
'will I kill her, or let her be?'
'You may kill her,' said the false nurse
'she was neer good to me;
And ye'll be laird of the castle,
and I'll be ladie.'
- 22 Then he cut aff her head
fram her lily breast-bane,
And he hung 't up in the kitchen,
it made a' the ha shine.
- 23 The lord sat in England,
a drinking the wine:
'I wish a' may be weel
with my lady at hame;
For the rings of my fingers
the're now burst in twain!'
- 24 He saddled his horse,
and he came riding doun,
But as soon as he viewed,
Balankin was in.

25 He had na weel stepped twa steps up the stair,
Till he saw his pretty young son lying dead on the floor.

26 He had not weel stepped other twa up the stair,
Till he saw his pretty lady lying dead in despair.

27 He hanged Balankin
out over the gate,
And he burnt the fause nurice,
being under the grate.

'Long Longkin,' Percy Papers, communicated to Percy by Rev. P. Parsons, of Wye, near Ashford, Kent, April 19, 1775.

1 My lord said to my lady,
when he went from home,
Take care of Long Longkin,
' he lies in the loun.

2 My lady said to my lord,
when he went abroad,

3 'I care not for Longkin,
nor none of his kin,
For my gate's fast barrd,
and my windows shut in.'

4 My lord was not gone
many miles from the place,
Untill the false Longkin came straight to the place.

YOUNG WATERS

'Young Waters' was first printed in 1755; Percy's text (Reliques, 1765, II, 172) agrees with this edition except in half a dozen trivial points. Motherwell says he had never met with any traditionary version of this ballad. Buchan, who may generally be relied upon to produce a longer ballad than anybody else, has 'Young Waters' in thirty-nine stanzas, "the only complete version which he had ever met." Everything in this copy which is not in the edition of 1755 (itself a little worse for editing) is a counterfeit of the lowest description.

It is possible, and Aytoun thinks highly probable, that this ballad may have been founded on some real event in Scottish history; but Aytoun shows a commendable discretion in his conclusion that, "though various conjectures have been hazarded as to its origin, none appear sufficiently plausible to warrant their adoption." A Scandinavian ballad (Grundtvig, No. 178), historical to the extent that one version has historical names, exhibits the principal incidents of the short story of 'Young Waters.'

Young Waters, an Ancient Scottish Poem, never before printed. Glasgow, Printed and sold by Robert and Andrew Foulis, 1755. Small 4°, 8 pages.

- 1 ABOUT Yule, when the wind blew cule,
And the round tables began,
A there is cum to our king's court
Mony a well-favord man.
- 2 The queen luikt owre the castle-wa,
Beheld baith dale and down,
And there she saw Young Waters
Cum riding to the town.
- 3 His footmen they did rin before,
His horsemen rade behind;
And mantel of the burning gowd
Did keip him frae the wind.
- 4 Gowden-graithd his horse before,
And siller-shod behind;
The horse Young Waters rade upon
Was fleeter than the wind.
- 5 Out then spack a wylie lord,
Unto the queen said he,
'O tell me wha's the fairest face
Rides in the company?'
- 6 'I've sene lord, and I've sene laird,
And knights of high degree,
Bot a fairer face than Young Waters
Mine eyne did never see.'
- 7 Out then spack the jealous king,
And an augry man was he:
'O if he had bin twice as fair,
You might have excepted me.'
- 8 'You're neither laird nor lord,' she
says,
'Bot the king that wears the crown;
There is not a knight in fair Scotland
But to thee maun bow down.'
- 9 For a' that she cond do or say,
Appensd he wad nae bee,
Bot for the words which she had said,
Young Waters he maun die.
- 10 They hae taen Young Waters,
And put fetters to his feet;
They hae taen Young Waters,
And thrown him in dungeon deep.
- 11 'Aft I have ridden thro Stirling town
In the wind bot and the weit;
Bot I neir rade thro Stirling town
Wi fetters at my feet.

12 'Aft I have ridden thro Stirling town
In the wind bot and the rain;
Bot I neir rade thro Stirling town
Neir to return again.'

13 They hae taen to the heiding-hill
His young son in his craddle,
And they hae taen to the heiding-hill
His horse bot and his saddle.

14 They hae taen to the heiding-hill
His lady fair to see,
And for the words the queen had spoke
Young Waters he did die.

THE MAID FREED FROM THE GALLOWS

All the English versions are defective and distorted. In many others, both from northern and southern Europe, a young woman has fallen into the hands of corsairs; father, mother, brother, sister, refuse to pay ransom, but her lover, in one case husband, stickles at no price which may be necessary to retrieve her. The best ballad of the cycle is the Sicilian 'Scibilia Nobili' (Salomone-Marino, Leggende pop. siciliane in Poesia, No. 29). There are very numerous versions in Finnish and Esthonian, and numerous variations on the theme occur in Russia and elsewhere.

THE GAY GOSHAWK

'The Gay Goshawk' first appeared in print in the second volume of Scott's Minstrelsy, in 1802. Scott's copy was formed partly from Mrs Brown's version (A) and partly from E*.

A ballad widely known in France has the central idea of 'The Gay Goshawk,' but in the development of the story there is no likeness. In a version of this ballad, 'Belle Isambourg,' printed as early as 1607, the king wishes to give Fair Isambourg a husband, but her heart is fixed on a handsome knight, whom she loves more than all her kin together, though he is poor. The king shuts her up in a dark tower, thinking that this treatment will bring about a change, but it does not. Isambourg sees her lover riding towards or by the tower at full speed. She calls to him to stop, and says:

Malade et morte m'y feray,
Porter en terre m'y lairray,
Pourtant morte je ne seray.

Puis apres je vous prie amy,
Qu'à ma chapelle à Saint-Denis
Ne m'y laissez pas enfouir.

Isambourg is now proclaimed to be dead, and is carried to burial by three princes and a knight. Her lover, hearing the knelling and chanting, puts himself in the way and bids the bearers stop. Since she has died for loving him too well, he wishes to say a De Profundis. He rips open a little of the shroud, and she darts a loving smile at him. Everybody is astonished.

In 'Willie's Lyke-Wake' (No. 25) a man feigns death in order to capture a coy maid, or a maid refused him by her parents.

'The Gay Goss Hawk,' Jamieson-Brown MS., No. 6, p. 15.

1 'O WELL's me o my gay goss-hawk,
That he can speak and flee;
He'll carry a letter to my love,
Bring back another to me.'

2 'O how can I your true-love ken,
Or how can I her know?
Whan frae her mouth I never heard
couth,
Nor wi my eyes her saw.'

3 'O well sal ye my true-love ken,
As soon as you her see;
For, of a' the flowrs in fair Englan,
The fairest flowr is she.

4 'At even at my love's bowr-door
There grows a bowing birk,
An sit ye down and sing thereon,
As she gangs to the kirk.

5 'An four-and-twenty ladies fair
Will wash and go to kirk,
But well shall ye my true-love ken,
For she wears goud on her skirt.

6 'An four and twenty gay ladies
Will to the mass repair,
But well sal ye my true-love ken,
For she wears goud on her hair.'

7 O even at that lady's bowr-door
There grows a bowin birk,
An he set down and sang thereon,
As she ged to the kirk.

8 'O eet and drink, my marys a',
The wine flows you among,
Till I gang to my shot-window,
An hear yon bonny bird's song.

9 'Sing on, sing on, my bonny bird,
The song ye sang the streen,
For I ken by your sweet singin
You're frae my true-love sen.'

10 O first he sang a merry song,
An then he sang a grave,
An then he peckd his feathers gray,
To her the letter gave.

- 11 'Ha, there 's a letter frae your love,
He says he sent you three;
He canna wait your love langer,
But for your sake he 'll die.
- 12 'He bids you write a letter to him;
He says he 's sent you five;
He canno wait your love langer,
Tho you 're the fairest woman alive.'
- 13 'Ye bid him bake his bridal-bread,
And brew his bridal-ale,
An I 'll meet him in fair Scotlan
Lang, lang or it be stale.'
- 14 She 's doen her to her father dear,
Fa'n low down on her knee:
'A boon, a boon, my father dear,
I pray you, grant it me.'
- 15 'Ask on, ask on, my daughter,
An granted it sal be;
Except ae squire in fair Scotlan,
An him you sall never see.'
- 16 'The only boon, my father dear,
That I do crave of the,
Is, gin I die in southin lands,
In Scotland to bury me.
- 17 'An the firstin kirk that ye come till,
Ye gar the bells be rung,
An the nextin kirk that ye come till,
Ye gar the mess be sung.
- 18 'An the thirdin kirk that ye come till,
You deal gold for my sake,
An the fourthin kirk that ye come till,
You tarry there till night.'
- 19 She is doen her to her bigly bowr,
As fast as she cond fare,
An she has tane a sleepy draught,
That she had mixed wi care.
- 20 She 's laid her down upon her bed,
An soon she 's fa'n asleep,
And soon oer every tender limb
Could death began to creep.
- 21 Whan night was flown, an day was
come,
Nae ane that did her see
But thought she was as surely dead
As ony lady coud be.

- 22 Her father an her brothers dear
Gard make to her a bier;
The tae half was o guide red gold,
The tither o silver clear.
- 23 Her mither an her sisters fair
Gard work for her a sark;
The tae half was o cambrick fine,
The tither o needle wark.
- 24 The firstin kirk that they came till,
They gard the bells be rung,
An the nextin kirk that they came till,
They gard the mess be sung.
- 25 The thirdin kirk that they came till,
They dealt gold for her sake,
An the fourthin kirk that they came till,
Lo, there they met her make !
- 26 'Lay down, lay down the bigly bier,
Lat me the dead look on;
Wi cherry cheeks and ruby lips
She lay an smil'd on him.
- 27 'O ae sheave o your bread, true-love,
An ae glass o your wine,
For I hae fasted for your sake
These fully days is nine.
- 28 'Gang hame, gang hame, my seven bold brothers,
Gang hame and sound your horn;
An ye may boast in southin lans
Your sister 's playd you scorn.'

Scotch Ballads, Materials for Border Minstrelsy, No. 146 a, Abbotsford.

- 1 'O WALY, waly, my gay goss-hawk,
Gin your feathering be sheen !'
'O waly, waly, my master dear,
Gin ye look pale and lean !
- 2 'Whether is it for the gold sae rid,
Or is it for the silver clear ?
Or is it for the lass in southen land,
That she cannot win here.'
- 3 'It is not for the gold sae rid,
Nor is it for the silver clear,
But it is for the lass in southen land,
That she cannot win her[e].'

- 4 'Sit down, sit down, my master dear,
Write a love-letter hastily,
And put it in under my feathern gray,
And I'll away to southen land as fast as I can flee.
- 5 'But how shall I your true-love ken?
Or how shall I her know?
I bear the tongue never wi her spake,
The eye that never her saw.'
- 6 'The red that is in my love's cheek
Is like blood spilt amang the snaw;
The white that is on her breast-bone
Is like the down on the white sea-maw.
- 7 'There's one that stands at my love's
gate
And opens the silver pin,
And there ye may safely set ye on
And sing a lovely song.
- 8 'First ye may sing it loud, loud, loud,
And then ye may sing it clear,
And ay the oerword of the tune
Is, Your love cannot win here.'
- 9 He has written a love-letter,
Put it under his feathern gray,
And he's awa to southen land,
As fast as ever he may.
- 10 When he came to the lady's gate,
There he lighted down,
And there he sat him on the pin
And sang a lovely song.
- 11 First he sang it loud, loud, loud,
And then he sang it clear,
And ay the oerword of the tune
Was, Your love cannot win here.
- 12 'Hold your tongues, my merry maids all,
And hold them a little while;
I hear some word from my true-love,
That lives in Scotland's isle.'
- 13 Up she rose, to the door she goes,
To hear what the bird woud say,
And he's let the love-letter fall
From under his feathern gray.
- 14 When she looked the letter on,
The tear blinded her eye,
And when she read it oer and oer
A loud laughter took she.
- 15 'Go hame, go hame, my bonny bird,
And to your master tell,
If I be nae wi him at Martin^{mas},
I shall be wi him at Yule.'
- 16 The lady's to her chamber gane,
And a sick woman grew she;
The lady's taen a sudden brash,
And nathing she'll do but die.
- 17 'An asking, an asking, my father dear,
An asking grant to me!
If that I die in southen land,
In Scotland bury me.'
- 18 'Ask on, ask on, my daughter dear,
That asking is granted thee;
If that you die in southen laud,
In Scotland I'll bury thee.'
- 19 'Gar call to me my seven bretheren,
To hew to me my bier,
The one half of the beaten gold,
The other of the silver clear.
- 20 'Go call to me my seven sisters,
To sew to me my caul;
Every needle-steik that they put in Put by a silver bell.'
- 21 The first Scots kirk that they came to,
They heard the mavis ring;
The next Scots kirk that they came to,
They heard the dead-bell ring.
- 22 The next Scots kirk that they came to,
They were playing at the foot-ball,
And her true-love was them among,
The chieftiar amangst them all.
- 23 'Set down, set down these corps,' said he,
'Let me look them upon;'
As soon as he lookd the lady on,
The blood sprang in her chin.
- 24 'One bite of your bread, my love,
And one glass of your wine!
For I have fasted these five long days,
All for your sake and mine.
- 25 'Go hame, go hame, my seven brothers,
Go hame and blaw your horn,

And ye may tell thro southen land
How I playd you the scorn.'

- 26 'Woe to you, my sister dear,
And ane ill death may you die!
For we left father and mother at hame
Breaking their heart for thee.'

BROWN ROBIN

The story undoubtedly stops at the right point in A, with the escape of the two lovers to the wood.

A

'Brown Robin.' a. Jamieson-Brown MS., p. 37. b. Abbotsford MS., Scottish Songs.

- 1 THE king but an his nobles a' } bis
Sat birling at the wine;
He would ha nane but his ae daughter
To wait on them at dine.
- 2 She's servd them butt, she's servd them
ben,
Intill a gown of green,
But her ee was ay on Brown Robin,
That stood low under the rain.
- 3 She's doen her to her bigly bowr,
As fast as she cond gang,
An there she's drawn her shot-window,
An she's harped an she sang.
- 4 'There sits a bird i my father's garden,
An O but she sings sweet!
I hope to live an see the day
Whan wi my love I'll meet.'
- 5 'O gin that ye like me as well
As your tongue tells to me,
What hour o the night, my lady bright,
At your bowr sal I be?'
- 6 'Whan my father an gay Gilbert
Are baith set at the wine,
O ready, ready I will be
To lat my true-love in.'
- 7 O she has birld her father's porter
Wi strong beer an wi wine,
Untill he was as beastly drunk
As ony wild-wood swine:

She's stown the keys o her father's yates
An latten her true-love in.

- 8 Whan night was gane, an day was come,
An the sun shone on their feet,
Then out it spake him Brown Robin,
I'll be discoverd yet.
- 9 Then out it spake that gay lady:
My love, ye need na doubt;
For wi ae wile I've got you in,
Wi anither I'll bring you out.
- 10 She's taen her to her father's cellar,
As fast as she can fare;
She's drawn a cup o the gude red
wine,
Hung 't low down by her gare;
An she met wi her father dear
Just coming down the stair.
- 11 'I woud na gi that cup, daughter,
That ye hold i your han
For a' the wines in my cellar,
An gantrees whare the stan.'
- 12 'O wae be to your wine, father,
That ever 't came oer the sea;
'T 'is pitten my head in sick a steer
I my bowr I canna be.'
- 13 'Gang out, gang out, my daughter dear,
Gang out an tack the air;
Gang out an walk i the good green wood,
An a' your marys fair.'
- 14 Then out it spake the proud porter —
Our lady wishd him shame —
'We'll send the marys to the wood,
But we'll keep our lady at hame.'
- 15 'There's thirty marys i my bowr,
There's thirty o them an three;
But there's nae ane amo them a'
Kens what flowr gains for me.'
- 16 She's doen her to her bigly bowr,
As fast as she could gang,
An she has dresst him Brown Robin
Like ony bowr-woman.
- 17 The gown she pat upon her love
Was o the dainty green,
His hose was o the saft, saft silk,
His shoon o the cordwain fine.

- 18 She's pitten his bow in her bosom,
His arrow in her sleeve,
His sturdy bran her body next,
Because he was her love.
- 19 Then she is unto her bowr-door,
As fast as she coud gang;
But out it spake the proud porter —
Our lady wishd him shame —
'We'll count our marys to the wood,
An we'll count them back again.'
- 20 The firsten mary she sent out
Was Brown Robin by name;
Then out it spake the king himsel,
'This is a sturdy dame.'
- 21 O she went out in a May morning,
In a May morning so gay,
But she came never back again,
Her auld father to see.

B

'Love Robbie,' Christie's Traditional Ballad
Airs, I, 136, from the recitation of an old woman in Buckie, Enzie, Banffshire.

- 1 'A FEATHERD fowl's in your orchard,
father,
O dear, but it sings sweet!
What would I give, my father dear,
That bonnie bird to meet!
What would I give, etc.
- 2 'O hold your tongue, my daughter Mary,
Let a' your folly be;
There's six Scots lords tomorrow, child,
That will a' dine wi me,
And ye maun serve them a', Mary,
As 't were for meat and fee.'
- 3 She served them up, sae has she down,
The footmen a' the same,
But her mind was aye on Love Robbie,
Stood out below the rain.
- 4 A hundred pun o pennies roun,
Tied in a towel so sma,
She has gien to him Love Robbie,
Out oer the castle-wa;
Says, Tak ye that, my love Robbie.
And mysel ye may hae.
- 5 A hundred pun o pennies roun,
Tied in a napkin white,
She has gien to him Love Robbie,
Out oer the garden-dyke;
Says, Tak ye that, my Love Robbie,
And mysel gin ye like.
- 6 'If this be true ye tell to me,
As your tongue woudna lee,
I shall be in your bigly bower
Before the clock strike three;
I shall be in your bigly bower,
Dressd like a gay ladye.'
- 7 When bells were rung, and mass was
sung,
And all men bound for bed,
Love Robbie came to Mary's bower,
Dressd like a comely maid.
- 8 They had not kissd nor love clappèd,
As lovers when they meet,
Till sighing said he Love Robbie,
My life, my life I doubt.
- 9 'Your life, your life, you Love Robbie,
Your life you needna doubt;
For it was wiles brought in Robbie,
And wiles will lat him out.'
- 10 Then in it came her father dear,
And stood upon the floor,
And she filld the cup of good red wine,
Said, Father, will ye drink more?
- 11 'O better I love the cup, Mary,
The cup that's in your hand,
Than all my barrels full of wine,
On the gantrees where they stand.'
- 12 'O woe be to your wine, father,
It eer came oer the sea!
If I getna the air o good greenwood
O I will surely dee.'
- 13 'There's seven maries in your bower,
There's seven o them and three,
And I'll send them to good greenwood,
For flowers to shortsome thee.'
- 14 'There's seven maries in my bower,
There's seven o them and three,
But there's nae a mary mang them a'
Can pu flowers to shortsome me.'

'Then by my sooth,' said her father
dear,
'Let yoursel gang them wi.'

- 15 She dressd hersel in the royal red,
Love Robbie was in dainty green;
Love Robbie's brand was about his middle,
And he shone like ony queen.
- 16 The firsten ane that took the floor,
Love Robbie was that ane:
'Now by my sooth,' said the proud por-
ter,
'She is a sonsie dame;
I would not care now very much
To turn her in again.'
- 17 'I'd fain see any woman or man,
Of high or low degree,
Would turn a mary in again
That once came out with me.'
- 18 They had not been in good greenwood,
Pu'd a flower but only three,
Till the porter stood behind a bush,
And shot him Love Robbie.
- 19 Now word has come to her father
dear,
In the chamber where he lay,
Lady Mary's sick in good greenwood,
And cannot come away.
- 20 He's taen his mantle him about,
His cane into his han,
And he is on to good greenwood,
As fast as he could gang.
- 21 'O want you fish out o the fleed,
Or whale out o the sea?
Or is there any one alive
This day has angerd thee?'
- 22 'I want not fish out o the fleed,
Nor whale out o the sea;
But woe be to your proud porter,
Sae sair's he's angerd me!
He's shot the fairest flower this day,
That would hae comfort me.'
- 23 'O hold your tongue, my daughter Mary,
Let a' your folly be;
Tomorrow ere I eat or drink
High hangèd shall he be.'

BROWN ADAM

'Brown Adam' was No. 14 of the fifteen ballads furnished William Tytler by Mrs Brown in 1783. A Danish ballad (Grundtvig, No. 199) has a remote likeness to 'Brown Adam'

A

'Brown Adam,' Jamieson-Brown MS., p.
17.

- 1 O WHA woud wish the win to blaw,
Or the green leaves fa therewith?
Or wha wad wish a leeler love
Than Brown Adam the Smith?
- 2 His hammer's o the beaten gold,
His study's o the steel,
His fingers white are my delite,
He blows his bellows well.
- 3 But they ha banishd him Brown Adam
Frae father and frae mither,
An they ha banishd him Brown Adam
Frae sister and frae brither.
- 4 And they ha banishd Brown Adam
Frae the flowr o a' his kin;
An he's biggit a bowr i the good green
wood
Betwen his lady an him.
- 5 O it fell once upon a day
Brown Adam he thought lang,
An he woud to the green wood gang,
To hunt some venison.
- 6 He's ta'en his bow his arm oer,
His bran intill his han,
And he is to the good green wood,
As fast as he coud gang.
- 7 O he's shot up, an he's shot down,
The bird upo the briar,
An he's sent it hame to his lady,
Bade her be of good cheer.
- 8 O he's shot up, an he's shot down,
The bird upo the thorn,
And sent it hame to his lady,
And hee'd be hame the morn.

- 9 Whan he came till his lady's bowr-door
He stood a little foreby,
And there he heard a fu fa'se knight
Temptin his gay lady.
- 10 O he's taen out a gay gold ring,
Had cost him mony a pouu:
'O grant me love for love, lady,
An this sal be your own.'
- 11 'I loo Brown Adam well,' she says,
'I wot sae does he me;
An I woud na gi Brown Adam's love
For nae fa'se knight I see.'
- 12 Out has he ta'en a purse of gold,
Was a' fu to the string:
'Grant me but love for love, lady,
An a' this sal be thine.'
- 13 'I loo Brown Adam well,' she says,
'An I ken sae does he me;
An I woudna be your light leman
For mair nor ye coud gie.'
- 14 Then out has he drawn his lang, lang
bran,
And he's flashd it in her een:
'Now grant me love for love, lady,
Or thro you this sal gang!'
- 15 'O,' sighing said that gay lady,
'Brown Adam tarrys lang!'
Then up it starts Brown Adam,
Says, I'm just at your han.
- 16 He's gard him leave his bow, his bow,
He's gard him leave his bran;
He's gard him leave a better pledge,
Four fingers o his right han.

'Broun Edom,' Harris MS., fol. 27 b, No. 26.

- 1
For wha ere had a lealer luv
Than Broun Edom the smith?
- 2 His studie was o the beaten gowd,
His hammer o the pith;
His cords waur o the gude green silk,
That blew his bellows with.

- 3 It fell out ance upon a time
Broun Edom he thought lang,
That he wald gae to see his luv,
By the le licht o the mune.

JOHNIE SCOT

A was No. 2 of the fifteen ballads in William Tytler's lost Brown MS. The story of 'Willie o Winsbury' (No. 100) has considerable resemblance to that of 'Johnie Scot.' There is also some resemblance to 'Child Maurice' (No. 83).

'Jack, the Little Scot,' Jamieson-Brown MS., p. 5.

- 1 O JOHNEY was as brave a knight
As ever saild the sea,
An he's done him to the English court,
To serve for meat and fee.
- 2 He had nae been in fair England
But yet a little while,
Untill the kingis ae daughter
To Johney proves wi chil.
- 3 O word's come to the king himsel,
In his chair where he sat,
That his ae daughter was wi bairn
To Jack, the Little Scott.
- 4 'Gin this be true that I do hear,
As I trust well it be,
Ye pit her into prison strong,
An starve her till she die.'
- 5 O Johney's on to fair Scotland,
A wot he went wi speed,
An he has left the kingis court,
A wot good was his need.
- 6 O it fell once upon a day
That Johney he thought lang,
An he's gane to the good green wood,
As fast as he coud gang.
- 7 'O whare will I get a bouny boy,
To rin my errand soon,
That will rin into fair England,
An haste him back again?'

- 8 O up it starts a bonny boy,
Gold yallow was his hair,
I wish his mither meickle joy,
His bonny love mieckle mair.
- 9 'O here am I, a bonny boy,
Will rin your errand soon;
I will gang into fair England,
An come right soon again.'
- 10 O whan he came to broken briggs,
He bent his bow and swam;
An whan he came to the green grass
growan,
He slaikid his shoone an ran.
- 11 Whan he came to yon high castel,
He ran it roun about,
An there he saw the king's daughter,
At the window looking out.
- 12 'O here's a sark o silk, lady,
Your ain han sewd the sleeve;
You'r bidden come to fair Scotlan,
Speer nane o your parents leave.
- 13 'Ha, take this sark o silk, lady,
Your ain han sewd the gare;
You're bidden come to good green wood,
Love Johnie waits you there.'
- 14 She's turnd her right and roun about,
The tear was in her ee:
'How can I come to my true-love,
Except I had wings to flee?
- 15 'Here am I kept wi bars and bolts,
Most grievous to behold;
My breast-plate's o the sturdy steel,
Instead of the beaten gold.
- 16 'But tak this purse, my bonny boy,
Ye well deserve a fee,
An bear this letter to my love,
An tell him what you see.'
- 17 Then quickly ran the bonny boy
Again to Scotlan fair,
An soon he reachd Pitnachton's towrs,
An soon found Johnie there.
- 18 He pat the letter in his han
An taul him what he sa,
But eer he half the letter read,
He loote the tears down fa.
- 19 'O I will gae back to fair Englan,
Tho death shoud me betide,
An I will relieve the damesel
That lay last by my side.'
- 20 Then out it spake his father dear,
My son, you are to blame;
An gin you'r catchd on English groun,
I fear you'll neef win hame.
- 21 Then out it spake a valiant knight,
Johny's best friend was he;
I can commaun five hunder men,
An I'll his surety be.
- 22 The firstin town that they came till,
They gard the bells be rung;
An the nextin town that they came till,
They gard the mess be sung.
- 23 The thirdin town that they came till,
They gard the drums beat roun;
The king but an his nobles a'
Was startld at the soun.
- 24 Whan they came to the king's palace
They rade it roun about,
An there they saw the king himsel,
At the window looking out.
- 25 'Is this the Duke o Albany,
Or James, the Scottish king?
Or are ye some great foreign lord,
That's come a visiting?'
- 26 'I'm nae the Duke of Albany,
Nor James, the Scottish king;
But I'm a valiant Scottish knight,
Pitnachton is my name.'
- 27 'O if Pitnachton be your name,
As I trust well it be,
The morn, or I tast meat or drink,
You shall be hanged hi.'
- 28 Then out it spake the valiant knight
That came brave Johnie wi;
Behold five hunder bowmen bold,
Will die to set him free.
- 29 Then out it spake the king again,
An a scornfu laugh laugh he;
I have an Italian i my house
Will fight you three by three.

30 'O grant me a boon,' brave Johney cried;
 'Bring your Italian here;
 Then if he fall beneath my sword,
 I've won your daughter dear.'

31 Then out it came that Italian,
 An a gurious ghost was he;
 Upo the point o Johney's sword
 This Italian did die.

32 Out has he drawn his lang, lang bran,
 Struck it across the plain:
 'Is there any more o your English dogs
 That you want to be slain?'

33 'A clark, a clark,' the king then cried,
 'To write her tocher free;'
 'A priest, a priest,' says Love Johney,
 'To marry my love and me.'

34 'I'm seeking nane o your gold,' he says,
 'Nor of your silver clear;
 I only seek your daughter fair,
 Whose love has cost her dear.'

WILLIE O WINSBURY

The story of this ballad is similar to that of 'Johnie Scot' (No. 99), but Willie's extreme beauty moves the king to offer his daughter to him in marriage, without a combat.

A

'Willie o Winsbury,' Campbell MSS., II, 38.

1 THE king he hath been a prisoner,
 A prisoner lang in Spain, O
 And Willie o the Winsbury
 Has lain lang wi his daughter at hame. O

2 'What aileth thee, my daughter Janet,
 Ye look so pale and wan?
 Have ye had any sore sickness,
 Or have ye been lying wi a man?
 Or is it for me, your father dear,
 And biding sae lang in Spain?'

3 'I have not had any sore sickness,
 Nor yet been lying wi a man;
 But it is for you, my father dear,
 In biding sae lang in Spain.'

4 'Cast ye off your berry-brown gown,
 Stand straight upon the stone,
 That I may ken ye by yere shape,
 Whether ye be a maiden or none.'

5 She's coosten off her berry-brown gown,
 Stooden straight upo yon stone;
 Her apron was short, and her haunches were round,
 Her face it was pale and wan.

6 'Is it to a man o might, Janet?
 Or is it to a man of fame?
 Or is it to any of the rank robbers
 That's lately come out o Spain?'

7 'It is not to a man of might,' she
 said,
 'Nor is it to a man of fame;
 But it is to William of Winsbury:
 I could lye nae langer my lane.'

8 The king's called on his merry men
 all,
 By thirty and by three:
 'Go fetch me William of Winsbury,
 For hanged he shall be.'

9 But when he cam the king before,
 He was clad o the red silk;
 His hair was like to threeds o gold,
 And his skin was as white as milk.

10 'It is nae wonder,' said the king,
 'That my daughter's love ye did
 win;
 Had I been a woman, as I am a man,
 My bedfellow ye should hae been.'

11 'Will ye marry my daughter Janet,
 By the truth of thy right hand?
 I'll gie ye gold, I'll gie ye money,
 And I'll gie ye an earldom o land.'

12 'Yes, I'll marry yere daughter Janet,
 By the truth of my right hand;
 But I'll hae nane o yer gold, I'll hae
 nane o yer money,
 Nor I winna hae an earldom o land.'

13 'For I hae eighteen corn-mills,
 Runs all in water clear,
 And there's as much corn in each o them
 As they can grind in a year.'

Percy Papers, communicated to Percy by the Rev. P. Parsons, of Wye, apparently in 1775. "This I had from the spinning-wheel."

- 1 THERE was a lady fine and gay,
She was so neat and trim;
She went unto her own garden-wall,
To see her own ships come in.
- 2 And there she spied her daughter
Jane,
Who lookd so pale and wan:
'What, have you had some long sickness,
Or lain with some young man?'
- 3 'No, I have had no long sickness,
Nor lain with no young man.'
Her petticoats they were so short,
She was full nine months gone.
- 4 'Oh is it by some nobleman?
Or by some man of fame?
Or is it by Johnny Barbary,
That's lately come from Spain?'
- 5 'No, it is by no nobleman,
Nor by no man of fame;
But it is by Johnny Barbary,
That's lately come from Spain.'
- 6 Then she calld down her merry men,
By one, by two, by three;
Johnny Barbary used to be the first,
But now the last came he.
- 7 'Oh will you take my daughter Jane,
And wed her out of hand?
And you shall dine and sup with me,
And be heir of my land.'
- 8 'Yes, I will take your daughter Jane,
And wed her out of hand;
And I will dine and sup with you,
But I do not want your land.'
- 9 Then she calld down her merry men,
With a shrill and a pleasant voice:
'Come, let us all now mery be,
Since she has made such a happy choice.'

WILLIE O DOUGLAS DALE

A was among the fifteen ballads furnished by Mrs Brown to William Tytler in 1783. The first part of the story of this ballad, or down to the birth of the boy, is repeated in No. 102. This portion of the ballad also has resemblances to 'Leesome Brand' (No. 15).

'Willy o Douglass-dale,' Jamieson-Brown MS., p. 8.

- 1 O WILLY was as brave a lord
As ever saild the sea,
And he has gane to the English court,
To serve for meat and fee.
- 2 He had nae been at the kingis court
A twelvemonth and a day,
Till he longd for a sight o the king's
daughter,
But ane he coud never see.
- 3 O it fell ance upon a day
To the green wood she has gane,
An Willy he has followd her,
With the clear light o the moon.
- 4 He looted him low, by her did go,
Wi his hat intill his hand:
'O what's your will wi me, Sir Knight?
I pray keep your hat on.'
- 5 'O I am not a knight, Madam,
Nor never thinks to be;
For I am Willy o Douglassdale,
An I serve for meat and fee.'
- 6 'O I'll gang to my bowr,' she says,
'An sigh baith even an morn
That ever I saw your face, Willy,
Or that ever ye was born.
- 7 'O I'll gang to my bowr,' she says,
'An I'll pray baith night an day,
To keep me frae your tempting looks,
An frae your great beauty.'
- 8 O in a little after that
He keepit Dame Oliphant's bowr,

An the love that passd between this twa,
It was like paramour.

- 9 'O narrow, narrow's my gown, Willy,
That wont to be sae wide;
An short, short is my coats, Willy,
That wont to be sae side;
An gane is a' my fair colour,
An low laid is my pride.
- 10 'But an my father get word of this,
He'll never drink again;
An gin my mother get word of this,
In her ain bowr she'll go brain;
An gin my bold brothers get word o
this,
I fear, Willy, you'll be slain.'
- 11 'O will you leave your father's court,
An go along wi me?
I'll carry you unto fair Scotland,
And mak you a lady free.'
- 12 She pat her han in her pocket
An gae him five hunder poun:
'An take you that now, Squire Willy,
Till awa that we do won.'
- 13 Whan day was gane, and night was come,
She lap the castle-wa;
But Willy kepit his gay lady,
He was laith to let her fa.
- 14 Whan night was gane, an day come in,
An lions gaed to their dens,
An ay the lady followd him,
An the tears came hailing down.
- 15 'O want ye ribbons to your hair?
Or roses to your shoone?
Or want ye as meickle dear bought love
As your ain heart can contain?'
- 16 'I want nae ribbons to my hair,
Nor roses till my shoone;
An Ohone, alas, for dear bought love!
I have mair nor I can contain.'
- 17 O he's pu'd the oak in good green wood,
An he's made to her a fire;
He coverd it oer wi withred leaves,
An gard it burn thro ire.
- 18 He made a bed i the good green wood,
An he's laid his lady down,

An he's coverd her oer wi fig-tree leaves,
But an his ain night-gown.

- 19 'O had I a bunch o yon red roddins,
That grows in yonder wood,
But an a drink o water clear,
I think it woud do me good.'
- 20 He's pu'd her a bunch o yon red rod-
dins,
That grew beside yon thorn,
But an a drink o water clear,
Intill his hunting-horn.
- 21 He's bent his bow, and shot the deer,
An thro the green wood gane,
An ere that he came back again
His lady took travailing.
- 22 'O up ye tak that horn,' she says,
'An ye blaw a blast for me;
Gin my father be in good green wood,
Sae seen's he'll come me ti.'
- 23 'O gin there be a man on earth
That ye loo better nor me,
Ye blaw the horn yoursel,' he says,
'For it's never be blawn by me.'
- 24 O he's bent his bow, an shot the deer,
An thro the green wood has he gane,
An lang or he came back again
His lady bare him a son.
- 25 O up has he tane his bonny young son,
An washn him wi the milk,
An up has he tane his gay lady,
An rowd her i the silk.
- 26 He's bent his bow, and shot the deer,
An thro the green wood has he gane,
Till he met wi a well-fard may,
Her father's flock feeding.
- 27 'Ye leave your father's flock feeding,
An go along wi me;
I'll carry you to a lady fair,
Will gi you both meat and fee.'
- 28 O whan she came the lady before,
She's fa'n down on her knee:
'O what's your will wi me, my dame?
An a dame you seem to be.'

29 'O I'm Dame Oliphant, the king's
daughter,
Nae doubt but ye've heard o me;
Will you leave your father's flock feeding,
An go to Scotlan wi me?

30 'An ye sal get a nouriship
Intill an earldome,
An I will gar provide for the
To marry some brave Scotsman.'

31 The may she keepit the bonny boy,
An Willy led his lady,
Untill they took their fair shippin,
Then quikly hame came they.

32 The win was fair, an the sea was clear,
An they a' wan safe to lan;
He's haid her lady of Douglassdale,
Himsel the lord within.

WILLIE AND EARL RICHARD'S
DAUGHTER

A was taken down from Mrs Brown's recitation by Jamieson in 1800, and published in his collection in 1806, "without the alteration of a single word." The first half of the story in A, 1-9, is that of No. 101, A, 1-24. The first part of B, 4-18, is a variety of the widespread tragic ballad of 'Leesome Brand' (No. 15). So, also, is the larger part of 'Willie o Douglas Dale,' with the tragic features dropped.

This ballad certainly does not belong to the cycle of Robin Hood. The connection with that hero was in all probability mediated by the name Brown Robin (see No. 97).

A

'The Birth of Robin Hood.' Jamieson's Popular Ballads, II, 44, from Mrs Brown's recitation.

1 O WILLIE's large o limb and lith,
And come o high degree,
And he is gane to Earl Richard,
To serve for meat and fee.

2 Earl Richard had but ae daughter,
Fair as a lily-flower,

And they made up their love-contract
Like proper paramour.

3 It fell upon a simmer's nicht,
Whan the leaves were fair and green,
That Willie met his gay ladie
Intil the wood alane.

4 'O narrow is my gown, Willie,
That wont to be sae wide;
And gane is a' my fair colour,
That wont to be my pride.

5 'But gin my father should get word
What's past between us twa,
Before that he should eat or drink,
He'd hang you oer that wa.

6 'But ye'll come to my bower, Willie,
Just as the sun gaes down,
And kep me in your arms twa,
And latna me fa down.'

7 O whan the sun was now gane down,
He's doen him till her bower,
And there, by the lee licht o the moon,
Her window she lookit oer.

8 Intill a robe o red scarlet
She lap, fearless o harm;
And Willie was large o lith and limb,
And keppit her in his arm.

9 And they've gane to the gude green
wood,
And, ere the night was deen,
She's born to him a bonny young son,
Amang the leaves sae green.

10 Whan night was gane, and day was
come,
And the sun began to peep,
Up and raise the Earl Richard
Out o his drowsy sleep.

11 He's ca'd upon his merry young men,
By ane, by twa, and by three:
'O what's come o my daughter dear,
That she's nae come to me?

12 'I dreamt a dreary dream last night,
God grant it come to gude!
I dreamt I saw my daughter dear
Drown in the saut sea flood.

- 13 'But gin my daughter be dead or sick,
Or yet be stown awa,
I mak a vow, and I'll keep it true,
I'll hang ye ane and a'!'
- 14 They sought her back, they sought her
fore,
They sought her up and down;
They got her in the gude green wood,
Nursing her bonny young son.
- 15 He took the bonny boy in his arms,
And kist him tenderlie;
Says, Though I would your father hang,
Your mother's dear to me.
- 16 He kist him oer and oer again:
'My grandson I thee claim,
And Robin Hood in gude green wood,
And that shall be your name.'
- 17 And mony ane sings o grass, o grass,
And mony ane sings o corn,
And mony ane sings o Robin Hood
Kens little whare he was born.
- 18 It wasna in the ha, the ha,
Nor in the painted bower,
But it was in the gude green wood,
Amang the lily-flower.

B

'The Birth of Robin Hood,' Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, II, 1.

- 1 MONY ane talks o the grass, the grass,
And mony ane o the corn,
And mony ane talks o gude Robin Hood
Kens little whar he was born.
- 2 He was gotten in a earl's ha,
And in a lady's bower,
And born into gude greenwood,
Thro mony could winter's shower.
- 3 His father was the earl's own steward,
Sprung frae sma pedigree;
His mother, Earl Huntingdon's ae
daughter,
For he had nane else but she.
- 4 When nine months were near an end,
And eight mouths they were gone,

The lady's cheeks wi tears were wet,
And thus she made her moan:

- 5 'What shall I say, my love Archibald,
This day for you and me?
I will be laid in cauld irons,
And ye'll be hanged on tree.'
- 6 'What aileth my love Clementina?
What gars you mourn sae sair?'
'You know,' said she, 'I'm with child
to thee,
These eight lang months and mair.'
- 7 'Will ye gae to my mother's bower,
Stands on yon stately green?
Or will ye gae to the gude greenwood,
Where ye will not be seen?'
- 8 'I winna gang to your mother's bower,
Stands on yon stately green;
But I will on to gude greenwood,
For I will not be seen.'
- 9 He's girt his sword down by his side,
Took his lady by the hand,
And they are on thro gude greenwood,
As fast as they could gang.
- 10 With slowly steps these couple walkd,
About miles scarcely three,
When this lady, being sair wearied out,
Lay down beneath a tree.
- 11 'O for a few of yon junipers,
To cheer my heart again,
And likewise for a gude midwife,
To ease me of my pain!'
- 12 'I'll bring to you yon junipers,
To cheer your heart again,
And I'll be to you a gude midwife,
To ease you of your pain.'
- 13 'Had far awa frae me, Archibald,
For this will never dee;
That's nae the fashion o our land,
And it's nae be used by me.'
- 14 'Ye'll take your small-sword by your
side,
Your buckler and your bow,
And ye'll gae down thro gude green-
wood,
And hunt the deer and roe.'

- 15 'You will stay in gude greenwood,
And with the chase go on,
Until yon white hind pass you by,
Then straight to me ye 'll come.'
- 16 He's girt his sword then by his side,
His buckler and his bow,
And he is on thro gude greenwood,
To hunt the deer and roe.
- 17 And in the greenwood he did stay,
And with the chase gaed on,
Until the white hind passd him by,
Then to his love he came.
- 18 He girt his sword then by his side,
Fast thro greenwood went he,
And there he found his love lie dead,
Beneath the green oak tree.
- 19 The sweet young babe that she had
born
Right lively seemed to be;
'Ohon, alas!' said young Archibald,
'A mournful scene to me!
- 20 'Altho my sweet babe is alive,
This does increase my woe;
How to nourish a motherless babe
Is mair than I do know.'
- 21 He looked east, he looked west,
To see what he could see,
Then spied the Earl o Huntingdon,
And mony a man him wi.
- 22 Then Archibald fled from the earl's
face,
Among the leaves sae green,
That he might hear what might be said,
And see, and nae be seen.
- 23 The earl straight thro the greenwood
came,
Unto the green oak tree,
And there he saw his daughter dead,
Her living child her wi.
- 24 Then he's taen up the little boy,
Rowed him in his gown-sleeve;
Said, Tho your father's to my loss,
Your mother's to me leave.
- 25 And if ye live until I die,
My bowers and lands ye 'se heir;

You are my only daughter's child;
But her I never had mair.

- 26 Ye 'se hae all kinds of nourishment,
And likewise nurses three;
If I knew where the fause knave were,
High hanged should he be.
- 27 His daughter he buried in gude churchyard,
All in a mournful mood,
And brought the boy to church that day,
And christend him Robin Hood.
- 28 This boy was bred in the earl's ha
Till he became a man,
But loved to hunt in gude greenwood,
To raise his noble fame.

C

Kinloch MSS., v, 330 f., the last two stanzas of 'Douglass Dale.'

- 1 MONY ane speaks o grass, o grass,
And mony mare o corn,
And mony ane sings o Robin Heed
Kens little whare he was born.
- 2 He was born in good green wood,
At the fut o yon olive tree;
His father was a knight's ae son,
And his mother a lady free.

ROSE THE RED AND WHITE
LILY

A was one of the fifteen ballads written down by Mrs Brown for William Tytler in 1783. The only part of the ballad which has the stamp of indubitably ancient tradition is the child-birth in the wood, and this scene is the rightful and perhaps exclusive property of 'Leesome Brand' (No. 15). Several stanzas of A are found again in No. 101, and the first part of Nos. 101 and 102 is a variation of 'Leesome Brand.'

In B (Buchan's Ballads) the two maids, ill-treated by their step-mother, betake themselves to the wood, where they meet, not Brown Robin, but Robin Hood, and take service with him. Rose and Lily change parts; Rose consorting with Robin Hood and Lily with Little

John. It is not, however, Robin Hood and Little John who turn out to be their lovers, but "a lad in the company," and "another youth among the company."

In the fragmentary C (Kinloch's Ballads) the maids are daughters of a king. In consequence of the harshness of their stepmother, these king's daughters go to the wood as Nicholas and Rogee Roun, to seek Robin Hood, and they are discovered to be maids by a song which Rogee sings. Rogee is wedded to Robin Hood, and Nicholas to Little John.

Robin Hood has no love-story in any ancient ballad, though his name has been foisted into modern love-ballads, as in 'Robin Hood and the Tanner's Daughter.' Maid Marian is a late accretion.

'Rose the Red and White Lilly,' Jamieson-Brown MS., p. 1.

1 O ROSE THE RED and White Lilly,
Their mother dear was dead,
And their father married an ill woman,
Wishd them twa little guede.

2 Yet she had twa as fu fair sons
As eer brake manis bread,
And the tane of them loed her White
Lilly,
An the tither lood Rose the Red.

3 O biggit ha they a bigly bowr,
And strawn it oer wi san,
And there was mair mirth i the ladies'
bowr
Than in a' their father's lan.

4 But out it spake their step-mother,
Wha stood a little foreby:
I hope to live and play the prank
Sal gar your loud sang ly.

5 She's calld upon her eldest son:
Come here, my son, to me;
It fears me sair, my eldest son,
That ye maun sail the sea.

6 'Gin it fear you sair, my mither dear,
Your bidding I mann dee;
But be never war to Rose the Red
Than ye ha been to me.'

7 'O had your tongue, my eldest son,
For sma sal be her part;

You'll nae get a kiss o her comely
mouth
Gin your very fair heart should break.'

8 She's calld upon her youngest son:
Come here, my son, to me;
It fears me sair, my youngest son,
That ye mann sail the sea.

9 'Gin it fear you sair, my mither dear,
Your bidding I mann dee;
But be never war to White Lilly
Than ye ha been to me.'

10 'O haud your tongue, my youngest son,
For sma sall be her part;
You'll neer get a kiss o her comely
mouth
Tho your very fair heart should break.'

11 When Rose the Red and White Lilly
Saw their twa loves were gane,
Then stopped ha they their loud, loud sang,
And tane up the still mournin;
And their step-mother stood listnin by,
To hear the ladies' mean.

12 Then out it spake her White Lilly:
My sister, we'll be gane;
Why should we stay in Barnsdale,
To waste our youth in pain?

13 Then cutted ha they their green cloath-
ing
A little below their knee,
An sae ha they there yallow hair,
A little aboon there bree;
An they've doen them to haely chapel,
Was christened by Our Lady.

14 There ha they chang'd their ain twa names,
Sae far frae ony town,
An the tane o them hight Sweet Willy,
An the tither o them Roge the Roun.

15 Between this twa a vow was made,
An they sware it to fulfil;
That at three blasts o a bugle-horn,
She'd come her sister till.

16 Now Sweet Willy's gane to the kingis
court,
Her true-love for to see,

An Roke the Ronn to good green wood,
Brown Robin's man to be.

- 17 As it fell out upon a day
They a' did put the stane,
Full seven foot ayont them a'
She gard the puttin-stane gang.
- 18 She leand her back against an oak,
And gae a loud Ohone !
Then out it spake him Brown Robin,
But that 's a woman's moan !
- 19 'O ken ye by my red rose lip ?
Or by my yallow hair ?
Or ken ye by my milk-white breast ?
For ye never saw it bare ?'
- 20 'I ken no by your red rose lip,
Nor by your yallow hair;
Nor ken I by your milk-white breast,
For I never saw it bare;
But come to your bowr whae'er sae likes,
Will find a lady there.'
- 21 'O gin ye come to my bowr within,
Thro fraud, deceit, or guile,
Wi this same bran that 's in my han,
I swear I will the kill.'
- 22 'But I will come thy bowr within,
An spear nae leave,' quoth he;
'An this same bran that 's i my han
I sall ware back on the.'
- 23 About the tenth hour of the night
The ladie's bower-door was broken,
An eer the first hour of the day
The bonny knave-bairn was gotten.
- 24 When days were gane, and months were run,
The lady took travailing,
And sair she cry'd for a bowr-woman,
For to wait her upon.
- 25 Then out it spake him Brown Robin:
Now what needs a' this din ?
For what coud any woman do
But I coud do the same ?
- 26 'T was never my mither's fashion,' she
says,
'Nor sall it ever be mine,

That belted knights shold eer remain
Where ladies dreed their pine.

- 27 'But ye take up that bugle-horn,
An blaw a blast for me;
I ha a brother i the kingis court
Will come me quickly ti.'
- 28 'O gin ye ha a brither on earth
That ye love better nor me,
Ye blaw the horn yoursel,' he says,
'For ae blast I winna gie.'
- 29 She 's set the horn till her mouth,
And she 's blawn three blasts sae
shrill;
Sweet Willy heard i the kingis court,
And came her quickly till.
- 30 Then up it started Brown Robin,
An an angry man was he:
'There comes nae man this bowr within
But first must fight wi me.'
- 31 O they hae fought that bowr within
Till the sun was gaing down,
Till drops o blude frae Rose the Red Came hailing to the groun.
- 32 She leand her back against the wa,
Says, Robin, let a' be;
For it is a lady born and bred
That 's foughten sae well wi thee.
- 33 O seven foot he lap a back;
Says, Alas, and wae is me !
I never wisht in a' my life,
A woman's blude to see;
An a' for the sake of ae fair maid
Whose name was White Lilly.
- 34 Then out it spake her White Lilly,
An a hearty laugh langh she:
She 's lived wi you this year an mair,
Tho ye kentna it was she.
- 35 Now word has gane thro a' the lan,
Before a month was done,
That Brown Robin's man, in good green
wood,
Had born a bonny young son.
- 36 The word has gane to the kingis
court,
An to the king himsel;

- 'Now, by my fay,' the king could say,
'The like was never heard tell!'
- 37 Then out it spake him Bold Arthur,
An a hearty laugh laugh he:
I trow some may has playd the loun,
And fled her ain country.
- 38 'Bring me my steed,' then cry'd the king,
'My bow and arrows keen;
I'll ride mysel to good green wood,
An see what's to be seen.'
- 39 'An 't please your grace,' said Bold Arthur,
'My liege, I'll gang you wi,
An try to flu a little foot-page,
That's strayd awa frae me.'
- 40 O they've hunted i the good green wood
The buck but an the rae,
An they drew near Brown Robin's bowr,
About the close of day.
- 41 Then out it spake the king in hast,
Says, Arthur, look an see
Gin that be no your little foot-page
That leans against yon tree.
- 42 Then Arthur took his bugle-horn,
An blew a blast sae shrill;
Sweet Willy started at the sound,
An ran him quickly till.
- 43 'O wanted ye your meat, Willy?
Or wanted ye your fee?
Or gat ye ever an angry word,
That ye ran awa frae me?'
- 44 'I wanted nought, my master dear;
To me ye ay was good;
I came but to see my ae brother,
That wons in this green wood.'
- 45 Then out it spake the king again,
Says, Bonny boy, tell to me
Wha lives into yon bigly bowr,
Stands by yon green oak tree?
- 46 'O pardon me,' says Sweet Willy,
'My liege, I dare no tell;
An I pray you go no near that bowr,
For fear they do you fell.'
- 47 'O haud your tongue, my bonny boy,
For I winna be said nay;
But I will gang that bowr within,
Betide me weel or wae.'
- 48 They've lighted off their milk-white steeds,
An saftly enterd in,
An there they saw her White Lilly,
Nursing her bonny yong son.
- 49 'Now, by the rood,' the king could say,
'This is a comely sight;
I trow, instead of a forrester's man,
This is a lady bright!'
- 50 Then out it spake her Rose the Red,
An fell low down on her knee:
O pardon us, my gracious liege,
An our story I'll tell thee.
- 51 Our father was a wealthy lord,
That wond in Barnsdale;
But we had a wicked step-mother,
That wrought us meickle bale.
- 52 Yet she had twa as fu fair sons
As ever the sun did see,
An the tane o them lood my sister dear,
An the tither sayd he lood me.
- 53 Then out it spake him Bold Arthur,
As by the king he stood:
Now, by the faith o my body,
This shoud be Rose the Red!
- 54 Then in it came him Brown Robin,
Frae hunting o the deer,
But whan he saw the king was there,
He started back for fear.
- 55 The king has taen him by the hand,
An bade him naithing dread;
Says, Ye maun leave the good green wood,
Come to the court wi speed.
- 56 Then up he took White Lilly's son,
An set him on his knee;
Says, Gin ye live to wiald a bran,
My bowman ye sall bee.
- 57 The king he sent for robes of green,
An girdles o shinning gold;

He gart the ladies be arrayd
Most comely to behold.

58 They 've done them unto Mary Kirk,
An there gat fair wedding,
An fan the news spread oer the lan,
For joy the bells did ring.

59 Then out it spake her Rose the Red,
An a hearty laugh laugh she:
I wonder what would our step-dame
say,
Gin she this sight did see!

PRINCE HEATHEN

The fragment A is partly explained by B, which is no doubt some stall copy, reshaped from tradition. Motherwell's copy was derived from Buchan.

A

'The Disconsolate Lady,' The Jovial Rake's Garland, n. d., p. 6, No. 4, Bodleian Library, Douce PP, 164.

1 LADY MARGERY MAY sits in her bower,
Sewing at her seem;
By there comes a heathen knight,
From her her maidenhead has tane.

2 He has put her in a tower strong,
With double locks on fifty doors:
'Lady Margery May, will you ga now?'
'O ye heathen knight, not yet for you.'

3 'I am asking, you heathen knight;
What I am asking will you grant to me?
Will ye let one of your waitmen
A drink of your well bring to me?'

4 'Meat nor drink you shall never get,
Nor out of that shall you never come,
Meat nor drink shall you never get,
Until you bear to me daughter or son.'

5 Thus time drew on, and further on,
For travail came this young lady to;
She travailed up, so did she down,
But lighter could she never be.

6 'An asking, an asking, you heathen knight;
An asking will you grant to me?
Will you give me a scread of silk,
For to row your young son wi?'

7 He took the horse-sheet in his hand,
The tears came twinkling down:
'Lady Margaret May, will ye ga now?'
'O ye heathen knight, not yet for you.'

8 'I'll wash my young son with the milk,
I will dry my young son with the silk;
For hearts will break, and bands will bow;
So dear will I love my lady now!'

B

'Prince Heathen,' Buchan's MSS., I, 97; Motherwell's MS., p. 665.

1 LADY MARGARET sat in her bower-door,
Sewing at her silken seem,
When by it came Prince Heathen then,
An gae to her a gay gold ring.

2 He turnd about, an gied a bow;
She said, Begone, I love na you;
When he sware by his yellow hair
That he woud gar her greet fu sair.

3 But she sware by her milk-white skin
Prince Heathen shoud gar her greet naue:
'O bonny may, winna ye greet now?'
'Ye heathenish dog, nae yet for you.'

4 He's taen her in his arms twa,
Laid her between him an the wa,
An ere he let her free again,
Her maidenhead frae her he's taen.
'O bonny may, winna ye greet now?'
'Ye heathenish dog, nae yet for you.'

5 'I killd your father in his bed,
And your gay mother by his side,
And your seven brothers, ane by ane,
And they were seven pretty men.
O bonny may, winna ye greet now?'
'Ye heathenish dog, nae yet for you.'

6 'I'll put you in a vault o stone,
Where five an thirty locks hing on;

Naebody there then shall you see,
For I will keep the keys wi me.
O bonny may, winna ye greet now ?
'Ye heathenish dog, nae yet for you.'

7 He's put her in a vault o stone,
Where five an thirty locks hing on;
Naebody there coud eer her see,
Prince Heathen kept the keys him wi.
But ae she cried, What shall I do !
The heathenish dog has gart me rue.

8 Prince Heathen from the mountains
came,
Attended by his armed men,
And he's gane to the bonny may,
And to the prison where she lay:
'O bonny may, what do you now ?'
'Ye heathenish dog, dying for you.'

9 'I'll take you out upon the green,
Where women ye shall neer see ane,
But only me and my young men,
Till ye bring daughter hame or son.
O bonny may, what do you now ?'
'Ye heathenish dog, dying for you.'

10 He's taen her out upon the green,
Where she saw women never ane,
But only him and 's merry young men,
Till she brought hame a bonny young
son.
'O bonny may, what do you now ?'
'Ye heathenish dog, dying for you.'

11 'A drink, a drink, frae Prince Heathen's
hand,
Though it were frae yon cauld well
strong !'
'O neer a drap, Prince Heathen,' said
one,
'Till ye row up your bonny young son.'
'How can I row up my bonny young
son,
When I hae naething to row him in ?'

12 'I will lend you my horse's sheet,
That will row him baith head and feet.'
As soon 's she took it in her han,
Tears oer her cheeks down rapping ran.
'O bonny may, ye do greet now :'
'Ye heathenish dog, but nae for you.'

13 'But a' is for my bonny young son;
Your sheets are rough to row him in;

Ohon, alas, sair may I rue
That eer I saw such rogues as you !'

14 'Ye'll row my young son in the silk,
An ye will wash him wi the milk,
An lay my lady very saft,
That I may see her very aft.'
When hearts are broken, bands will bow;
Sae well 's he loved his lady now !

THE BAILIFF'S DAUGHTER OF ISLINGTON

This ballad is the counterpart of one found in other languages (and represented in English by Percy's cento 'The Friar of Orders Gray,' Reliques, i, 225, 1765), in which a man tells a woman that the object of her affection, lover, or more commonly husband, is dead. It is found in Italian, Spanish, Portuguese and Romaic.

'True Love Requited, or, The Bayliff's Daughter of Islington.' a. Printed for P. Brooksby, Roxburghe Ballads, ii, 457. b. Printed for J. Walter, Douce Ballads, ii, fol. 229. c. Printed for P. Brooksby, Pepys Ballads, iii, 258, No. 258. d. Printed for P. Brooksby, Roxburghe Ballads, iv, 56. e. Printed for P. Brooksby, Douce Ballads, ii, fol. 230. f. An Aldermay Churchyard copy.

1 THERE was a youth, and a well belovd youth,
And he was a esquire's son,
He loved the bayliff's daughter dear,
That lived in Islington.

2 She was coy, and she would not believe
That he did love her so,
No, nor at any time she would
Any countenance to him show.

3 But when his friends did understand
His fond and foolish mind,
They sent him up to fair London,
An apprentice for to bind.

4 And when he had been seven long years,
And his love he had not teen,
'Many a tear have I shed for her
sake
When she little thought of me.'

- 5 All the maids of Islington
Went forth to sport and play;
All but the bayliff's daughter dear;
She secretly stole away.
- 6 She put off her gown of gray,
And put on her puggish attire;
She's up to fair London gone,
Her true-love to require.
- 7 As she went along the road,
The weather being hot and dry,
There was she aware of her true-love,
At length came riding by.
- 8 She stept to him, as red as any rose,
And took him by the bridle-ring:
'I pray you, kind sir, give me one penny,
To ease my weary limb.'
- 9 'I prithee, sweetheart, canst thou tell me
Where that thou wast born?'
'At Islington, kind sir,' said she,
'Where I have had many a scorn.'
- 10 'I prithee, sweetheart, canst thou tell me
Whether thou dost know
The bailiff's daughter of Islington?'
'She's dead, sir, long ago.'
- 11 'Then will I sell my goodly steed,
My saddle and my bow;
I will into some far countrey,
Where no man doth me know.'
- 12 'O stay, O stay, thou goodly youth!
She's alive, she is not dead;
Here she standeth by thy side,
And is ready to be thy bride.'
- 13 'O farewell grief, and welcome joy,
Ten thousand times and more!
For now I have seen my own true-love,
That I thought I should have seen no
more.'

THE FAMOUS FLOWER OF SERVING-MEN

This ballad was given in Percy's Reliques, III, 87, 1765, "from a written copy, containing some improvements (perhaps modern ones)." These improvements are execrable in style and matter, so far as there is new matter, but not in so glaring contrast with the groundwork as literary emendations of traditional ballads. The Roxburghe copy is in the Ballad Society's edition, VI, 567.

a. Wood, E. 25, fol. 75, Bodleian Library.
b. Pepys, III, 142, No. 140, Magdalene College Library, Cambridge. c. A Collection of Old Ballads, I, 216, 1723.

- 1 You beautilous ladies, great and small,
I write unto you one and all,
Whereby that you may understand
What I have suffered in this land.
- 2 I was by birth a lady fair,
My father's chief and onely heir,
But when my good old father dy'd,
Then was I made a young knight's
bride.
- 3 And then my love built me a bower,
Bedeckt with many a fragrant flower;
A braver bower you never did see
Then my true-love did build for me.
- 4 But there came thieves late in the night,
They rob'd my bower, and slew my
knight,
And after that my knight was slain,
I could no longer there remain.
- 5 My servants all from me did flye,
In the midst of my extremity,
And left me by my self alone,
With a heart more cold then any
stone.
- 6 Yet, though my heart was full of care,
Heaven would not suffer me to despair;
Wherefore in hast I chang'd my name
From Fair Elise to Sweet William.
- 7 And therewithal I cut my hair,
And drest my self in man's attire,
My doublet, hose, and bever-hat,
And a golden band about my neck.
- 8 With a silver rapier by my side,
So like a gallant I did ride;
The thing that I delighted on,
Was for to be a serving-man.
- 9 Thus in my sumptuous man's array,
I bravely rode along the way;

- And at the last it chanced so
That I unto the king's court did go.
- 10 Then to the king I bowed full low,
My love and duty for to show,
And so much favour I did crave
That I a serving-man's place might have.
- 11 'Stand up, brave youth,' the king replyd,
'Thy service shall not be denyd;
But tell me first what thou canst do;
Thou shalt be fitted thereunto.
- 12 'Wilt thou be usher of my hall,
To wait upon my nobles all?
Or wilt thou be taster of my wine,
To wait on me when I shall dine?
- 13 'Or wilt thou be my chamberlain,
To make my bed both soft and flue?
Or wilt thou be one of my guard?
And I will give thee thy reward.'
- 14 Sweet William, with a smiling face,
Said to the king, If 't please your
 grace
To show such favour unto me,
Your chamberlain I fain would be.
- 15 The king then did the nobles call,
To ask the counsel of them all,
Who gave consent Sweet William he
The king's own chamberlain should be.
- 16 Now mark what strange things came to
 pass:
As the king one day a hunting was,
With all his lords and noble train,
Sweet William did at home remain.
- 17 Sweet William had no company then
With him at home but an old man;
And when he saw the coast was clear,
He took a lute which he had there.
- 18 Upon the lute Sweet William plaid,
And to the same he sung and said,
With a pleasant and most noble voice,
Which made the old man to rejoyce:
- 19 'My father was as brave a lord
As ever Europe did afford;
My mother was a lady bright,
My husband was a valiant knight.
- 20 'And I my self a lady gay,
Bedeckt with gorgeous rich array;
The bravest lady in the land
Had not more pleasures to command.
- 21 'I had my musick every day,
Harmonious lessons for to play;
I had my virgins fair and free,
Continually to wait on me.
- 22 'But now, alas! my husband's dead,
And all my friends are from me fled;
My former joys are past and gone,
For now I am a serving-man.'
- 23 At last the king from hunting came,
And presently upon the same
He called for the good old man,
And thus to speak the king began.
- 24 'What news, what news, old man?'
 quod he;
'What news hast thou to tell to me?'
'Brave news,' the old man he did say;
'Sweet William is a lady gay.'
- 25 'If this be true thou tellest me
I'll make thee a lord of high degree;
But if thy words do prove a lye,
Thou shalt be hanged up presently.'
- 26 But when the king the truth had found,
His joys did more and more abound;
According as the old man did say,
Sweet William was a lady gay.
- 27 Therefore the king without delay
Put on her glorious rich array,
And upon her head a crown of gold,
Which was most famous to behold.
- 28 And then, for fear of further strife,
He took Sweet William for his wife;
The like before was never seen,
A serving-man to be a queen.

WILL STEWART AND JOHN

The first stanza of A furnishes a sort of general lyrical introduction, and does not belong to the story. A fragment in Campbell's MSS. (B) is simply a confused recollection of some parts of the ballad.

A

'Will Stewart and Iohn,' Percy MS., p. 428;
Hales and Furnivall, III, 216.

- 1 ADLATTs parke is wyde and broad,
And grasse growes greene in our
countrie;
Eche man can gett the loue of his ladye,
But alas, I can gett none of mine!
- 2 Itt's by two men I sing my song,
Their names is William Stewart and
Iohn;
William he is the elder brother,
But Iohn hee is the wiser man.
- 3 But William he is in care-bed layd,
And for the loue of a ffaire ladye;
If he haue not the loue of the Erle of Mar's daughter,
In ffaith ffor loue that he must dye.
- 4 Then Iohn was sorry ffor his brother,
To see him lye and languish soe:
'What doe you mourne for, brother?'
he saies,
'I pray you tell to me your woe.
- 5 'Doe [you] mourne for gold, brother?'
he saies,
'Or doe you mourne ffor ffee?
'Or doe you mourne for a likesome
ladye,
You neuer saw her with your eye?'
- 6 'I doe not mourne for gold,' he saies,
'Nor I doe not mourne for any
ffee;
But I doe mourne for a likesome ladye,
I neere blinke on her with mine
eye.'
- 7 'But when haruest is gotten, my deere brother —
All this is true that I tell thee —
Gentlemen, they loue hunting well,
And giue wight-men their cloth and
ffee.
- 8 'Then I'le goe a wooing ffor thy sake,
In all the speed that I can gone,
And for to see this likesome ladye,
And hope to send thee good tydings
home.'
- 9 Iohn Stewart is gone a wooing for his brother,
Soe ffarr into ffaire Scotland,
And left his brother in mikle ffeare,
Vntill he heard the good tydand.
- 10 And when he came to the Erle of Mar's
his house,
Soe well he could his curtesye,
And when he came before the erle,
He kneeled low downe vpon his knee.
- 11 'O rise vp, rise vp, Iohn Stewart,
Rise vp, now, I doe bidd thee;
How doth thy ffather, Iohn Stewart,
And all the lords in his countrie?'
- 12 'And itt please you, my lord, my ffather is dead;
My brother and I cannott agree;
My brother and I am ffallen att discord,
And I am come to craue a service of
thee.'
- 13 'O welcome, welcome, Iohn Stewart,
A welcome man thou art to me;
I'le make thee chamberlaine to my
daughter,
And ffor to tend of that ladye soe
ffree.
- 14 'And if thou wilt haue a better office,
Aske, and thou shall haue itt of mee;
And where I giue other men a penny of wage,
Inffaith, Iohn, thou shalt haue three.'
- 15 And then bespake him Iohn Stewart,
And these were the words said hee:
There is no office in your court
This day that better pleaseth mee.
- 16 The Ffryday is gone, the Sunday is
come —
All this is true that I doe say —
And to the church that they be gone,
Iohn Stewart and the lady gay.
- 17 And as they did come home againe —
I-wis itt was a meeten mile —
Iohn Stewart and the lady gay,
They thought itt but a [little] while.
- 18 'I am a messenger, ladye,' he saies,
'I am a messenger to thee.'

- ‘ O speake ffor thy selfe, Iohn Stewart,
shee saies,
‘ A welcome man that thou shalt bee.’
- 19 ‘ Nay, by my ffaith,’ saies Iohn Stewart,
‘ Which euer, alas, that may not bee !
He hath a higher degree in honour,
Allas, ladye, then euer I !
- 20 ‘ He is a lord now borne by birth,
And an erle affter his ffather doth dye;
His haire is yellow, his eyes beene gray;
All this is true that I tell yee.
- 21 ‘ He is ffine in the middle, and small in the wast,
And pleasant in a woman’s eye;
And more nor this, he dyes for your loue,
Therefore, lady, show some pittye.’
- 22 ‘ If this be soe,’ then saies the lady,
‘ If this be true that thou tells mee,
By my ffaith then, Iohn Stewart,
I can loue him hartilye.
- 23 ‘ Bidd him meete me att S’ Patr[i]cke’s
Church
On Sunday after S’ Andrew’s day;
The fflower of Scotland will be there,
And then begins our summer’s play.
- 24 ‘ And bidd him bring with him a hundred
gunners,
And rawnke ryders lett them bee,
And lett them bee of the rankest ryders
That be to be ffound in that countrie.
- 25 ‘ They best and worst, and all in like,
Bidd him cloth them in one liuerye;
And ffor his men, greene is the best,
And greene now lett their liueryes bee.
- 26 ‘ And clothe himselfe in scarlett redd,
That is soe seemlye ffor to see;
Ffor scarlett is a ffaire coulour,
And pleasant allwayes in a woman’s
eye.
- 27 ‘ He must play sixteene games att ball,
Against the men of this countrie,
And if he winn the greater part,
Then I shall love him more tenderlye.’
- 28 What the lady said, Iohn Stewart writt,
And to Argyle Castle sent it hee;
- And [when] Willie Steward saw the letter,
Fforth of care-bed then lope hee.
- 29 Hee mustered together his merry men
all,
Hee mustered them soe louelilye;
Hee thought hee had had scarson halfe
a hundred,
Then had hee eleuen score and three.
- 30 He chose fforth a hundred of the best
That were to be ffound in that coun-
trye,
He cladd them all in one coulour,
And greene i-wis their liueryes bee.
- 31 He cladd himselfe in scarlett redd,
That is soe seemlye ffor to see;
Ffor scarlett is a ffaire coulour,
And seemlye in a woman’s eye.
- 32 And then towards Patricke Church he went,
With all his men in braue array,
To gett a sight, if he might,
And speake with his lady gay.
- 33 When they came to Patricke’s churche, Shee kneeled downe by her mother
trulye:
‘ O mother, if itt please you to giue me
leauue,
The Stewart’s horsse ffaine wold I
see.’
- 34 ‘ I ’le giue you leaue, my deere daughter,
And I and my maide will goe with yee.’
The lady had rather haue gone her
selfe
Then haue had her mother’s com-
panye.
- 35 When they came before Willie Steward,
Soe well hee cold his curtesye:
‘ I wold kisse your daughter, ladye,’ he
said,
‘ And if your will that soe itt bee.’
- 36 The ladye’s mother was content
To doe a straunger that ourtesye;
And when Willie had gotten a kisse,
I-wis shee might haue teemed him
three.

37 Sixteen games were plaid that day
there —
This is the truth as I doe say —
Willie Stewart and his merry men,
Thé carryed twelue of them away.

38 And when they games that they were
done,
And all they ffolkes away were gone
But the Erle of Marr and William
Stewart,
The erle wold needs haue William
home.

39 And when they came vnto the erle's howse,
They walked to a garden greene;
Ffor to conferr of their bussines,
Into the garden they be gone.

40 'I lone your daughter,' saies William
Stewart,
'But I cannott tell whether she loueth
mee:'
'Marry, God defend,' saies the Erle of Mar,
'That euer soe that itt shold bee!

41 'I had rather a gallows there was made,
And hange thee ffor my daughter's
sake;
I had rather a ffyer were made att a stake,
And burne thee ffor my daughter's
sake!

42 'To chamber, to chamber, gay ladye,'
he saies,
'In the deuill's name now I bidd
thee!
And thou gett thee not to the chamber
soone,
I'le beate thee before the Stewart's
eye.'

43 And then bespake William Stewart,
These were the words said hee:
'If thou beate thy daughter for my
sake,
Thou'st beate a hundred men and
mee.'

44 Then bespake Iohn Stewart —
Lord! an angry man was hee —

'O churle, if thou wouldest not haue macht with my brother,
Thou might haue answerd him cur-
teouslye.'

45 'O hold thy peace, Iohn Stewart,
And chamber thy words now, I bidd
thee;
If thou chamber not thy words soone,
Thou'st loose a good service; soe shalt thou doe me.'

46 'Marry! hang them that cares,' saies
Iohn Stewart,
'Either ffor thy service or ffor thee;
Services can I haue enoughe,
But brethren wee must euer bee.'

47 William Stewart and his brother Iohn,
To Argyle Castle gon they bee;
And when Willye came to Argyle Castle,
Into care-bedd then lope hee.

48 A parlaiment att Edenborrow was made,
The king and his nobles all mett
there;
Thé sent ffor William Stewart and Iohn,
To come amongst the other peeres.

49 Their clothing was of scarlett redd,
That was soe seemelye ffor to see;
Blacke hatts, white ffeathers plewed
with gold,
And sett all on their heads trulye.

50 Their stockings were of twisted silke,
With garters ffringed about with
gold;
Their shoes were of the cordevine,
And all was comelye to behold.

51 And when they came to Edenborrowe,
They called ffor Iohn Stewart and
Willie:
'I answer in a lord's roome,' saies Will
Stewart,
'But an erle I hope to bee.'

52 'Come downe, come downe,' saies the Lord of Marr,
'I knew not what was thy degree:'
'O churle, if I might not haue macht
with thy daughter,
Itt had not beene long of my degree.'

53 'My ffather, hee is the king his brother,
And then the king is vnckle to me;
O churle, if I might not haue macht
with thy daughter,
Itt had not beene long of my degree.'

54 'O hold your peace,' then sayd the king,
'Cozen William, I doe bidd thee;
Infaith, cozen William, he loues you the worsse
Because you are a-kinn to mee.

55 'I 'le make thee an erle with a siluer
wande,
And adde more honors still to thee;
Thy brother Ihon shall be a lord,
Of the best att home in his countrie.

56 'Thy brother Kester shalbe a knight,
Lands and liuings I will him giue,
And still hee shall liue in court with mee,
And I 'le maintaine him whilest he doth liue.'

57 And when the parlaiment was done,
And all the ffolkes away were gone,
Willye Stewart and Iohn his brother,
To Argyle Castle they be gone.

58 But when they came to Argyle Castle,
That was soe ffarr in that countrie,
He thought soe much then of his loue
That into care-bedd then lope hee.

59 Iohn Stewart did see his brother soe ill,
Lord, in his heart that hee was woe!
'I will goe wooing for thy sake
Againe yonder gay ladye to.

60 'I 'le cloth my selfe in strange array,
In a beggar's habbitt I will goe,
That when I come before the Erle of
Marr
My clothing strange he shall not
knowe.'

61 Iohn hee gott on a clouted cloake,
Soe meete and low then by his knee,
With four garters vpon one legg,
Two aboue, and towe below trulye.

62 'But if thou be a beggar, brother,
Thou art a beggar that is vnknowne;
Ffor thou art one of the stoutest beggars
That euer I saw since I was borne.

63 'Heere, geeue the lady this gay gold ringe,
A token to her that well is knowne;
And if shee but aduise itt well,
Shee 'le know some time itt was her owne.'

64 'Stay, by my ffaith, I goe not yett,' Iohn Stewart he can repleye;
'I 'le haue my bottle ffull of beere,
The best that is in thy butterye.

65 'I 'le haue my sachell ffilld full of meate,
I am sure, brother, [it] will doe noe
harne;
Ffor, before I come to the Erle of Marr's
his house,
My lipps, I am sure, they wilbe warne.'

66 And when he came to the Erle of Marr's
house,
By chance itt was of the dole-day;
But Iohn cold ffind no place to stand,
Vntill he came to the ladye gaye.

67 But many a beggar he threw downe,
And made them all with weeping
say,
He is the devill, hee is no beggar,
That is come fforth of some strange
countrie.

68 And now the dole that itt is delte,
And all the beggars be gon away,
Sauing Iohn Stewart, that seemed a beggar,
And the ladye that was soe gay.

69 'Lady,' sais Iohn, 'I am no beggar,
As by my clothes you may thinke
that I bee;
I am your servant, Iohn Stewart,
And I am sent a messenger to thee.'

70 'But if thou be Iohn Stewart,
As I doe thinke that thou bee,
Avayle thy capp, avayle thy hoode,
And I will stand and speake to thee.

71 'How doth thy brother, Iohn Stewart,
And all the lords in his countrie?'
'O ffye vpon thee, wicked woman!
My brother he doth the worsse ffor
thee.'

72 With that the teares stood in her eyes;
O lord, shee wept soe tenderlye !
Sais, Ligg the blame vnto my ffather;
I pray you, Iohn Stewart, lay itt not to mee.

73 Comend me to my owne true-loue,
That liues soe farr in the North
countrie,
And bidd him meete me att Martings-
dale,
Ffullye w[i]thin these dayes three.

74 Hang them, sais the lady gay,
That letts their ffather witting bee !
I 'le proue a ladye ffull of loue,
And be there by the sunn be a quarter highe.

75 And bidd him bring with him a hundred
gunners,
And ranke riders lett them bee;
Lett them be of the rankest ryders
That be to be ffound in that countrie.

76 The best and worse, and all in like,
Bidd him clothe them in one liuerye;
And for his men, greene is the best,
And greene now lett their lyueryes
bee.

77 And cloth himselfe in scarlett redd,
That is soe seemelye for to see;
For scarlett is a ffair coulour,
And pleasant in a woman's eye.

78 What they lady sayd, Iohn Stewart
writt,
To Argyle Castle sent itt hee;
His bagg and his dish and showing
horne,
Unto three beggars he gaue them all.
three.

79 And when Willie Stewart saw the let-
ter,
Fforth of care-bed then lope hee;
He thought himselfe as lustye and sound
As any man in that countrie.

80 He mustered together his merrymen all,
He mustered them soe louinglye;
He thought he had had scarce halfe a hundred,
Then had hee eleuen score and three.

81 He chose fforth a hundred of the best
That were to be found in that com-
panye,
And presentlye they tooke their horsse,
And to Martingsdale posted hee.

82 And when he came to Martingsdale,
He found his loue staying there trulye,
For shee was a lady true of loue,
And was there by [the] sunn was a qwarter highe.

83 Shee kisst William Stewart and his brother Iohn,
Soe did shee part of his merry men:
'If the churle, thy ffather, hee were
here,
He shold not haue thee backe againe.'

84 They sent ffor preist, they sent ffor
clarke,
And they were marryed there with
speede;
William tooke the lady home with him,
And they liued together long time indeed.

85 And in twelue monthe soe they wrought,
The lady shee was great with childe;
The sent Iohn Stewart to the Erle off
Marre,
To come and christen the barne soe milde.

86 'And if this be soe,' sayes the Erle of Marre,
'Iohn Stewart, as thou tells mee,
I hope in God you haue marryed my
daughter,
And put her bodye to honestye.'

87 'Nay, by my ffaith,' then saies Iohn
Stewart,
'Ffor euer alas that shall not bee;
Ffor now wee haue put her body to
shame,
Thou 'st haue her againe hame to
thee.'

88 'I had rather make thee Erle of Marre,
And marry my daughter vnto thee;
For by my ffaith,' saies the Erle of
Marr,
'Her marryage is marrd in our
countrie.'

89 'If this be soe,' then sais Iohn Stewart,
 'A marryage soone that thou shalt
 see;
 Ffor my brother William, my ffather's
 heyre,
 Shall marry thy daughter before thine
 eye.'

90 They sent ffor preist, the sent ffor
 clarke,
 And marryed there they were with
 speed;
 And William Stewart is Erle of Marr,
 And his ffather-in-law dwells with him indeed.

CHRISTOPHER WHITE

This ballad is found in the Percy MS. only.

'Christopher White,' Percy MS., p. 513;
 Hales and Furnivall, III, 494.

1 As I walked fforth one morninge,
 By one place that pleased mee,
 Wherin I heard a wandering wight,
 Sais, Christopher White is good com-
 panye.

2 I drew me neere, and very neere,
 Till I was as neere as neere cold bee;
 Loth I was her counsell to discreene,
 Because I wanted companye.

3 'Say on, say on, thou well faire mayd,
 Why makest thou moane soe heau-
 lye?'
 Sais, All is ffor one wandering wight,
 Is banished fforth of his owne coun-
 trye.

4 'I am the burgesse of Edenburrow,
 Soe am I more of townes three;
 I haue money and gold great store,
 Come, sweet wench, and ligg thy loue
 on mee.'

5 The merchant pulled forth a bagg of
 gold
 Which had hundreds two or three;
 Sais, Enery day throughout the weeke
 I 'le comt as much downe on thy knee.

6 'O merchant, take thy gold againe,
 A good liuing 't will purchase thee;
 If I be ffalse to Christopher White,
 Merchant, I cannott be true to thee.'

7 Sais, I haue halls, soe haue I bowers,
 Sais, I haue shipps sayling on the sea;
 I ame the burgesse of Edenburrowe;
 Come, sweete wench, ligge thy loue
 on mee.

8 Come on, come, thou well faire mayde,
 Of our matters lett vs goe throughe,
 For to-morrowe I 'le marry thee,
 And thy dwelling shalbe in Edenbur-
 rough.

9 The lady shee tooke this gold in her
 hand,
 The teares the fell ffast ffrom her eye;
 Sais, Siluer and gold makes my hart to turne,
 And makes me leaue good companye.

10 They had not beene marryed
 Not ouer monthes two or three,
 But tydings came to Edenburrowe
 That all the merchants must to the sea.

11 Then as this lady sate in a deske,
 Shee made a loue-letter ffull round;
 Shee mad a lettre to Christopher White,
 And in itt shee put a hundred pound.

12 Shee lin'd the letter with gold soe red,
 And mony good store in itt was found;
 Shee sent itt to Christopher White,
 That was soe ffar in the Scotts ground.

13 Shee bade him then ffrankely spend,
 And looke that hee shold merry bee,
 And bid him come to Edenburrowe,
 Now all the merchants be to the sea.

14 But Christopher came to leue London,
 And there he kneeled lowly downe,
 And there hee begd his pardon then,
 Of our noble king that ware the
 crowne.

15 But when he came to his true-loue's
 house,
 Which was made both of lime and
 stone,

Shee tooke him by the lily-white hand,
Sais, True-loue, you are welcome
home!

16 Welcome, my honey, welcome, my ioy,
Welcome, my true-loue, home to mee!
Ffor thou art hee that will lengthen my
dayes,
And I know thou art good companye.

17 Christopher, I am a merchant's wiffe; Christopher, the more shall be your gaine;
Siluer and gold you shall hane enough,
Of the merchant's gold that is in Spaine.

18 'But if you be a merchant's wiffe,
Something to much you are to blame;
I will thee reade a loue-letter
Shall sture thy stumpes, thou noble dame.'

19 'Althoug I be a marchant's wiffe, shall mine
 and g .
Into England I 'le goe with the.'

20 They packet vp both siluer and plate,
Siluer and gold soe great plentye,
And they be gon into Litle England,
And the marchant must them neuer
see.

21 And when the merchants they came
home,
Their wiues to eche other can say,
Heere hath beenegood Christopher White,
And he hath tane thy wiffe away.

22 They haue packett vp spoone and plate,
Siluer and gold great plenty,
And they be gon into Litle England,
And them againe thow must neuer see.

23 'I care nott ffor my siluer and gold,
Nor for my plate soe great plentye,
But I mourne for that like-some ladye
That Christopher White hath tane ffrom
mee.

24 'But one thing I must needs confesse,
This lady shee did say to me,
If shee were ffalse to Christopher White,
Shee cold neuer be true to mee.

25 'All young men a warning take,
A warning, looke, you take by mee;
Looke that you loue your old loues best,
For infaith they are best companye.'

TOM POTTS

Besides the copy in the Percy MS. there are two broadside versions (B, C). All three are of the seventeenth century, and the ballad need not be put much beyond that date. Modernized editions, differing much, were issued in the century following, perhaps earlier, some of which have a Second Part, narrating the happy married life of Tom Potts, Lord Arundel, and Fair Rosamond. Unequal matches are common enough in ballads and romances, and very naturally, since they are an easy expedient for exciting interest, at least with those who belong to the humbler party. We have other ballad-examples of disparagement on the female side in 'Richie Story' (No. 232) and 'The Kitchie-Boy' (No. 252).

A

'Thomas of Potte,' Percy MS., p. 409; Hales and Furnivall, III, 135.

1 ALL you lords of Scotland ffair,
And ladyes alsoe, bright of blee,
There is a ladye amongst them all,
Of her report you shall heare of me.

2 Of her bewtye shee is soe bright,
And of her colour soe bright of blee;
Shee is daughter to the Lord Arrndell,
His heyre apparrant ffor to bee.

3 'I 'le see that bryde,' Lord Phenix sayes,
'That is a ladye of hie degree,
And iff I like her countenance well,
The heyre of all my land shee'st bee.'

4 To that ladye ffayre Lord Phenix came,
And to that like-some dame said hee,
Now God thee sane, my ladye ffair,
The heyre of all my land tho'st bee.

5 'Leane of your snite,' the ladye sayd;
'You are a lord of honor ffree;
You may gett ladyes enowe att home,
And I haue a loue in mine owne
countrie.

- 6 'I haue a louer true of mine owne,
A seruinge-man of a small degree;
Thomas a Pott, itt is his name,
He is the ffirst loue that euer I had,
and the last that hee shalbee.'
- 7 'Giue Thomas a Pott then be his name,
I wott I ken him soe readilye;
I can spend forty pounds by weeke,
And hee cannott spend pounds three.'
- 8 'God giue you good of your gold,' said
the ladye,
'And alsoe, sir, of your ffee !
Hee was the ffirst loue that euer I had,
And the last, sir, shall hee bee.'
- 9 With that Lord Phenix was sore amoued;
Vnto her ffather then went hee;
Hee told her ffather how itt was proued,
How that his daughter's mind was
sett.
- 10 'Thou art my daughter,' the Erle of Arrndell said,
'The heyre of all my land to bee;
Thou 'st be bryde to the Lord Phenix, Daughter, giue thou 'le be heyre to
mee.'
- 11 For lacke of her loue this ladye must lose,
Her foolish wooing lay all aside;
The day is appoynted, and ffreinds are agreede;
Shee is fforcte to be the Lord Phenix
bryde.
- 12 With that the lady began to muse —
A greeued woman, God wott, was
shee —
How shee might Lord Phenix beguile,
And scape vnmarried ffrom him that
day.
- 13 Shee called to her her litle ffoote-page,
To Iacke her boy, soe tenderlye;
Sayes, Come thou hither, thou litle ffoote-
page,
For indeed I dare trust none but thee.
- 14 To Strawberry Castle, boy, thou must
goe,
To Thomas Pott there as hee can bee,
And giue him here this letter ffaire,
And on Guilford Greene bidd him
meete me.
- 15 Looke thou marke his contenance well,
And his colour tell to mee;
And hye thee ffast, and come againe,
And forty shillings I will giue thee.
- 16 For if he blush in his fface,
Then in his hart hee 'se sorry bee;
Then lett my ffather say what hee will,
For false to Potts I 'le neuer bee.
- 17 And giue hee smile then with his mouth,
Then in his heart hee 'le merry be;
Then may hee gett him a loue whereeuer he can,
For small of his companye my part shalbe.
- 18 Then one while that the boy hee went,
Another while, God wott, rann hee,
And when hee came to Strawberry Castle,
There Thomas Potts hee see.
- 19 Then he gaue him this letter ffaire,
And when he began then for to reade,
They boy had told him by word of mouth
His loue must be the Lord Phenix
bryde.
- 20 With that, Thomas a Pott began to blushe,
The teares trickeled in his eye:
'Indeed this letter I cannot reede,
Nor neuer a word to see or spye.
- 21 'I pray thee, boy, to me thou 'le be trew,
And heer's fflue marke I will giue thee;
And all these words thou must peruse,
And tell thy lady this ffrom mee.
- 22 'Tell her by ffaith and troth shee is mine owne,
By some part of promise, and soe itt 's
be found;
Lord Phenix shall neuer marry her, by night nor day,
Without he can winn her with his
hand.
- 23 'On Gilford Greene I will her meete,
And bidd that ladye ffor mee pray;

- For there I 'le loose my liffe soe sweete,
Or else the wedding I will stay.'
- 24 Then backe againe the boy he went,
As ffast againe as he cold hye;
The ladye mett him fve mile on the
way:
'Why hast thou stayd soe long?'
saies shee.
- 25 'Boy,' said the ladye, 'thou art but
younge;
To please my mind thou 'le mocke
and scorne;
I will not beleene thee on word of mouth,
Vnlesse on this booke thou wilt be sworne.'
- 26 'Marry, by this booke,' the boy can say,
'As Christ himselfe be true to mee,
Thomas Pott cold not his letter reade
For teares trickling in his eye.'
- 27 'If this be true,' the ladye sayd,
'Thou bonny boy, thou tells to mee,
Forty shillings I did thee promise,
But heere 's ten pounds I 'le giue itt
thee.
- 28 'All my maids,' the lady sayd,
'That this day doe waite on mee,
Wee will ffall downe vpon our knees,
For Thomas Pott now pray will wee.
- 29 'If his ffortune be now ffor to winn —
Wee will pray to Christ in Triny-tye —
I 'le make him the fflower of all his kinn,
Ffor they Lord of Arrundale he shal-
be.'
- 30 Now lett vs leane talking of this ladye
faire,
In her prayer good where shee can
bee;
And I 'le tell you hou Thomas Pott
For ayd to his lord and master came
hee.
- 31 And when hee came Lord Iockye before,
He kneeled him low downe on his
knee;
Saies, Thou art welcome, Thomas Pott,
Thou art allwayes full of thy curtesye.
- 32 Has thou slaine any of thy ffellowes,
Or hast thou wrought me some villanye?
'Sir, none of my ffellowes I haue slaine,
Nor I haue wrought you noe villanye.
- 33 'But I haue a loue in Scottland ffaire,
I doubt I must lose her through pou-
ertye;
If you will not beleene me by word of
mouth,
Behold the letter shee writt vnto mee.'
- 34 When Lord Iockye looked the letter
vpon,
The tender words in itt cold bee,
'Thomas Pott, take thou no care,
Thou 'st neuer loose her throughe
pouertye.
- 35 'Thou shalt have forty pounds a weeke,
In gold and siluer thou shalt rowe,
And Harbye towne I will thee allowe
As long as thou dost meane to wooe.
- 36 'Thou shalt haue fortye of thy ffellowes
ffaire,
And forty horsse to goe with thee,
And forty speares of the best I haue,
And I my-selfe in thy companye.'
- 37 'I thanke you, master,' sayd Thomas
Pott,
'Neither man nor boy shall goe with
mee;
I wold not ffor a thousand pounds
Take one man in my companye.'
- 38 'Why then, God be with thee, Thomas
Pott!
Thou art well knowen and proued for a man;
Looke thou shedd no guiltlesse bloode,
Nor neuer confound no gentlman.
- 39 'But looke thou take with him some truce,
Apoint a place of lybertye;
Lett him provide as well as hee cann,
And as well provided thou shalt bee.'
- 40 And when Thomas Pott came to Gilford Greene,
And walked there a litle beside,

Then was hee ware of the Lord Phenix,
And with him Ladye Rozamuud his
bryde.

41 Away by the bryde rode Thomas of Pott,
But noe word to her that he did say;
But when he came Lord Phenix before,
He gaue him the right time of the
day.

42 'O thou art welcome, Thomas a Potts,
Thou serving-man, welcome to mee!
How ffares they lord and master att
home,
And all the ladyes in thy cuntrye?'

43 'Sir, my lord and my master is in verry good health,
I wott I ken itt soe readylye;
I pray you, will you ryde to one outsyde,
A word or towe to talke with mee.

44 'You are a nobleman,' sayd Thomas a
Potts,
'Yee are a borne lord in Scotland
ffree;
You may gett ladyes enowe att home;
You shall neuer take my loue ffrom
mee.'

45 'Away, away, thou Thomas a Potts!
Thou serving-man, stand thou a-side!
I wott there's not a serving-man this
day,
I know, can hinder mee of my bryde.'

46 'If I be but a serving-man,' sayd
Thomas,
'And you are a lord of honor ffree,
A speare or two I'le with you runn,
Before I'le loose her thus cowardlye.'

47 'On Gilford Greene,' Lord Phenix saies,
'I'le thee meete;
Neither man nor boy shall come hither
with mee;
'And as I am a man,' said Thomas a
Pott,
'I'le haue as ffew in my companye.'

48 With that the wedding-day was stayd,
The bryde went vnmarried home
again;e;
Then to her maydens ffast shee longhe,
And in her hart shee was ffull ffaine.

49 'But all my mayds,' they ladye sayd,
'That this day doe waite on mee,
Wee will ffall downe againe vpon our knees,
For Thomas a Potts now pray will wee.

50 'If his ffortune be ffor to winn —
Wee 'le pray to Christ in Trynitye —
I'le make him the fflower of all his kinn,
For the Lord of Arrundale he shalbe.'

51 Now let vs leaue talking of this lady
fayre,
In her prayers good where shee can
bee;
I'le tell you the troth how Thomas a Potts
For aide to his lord againe came hee.

52 And when he came to Strawberry Castle,
To try ffor his ladye he had but one
weeke;
Alacke, ffor sorrow hee cannott ffor-
beare,
For four dayes then he ffell sicke.

53 With that his lord and master to him
came,
Sayes, I pray thee, Thomas, tell mee
without all doubt,
Whether hast thou gotten the bonny
ladye,
Or thou man gange the ladye with-oute.

54 'Marry, master, yett that matter is vn-
tryde;
Within two dayes tryed itt must bee;
He is a lord, and I am but a serving-
man,
I doubt I must loose her through
pouertye.'
'Why, Thomas a Pott, take thou no care:
Thou 'st neuer loose her through pou-
ertye.

55 'Thou shalt haue halfe my land a yeere,
And that will raise thee many a pound:
Before thou shalt loose thy bonny ladye,
Thou shalt drop angells with him to the ground.

56 'And thou shalt haue forty of thy ffellowes ffaire,
And forty horssees to goe with thee,

And forty speres of the best I haue,
And I my-selfe in thy companye.'

57 'I thanke you, master,' sayd Thomas a
Potts,
'But of one thinge, sir, I wold be ffaine;
If I shold loose my bonny ladye,
How shall I increase your goods
again?''

58 'Why, if thou winn thy lady ffair,
Thou maye well fforth for to pay mee;
If thou loose thy lady, thou hast losse
enoughe;
Not one penny I will aske thee.'

59 'Master, you haue thirty horssees in one hold,
You keepe them ranke and royallye;
There's an old horsse — for him you doe not care —
This day wold sett my lady ffree.

60 'That is a white, with a cutt tayle,
Ffull sixteen yeeres of age is hee;
Giffe you wold lend me that old horsse,
Then I shold gett her easilye.'

61 'Thou takes a ffoolish part,' the Lord
Iockye sayd,
'And a ffoolish part thou takes on
thee;
Thou shalt haue a better then euer he
was,
That forty pounds cost more nor hee.'

62 'O master, those horssees beene wild and wicked,
And litle they can skill of the old
traine;
Giffe I be out of my saddle cast,
They beene soe wild they 'le neuer be tane againe.

63 'Lett me haue age, sober and wise;
Itt is a part of wisdom, you know itt
plaine;
If I be out of my sadle cast,
Hee 'le either stand still or turne
againe.'

64 'Thou shalt haue that horsse with all my hart,
And my cote-plate of siluer ffree,

And a hundred men att thy backe,
For to fight if neede shalbee.'

65 'I thanke you, master,' said Thomas a
Potts,
'Neither man nor boy shall goe with
mee;
As you are a lord off honor borne,
Let none of my ffellowes know this of
mee.

66 'Ffor if they wott of my goinge,
I wott behind me they will not bee;
Without you keepe them vnder a locke,
Vppon that greene I shall them see.'

67 And when Thomas came to Gilford
Greene,
And walked there some houres three,
Then was he ware of the Lord Phenix,
And four men in his companye.

68 'You haue broken your vow,' sayd
Thomas a Pott,
'Your vowe that you made vnto mee;
You said you wold come your selfe alone,
And you haue brought more then two or three.'

69 'These are my waiting-men,' Lord Phenix sayd,
'That euery day doe waite on mee;
Giffe any of these shold att vs stirr,
My speare shold runn throwe his
bodye.'

70 'I 'le runn noe race,' said Thomas Potts,
'Till that this othe heere made may
bee:
If the one of vs be slaine,
The other fforgiuen that hee may bee.'

71 'I 'le make a vow,' Lord Phenix sayes,
'My men shall beare wittnesse with
thee,
Giffe thou slay mee att this time,
Neuer the worss beloued in Scotland
thou shalt bee.'

72 Then they turned their horssees round
about,
To run the race more egarlye;
Lord Phenix he was stiffe and stout,
He has runn Thomas quite thorow
the thye.

- 73 And beere Thomas out of his saddle
ffaire;
Vpon the ground there did hee lye;
He saies, For my liffe I doe not care,
But ffor the loue of my ladye.
- 74 But shall I lose my ladye ffaire?
I thought shee shold haue beene my
wiffe;
I pray thee, Lord Phenix, ryde not away,
For with thee I will loose my liffe.
- 75 Tho Thomas a Potts was a seruing-man,
He was alsoe a phisityan good;
He clapt his hand vpon his wound,
With some kind of words he stauncht
the blood.
- 76 Then into his sadle againe hee leepe;
The blood in his body began to warme;
He mist Lord Phenix bodye there,
But he run him quite throw the brawne of the arme.
- 77 And he bore him quite out of his saddle
ffaire;
Vpon the ground there did he lye;
He said, I pray thee, Lord Phenix, rise and ffight,
Or else yeeld this ladye sweete to mee.
- 78 'To ffight with thee,' quoth Phenix, 'I cannott stand,
Nor ffor to ffight, I cannott, sure;
Thou hast run me through the brawne of the arme;
Noe longer of thy spere I cannott endure.
- 79 'Thou 'st haue that ladye with all my
hart,
Sith itt was like neuer better to prone.
Nor neuer a noble-man this day,
That will seeke to take a pore man's
loue.'
- 80 'Why then, be of good cheere,' saies
Thomas Pott,
'Indeed your bucher I 'le neuer bee,
For I 'le come and stanche your bloode,
Giff any thanks you 'le giue to mee.'
- 81 As he was stanching the Phenix blood,
These words Thomas a Pott cann to him proue:

- 'I 'le neuer take a ladye of you thus,
But here I 'le giue you another choice.
- 82 'Heere is a lane of two miles longe;
Att either end sett wee will bee;
The ladye shall sitt vs betweene,
And soe will wee sett this ladye ffree.'
- 83 'If thou 'le doe soe,' Lord Phenix sayes,
'Thomas a Pott, as thou dost tell mee,
Whether I gett her or goe without her,
Heere 's forty pounds I 'le giue itt
thee.'
- 84 And when the ladye there can stand,
A woman's mind that day to prone,
'Now, by my ffaith,' said this ladye
ffaire,
'This day Thomas a Pott shall haue his owne loue.'
- 85 Toward Thomas a Pott the lady shee
went,
To leape behind him hastilye;
'Nay, abyde a while,' sayd Lord Phenix,
'Ffor better yett proued thou shalt bee.
- 86 'Thou shalt stay heere with all thy maids —
In number with thee thou hast but
three —
Thomas a Pott and I 'le goe beyond yonder wall,
There the one of vs shall dye.'
- 87 And when they came beyond the wall,
The one wold not the other nye;
Lord Phenix he had giuen his word
With Thomas a Pott neuer to ffight.
- 88 'Gine me a choice,' Lord Phenix sayes,
'Thomas a Pott, I doe pray thee;
Lett mee goe to yonder ladye ffaire,
To see whether shee be true to thee.'
- 89 And when hee came that ladye too,
Vnto that likesome dame sayd hee,
Now God thee saue, thou ladye ffaire,
The heyre of all my land thou 'st bee.
- 90 Ffor this Thomas a Potts I hane slaine;
He hath more then deadlye wounds
two or three;
Thou art mine owne ladye, he sayd,
And marryed together wee will bee.

91 The ladye said, If Thomas a Potts this day thou haue slaine,
Thou hast slaine a better man than
euer was thee;
And I 'le sell all the state of my lande
But thou 'st be hanged on a gallow-
tree.

92 With that they lady shee ffell in a soone;
A greened woman, I wott, was shee;
Lord Phenix hee was readye there,
Tooke her in his armes most hastilye.

93 'O Lord, sweete, and stand on thy ffete,
This day Thomas a Pott aliue can bee;
I 'le send ffor thy father, the Lord of Arrundale,
And marryed together I will you see:
Giffe hee will not maintaine you well,
Both gold and land you shall haue
from me.'

94 'I 'le see that wedding,' my Lord of Arrundale said,
'Of my daughter's loue that is soe
ffaire;
And sith itt will no better be,
Of all my land Thomas a Pott shall be my heyre.'

95 'Now all my maids,' the ladye said,
'And ladyes of England, faire and
ffree,
Looke you neuer change your old loue for no new,
Nor neuer change for no pouertye.

96 'Ffor I had a louer true of mine owne,
A seruing-man of a small degree;
Ffrom Thomas a Pott I 'le turne his
name,
And the Lord of Arrundale hee shall
bee.'

THE KNIGHT AND SHEP- HERD'S DAUGHTER

The only English version of this ballad is a broadside in the Roxburghe Collection. The fifteenth stanza is quoted in Fletcher's comedy of 'The Pilgrim,' 1621. Kinloch is fully justified in claiming for the Scottish ballad a decided superiority. The humorous artifices which the lady practises to maintain the character of a beggar's brat are, as he says, kept up with great spirit and fancy.

Parts of this ballad inevitably suggest a parallel with the tales belonging to the class of the 'Marriage of Sir Gawain' (No. 31), to which Chaucer's Wife of Bath's Tale belongs. The Danish ballad of 'Ebbe Galt' (Grundtvig-Olrik, No. 314) has also several features in common with 'The Knight and Shepherd's Daughter.' For a discussion of the whole matter, see G. H. Maynadier, The Wife of Bath's Tale, 1901.

'The Beautifull Shepherdesse of Arcadia.' a. Roxburghe Ballads, III, 160, 161. b. The same, II, 30, 31.

1 THERE was a shepherd's daughter
Came triping on the way,
And there she met a courteous knight,
Which caused her to stay.
Sing trang dil do lee

2 'Good morow to you, beautious maid,'
These words pronounced he;
'O I shall dye this day,' he said,
'If I have not my will of thee.'

3 'The Lord forbid,' the maid reply'd,
'That such a thing should be,
That ever such a courteous yong knight
Should dye for love of me.'

4 He took her by the middle so small,
And laid her down on the plain,
And after he had had his will,
He took her up again.

5 'Now you have had your wil, good sir,
And put my body thus to shame,
Even as you are a courteous knight,
Tel me what is your name.'

6 'Some men do call me Jack, sweet
heart,
And some do call me John,
But when I come to the king's [fair]
court,
They call me Sweet William.'

7 He set his foot in the stirrop,
And away then did he ride;
She tuckt her kirtle about her middle,
And run close by his side.

- 8 But when she came to the broad water,
She set her brest and swom,
And when she was got out again,
She took her heels and run.
- 9 He never was the courteous knight
To say, Fair maid, will you ride?
Nor she never was so loving a maid
To say, Sir Knight, abide.
- 10 But when she came to the king's fair
court,
She knocked at the ring;
So ready was the king himself
To let this fair maid in.
- 11 'O Christ you save, my gracious leige,
Your body Christ save and see!
You have got a knight within your court
This day hath robbed me.'
- 12 'What hath he robbed thee of, fair
maid?
Of purple or of pall?
Or hath he took thy gay gold ring,
From off thy finger small?'
- 13 'He hath not robbed me, my liege,
Of purple nor of pall;
But he hath got my maidenhead,
Which grieves me worst of all.'
- 14 'Now if he be a batchelor,
His body I 'le give to thee;
But if he be a married man,
High hanged shall he be.'
- 15 He called down his merry men all,
By one, by two, and by three;
Sweet William was us'd to be the first,
But now the last comes hee.
- 16 He brought her down full forty pound,
Ty'd up with[in] a glove:
'Fair maid, I give the same to the,
And seek another love.'
- 17 'O I 'le have none of your gold,' she
said,
'Nor I 'le have none of your fee;
But I must have your fair body
The king hath given me.'
- 18 Sweet William ran and fetcht her then
Five hundred pound in gold,
Saying, Fair maid, take this unto thee;
Thy fault will never be told.
- 19 'T is not your gold that shall me tempt,'
These words then answered she,
'But I must have your own body;
So the king hath granted me.'
- 20 'Would I had drank the fair water
When I did drink the wine,
That ever any shepherd's daughter
Should be a fair lady of mine!
- 21 'Would I had drunk the puddle-water
When I did drink the ale,
That ever any shepherd's daughter
Should have told me such a tale!'
- 22 'A shepheard's daughter as I was,
You might have let me be;
I 'd never come to the king's fair court
To have craved any love of thee.'
- 23 He set her on a milk-white steed,
And himselfe upon a gray;
He hung a bugle about his neck,
And so they rode away.
- 24 But when they came unto the place
Where marriage rites were done,
She provd her self a duke's daughter,
And he but a squire's son.
- 25 'Now you have married me, sir knight,
Your pleasures may be free;
If you make me lady of one good town,
I 'le make you lord of three.'
- 26 'Accursed be the gold,' he said,
'If thou hadst not bin true,
That should have parted thee from me,
To have chang'd thee for a new.'
- 27 Their hearts being then so linked fast,
And joyning hand in hand,
He had both purse and person too,
And all at his command.

B

'Shepherd's Dochter,' Kinloch MSS., v, 255,
in the handwriting of Mr Kinloch.

- 1 THERE was a shepherd's dochter
Kept sheep upon yon hill,

- And by cam a gay braw gentleman,
And wad hae had his will.
- 2 He took her by the milk-white hand,
And laid her on the ground,
And whan he got his will o her
He lift her up again.
- 3 'O syne ye've got your will o me,
Your will o me ye've taen,
'Tis all I ask o you, kind sir,
Is to tell to me your name.'
- 4 'Sometimes they call me Jack,' he said,
'Sometimes they call me John,
But whan I am in the king's court,
My name is Wilfu Will.'
- 5 Then he loup on his milk-white steed,
And straught away he rade,
And she did kilt her petticoats,
And after him she gaed.
- 6 He never was sae kind as say,
O lassie, will ye ride?
Nor ever had she the courage to say,
O laddie, will ye bide!
- 7 Until they cam to a wan water,
Which was called Clyde,
And then he turned about his horse,
Said, Lassie, will ye ride?
- 8 'I learned it in my father's hall,
I learned it for my weel,
That whan I come to deep water,
I can swim as it were an eel.
- 9 'I learned it in my mother's bower,
I learned it for my better,
That whan I come to broad water,
I can swim like ony otter.'
- 10 He plunged his steed into the ford,
And straught way thro he rade,
And she set in her lilly feet,
And thro the water wade.
- 11 And whan she cam to the king's court,
She tirlid on the pin,
And wha sae ready's the king himsel
To let the fair maid in?
- 12 'What is your will wi me, fair maid?
What is your will wi me?'
- 'There is a man into your court
This day has robbed me.'
- 13 'O has he taen your gold,' he said,
'Or has he taen your fee?
Or has he stown your maidenhead,
The flower of your bodye?'
- 14 'He has na taen my gold, kind sir,
Nor as little has he taen my fee,
But he has taen my maidenhead,
The flower of my bodye.'
- 15 'O gif he be a married man,
High hangit shall he be,
But gif he be a bachelor,
His body I'll grant thee.'
- 16 'Sometimes they call him Jack,' she
said,
'Sometimes they call him John,
But whan he's in the king's court,
His name is Sweet William.'
- 17 'There's not a William in a' my court,
Never a one but three,
And one of them is the Queen's brother;
I wad laugh gif it war he.'
- 18 The king called on his merry men,
By thirty and by three;
Sweet Willie, wha used to be foremost
man,
Was the hindmost a' but three.
- 19 O he cam cripple, and he cam blind,
Cam twa-fald oer a tree:
'O be he cripple, or be he blind,
This very same man is he.'
- 20 'O whether will ye marry the bonny may,
Or hang on the gallows-tree?'
'O I will rather marry the bonny may,
Afore that I do die.'
- 21 But he took out a purse of gold,
Weel locked in a glove:
'O tak ye that, my bonny may,
And seek anither love.'
- 22 'O I will hae none o your gold,' she
says,
'Nor as little ony of your fee,
But I will hae your ain body,
The king has granted me.'

- 23 O he took out a purse of gold,
A purse of gold and store;
'O tak ye that, fair may,' he said,
'Frae me ye'll neer get mair.'
- 24 'O haud your tongue, young man,' she
says,
'And I pray you let me be;
For I will hae your ain body,
The king has granted me.'
- 25 He mounted her on a bonny bay horse,
Himsel on the silver grey;
He drew his bonnet out oer his een,
He whipt and rade away.
- 26 O whan they cam to yon nettle bush,
The nettles they war spread:
'O an my mither war but here,' she says,
'These nettles she wad sned.'
- 27 'O an I had drank the wan water
Whan I did drink the wine,
That eer a shepherd's dochter
Should hae been a love o mine!
- 28 'O may be I'm a shepherd's dochter,
And may be I am nane;
But you might hae ridden on your ways,
And hae let me alane.'
- 29 O whan they cam unto yon mill,
She heard the mill clap:
.
.
- 30 'Clap on, clap on, thou bonny mill,
Weel may thou, I say,
For mouny a time thou's filled my pock
Wi baith oat-meal and grey.'
- 31 'O an I had drank the wan water
Whan I did drink the wine,
That eer a shepherd's dochter
Should hae been a love o mine!'
- 32 'O may be I'm a shepherd's dochter,
And may be I am nane;
But you might hae ridden on our ways,
And hae let me alane.
- 33 'But yet I think a fitter match
Could scarcely gang thegither
Than the King of France's auld dochter
And the Queen of Scotland's brither.'

CROW AND PIE

This is not a purely popular ballad, but rather of that kind which, for convenience, may be called the minstrel-ballad. It has, however, popular features, and markedly in stanzas 13, 14, for which see No. 50, sta. 5-7; No. 52, st. 6; No. 110, A, sta. 5, 6, B, sta. 3, 4, etc.

MS. Rawlinson, C. 813, fol. 56 b, beginning of the sixteenth century. Halliwell's Nugæ Poeticæ, p. 42.

- 1 THROUGHE a forest as I can ryde,
To take my sporte yn on mornyng,
I cast my eye on euery syde,
I was ware of a bryde syngyng.
- 2 I sawe a faire mayde come rydyng;
I speke to hur of loue, I trowe;
She answered me all yn scornynge,
And sayd, The crowe shall byte yow.
- 3 'I pray yow, damesell, scorne me nott;
To wyn your loue ytt ys my wyll;
For your loue I haue dere bought,
And I wyll take good hede thertyll.'
- 4 'Nay, for God, sir, that I nyll;
I tell the, Jenken, as I trowe,
Thow shalt nott fynde me suche a gyll;
Therefore the crowe shall byte yow.'
- 5 He toke then owt a good golde ryng,
A purse of velweytt, that was soo fyne:
'Haue ye thys, my dere swetyng,
With that ye wylbe lemman myn.'
- 6 'Be Cryst, I dare nott, for my dame,
To dele with hym pat I do nott
knowe;
For soo I myght dyspyse my name;
Therefore the crow shall byte yow.'
- 7 He toke hur abowte the mydell small,
That was soo faire of hyde and hewe;
He kyssed hur cheke as whyte as whall,
And prayed hur pat she wolde vpon
hym rewe.
- 8 She scornyd hym, and callyd hym Hew;
His loue was as a paynted blowe:

'To-day me, to-morowe a newe;
Therefore the crow shall byte yow.'

9 He toke hur abowte the mydell small,
And layd hur downe vpon the grene;
Twys or thrys he served hur soo with-
all,
He wolde nott stynt yet, as I wene.

10 'But sythe ye haue i-lyen me bye,
Ye wyll wedde me now, as I trowe:'
'I wyll be aduysed, Gyll,' sayd he,
'For now the pye hathe peckyd yow.'

11 'But sythe ye haue i-leyn me by,
And brought my body vnto shame,
Some of your good ye wyll part with
me,
Or elles, be Cryst, ye be to blame.'

12 'I wylbe aduysed,' he sayde;
'pe wynde ys wast pat thow doyst
blowe;
I haue a-noder pat most be payde;
Therefore the pye hathe pecked yow.'

13 'Now sythe ye haue i-leyn me bye,
A lyttle thyng ye wyll tell;
In case that I with chylde be,
What ys your name? Wher doo ye dwell?'

14 'At Yorke, a[t] London, at Clerken-
well,
At Leycester, Cambryge, at myrye
Brystowe;
Some call me Rychard, Robart, Jacke,
and Wyll;
For now the pye hathe peckyd yow.

15 'But, all medans, be ware be rewe,
And lett no man downe yow throwe;
For and yow doo, ye wyll ytt rewe,
For then pe pye wyll pecke yow.'

16 'Farewell, corteor, ouer the medoo,
Pluke vp your helys, I yow beshrew!
Your trace, wher so euer ye ryde or
goo,
Crystes curse goo wythe yow!

17 'Thoughe a knave hathe by me leyne,
Yet am I noder dede nor slowe;
I trust to reconer my harte agayne,
And Crystes curse goo wythe yow!'

THE BAFFLED KNIGHT

Besides the version here printed there are broadside copies, and others that have been taken down from recitation. Percy inserted a version of C (a broadside copy) abridged to forty-five stanzas, in his Reliques, 1765, III, 238. A similar story occurs in many European ballads.

A

a. Ravenscroft's Deuteromelia, or, The Second Part of Musick's Melodie, or Melodious Musicke, etc., E 4, London, 1609. 'The Over Courteous Knight,' Ritson's Ancient Songs, 1790, p. 159. b. Pills to Purge Melancholy, III, 37, 1719.

1 YONDER comes a courteous knight,
Lustely raking ouer the lay;
He was wel ware of a bonny lasse,
As she came wandring ouer the way.
Then she sang downe a downe, hey
downe derry (bis)

2 'Ioue you speed, fayre lady,' he said,
'Among the leaues that be so greene;
If I were a king, and wore a crowne,
Full soone, fair lady, shouldst thou be a queen.

3 'Also Ioue saue you, faire lady,
Among the roses that be so red;
If I haue not my will of you,
Full soone, faire lady, shall I be dead.'

4 Then he lookt east, then hee lookt west,
Hee lookt north, so did he south;
He could not finde a priuy place,
For all lay in the diuel's mouth.

5 'If you will carry me, gentle sir,
A mayde vnto my father's hall,
Then you shall haue your will of me,
Vnder purple and vnder paule.'

6 He set her vp vpon a steed,
And him selfe vpon another,
And all the day he rode her by,
As though they had beene sister and brother.

7 When she came to her father's hall,
It was well walled round about;

She yode in at the wicket-gate,
And shut the foure-eard foole without.

- 8 'You had me,' quoth she, 'abroad in the field,
Among the corne, amidst the hay,
Where you might had your will of mee,
For, in good faith, sir, I neuer said nay.
- 9 'Ye had me also amid the field,
Among the rushes that were so browne,
Where you might had your will of me,
But you had not the face to lay me downe.'
- 10 He pulled out his nut-browne sword,
And wipt the rust off with his sleeue,
And said, Ioue's curse come to his heart
That any woman would beleue!
- 11 When you haue your owne true-loue
A mile or twaine out of the towne,
Spare not for her gay clothing,
But lay her body flat on the ground.

THE GREAT SILKIE OF SULE SKERRY

"Finns," as they are for the most part called, denizens of a region below the depths of the ocean, are able to ascend to the land above by donning a seal-skin, which then they are wont to lay off, and, having divested themselves of it, they "act just like men and women." If this integument be taken away from them, they cannot pass through the sea again and return to their proper abode, and they become subject to the power of man, like the swan-maidens and mer-wives of Scandinavian and German tradition: Grimm's Mythologie, i, 354 f. Female Finns, under these circumstances, have been fain to accept of human partners.

Proceedings of the Society of Antiquaries of Scotland, i, 86, 1852. Communicated by the late Captain F. W. L. Thomas, R. N.; written down by him from the dictation of a venerable lady of Snarra Voe, Shetland.

- 1 AN eartly nourris sits and sings,
And aye she sings, Ba, lily wean!

Little ken I my bairnis father,
Far less the land that he staps in.

- 2 Then ane arose at her bed-fit,
An a grunly guest I'm sure was he:
'Here am I, thy bairnis father,
Although that I be not comelie.
- 3 'I am a man, upo the lan,
An I am a silkie in the sea;
And when I'm far and far frae lan,
My dwelling is in Sule Skerrie.'
- 4 'It was na weel,' quo the maiden fair,
'It was na weel, indeed,' quo she,
'That the Great Silkie of Sule Skerrie
Suld hae come and aught a bairn to me.'
- 5 Now he has taen a purse of goud,
And he has pat it upo her knee,
Sayin, Gie to me my little young son,
An tak thee up thy nourris-fee.
- 6 An it sall come to pass on a simmer's day,
When the sin shines het on evera stane,
That I will tak my little young son,
An teach him for to swim the faem.
- 7 An thu sall marry a proud gunner,
An a proud gunner I'm sure he'll be,
An the very first schot that ere he schoots,
He'll schoot baith my young son and me.

JOHNIE COCK

The first notice in print of this precious specimen of the unspoiled traditional ballad is in Ritson's Scottish Song, 1794, i, xxxvi, note 23. Before this, 1780, a lady of Carlisle had sent a copy to Percy (A). Scott, 1802, was the first to publish the ballad, selecting "the stanzas of greatest merit" from several copies which were in his hands.

A

Percy Papers, communicated to Percy by Miss Fisher, of Carlisle, 1780, No. 5 of MS.

- 1 JOHNNY he has risen up i the morn,
Calls for water to wash his hands;
But little knew he that his bloody hounds
Were bound in iron bands. bands
Were bound in iron bands
- 2 Johnny's mother has gotten word o that,
And care-bed she has taen:
'O Johnny, for my benison,
I beg you 'l stay at hame;
For the wine so red, and the well baken
bread,
My Johnny shall want nane.
- 3 'There are seven forsters at Pickram
Side,
At Pickram where they dwell,
And for a drop of thy heart's bluid
They wad ride the fords of hell.'
- 4 Johnny he 's gotten word of that,
And he 's turnd wondrous keen;
He 's put off the red scarlett,
And he 's put on the Lincolm green.
- 5 With a sheaf of arrows by his side,
And a bent bow in his hand,
He 's mounted on a prancing steed,
And he has ridden fast oer the strand.
- 6 He 's up i Braidhouplee, and down i Bradyslee,
And under a buss o broom,
And there he found a good dun deer,
Feeding in a buss of ling.
- 7 Johnny shot, and the dun deer lap,
And she lap wondrous wide,
Until they came to the wan water,
And he stemd her of her pride.
- 8 He 'as taen out the little pen-knife,
'T was full three quarters long,
And he has taen out of that dun deer
The liver bot and the tongue.
- 9 They eat of the flesh, and they drank of
the blood,
And the blood it was so sweet,
Which caused Johnny and his bloody hounds
To fall in a deep sleep.
- 10 By then came an old palmer,
And an ill death may he die !

- For he 's away to Pickram Side,
As fast as he can drie
- 11 'What news, what news?' says the Seven Forsters,
'What news have ye brought to me ?'
'I have noe news,' the palmer said,
'But what I saw with my eye.
- 12 'High up i Bradyslee, low down i Bra- disslee,
And under a buss of scroggs,
O there I spied a well-wight man,
Sleeping among his dogs.
- 13 'His coat it was of light Lincolm,
And his breeches of the same,
His shoes of the American leather,
And gold buckles tying them.'
- 14 Up bespake the Seven Forsters,
Up bespake they ane and a':
O that is Johnny o Cockleys Well,
And near him we will draw.
- 15 O the first y stroke that they gae him,
They struck him off by the knee;
Then up bespake his sister's son:
'O the next 'll gar him die !'
- 16 'O some they count ye well-wight
men,
But I do count ye nane;
For you might well ha wakend me,
And askd gin I wad be taen.
- 17 'The wildest wolf in aw this wood
Wad not ha done so by me;
She 'd ha wet her foot ith wan water,
And sprinkled it oer my brae,
And if that wad not ha wakend me,
She wad ha gone and let me be.
- 18 'O bows of yew, if ye be true,
In London, where ye were bought,
Fingers five, get up belive,
Manhuid shall fail me nought.'
- 19 He has killd the Seven Forsters,
He has killd them all but ane,
And that wan scarce to Pickram Side,
To carry the bode-words hame.
- 20 'Is there never a boy in a' this wood
That will tell what I can say;

That will go to Cockleys Well,
Tell my mither to fetch me away ?'

- 21 There was a boy into that wood,
That carried the tidings away,
And many ae was the well-wight man
At the fetching o Johnny away.

Books, Bristol, [John Fry,] 1814, p. 53.

- 1 FIFTEEN foresters in the Braid alow,
And they are wondrous fell;
To get a drop of Johnny's heart-bluid,
They would sink a' their souls to hell.

- 2 Johnny Cock has gotten word of this,
And he is wondrous keen;
He['s] custan off the red scarlet,
And on the Linkum green.

- 3 And he is ridden oer muir and muss,
And over mountains high,
Till he came to yon wan water,
And there Johnny Cock did lie.

- 4 They have ridden oer muir and muss,
And over mountains high,
Till they met wi an old palmer,
Was walking along the way.

- 5 'What news, what news, old palmer ?
What news have you to me ?'
'Yonder is one of the proudest wed sons
That ever my eyes did see.'

* * * * *

- 6 He's taen out a horn from his side,
And he blew both loud and shrill,
Till a' the fifteen foresters
Heard Johnny Cock blaw his horn.

- 7 They have sworn a bluidy oath,
And they swore all in one,
That there was not a man among them a'
Would blaw such a blast as yon.

- 8 And they have ridden oer muir and muss,
And over mountains high,
Till they came to yon wan water,
Where Johnny Cock did lie.

- 9 They have shotten little Johnny Cock,
A little above the ee:

'For doing the like to me.

- 10 'There's not a wolf in a' the wood
Woud ha done the like to me;
She'd ha dipped her foot in coll water,
And strinkled above my ee,
And if I would [not] have waked for that,
She'd ha gane and let me be.

- 11 'But fingers five, come here, [come here,]
And faint heart fail me nought,
And silver strings, value me sma things,
Till I get all this vengeance rowght !'

- 12 He ha[s] shot a' the fifteen foresters,
Left never a one but one,
And he broke the ribs a that ane's
side,
And let him take tiding home.

- 13 '... a bird in a' the wood
Could sing as I could say,
It would go in to my mother's bower,
And bid her kiss me, and take me
away.'

- 1 JOHNNY COCK, in a May morning,
Sought water to wash his hands,
And he is awa to louse his dogs,
That's tied wi iron bans.
That's tied wi iron bans

- 2 His coat it is of the light Lincum green,
And his breiks are of the same;
His shoes are of the American leather,
Silver buckles tying them.

- 3 He hunted up, and so did he down,
Till he came to yon bush of scrogs,
And then to yon wan water,
Where he slept among his dogs.

- 4 Johnny Cock out-shot a' the foresters,
And out-shot a the three;

Out shot a' the foresters,
Wounded Johnny aboun the bree.

5 'Woe be to you, foresters,
And an ill death may you die!
For there would not a wolf in a' the wood
Have done the liketo me.

6 'For 't would ha' put its foot in the coll
water
And ha strinkled it on my bree,
And gin that would not have done,
Would have gane and lett me be.

7 'I often took to my mother
The dandoo and the roe,
But now I'll take to my mother
Much sorrow and much woe.

8 'I often took to my mother
The dandoo and the hare,
But now I'll take to my mother
Much sorrow and much care.'

'Johnie of Cockerslee,' Kinloch's annotated copy of his Ancient Scottish Ballads, p. 38 bis:
a West-Country version.

1 Up Johnie raise in a May morning,
Calld for water to wash his hands,
And he has calld for his gude gray
hunds,
That lay bund in iron bands. bands
That lay bund in iron bands

2 'Ye'll busk, ye'll busk my noble dogs,
Ye'll busk and mak them boun,
For I'm going to the Braidscaur hill,
To ding the dun deer down.'

3 Whan Johnie's mither gat word o that,
On the very hed she lay,
Says, Johnie, for my malison,
I pray ye at hame to stay.

4 Your meat sall be of the very, very best,
Your drink sall be the same,
And ye will win your mither's benison,
Gin ye wad stay at hame.

5 But Johnie has cast aff the black velvet,
And put on the Lincoln twine,
And he is on to gude greenwud,
As fast as he could gang.

6 His mither's counsel he wad na tak,
He's aff, and left the toun,
He's aff unto the Braidscaur hill,
To ding the dun deer down.

7 Johnie lookit east, and Johnie lookit
west,
And he lookit aneath the sun,
And there he spied the dun deer sleep-
ing,
Aneath a buss o whun.

8 Johnie shot, and the dun deer lap,
And he's scaithed him in the side,
And atween the water and the wud
He laid the dun deer's pride.

9 They ate sae meikle o the venison,
And drank sae meikle o the blude,
That Johnie and his twa gray hunds
Fell asleep in yonder wud.

10 By there cam a silly auld man,
And a silly auld man was he,
And he's aff to the proud foresters,
As fast as he could dree.

11 'What news, what news, my silly auld
man?
What news? come tell to me:'
'I heard na news, I speird na news
But what my een did see.

12 'As I cam in by Braidisbauks,
And doun amang the whuns,
The bonniest youngster eer I saw
Lay sleepin amang his hunds.

13 'His cheeks war like the roses red,
His neck was like the snaw;
His sark was o the holland fine,
And his jerkin lac'd fu braw.'

14 Up bespak the first forester,
The first forester of a':
O this is Johnie o Cockerslee;
Come draw, lads, we maun draw.

15 Up bespak the niest forester,
The niest forester of a':
An this be Johnie o Cockerslee,
To him we winna draw.

16 The first shot that they did shoot,
They woundit him on the bree;

Up bespak the uncle's son,
The niest will gar him die.'

17 The second shot that eer they shot,
It scaithd him near the heart;
'I only wauken,' Johnie cried,
'Whan first I find the smart.'

18 'Stand stout, stand stout, my noble dogs,
Stand stout, and dinna flee;
Stand fast, stand fast, my gude gray
hunds,
And we will gar them die.'

19 He has killed six o the proud foresters,
And wounded the seventh sair:
He laid his leg out owre his steed,
Says, I will kill na mair.

20 'Oh wae befa thee, silly auld man,
An ill death may thee dee!
Upon thy head be a' this blude,
For mine, I ween, is free.'

Finlay's Scottish Ballads, I, xxxi.

'THERE's no a bird in a' this foreste
Will do as meikle for me
As dip its wing in the wan water
An straik it on my ee-bree.'

ROBYN AND GANDELEYN

Printed by Ritson, Ancient Songs, 1790, p. 49, and by Thomas Wright, Songs and Carols (selected from the Sloane MS.), No. x, London, 1836, and again in his edition of the whole MS. for the Warton Club, 1856, p. 42. The manuscript is put at about 1450.

Wright remarks on the similarity of the name Gandelyn to Gamelyn in the tale ascribed to the Cook in some manuscripts of the Canterbury Tales, and on the resemblance of the tale of Gamelyn to Robin Hood story. But he could hardly have wished to give the impression that Robin in this ballad is Robin Hood. This he no more is than John in the ballad of Johnie Cock is Little John; though Gandelyn is as true to his master as Little John is.

Sloane MS., 2593, fol. 14 b, British Museum.

- 1 I HERDE a carpyng of a clerk,
Al at 3one wodes ende,
Of gode Robyn and Gandeleyne;
Was per non oper pyng.
Robynn lyth in grene wode bowndyn
- 2 Stronge theuys wern po chylderin non,
But bowmen gode and hende;
He wentyn to wode to getyn hem fleych,
If God wold it hem sende.
- 3 Al day wentyn po chylderin too,
And fleych fowndyn he non,
Til it were a-geyn enyn;
pe chylderin wold gon hom.
- 4 Half an honderid of fat falyf der
He oomyn a-3on,
And alle he wern fayr and fat i-now,
But markyd was per non:
'Be dere God,' seyde gode Robyn,
'Here of we xul haue on.'
- 5 Robyn bent his joly bowe,
per in he set a flo;
pe fattest der of alle
pe herte he clef a to.
- 6 He hadde not pe der i-flawe,
Ne half out of pe hyde,
There cam a schrewe arwe out of pe west,
pat felde Robertes pryde.
- 7 Gandeleyne lokyd hym est and west,
Be euery syde:
'Hoo hat myn mayster slayn?
Ho hat don pis dede?
Xal I neuer out of grene wode go
Til I se [his] sydis blede.'
- 8 Gandeleyne lokyd hym est and lokyd
west,
And sowl vnder pe sunne;
He saw a lytil boy
He clepyn Wrennok of Donne.
- 9 A good bowe in his hond,
A brod arwe per ine,
And fowre and twenti goode arwys,
Trusyde in a prumme:
'Be war pe, war pe, Gandeleyne,
Her-of pu xalt han summe.
- 10 'Be war pe, war pe, Gandeleyne,
Her of pu gyst plente:

'Euer on for an oper,' seyde Gandeleyne;
'Mysaunter haue he xal fle.

11 'Qwer-at xal our marke be?'

Seyde Gandeleyne:
'Eueryche at operis herte,'
Seyde Wrennok ageyn.

12 'Ho xal ȝeue þe ferste schote?'

Seyde Gandeleyne:
'And I xul ȝeue þe on be-forn,'
Seyde Wrennok ageyn.

13 Wrennok schette a ful good schote,
And he schet not to bye;
þrow þe sanchopis of his bryk;
It towchyd neyþer thye.

14 'Now hast þu ȝouyn me on be-forn,'
Al þus to Wrennok seyde he,
'And þrow þe myȝt of our lady
A bettere I xal ȝeue þe.'

15 Gandeleyne bent his goode bowe,
And set þer in a flo;
He schet þrow his grene certyl,
His herte he clef on too.

16 'Now xalt þu neuer ȝelpe, Wrennok,
At ale ne at wyn,
þat þu hast slawe goode Robyn,
And his knaue Gandeleyne.

17 'Now xalt þu neuer ȝelpe, Wrennok,
At wyn ne at ale,
þat þu hast slawe goode Robyn,
And Gandeleyne his knaue.'

ADAM BELL, CLIM OF THE CLOUGH, AND WILLIAM OF CLOUDESLEY

'Adam Bell' is licensed to John Kynge in the Stationers' Registers, 19 July, 1557-9 July, 1558. Again, among copies which were Sampson Awdeley's, to John Charlewood, 15 January, 1582; and, among copies which were John Charlwoode's, to James Robertes, 31 May, 1594. Seven reprints of the seventeenth century, later than d, are noted in Mr. W. C. Hazlitt's Handbook, p. 35.

The rescue of Robin Hood by Little John and Much in No. 119, stas. 61-82, has a general resemblance to the rescue of Cloudesley by Adam and Clim in this ballad, stas. 52 ff. The rescue of Will Stutly (No. 141) has also some slight similarity, stas. 26-33.

The shooting of an apple from a boy's head (stas. 151-162) is, as is well known, a trait in several German and Norse traditions, and these particular feats, as well as everything resembling them, have been a subject of eager discussion in connection with the apocryphal history of William Tell. The story is not remarkably widespread. The seven versions agree in two points: the shot is compulsory; the archer meditates revenge in case he harms the person on whose head the mark is placed. These features are wanting in the English ballad. William of Cloudesley offers of his own free motion to shoot an apple from his son's head, and this after the king had declared him the best archer he had ever seen, for splitting a hazel-rod at twenty score paces; so that the act was done purely for glory. To be sure, the king threatens him with death if he does not achieve what he has undertaken, as death is also threatened in four of the seven German-Scandinavian stories for refusal to try the shot or for missing; but the threats in sta. 154 f. of the English ballad are a revival of the vow in sta. 119 f. The shooting of the apple from the boy's head, isolated from any particular connection, is perhaps all of the German-Scandinavian story that was known to the English ballad-maker, and all minor resemblances may well be fortuitous.

If the shooting of an apple by somebody from somebody's head is to be regarded as the kernel of the story, its area may then be considerably extended. For various remoter parallels of this kind, see Child, III, 19 ff., where a full discussion will be found. Professor Child is opposed to the mythical explanation and takes particularly strong ground against making a sun-god out of William of Cloudesley. He sums up in the following sentence: "A story long current in Europe, a mythical story if you please, could certainly be taken up by an English ballad-maker without prejudice to the substantial and simply romantic character of his hero."

G. 1 MERY it was in grene forest,
Amonge the leues grene,
Where that men walke both east and
west,
Wyth bowes and arrowes kene,

2 To ryse the dere out of theyr denne;
Suche sightes as hath ofte bene sene,
As by th[r]e yemen of the north coun-trei,
By them it is as I meane.

3 The one of them hight Adam Bel,
The other Clym of the Clough,
The thyrd was William of Cloudeley,
An archer good ynough.

4 They were outlawed for venyson,
These thre yemen euerechone;
They swore them brethen vpon a day,
To Englysshe-wood for to gone.

5 Now lith and lysten, gentylmen,
And that of myrthes loueth to here:
Two of them were single men,
The third had a wedded fere.

6 Wylliam was the wedded man,
Muche more then was hys care:
He sayde to hys brethen vpon a day,
To Carelel he would fare,

7 For to speke with fayre Alse hys wife,
And with hys chyldren thre:
'By my trouth,' sayde Adam Bel,
'Not by the counsell of me.

8 'For if ye go to Caerlel, brother,
And from thys wylde wode wende,
If the justice mai you take,
Your lyfe were at an ende.'

9 'If that I come not to morowe, brother,
By pryme to you agayne,
Truste not els but that I am take,
Or else that I am slayne.'

10 He toke hys leane of hys brethen two,
And to Carelel he is gone;
There he knocked at hys owne wyndowe,
Shortlye and anone.

11 'Wher be you, fayre Alyce, my wyfe,
And my chyldren thre?
Lyghtly let in thyne husbnde,
Wylliam of Cloudeale.'

12 'Alas!' then sayde fayre Alyce,
And syghed wonderous sore,
'Thys place hath ben besette for you
Thys halfe yere and more.'

13 'Now am I here,' sayde Cloudeale,
'I woulde that I in were;
Now feche vs meate and drynke
ynoughe,
And let vs make good chere.'

14 She feched him meat and drynke plenty,
Lyke a true wedded wyfe,
And pleased hym with that she had,
Whome she loued as her lyfe.

15 There lay an old wyfe in that place,
A lytle besyde the fyre,
Whych Wylliam had found, of chery-
tye,
More then seuen yere.

16 Up she rose, and walked full styll,
Enel mote she spede therefoore!
For she had not set no fote on ground
In seuen yere before.

17 She went vnto the justice hall,
As fast as she could hie:
'Thys nyght is come vn to thys town
Wylliam of Cloudeale.'

18 Thereof the iustice was full fayne,
And so was the shirife also:
'Thou shalt not trauaile hether, dame,
for nought;
Thy meed thou shalt haue or thou go.'

19 They gaue to her a ryght good gonne,
Of scarlat it was, as I heard say[n]e;
She toke the gyft, and home she wente,
And couched her doune agayne.

20 They rysed the towne of mery Carelel,
In all the hast that they can,

- And came thronging to Wylllyames
house,
As fast [as] they might gone.
- 21 Theyr they besette that good yeman,
Round about on euery syde;
Wylllyam hearde great noyse of folkes,
That heytherward they hyed.
- 22 Alyce opened a shot-wyndow,
And loked all about;
She was ware of the justice and the shrike bothe,
Wyth a full great route.
- 23 'Alas! treason,' cryed Alyce,
'Euer wo may thou be!
Go into my chambre, my husband,' she
sayd,
'Swete Wylllyam of Cloudesle.'
- 24 He toke hys sweard and hys bucler,
Hys bow and hy[s] chyldren thre,
And wente into hys strongest chamber,
Where he thought surest to be.
- 25 Fayre Alice folowed him as a louter
true,
With a pollaxe in her hande:
'He shalbe deade that here cometh in Thys dore, whyle I may stand.'
- 26 Cloudesle bent a wel good bowe,
That was of trusty tre,
He smot the justise on the brest,
That hys arrowe brest in thre.
- 27 'God's curse on his hartt,' saide William,
'Thys day thy cote dyd on;
If it had ben no better then myne,
It had gone nere thy bone.'
- 28 'Yelde the, Cloudesle,' sayd the justise,
'And thy bowe and thy arrowes the fro:'
'Gods curse on hys hart,' sayde fair
Al[i]ce,
'That my husband councelleth so.'
- 29 'Set fyre on the house,' saide the
sherife,
'Syth it wyll no better be,
And brenne we therin William,' he
saide,
'Hys wyfe and chyldren thre.'
- 30 They fyred the house in many a place,
The fyre flew vpon hye;
'Alas!' than cryed fayr Alice,
'I se we shall here dy.'
- 31 William openyd hys backe wyndow,
That was in hys chambre on hye,
And wyth shetes let hys wyfe downe,
And hys chyldren thre.
- 32 'Haue here my treasure,' sayde William,
'My wyfe and my chyldren thre;
For Christes loue do them no harme,
But wreke you all on me.'
- 33 Wylllyam shot so wonderous well,
Tyll hys arrowes were all go,
And the fyre so fast vpon hym fell,
That hys bo[w]stryng brent in two.
- 34 The spercles brent and fell hym on,
Good Wylllyam of Cloudesle;
But than was he a wofull man, and
sayde,
Thys is a cowardes death to me.
- 35 'Leuer I had,' sayde Wylllyam,
'With my sworde in the route to renne,
Then here among myne ennemyes wode
Thus cruelly to bren.'
- 36 He toke hys sweard and hys buckler,
And among them all he ran;
Where the people were most in prece,
He smot downe many a man.
- 37 There myght no man stand hys stroke,
So fersly on them he ran;
Then they threw wyndowes and dores on
him,
And so toke that good yeman.
- 38 There they hym bounde both hand and fote,
And in depe dongeon hym cast;
'Now, Cloudesle,' sayde the hye justice,
'Thou shalt be hanged in bast.'
- 39 'One vow shal I make,' sayde the
sherife,
'A payre of new galowes shall I for the make,

And al the gates of Caerlel shalbe
shutte,
There shall no man come in therat.

40 'Then shall not helpe Clim of the Cloughe,
Nor yet Adam Bell,
Though they came with a thousand mo,
Nor all the deuels in hell.'

41 Early in the mornynge the justice vprose,
To the gates fast gan he gon,
And comnaunded to be shut full cloce
Lightile euerychone.

42 Then went he to the market-place,
As fast as he coulde hye;
A payre of new gallous there dyd he vp set,
Besyde the pyllory.

43 A lytle boy stod them amonge,
And asked what meaned that gallow-
tre;
They sayde, To hange a good yeaman,
Called Wyllyam of Cloudesle.

44 That lytle boye was the towne swyneheard,
And kept fayre Alyce swyne;
Full oft he had sene Cloudesle in the wodde,
And geuen hym there to dyne.

45 He went out of a creues in the wall,
And lightly to the woode dyd gone;
There met he with these wyght yonge
men,
Shortly and anone.

46 'Alas!' then sayde that lytle boye,
'Ye tary here all to long;
Cloudesle is taken and dampned to death,
All readye for to honge.'

47 'Alas!' then sayde good Adam Bell,
'That euer we see thys daye!
He myght her with vs haue dwelled,
So ofte as we dyd him praye.

48 'He myght haue taryed in grene foreste,
Under the shadowes sheene,

And haue kepte both hym and vs in reaste,
Out of trouble and teene.'

49 Adam bent a ryght good bow,
A great hart sone had he slayne;
'Take that, chylde,' he sayde, 'to thy dynner,
And bryng me myne arrowe agayne.'

50 'Now go we hence,' sayed these wight yong men,
'Tary we no lenger here;
We shall hym borowe, by Gods grace,
Though we bye it full dere.'

51 To Caerlel went these good yemen,
In a mery mornynge of Maye:
Her is a fyt of Cloudesli,
And another is for to saye.

52 And when they came to mery Caerlell,
In a fayre mornynge-tyde,
They founde the gates shut them vntyll,
Round about on euery syde.

53 'Alas!' than sayd good Adam Bell,
'That euer we were made men!
b. These gates be shyte so wonderly well,
That we may not come here in.'

54 Than spake Clymme of the Cloughe:
With a wyle we wyll vs in brynge;
Let vs say we be messengers,
Streight comen from oure kynge.

55 Adam sayd, I haue a lettre wryten wele,
Now let vs wysely werke;
We wyll say we haue the kynges seale,
I holde the porter no clerke.

56 Than Adam Bell bete on the gate,
With strokës greate and stronge;
The porter herde suche a noyse therate,
And to the gate faste he thronge.

57 'Who is there now,' sayd the porter,
'That maketh all this knockynge?'
'We be two messengers,' sayd Clymme
of the Clo[ughe],
'Be comen streight frome oure
kynge.'

58 'We haue a lettre,' sayd Adam Bell,
'To the justyce we must it brynge;

- Let vs in, oure message to do,
That we were agayne to our kynge.'
- 59 'Here cometh no man in,' sayd the
porter,
'By hym that dyed on a tre,
Tyll a false thefe be hanged,
Called Wylliam of Clowdysle.'
- 60 Than spake that good [yeman Clym of the Cloughe,
And swore by Mary fre,
If that we stande long wythout,
Lyke a thefe hanged shalt thou be.]
- 61 [Lo here] we haue got the kynges seale;
[What! l]ordane, arte thou wode?
[The p]orter had wende it had been so,
[And l]yghtly dyd of his hode.
- 62 '[Welco]me be my lordes seale,' sayd he,
'[For] that shall ye come in:'
[He] opened the gate ryght shortly,
[Au]euyll openynge for hym!
- 63 '[N]owe we are in,' sayd Adam Bell,
'[T]herof we are full fayne;
[But] Cryst knoweth that herowed hell,
[H]ow we shall come oute agayne.'
- 64 '[Had] we the keys,' sayd Clym of the Clowgh,
'Ryght well than sholde we spede;
[Than] myght we come out well ynough,
[Whan] we se tyme and nede.'
- 65 [They] called the porter to a councell,
[And] wronge hys necke in two,
[And] kest hym in a depe dongeon,
[And] toke the keys hym fro.
- 66 '[N]ow am I porter,' sayd Adam Bell;
'[Se], broder, the keys haue we here;
[The] worste porter to mery Carlell
[That ye] had this hondreth yere.
- 67 '[Now] wyll we oure bowes bende,
[Into the t]owne wyll we go,
[For to delyner our dere] broder,
[Where he lyeth in care and wo.'
- 68 Then they bent theyr good yew bowes,
And loked theyr stringes were round;
The market-place of mery Carlyll,
They beset in that stounde.
- 69 And as they loked them besyde,
A payre of newe galowes there they se,
And the iustyce, with a quest of swerers,
That had inged Clowdysle there hanged to be.
- 70 And Clowdysle hymselfe lay redy in a carte,
Fast bounde bothe fote and hande,
And a strong rope aboute his necke,
All redy for to be hangde.
- 71 The iustyce called to hym a ladde;
Clowdysles clothes sholde he haue,
To take the mesure of that good yoman,
And thereafter to make his graue.
- 72 'I haue sene as greate a merueyll,' sayd
Clowd[esle],
'As bytwene this and pryme,
He that maketh thys graue for me,
Hymselfe may lye therin.'
- 73 'Thou spekest proudly,' sayd the ius-
tyce;
'I shall hange the with my hande:'
Full well that herde his bretheren two,
There styll as they dyd stande.
- 74 Than Clowdysle cast hys eyen asyde,
And sawe hys bretheren stande,
At a corner of the market-place,
With theyr good bowes bent in theyr
hand,
Redy the iustyce for to chase.
- 75 'I se good comforte,' sayd Clowdysle,
'Yet hope I well to fare;
If I myght haue my handes at wyll,
[Ryght l]ytell wolde I care.'
- 76 [Than b]espake good Adam Bell,
[To Clym]me of the Clowgh so fre;
[Broder], se ye marke the iustyce well;
[Lo yon]der ye may him se.
- 77 [And at] the sheryf shote I wyll,
[Stron]gly with an arowe kene;
[A better] shotte in mery Carlyll,
[Thys se]uen yere was not sene.
- 78 [They lo]used theyr arowes bothe at ones,
[Of no] man had they drede;

- [The one] hyt the iustyce, the other the sheryf,
[That b]othe theyr sydes gan blede.
- 79 [All men] voyded, that them stode nye, [Whan] the iustyce fell to the grounde,
[And the] sheryf fell nyghe hym by;
[Eyther] had his dethës wounde.
- 80 [All the c]ytezeyns fast gan fle,
[They du]rste no lenger abyde;
[There ly]ghtly they loused Clowdysle,
[Where he] with ropes lay tyde.
- 81 [Wyllyam] sterte to an offycer of the
towne,
[Hys axe] out his hande he wronge;
[On eche] syde he smote them downe, [Hym tho]ught he had taryed to longe.
- 82 [Wyllyam] sayd to his bretheren two, [Thys daye] let vs togyder lyue and deye;
[If euer you] haue nede as I haue
nowe,
[The same] shall ye fynde by me.
- 83 [They] shyt so well in that tyde,
For theyr strynges were of sylke full
sure,
That they kepte the stretes on euery
syde;
That batayll dyd longe endure.
- 84 They fought togyder as bretheren true,
Lyke hardy men and bolde;
Many a man to the grounde they threwe,
And made many an hertë colde.
- 85 But whan theyr arowes were all gone,
Men presyd on them full fast;
They drewe theyr swerdës than anone,
And theyr bowës from them caste.
- 86 They wente lyghtly on theyr waye,
With swerdes and buckelers rounde;
By that it was the myddes of the daye,
They had made many a wounde.
- 87 There was many an oute-horne in Carlyll blowen,
And the belles backwarde dyd they rynge;
- Many a woman sayd alas,
And many theyr handes dyd wrynge.
- 88 The mayre of Carlyll forth come was,
And with hym a full grete route;
These thre yomen dredde hym full sore,
For theyr lyuës stode in doubte.
- 89 The mayre came armed, a full grete pace,
With a polaxe in his hande;
Many a stronge man with hym was,
There in that stoure to stande.
- 90 The mayre smote at Clowdysle with his byll,
His buckeler he brast in two;
Full many a yoman with grete yll,
'[Al]as, treason!' they cryed for wo.
'[Ke]pe we the gates fast,' they bad,
'[T]hat these traytours theroute not go.'
- 91 But all for nought was that they wrought,
For so fast they downe were layde
Tyll they all thre, that so manfully
fought,
Were goten without at a brayde.
- 92 'Haue here your keys,' sayd Adam Bell,
'Myne offyce I here forsake;
Yf ye do by my counsell,
A newë porter ye make.'
- 93 He threwe the keys there at theyr
hedes,
And bad them evyll to thryue,
And all that letteth ony good yoman
To come and comforte his wyue.
- 94 Thus be these good yomen gone to the
wode,
As lyght as lefe on lynde;
They laughe and be mery in theyr mode,
Theyr enemyes were farre behynde.
- 95 Whan they came to Inglyswode,
Under theyr trysty-tre,
There they founde bowës full gode,
And arowës grete plentë.
- 96 'So helpe me God,' sayd Adam Bell,
And Clymme of the Clowgh so fre,

'I wolde we were nowe in mery Carlell,
[Be]fore that fayre meynë.'

97 They set them downe and made good chere,
And ate an[d dr]anke full well:
Here is a fyttē [of] these wyght yonge-
men,
And another I shall you tell.

98 As they sat in Inglyswode,
Under theyr trysty-tre,
Them thought they herde a woman
[wepe],
But her they myght not se.

99 Sore syghed there fayre Alyce, and
sayd,
Alas that euer I se this daye!
For now is my dere husbonde slayne,
Alas and welawaye!

100 Myght I haue spoken wyth hys dere
breth[eren],
With eyther of them twayne,
[To shew to them what him befell,]
My herte were out of payne.

101 Clowdysle walked a lytell besyde,
And loked vnder the grene wodde
lynde;
He was ware of his wyfe and his chyl-
dre[n thre],
Full wo in herte and mynde.

102 'Welcome, wyfe,' than sayd Wyllyam,
'Unto this trysty-tre;
I had wende yesterdaye, by swete
Sai[nt John],
Thou sholde me neuer haue se.'

103 'Now wele is me,' she sayd, 'that [ye be here],
My herte is out of wo:'
'Dame,' he sayd, 'be mery and glad,
And thanke my bretheren two.'

104 'Here of to speke,' sayd Ad[am]
Bell,
'I-wys it [is no bote];
The me[at that we must supp withall,
It runneth yet fast on fote.'

105 Then went they down into a launde,
These noble archares all thre,

Eche of the]m slewe a harte of grece,
[The best t]hey coude there se.

106 '[Haue here the] best, Alyce my wyfe,' [Sayde Wyllyam] of Clowdysle,
'[By cause ye so] boldely stode me by,
[Whan I w]as slayne full nye.'

107 [Than they] wente to theyr souper,
[Wyth suc]he mete as they had,
[And than]ked God of theyr fortune;
[They we]re bothe mery and glad.

108 [And whan] they had souped well,
[Certayne] withouten leace,
[Clowdysle] sayde, We wyll to oure kyngē,
[To get v]s a chartre of peace.

109 [Alyce shal] be at soiournynge,
[In a nunry] here besyde;
[My tow sonn]es shall with her go,
[And ther the]y shall abyde.

110 [Myne eldest so]ne shall go with me,
[For hym haue I] no care,
[And he shall breng] you worde agayne
[How that we do fare.

111 Thus be these wig]ht men to London
gone,
[As fast as they ma]ye hye,
[Tyll they came to the kynges] palays,
o. There they woulde nedēs be.

112 And whan they came to the kyngēs
courte,
Unto the pallace gate,
Of no man wold they aske leue,
But boldly went in therat.

113 They preceid prestly into the hall,
Of no man had they dreade;
The porter came after and dyd them
call,
a. And with them began to [chyde.]

114 The vssher sayd, Yemen, what wolde ye haue?
I praye you tell me;
Ye myght thus make offycers shent:
Good syra, of whens be ye?

115 'Syr, we be outlawes of the forest,
Certayne withouten leace,

- And hyther we be come to our kyng,
To get vs a charter of peace.'
- 116 And whan they came before our kyng,
As it was the lawe of the laude,
They kneled downe without lettyng,
And eche helde vp his hande.
- 117 They sayd, Lorde, we beseche you
here,
That ye wyll graunte vs grace,
For we haue slayne your fatte falowe
dere,
In many a sondry place.
- 118 'What is your names?' than sayd our
kyng,
'Anone that you tell me:.'
They sayd, Adam Bell, Clym of the Clough,
And Wylliam of Clowdesle.
- 119 'Be ye those theues,' than sayd our
kyng,
'That men hane tolde of to me?
Here to God I make a vowe,
Ye shall be hanged all thre.
- 120 'Ye shall be dead without mercy,
As I am kyng of this lande:.'
c. He commanded his officers euerichone
Fast on them to lay hand.
- 121 There they toke these good yemen,
And arested them all thre:
'So may I thryue,' sayd Adam Bell,
'Thys game lyketh not me.
- a. 122 'But, good lorde, we beseche you
nowe,
That ye wyll graunte vs grace,
In so moche as we be to you com-
men;
Or elles that we may fro you passe,
- 123 'With suche weapons as we haue
here,
Tyll we be out of your place;
And yf we lyue this hondred yere,
We wyll aske you no grace.'
- 124 'Ye speke proudly,' sayd the kyng,
'Ye shall be hanged all thre:.'
'That were great pity,' sayd the quene,
'If any grace myght be.
- 125 'My lorde, whan I came fyrst in to this lande,
To be your wedded wyfe,
The fyrst bone that I wolde aske,
Ye wolde graunte me belyfe.
- 126 'And I asked you neuer none tyll nowe,
Therefore, good lorde, graunte it me:.'
'Nowe aske it, madame,' sayd the
kyng,
'And graunted shall it be.'
- 127 'Than, good lorde, I you beseche,
The yemen graunte you me:.'
'Madame, ye myght haue asked a bone
That sholde haue ben worthe them thre.
- 128 'Ye myght haue asked towres and towne[s],
Parkes and forestes plentie:.'
c. 'None so pleasaunt to mi pay,' she
said,
'Nor none so lefe to me.'
- 129 'Madame, sith it is your desyre,
Your askyng graunted shalbe;
But I had leuer haue geuen you
Good market-townes thre.'
- 130 The quene was a glad woman,
And sayd, Lord, gramarcy;
I dare vndertake for them
That true men shall they be.
- 131 But, good lord, speke som mery word,
That comfort they may se:
'I graunt you grace,' then said our king,
'Wasshe, felos, and to meate go ye.'
- 132 They had not setten but a whyle,
Certayne without lesyng,
There came messengers out of the north,
With letters to our kyng.
- 133 And whan the came before the kyng,
The kneled downe vpon theyr kne,
And sayd, Lord, your offycers grete
you wel,
Of Caerlel in the north cuntre.
- 134 'How fare[th] my justice,' sayd the
kyng,
'And my sherife also?'

- ‘Syr, they be slayue, without leasyunge,
And many an officer mo.’
- 135 ‘Who hath them slayne?’ sayd the
kyng,
‘Anone thou tell me:’
‘Adam Bel, and Clime of the Clough,
And Wylliam of Cloudesle.’
- 136 ‘Alas for rewth!’ then sayd our kynge,
‘My hart is wonderous sore;
I had leuer [th]an a thousand ponde
I had knowne of thys before.
- 137 ‘For I haue y-graunted them grace,
And that forthynketh me;
But had I knowne all thys before,
They had ben hanged all thre.’
- 138 The kyng opened the letter anone,
Hym selfe he red it tho,
And founde how these thre outlawes had slaine
Thre hundred men and mo.
- 139 Fyrst the justice and the sheryfe,
And the mayre of Caerlel towne;
Of all the constables and catchipolles
Alyue were left not one.
- 140 The baylyes and the bedyls both,
And the sergeauntes of the law,
And forty fosters of the fe
These outlawes had y-slaw;
- 141 And broken his parks, and slaine his
dere;
Ouer all they chose the best;
So perelous outlawes as they were Walked not by easte nor west.
- 142 When the kynge this letter had red,
In hys harte he syghed sore;
‘Take vp the table,’ anone he bad,
‘For I may eate no more.’
- 143 The kyng called hys best archars,
To the buttes with hym to go;
‘I wyll se these felowes shote,’ he
sayd,
‘That in the north haue wrought this wo.’
- 144 The kynges bowmen buske them blyue,
And the quenes archers also,
- So dyd these thre wyght yemen,
Wyth them they thought to go.
- 145 ‘There twyse or thryse they shote about,
For to assay theyr hande;
There was no shote these thre yemer
shot
That any prycke might them stand.
- 146 Then spake Wylliam of Cloudesle;
By God that for me dyed,
I hold hym neuer no good archar
That shuteth at buttes so wyde.
- 147 ‘Wherat?’ then sayd our kyng,
‘I pray thee tell me:’
‘At suche a but, syr,’ he sayd,
‘As men vse in my countree.’
- 148 Wylliam wente into a fyeld,
And his to brothren with him;
There they set vp to hasell roddes,
Twenty score paces betwene.
- 149 ‘I hold him an archar,’ said Cloudesle,
‘That yonder wande cleueth in two:’
‘Here is none suche,’ sayd the kyng,
‘Nor none that can so do.’
- 150 ‘I shall assaye, syr,’ sayd Cloudesle,
‘Or that I farther go:’
Cloudesle, with a bearyng arow,
Claue the wand in to.
- 151 ‘Thou art the best archer,’ then said
the king,
‘Forsothe that ener I se:’
And yet for your loue,’ sayd Wylliam,
‘I wyll do more maystry.
- 152 ‘I haue a sounne is senen yere olde;
He is to me full deare;
I wyll hym tye to a stake,
All shall se that be here;
- 153 ‘And lay an apple vpon hys head,
And go syxe score paces hym fro,
And I my selfe, with a brode arow,
Shall cleue the apple in two.’
- 154 ‘Now hast the,’ then sayd the kyng;
‘By him that dyed on a tre,
But yf thou do not as thou hest
sayde,
Hanged shalt thou be.

- 155 'And thou touche his head or gowne,
In syght that men may se,
By all the sayntes that be in heaven,
I shall hange you all thre.'
- 156 'That I haue promised,' said William,
'I wyl it neuer forsake;'
And there euen before the kynge,
In the earth he droue a stake;
- 157 And bound therto his eldest sonne,
And bad hym stande styll therat,
And turned the childes face fro him,
Because he shuld not sterte.
- 158 An apple vpon his head he set,
And then his bowe he bent;
Syxe score paces they were outmet,
And thether Cloudesle went.
- 159 There he drew out a fayr brode arrowe;
Hys bowe was great and longe;
He set that arrowe in his bowe,
That was both styffe and stronge.
- 160 He prayed the people that was there
'That they would styll stande;
'For he that shooteth for such a wager,
Behoueth a stedfast hand.'
- 161 Muche people prayed for Cloudesle,
a. That hys lyfe saued myght be,
And whan he made hym redy to shote,
There was many a wepyng eye.
- 162 Thus Clowdesle cleft the apple in two,
That many a man it se;
'Ouer goddes forbode,' sayd the kynge,
'That thou sholdest shote at me!'
- 163 'I gyue the .xviii. pens a daye,
And my bowe shalte thou bere,
And ouer all the north countree
I make the chefe rydere.'
- 164 'And I gyue the .xii. pens a day,' sayd
the que[ne],
'By God and by my faye;
Come fetch the thy payment whan thou
wylt,
No man shall say the naye.
- 165 'Wyllyam, I make the gentylman
Of clothyng and of fee,

And thy two brethren yemen of my chambr[e],
For they are so semely to se.

- 166 'Your sone, for he is tendre of age,
Of my wyne-seller shall he be,
And whan he commeth to mannës state,
Better auaunced shall he be.

- 167 'And, Wylliam, brynge me your wyfe,' sayd th[e quene];
'Me longeth sore here to se;
She shall be my chefe gentylwoman,
And gouerne my nursery.'

- 168 The yemen thanked them full courteysly,
And sayd, To Rome streyght wyll
we weude,
[Of all the synnes that we haue done
To be assoyled of his hand.]

- 169 So forth]e be gone these good yemen,
[As fast a]s they myght hye,
[And aft]er came and dwelled with the
kynge,
[And dye]d good men all thre.

- 170 [Thus e]ndeth the lyues of these good yemen,
[God sen]de them eternall blysse,
[And all] that with hande-bowe shoteth,
[That of] heuen they may neuer mysse!

A GEST OF ROBYN HODE

The best qualified judges are not agreed as to the typographical origin of a. The date of b may be anywhere from 1492 to 1534. Copland's edition was not earlier than 1548. The dates of the other texts are uncertain. a, b, f, g, are deficient at 7¹, 339¹, and misprinted at 49, 50, repeating, it may be, the faults of a prior impression. a appears, by internal evidence, to be an older text than b. Some obsolete words of the earlier copies have been modernized in f, g, and deficient lines have been supplied. A considerable number of Middle-English forms remain after those successive renovations of reciters and printers which are presumable in such cases. The Gest may have been compiled at a time when such forms had gone out of use, and these may be relics of the ballads from which this little epic was made up; or the whole poem may have been put together as early as 1400, or before. There are no firm grounds on which to base an opinion.

No notice of Robin Hood has been recovered earlier than that which was long ago pointed out by Percy as occurring in Piers Plowman, and this, according to Professor Skeat, cannot be older than about 1377. Sloth, in that poem, says in his shrift that he knows "rymes of Robyn Hood and Randolf, erle of Chestre," though but imperfectly acquainted with his paternoster. Thomas Robinhood is one of six witnesses to a grant in 1380 or 1381 (Historical MSS. Commission, Fifth Report, Appendix, p. 511). References to Robin Hood are not infrequent in the following century.

Thus it is evident that Robin Hood ballads were popular for a century or more before the time when the Gest was printed. Their popularity was fully established at the beginning of this period, and unquestionably extended back to a much earlier day. Of these ballads, there have come down to us in a comparatively ancient form the following: those from which the Gest (printed, perhaps, before 1500) was composed, being at least four, Robin Hood, the Knight and the Monk, Robin Hood, Little John and the Sheriff, Robin Hood and the King, and Robin Hood's death (a fragment); Robin Hood and the Monk (No. 119), more properly Robin Hood rescued by Little John, MS. of about 1450, but not for that older than the ballads of the Gest; Robin Hood and Guy of Gisborne (No. 118), Percy MS. ca. 1650; Robin Hood's Death (No. 120), Percy MS. and late garlands; Robin Hood and the Potter (No. 121), MS. of about 1500, later perhaps than any of the group. Besides these there are thirty-two ballads (Nos. 122-158). About half a dozen of these thirty-two have in them something of the old popular quality; as many more not the least trace of it. Fully a dozen are variations, sometimes wearisome, sometimes sickening, upon the theme 'Robin Hood met with his match.' A considerable part of the Robin Hood poetry looks like char-work done for the petty press, and should be judged as such. The earliest of these ballads, on the other hand, are among the best of all ballads, and perhaps none in English please so many and please so long.

Robin Hood is absolutely a creation of the ballad-muse. The earliest mention we have of him is as the subject of ballads. The only two early historians who speak of him as a ballad hero (Bower, writing 1441-47, and Major, born ca. 1450) pretend to have no information about him except what they derive from ballads, and show that they have none other by the description they give of him; this description being in entire conformity with ballads in our possession, one of which is found in a MS. as old as the older of these two writers.

Robin Hood is a yeoman, outlawed for reasons not given, but easily surmised, "courteous and free," religious in sentiment, and above all reverent of the Virgin, for the love of whom he is respectful to all women. He lives by the king's deer (though he loves no man in the world so much as his king) and by levies on the superfluity of the higher orders, secular and spiritual, bishops and archbishops, abbots, bold barons, and knights, but harms no husbandman or yeoman, and is friendly to poor men generally, imparting to them of what he takes from the rich. Courtesy, good temper, liberality, and manliness are his chief marks; for courtesy and good temper he is a popular Gawain. Yeoman as he is, he has a kind of royal dignity, a princely grace, and a gentleman-like refinement of humor. This is the Robin Hood of the Gest especially; the late ballads debase this primary conception in various ways and degrees.

This is what Robin Hood is, and it is equally important to observe what he is not. He has no sort of political character, in the Gest or any other ballad. This takes the ground from under the feet of those who seek to assign him a place in history. Nor has even a shadow of a case been made out by those who would equate Robin Hood with Odin or account for him in accordance with the supposed principles of comparative mythology.

The chief comrades of Robin Hood are in 'Robin Hood and the Monk,' Little John, Scathlok (Scarlok, Scarlet), and Much; to these the Gest adds Gilbert of the White Hand and Reynold (292 f.). A friar is not a member of his company in the older ballads. Maid Marian is unknown to the genuine Robin Hood tradition.

The Gest is a popular epic, composed from several ballads by a poet of a thoroughly congenial spirit. No one of the ballads from which it was made up is extant in a separate shape, and some portions of the story may have been of the compiler's own invention. The decoying of the sheriff into the wood, stanzas 181-204, is of the same derivation as the last part of Robin Hood and the Potter (No. 121), Little John and Robin Hood exchanging parts; the conclusion, 451-456, is of the same source as Robin Hood's Death (No. 120). Though the tale, as to all important considerations, is eminently original, absolutely so as to the conception of Robin Hood, some traits and incidents, as might be expected, are taken from what we may call the general stock of mediæval fiction.

The story is a three-ply web of the adventures of Robin Hood with a knight, with the sheriff of Nottingham, and with the king (the concluding stanzas, 451-456, being a mere epilogue), and may be decomposed accordingly. I. How Robin Hood relieved a knight, who had fallen into poverty, by lending him money on the security of Our Lady, the first fit, 1-81; how the knight recovered his lands, which had been pledged to Saint Mary Abbey, and set forth to repay the loan, the second fit, 82-143; how Robin Hood, having taken twice the sum lent from a monk of this abbey, declared that Our Lady had discharged the debt, and would receive nothing more from the knight, the fourth fit, 205-280. II. How Little John insidiously took service with Robin Hood's standing enemy, the sheriff of Nottingham, and put the sheriff into Robin Hood's hands, the third fit, 144-204; how the sheriff, who had sworn an oath to help and not to harm Robin Hood and his men, treacherously set upon the outlaws at a shooting-match, and they were fain to take refuge in the knight's castle; how, missing of Robin Hood, the sheriff made prisoner of the knight; and how Robin Hood slew the sheriff and rescued the knight, the fifth and sixth fit, 281-353. III. How the king, coming in person to apprehend Robin Hood and the knight, disguised himself as an abbot, was stopped by Robin Hood, feasted on his own deer, and entertained with an exhibition of archery, in the course of which he was recognized by Robin Hood, who asked his grace and received a promise thereof, on condition that he and his men should enter into the king's service; and how the king, for a jest, disguised himself and his company in the green of the outlaws, and going back to Nottingham caused a general flight of the people, which he stopped by making himself known; how he pardoned the knight; and how Robin Hood, after fifteen months in the king's court, heart-sick and deserted by all his men but John and Scathlock, obtained a week's leave of the king to go on a pilgrimage to Saint Mary Magdalen of Barnesdale, and would never come back in two-and-twenty years, the seventh and eighth fit, 354-450.

- a. 1 LYTHE and listin, gentlemen,
That be of frebore blode;
I shall you tel of a gode yeman,
His name was Robyn Hode.
- 2 Robyn was a prude outlaw,
[Whyles he walked on groundes;
So curteyse an outlawe] as he was one
Was never non founde.
- 3 Robyn stode in Bernesdale,
And lenyd hym to a tre;
And bi hym stode Litell Johnn,
A gode yeman was he.
- 4 And alsoo dyd gode Scarlok,
And Much, the miller's son;
There was none ynch of his bodi
But it was worth a grome.
- 5 Than bespake Lytell Johnn
All vntoo Robyn Hode:
Maister, and ye wolde dyne betyme
It wolde doo you moche gode.
- 6 Than bespake hym gode Robyn:
To dyne haue I noo lust,
Till that I haue som bolde baron,
Or som vnkouth gest.
- 7
That may pay for the best,
Or som knyght or [som] squyer,
That dwelleth here bi west.
- 8 A gode maner than had Robyn;
In londe where that he were,
Euery day or he wold dyne
Thre messis wolde he here.

- 9 The one in the worship of the Fader,
And another of the Holy Gost,
The thirde of Our derē Lady,
That he loued allther moste.
- 10 Robyn loued Oure derē Lady;
For dout of dydly synne,
Wolde he neuer do compani harme
That any woman was in.
- 11 'Maistar,' than sayde Lytil Johnn,
'And we our borde shal sprede,
Tel vs wheder that we shal go,
And what life that we shall lede.
- 12 'Where we shall take, where we shall leue,
Where we shall abide behynde;
Where we shall robbe, where we shal
reue,
Where we shal bete and bynde.'
- 13 'Therof no force,' than sayde Robyn;
'We shall do well inowe;
But loke ye do no husbonde harme,
That tilleth with his ploughe.
- 14 'No more ye shall no gode yeman
That walketh by grenē-wode shawe;
Ne no knyght ne no squyer
That wol be a gode felawe.
- 15 'These bisshoppes and these arche-bishoppes,
Ye shall them bete and bynde;
The hyē sherif of Notyngingham,
Hym holde ye in your mynde.'
- 16 'This worde shalbe holde,' sayde Lytell
Johnn,
'And this lesson we shall lere;
It is fer dayes; God sende vs a gest,
That we were at oure dynere!'
- 17 'Take thy gode bowe in thy honde,' sayde Rob[yn];
'Late Much wende with the;
And so shal Willyam Scarlo[k],
And no man abyde with me.
- 18 'And walke vp to the Saylis,
And so to Watlinge Stret[e],
And wayte after some vnkuth gest,
Vp chaunce ye may them mete.
- 19 'Be he erle, or ani baron,
Abbot, or ani knyght,
Bringhe hym to lodge to me;
His dyner shall be dight.'
- 20 They wente vp to the Saylis,
These yeman all thre;
They loked est, they loke[d] weest;
They myght no man see.
- 21 But as they loked in to Bernysdale,
Bi a dernē strete,
Than came a knyght ridinghe;
Full sone they gan hym mete.
- 22 All dreri was his semblaunce,
And lytell was his pryde;
His one fote in the styrop stode,
That othere wauyd beside.
- 23 His hode hanged in his iyn two;
He rode in symple aray;
A soriar man than he was one
Rode neuer in somer day.
- 24 Litell Johnn was full curteyes,
And sette hym on his kne:
'Welcom be ye, gentyll knyght,
Welcom ar ye to me.
- 25 'Welcom be thou to grenē wode,
Hendē knyght and fre;
My maister hath abiden you fastinge,
Syr, al these ourēs thre.'
- 26 'Who is thy maister?' sayde the
knyght;
Johnn sayde, Robyn Hode;
'He is [a] gode yoman,' sayde the
knyght,
'Of hym I haue herde moche gode.
- 27 'I graunte,' he sayde, 'with you to wende,
My bretherne, all in fere;
My purpos was to haue dyned to day
At Blith or Dancastere.'
- 28 Furth than went this gentyl knight,
With a carefull chere;
The teris oute of his iyen ran,
And fell downe by his lere.
- 29 They brought hym to the lodgē-dore;
Whan Robyn hym gan see,

Full curtesly dyd of his hode
And sette hym on his knee.

30 'Welcome, sir knight,' than sayde
Robyn,
'Welcome art thou to me;
I haue abyden you fastinge, sir,
All these ouris thre.'

31 Than answered the gentyll knight,
With wordes fayre and fre;
God the saue, goode Robyn,
And all thy fayre meynë.

32 They wasshed togeder and wyped bothe,
And sette to theyr dynere;
Brede and wyne they had right ynoughe,
And noubles of the dere.

33 Swannes and fessauntes they had full gode,
And foules of the ryuere;
There fayled none so litell a birde
That euer was bred on bryre.

34 'Do gladly, sir knight,' sayde Robyn;
'Gramarcy, sir,' sayde he;
'Suehe a dinere had I nat
Of all these wekys thre.'

35 'If I come ageyne, Robyn,
Here by thys contrë,
As gode a dyner I shall the make
As that thou haest made to me.'

36 'Gramarcy, knyght,' sayde Robyn;
'My dyner whan that I it haue,
I was neuer so gredy, bi dere worthy
God,
My dyner for to craue.'

37 'But pay or ye wende,' sayde Robyn;
'Me thynketh it is gode ryght;
It was neuer the maner, by dere worthi
God,
A yoman to pay for a knyght.'

38 'I haue nought in my coffers,' saide the
knyght,
'That I may profer for shame:'
'Litell Johnn, go loke,' sayde Robyn,
'Ne let nat for no blame.'

39 'Tel me truth,' than saide Robyn,
'So God haue parte of the:'

'I haue no more but ten shelynges,' sayde the knyght,
'So God haue parte of me.'

40 'If thou hast no more,' sayde Robyn,
'I woll nat one peny;
And yf thou haue uede of any more,
More shall I lend the.'

41 'Go nowe furth, Littell Johnn,
The truth tell thou me;
If there be no more but ten shelinges,
No peny that I se.'

42 Lyttell Johnn sprede downe hys mantell
Full fayre vpon the grounde,
And there he fonde in the knyghtes cofer
But euen halfe [a] ponde.

43 Littell Johnn let it lye full styll,
And went to hys maysteer [full] lowe;
'What tidynges, Johnn?' sayde Robyn;
'Sir, the knyght is true inowe.'

44 'Fyll of the best wine,' sayde Robyn,
'The knyght shall begynne;
Moche wonder thinketh me
Thy clot[h]ynge is so thin[n]e.'

45 'Tell me [one] worde,' sayde Robyn,
'And counsel shal it be;
I trowe thou warte made a knyght of force,
Or ellys of yemanry.'

46 'Or ellys thou hast bene a sori husbande,
And lyued in stroke and stryfe;
An okerer, or ellis a lechoure,' sayde
Robyn,
'Wyth wronge hast led thy lyfe.'

47 'I am none of those,' sayde the knyght,
'By God that madë me;
An hundred wynter here before
Myn auncetres knyghtes haue be.'

48 'But oft it hath befall, Robyn,
A man hath be disgrate;
But God that sitteth in heuen aboue
May amende his state.'

49 'Withyn this two yere, Robyne,' he
sayde,
'My neighbours well it knowe,

- Foure hundred ponde of gode money
Ful well than myght I spende.
- 50 'Nowe haue I no gode,' saide the knyght,
'God hath shaped such an ende,
But my chyldren and my wyfe,
Tyll God yt may amende.'
- 51 'In what maner,' than sayde Robyn,
'Hast thou lorne thy rychease?'
'For my greatë foly,' he sayde,
'And for my kynd[ë]nesse.
- 52 'I hade a sone, forsoth, Robyn,
That shulde hau[e] ben myn ayre,
Whanne he was twenty wynter olde,
In felde wolde iust full fayre.
- 53 'He slewe a knyght of Lancaster,
And a squyer bolde;
For to saue hym in his ryght
My godes both sette and solde.
- 54 'My londes both sette to wedde, Robyn,
Vntyll a certayn day,
To a ryche abbot here besyde
Of Seynt Mari Abbey.'
- 55 'What is the som?' sayde Robyn;
'Trowth than tell thou me;'
'Sir,' he sayde, 'foure hundred ponde;
The abbot told it to me.'
- 56 'Nowe and thou lese thy lond,' sayde
Robyn,
'What woll fall of the?'
'Hastely I wol me buske,' sayd the
knyght,
'Ouer the saltë see,
- 57 'And se w[b]ere Criste was quyke and dede,
On the mount of Caluerë;
Fare wel, frende, and haue gode day;
It may no better be.'
- 58 Teris fell out of hys iyen two;
He wolde haue gone hys way:
'Farewel, frende, and haue gode day;
I ne haue no more to pay.'
- 59 'Where be thy frendës?' sayde Robyn:
• 'Syr, neuer one wol me knowe;
While I was ryche ynowe at home
Great boste than wolde they blowe.
- 60 'And nowe they renne away fro me,
As bestis on a rowe;
They take no more hede of me
Thanne they had me neuer sawe.'
- 61 For ruthe thanne wept Litell Johnn,
Scarlok and Muche in fere;
'Fyl of the best wyne,' sayde Robyn,
'For here is a symple chere.
- 62 'Hast thou any frende,' sayde Robyn,
'Thy borowe that woldë be?'
'I haue none,' than sayde the knyght,
'But God that dyed on tree.'
- 63 'Do away thy iapis,' than sayde Robyn,
'Thereof wol I right none;
Wenest thou I wolde haue God to bor-owe,
Peter, Poule, or Johnn?
- 64 'Nay, by hym that me made,
And shope both sonne and mone,
Fynde me a better borowe,' sayde Robyn,
'Or money getest thou none.'
- 65 'I haue none other,' sayde the knyght,
'The sothe for to say,
But yf yt be Our derë Lady;
She fayled me neuer or thys day.'
- 66 'By dere worthy God,' sayde Robyn,
'To seche all Engloude thorowe,
Yet fonde I neuer to my pay
A moche better borowe.
- 67 'Come nowe furth, Litell Johnn,
And go to my tresourë,
And bringe me foure hundered pound,
And loke well tolde it be.'
- 68 Furth than went Litell Johnn,
And Scarlok went before;
He tolde oute foure hundred ponde
By eight and twenty score.
- 69 'Is thys well tolde?' sayde [litell]
Much;
Johnn sayde, 'What gre[ue]th the?
It is almus to helpe a gentyll knyght,
That is fal in pouertë.
- 70 'Master,' than sayde Lityll John,
'His clothinge is full thynne;

Ye must gyue the knight a lyueray,
To lappe his body therin.

71 'For ye haue scarlet and grene, mayster,
And man[y] a riche aray;
Ther is no marchaunt in mery Eng-
lond
So ryche, I dare well say.'

72 'Take hym thre yerdes of euery colour,
And loke well mete that it be;
Lytell Johnn toke none other mesure
But his bowë-tree.

73 And at enery handfull that he met
He lepëd footës three;
'What denyllës drapar,' sayid litell
Muche,
'Thynkest thou for to be?'

74 Scarlok stode full stil and loughe,
And sayd, By God Almyght,
Johnn may gyue hym gode mesure,
For it costeth hym but lyght.

75 'Mayster,' than said Litell Johnn
To gentill Robyn Hode,
'Ye must gine the knig[h]t a hors,
To lede home this gode.'

76 'Take hym a gray coursar,' sayde Robyn,
'And a saydle newe;
He is Oure Ladye's messangere;
God graunt that he be true.'

77 'And a gode palfray,' sayde lytell Much,
'To mayntene hym in his right;
'And a peyre of botës,' sayde Scarlock,
'For he is a gentyll knight.'

78 'What shalt thou gyue hym, Litell
John?' said Robyn;
'Sir, a peyre of gilt sporis clene,
To pray for all this company;
God bringe hym oute of tene.'

79 'Whan shal mi day be,' said the knight,
'Sir, and your wyll be?'
'This day twelue moneth,' saide Robyn,
'Vnder this grenë-wode tre.

80 'It were greäte shamë,' sayde Robyn,
'A knight alone to ryde,
Withoutë squyre, yoman, or page,
To walkë by his syde.

81 'I shall the leude Litell John, my
man,
For he shalbe thy knaue;
In a yema[n]'s stede he may the stande,
If thou greäte nedë haue.'

THE SECONDE FYTTE

82 Now is the knight gone on his way;
This game hym thought full gode;
Whanne he loked on Bernesdale
He blessyd Robyn Hode.

83 And whanne he thought on Bernys-
dale,
On Scarlok, Much, and Johnn,
He blyssyd them for the best company
b. That euer he in come.

84 Then spake that gentyll knyght,
To Lytel Johan gan he saye,
To-morrowe I must to Yorke toune,
To Saynt Mary abbay.

85 And to the abbot of that place
Foure hondred ponde I must pay;
And but I be there vpon this nyght
My londe is lost for ay.

86 The abbot sayd to his couent,
There he stode on grounde,
This day twelue moneth came there a
knyght
And borrowed foure hondred ponde.

87 [He borrowed foure hondred ponde,]
Upon all his londë fre;
But he come this ylkë day
Dysheryte shall he be.

88 'It is full erely,' sayd the pryoure,
'The day is not yet ferre gone;
I had leuer to pay an hondred ponde,
And lay downe anone.

89 'The knyght is ferre beyonde the see,
In Englonde is his ryght,
And suffreth hunger and colde,
And many a sory nyght.

90 'It were grete pytë,' said the pryoure,
'So to haue his londe;
And ye be so lyght of your consyence,
Ye do to hym moch wronge.'

- 91 'Thou arte ener in my berde,' sayd the abbot,
'By God and Saynt Rycharde;'
With that cam in a fat-beded monke,
The heygh selerer.
- 92 'He is dede or hanged,' sayd the monke,
'By God that bought me dere,
And we shall haue to spende in this place
Foure hondred ponde by yere.'
- 93 The abbot and the hy selerer
Stertē forthe full bolde,
The [hye] iustyce of Englonde
The abbot there dyde holde.
- 94 The hye iustyce and many mo
Had take in to they[r] honde
Holy all the knyghtes det,
To put that knyght to wronge.
- 95 They demed the knyght wonder sore,
The abbot and his meynē:
'But he come this ylkē day
Dysheryte shall he be.'
- 96 'He wyll not come yet,' sayd the ius-
tyce,
'I dare well vndertake;'
But in sorowe tymē for them all
The knyght came to the gate.
- 97 Than bespake that gentyll knyght
Untyll his meynē:
Now put on your symple wedes
That ye brought fro the see.
- 98 [They put on their symple wedes,]
They came to the gates anone;
The porter was redy hymselfe,
And welcomed them euerychone.
- 99 'Welcome, syr knyght,' sayd the por-
ter;
'My lorde to mete is he,
And so is many a gentyll man,
For the loue of the.'
- 100 The porter swore a full grete othe,
'By God that madē me,
Here be the best coresed hors
That ener yet sawe I me.
- 101 'Lede them in to the stable,' he sayd,
'That eased myght they be;'
- 'They shall not come therin,' sayd the
knyght,
'By God that dyed on a tre.'
- 102 Lordes were to mete isette
In that abbotes hall;
The knyght went forth and kneled
downe,
And salued them grete and small.
- 103 'Do gladly, syr abbot,' sayd the knyght,
'I am come to holde my day:.'
The fyrst word the abbot spake,
'Hast thou brought my pay?'
- 104 'Not one peny,' sayd the knyght,
'By God that maked me;'
'Thou art a shrewed dettour,' sayd the
abbot;
'Syr iustyce, drynke to me.
- 105 'What doost thou here,' sayd the abbot,
'But thou haddest brought thy pay?'
'For God,' than sayd the knyght,
'To pray of a lenger daye.'
- 106 'Thy daye is broke,' sayd the iustyce,
'Londe getest thou none:.'
'Now, good syr iustyce, be my frende,
And fende me of my fone!'
- 107 'I am holde with the abbot,' sayd the iustyce,
'Both with cloth and fee:.'
'Now, good syr sheryf, be my frende!'
'Nay, for God,' sayd he.
- 108 'Now, good syr abbot, be my frende,
For thy curteysē,
And holde my londēs in thy honde
Tyll I haue made the gree!'
- 109 'And I wyll be thy true seruante,
And trewely seruē the,
Tyl ye haue foure hondred ponde
Of money good and free.'
- 110 The abbot sware a full grete othe,
'By God that dyed on a tree,
Get the londe where thou may,
For thou getest none of me.'
- 111 'By dere worthy God,' then sayd the
knyght,
'That all this worlde wrought,

- But I haue my londe agayne,
Full dere it shall be bought.
- 112 'God, that was of a mayden borne,
Leue vs well to spede!
For it is good to assay a frende
Or that a man haue nede.'
- 113 The abbot lothely on hym gan loke,
And vylaynesly hym gan call;
'Out,' he sayd, 'thou falsë knyght,
Spede the out of my hall!'
- 114 'Thou lyeest,' then sayd the gentyll
knyght,
'Abbot, in thy hal;
False knyght was I neuer,
By God that made vs all.'
- 115 Vp then stode that gentyll knyght,
To the abbot sayd he,
To suffre a knyght to knele so longe,
Thou canst no curteysye.
- 116 'In ioustës and in tournement
Full ferre than haue I be,
And put my selfe as ferre in prees
As ony that euer I se.'
- 117 'What wyll ye gyue more,' sayd the iustice,
'And the knyght shall make a re-
leyse?
And elles dare I safly swere
Ye holde neuer your londe in pees.'
- 118 'An hondred ponde,' sayd the abbot;
The justice sayd, Gyue hym two;
'Nay, be God,' sayd the knyght,
a. 'Yit gete ye it not so.
- 119 'Though ye wolde gyue a thousand
more,
Yet were ye neuer the nere;
Shall there neuer be myn heyre
Abbot, iustice, ne frere.'
- 120 He stert hym to a borde anone,
Tyll a table rounde,
And there he shoke oute of a bagge
Euen four hundred pound.
- 121 'Haue here thi golde, sir abbot,' saide
the knight,
'Which that thou lentest me;
- Had thou ben curtes at my comynge,
Rewarded shuldest thou haue be.'
- 122 The abbot sat styll, and ete no more,
For all his ryall fare;
He cast his hede on his shulder,
And fast began to stare.
- 123 'Take me my golde agayne,' saide the
abbot,
'Sir iustice, that I toke the:'
'Not a peni,' said the iustice,
'Bi Go[d, that dy]ed on tree.'
- 124 'Sir [abbot, and ye me]n of lawe,
b. Now haue I holde my daye;
Now shall I haue my londe agayne,
For ought that you can saye.'
- 125 The knyght stert out of the dore,
Awaye was all his care,
And on he put his good clothyng,
The other he lefte there.
- 126 He wente hym forth full mery syng-ynge,
As men haue tolde in tale;
His lady met hym at the gate,
At home in Verysdale.
- 127 'Welcome, my lorde,' sayd his lady;
'Syr, lost is all your good?'
'Be mery, dame,' sayd the knyght,
a. 'And pray for Robyn Hode,
- 128 'That euer his soulë be in blysse:
He holpe me out of tene;
Ne had be his kyndënesse,
Beggars had we bene.
- 129 'The abbot and I accorded ben,
He is serued of his pay;
The god yoman lent it me,
As I cam by the way.'
- 130 This knight than dwelled fayre at
home,
The sothe for to saye,
Tyll he had gete four hundred pound,
Al redy for to pay.
- 131 He purneyed him an hundred bowes,
The stryngës well ydyght,
An hundred shefe of arowës gode,
The hedys burneshed full bryght;.

- 132 And enery arowe an ellë longe,
With pecok wel idyght,
Inocked all with whyte siluer;
It was a semely syght.
- 133 He purueyed hym an [hondreth men],
Well harness[ed in that stede],
b. And hym selfe in that same sete,
And clothed in whyte and rede..
- 134 He bare a launsgay in his honde,
And a man ledde his male,
And reden with a lyght songe
Vnto Bernysdale.
- 135 But as he went at a brydge ther was a wrastelyng,
And there taryed was he,
And there was all the best yemen
Of all the west countree.
- 136 A full fayre game there was vp set,
A whyte bulle vp i-pyght,
A grete courser, with sadle and brydil,
a. With golde burnysst full bryght.
- 137 A payre of glones, a rede golde rynge,
A pype of wyne, in fay;
What man that bereth hym best i-wys
The pryce shall bere away.
- 138 There was a yoman in that place,
And best worthy was he,
And for he was ferre and frembde bested,
Slayne he shulde haue be.
- 139 The knight had ruthe of this yoman,
In placë where he stode;
He sayde that yoman shulde haue no
harne,
For loue of Robyn Hode.
- 140 The knyght presed in to the place,
An hundreth folowed hym [free],
With bowës bent and arowës sharpe,
For to shende that companye.
- 141 They shulderd all and made hym rome,
To wete what he wolde say;
He toke the yeman bi the hande,
And gaue hym al the play.
- 142 He gaue hym fyue marke for his wyne,
There it lay on the molde,

And bad it shulde be set a broche,
Drynkë who so wolde.

- 143 Thus longe taryed this gentyll knyght,
Tyll that play was done;
So longe abode Robyn fastinge,
Thre hourës after the none.

THE THIRDE FYTTE

- 144 Lyth and lystyn, gentilmen,
All that nowe be here;
Of Litell Johnn, that was the knightës
man,
Goode myrth ye shall here.
- 145 It was vpon a mery day
That yonge men wolde go shete;
Lytell Johnn fet his bowe anone,
And sayde he wolde them mete.
- 146 Thre tymes Litell Johnn shet aboute,
And alwey he slet the wande;
The proudë sherif of Notingham
By the markës can stande.
- 147 The sherif swore a full greate othe:
'By hym that dyede on a tre,
This man is the best arschère
That euer yet sawe I [me.]
- 148 'Say me nowe, wight yonge man,
What is nowe thy name?
In what countre were thou borne,
And where is thy wonynge wane?'
- 149 'In Holdernes, sir, I was borne,
I-wys al of my dame;
Men cal me Reynolde Grenëlef
Whan I am at home.'
- 150 'Sey me, Reyno[l]de Grenëlefe,
Wolde thou dwell with me?
And enery yere I woll the gyue
Twenty marke to thy fee.'
- 151 'I haue a maister,' sayde Litell Johnn,
'A curteys knight is he;
May ye leuë gete of hym,
The better may it be.'
- 152 The sherif gate Litell John
Twelue monethës of the knight;
Therefore he gane him right anone
A gode hors and a wight.

- 153 Nowe is Litell John the sherif's man,
God lende vs well to spede!
But alwey thought Lytell John
To quyte hym wele his mede.
- 154 'Nowe so God me helpē,' sayde Litell
John,
'And by my true leutye,
I shall be the worst seruaunt to hym
That euer yet had he.'
- 155 It fell vpon a Wednesday
The sherif on huntynge was gone,
And Litel Iohn lay in his bed,
And was foriete at home.
- 156 Therefore he was fastinge
Til it was past the none;
'Gode sir stuarde, I pray to the,
Gyue me my dynere,' saide Litell
John.
- 157 'It is longe for Grenēlefe
Fastinge thus for to be;
Therfor I pray the, sir stuarde,
Mi dyner gif me.'
- 158 'Shalt thou neuer ete ne drynke,' saide
the stuarde,
'Tyll my lorde be come to towne.'
'I make myn auowe to God,' saide
Litell John,
'I had leuer to crake thy crowne.'
- 159 The boteler was full vncurteys,
There he stode on flore;
He start to the botery
And shet fast the dore.
- 160 Lytell Johnn gaue the boteler suche a tap
His backe went nere in two;
Though he liued an hundred ier,
The wors shuld he go.
- 161 He sporned the dore with his fote;
It went open wel and fyne;
And there he made large lyueray,
Bothe of ale and of wyne.
- 162 'Sith ye wol nat dyne,' sayde Litell
John,
'I shall gyue you to drinke;
And though ye lyue an hundred wynter,
On Lytel Johnn ye shall thinke.'
- 163 Litell John ete, and Litel John drank,
The while that he wolde;
The sherife had in his kechyn a coke,
A stoute man and a bolde.
- 164 'I make myn auowe to God,' saide
the coke,
'Thou arte a shrewde hynde
In ani hous for to dwel,
For to askē thus to dyne.'
- 165 And there he lent Litell John
God[ē] strokis thre;
'I make myn auowe to God,' sayde
Lytell John,
'These strokis lyked well me.
- 166 'Thou arte a bolde man and hardy,
And so thinketh me;
And or I pas fro this place
Assayed better shalt thou be.'
- 167 Lytell Johnn drew a ful gode sworde,
The coke toke another in hande;
They thought no thyng for to fle,
But stifly for to stande.
- 168 There they faught sore togedere
Two mylē way and well more;
Myght neyther other harme done,
The mountnaunce of an owre.
- 169 'I make myn auowe to God,' sayde
Litell Johnn,
'And by my true lewtē,
Thou art one of the best sworde-men
That euer yit sawe I [me.]
- 170 'Cowdest thou shote as well in a
bowe,
To grenē wode thou shuldest with
me,
And two times in the yere thy clothinge
Chaunged shuldē be;
- 171 'And enery yere of Robyn Hode
Twenty merke to thy fe:'
'Put vp thy swerde,' saide the coke,
'And felowēs woll we be.'
- 172 Thanne he fet to Lytell Johnn
The nowmbles of a do,
Gode brede, and full gode wyne;
They ete and drank theretoo.

- 173 And when they had dronkyn well,
Theyre trouthe togeder they plight
That they wo[l]de be with Robyn
That ylkē samē nyght.
- 174 They dyd them to the tresoure-hows,
As fast as they myght gone;
The lokkēs, that were of full gode
stele,
They brake them euerichone.
- 175 They toke away the siluer vessell,
And all that thei mig[h]t get;
Pecis, masars, ne sponis,
Wolde thei not forget.
- 176 Also [they] toke the godē pens,
Thre hundred ponde and more,
And did them st[r]eyte to Robyn Hode,
Under the grenē wode hore.
- 177 'God the saue, my derē mayster,
And Criste the saue and se !'
And thanne sayde Robyn to Litell
Johnn,
Welcome myght thou be.
- 178 'Also be that fayre yeman
Thou bryngest there with the;
What tydyngēs fro Noty[n]gham ?
Lytyll Johnn, tell thou me.'
- 179 'Well the gretith the proudē sheryf,
And sende[th] the here by me
His coke and his siluer vessell,
And thre hundred ponde and thre.'
- 180 'I make myne avowe to God,' sayde
Robyn,
'And to the Trenytē,
It was neuer by his gode wyll
This gode is come to me.'
- 181 Lytyll Johnn there hym bethought
On a shrewde wyle;
Fyue myle in the forest he ran,
Hym happed all his wyll.
- 182 Than he met the proudē sheref,
Huntynge with houndes and horne;
Lytell Johnn coude of curtesye,
And knelyd hym beforne.
- 183 'God the saue, my derē mayster,
And Criste the saue and se !'
- 'Reynolde Grenēlefe,' sayde the shryef,
'Where hast thou nowē be ?'
- 184 'I haue be in this forest;
A fayre syght can I se;
It was one of the fayrest syghtes
That euer yet sawe I me.
- 185 'Yonder I sawe a ryght fayre harte,
His coloure is of grene;
Seuen score of dere vpon a herde
Be with hym all bydene.
- 186 'Their tyndēs are so sharpe, maister,
Of sixty, and well mo,
That I durst not shote for drede,
Lest they wolde me slo.'
- 187 'I make myn auowe to God,' sayde the shyref,
'That syght wolde I fayne se.'
'Buske you thyderwarde, mi derē
mayster,
Anone, and wende with me.'
- 188 The sherif rode, and Litell Johnn
Of fote he was full smerte,
And whane they came before Robyn,
'Lo, sir, here is the mayster-herte.'
- 189 Still stode the proudē sherief,
A sory man was he;
'Wo the worthe, Raynolde Grenēlefe,
Thou hast betrayed nowē me.'
- 190 'I make myn auowe to God,' sayde
Litell Johnn,
'Mayster, ye be to blame;
I was mysserued of my dynere
Whan I was with you at home.'
- 191 Sone he was to souper sette,
And serued well with siluer white,
And whan the sherif sawe his vessell,
For sorowe he myght nat ete.
- 192 'Make glad chere,' sayde Robyn Hode,
'Sherif, for charitē,
And for the loue of Litell Johnn
Thy lyfe I graunt to the.'
- 193 Whan they had souped well,
The day was al gone;
Robyn commaunde[d] Litell Johnn
To drawe of his hosen and his shone;

194 His kirtell, and his cote of pie,
That was fured well and fine,
And to[ke] hym a grene mantel,
To lap his body therin.

195 Robyn commaundyd his wight yonge
men,
Vnder the grenë-wode tree,
They shulde lye in that same sute,
That the sherif myght them see.

196 All nyght lay the proudë sherif
In his breche and in his [s]chert;
No wonder it was, in grenë wode,
Though his sydës gan to smerte.

197 'Make glade chere, sayde Robyn Hode,
'Sheref, for charitë;
For this is our ordre i-wys,
Vnder the grenë-wode tree.'

198 'This is harder order,' sayde the sherief,
'Than any ankir or frere;
For all the golde in mery Englonde
I wolde nat longe dwell her.'

199 'All this twelue monthes,' sayde Robin,
'Thou shalt dwell with me;
I shall the techë, proudë sherif,
An outlawë for to be.'

200 'Or I be here another nyght,' sayde
the sherif,
'Robyn, nowe pray I the,
Smyte of mijn hede rather to-morowe,
And I forgyue it the.'

201 'Lat me go,' than sayde the sherif,
'For sayntë charitë,
And I woll be the best[ë] frende
That euer yet had ye.'

202 'Thou shalt swere me an othe,' sayde
Robyn,
'On my bright bronde;
Shalt thou neuer awayte me scathe,
By water ne by lande.'

203 'And if thou fynde any of my men,
By nyght or [by] day,
Vpon thyn othë thou shalt swere
To helpe them tha[t] thou may.'

204 Nowe hathe the sherif sworne his othe,
And home he began to gone;

He was as full of grenë wode
As euer was hepe of stone.

THE FOURTH FYTTE

205 The sherif dwelled in Notingham;
He was fayne he was agone;
And Robyn and his mery men
Went to wode anone.

206 'Go we to dyner,' sayde Littell John;
Robyn Hode sayde, Nay;
For I drede Our Lady be wroth with
me,
For she sent me nat my pay.

207 'Haue no doute, maister,' sayde Litell
John;
'Yet is nat the sonne at rest;
For I dare say, and sauely swere,
The knight is true and truste.'

208 'Take thy bowe in thy hande,' sayde
Robyn,
'Late Much wende with the,
And so shal Wylliam Scarlok,
b. And no man abyde with me.'

209 'And walke vp vnder the Sayles,
And to Watlynge-strete,
And wayte after some vnketh gest;
Vp-chaunce ye may them mete.'

210 'Whether he be messengere,
Or a man that myrthës can,
Of my good he shall haue some,
Yf he be a porë man.'

211 Forth then stert Lytel Johan,
Half in tray and tene,
And gyrde hym with a full good
swerde,
Under a mantel of grene.

212 They went vp to the Sayles,
These yemen all thre;
They loked est, they loked west,
They myght no man se.

213 But as [t]he[y] loked in Bernys-
dale,
By the hyë waye,
Than were they ware of two blacke
monkes,
Eche on a good palferay.

214 Then bespake Lytell Johan,
To Much he gau say,
I dare lay my lyfe to wedde,
That [these] monkes haue brought our pay.

215 'Make glad chere,' sayd Lytell Johan,
'And frese your bowes of ewe,
And loke your hertës be seker and sad,
Your stryngës trusty and trewe.

216 'The monke hath two and fifty [men,]
And seuen somers full strounge;
There rydeth no bysshop in this londe
So ryally, I vnderstond.

217 'Brethern,' sayd Lytell Johan,
'Here are no more but we thre;
But we bryngë them to dyner,
Our mayster dare we not se.

218 'Bende your bowes,' sayd Lytell Johan,
'Make all yon prese to stonde;
The formost monke, his lyfe and his deth
Is closed in my honde.

219 'Abyde, chorle monke,' sayd Lytell
Johan,
'No ferther that thou gone;
Yf thou doost, by dere worthy God,
Thy deth is in my honde.

220 'And euyll thryfte on thy hede,' sayd
Lytell Johan,
'Ryght vnder thy hattës bonde;
For thou hast made our mayster wroth,
He is fastyngge so longe.'

221 'Who is your mayster?' sayd the
monke;
Lytell Johan sayd, Robyn Hode;
'He is a stronge thefe,' sayd the
monke,
'Of hym herd I neuer good.'

222 'Thou lvest,' than sayd Lytell Johan,
'And that shall rewë the;
He is a yeman of the forest,
To dyne he hath bodë the.'

223 Much was redy with a bolte,
Redly and anone,
He set the monke to-fore the brest,
To the grounde that he can gone.

224 Of two and fyfty wyght yonge ye-
men
There abode not one,
Saf a lytell page and a grome,
To lede the somers with Lytel Johan.

225 They brought the monke to the lodgë-
dore,
Whether he were loth or lefe,
For to speke with Robyn Hode,
Maugre in theyr tethe.

226 Robyn dyde adowne his hode,
The monke whan that he se;
The monke was not so curteyse,
His hode then let he be.

227 'He is a chorle, mayster, by dere worthy God,'
Than sayd Lytell Johan:
'Thereof no force,' sayd Robyn,
'For curteysy can he none.

228 'How many men,' sayd Robyn,
'Had this monke, Johan?'
'Fyfty and two whan that we met,
But many of them be gone.'

229 'Let blowe a horne,' sayd Robyn,
'That felaushyp may vs knowe;'
Seuen score of wyght yemen
Came pryckynge on a rowe.

230 And euerych of them a good man-
tell
Of scarlet and of raye;
All they came to good Robyn,
To wyte what he wolde say.

231 They made the monke to wasshe and wype,
And syt at his denere,
Robyn Hode and Lytell Johan
They serued him both in-fere.

232 'Do gladly, monke,' sayd Robyn.
'Gramercy, syr,' sayd he.
'Where is your abbay, whan ye are at
home,
And who is your avowë?'

233 'Saynt Mary abbay,' sayd the monke,
'Though I be symple here.'
'In what offyce?' sayd Robyn:
'Syr, the hyë selerer.'

- 234 'Ye be the more welcome,' sayd Robyn,
 'So euer mote I the;
 Fyll of the best wyne,' sayd Robyn,
 'This monke shall drynke to me.'
- 235 'But I haue grete meruayle,' sayd Robyn,
 'Of all this longë day;
 I drede Our Lady be wroth with me,
 She sent me not my pay.'
- 236 'Haue no doute, mayster,' sayd Lytell Johan,
 'Ye haue no nede, I saye;
 This monke it hath brought, I dare well swere,
 For he is of her abbay.'
- 237 'And she was a borowe,' sayd Robyn,
 'Betwene a knyght and me,
 Of a lytell money that I hym lent,
 Under the grenë-wode tree.'
- 238 'And yf thou hast that syluer ibrought,
 I pray the let me se;
 And I shall helpë the eftsones,
 Yf thou haue nede to me.'
- 239 The monke swore a full grete othe,
 With a sory chere,
 'Of the borowehode thou spekest to me,
 Herde I neuer ere.'
- 240 'I make myn avowe to God,' sayd Robyn,
 'Monke, thou art to blame;
 For God is holde a ryghtwys man,
 And so is his dame.'
- 241 'Thou toldest with thyn ownë tonge,
 Thou may not say nay,
 How thou arte her seruaunt,
 And seruest her euery day.'
- 242 'And thou art made her messengere,
 My money for to pay;
 Therefore I cun the morë thanke
 Thou arte come at thy day.'
- 243 'What is in your cofers?' sayd Robyn,
 'Trewes than tell thou me:'
 'Syr,' he sayd, 'twenty marke,
 Al so mote I the.'
- 244 'Yf there be no more,' sayd Robyn,
 'I wyll not one peny;
 Yf thou hast myster of ony more,
 Syr, more I shall lende to the.'
- 245 'And yf I flyndë [more,' sayd] Robyn,
 'I-wys thou shalte it for gone;
 For of thy spendynge-syluer, monke,
 Thereof wyll I ryght none.'
- 246 'Go nowe forthe, Lytell Johan,
 And the trouth tell thou me;
 If there be no more but twenty marke,
 No peny that I se.'
- 247 Lytell Johan spred his mantell downe,
 As he had done before,
 And he tolde out of the monkës male
 Eyght [hondred] pounce and more.'
- 248 Lytell Johan let it lye full styll,
 And went to his mayster in hast;
 'Syr,' he sayd, 'the monke is trewe ynowe,
 Our Lady hath doubled your cast.'
- 249 'I make myn avowe to God,' sayd Robyn —
 'Monke, what tolde I the? —
 Our Lady is the trewest woman
 That euer yet founde I me.'
- 250 'By dere worthy God,' sayd Robyn,
 'To seche all Englund thorowe,
 Yet founde I neuer to my pay
 A moche better borowe.'
- 251 'Fyll of the best wyne, and do hym drynke,' sayd Robyn,
 'And grete well thy lady hende,
 And yf she haue nede to Robyn Hode,
 A frende she shall hym fynde.'
- 252 'And yf she nedeth ony more syluer,
 Come thou agayne to me,
 And, by this token she hath me sent,
 She shall haue such thre.'
- 253 The monke was goynge to London ward,
 There to holde grete mote,
 The knyght that rode so hye on hors,
 To brynge hym vnder fote.

254 'Whether be ye away?' sayd Robyn:
 'Syr, to maners in this londe,
 Too reken with our reues,
 That haue done moch wronge.'

255 'Come now forth, Lytell Johan,
 And harken to my tale;
 A better yemen I knowe none,
 To seke a monkës male.'

256 'How moch is in yonder other corser?'
 sayd Robyn,
 'The soth must we see:'
 'By Our Lady,' than sayd the monke,
 'That were no curteysye,

257 'To bydde a man to dyner,
 And syth hym bete and bynde.'
 'It is our oldë maner,' sayd Robyn,
 'To leue but lytell behynde.'

258 The monke toke the hors with spore,
 Ne lenger wolde he abyde: —
 'Askë to drynkë,' than sayd Robyn,
 'Or that ye forther ryde.' —

259 'Nay, for God,' than sayd the monke,
 'Me reweth I cam so nere;
 For better chepe I myght hane dyned
 In Blythe or in Dankestere.'

260 'Grete well your abbot,' sayd Robyn,
 'And your pryour, I you pray,
 And byd hym send me such a monke
 To dyner euery day.'

261 Now lete we that monke be styll,
 And speke we of that knyght:
 Yet he came to holde his day,
 Whyle that it was lyght.

262 He dyde him streyt to Bernysdale,
 Under the grenë-wode tre,
 And he founde there Robyn Hode,
 And all his mery meynë.

263 The knyght lyght doune of his good palfray;
 Robyn whan he gan see,
 So curteysly he dyde adoune his
 hode,
 And set hym on his knee.

264 'God the sanë, Robyn Hode,
 And all this company:'

'Welcome be thou, gentyll knyght,
 And ryght welcome to me.'

265 Than bespake hym Robyn Hode,
 To that knyght so fre:
 What nedë dryueth the to grenë
 wode?
 I praye the, syr knyght, tell me.

266 'And welcome be thou, ge[n]tyll
 knyght,
 Why hast thou be so longe?'
 'For the abbot and the hyë iustyce
 Wolde haue had my londe.'

267 'Hast thou thy londe [a]gayne?' sayd
 Robyn;
 'Treuth than tell thou me:'
 'Ye, for God,' sayd the knyght,
 And that thanke I God and the.

268 'But take not a grefe,' sayd the knyght,
 'that I haue be so longe;
 I came by a wrastelynge,
 And there I holpe a porë yeman,
 With wronge was put behynde.'

269 'Nay, for God,' sayd Robyn,
 'Syr knyght, that thanke I the;
 What man that helpeth a good yeman,
 His frende than wyll I be.'

270 'Haue here foure hondred pounce,' than sayd the knyght,
 'The whiche ye lent to me;
 And here is also twenty marke
 For your curteysy.'

271 'Nay, for God,' than sayd Robyn,
 'Thou broke it well for ay;
 For Our Lady, by her [hyë] selerer,
 Hath sent to me my pay.'

272 'And yf I toke it i-twyse,
 A shame it were to me;
 But trewely, gentyll knyght,
 Weloom arte thou to me.'

273 Whan Robyn had tolde his tale,
 He leugh and had good chere:
 By my trouthe,' then sayd the knyght,
 'Your money is redy here.'

274 'Broke it well,' sayd Robyn,
 'Thou gentyll knyght so fre;

And welcome be thou, ge[n]tyll knyght,
Under my trystell-tre.

275 'But what shall these bowës do?' sayd
Robyn,

'And these arowës ifedred fre?'

'By God,' than sayd the knyght,

'A porë present to the.'

276 'Come now forth, Lytell Johan,
And go to my treasurë,
And brynge me there foure hondred
pounde;
The monke ouer-tolde it me.

277 'Haue here foure hondred pounde,
Thou gentyll knyght and trewe,
And bye hors and harnes good,
And gylte thy spores all newe.

278 'And yf thou fayle ony spendynge,
Com to Robyn Hode,
And by my trouth thou shalt none fayle,
The whyles I haue any good.

279 'And broke well thy foure hondred
pound,
Whiche I lent to the,
And make thy selfe no more so bare,
By the counsell of me.'

280 Thus than holpe hym good Robyn,
The knyght all of his care:
God, that syt in heuen hye,
Graunte vs well to fare!

THE FYFTH FYTTE

281 Now hath the knyght his leue i-take,
And wente hym on his way;
Robyn Hode and his mery men
Dwelled styll full many a day.

282 Lyth and lysten, gentil men,
And herken what I shall say,
How the proud[ë] sheryfe of Notyng-
ham
Dyde crye a full fayre play;

283 That all the best archers of the north
Sholde come vpon a day,
And [he] that shoteth allther best
The game shall bere a way.

284 He that shoteth allther best,
Furthest fayre and lowe,

At a payre of fynly buttes,
Under the grenë-wode shawe,

285 A ryght good arowe he shall haue,
The shaft of syluer whyte,
The hede and the feders of ryche rede
golde,
In Englund is none lyke.

286 This than herde good Robyn,
Under his trystell-tre:
'Make you redy, ye wyght yonge men;
That shotynge wyll I se.

287 'Buske you, my mery yonge men,
Ye shall go with me;
And I wyll wete the shryuës fayth,
Trewe and yf he be.'

288 Whan they had theyr bowes i-bent,
Theyr takles fedred fre,
Seuen score of wyght youge men
Stode by Robyns kne.

289 Whan they cam to Notyngham,
The buttes were fayre and longe;
Many was the bolde archere
That shoted with bowës stronge.

290 'There shall but syx shote with me;
The other shal kepe my he[ue]de,
And standë with good bowës bent,
That I be not desceyued.'

291 The fourth outlawe his bowe gan bende,
And that was Robyn Hode,
And that behelde the proud[ë] sheryfe,
All by the but [as] he stode.

292 Thryës Robyn shot about,
And alway he slist the wand,
And so dyde good Gylberte
Wyth the whytë hande.

293 Lytell Johan and good Scatheloke
Were archers good and fre;
Lytell Much and good Reynolde,
The worste wolde they not be.

294 Whan they had shot aboute,
These archours fayre and good,
Euermore was the best,
For soth, Robyn Hode.

295 Hym was delynered the good arowe,
For best worthy was he;

He toke the yeft so curteysly,
To grenë wode wolde he.

- 296 They cryed out on Robyn Hode,
And grete hornës gan they blowe:
'Wo worth the, treason!' sayd Robyn,
'Full enyl thou art to knowe.

297 'And wo be thou! thou proudë sheryf,
Thus gladdynge thy gest;
Other wyse thou behotë me
In yonder wylde forest.

298 'But had I the in grenë wode,
Under my trystell-tre,
Thou sholdest leue me a better wedde
Than thy trewe lewtä.'

299 Full many a bowë there was bent,
And arowës let they glyde;
• Many a kyrtell there was rent,
And hurt many a syde.

300 The outlawes shot was so stronge
That no man myght them dryue,
And the proud[ë] sheryfës men,
They fled away full blyue.

301 Robyn sawe the bussument to-broke,
In grenë wode he wolde haue be;
Many an arowe there was shot
Amonge that company.

302 Lytell Johan was hurte full sore,
With an arowe in his kne,
That he myght neythor go nor ryde;
It was full grete pytë.

303 'Mayster,' then sayd Lytell Johan,
'If ener thou loue[d]st me,
And for that ylkë lordës loue
That dyed vpon a tre,

304 'And for the medes of my seruyce,
That I haue serued the,
Lete neuer the proudë sheryf
Alyue now fyndë me.

305 'But take out thy brownë swerde,
And smyte all of my hede,
And gvue me woundës depe and wyde;
No lyfe on me be lefte.'

306 'I wolde not that,' sayd Robyn,
'Johan, that thou were slawe,

For all the golde in mery Englonde,
Though it lay now on a rawe.'

307 'God forbede,' sayd Lytell Much,
'That dyed on a tre,
That thou sholdest, Lytell Johan,
Parte our company.'

308 Up he toke hym on his backe,
And bare hym well a myle;
Many a tyme he layd hym downe,
And shot another whyle.

309 Then was there a fayre castell,
A lytell within the wode;
Double-dyched it was about,
And walled, by the rode.

310 And there dwelled that gentyll knyght,
Syr Rychard at the Lee,
That Robyn had lent his good,
Under the grenë-wode tree.

311 In he toke good Robyn,
And all his company:
'Welcome be thou, Robyn Hode,
Welcome arte thou to me;

312 And moche [I] thanke the of thy confort,
And of thy curteysye,
And of thy gretë kyndënesse,
Under the grenë-wode tre.

313 'I loue no man in all this worlde
So much as I do the;
For all the proud[ë] sheryf of Notyng-
ham,
Ryght here shalt thou be.

314 'Shyt the gates, and drawe the brydge,
a. And let no man come in,
And arme you well, and make you redy,
And to the walles ye wyne.

315 'For one thyng, Robyn, I the behote;
I swere by Saynt Quyntyne,
These forty dayes thou wonnest with
me,
To soupe, ete, and dyne.'

316 Bordes were layde, and clothes were spredde,
Redely and anone;
Robyn Hode and his mery men
To metë can they gone.

THE VI. FYTTE

- 317 Lythe and lysteu, gentylmen,
And herkyn to your songe;
Howe the proudë shyref of Notyng-
ham,
And men of armys stronge,
- 318 Full fast cam to the hyë shyref,
The contrë vp to route,
And they besette the knyghtës castell,
The wallës all aboute.
- 319 The proudë shyref loude gan crye,
And sayde, Thou traytour knight,
Thou kepest here the kynges enemys,
Agaynst the lawe and right.
- 320 'Syr, I wyll anowe that I haue done,
The dedys that here be dyght,
Vpon all the landës that I haue,
As I am a trewë knyght.
- 321 'Wende furth, sirs, on your way,
And do no more to me
Tyll ye wyt oure kyngës wille,
What he wyll say to the.'
- 322 The shyref thus had his answere,
Without any lesynge;
[Fu]rth he yede to London towne,
All for to tel our kinge.
- 323 Ther he telde him of that knight,
And eke of Robyn Hode,
And also of the bolde archars,
That were soo noble and gode.
- 324 'He wyll anowe that he hath done,
To mayntene the outlawes stronge;
He wyll be lorde, and set you at nought,
In all the northe londe.'
- 325 'I wil be at Notyngham,' saide our
kyng,
'Within this fourteenyght,
And take I wyll Robyn Hode,
And so I wyll that knight.
- 326 'Go nowe home, shyref,' sayde our
kyng,
'And do as I byd the;
And ordeyn gode archers ynowe,
Of all the wydë contrë.'
- 327 The shyref had his leue i-take,
And went hym on his way,
And Robyn Hode to grenë wode,
Vpon a certen day.
- 328 And Lytel John was hole of the arowe
That shot was in his kne,
And dyd hym streyght to Robyn Hode,
Vnder the grenë-wode tree.
- 329 Robyn Hode walked in the forest,
Vnder the leuys grene;
The proudë shyref of Notyngham
Thereof he had grete tene.
- 330 The shyref there fayled of Robyn
Hode,
He myght not haue his pray;
Than he awayted this gentyll knyght,
Bothe by nyght and day.
- 331 Euer he wayted the gentyll knyght,
Syr Richarde at the Lee,
As he went on haukyng by the ryuer-
syde,
And lete [his] hawkës flee.
- 332 Toke he there this gentyll knight,
With men of armys stronge,
And led hym to Notyngham warde,
Bounde bothe fote and hande.
- 333 The sheref sware a full grete othe,
Bi hym that dyed on rode,
He had leuer than an hundred pound
That he had Robyn Hode.
- 334 This harde the knyghtës wyfe,
A fayr lady and a free;
She set hir on a gode palfrey,
To grenë wode anone rode she.
- 335 Whanne she cam in the forest,
Vnder the grenë-wode tree,
Fonde she there Robyn Hode,
And al his fayre menë.
- 336 'God the sauë, godë Robyn,
And all thy company;
For Our derë Ladyes sake,
A bonë graunte thou me.
- 337 'Late neuer my wedded lorde
Shamefully slayue be;

He is fast bowne to Notingham warde,
For the loue of the.'

338 Anone than saide goode Robyn
To that lady so fre,
What man hath your lorde [i-]take?

339 . 'For soth as I the say;
He is nat yet thre mylës
Passed on his way.'

340 Vp than sterte gode Robyn,
As man that had ben wode:
'Buske you, my mery men,
For hym that dyed on rode.

341 'And he that this sorowe forsaketh,
By hym that dyed on tre,
Shall he neuer in grenë wode
No lenger dwel with me.'

342 Sone there were gode bowës bent,
Mo than seuen score;
Hedge ne dyche spared they none
That was them before.

343 'I make myn auowe to God,' sayde
Robyn,
'The sherif wolde I fayne see;
And if I may hym take,
I-quyte shall it be.'

344 And whan they came to Notingham,
They walked in the strete;
And with the proudë sherif i-wys
Sonë can they mete.

345 'Abyde, thou proudë sherif,' he sayde,
'Abyde, and speke with me;
Of some tidinges of oure kinge
I wolde fayne here of the.

346 'This seuen yere, by dere worthy
God,
Ne yede I this fast on fote;
I make myn auowe to God, thou proudë
sherif,
It is nat for thy gode.'

347 Robyn bent a full goode bowe,
An arrowe he drowe at wyll;
He hit so the proudë sherife
Vpon the grounde he lay full still.

348 And or he myght vp aryse,
On his fete to stonde,
He smote of the sherifs hede
With his bright[ë] bronde.

349 'Lye thou there, thou proudë sherife,
Euyll mote thou cheue!
There myght no man to the truste
b. The whyles thou were a lyue.'

350 His men drewe out theyr bryght
swerdes,
That were so sharpe and kene,
And layde on the sherynes men,
And dryued them downe bydene.

351 Robyn stert to that knyght,
And cut a two his bonde,
And toke hym in his hand a bowe,
And bad hym by hym stoude.

352 'Leue thy hors the behynde,
And lerne for to renne;
Thou shalt with me to grenë wode,
Through myrë, mosse, and fenne.

353 'Thou shalt with me to grenë wode,
Without ony leasyng,
Tyll that I haue gete vs grace
Of Edward, our comly kyng.'

THE VII. FYTTE

354 The kyng came to Notynghame,
With knyghtës in grete araye,
For to take that gentyll knyght
And Robyn Hode, and yf he may.

355 He asked men of that countrë
After Robyn Hode,
And after that gentyll knyght,
That was so bolde and stout.

356 Whan they had tolde hym the case
Our kyng vnderstode ther tale,
And seased in his honde
The knyghtës londës all.

357 All the passe of Lancasshyre
He went both ferre and nere,
Tyll he came to Plomton Parke;
He faylyd many of his dere.

358 There our kyng was wont to se
Herdës many one,

- He coud vnneth fynde one dere,
That bare ony good horne.
- 359 The kynge was wonder wroth with-
all,
And swore by the Trynytë,
'I wolde I had Robyn Hode,
With eyen I myght hym se.
- 360 'And he that wolde smyte of the knyghtës hede,
And brynge it to me,
He shall haue the knyghtës londes,
Syr Rycharde at the Le.
- 361 'I gyue it hym with my charter,
And sele it [with] my bonde,
To haue and holde for euer more,
In all mery Englonde.'
- 362 Than bespake a fayre olde knyght,
That was treue in his fay:
'A, my leegë lorde the kynge,
One worde I shall you say.
- 363 'There is no man in this countrë
May haue the knyghtës londes, Whyle Robyn Hode may ryde or
gone,
And bere a bowe in his hondes,
- 364 'That he ne shall lese his hede,
That is the best ball in his hode:
Giue it no man, my lorde the kynge,
That ye wyll any good.'
- 365 Half a yere dwelled our comly kynge
In Notynggham, and well more;
Coude he not here of Robyn Hode,
In what countrë that he were.
- 366 But alway went good Robyn
By halke and eke by hyll,
And alway slewe the kyngës dere,
And welt them at his wyll.
- 367 Than bespake a proude fostere,
That stode by our kyngës kne:
'Yf ye wyll se good Robyn,
Ye must do after me.
- 368 'Take fyue of the best knyghtës
That be in your lede,
And walke downe by yon abbay,
And gete you monkës wede.
- 369 'And I wyll be your ledës-man,
And lede you the way,
And or ye come to Notynggham,
Myn hede then dare I lay,
- 370 'That ye shall mete with good Robyn,
On lyue yf that he be;
Or ye come to Notynggham,
With eyen ye shall hym se.'
- 371 Full hast[ë]ly our kynge was dyght,
So were his knyghtës fyue,
Euerych of them in monkës wede,
And hasted them thyder blyve.
- 372 Our kynge was grete aboue his cole,
A brode hat on his crowne,
Ryght as he were abbot-lyke,
They rode up in-to the towne.
- 373 Styf botës our kynge had on,
Forsoth as I you say;
He rode syngunge to grenë wode,
The couent was clothed in graye.
- 374 His male-hors and his gretë somers
Folowed our kynge behynde,
Tyll they came to grenë wode,
A myle vnder the lynde.
- 375 There they met with good Robyn,
Stondynge on the waye,
And so dyde many a bolde archere,
For soth as I you say.
- 376 Robyn toke the kyngës hors,
Hastëly in that stede,
And sayd, 'Syr abbot, by your leue,
A while ye must abyde.
- 377 'We be yemen of this foreste,
Vnder the grenë-wode tre;
We lyue by our kyngës dere,
[Other shyft haue not wee.]
- 378 'And ye haue chyrches and rentës
both,
And gold full grete plentë;
Gyue vs some of your spendynge,
For saynt[ë] charytë.'
- 379 Than bespake our cumly kynge,
Anone than sayd he;
'I brought no more to grenë wode
But forty ponde with me.

380 'I haue layne at Notyngham
 'This fourtynyght with our kynge,
 And spent I haue full moche good,
 On many a grete lordynge.

381 'And I haue but forty ponde,
 No more than haue I me;
 But yf I had an hondred ponde,
 I wolde vouch it safe on the.'

382 Robyn toke the forty ponde,
 And departed it in two partye;
 Halfendell he gaue his mery men,
 And bad them mery to be.

383 Full curteysly Robyn gan say:
 'Syr, haue this for your spendyng;
 We shall mete another day;
 'Gramercy,' than sayd our kynge.

384 'But well the greteth Edward, our
 kynge,
 And sent to the his seale,
 And byddeth the com to Notyngham,
 Both to mete and mele.'

385 He toke out the brodë targe,
 And sone he lete hym se;
 Robyn coud his courteysy,
 And set hym on his kne.

386 'I loue no man in all the worlde
 So well as I do my kynge;
 Welcome is my lordës seale;
 And, monke, for thy tydyng,

387 'Syr abbot, for thy tydynges,
 To day thou shalt dyne with me,
 For the loue of my kynge,
 Under my trystell-tre.'

388 Forth he lad our comly kynge,
 Full fayre by the honde;
 Many a dere there was slayne,
 And full fast dyghtande.

389 Robyn toke a full grete horne,
 And loude he gan blowe;
 Seuen score of wyght yonge men
 Came redy on a rowe.

390 All they kneled on theyr kne,
 Full fayre before Robyn:
 The kynge sayd hym selfe vntyll,
 And swore by Saynt Austyn,

391 'Here is a wonder semely syght;
 Me thynketh, by Goddës pyne,
 His men are more at his byddyng
 Than my men be at myn.'

392 Full hast[ë]ly was theyr dyner idyght,
 And therto gan they gone;
 They serued our kynge with al theyr
 myght,
 Both Robyn and Lytell Johan.

393 Anone before our kynge was set
 The fattë venyson,
 The good whyte brede, the good rede
 wyne,
 And therto the fyne ale and browne.

394 'Make good chere,' said Robyn,
 'Abbot, for charytë;
 And for this ylkë tydyng,
 Blyssed mote thou be.

395 'Now shalte thou se what lyfe we lede,
 Or thou hens wende;
 Than thou may enfourme our kynge,
 Whan ye togyder lende.'

396 Up they stertë all in hast,
 Theyr bowës were smartly bent;
 Our kynge was neuer so sore agast,
 He wende to haue be shente.

397 Two yerdës there were vp set,
 Thereto gan they gange;
 By fyfty pase, our kynge sayd,
 The merkës were to longe.

398 On euery syde a rose-garlonde,
 They shot vnder the lyne:
 'Who so fayleth of the rose-garlonde,'
 sayd Robyn,
 'His takyll he shall tyne,

399 'And yelde it to his mayster,
 Be it neuer so fyne;
 For no man wyll I spare,
 So drynke I ale or wyne:

400 'And bere a buffet on his hede,
 I-wys ryght all bare:'
 And all that fell in Robyns lote,
 He smote them wonder sare.

401 Twyse Robyn shot aboute,
 And euer he cleued the wande,

And so dyde good Gylberte
With the Whytë Hande.

402 Lytell Johan and good Scathelocke,
For nothyng wolde they spare;
When they fayled of the garlonde,
Robyn smote them full sore.

403 At the last shot that Robyn shot,
For all his frendës fare,
Yet he fayled of the garlonde
Thre fyngers and mare.

404 Than bespake good Gylberte,
And thus he gan say;
'Mayster,' he sayd, 'your takyll is lost,
Stande forth and take your pay.'

405 'If it be so,' sayd Robyn,
'That may no better be,
Syr abbot, I delyuer the myn arowe,
I pray the, syr, serue thou me.'

406 'It falleth not for myn ordre,' sayd
our kynge,
'Robyn, by thy leue,
For to smyte no good yeman,
For doute I sholde hym greue.'

407 'Smyte on boldely,' sayd Robyn,
'I giue the largë leue:'
Anone our kynge, with that worde,
He folde vp his sleue,

408 And sych a buffet he gaue Robyn,
To grounde he yede full nere:
'I make myn avowe to God,' sayd
Robyn,
'Thou arte a stalworthe frere.

409 'There is pith in thyn arme,' sayd
Robyn,
'I trowe thou canst well shete:'
Thus our kynge and Robyn Hode
Togeder gan they mete.

410 Robyn behelde our comly kynge
Wystly in the face,
So dyde Syr Rycharde at the Le,
And kneled downe in that place.

411 And so dyde all the wylde outlawes,
Whan they se them knele:
'My lorde the kynge of Englonde,
Now I knowe you well.'

412 'Mercy then, Robyn,' sayd our kynge,
'Vnder your trystyll-tre,
Of thy goodnesse and thy grace,
For my men and me!'

413 'Yes, for God,' sayd Robyn,
'And also God me saue,
I askë mercy, my lordë the kynge,
And for my men I craue.'

414 'Yes, for God,' than sayd our kynge,
'And therto sent I me,
With that thou leue the grenë wode,
And all thy company;

415 'And come home, syr, to my courte,
And there dwell with me.'
'I make myn avowe to God,' sayd
Robyn,
'And ryght so shall it be.

416 'I wyll come to your courte,
Your seruyse for to se,
And brynge with me of my men
Seuen score and thre.

417 'But me lykë well your seruyse,
I [wyll] come agayne full soone,
And shote at the donnë dere,
As I am wonte to done.'

THE VIII. FYTTE

418 'Haste thou ony grenë cloth,' sayd our
kynge,
'That thou wylte sell nowe to
me?'
'Ye, for God,' sayd Robyn,
'Thyrty yerdës and thre.'

419 'Robyn,' sayd our kynge,
'Now pray I the,
Sell me some of that cloth,
To me and my meynë.'

420 'Yes, for God,' then sayd Robyn,
'Or elles I were a fole;
Another day ye wyll me clothe,
I trowe, ayenst the Yole.'

421 The kynge kest of his colë then,
A grene garment he dyde on,
And euery knyght also, i-wyn;
Another had full sone.

- 422 Whan they were clothed in Lyncolne grene,
They keste away theyr graye;
'Now we shall to Notyngham,'
All thus our kynge gan say.
- 423 They bente theyr bowes, and forth they went,
Shotynge all in-fere,
Towarde the towne of Notyngham,
Outlawes as they were.
- 424 Our kynge and Robyn rode togyder,
For soth as I you say,
And they shote plucke-buffet,
As they went by the way.
- 425 And many a buffet our kynge wan
Of Robyn Hode that day,
And nothyng spared good Robyn
Our kynge in his pay.
- 426 'So God me helpë,' sayd our kynge,
'Thy game is nought to lere;
I sholde not get a shote of the,
Though I shote all this yere.'
- 427 All the people of Notyngham
They stode and behelde;
They sawe nothyng but mantels of grene
That couered all the felde.
- 428 Than euery man to other gan say,
I drede our kynge be sloue;
Comë Robyn Hode to the towne, iwys
On lyne he lefte neuer one.'
- 429 Full hast[ë]ly they began to fle,
Both yemen and knaues,
And olde wyues that myght enyll
goo,
They hypped on theyr stanes.
- 430 The kynge l[o]ughe full fast,
And commaunded theym agayne;
When they se our comly kynge,
I-wys they were full fayne.
- 431 They ete and dranke, and made them glad,
And sange with notës hye;
Than bespake our comly kynge
To Syr Rycharde at the Lee.

- 432 He gaue hym there his londe agayne,
A good man he bad hym be;
Robyn thanked our comly kynge,
And set hym on his kne.
- 433 Had Robyn dwelled in the kyngës
courte
But twelue monethes and thre,
That [he had] spent an hondred ponde,
And all his mennes fe.
- 434 In euery place where Robyn came
Euer more he layde downe,
Both for knyghtës and for squyres,
To gete hym grete renowne.
- 435 By than the yere was all agone
He had no man but twayne,
Lytell Johan and good Scathelocke,
With hym all for to gone.
- 436 Robyn sawe yonge men shote
Full fayre vpon a day;
'Alas!' than sayd good Robyn,
'My welthe is went away.
- 437 'Somtyme I was an archere good,
A styffe and eke a stronge;
I was compted the best archere
That was in mery Englonde.
- 438 'Alas!' then sayd good Robyn,
'Alas and well a woo!
Yf I dwele lenger with the kynge,
Sorowe wyll me sloo.'
- 439 Forth than went Robyn Hode
Tyll he came to our kynge:
'My lorde the kynge of Englonde,
Graunte me myn askynge.
- 440 'I made a chapell in Bernysdale,
That semely is to se,
It is of Mary Magdaleyne,
And thereto wolde I be.
- 441 'I myght neuer in this seuen nyght
No tyme to slepe ne wynke,
Nother all these seuen dayes
Nother ete ne drynke.
- 442 'Me longeth sore to Bernysdale,
I may not be therfro;
Barefote and wolwarde I haue hyght
Thyder for to go.'

443 'Yf it be so,' than sayd our kyng,
 'It may no better be,
 Seuen nyght I gyue the leue,
 No lengre, to dwell fro me.'

444 'Gramercy, lorde,' then sayd Robyn,
 And set hym on his kne;
 He toke his lenē full courteysly,
 To grenē wode then went he 445 Whan he came to grenē wode,

 In a mery mornynge,
 There he herde the notēs small
 Of byrdēs mery syngynge.

446 'It is ferre gone,' sayd Robyn,
 'That I was last here;
 Me lyste a lytell for to shote
 At the donnē dere.'

447 Robyn slewe a full grete harte;
 His horne than gan he blow,
 That all the outlawes of that forest
 That horne coud they knowe,

448 And gadred them togyder,
 In a lytell throwe.
 Seuen score of wyght yonge men
 Came redy on a rowe,

449 And fayre dyde of theyr hodes,
 And set them on theyr kne:
 'Welcome,' they sayd, 'our [derē]
 mayster,
 Under this grenē-wode tre.'

450 Robyn dwelled in grenē wode
 Twenty yere and two;
 For all drede of Edwardē our kyng,
 Agayne wolde he not goo.

451 Yet he was begyled, i-wys,
 Through a wycked woman,
 The pryoresse of Kyrkēslly,
 That nye was of hys kynne:

452 For the loue of a knyght,
 Syr Roger of Donkesly,
 That was her ownē speciall;
 Full enyll motē they the !

453 They toke togyder theyr counsell
 Robyn Hode for to sle,
 And how they myght best do that dede,
 His banis for to be.

454 Than bespake good Robyn,
 In place where as he stode,
 'To morow I muste to Kyrke[s]ly,
 Craftely to be leten blode.'

455 Syr Roger of Donkestere,
 By the pryoresse he lay,
 And there they betrayed good Robyn
 Hode,
 Through theyr falsē playe.

456 Cryst haue mercy on his soule,
 That dyed on the rode !
 For he was a good outlawe,
 And dyde pore men moch god.

ROBIN HOOD AND GUY OF GISBORNE

The beginning and perhaps the development of the story might have been more lucid but for verses lost at the very start. Robin Hood dreams of two yeomen that beat and bind him, and goes to seek them, "in green-wood where they be." Sir Guy being one, the other person pointed at must of course be the sheriff of Nottingham, in league with Sir Guy (a Yorkshireman, who has done many a curst turn) for the capture or slaying of Robin. The dream simply foreshadows danger from two quarters. But Robin Hood is nowhere informed, as we are, that the sheriff is out against him with seven score men, has attacked his camp, and taken John prisoner. He knows nothing of this so far on as stanza 45³, where, after killing Guy, he says he will go to Barnsdale to see how his men are faring. Why then does he make his arrangements in stanzas 42-45², before he returns to Barnsdale, to pass himself off for Sir Guy? Plainly this device is adopted with the knowledge that John is a prisoner, and as a means of delivering him; which all that follows shows. Our embarrassment is the greater because we cannot point out any place in the story at which the necessary information could have been conveyed. It will not be enough, therefore, to suppose that verses have been dropped out; there must also have been a considerable derangement of the story. The abrupt transition from the introductory verses is found in 'Adam Bell' (No. 116), and the like occurs in other ballads. A fragment of a dramatic piece founded on the ballad of 'Guy of Gisborne' has been preserved in a manuscript of the date of 1475 or earlier.

'Guye of Gisborne,' Percy MS., p. 262;
Hales and Furnivall, II, 227.

1 WHEN shawes beenesheene, and shradds
full fayre,
And leeuës both large and longe,
Itt is merry, walking in the fayre ffor-
rest,
To heare the small birds songe.

2 The woodweele sang, and wold not cease,
Amongst the leaues a lyne:
And it is by two wight yeomen,
By deare God, that I meaue.

* * * * *

3 'Me thought they did mee beate and binde,
And tooke my bow mee free;
If I bee Robin a-lyue in this lande,
I 'le be wrocken on both them towe.'

4 'Sweauens are swift, master,' quoth Iohn,
'As the wind that blowes ore a hill;
Ffor if itt be neuer soe lowde this
night,
To-morrow it may be still.'

5 'Buske yee, bowne yee, my merry men
all,
Ffor Iohn shall goe with mee;
For I 'le goe seeke yond wight yeomen
In greenwood where the bee.'

6 Thé cast on their gowne of greene,
A shooting gone are they,
Vntill they came to the merry green-
wood,
Where they had gladdest bee;
There were the ware of [a] wight yeo-
man,
His body leaned to a tree.

7 A sword and a dagger he wore by his
side,
Had beene many a mans bane,
And he was cladd in his capull-hyde,
Topp, and tayle, and mayne.

8 'Stand you still, master,' quoth Litle
Iohn,
'Vnder this trusty tree,
And I will goe to yond wight yeoman,
To know his meaning trulye.'

9 'A, Iohn, by me thou setts noe store,
And that 's a ffarley thinge;
How oft send I my men beffore,
And tarry my-selfe behinde ?

10 'It is noe cunning a knaue to ken,
And a man but heare him speake;
And itt were not for bursting of my
bowe,
Iohn, I wold thy head breake.'

11 But often words they breeden bale,
That parted Robin and Iohn;
Iohn is gone to Barn[e]sdale,
The gates he knowes eche one.

12 And when hee came to Barnesdale,
Great heauinesse there hee hadd;
He ffound two of his fellowes
Were slaine both in a slade,

13 And Scarlett a ffoote flyinge was,
Ouer stockes and stone,
For the sheriffe with seuen score men
Fast after him is gone.

14 'Yett one shoote I 'le shoote,' sayes Litle
Iohn,
'With Crist his might and mayne;
I 'le make yond fellow that flyes soe fast
To be both glad and ffaine.'

15 Iohn bent vp a good veiwe bow,
And ffetteled him to shoote;
The bow was made of a tender bough,
And fell downe to his foote.

16 'Woe worth thee, wicked wood,' sayd
Litle Iohn,
'That ere thou grew on a tree !
Ffor this day thou art my bale,
My boote when thou shold bee !'

17 This shoote it was but looselye shott,
The arrowe flew in vaine,
And it mett one of the sheriffes men;
Good William a Trent was slaine.

18 It had beene better for William a Trent
To hange vpon a gallowe
Then for to lye in the greenwoode,
There slaine with an arrowe.

19 And it is sayd, when men be mett,
Six can doe more then three :

And they haue tane Litle Iohn,
And bound him ffast to a tree.

20 'Thou shalt be drawen by dale and downe,' quoth the sheriffe,
'And hanged hye on a hill:'
'But thou may ffayle,' quoth Litle Iohn,
'If itt be Christs owne will.'

21 Let vs leane talking of Litle Iohn,
For hee is bound fast to a tree,
And talke of Guy and Robin Hood,
In the green woode where they bee.

22 How these two yeomen together they
mett,
Vnder the leanes of lyne,
To see what marchandise they made
Euen at that same time.

23 'Good morrow, good fellow,' quoth Sir
Guy;
'Good morrow, good ffellow,' quoth
hee;
'Methinkes by this bow thou beares in thy hand,
A good archer thou seems to bee.'

24 'I am wilfull of my way,' quoth Sir
Guye,
'And of my morning tyde:'
'I 'le lead thee through the wood,' quoth
Robin,
'Good ffellow, I 'le be thy guide.'

25 'I seeke an outlaw,' quoth Sir Guye,
'Men call him Robin Hood;
I had rather meet with him vpon a day
Then forty pound of golde.'

26 'If you tow mett, itt wold be seene whether were better
Afore yee did part awaye;
Let vs some other pastime find,
Good ffellow, I thee pray.

27 'Let vs some other masteryes make,
And wee will walke in the woods euen;
Wee may chance mee[t] with Robin
Hooode
Att some vnsett steven.'

28 They cutt them downe the summer shroggs
Which grew both vnder a bryar,

And sett them three score rood in twinn,
To shoote the prickes full neare.

29 'Leade on, good ffellow,' sayd Sir Guye,
'Lead on, I doe bidd thee :'
'Nay, by my faith,' quoth Robin Hood,
'The leader thou shalt bee.'

30 The first good shoot that Robin ledd
Did not shoote an inch the pricke
ffroe;
Guy was an archer good enoughe,
But he cold neere shoote soe.

31 The second shoote Sir Guy shott,
He shott within the garlande;
But Robin Hooode shott it better then
hee,
For he cloue the good pricke-wande.

32 'Gods blessing on thy heart!' sayes
Guye,
'Goode ffellow, thy shooting is goode;
For an thy hart be as good as thy
hands,
Thou were better then Robin Hood.

33 'Tell me thy name, good ffellow,' quoth
Guy,
'Vnder the leanes of lyne:'
'Nay, by my faith,' quoth good Robin,
'Till thou haue told me thine.'

34 'I dwell by dale and downe,' quoth Guye,
'And I haue done many a curst turne;
And he that calles me by my right name
Calles me Guye of good Gysborne.'

35 'My dwelling is in the wood,' sayes
Robin;
'By thee I set right nought;
My name is Robin Hood of Barnesdale,
A ffellow thou has long sought.'

36 He that had neither beene a kithe nor kin
Might haue seene a full fayre sight,
To see how together these yeomen went,
With blades both browne and bright.

37 To haue seene how these yeomen together fong[ht],
Two howers of a summers day;
Itt was neither Guy nor Robin Hood
That ffettled them to flye away.

- 38 Robin was reacheles on a roote,
And stumbled at that tyde,
And Guy was quicke and nimble with-
all,
And hitt him ore the left side.
- 39 'Ah, deere Lady!' sayd Robin Hoode,
'Thou art both mother and may!
I thinke it was neuer mans destinye
To dye before his day.'
- 40 Robin thought on Our Lady deere,
And soone leapt vp againe,
And thus he came with an awkwarde
stroke;
Good Sir Guy hee has slayne.
- 41 He tooke Sir Guys head by the hayre,
And stuck itt on his bowes end:
'Thou hast beene traytor all thy liffe,
Which thing must haue an ende.'
- 42 Robin pulled forth an Irish kniffe,
And nicked Sir Guy in the fface,
That hee was neuer on a woman borne Cold tell who Sir Guye was.
- 43 Saies, Lye there, lye there, good Sir
Guye,
And with me be not wrothe;
If thou haue had the worse stroakes at my hand,
Thou shalt haue the better cloathe.
- 44 Robin did off his gowne of greene,
Sir Guye hee did it throwe;
And hee put on that capull-hyde,
That cladd him topp to toe.
- 45 'The bowe, the arrowes, and litle horne,
And with me now I 'le beare;
Ffor now I will goe to Barn[e]sdale,
To see how my men doe flare.'
- 46 Robin sett Guyes horne to his mouth,
A lowd blast in it he did blow;
That beheard the sheriffe of Notting-
ham,
As he leaned vnder a lowe.
- 47 'Hearken! hearken!' sayd the sheriffe,
'I heard noe tydings but good;
For yonder I heare Sir Guyes horne
blowe,
For he hath slaine Robin Hoode.
- 48 'For yonder I heare Sir Guyes horne
blow,
Itt blowes soe well in tyde,
For yonder comes that wighty yeoman,
Cladd in his capull-hyde.
- 49 'Come hither, thou good Sir Guy,
Aske of mee what thou wilt haue:'
'I 'le none of thy gold,' sayes Robin
Hood,
'Nor I 'le none of itt haue.
- 50 'But now I haue slaine the master,' he
sayd,
'Let me goe strike the knaue;
This is all the reward I aske,
Nor noe other will I haue.'
- 51 'Thou art a madman,' said the shiriffe,
'Thou sholdest haue had a knights
ffee;
Seeing thy asking [hath] beene soe badd,
Well granted it shall be.'
- 52 But Litle Iohn heard his master speake,
Well he knew that was his steuen;
'Now shall I be loset,' quoth Litle Iohn,
'With Christs might in heauen.'
- 53 But Robin hee hyed him towards Litle
Iohn,
Hee thought hee wold loose him
beliue;
The sheriffe and all his companye
Fast after him did driue.
- 54 'Stand abacke! stand abacke!' sayd
Robin;
'Why draw you mee soe neere?
Itt was neuer the vse in our countrie
One's shrift another shold heere.'
- 55 But Robin pulled forth an Irysh kniffe,
And losed Iohn hand and ffoote,
And gane him Sir Guyes bow in his hand,
And bade it be his boote.
- 56 But Iohn tooke Guyes bow in his hand —
His arrowes were rawstye by the roote — ;
The sherriffe saw Litle Iohn draw a bow
And fettle him to shoote.
- 57 Towards his house in Nottingham
He fled full fast away,

And soe did all his companye,
Not one behind did stay.

58 But he cold neither soe fast goe,
Nor away soe fast runn,
But Litle Iohn, with an arrow broade,
Did cleaue his heart in twinn.

ROBIN HOOD AND THE MONK

The gap at st. 30, l. 2, occurs between two pages. Doubtless some one of Robin's many friends carries the news of his capture to the band. With this there must have come information that he was to await knowledge of the King's pleasure. There is a general resemblance between the rescue of Robin in sts. 61-81 and that of Cloudsly in 'Adam Bell' (No. 116), sts. 56-94. Robin Hood's devotion to the Virgin (st. 34) is a feature which reappears in Nos. 118, 121, 123, and above all in the Gest (No. 117).

a. MS. of about 1450, Cambridge University Library, Ff. 5, 48, fol. 128 b. b. One leaf of a MS. of the same age, containing stanzas 69^a-72, 77^a-80^a, Bagford Ballads, vol. I, art. 6, British Museum.

1 In somer, when þe shawes be sheyne,
And leues be large and long,
Hit is full mery in feyre foreste
To here þe foullys song:

2 To se þe dere draw to þe dale,
And leve þe hilles hee,
And shadow hem in þe levës grene,
Vnder the grene-wode tre.

3 Hit befel on Whitsontide,
Erly in a May mornynge,
The son vp feyre can shyne,
And the briddis mery can syng.

4 'This is a mery mornynge,' seide Litull
John,
'Be hym þat dyed on tre;
A more mery man þen I am one
Lyves not in Cristiantë.

5 'Pluk vp þi hert, my dere mayster,'
Litull John can sey,
'And thynk hit is a full fayre tyme
In a mornynge of May.'

6 'Je, on thyng greves me,' seide Robyn,
'And does my hert mych woo;
þat I may not no solem day
To mas nor matyns goo.

7 'Hit is a fourtnet and more,' seide he,
'Syn I my sauour see;
To day wil I to Notyngham,' seide Robyn,
'With þe myght of mylde Marye.'

8 Than spake Moche, þe mylner sun,
Euer more wel hym betyde!
'Take twelue of þi wyght zemen,
Well weppynd, be þi side.
Such on wolde þi selfe slon,
þat twelue dar not abyde.'

9 'Of all my mery men,' seide Robyn,
'Be my feith I wil non haue,
But Litull John shall beyre my bow,
Til þat me list to drawe.'

10 'þou shall beyre þin own,' seide Litull
Jon,
'Maister, and I wyl beyre myne,
And we well shete a peny,' seide Litull
Jon,
'Vnder þe grene-wode lyne.'

11 'I wil not shete a peny,' seide Robyn
Hode,
'In feith, Litull John, with the,
But ener for on as þou shetis,' seide
Robyn,
'In feith I holde þe thre.'

12 Thus shet þei forth, þese zemen too,
Bothe at buske and brome,
Til Litull John wan of his maister
Fiue shillings to hose and shone.

13 A ferly strife fel þem betwene,
As they went bi the wey;
Litull John seide he had won fiue shillings,
And Robyn Hode seide schortly nay.

14 With þat Robyn Hode lyed Litul Jon,
And smote hym with his hande;
Litul Jon waxed wroth perwith,
And pulled out his bright bronde.

15 'Were þou not my maister,' seide Litull
John,
'þou shuldis by hit ful sore;

- Get þe a man wher þou w[ilt],
For þou getis me no more.'
- 16 þen Robyn goes to Notyngþam,
Hym selfe moruyng allone,
And Litull John to mery Scherwode,
The pathes he knew ilkone.
- 17 Whan Robyn came to Notyngþam,
Sertenly withouten layn,
He prayed to God and myld Mary
To bryng hym out saue agayn.
- 18 He gos in to Seynt Mary chirch,
And kneled down before the rode;
Alle þat euer were þe church within Beheld wel Robyn Hode.
- 19 Beside hym stod a gret-hedid munke,
I pray to God woo he be !
Fful sone he knew gode Robyn,
As sone as he hym se.
- 20 Ont at þe durre he ran,
Fful sone and anon;
Alle þe ȝatis of Notyngþam
He made to be sparred euerychon.
- 21 'Rise vp,' he seid, 'þou prowde schereff,
Buske þe and make þe bowne;
I haue spyed þe kynggis felon,
Ffor sothe he is in þis town.
- 22 'I haue spyed þe false felon,
As he stondis at his masse;
Hit is long of þe,' seide þe munke,
'And euer he fro vs passe.
- 23 'þis traytur name is Robyn Hode,
Vnder þe grene-wode lynde;
He robbyt me onys of a hundred pound,
Hit shalle neuer out of my mynde.'
- 24 Vp þen rose þis prowde shereff,
And radly made hym ȝare;
Many was þe moder son
To þe kyrk with hym can fare.
- 25 In at þe dures þei throly thrust,
With staves ful gode wone;
'Alas, alas !' seid Robyn Hode,
'Now mysse I Litull John.'
- 26 But Robyn toke out a too-hond sworde, þat hangit down be his kne;
- þer as þe schereff and his men stode
thyekest,
Theþurwarde wolde he.
- 27 Thryes thorowout þem he ran þen,
For soþe as I yow sey,
And woundyt mony a moder son,
And twelue he slew þat day.
- 28 His sworde vpon þe schireff hed
Sertanly he brake in too;
'þe smyth þat þe made,' seid Robyn,
'I pray to God wyrke hym woo !
- 29 'Ffor now am I weppynlesse,' seid
Robyn,
'Alasse ! agayn my wylle;
But if I may fle þese traytors fro,
I wot þei wil me kyll.'
- 30 Robyn in to the churchē ran,
Throout hem euerilkon,
* * * * *
- 31 Sum fel in swonyng as þei were dede,
And lay stil as any stone;
Non of theym were in her mynde
But only Litull Jon.
- 32 'Let be your rule,' seid Litull Jon,
'Ffor his luf þat dyed on tre,
Ȝe þat shulde be duȝty men;
Het is gret shame to se.
- 33 'Oure maister has bene hard bystode
And ȝet scapyd away;
Pluk vp your hertis, and leue þis mone,
And harkyn what I shal say.
- 34 'He has seruyd Oure Lady many a
day,
And ȝet wil, securly;
þerfor I trust in hir specialy
No wyckud deth shal he dye.
- 35 'þerfor be glad,' seid Litul John,
'And let þis mournyng be;
And I shal be þe munkis gyde,
With þe myght of mylde Mary.
- 36
'We will go but we too;
And I mete hym,' seid Litul John,
.

- 37 'Loke þat 3e kepe wel owre tristil-tre,
Vnder þe levys smale,
And spare non of this venyson,
þat gose in thys vale.'
- 38 Fforþe þen went these 3emen too,
Litul John and Moche on fere,
And lokid on Moch emys hows,
þe hye way lay full nere.
- 39 Litul John stode at a wyndow in þe
mornynge,
And lokid forþ at a stage;
He was war wher þe munke came ridyng,
And with hym a litul page.
- 40 'Be my feith,' seid Litul John to Moch,
'I can þe tel tithyngus gode;
I se wher þe munke cumys rydyng,
I know hym be his wyde hode.'
- 41 They went in to the way, pese 3emen
boþe,
As curtes men and hende;
þei spyrrred tithyngus at þe munke,
As they hade bene his frende.
- 42 'Ffro whens come 3e?' seid Litull
Jon,
'Tel vs tithyngus, I yow pray,
Off a false owtlay, [callid Robyn Hode,]
Was takyn 3isterday.
- 43 'He robbyt me and my felowes boþe
Of twenti marke in serten;
If þat false owtlay be takyn,
Ffor soþe we wolde be fayn.'
- 44 'So did he me,' seid þe munke,
'Of a hundred pound and more;
I layde furst hande hym apon,
3e may thonke me þerfore.'
- 45 'I pray God thanke you,' seid Litull
John,
'And we wil when we may;
We wil go with you, with your leve,
And bryng yow on your way.
- 46 'Ffor Robyn Hode hase many a wilde
felow,
I tell you in certen;
If þei wist 3e rode þis way,
In feith 3e shulde be slayn.'
- 47 As þei went talking be þe way,
The munke and Litull John,
John toke þe munkis horse be þe hede,
Fful sone and anon.
- 48 Johne toke þe munkis horse be þe hed,
Ffor soþe as I yow say;
So did Much þe litull page,
Ffor he shulde not scape away.
- 49 Be þe golett of þe hode
John pulled þe munke down;
John was nothyng of hym agast,
He lete hym falle on his crown.
- 50 Litull John was so[re] agrevyd,
And drew owt his swerde in hye;
This munke saw he shulde be ded,
Lowd mercy can he crye.
- 51 'He was my maister,' seid Litull John,
'þat þou hase brow3t in bale;
Shalle þou neuer cum at our kyng,
Ffor to telle hym tale.'
- 52 John smote of þe munkis hed,
No longer wolde he dwell;
So did Moch þe litull page,
Ffor ferd lest he wolde tell.
- 53 þer þei beryed hem boþe,
In nouþer mosse nor lyng,
And Litull John and Much infere
Bare þe letturs to oure kyng.
- 54
He knelid down vpon his kne:
'God 3ow saue, my lege lorde,
Ihesus yow saue and se!
- 55 'God yow saue, my lege kyng!'
To speke John was full bolde;
He gaf hym þe letturs in his hond,
The kyng did hit vnfold.
- 56 þe kyng red þe letturs anon,
And seid, So mot I the,
þer was neuer 3oman in mery Ingland
I longut so sore to se.
- 57 'Wher is þe munke þat pese shuld haue brou3t?'
Oure kyng can say:
'Be my trouth,' seid Litull John,
'He dyed after þe way.'

58 þe kyng gaf Moch and Litul Jon
Twenti pound in sertan,
And made þeim ȝemen of þe crown,
And bade þeim go agayn.

59 He gaf John þe seel in hand,
The sheref for to bere,
To bryng Robyn hym to,
And no man do hym dere.

60 John toke his leve at oure kyng,
þe sothe as I yow say;
þe next way to Notyngham
To take, he ȝede þe way.

61 Whan John came to Notyngham
The ȝatis were sparred ychon;
John callid vp þe porter,
He answerid sone anon.

62 'What is þe cause,' seid Litul Jon,
'þou sparris þe ȝates so fast?'
'Because of Robyn Hode,' seid [þe]
porter,
'In depe prison is cast.

63 'John and Moch and Wyll Scathlok,
Ffor sothe as I yow say,
þei slew oure men vpon our wallis,
And sawten vs euey day.'

64 Litull John spyrrid after þe schereff,
And sone he hym fonde;
He oppyned þe kyngus priue seell,
And gaf hym in his honde.

65 Whan þe scheref saw þe kyngus seell,
He did of his hode anon:
'Wher is þe munke þat bare þe letturs?'
He seid to Litull John.

66 'He is so fayn of hym,' seid Litul John,
'Ffor soþe as I yow say,
He has made hym abot of Westmynster,
A lorde of þat abbay.'

67 The scheref made John gode chere,
And gaf hym wyne of the best;
At nyȝt þei went to her bedde,
And euey man to his rest.

68 When þe scheref was on siepe,
Dronken of wyne and ale,
Litul John and Moch for soþe
Toke þe way vnto þe jale.

69 Litul John callid vp þe jayler,
And bade hym rise anon;
He seyde Robyn Hode had brokyn prison,
And out of hit was gon.

70 The porter rose anon sertan,
As sone as he herd John calle;
Litul John was redy with a swerd,
And bare hym to þe walle.

71 'Now wil I be porter,' seid Litul John,
'And take þe keyes in honde:'
He toke þe way to Robyn Hode,
And sone he hym vnbonde.

72 He gaf hym a gode swerd in his hond,
His hed [ther]with for to kepe,
And ther as þe walle was lowyst
Anon down can þei lepe.

73 Be þat þe cok began to crow,
The day began to spryng;
The scheref fond þe jaylier ded,
The comyn bell made he ryng.

74 He made a crye thoroout al þe tow[n],
Wheder he be ȝoman or knave,
þat cowþe bryng hym Robyn Hode,
His warison he shuld haue.

75 'Ffor I dar neuer,' said þe scheref,
'Cum before oure kyng;
Ffor if I do, I wot serten
Ffor soþe he wil me heng.'

76 The scheref made to seke Notyng-
ham,
Bothe þe strete and stye,
And Robyn was in mery Scherwode,
As liȝt as lef on lynde.

77 Then bespake gode Litull John,
To Robyn Hode can he say,
I haue done þe a gode turne for an euyll,
Quyte þe whan þou may.

78 'I haue done þe a gode turne,' seid
Litull John.
'Ffor sothe as I yow say;
I haue brouȝt þe vnder grene-wode lyne;
Ffare wel, and haue gode day.'

79 'Nay, be my trouth,' seid Robyn Hode,
'So shall hit neuer be;

I make þe maister,' seid Robyn Hode,
'Off alle my men and me.'

80 'Nay, be my trouth,' seid Litull John,
'So shalle hit neuer be;
But lat me be a fellow,' seid Litull John,
'No noder kepe I be.'

81 Thus John gate Robyn Hod out of prison,
Sertan withoutyn layn;
Whan his men saw hym hol and sounde,
Ffor sothe they were full fayne.

82 They filled in wyne, and made hem glad,
Vnder þe levys smale,
And ȝete pastes of venyson,
þat gode was with ale.

83 Than worde came to oure kyng
How Robyn Hode was gon,
And how þe scheref of Notyngham
Durst neuer loke hym vpon.

84 Then bespake oure cumly kyng,
In an angur hye:
Litull John hase begyled þe schereff,
In faith so hase he me.

85 Litul John has begyled vs bothe,
And þat full wel I se;
Or ellis þe schereff of Notyngham
Hye hongut shulde he be.

86 'I made hem ȝemen of þe crowne,
And gaf hem fee with my hond;
I gaf hem grith,' seid oure kyng,
'Thorowout all mery Ingland.

87 'I gaf theym grith,' þen seid oure kyng;
'I say, so mot I the,
Ffor sothe soch a ȝeman as he is on
In all Ingland ar not thre.

88 'He is trew to his maister,' seid our
kyng;
'I sey, be swete Seynt John,
He louys better Robyn Hode
Then he dose vs ychon.

89 'Robyn Hode is euer bond to hym,
Bothe in strete and stalle;
Speke no more of this mater,' seid oure
kyng,
'But John has begyled vs alle.'

90 Thus endys the talkyng of the munke
And Robyn Hode i-wysse;
God, þat is euer a crowned kyng,
Bryng vs all to his blisse!

ROBIN HOOD'S DEATH

A very interesting passage of the story is lost in A, owing to the tearing away of nine stanzas of the manuscript at st. 8. Robin Hood and John are on their way to Kirklees. They keep up their shooting all the way, until they come to a black water, crossed by a plank. On the plank an old woman is kneeling, and banning Robin Hood. Robin asks why the old woman is banning him, but the answer is lost, and it is not probable that we shall ever know: out of her proper malignity, surely, or because she is a hired witch, for Robin is the friend of lowly folk. But if this old woman is banning, others (no doubt women) are weeping, for somehow they have learned that he is to be let blood that day at the priory, and foresee that ill will come of it. At the middle of st. 18 nine stanzas are again wanting, and again in a place where we are not helped by the other version. John must call from the outside of the building, judging by what follows. An altercation seems to pass between Robin and Red Roger. Robin slips out of a shot-window, and as he does so is thrust through the side by Red Roger. Red Roger must be below, and John is certainly below. He would have seen to Red Roger had they both been within. But John must be under a window on a different side of the building from that whence Robin issues, for otherwise, again, he would have seen to Red Roger. We are driven to suppose that the words in st. 19 pass between Robin above and Roger below. The account of Robin Hood's death in the Gest agrees in the main with what we find in A. B, though found only in late garlands, is in the fine old strain.

1 'I WILL neuer eate nor drinke,' Robin
Hood said,
'Nor meate will doo me noe good,
Till I haue beene att merry Church-
lees,
My vaines for to let blood.'

2 'That I reade not,' said Will Scarllett,
 'Master, by the assente of me,
 Without halfe a hundred of your best bowmen
 You take to goe with yee.

3 'For there a good yeoman doth abide
 Will be sure to quarrell with thee,
 And if thou haue need of vs, master,
 In faith we will not flee.'

4 'And thou be feard, thou William Scarlett,
 Att home I read thee bee:.'
 'And you be wrothe, my deare master,
 You shall neuer heare more of mee.'

* * * *

5 'For there shall noe man with me goe,
 Nor man with mee ryde,
 And Litle Iohn shall be my man,
 And beare my benbow by my side.'

6 'You'st beare your bowe, master, your
 selfe,
 And shoote for a peny with mee:.'
 'To that I doe assent,' Robin Hood
 sayd,
 'And soe, Iohn, lett it bee.'

7 They two bolde children shotten together,
 All day theire selfe in ranke,
 Vntill they came to blacke water,
 And over it laid a planke.

8 Vpon it there kneeled an old woman,
 Was banning Robin Hoode;
 'Why dost thou bann Robin Hoode?'
 said Robin,

 'To giue to Robin Hoode;
 Wee weepen for his deare body,
 That this day must be lett bloode.'

10 'The dame prior is my aunts daughter,
 And nie vnto my kinne;
 I know shee wold me noe harme this
 day,
 For all the world to winne.'

11 Forth then shotten these children two,
 And they did neuer lin,
 Vntill they came to merry Churchlees,
 To merry Churchlee[s] with-in.

12 And when they came to merry Church-
 lees,
 They knoced vpon a pin;
 Vpp then rose dame prioresse,
 And lett good Robin in.

13 Then Robin gaue to dame prioresse
 Twenty pound in gold,
 And bad her spend while that wold
 last,
 And shee shold haue more when shee wold.

14 And downe then came dame prioresse,
 Downe she came in that ilke,
 With a pair off blood-irons in her hands,
 Were wrapped all in silke.

15 'Sett a chaffing-dish to the fyer,' said dame prioresse,
 'And stripp thou vp thy sleeue:.'
 I hold him but an vnwise man
 That will noe warning leeve.

16 Shee laid the blood-irons to Robin Hoods vaine,
 Alacke, the more pitye!
 And pearct the vaine, and let out the
 bloode,
 That full red was to see.

17 And first it bled, the thicke, thicke
 bloode,
 And afterwards the thinne,
 And well then wist good Robin Hoode
 Treason there was within.

18 'What cheere my master?' said Litle
 Iohn;
 'In faith, Iohn, litle goode;'

19 'I haue upon a gowne of greene,
 Is cut short by my knee,
 And in my hand a bright browne brand
 That will well bite of thee.'

- 20 But forth then of a shot-windowe
Good Robin Hood he could glide;
Red Roger, with a grounden glaue,
Thrust him through the milke-white
side.
- 21 But Robin was light and nimble of foote,
And thought to abate his pride,
Ffor betwixt his head and his shoulders
He made a wound full wide.
- 22 Says, Ly there, ly there, Red Roger,
The doggs they must thee eate;
'For I may haue my houze,' he said,
'For I may both goe and speake.
- 23 'Now giue me mood,' Robin said to Litle Iohn,
'Giue me mood with thy hand;
I trust to God in heauen soe hye
My houze will me bestand.'
- 24 'Now giue me leaue, giue me leaue, master,' he said,
'For Christs loue giue leaue to me,
To set a fier within this hall,
And to burne vp all Churchlee.'
- 25 'That I reade not,' said Robin Hoode
then,
'Litle Iohn, for it may not be;
If I shold doe any widow hurt, at my latter end,
God,' he said, 'wold blame me;
- 26 'But take me vpon thy backe, Litle
Iohn,
And beare me to yonder streete,
And there make me a full fayre graue,
Of grauell and of greete.

- 1 WHEN Robin Hood and Little John
Down a down a down a down
Went oer yon bank of broom,
Said Robin Hood bold to Little
John,
We have shot for many a pound.
Hey, etc.
- 2 But I am not able to shoot one shot
more,
My broad arrows will not flee;
But I have a cousin lives down below,
Please God, she will bleed me.
- 3 Now Robin he is to fair Kirkly gone,
As fast as he can win;
But before he came there, as we do
hear,
He was taken very ill.
- 4 And when he came to fair Kirkly-hall,
He knockd all at the ring,
But none was so ready as his cousin herself
For to let bold Robin in.
- 5 'Will you please to sit down, cousin
Robin,' she said,
'And drink some beer with me ?
'No, I will neither eat nor drink,
Till I am blooded by thee.'
- 6 'Well, I have a room, cousin Robin,'
she said,
'Which you did never see,
And if you please to walk therein,
You blooded by me shall be.'
- 7 She took him by the lily-white hand,
And led him to a private room,
And there she blooded bold Robin Hood,
While one drop of blood would run
down.
- 8 She blooded him in a vein of the arm,
And locked him up in the room;
Then did he bleed all the live-long
day,
Until the next day at noon.
- 9 He then bethought him of a casement
there,
Thinking for to get down;
But was so weak he could not leap,
He could not get him down.

- 10 He then bethought him of his bugle-horn,
Which hung low down to his knee;
He set his horn unto his mouth,
And blew out weak blasts three.
- 11 Then Little John, when hearing him,
As he sat under a tree,
'I fear my master is now near dead,
He blows so wearily.'
- 12 Then Little John to fair Kirkly is gone,
As fast as he can dree;
But when he came to Kirkly-hall,
He broke locks two or three:
- 13 Until he came bold Robin to see,
Then he fell on his knee;
'A boon, a boon,' cries Little John,
'Master, I beg of thee.'
- 14 'What is that boon,' said Robin Hood,
'Little John, [thou] begs of me?'
'It is to burn fair Kirkly-hall,
And all their nunnery.'
- 15 'Now nay, now nay,' quoth Robin Hood,
'That boon I'll not grant thee;
I never hurt woman in all my life,
Nor men in woman's company.'
- 16 'I never hurt fair maid in all my time,
Nor at mine end shall it be;
But give me my bent bow in my hand,
And a broad arrow I'll let flee
And where this arrow is taken up,
There shall my grave digged be.'
- 17 'Lay me a green sod under my head,
And another at my feet;
And lay my bent bow by my side,
Which was my music sweet;
And make my grave of gravel and green,
Which is most right and meet.'
- 18 'Let me have length and breadth
enough,
With a green sod under my head;
That they may say, when I am dead,
Here lies bold Robin Hood.'
- 19 These words they readily granted him,
Which did bold Robin please:
And there they buried bold Robin Hood,
Within the fair Kirkleys.

ROBIN HOOD AND THE POTTER

'Robin Hood and the Butcher' (No. 122) repeats many of the incidents of the present ballad. There are only too many variations of the adventure in which Robin Hood unexpectedly meets his match in a hand-to-hand fight, now with a pinder, then with a tanner, tinker, shepherd, beggar, etc. His adversaries, after proving their mettle, are sometimes invited and induced to join his company: not so here. In some broadside ballads of this description, with an extravagance common enough in imitations, Robin Hood is very badly mauled, and made all but contemptible. The Play of Robin Hood, an imperfect copy of which is printed at the end of Copland's and of White's edition of the Gest, is founded on the present ballad and on No. 123.

Library of the University of Cambridge, MS. Ee. 4. 35, fol. 14 b, of about 1500.

- 1 IN schomer, when the leves spryng,
The bloschons on euery bowe,
So merey doyt the berdys syng
Yn wodys merey now.
- 2 Herkens, god yemen,
Comley, corteys, and god,
On of the best pat yeuer bare bowe,
Hes name was Roben Hode.
- 3 Roben Hood was the yeman's name,
That was boyt corteys and ffre;
Ffor the loffe of owre ladey,
All wemen werschepyd he.
- 4 Bot as the god yeman stod on a day,
Among hes mery maney,
He was ware of a prowde potter,
Cam dryfyng owyr the ley.
- 5 'Yonder comet a prod potter,' seyde
Roben,
'That long hayt hantyd pis wey;
He was neuer so corteys a man
On peney of pawage to pay.'
- 6 'Y met hem bot at Went-breg,' seyde Lytyll John,
'And therefore yeffell mot he the !
Seche thre strokes he me gafe,
Yet by my seydis cleffe pey.'

- 7 'Y ley forty shillings,' seyde Lytyll John,
'To pay het thes same day,
Ther ys nat a man among hus all
A wed schall make hem ley.'
- 8 'Here ys forty shillings,' seyde Roben,
'More, and thow dar say,
pat y schall make pat prowde potter,
A wed to me schall he ley.'
- 9 There thes money they leyde,
They toke het a yeman to kepe;
Roben beffore the potter he breyde,
A[nd] bad hem stond stell.
- 10 Handys apon hes hors he leyde,
And bad the potter stonde foll stell;
The potter schorteley to hem seyde,
Ffelow, what ys they well?
- 11 'All thes thre yer, and more, potter,' he seyde,
'Thow hast hantyd thes wey,
Yet were tow neuer so cortys a man
On peney of pauge to pay.'
- 12 'What ys they name,' seyde þe potter,
'Ffor pauge thow aske of me?'
'Roben Hod ys mey name,
A wed schall thow leffe me.'
- 13 'Wed well y non leffe,' seyde þe pot-
ter,
'Nor pavag well y non pay;
Awey they honde ffro mey hors!
Y well the tene eyls, be mey ffay.'
- 14 The potter to hes cart he went,
He was not to seke;
A god to-hande staffe perowt he hent,
Beffore Roben he leppyd.
- 15 Roben howt with a swerd bent,
A bokeler en hes honde;
The potter to Roben he went,
And seyde, Ffelow, let mey hors go.
- 16 Togeder then went thes to yemen,
Het was a god seyt to se;
Thereof low Robyn hes men,
There they stod onder a tre.
- 17 Leytell John to hes ffelowhe[s] seyde,
'Yend potter well steffeley stonde:'

- The potter, with a acward stroke,
Smot the bokeler owt of hes honde.
- 18 A[nd] ar Roben meyt get het agen
Hes bokeler at hes ffette,
The potter yn the neke hem toke,
To the gronde sone he yede.
- 19 That saw Roben hes men,
As thay stod onder a bow;
'Let vs helpe owre master,' seyde Lytell John,
'Yonder potter,' seyde he, 'els well hem slo.'
- 20 Thes yemen went with a breyde,
To ther mast[er] they cam.
Leytell John to hes mast[er] seyde,
Ho haet the wager won?
- 21 'Schall y haffe yowre forty shillings,' seyde Lytl John,
'Or ye, master, schall haffe myne?'
'Yeff they were a hundred,' seyde Roben,
'Y ffeythe, they ben all theyne.'
- 22 'Het ys fol leytell cortesey,' seyde þe potter,
'As y haffe harde weyse men saye,
Yeffe a pore yeman com drywyng on the wey,
To let hem of hes gorney.'
- 23 'Be mey trowet, thow seys soyt,' seyde Roben,
'Thow seys god yeme[n]rey;
And thow dreyffe fforthe yeuery day,
Thow schalt neuer be let ffor me.'
- 24 'Y well prey the, god potter,
A ffelischepe well thow haffe?
Geffe me they clothyng, and þow schalt hafe myne;
Y well go to Notynggam.'
- 25 'Y gra[n]t thereto,' seyde the potter,
'Thow schalt ffeynde me a ffelow gode;
Bot thow can sell mey pottys well,
Com ayen as thow yode.'
- 26 'Nay, be mey trowt,' seyde Roben,
'And then y bescro mey hede.
Yeffe y bryng eny pottys ayen,
And eney weyffe well hem chepe.'

27 Than spake Leytell John,
And all hes ffelowhes heynd,
'Master, be well ware of the screffe of Notynggam,
Ffor he ys leytell howr ffrende.'

28 'Heyt war howte !' seyde Roben,
'Ffelowhes, let me a lone;
Thorow the helpe of Howr Ladey,
To Notynggam well y gon.'

29 Robyn went to Notynggam,
Thes pottys ffor to sell;
The potter abode with Robens men,
There he ffered not eylle.

30 Tho Roben droffe on hes wey,
So merey ower the londe:
Her es more, and affter ys to saye,
The best ys beheynde.

31 When Roben cam to Notynggam,
The soyt yef y scholde saye,
He set op hes hors anon,
And gaffe hem hotys and haye.

32 Yn the medys of the towne,
There he schowed hes ware;
'Pottys ! pottys !' he gan crey foll
sone,
'Haffe hansell ffor the mare !'

33 Ffoll effen agenest the screffeyes gate
Schowed he hes chaffare;
Weyffes and wedowes abowt hem
drow,
And chepyd ffast of hes ware.

34 Yet, 'Pottys, gret chepe !' creyed Robyn,
'Y loffe yeffell thes to stonde ;'
And all that say hem sell
Seyde he had be no potter long.

35 The pottys that were werthe pens ffeyffe,
He solde tham ffor pens thre;
Preveley seyde man and weyffe,
'Ywnder potter schall neuer the.'

36 Thos Roben solde ffoll ffast,
Tell he had pottys bot ffeyffe;
Op he hem toke of hes care,
And sende hem to the screffeyes weyffe.

37 Thereof sche was ffoll ffayne,
'Gereamarsey, ser,' than seyde sche;

'When ye com to thes contre ayen,
Y schall bey of the[y] pottys, so mot
y the.'

38 'Ye schall haffe of the best,' seyde
Roben,
And sware be the Treneytë;
Ffoll corteysley [sc]he gan hem call,
'Com deyne with the screfe and
me.'

39 'God amarsey,' seyde Roben,
'Yowre bedyng schall be doyn ;'
A mayden yn the pottys gan bere,
Roben and pe screffe weyffe ffollowed anon.

40 Whan Roben yn to the hall cam,
The screffë sone he met;
The potter cowed of corteysley,
And sone the screffe he gret.

41 'Lo, ser, what thes potter hayt geffe yow
and me;
Ffeyffe pottys smalle and grete !'
'He ys ffoll wellcom,' seyd the screffe;
'Let os was, and go to mete.'

42 As they sat at her methe,
With a nobell chere,
To of the screffes men gan speke
Off a gret wager;

43 Off a schotyng, was god and ffeyne,
Was made the thother daye,
Off forty shillings, the soyt to saye,
Who scholde thes wager wen.

44 Styll than sat thes prowde potter,
Thos than thowt he;
As y am a trow cerstyn man,
Thes schotyng well y se.

45 Whan they had ffared of the best,
With bred and ale and weyne,
To the bottys the made them prest,
With bowes and boltys ffoll ffeyne.

46 The screffes men schot ffoll ffast,
As archares pat weren godde;
There cam non ner ney the marke
Bey halffe a god archares bowe.

47 Stell then stod the prowde potter,
Thos than seyde he;

And y had a bow, be the rode,
On schot scholde yow se.

48 'Thow schall haffe a bow,' seyde the
screffe,
'The best þat thow well cheys of thre;
Thou semyst a stalward and a stronge,
Asay schall thow be.'

49 The screffe commandyd a yeman þat stod hem bey
Affter bowhes to weynde;
The best bow þat the yeman browthe
Roben set on a stryng.

50 'Now schall y wet and thow be god,
And polle het op to they nere;'
'So god me helpe,' seyde the prowde
potter,
'þys ys bot rygzt weke gere.'

51 To a quequer Roben went,
A god bolt owthe he toke;
So ney on to the marke he went,
He ffayled not a fothe.

52 All they schot abowthe agen,
The screffes men and he;
Off the marke he welde not ffayle,
He cleffed the preke on thre.

53 The screffes men thowt gret schame
The potter the mastery wan;
The screffe lowe and made god game,
And seyde, Potter, thow art a man.

54
Thow art worthey to bere a bowe
Yn what plas that þow goe.

55 'Yn mey cart y haffe a bowe,
Ffor soyt,' he seyde, 'and that a godde;
Yn mey cart ys the bow
That gaffe me Robyn Hode.'

56 'Knowest thow Robyn Hode?' seyde the
screffe,
'Potter, y prey the tell thow me;'
'A hundred torne y haffe schot with hem,
Vnder hes tortyll-tre.'

57 'Y had leuer nar a hundred ponde,' seyde þe screffe,

'And sware be the Trenitë,

þat the ffals outelawe stod be me.'

58 'And ye well do afftyr mey red,' seyde þe potter,
'And boldeley go with me,
And to morow, or we het bred,
Roben Hode well we se.'

59 'Y wel queyt the,' kod the screffe,
'Y swere be God of meythe;'
Schetyng thay left, and hom þey went,
Her soper was reddy deythe.

60 Vpon the morow, when het was day,
He boskyd hem fforthe to reyde;
The potter hes cart fforthe gan ray,
And wolde not leffe beheynde.

61 He toke leffe of the screffys wyffe,
And thankyd her of all thyng:
'Dam, ffor mey loffe and ye well þys
were,
Y geffe yow here a golde ryng.'

62 'Gramarsey,' seyde the weyffe,
'Ser, god eyldet het the;'
The screffes hart was neuer so leythe,
The ffeyre fforeyst to se.

63 And when he cam yn to the fforeyst,
Yonder the leffes grene,
Berdis there sange on bowhes prest,
Het was gret goy to se.

64 'Here het ys merey to be,' seyde
Roben,
'Ffor a man that had hawt to spende;
Be mey horne I schall awet
Yeff Roben Hode be here.'

65 Roben set hes horne to hes mowthe,
And blow a blast þat was ffoll god;
þat herde hes men þat pere stode,
Ffer downe yn the wodde.

66 'I her mey master blow,' seyde Leytell
John,
.
They ran as thay were wode.

67 Whan thay to thar master cam,
Leytell John wold not spare;

- 'Master, how haffe yow ffare yn Notyng-gam?
How haffe yow solde yowre ware?'
- 68 'Ye, be mey trowthe, Leyty[ll] John,
Loke thow take no care;
Y haffe browt the screffe of Notynggam,
Ffor all howre chaffare.'
- 69 'He ys ffol wellcom,' seyde Lytyll John,
'Thes tydyng ys ffol godde;'
The screffe had leuer nar a hundred ponde
He had [neuer sene Roben Hode.]
- 70 '[Had I] west pat befforen,
At Notynggam when we were,
Thow scholde not com yn ffeyre fforest
Of all thes thowsande eyre.'
- 71 'That wot y well,' seyde Roben,
'Y thanke God that ye be here;
Thereffore schall ye leffe yowre hors
with hos,
And all yowre hother gere.'
- 72 'That ffend I Godys fforbod,' kod the
screffe,
'So to lese mey godde;
.'
.'
- 73 'Hether ye cam on hors ffol hey,
And hom schall ye go on ffote;
And gret well they weyffe at home,
The woman ys ffol godde.
- 74 'Y schall her sende a wheyt palfrey,
Het ambellet be mey ffey,
.'
.'
- 75 'Y schall her sende a wheyt palfrey,
Het hambellet as the weynde;
Nere ffor the loffe of yowre weyffe,
Off more sorow scholde yow seyng.'
- 76 Thes parted Robyn Hode and the
screffe;
To Notynggam he toke the waye;
Hes weyffe ffeyre welcomed hem hom,
And to hem gan sche saye:
- 77 Seyr, how haffe yow ffared yn grene
fforeyst?
Haffe ye browt Roben hom?

- 'Dam, the deyell spede hem, bothe
bodey and bon;
Y haffe hade a ffol gret skorne.
- 78 'Of all the god that y haffe lade to grene wod,
He hayt take het ffro me;
All bot thes ffeyre palfrey,
That he hayt sende to the.'
- 79 With pat sche toke op a lowde lawhyng,
And swhare be hem pat deyed on tre,
'Now haffe yow payed ffor all pe pottys
That Roben gaffe to me.
- 80 'Now ye be com hom to Notynggam,
Ye schall haffe god ynowe;'
Now speke we of Roben Hode,
And of the pottyr ondyr the grene bowhe.
- 81 'Potter, what was they pottys worthe
To Notynggam pat y ledde with me?'
'They wer worthe to nobellys,' seyde he,
'So mot y treyffe or the;
So cowde y [haffe] had ffor tham,
And y had there be.'
- 82 'Thow schalt hafe ten ponde,' seyde
Roben,
'Of money ffeyre and ffre;
And yener whan thow comest to grene
wod,
Wellcom, potter, to me.'
- 83 Thes partyd Robyn, the screffe, and the
potter,
Oudernethe the grene-wod tre;
God haffe mersey on Roben Hodys salla,
And saffe all god yemanrey!

BUTCHER

This story is a variation of 'Robin Hood and the Potter' (No. 121). There are three considerable gaps in the manuscript of A; but B enables us to complete the story. The passage in which the Sheriff is inveigled into Robin's haunts has close affinity with the Gest, sta. 181 ff. The first three stanzas of A apparently belong to some other ballad. B a is signed T. R., as is No. 133 in two editions. These appear to be the initials of the person who wrote the story over with middle rhyme in the third line of the stanza, a peculiarity which distinguishes a group of ballads sung to the tune of 'Robin Hood and the Stranger' (see Introduction to No. 125).

A

'Robin Hood and the Butcher,' Percy MS., p. 7; Hales and Furnivall, I, 19.

- 1 But Robin he walkes in the g[reene] fforrest,
As merry as bird on bonghe,
But he that feitches good Robins head,
Hee 'le find him game enoughe.
- 2 But Robine he walkes in the greene fforrest,
Vnder his trusty-tree;
Sayes, Harken, hearken, my merrymen all,
What tydings is come to me.
- 3 The sheriffe he hath made a cry,
Hee 'le have my head i-wis;
But ere a tweluemonth come to an end
I may chance to light on his.
- 4 Robin he marcht in the greene forrest,
Vnder the greenwood scray,
And there he was ware of a proud bucher,
Came drining flesh by the way.
- 5 The bucher he had a cut-taild dogg,
And at Robins face he flew;
But Robin he was a good sword,
The bucher's dogg he slew.
- 6 'Why slayes thou my dogg?' sayes the bucher,
'For he did none ill to thee;
By all the saints that are in heaven
Thou shalt haue buffetts three.'
- 7 He tooke his staffe then in his hand,
And he turnd him round about:
'Thou hast a litle wild blood in thy head,
Good fellow, thou 'st haue it letten out.'
- 8 'He that does that deed,' sayes Robin,
'I 'le count him for a man;
- But that while will I draw my sword,
And fend it if I can.'
- 9 But Robin he stroke att the bloudy bucher,
In place were he did stand,
* * * *
- 10 'I [am] a younge bucher,' sayes Robin,
'You fine dames am I come amonge;
But euer I beseech you, good Mrs Sheriffe,
You must see me take noe wronge.'
- 11 'Thou art verry welcome,' said Master Sherriff's wiffe,
'Thy inne heere up [to] take;
If any good ffellow come in thy com-
panie,
Hee 'st be welcome for thy sake.'
- 12 Robin called ffor ale, soe did he for wine,
And for it he did pay:
'I must to my markett goe,' sayes Robin,
'For I hold time itt of the day.'
- 13 But Robin is to the markett gone,
Soe quickly and beline,
He sold more flesh for one peny
Then othe[r] buchers did for fne.
- 14 The drew about the younge bucher,
Like sheepe into a fold;
Yea neuer a bucher had sold a bitt
Till Robin he had all sold.
- 15 When Robin Hood had his markett made,
His flesh was sold and gone;
Yea he had receined but a litle mony,
But thirty pence and one.
- 16 Seaven buchers, the garded Robin Hood,
Ffull many time and oft;
Sayes, We must drinke with you, brother bucher,
It's custome of our crafte.
- 17 'If that be the custome of your crafte,
As heere you tell to me,
Att four of the clocke in the afternoone
At the sheriffs hall I wilbe.'
- * * * *

18
 'If thou doe like it well;
 Yea heere is more by three hundred
 pound
 Then thou hast beasts to sell.'

19 Robyn sayd naught, the more he thought:
 'Mony neere comes out of time;
 If once I catch thee in the greene fforest,
 That mony it shall be mine.'

20 But on the next day seuen butchers
 Came to guard the sheriffe that day;
 But Robin he was the whigh[t]est man,
 He led them all the way.

21 He led them into the greene fforest,
 Vnder the trusty tree;
 Yea, there were harts, and ther were
 hynds,
 And staggs with heads full high.

22 Yea, there were harts and there were
 hynds,
 And many a goodly ffawne;
 'Now praised be God,' says bold Robin,
 'All these they be my owne.'

23 'These are my horned beasts,' says Robin,
 'Master Sherriffe, which must make the stake;'
 'Bnt euer alacke, now,' said the sheriffe,
 'That tydings comes to late!'

24 Robin sett a shrill horne to his mouth,
 And a loud blast he did blow,
 And then halfe a hundred bold archers
 Came rakeing on a row.

25 But when the came befor bold Robin,
 Even there the stood all bare:
 'You are welcome, master, from Nottingham:
 How haue you sold your ware?'

* * * * *

26

 It proues bold Robin Hood.

27 'Yea, he hath robbed me of all my
 gold
 And siluer that euer I had;

But that I had a verry good wife at home,
 I shold haue lost my head.

28 'But I had a verry good wife at home,
 Which made him gentle cheere,
 And therfor, for my wifes sake,
 I shold haue better favor heere.

29 'But such favor as he shewed me
 I might haue of the devills dam,
 That will rob a man of all he hath,
 And send him naked home.'

30 'That is very well done,' then says his
 wiffe,
 'Itt is well done, I say;
 You might haue tarryed att Nottingham,
 Soe fayre as I did you pray.'

31 'I haue learned wisdome,' says the sherriffe,
 'And, wife, I haue learned of thee;
 But if Robin walke easte, or he walke
 west,
 He shall neuer be sought for me.'

1 COME, all you brave gallants, and listen
 a while,
 With hey down, down, an a down
 That are in the bowers within;
 For of Robin Hood, that archer good,
 A song I intend for to sing.

2 Upon a time it chanced so
 Bold Robin in forrest did spy
 A jolly butcher, with a bouny fine mare,
 With his flesh to the market did hye.

3 'Good morrow, good fellow,' said jolly
 Robin,
 'What food hast? tell unto me;
 And thy trade to me tell, and where thou dost dwell,
 For I like well thy company.'

4 The butcher he answered jolly Robin:
 No matter where I dwell;
 For a butcher I am, and to Notingham
 I am going, my flesh to sell.

- 5 'What is [the] price of thy flesh?' said jolly Robin,
 'Come, tell it soon unto me;
 And the price of thy mare, be she never so dear,
 For a butcher fain would I be.'
- 3 'The price of my flesh,' the butcher repli'd,
 'I soon will tell unto thee;
 With my bonny mare, and they are not dear,
 Four mark thou must give unto me.'
- 7 'Four mark I will give thee,' saith jolly Robin,
 'Four mark it shall be thy fee;
 Thy mony come count, and let me mount,
 For a butcher I fain would be.'
- 8 Now Robin he is to Nottingham gone,
 His butcher's trade for to begin;
 With good intent, to the sheriff he went,
 And there he took up his inn.
- 9 When other butchers they opened their meat,
 Bold Robin he then begun;
 But how for to sell he knew not well,
 For a butcher he was but young.
- 10 When other butchers no meat could sell,
 Robin got both gold and fee;
 For he sold more meat for one peny
 Than others could do for three.
- 11 But when he sold his meat so fast,
 No butcher by him could thrive;
 For he sold more meat for one peny
 Than others could do for five.
- 12 Which made the butchers of Nottingham
 To study as they did stand,
 Saying, surely he was some prodigal,
 That had sold his father's land.
- 13 The butchers they stepped to jolly Robin, Acquainted with him for to be;
 'Come, brother,' one said, 'we be all of one trade,
 Come, will you go dine with me?'
- 14 'Accurst of his heart,' said jolly Robin,
 'That a butcher doth deny;

- I will go with you, my brethren true,
 And as fast as I can hie.'
- 15 But when to the sheriff's house they came,
 To dinner they hied apace,
 And Robin he the man must be
 Before them all to say grace.
- 16 'Pray God bless us all,' said jolly Robin,
 'And our meat within this place;
 A cup of sack so good will nourish our blood,
 And so I do end my grace.
- 17 'Come fill us more wine,' said jolly Robin,
 'Let us merry be while we do stay;
 For wine and good cheer, be it never so dear,
 I vow I the reckning will pay.
- 18 'Come, brother[s], be merry,' said jolly Robin,
 'Let us drink, and never give ore;
 For the shot I will pay, ere I go my way,
 If it cost me five pounds and more.'
- 19 'This is a mad blade,' the butchers then said;
 Saies the sheriff, He is some prodigal,
 That some land has sold, for silver and gold,
 And now he doth mean to spend all.
- 20 'Hast thou any horn-beasts,' the sheriff repli'd,
 'Good fellow, to sell unto me?'
 'Yes, that I have, good Master Sheriff,
 I have hundreds two or three.
- 21 'And a hundred aker of good free land,
 If you please it to see;
 And I'll make you as good assurance of it
 As ever my father made me.'
- 22 The sheriff he saddled a good palfrey,
 With three hundred pound in gold,
 And away he went with bold Robin Hood,
 His horned beasts to behold.

23 Away then the sheriff and Robin did ride,
To the forrest of merry Sherwood;
Then the sheriff did say, God bless us
this day
From a man they call Robin Hood!

24 But when that a little further they came,
Bold Robin he chanced to spy
A hundred head of good red deer,
Come tripping the sheriff full nigh.

25 'How like you my hornd beasts, good
Master Sheriff?
They be fat and fair for to see;'
'I tell thee, good fellow, I would I were
gone,
For I like not thy company.'

26 Then Robin he set his horn to his
mouth,
And blew but blasts three;
Then quickly anon there came Little
John,
And all his company.

27 'What is your will?' then said Little
John,
'Good master come tell it to me;'
'I have brought hither the sheriff of Notingham,
This day to dine with thee.'

28 'He is welcome to me,' then said Little
John,
'I hope he will honestly pay;
I know he has gold, if it be but well told,
Will serve us to drink a whole
day.'

29 Then Robin took his mantle from his
back,
And laid it upon the ground,
And out of the sheriffe[']s portmantle
He told three hundred pound.

30 Then Robin he brought him thorow the
wood,
And set him on his dapple gray:
'O have me commended to your wife
at home;'
So Robin went laughing away.

ROBIN HOOD AND THE CUR-
TAL FRIAR

'Robin Hood and the Curtal Friar,' in both versions, is in a genuinely popular strain, and was made to sing, not to print. Verbal agreements show that A and B have an earlier ballad as their common source. Nearly, or quite, one half of A has been torn from the manuscript, but there is no reason to suppose the story differed much from that of B. The title of A in the manuscript is 'Robin Hood and Friar Tuck;' from which it follows that the copyist, or some predecessor, considered the stalwart friar of Fountains Abbey to be one with the jocular friar of the May-games and the morris-dance. But Friar Tuck, the wanton and the merry, like Maid Marian, owes his association with Robin Hood primarily to these popular sports, and not in the least to popular ballads. In the truly popular ballads Friar Tuck is never heard of, and in only two even of the broadside ballads (Nos. 145, 147) is he so much as named, and in both in conjunction with Maid Marian. The Play of Robin Hood (see p. 289, above), the first half of which is based on the present ballad, calls the friar Friar Tuck. So also the play founded on No. 118.

1 BUT how many merry monthes be in the yeere?
There are thirteen, I say;
The midsummer moone is the merriest
of all,
Next to the merry month of May.

Over may noe man for villanie.'
'I'le never eate nor drinke,' Robin
Hood sa[id],
'Till I that cutted friar see.'

4 He builded his men in a brake of fearne,
A litle from that nunnery;
Sayes, If you heare my litle horne blow,
Then looke you come to me.

- 5 When Robin came to Fontaines Abey,
Wheras that fryer lay,
He was ware of the fryer where he stood,
And to him thus can he say.
- 6 A payre of blacke breeches the yeoman had on,
His coppe all shone of steele,
A fayre sword and a broad buckeler
Beseemed him very weell.
- 7 'I am a wet weary man,' said Robin
Hood,
'Good fellow, as thou may see;
Wilt beare [me] over this wild water,
Ffor sweete Saint Charity?'
- 8 The fryer bethought him of a good deed;
He had done none of long before;
He hent up Robin Hood on his backe,
And over he did him beare.
- 9 But when he came over that wild water,
A longe sword there he drew:
'Beare me backe againe, bold outlawe,
Or of this thou shalt have enoughe.'
- 10 Then Robin Hood hent the fryar on his
back,
And neither sayd good nor ill;
Till he came ore that wild water,
The yeoman he walked still.
- 11 Then Robin Hood wett his fayre greene
hoze,
A span aboue his knee;

- 13 'I beshrew thy head,' said the cutted
ffriar,
'Thou thinkes I shall be shente;
I thought thou had but a man or two,
And thou hast [a] whole conuent.
- 14 'I lett thee haue a blast on thy horne,
Now giue me leaue to whistle another;

I cold not bidd thee noe letter play
And thou wert my owne borne brother.'

- 15 'Now fute on, fute on, thou cutted fryar,
I pray God thou neere be still;
It is not the futing in a fryers fist
That can doe me any ill.'
- 16 The fryar sett his neave to his mouth,
A loud blast he did blow;
Then halfe a hundred good bandoggs
Came raking all on a rowe.
- 17
'Euery dogg to a man,' said the cutted
fryar,
'And I my selfe to Robin Hood.'
- 18 'Over God's forbott,' said Robin Hood,
'That euer that soe shold bee;
I had rather be mached with three of the tikes
Ere I wold be matched on thee.
- 19 'But stay thy tikes, thou fryar,' he said,
'And freindshipp I 'le haue with thee;
But stay thy tikes, thou fryar,' he said,
'And saue good yeomanry.'
- 20 The fryar he sett his neave to his mouth,
A lowd blast he did blow;
The doggs the coucht downe euery one,
They couched downe on a rowe.
- 21 'What is thy will, thou yeoman?' he
said,
'Haue done and tell it me;'
'If that thou will goe to merry green-
wood,

- 1 In summer time, when leaves grow
green,
And flowers are fresh and gay,
Robin Hood and his merry men
Were disposed to play.

- 2 Then some would leap, and some would run,
And some would use artillery:
'Which of you can a good bow draw,
A good archer to be ?
- 3 'Which of you can kill a buck ?
Or who can kill a do ?
Or who can kill a hart of greece,
Five hundred foot him fro ?'
- 4 Will Scadlock he killd a buck,
And Midge he killd a do,
And Little John killd a hart of greece,
Five hundred foot him fro.
- 5 'God's blessing on thy heart,' said Robin Hood,
'That bath [shot] such a shot for me;
I would ride my horse an hundred miles,
To finde one could match with thee.'
- 6 That causd Will Scadlock to laugh,
He laughed full heartily:
'There lives a curtal frier in Fountains Abby
Will beat both him and thee.
- 7 'That curtal frier in Fountains Abby
Well can a strong bow draw;
He will beat you and your yeomen,
Set them all on a row.'
- 8 Robin Hood took a solemn oath,
It was by Mary free,
That he would neither eat nor drink
Till the frier he did see.
- 9 Robin Hood put on his harness good,
And on his head a cap of steel,
Broad sword and buckler by his side,
And they became him weel.
- 10 He took his bow into his hand,
It was made of a trusty tree,
With a sheaf of arrows at his belt,
To the Fountains Dale went he.
- 11 And comming unto Fountain[s] Dale,
No further would he ride;
There was he aware of a curtal frier,
Walking by the water-side.
- 12 The fryer had on a harness good,
And on his head a cap of steel,

- Broad sword and buckler by his side,
And they became him weel.
- 13 Robin Hood lighted off his horse,
And tied him to a thorn:
'Carry me over the water, thou curtal frier,
Or else thy life's forlorn.'
- 14 The frier took Robin Hood on his back,
Deep water he did bestride,
And spake neither good word nor bad,
Till he came at the other side.
- 15 Lightly leapt Robin Hood off the friers back;
The frier said to him again,
Carry me over this water, fine fellow,
Or it shall breed thy pain.
- 16 Robin Hood took the frier on 's back,
Deep water he did bestride,
And spake neither good word nor bad,
Till he came at the other side.
- 17 Lightly leapt the fryer off Robin Hoods back;
Robin Hood said to him again,
Carry me over this water, thou curtal frier,
Or it shall breed thy pain.
- 18 The frier took Robin Hood on's back again,
And stept up to the knee;
Till he came at the middle stream,
Neither good nor bad spake he.
- 19 And coming to the middle stream,
There he threw Robin in :
'And chuse thee, chuse thee, fine fellow,
Whether thou wilt sink or swim.'
- 20 Robin Hood swam to a bush of broom,
The frier to a wicker wand;
Bold Robin Hood is gone to shore,
And took his bow in hand.
- 21 One of his best arrows under his belt
To the frier he let flye;
The curtal frier, with his steel buckler,
He put that arrow by.
- 22 'Shoot on, shoot on, thou fine fellow,
Shoot on as thou hast begun;

If thou shoot here a summers day,
Thy mark I will not shun.'

23 Robin Hood shot passing well,
Till his arrows all were gone;
They took their swords and steel buck-
lers,
And fought with might and maine;

24 From ten oth' clock that day,
Till four ith' afternoon;
Then Robin Hood came to his knees,
Of the frier to beg a boon.

25 'A boon, a boon, thou curtal frier,
I beg it on my knee;
Give me leave to set my horn to my
mouth,
And to blow blasts three.'

26 'That will I do,' said the curtal frier,
'Of thy blasts I have no doubt;
I hope thou 'lt blow so passing well
Till both thy eyes fall out.'

27 Robin Hood set his horn to his mouth,
He blew but blasts three;
Half a hundred yeomen, with bows
bent,
Came raking over the lee.

28 'Whose men are these,' said the frier,
'That come so hastily?'
'These men are mine,' said Robin Hood;
'Frier, what is that to thee?'

29 'A boon, a boon,' said the curtal frier,
'The like I gave to thee;
Give me leave to set my fist to my
mouth,
And to whute whutes three.'

30 'That will I do,' said Robin Hood,
'Or else I were to blame;
Three whutes in a friers fist
Would make me glad and fain.'

31 The frier he set his fist to his mouth,
And whuted whutes three;
Half a hundred good ban-dogs
Came running the frier unto.

32 'Here's for every man of thine a dog,
And I my self for thee:'

'Nay, by my faith,' quoth Robin Hood,
'Frier, that may not be.'

33 Two dogs at once to Robin Hood did
go,
The one behind, the other before;
Robin Hoods mantle of Lincoln green
Off from his back they tore.

34 And whether his men shot east or
west,
Or they shot north or south,
The curtal dogs, so taught they were,
They kept their arrows in their
mouth.

35 'Take up thy dogs,' said Little John,
'Frier, at my bidding be;'
'Whose man art thou,' said the curtal
frier,
'Comes here to prate with me?'

36 'I am Little John, Robin Hoods man,
Frier, I will not lie;
If thou take not up thy dogs soon,
I'll take up them and thee.'

37 Little John had a bow in his hand,
He shot with might and main;
Soon half a score of the friers dogs
Lay dead upon the plain.

38 'Hold thy hand, good fellow,' said the curtal frier,
'Thy master and I will agree;
And we will have new orders taken,
With all the haste that may be.'

39 'If thou wilt forsake fair Fountains
Dale,
And Fountains Abby free,
Every Sunday throughout the year,
A noble shall be thy fee.

40 'And every holy day throughout the year,
Changed shall thy garment be,
If thou wilt go to fair Nottingham,
And there remain with me.'

41 This curtal frier had kept Fountains
Dale
Seven long years or more;
There was neither knight, lord, nor earl
Could make him yield before.

THE JOLLY PINDER OF WAKEFIELD

This ballad is thoroughly lyrical, and therein like the old age, and was pretty well sung to pieces before it ever was printed. 'A ballett of Wakefylde and a grene' is entered in the Stationers' Register to Master John Wallye and Mistress Toye, 19 July, 1557 - 9 July, 1558. A snatch of 'The Jolly Pinder' is sung in each of the Robin Hood plays, Anthony Munday's Downfall of Robert Earl of Huntington, and Munday and Chettle's Death of Robert Earl of Huntington, both printed in 1601. Silence sings the line 'And Robin Hood, Scarlet, and John' in the Second Part of Henry IV (act v, scene 3), and there are other allusions to the ballad. The adventure of the ballad is naturally introduced into the play of George a Greene the Pinner of Wakefield, printed in 1599 (reprinted in Dodsley's Old Plays, and by Dyce among the works of Robert Greene). The scene in the play is found in the prose history of George a Green, London, 1706, of which a copy is known of the date 1632. The ballad is so imperfect that one might be in doubt whether the Pinder fights with Robin Hood, Scarlet, and John all together or successively. But we see from the History and from Greene's play that the Pinder must take them one after the other, and Robin the last of the three.

1 IN Wakefield there lives a jolly pinder,
In Wakefield, all on a green; (bis)

2 'There is neither knight nor squire,' said the pinder,
'Nor baron that is so bold, (bis)
Dare make a trespasse to the town of Wakefield,
But his pledge goes to the pinfeld.' (bis)

3 All this beheard three witty young
men,
'T was Robin Hood, Scarlet, and John;
With that they spyed the jolly pinder,
As he sate under a thorn.

4 'Now turn again, turn again,' said the pinder,
'For a wrong way have you gone;
For you have forsaken the king his high-
way,
And made a path over the corn.'

5 'O that were great shame,' said jolly
Robin,
'We being three, and thou but one:'
The pinder leapt back then thirty good foot,
'T was thirty good foot and one.

6 He leaned his back fast unto a thorn,
And his foot unto a stone,
And there he fought a long summer's
day,
A summer's day so long,
Till that their swords, on their broad bucklers,
Were broken fast unto their hands.

7 'Hold thy hand, hold thy hand,' said
Robin Hood,
'And my merry men euery one;
For this is one of the best pinders
That ever I try'd with sword.

8 'And wilt thou forsake thy pinder his craft,
And live in [the] green wood with
me?'

9 'At Michaelmas next my covnant comes
out,
When every man gathers his fee;
I'll take my blew blade all in my hand,
And plod to the green wood with thee.'

10 'Hast thou either meat or drink,' said
Robin Hood,
'For my merry men and me?'

11 'I have both bread and beef,' said the
pinder,
'And good ale of the best;'
And that is meat good enough,' said
Robin Hood,
'For such unbidden guest.

12 'O wilt thou forsake the pinder his craft,
And go to the green wood with me?
Thou shalt have a livery twice in the
year,
The one green, the other brown [shall
be].'

13 'If Michaelmas day were once come and gone
And my master had paid me my
fee,
Then would I set as little by him
As my master doth set by me.'

1 'But hold y . . hold y . . . ' says Robin,
'My merry men, I bid yee,
For this [is] one of the best pindars
That euer I saw with mine eye.

2 'But hast thou any meat, thou iolly
pindar,
For my merry men and me?'

3 'But I haue bread and cheese,' sayes the pindar,
'And ale all on the best.'
'That's cheere good enoughe,' said
Robin,
'For any such vubidden guest.

4 'But wilt be my man?' said good
Robin,
'And come and dwell with me?
And twise in a yeere thy clothing [shall] be changed
If my man thou wilt bee,
The toneshall be of light Lincolne greene,
The tother of Picklory.'

5 'Att Michallmas comes a well good time,

As he now setts by me,
I 'le take my benbowe in my hande,
And come into the grenwoode to
thee.'

ROBIN HOOD AND LITTLE JOHN

There is a black-letter copy, printed by and for W. Onley, in Lord Crawford's collection No. 1320; the date put at 1680-85. A white-letter copy is in Roxburghe, III, 728 (see Ebsworth's Roxburghe Ballads, VIII, 504). 'Robin Hood and Little John' belongs to a set of ballads which have middle rhyme in the third line of the stanza, and are directed to be sung to one and the same tune. These are: 'Robin Hood and the Bishop' (No. 143); 'Robin Hood and the Beggar' (No. 183); 'Robin Hood and the Tanner' (No. 126), to the tune of 'Robin Hood and the Stranger'; 'Robin Hood and the Butcher' (No. 122); 'Robin Hood's Chase' (No. 146); 'Little John and the Four Beggars' (No. 142 B), to the tune of 'Robin Hood and the Beggar'; 'Robin Hood and Little John'; 'Robin Hood and the Ranger' (No. 131), to the tune of 'Arthur a Bland' (that is, 'Robin Hood and the Tanner'). There is no ballad with the title 'Robin Hood and the Stranger.' Ritson gave this title to a ballad which uniformly bears the title of 'Robin Hood Newly Revived' (No. 128), but 'Robin Hood and Little John,' or rather some older version of it (for the one we have is in rank seventeenth-century style), is more likely to be meant. 'A pastorall pleasant comedie of Robin Hood and Little John, etc.' is entered to Edward White in the Stationers' Registers. May 14, 1594, and 'Robin Hood and Little John' to Master Oulton, April 22, 1640.

'Robin Hood and Little John.' a. A Collection of Old Ballads, 1723, I, 75. b. Aldermary Garland, by R. Marshall, n. d., No. 22.

1 WHEN Robin Hood was about twenty years old,
With a hey down down and a down
He happend to meet Little John,
A jolly brisk blade, right fit for the trade,
For he was a lusty young man.

2 Tho he was calld Little, his limbs they were large,
And his stature was seven foot
high;
Where-ever he came, they quak'd at his
name,
For soon he would make them to fly.

- 3 How they came acquainted, I'll tell you in brief,
If you will but listen a while;
For this very jest, amongst all the rest,
I think it may cause you to smile.
- 4 Bold Robin Hood said to his jolly bow-
men,
Pray tarry you here in this grove;
And see that you all observe well my
call,
While thorough the forest I rove.
- 5 We have had no sport for these fourteen long days,
Therefore now abroad will I go;
Now should I be beat, and cannot retreat,
My horn I will presently blow.
- 6 Then did he shake hands with his merry
men all,
And bid them at present good b'w'ye;
Then, as near a brook his journey he took,
A stranger he chanced to espy.
- 7 They happend to meet on a long narrow bridge,
And neither of them would give way;
Quoth bold Robin Hood, and sturdily
stood,
I'll show you right Nottingham play.
- 8 With that from his quiver an arrow he
drew,
A broad arrow with a goose-wing:
The stranger reply'd, I'll liquor thy
hide,
If thou offerst to touch the string.
- 9 Quoth bold Robin Hood, Thou dost
prate like an ass,
For were I to bend but my bow,
I could send a dart quite thro thy proud
heart,
Before thou couldst strike me one
blow.
- 10 'Thou talkst like a coward,' the stranger reply'd;
'Well armd with a long bow you
stand,
To shoot at my breast, while I, I protest,
Have nought but a staff in my hand.'
- 11 'The name of a coward,' quoth Robin,
'I scorn,
Wherefore my long bow I'll lay by;
And now, for thy sake, a staff will I take,
The truth of thy manhood to try.'
- 12 Then Robin Hood stept to a thicket of trees,
And chose him a staff of ground-oak;
Now this being done, away he did run
To the stranger, and merrily spoke:
- 13 'Lo I see my staff, it is lusty and tough,
Now here on the bridge we will play;
Whoever falls in, the other shall win
The battel, and so we'll away.'
- 14 'With all my whole heart,' the stranger
reply'd;
'I scorn in the least to give out;'
This said, they fell to't without more dispute,
And their staffs they did flourish
about.
- 15 And first Robin he gave the stranger a bang,
So hard that it made his bones ring:
The stranger he said, This must be repaid,
I'll give you as good as you bring.
- 16 So long as I'm able to handle my staff,
To die in your debt, friend, I scorn:
Then to it each goes, and followd their blows,
As if they had been threshing of corn.
- 17 The stranger gave Robin a crack on the
crown,
Which caused the blood to appear;
Then Robin, enrag'd, more fiercely en-gag'd,
And followd his blows more severe.
- 18 So thick and so fast did he lay it on him,
With a passionate fury and ire,
At every stroke, he made him to smoke,
As if he had been all on fire.
- 19 O then into fury the stranger he grew,
And gave him a damnable look,
And with it a blow that laid him full
low,
And tumbl'd him into the brook.

- 20 'I prithee, good fellow, O where art thou now?'
The stranger, in laughter, he cry'd;
Quoth bold Robin Hood, Good faith, in the flood,
And floating along with the tide.
- 21 I needs must acknowledge thou art a brave soul;
With thee I 'll no longer contend;
For needs must I say, thou hast got the day,
Our battel shall be at an end.
- 22 Then unto the bank he did presently wade,
And pulld himself out by a thorn;
Which done, at the last, he blowd a loud blast
Straitway on his fine bugle-horn.
- 23 The eccho of which through the vallies did fly,
At which his stout bowmen appeard,
All cloathed in green, most gay to be seen;
So up to their master they steerd.
- 24 'O what 's the matter?' quoth William Stutely;
'Good master, you are wet to the skin:'
'No matter,' quoth he; 'the lad which you see,
In fighting, hath tumbld me in.'
- 25 'He shall not go scot-free,' the others reply'd;
So strait they were seizing him there,
To duck him likewise; but Robin Hood cries,
He is a stout fellow, forbear.
- 26 There 's no one shall wrong thee, friend, be not afraid;
These bowmen upon me do wait;
There 's threescore and nine; if thou wilt be mine,
Thou shalt have my livery strait.
- 27 And other accoutrements fit for a man;
Speak up, jolly blade, never fear;
I 'll teach you also the use of the bow,
To shoot at the fat fallow-deer.'

- 28 'O here is my hand,' the stranger reply'd,
'I 'll serve you with all my whole heart;
My name is John Little, a man of good mettle;
Nere doubt me, for I 'll play my part.'
- 29 'His name shall be alterd,' quoth William Stutely,
'And I will his godfather be;
Prepare then a feast, and none of the least,
For we will be merry,' quoth he.
- 30 They presently fetchd in a brace of fat does,
With humming strong liquor likewise;
They lovd what was good; so, in the greenwood,
This pretty sweet babe they baptize.
- 31 He was, I must tell you, but seven foot high,
And, may be, an ell in the waste;
A pretty sweet lad; much feasting they had;
Bold Robin the christning grac'd,
- 32 With all his bowmen, which stood in a ring,
And were of the Notti[n]gham breed;
Brave Stutely comes then, with seven yeomen,
And did in this manner proceed.
- 33 'This infant was called John Little,' quoth he,
'Which name shall be changed anon;
The words we 'll transpose, so where-ever he goes,
His name shall be calld Little John.'
- 34 They all with a shout made the elements ring,
So soon as the office was ore;
To feasting they went, with true merriment,
And tippld strong liquor gillore.
- 35 Then Robin he took the pretty sweet babe,
And cloathd him from top to the toe

In garments of green, most gay to be
seen,
And gave him a curious long bow.

36 'Thou shalt be an archer as well as the best,
And range in the greenwood with us;
Where we'll not want gold nor silver,
behold,
While bishops have ought in their purse.

37 'We live here like squires, or lords of
renown,
Without ere a foot of free land;
We feast on good cheer, with wine, ale,
and beer,
And evry thing at our command.'

38 Then musick and dancing did finish the
day;
At length, when the sun waxed low,
Then all the whole train the grove did refrain,
And unto their caves they did go.

39 And so ever after, as long as he livd,
Altho he was proper and tall,
Yet nevertheless, the truth to express,
Still Little John they did him call.

ROBIN HOOD AND THE
TANNER

The sturdy Arthur a Bland is well hit off, and, bating the sixteenth and thirty-fifth stanzas, the ballad has a good popular ring.

'Robin Hood and the Tanner.' a. Wood,
401, leaf 9 b. b. Garland of 1663, No. 10.
c. Garland of 1670, No. 9. d. Pepys, II, 111,
No. 98.

1 In Nottingham there lives a jolly tanner,
With a hey down down a down
down
His name is Arthur a Bland;
There is nere a squire in Nottingham-
shire
Dare bid bold Arthur stand.

2 With a long pike-staff upon his shoulder,
So well he can clear his way;
By two and by three he makes them to flee,
For he hath no list to stay.

3 And as he went forth, in a summer's morning,
Into the forrest of merry Sherwood,
To view the red deer, that range here
and there,
There met he with bold Robin Hood.

4 As soon as bold Robin Hood did him
espy,
He thought some sport he would make;
Therefore out of hand he bid him to
stand,
And thus to him he spake:

5 Why, what art thou, thou bold fellow,
That ranges so boldly here?
In sooth, to be brief, thou lookst like a thief,
That comes to steal our king's deer.

6 For I am a keeper in this forrest;
The king puts me in trust
To look to his deer, that range here and
there,
Therefore stay thee I must.

7 'If thou beest a keeper in this forrest,
And hast such a great command,
Yet thou must have more partakers in store,
Before thou make me to stand.'

8 'Nay, I have no more partakers in store,
Or any that I do need;
But I have a staff of another oke graff,
I know it will do the deed.'

9 'For thy sword and thy bow I care not a straw,
Nor all thine arrows to boot;
If I get a knop upon thy bare scop,
Thou canst as well shite as shoote.'

10 'Speak cleanly, good fellow,' said jolly
Robin,
'And give better terms to me;
Else I'll thee correct for thy neglect,
And make thee more mannerly.'

- 11 'Marry gep with a wenion!' quoth
Arthur a Bland,
'Art thou such a goodly man?
I care not a fig for thy looking so big;
Mend thou thyself where thou can.'
- 12 Then Robin Hood he unbuckled his belt,
He laid down his bow so long;
He took up a staff of another oke graff,
That was both stiff and strong.
- 13 'I'll yield to thy weapon,' said jolly
Robin,
'Since thou wilt not yield to mine;
For I have a staff of another oke graff,
Not half a foot longer then thine.
- 14 'But let me measure,' said jolly Robin,
'Before we begin our fray;
For I'll not have mine to be longer then
thine,
For that will be called foul play.'
- 15 'I pass not for length,' bold Arthur
reply'd,
'My staff is of oke so free;
Eight foot and a half, it will knock down
a calf,
And I hope it will knock down thee.'
- 16 Then Robin Hood could no longer forbear;
He gave him such a knock,
Quickly and soon the blood came down,
Before it was ten a clock.
- 17 Then Arthur he soon recovered himself,
And gave him such a knock on the
crown,
That on every hair of bold Robin Hoods
head,
The blood came trickling down.
- 18 Then Robin Hood raged like a wild bore,
As soon as he saw his own blood;
Then Bland was in hast, he laid on so
fast,
As though he had been staking of
wood.
- 19 And about, and about, and about they
went,
Like two wild bores in a chase;
Striving to aim each other to maim,
Leg, arm, or any other place.
- 20 And knock for knock they lustily dealt,
Which held for two hours and more;
That all the wood rang at every bang,
'They ply'd their work so sore.
- 21 'Hold thy hand, hold thy hand,' said
Robin Hood,
'And let our quarrel fall;
For here we may thresh our bones into mesh,
And get no coyn at all.
- 22 'And in the forrest of merry Sherwood
Hereafter thou shalt be free:'
'God-a-mercy for naught, my freedom
I bought,
I may thank my good staff, and not
thee.'
- 23 'What tradesman art thou?' said jolly
Robin,
'Good fellow, I prethee me show:
And also me tell in what place thou dost
dwel,
For both these fain would I know.'
- 24 'I am a tanner,' bold Arthur reply'd,
'In Nottingham long have I wrought;
And if thou'lt come there, I vow and do swear
I will tan thy hide for naught.'
- 25 'God a mercy, good fellow,' said jolly
Robin,
'Since thou art so kind to me;
And if thou wilt tan my hide for naught,
'I will do as much for thee.
- 26 'But if thou'lt forsake thy tanners
trade,
And live in green wood with me,
My name's Robin Hood, I swear by the rood
I will give thee both gold and fee.'
- 27 'If thou be Robin Hood,' bold Arthur
reply'd,
'As I think well thou art,
Then here's my hand, my name's Arthur a Bland,
We two will never depart.
- 28 'But tell me, O tell me, where is Little
John?
Of him fain would I hear;

For we are alide by the mothers side,
And he is my kinsman near.'

29 Then Robin Hood blew on the beangle
horn,
He blew full lowd and shrill,
But quickly anon appeard Little John,
Come tripping down a green hill.

30 'O what is the matter?' then said Little
John,
'Master, I pray you tell;
Why do you stand with your staff in your hand?
I fear all is not well.'

31 'O man, I do stand, and he makes me
to stand,
The tanner that stands thee beside;
He is a bonny blade, and master of his
trade,
For soundly he hath tane my hide.'

32 'He is to be commended,' then said
Little John,
'If such a feat he can do;
If he be so stout, we will have a bout,
And he shall tan my hide too.'

33 'Hold thy hand, hold thy hand,' said
Robin Hood,
'For as I do understand,
He's a yeoman good, and of thine own
blood,
For his name is Arthur a Bland.'

34 Then Little John threw his staff away,
As far as he could it fling,
And ran out of hand to Arthur a Bland,
And about his neck did cling.

35 With loving respect, there was no neglect,
They were neither nice nor coy,
Each other did face, with a lovely
grace,
And both did weep for joy.

36 Then Robin Hood took them both by the hand,
And danc'd round about the oke
tree;
'For three merry men, and three merry
men,
And three merry men we be.

37 'And ever hereafter, as long as I live,
We three will be all one;
The wood shall ring, and the old wife
sing,
Of Robin Hood, Arthur, and John.'

ROBIN HOOD AND THE TINKER

In the Roxburghe collection, III, 22; not in the Garland of 1663 or that of 1670. A mere imitation of the poorest sort.

a. Wood, 401, leaf 17 b. b. Pepys, II, 107,
No. 94. c. Douce, III, 118 b.

1 IN summer time, when leaves grow
green,
Down a down a down
And birds sing on every tree,
Hey down a down a down

Robin Hood went to Nottingham,
Down a down a down
As fast as hee could dree.
Hey down a down a down

2 And as hee came to Nottingham
A Tinker he did meet,
And seeing him a lusty blade,
He did him kindly greet.

3 'Where dost thou live?' quoth Robin
Hood,
'I pray thee now mee tell;
Sad news I hear there is abroad,
I fear all is not well.'

4 'What is that news?' the Tinker said;
'Tell mee without delay;
I am a tinker by my trade,
And do live at Banbura.'

5 'As for the news,' quoth Robin Hood,
'It is but as I hear;
Two tinkers they were set ith' stocks,
For drinking ale and bear.'

6 'If that be all,' the Tinker said,
'As I may say to you,
Your news it is not worth a fart,
Since that they all bee true.

- 7 'For drinking of good ale and bear,
You wil not lose your part:'
'No, by my faith,' quoth Robin Hood,
'I love it with all my heart.
- 8 'What news abroad?' quoth Robin Hood;
'Tell mee what thou dost hear;
Being thou goest from town to town,
Some news thou need not fear.'
- 9 'All the news,' the Tinker said,
'I hear, it is for good;
It is to seek a bold outlaw,
Which they call Robin Hood.
- 10 'I have a warrant from the king,
To take him where I can;
If you can tell me where hee is,
I will make you a man.
- 11 'The king will give a hundred pound
That hee could but him see;
And if wee can but now him get,
It will serve you and mee.'
- 12 'Let me see that warrant,' said Robin Hood;
'I 'le see if it bee right;
And I will do the best I can
For to take him this night.'
- 13 'That will I not,' the Tinker said;
'None with it I will trust;
And where hee is if you 'l not tell,
Take him by force I must.'
- 14 But Robin Hood perceiving well
How then the game would go,
'If you will go to Nottingham,
Wee shall find him I know.'
- 15 The Tinker had a crab-tree staff,
Which was both good and strong;
Robin hee had a good strong blade,
So they went both along.
- 16 And when they came to Nottingham,
There they both tooke one inn;
And they calld for ale and wine,
To drink it was no sin.
- 17 But ale and wine they drank so fast
That the Tinker hee forgot
What thing he was about to do;
It fell so to his lot
- 18 That while the Tinker fell asleep,
Hee made then haste away,
And left the Tinker in the lurch,
For the great shot to pay.
- 19 But when the Tinker wakened,
And saw that he was gone,
He calld then even for his host,
And thus hee made his moan.
- 20 'I had a warrant from the king,
Which might have done me good,
That is to take a bold outlaw,
Some call him Robin Hood.
- 21 'But now my warrant and mony 's gone,
Nothing I have to pay;
And he that promisd to be my friend,
He is gone and fled away.'
- 22 'That friend you tell on,' said the host,
'They call him Robin Hood;
And when that first hee met with you,
He ment you little good.'
- 23 'Had I known it had been hee,
When that I had him here,
Th' one of us should have tri'd our strength
Which should have paid full dear.
- 24 'In the mean time I must away;
No longer here I 'le bide;
But I will go and seek him out,
What ever do me betide.
- 25 'But one thing I would gladly know,
What here I have to pay;'
'Ten sbillings just,' then said the host;
'I 'le pay without delay.
- 26 'Or elce take here my working-bag,
And my good hammer too;
And if that I light but on the knave,
I will then soon pay you.'
- 27 'The onely way,' then said the host,
'And not to stand in fear,
Is to seek him among the parka,
Killing of the kings deer.'

- 28 The Tinker hee then went with speed,
And made then no delay,
Till he had found then Robin Hood,
That they might have a fray.
- 29 At last hee spy'd him in a park,
Hunting then of the deer;
'What knave is that,' quoth Robin Hood,
'That doth come mee so near?'
- 30 'No knave, no knave,' the Tinker said,
'And that you soon shall know;
Whether of us hath done most wrong,
My crab-tree staff shall show.'
- 31 Then Robin drew his gallant blade,
Made then of trusty steel;
But the Tinker laid on him so fast
That he made Robin reel.
- 32 Then Robins anger did arise;
He fought full manfully,
Vntil hee had made the Tinker
Almost then fit to fly.
- 33 With that they had a bout again,
They ply'd their weapons fast;
The Tinker threshed his bones so sore
He made him yeeld at last.
- 34 'A boon, a boon,' Robin hee cryes,
'If thou wilt grant it mee;
'Before I do it,' the Tinker said,
'I'll hang thee on this tree.'
- 35 But the Tinker looking him about,
Robin his horn did blow;
Then came unto him Little John,
And William Seadlock too.
- 36 'What is the matter,' quoth Little John,
'You sit in th' highway side?'
'Here is a Tinker that stands by,
That hath paid well my bide.'
- 37 'That Tinker,' then said Little John,
'Fain that blade I would see,
And I would try what I could do,
If hee 'l do as much for mee.'
- 38 But Robin hee then wishd them both
They should the quarrel cease,
'That henceforth wee may bee as one,
And ever live in peace.'

- 39 'And for the jovial Tinker's part,
A hundred pound I'll give,
In th' year to maintain him on,
As long as he doth live.
- 40 'In manhood hee is a mettle man,
And a mettle man by trade;
I never thought that any man
Should have made me so fraid.
- 41 'And if hee will bee one of us,
Wee will take all one fare,
And whatsoever wee do get,
He shall have his full share.'
- 42 So the Tinker was content
With them to go along,
And with them a part to take,
And so I end my song.

ROBIN HOOD NEWLY REVIVED

The story seems to have been built up on a portion of the ruins of the fine tale of Gamelyn. (See Skeat's Chaucer, iv, 645 ff.).

'Robin Hood Newly Reviv'd.' a. Wood, 401, leaf 27 b. b. Roxburghe, iii, 18, in the Ballad Society's reprint, ii, 426. c. Garland of 1663, No. 3. d. Garland of 1670, No. 2. e. Pepys, ii, 101, No. 88.

- 1 COME listen a while, you gentlemen
all,
With a hey down down a down down
That are in this bower within,
For a story of gallant bold Robin Hood
I purpose now to begin.
- 2 'What time of the day?' quoth Robin Hood then;
Quoth Little John, 'Tis in the prime;
'Why then we will to the green wood gang,
For we have no vittles to dine.'
- 3 As Robin Hood walkt the forrest along—
It was in the mid of the day—
There was he met of a deft young man
As ever walkt on the way.

- 4 His doublet it was of silk, he said,
His stockings like scarlet shone,
And he walkt on along the way,
To Robin Hood then unknown.
- 5 A herd of deer was in the bend,
All feeding before his face:
'Now the best of ye I'll have to my dinner,
And that in a little space.'
- 6 Now the stranger he made no mickle
adoe,
But he bends and a right good bow,
And the best buck in the herd he slew,
Forty good yards him full free.
- 7 'Well shot, well shot,' quoth Robin
Hood then,
'That shot it was shot in time;
And if thou wilt accept of the place,
Thou shalt be a bold yeoman of mine.'
- 8 'Go play the chiven,' the stranger said,
'Make haste and quickly go;
Or with my fist, be sure of this,
I'll give thee buffets store.'
- 9 'Thou hadst not best buffet me,' quoth
Robin Hood,
'For though I seem forlorn,
Yet I can have those that will take my part,
If I but blow my horn.'
- 10 'Thou wast not best wind thy horn,' the stranger said,
'Beest thou never so much in hast,
For I can draw out a good broad sword,
And quickly cut the blast.'
- 11 Then Robin Hood bent a very good bow,
To shoot, and that he would fain;
The stranger he bent a very good bow,
To shoot at bold Robin again.
- 12 'O hold thy hand, hold thy hand,' quoth
Robin Hood,
'To shoot it would be in vain;
For if we should shoot the one at the other,
The one of us may be slain.
- 13 'But let's take our swords and our broad bucklers,
And gang under yonder tree:'
- 'As I hope to be sav'd,' the stranger said,
'One foot I will not flee.'
- 14 Then Robin Hood lent the stranger a
blow
Most scar'd him out of his wit;
'Thou never delt blow,' the stranger he
said,
'That shall be better quit.'
- 15 The stranger he drew out a good broad
sword,
And hit Robin on the crown,
That from every haire of bold Robins
head
The blood ran trickling down.
- 16 'God a mercy, good fellow!' quoth
Robin Hood then,
'And for this that thou hast done;
Tell me, good fellow, what thou art,
Tell me where thou doest woon.'
- 17 The stranger then answered bold Robin
Hood,
I'll tell thee where I did dwell;
In Maxfield was I bred and born,
My name is Young Gamwell.
- 18 For killing of my own fathers steward,
I am forc'd to this English wood,
And for to seek an vncle of mine;
Some call him Robin Hood.
- 19 'But thou art a cousin of Robin Hoods
then?
The sooner we should have done:'
'As I hope to be sav'd,' the stranger
then said,
'I am his own sisters son.'
- 20 But, Lord! what kissing and courting
was there,
When these two cousins did greet!
And they went all that summers day,
And Little John did meet.
- 21 But when they met with Little John,
He there unto [him] did say,
O master, where have you been,
You have tarried so long away?
- 22 'I met with a stranger,' quoth Robin
Hood then,
'Full sore he hath beaten me:'

- 'Then I 'le have a bout with him,' quoth
Little John,
'And try if he can beat me.'
- 23 'Oh [no], oh no,' quoth Robin Hood
then,
'Little John, it may [not] be so;
For he's my own dear sisters son,
And cousins I have no mo.
- 24 'But he shall be a bold yeoman of mine,
My chief man next to thee;
And I Robin Hood, and thou Little John,
And Scarlet he shall be:
- 25 'And wee 'l be three of the bravest out-
laws
That is in the North Country.'
If you will have any more of bold Robin
Hood,
In his second part it will be.

ROBIN HOOD AND THE PRINCE OF ARAGON

This is only a pseudo-chivalrous romance, tagged to 'Robin Hood Newly Revived' as a Second Part, with eight introductory stanzas. Both parts are as vapid as possible.

'Robin Hood, Will. Scadlock and Little John.' a. Roxburghe, i, 358, in the Ballad Society's reprint, ii, 431. b. Pepys, ii, 120, No. 106.

- 1 Now Robin Hood, Will Scadlock and
Little John
Are walking over the plain,
With a good fat buck which Will Scadlock
With his strong bow had slain.
- 2 'Jog on, jog on,' cries Robin Hood,
'The day it runs full fast;
For though my nephew me a breakfast gave,
I have not yet broke my fast.
- 3 'Then to yonder lodge let us take our
way,
I think it wondrous good,
Where my nephew by my bold yeomen
Shall be welcomd unto the green wood.'

- 4 With that he took the bugle-horn,
Full well he could it blow;
Streight from the woods came marching
down
One hundred tall fellows and mo.
- 5 'Stand, stand to your arms!' crys Will Scadlock,
'Lo! the enemies are within ken:'
With that Robin Hood he laughd aloud,
Crys, They are my bold yeomen.
- 6 Who, when they arriv'd and Robin espy'd,
Cry'd, Master, what is your will?
We thought you had in danger been,
Your horn did sound so shrill.
- 7 'Now nay, now nay,' quoth Robin Hood,
'The danger is past and gone;
I would have you to welcome my nephew here,
That hath paid me two for one.'
- 8 In feasting and sporting they passed the
day,
Till Phœbus sunk into the deep;
Then each one to his quarters hy'd,
His guard there for to keep.
- 9 Long had they not walked within the
green wood,
But Robin he was espy'd
Of a beautiful damsel all alone,
That on a black palfrey did ride.
- 10 Her riding-suit was of sable hew
black,
Sypress over her face,
Through which her rose-like cheeks did blush,
All with a comely grace.
- 11 'Come, tell me the cause, thou pritty
one,'
Quoth Robin, 'and tell me aright,
From whence thou comest, and whither thou goest,
All in this mournful plight?'
- 12 'From London I came,' the damsel re-
ply'd,
'From London upon the Thames,
Which circled is, O grief to tell!
Besieg'd with forraign arms.

13 'By the proud Prince of Aragon,
Who swears by his martial hand
To have the princess for his spouse,
Or else to waste this land:

14 'Except that champions can be found
That dare fight three to three,
Against the prince and giants twain,
Most horrid for to see:

15 'Whose grisly looks, and eyes like brands,
Strike terror where they come,
With serpents hissing on their helms,
Instead of feathered plume.

16 'The princess shall be the victors prize,
The king hath vowd and said,
And he that shall the conquest win
Shall have her to his bride.

17 'Now we are four damsels sent abroad,
To the east, west, north, and south,
To try whose fortune is so good
To find these champions forth.

18 'But all in vaine we have sought
about;
Yet none so bold there are
That dare adventure life and blood,
To free a lady fair.'

19 'When is the day?' quoth Robin Hood,
'Tell me this and no more.'
'On Midsummer next,' the damsel said,
'Which is June the twenty-four.'

20 With that the teares trickled down her cheeks,
And silent was her tongue;
With sighs and sobs she took her leave,
Away her palfrey sprung.

21 This news struck Robin to the heart,
He fell down on the grass;
His actions and his troubled mind
Shewd he perplexed was.

22 'Where lies your grief?' quoth Will Scadlock,
'O master, tell to me;
If the damsels eyes have pierced your
heart,
I'll fetch her back to thee.'

23 'Now nay, now nay,' quoth Robin Hood,
'She doth not cause my smart;
But it is the poor distressed princess
That wounds me to the heart.

24 'I will go fight the giants all
To set the lady free.'
'The devil take my soul,' quoth Little
John,
'If I part with thy company.'

25 'Must I stay behind?' quoth Will Scadlock;
'No, no, that must not be;
I'll make the third man in the fight,
So we shall be three to three.'

26 These words cheerd Robin at the heart,
Joy shone within his face;
Within his arms he hugged them both,
And kindly did imbrace.

27 Quoth he, We'll put on mothly gray,
With long staves in our hands,
A scrip and bottle by our sides,
As come from the Holy Land.

28 So may we pass along the high-way;
None will ask from whence we came,
But take us pilgrims for to be,
Or else some holy men.

29 Now they are on their journey gone,
As fast as they may speed,
Yet for all haste, ere they arriv'd,
'The princess forth was led:

30 To be deliverd to the prince,
Who in the list did stand,
Prepar'd to fight, or else receive
His lady by the hand.

31 With that he walkt about the lists,
With giants by his side:
'Bring forth,' said he, 'your champions,
Or bring me forth my bride.

32 'This is the four and twentieth day,
The day prefixt upon;
Bring forth my bride, or London burns,
I swear by Acaron.'

33 Then cries the king, and queen likewise,
Both weeping as they speak,

- Lo ! we have brought our daughter dear,
Whom we are forced to forsake.
- 34 With that stept out bold Robin Hood,
Crys, My liege, it must not be so;
Such beauty as the fair princess
Is not for a tyrants mow.
- 35 The prince he then began to storm;
Crys, Fool, fanatick, baboon !
How dares thou stop my valours prize ?
I 'll kill thee with a frown.
- 36 'Thou tyrant Turk, thou infidel,'
Thus Robin began to reply,
'Thy frowns I scorn; lo ! here 's my gage,
And thus I thee defie.
- 37 'And for these two Goliabs there,
That stand on either side,
Here are two little Davids by,
That soon can tame their pride.'
- 38 Then did the king for armour send,
For lances, swords, and shields:
And thus all three in armour bright
Came marching to the field.
- 39 The trumpets began to sound a charge,
Each singled out his man;
Their arms in pieces soon were hewd,
Blood sprang from every vain.
- 40 The prince he reacht Robin a blow —
He struck with might and main —
Which forced him to reel about the
field,
As though he had been slain.
- 41 'God-a-mercy,' quoth Robin, 'for that
blow !
The quarrel shall soon be try'd;
This stroke shall shew a full divorce
Betwixt thee and thy bride.'
- 42 So from his shoulders he 's cut his head,
Which on the ground did fall,
And grumbling sore at Robin Hood,
To be so dealt withal.
- 43 The giants then began to rage,
To see their prince lie dead:
'Thou 's be the next,' quoth Little John,
'Unless thou well guard thy head.'
- 44 With that his faulchion he whirld
about —
It was both keen and sharp —
He clove the giant to the belt,
And cut in twain his heart.
- 45 Will Scadlock well had playd his part,
The giant he had brought to his
knee;
Quoth he, The devil cannot break his
fast,
Unless he have you all three.
- 46 So with his faulchion he run him through,
A deep and gashly wound;
Who damd and foamd, cursd and blasphemd,
And then fell to the ground.
- 47 Now all the lists with cheers were filld,
The skies they did resound,
Which brought the princess to herself,
Who was faln in a swoond.
- 48 The king and queen and princess fair
Came walking to the place,
And gave the champions many thanks,
And did them further grace.
- 49 'Tell me,' quoth the king, 'whence you are,
That thus disguised came,
Whose valour speaks that noble blood
Doth run through every vain.'
- 50 'A boon, a boon,' quoth Robin Hood,
'On my knees I beg and crave:'
'By my crown,' quoth the king, 'I grant;
Ask what, and thou shalt have.'
- 51 'Then pardon I beg for my merry
men,
Which are within the green wood,
For Little John, and Will Scadlock,
And for me, bold Robin Hood.'
- 52 'Art thou Robin Hood ?' then quoth
the king;
'For the valour you have shewn,
Your pardons I doe freely grant,
And welcome every one.
- 53 'The princess I promised the victors prize;
She cannot have you all three:'

'She shall chuse,' quoth Robin; saith
Little John,
Then little share falls to me.

54 Then did the princess view all three,
With a comely lovely grace,
Who took Will Scadlock by the hand,
Quoth, Here I make my choice.

55 With that a noble lord stept forth,
Of Maxfield earl was he,
Who lookt Will Scadlock in the face,
Then wept most bitterly.

56 Quoth he, I had a son like thee,
Whom I lov'd wondrous well;
But he is gone, or rather dead;
His name is Young Gamwell.

57 Then did Will Scadlock fall on his knees,
Cries, Father! father! here,
Here kneels your son, your Young Gam-
well
You said you lov'd so dear.

58 But, lord! what imbracing and kissing
was there,
When all these friends were met!
They are gone to the wedding, and so to bedding,
And so I bid you good night.

ROBIN HOOD AND THE SCOTCHMAN

A is simply the conclusion given to 'Robin Hood Newly Revived' (No. 128) in the broadsides, and has neither connection with that ballad nor coherence in itself, being on the face of it the beginning and the end of an independent ballad, with the break after the third stanza. B may possibly refer to the Scots giving up Charles I to the parliamentary commissioners, in 1647. In B, four stanzas appear to have been added to the first three of A in order to make out a story, — the too familiar one of Robin being beaten in a fight with a fellow whom he chances to meet, and consequently enlisting the man as a recruit.

1 THEN bold Robin Hood to the north he would go,
With a hey down down a down down
With valour and mickle might,
With sword by his side, which oft had
been tri'd,
To fight and recover his right.

2 The first that he met was a bony bold Scot,
His servant he said he would be;
'No,' quoth Robin Hood, 'it cannot be
good,
For thou wilt prove false unto me.

3 'Thou hast not bin true to sire nor cuz:'
'Nay, marry,' the Scot he said,
'As true as your heart, I'll never part,
Gude master, be not afraid.'

4 Then Robin Hood turnd his face to the east;
'Fight on my merry men stout,
Our cause is good,' quoth brave Robin
Hood,
'And we shall not be beaten out.'

5 The battel grows hot on every side,
The Scotchman made great moan;
Quoth Jockey, Gude faith, they fight on each side;
Would I were with my wife Ione!

6 The enemy compast brave Robin about,
'Tis long ere the battel ends;
Ther's neither will yeeld nor give up the
field,
For both are supplied with friends.

7 This song it was made in Robin Hood's
dayes;
Let's pray unto Iove above
To give us true peace, that mischief may cease,
And war may give place unto love.

- 1 Now bold Robin Hood to the north
would go,
With valour and mickle might,
With sword by his side, which oft had
been try'd,
To fight and recover his right.
- 2 The first that he met was a jolly stout
Scot,
His servant he said he would be;
'No,' quoth Robin Hood, 'it cannot be
good,
For thou wilt prove false unto me.
- 3 'Thou hast not been true to sire or cuz;'
'Nay, marry,' the Scot he said,
'As true as your heart, I never will part;
Good master, be not afraid.'
- 4 'But eer I employ you,' said bold Robin
Hood,
'With you I must have a bout;'
The Scotchman reply'd, Let the battle be try'd,
For I know I will beat you out.
- 5 Thus saying, the contest did quickly
begin,
Which lasted two hours and more;
The blows Sawney gave bold Robin so brave
The battle soon made him give oer.
- 6 'Have mercy, thou Scotchman,' bold
Robin Hood cry'd,
'Full dearly this boon have I bought;
We will both agree, and my man you shall be,
For a stouter I never have fought.'
- 7 Then Sawny consented with Robin to
go,
To be of his bowmen so gay;
Thus ended the fight, and with mickle
delight
To Sherwood they hasted away.

- 1 WHEN Phœbus had melted the sickles
of ice,
With a hey down, &c.
And likewise the mountains of snow,
Bold Robin Hood he would ramble to
see,
To frolick abroad with his bow.
- 2 He left all his merry men waiting behind,
Whilst through the green vallies he
passd;
There did he behold a forester bold,
Who cry'd out, Friend, whither so
fast?
- 3 'I'm going,' quoth Robin, 'to kill a fat
buck,
For me and my merry men all;
Besides, eer I go, I'll have a fat doe,
Or else it shall cost me a fall.'
- 4 'You'd best have a care,' said the forester then,
'For these are his majesty's deer;
Before you shall shoot, the thing I'll
dispute,
For I am head-forester here.'
- 5 'These thirteen long summers,' quoth
Robin, 'I'm sure,
My arrows I here have let fly,
Where freely I range; methinks it is strange,
You should have more power than I.
- 6 'This forest,' quoth Robin, 'I think is my own,
And so are the nimble deer too;
Therefore I declare, and solemnly swear,
I wont be affronted by you.'
- 7 The forester he had a long quarter-staff,
Likewise a broad sword by his side;
Without more ado, he presently drew,
Declaring the truth should be try'd.

- 8 Bold Robin Hood had a sword of the best,
Thus, eer he would take any wrong,
His courage was flush, he'd venture a brush,
And thus they fell to it ding dong.
- 9 The very first blow that the forester gave,
He made his broad weapon cry twang;
'T was over the head, he fell down for
dead,
O that was a damnable bang!
- 10 But Robin he soon did recover himself,
And bravely fell to it again;
The very next stroke their weapons were broke,
Yet never a man there was slain.
- 11 At quarter-staff then they resolved to
play,
Because they would have t'other bout;
And brave Robin Hood right valiantly
stood,
Unwilling he was to give out.
- 12 Bold Robin he gave him very hard blows,
The other returnd them as fast;
At every stroke their jackets did smoke,
'Three hours the combat did last.
- 13 At length in a rage the bold forester grew,
And cudgeld bold Robin so sore
That he could not stand, so shaking his
hand,
He said, Let us freely give oer.
- 14 Thou art a brave fellow, I needs must confess
I never knew any so good;
Thou'rt fitting to be a yeoman for me,
And range in the merry green wood.
- 15 I'll give thee this ring as a token of love,
For bravely thou'st acted thy part;
That man that can fight, in him I delight,
And love him with all my whole heart.
- 16 Then Robin Hood setting his horn to his mouth,
A blast he merrily blows;
His yeomen did hear, and strait did appear,
A hundred, with trusty long bows.
- 17 Now Little John came at the head of
them all,
Cloathd in a rich mantle of green;
And likewise the rest were gloriously
drest,
A delicate sight to be seen.
- 18 'Lo, these are my yeomen,' said Robin
Hood,
'And thou shalt be one of the train;
A mantle and bow, a quiver also,
I give them whom I entertain.'
- 19 The forester willingly enterd the list,
They were such a beautiful sight;
Then with a long bow they shot a fat
doe,
And made a rich supper that night.
- 20 What singing and dancing was in the
green wood,
For joy of another new mate!
With mirth and delight they spent the long night,
And liv'd at a plentiful rate.
- 21 The forester neer was so merry before
As then he was with these brave souls,
Who never would fail, in wine, beer or
ale,
To take off their cherishing bowls.
- 22 Then Robin Hood gave him a mantle
of green,
Broad arrows, and a curious long bow;
This done, the next day, so gallant and
gay,
He marched them all on a row.
- 23 Quoth he, My brave yeomen, be true to your trust,
And then we may range the woods
wide:
They all did declare, and solemnly swear,
They'd conquer, or die by his side.

THE BOLD PEDLAR AND ROBIN HOOD

"An aged female in Bermondsey, Surrey, from whose oral recitation the editor took down the present version, informed him, that she had often heard her grandmother sing it, and that it was never in print; but he has of late met with several common stall copies." — DIXON. This ballad is a traditional variation of No. 128. A copy which varies but slightly from that here printed is found in Captain Delany's Garland [1775?], British Museum, 1346, m. 7 (9). It is given in Child, v, 240.

J. H. Dixon, Ancient Poems, Ballads, and Songs of the Peasantry of England, p. 71, Percy Society, vol. xvii, 1846.

- 1 THERE chanced to be a pedlar bold,
A pedlar bold he chanced to be;
He rolled his pack all on his back,
And he came tripping oer the lee.
Down a down a down a down,
Down a down a down
- 2 By chance he met two troublesome blades,
Two troublesome blades they chanced to be;
The one of them was bold Robin Hood,
And the other was Little John so free.
- 3 'O pedlar, pedlar, what is in thy pack?
Come speedilie and tell to me:
'I've several suits of the gay green silks,
And silken bow-strings two or three.'
- 4 'If you have several suits of the gay green silk,
And silken bow-strings two or three,
Then it's by my body,' cries Little John,
'One half your pack shall belong to me.'
- 5 'O nay, o nay,' says the pedlar bold,
'O nay, o nay, that never can be;
For there's never a man from fair Nottingham
Can take one half my pack from me.'
- 6 Then the pedlar he pulled off his pack,
And put it a little below his knee,
Saying, If you do move me one perch from this,
My pack and all shall gang with thee.
- 7 Then Little John he drew his sword,
The pedlar by his pack did stand;
- They fought until they both did sweat,
Till he cried, Pedlar, pray hold your hand!
- 8 Then Robin Hood he was standing by,
And he did laugh most heartilie;
Saying, I could find a man, of a smaller scale,
Could thrash the pedlar and also thee.
- 9 'Go you try, master,' says Little John,
'Go you try, master, most speedilie,
Or by my body,' says Little John,
'I am sure this night you will not know me.'
- 10 Then Robin Hood he drew his sword,
And the pedlar by his pack did stand;
They fought till the blood in streams did flow,
Till he cried, Pedlar, pray hold your hand!
- 11 Pedlar, pedlar, what is thy name?
Come speedilie and tell to me:
'My name! my name I neer will tell,
Till both your names you have told to me.'
- 12 'The one of us is bold Robin Hood,
And the other Little John so free:'
'Now,' says the pedlar, 'it lays to my good will,
Whether my name I chuse to tell to thee.'
- 13 'I am Gamble Gold of the gay green woods,
And travelled far beyond the sea;
For killing a man in my father's land
From my country I was forced to flee.'
- 14 'If you are Gamble Gold of the gay green woods,
And travelled far beyond the sea,
You are my mother's own sister's son;
What nearer cousins then can we be?'
- 15 They sheathed their swords with friendly words,
So merrilie they did agree;
They went to a tavern, and there they dined,
And bottles cracked most merrilie.

BEGGAR, I

There is a copy in the Roxburghe Collection, II, 20 (Ballad Society's ed., VIII, 517). The copy in the Wood and in the Roxburghe collections is signed T. R. like No. 122 B (see p. 294, above), and, like the latter ballad, this is a rifacimento, with middle rhyme in the third line. It is perhaps made up from two distinct stories; the Second Part, beginning at st. 20, from No. 140, and what precedes from a ballad resembling No. 134. But no seventeenth-century version of No. 134 is known, and it is more likely that we owe the fight between Robin Hood and the Beggar to the folly and bad taste of T. R.

'Robin Hood and the Beggar.' a. Wood, 401, leaf 23 b. b. Garland of 1663, No. 8. c. Garland of 1670, No. 7. d. Pepys, II, 116, No. 100.

- 1 COME light and listen, you gentlemen
all,
Hey down, down, and a down
That mirth do love for to hear,
And a story true I'll tell unto you,
If that you will but draw near.
- 2 In elder times, when merriment was,
And archery was holden good,
There was an outlaw, as many did know,
Which men called Robin Hood.
- 3 Vpon a time it chanced so
Bold Robin was merry disposed,
His time to spend he did intend,
Either with friends or foes.
- 4 Then he got vp on a gallant brave
steed,
The which was worth angels ten;
With a mantle of green, most brave to be seen,
He left all his merry men.
- 5 And riding towards fair Nottingham,
Some pastime for to spy,
There was he aware of a jolly beggar
As ere he beheld with his eye.
- 6 An old patcht coat the beggar had on,
Which he daily did vse for to wear;

And many a bag about him did wag,
Which made Robin Hood to him repair.

- 7 'God speed, God speed,' said Robin
Hood,
'What countryman? tell to me:.'
'I am Yorkeshire, sir; but, ere you go far,
Some charity give vnto me.'
- 8 'Why, what wouldst thou have?' said
Robin Hood,
'I pray thee tell vnto me:.'
'No lands nor livings,' the beggar he
said,
'But a penny for charitie.'
- 9 'I have no money,' said Robin Hood
then,
'But, a ranger within the wood,
I am an outlaw, as many do know,
My name it is Robin Hood.
- 10 'But yet I must tell thee, bonny beggar,
That a bout with [thee] I must try;
Thy coat of gray, lay down I say,
And my mantle of green shall lye by.'
- 11 'Content, content,' the beggar he cry'd,
'Thy part it will be the worse;
For I hope this bout to give thee the rout,
And then have at thy purse.'
- 12 The beggar he had a mickle long staffe,
And Robin had a nut-brown sword;
So the beggar drew nigh, and at Robin
let fly,
But gave him never a word.
- 13 'Fight on, fight on,' said Robin Hood then,
'This game well pleaseth me;'
For every blow that Robin did give,
The beggar gave buffets three.
- 14 And fighting there full hard and sore,
Not far from Nottingham town,
They never fled, till from Robin[']s
head
The blood came trickling down.
- 15 'O hold thy hand,' said Robin Hood
then,
'And thou and I will agree;'

- 'If that be true,' the beggar he said,
'Thy mantle come give vnto me.'
- 16 'Nay a change, a change,' cri'd Robin Hood;
'Thy bags and coat give me,
And this mantle of mine I 'le to thee resign,
My horse and my braverie.'
- 17 When Robin Hood had got the beggars clothes,
He looked round about;
'Methinks,' said he, 'I seem to be
A beggar brave and stout.'
- 18 'For now I have a bag for my bread,
So have I another for corn;
I have one for salt, and another for malt,
And one for my little horn.'
- 19 'And now I will a begging goe,
Some charitie for to find:
And if any more of Robin you 'l know,
In this second part it 's behind.'
- 20 Now Robin he is to Nottingham bound,
With his bags hanging down to his knee,
His staff, and his coat, scarce worth a groat,
Yet merrilie passed he.
- 21 As Robin he passed the streets along,
He heard a pittifull cry;
Three brethren deer, as he did hear,
Condemned were to dye.
- 22 Then Robin he highed to the sheriffs
[house],
Some reliefe for to seek;
He skipt, and leapt, and capored full high,
As he went along the street.
- 23 But when to the sheriffs doore he came,
There a gentleman fine and brave,
'Thou beggar,' said he, 'come tell vnto me
What is it that thou wouldest have?'
- 24 'No meat, nor drink,' said Robin Hood then,
'That I come here to crave

But to beg the lives of yeomen three,
And that I fain would have.'

- 25 'That cannot be, thou bold beggar,
Their fact it is so cleer;
I tell to thee, hangd they must be,
For stealing of our kings deer.'
- 26 But when to the gallows they did come,
There was many a weeping eye:
'O hold your peace,' said Robin then,
'For certainly they shall not dye.'
- 27 Then Robin he set his horn to his mouth,
And he blew but blastes three,
Till a hundred bold archers brave
Came kneeling down to his knee.
- 28 'What is your will, master?' they said,
'We are here at your command:.'
'Shoot east, shoot west,' said Robin Hood then,
'And look that you spare no man.'
- 29 Then they shot east, and they shot west;
Their arrows were so keen
The sheriffe he, and his companie,
No longer must be seen.
- 30 Then he stept to these brethren three,
And away he had them tane;
But the sheriff was crost, and many a man lost,
That dead lay on the plain.
- 31 And away they went into the merry green wood,
And sung with a merry glee,
And Robin took these brethren good
To be of his yeomandrie.

ROBIN HOOD AND THE BEGGAR, II

This tale is rightly called by Ritson a North Country composition of some antiquity, "perhaps Scottish." Fragments of Robin Hood ballads, Motherwell informs us, were traditionally extant in his day which had not (and have not) found their way into printed collections, and we know from very early testimony that such ballads were current in Scotland. This is by far the best of the Robin Hood ballads of the secondary, so to speak cyclic, period. It has plenty of homely humor, but the heroic sentiment is gone. It does not belong to the iron, the cast-iron, age of 'Robin Hood's Birth, Breeding,' etc. (No. 149); but neither does it belong to the golden age of 'Robin Hood and the Monk,' or the Gest.

a. 'The History of Robin Hood and the Beggar,' Aberdeen, Printed by and for A. Keith: Bodleian Library, Douce, HH 88, pasted between pp. 68, 69 of Robin Hood's Garland, London, C. Dicey. A. Keith of Aberdeen printed from 1810 to 1835. b. 'A pretty dialogue betwixt Robin Hood and a Beggar,' Newcastle, in Ritson's Robin Hood, 1795, i, 97.

- 1 LYTH and listen, gentlemen,
That's come of high born blood;
I'll tell you of a brave booting
That befel Robin Hood.
- 2 Robin Hood upon a day,
He went forth him alone,
And as he came from Barnesdale
Into a fair evening,
- 3 He met a beggar on the way,
That sturdily could gang;
He had a pike-staff in his hand,
That was baith stark and strang.
- 4 A clouted cloak about him was,
That held him from the cold;
The thinnest bit of it, I guess,
Was more than twenty fold.
- 5 His meal-pock hang about his neck,
Into a leathern fang,
Well fastened with a broad buckle,
That was both stark and strang.
- 6 He had three hats upon his head,
Together sticked fast;
He cared neither for wind nor weat,
In lands wherever he past.
- 7 Good Robin coost him in his way,
To see what he might be;
If any beggar had money,
He thought some part had he.
- 8 'Tarry, tarry,' good Robin says,
'Tarry, and speak with me;'
He heard him as he heard [him] not,
And fast his way can hie.
- 9 'It be's not so,' says good Robin,
'Nay, thou must tarry still;'
'By my troth,' says the bold beggar,
'Of that I have no will.
- 10 'It is far to my lodging-house,
And it is growing late;
If they have supt ere I come in,
I will look wondrous blate.'
- 11 'Now, by my troth,' says good Robin,
'I see well by thy fare,
If thou chear well to thy supper,
Of mine thou takes no care;
- 12 'Who wants my dinner all the day,
And wots not where to lie,
And should I to the tavern go,
I want money to buy.
- 13 'Sir, thou must lend me some money,
Till we two meet again: '
The beggar answerd cankerdly,
I have no money to lend.
- 14 Thou art as young a man as I,
And seems to be as sweer;
If thou fast till thou get from me,
Thou shalt eat none this year.
- 15 'Now, by my troth,' says good Robin,
'Since we are ssembled so,
If thou have but a small farthing,
I'll have it ere thou go.
- 16 'Therefore, lay down thy clouted cloak,
And do no longer stand,
And loose the strings of all thy pocks;
I'll ripe them with my hand.
- 17 'And now to thee I make a vow,
If thou make any din,
I shall see if a broad arrow
Can pierce a beggar's skin.'
- 18 The beggar smil'd, and answer made:
Far better let me be;
Think not that I will be afraid
For thy nip crooked tree.
- 19 Or that I fear thee any whit
For thy curn nips of sticks;
I know no use for them so meet
As to be pudding-pricks.

- 20 Here I defy thee to do me ill,
For all thy boistrous fare;
Thou 's get nothing from me but ill,
Would thou seek it evermair.
- 21 Good Robin bent his noble bow —
He was an angry man —
And in it set a broad arrow;
Yet er 't was drawn a span,
- 22 The beggar, with his noble tree,
Reacht him so round a rout
That his bow and his broad arrow
In flinders flew about.
- 23 Good Robin bound him to his brand,
But that provd likewise vain;
The beggar lighted on his hand
With his pike-staff again.
- 24 I wot he might not draw a sword
For forty days and more;
Good Robin could not speak a word,
His heart was never so sore.
- 25 He could not fight, he could not flee,
He wist not what to do;
The beggar, with his noble tree,
Laid lusty flaps him to.
- 26 He paid good Robin back and side,
And beft him up and down,
And with his pike-staff still on laid
Till he fell in a swoon.
- 27 'Fy! stand up, man,' the beggar
said,
'T is shame to go to rest;
Stay still till thou get thy mony [told],
I think it were the best.
- 28 'And syne go to the tavern-house,
And buy both wine and ale;
Hereat thy friends will crack full crouse,
Thou has been at a dale.'
- 29 Good Robin answerd never a word,
But lay still as a stane;
His cheeks were white as any clay,
And closed were his eyne.
- 30 The beggar thought him dead but fail,
And boldly bownd away;
I would you had been at the dale,
And gotten part of the play.

- 31 Now three of Robin's men, by chance,
Came walking on the way,
And found their master in a trance,
On ground where he did lie.
- 32 Up have they taken good Robin,
Making a piteous bier,
Yet saw they no man there at whom
They might the matter spear.
- 33 They looked him all round about,
But wounds on him saw none,
Yet at his mouth came bocking out
The blood of a good vein.
- 34 Cold water they have taken syne,
And cast into his face;
Then he began to lift his eyne,
And spake within short space.
- 35 'Tell us, dear master,' says his men,
'How with you stands the case?'
Good Robin sighd ere he began
To tell of his disgrace.
- 36 'I have been watchman in this wood
Near hand this forty year,
Yet I was never so hard bestead
As you have found me here.
- 37 'A beggar with a clouted cloak,
In whom I feard no ill,
Hath with a pike-staff clawd my
back;
I fear 't shall never be well.
- 38 'See, where he goes out oer yon hill,
With hat upon his head;
If ever you lovd your master well,
Go now revenge this deed.
- 39 'And bring him back again to me,
If it lie in your might,
That I may see, before I die,
Him punisht in my sight.
- 40 'And if you may not bring him back,
Let him not go loose on;
For to us all it were great shame
If he escapt again.'
- 41 'One of us shall with you remain,
Because you 're ill at ease;
The other two shall bring him back,
To use him as you please.'

42 'Now, by my troth,' says good Robin,
 'I trow there's enough said;
 If he get scouth to weild his tree,
 I fear you'll both be paid.'

43 'Be ye not feard, our good master,
 'That we two can be dung
 With any blutter base beggar,
 That hath nought but a rung.

44 'His staff shall stand him in no stead;
 That you shall shortly see;
 But back again he shall be led,
 And fast bound shall he be,
 To see if you will have him slain,
 Or hanged on a tree.'

45 'But cast you slily in his way,
 Before he be aware,
 And on his pike-staff first lay hands;
 You'll speed the better far.'

46 Now leave we Robin with his man,
 Again to play the child,
 And learn himself to stand and gang
 By haulds, for all his eild.

47 Now pass we to the bold beggar,
 That raked oer the hill,
 Who never mended his pace no more
 Nor he had done no ill.

48 The young men knew the country
 well,
 So soon where he would be,
 And they have taken another way,
 Was nearer by miles three.

49 They rudely ran with all their might,
 Spar'd neither dub nor mire,
 They stirr'd neither at laigh nor hight,
 No travel made them tire,

50 Till they before the beggar wan,
 And coost them in his way;
 A little wood lay in a glen,
 And there they both did stay.

51 They stood up closely by a tree,
 In ilk side of the gate,
 Until the beggar came them to,
 That thought not of such fate.

52 And as he was betwixt them past,
 They leapt upon him baith;

The one his pike-staff gripped fast,
 They feared for its scaith.

53 The other he held in his sight
 A drawn dirk to his breast,
 And said, False carl, quit thy staff,
 Or I shall be thy priest.

54 His pike-staff they have taken him frae,
 And stuck it in the green;
 He was full leath to let [it] gae,
 If better might have been.

55 The beggar was the feardest man
 Of one that ever might be;
 To win away no way he can,
 Nor help him with his tree.

56 He wist not wherefore he was tane,
 'Nor how many was there;
 He thought his life-days had been gone,
 And grew into despair.

57 'Grant me my life,' the beggar said,
 'For him that died on tree,
 And take away that ugly knife,
 Or then for fear I'll die.

58 'I grievd you never in all my life,
 By late nor yet by ayre;
 Ye have great sin, if ye should slay
 A silly poor beggar.'

59 'Thou lies, false lown,' they said again,
 'By all that may be sworn;
 Thou hast near slain the gentlest man
 That ever yet was born.

60 'And back again thou shalt be led,
 And fast bound shalt thou be,
 To see if he will have thee slain,
 Or hanged on a tree.'

61 The beggar then thought all was wrong;
 They were set for his wrack;
 He saw nothing appearing then
 But ill upon worse back.

62 Were he out of their hands, he thought,
 And had again his tree,
 He should not be had back for nought,
 With such as he did see.

63 Then he bethought him on a wile,
 If it could take effect,

- How he the young men might beguile,
And give them a begeck.
- 64 Thus for to do them shame or ill
His beastly breast was bent;
He found the wind grew something
shril,
To further his intent.
- 65 He said, Brave gentlemen, be good,
And let the poor man be;
When ye have taken a beggar's blood,
It helps you not a flee.
- 66 It was but in my own defence,
If he hath gotten skaith;
But I will make a recompence,
Much better for your baith.
- 67 If ye will set me safe and free,
And do me no danger,
An hundred pounds I will you give,
And much more good silver,
- 68 That I have gathered these many years,
Under this clouted cloak,
And hid up wonder privately,
In bottom of my pock.
- 69 The young men to a council yeed,
And let the beggar gae;
They wist how well he had no speed
From them to run away.
- 70 They thought they would the money
take,
Come after what so may,
And then they would not bring him
back,
But in that part him slay.
- 71 By that good Robin would not know
That they had gotten coin;
It would content him for to show
That there they had him slain.
- 72 They said, False carl, soon have done
And tell forth that money;
For the ill turn thou hast done
'T is but a simple fee.
- 73 And yet we will not have thee back,
Come after what so may,
If thou will do that which thou spake,
And make us present pay.
- 74 O then he loosed his clouted cloak,
And spread it on the ground;
And thereon laid he many a pock,
Betwixt them and the wind.
- 75 He took a great bag from his hase;
It was near full of meal;
Two pecks in it at least there was,
And more, I wot full well.
- 76 Upon his cloak he laid it down,
The mouth he opened wide,
To turn the same he made him bown,
The young men ready spy'd.
- 77 In every hand he took a nook
Of that great leathern meal,
And with a fling the meal he shook
Into their faces hail.
- 78 Wherewith he blinded them so close
A stime they could not see;
And then in heart he did rejoice,
And clapt his lusty tree.
- 79 He thought, if he had done them wrong
In mealing of their cloaths,
For to strike off the meal again
With his pike-staff he goes.
- 80 Or any one of them could red their
eyne,
Or yet a glimmering could see,
Ilk one of them a dozen had,
Well laid on with the tree.
- 81 The young men were right swift of foot,
And boldly ran away;
The beggar could them no more hit,
For all the haste he may.
- 82 'What ails this haste?' the beggar said,
'May ye not tarry still,
Until your money be receivd?
I'll pay you with good will.'
- 83 'The shaking of my pocks, I fear,
Hath blown into your eyne;
But I have a good pike-staff here
Will ripe them out full clean.'
- 84 The young men answerd neer a word,
They were dumb as a stane;
In the thick wood the beggar fled,
Eer they riped their eyne.

- 85 And syne the night became so late,
To seek him was but vain:
But judge ye, if they looked blate
When they came home again.
- 86 Good Robin speard how they had sped;
They answerd him, Full ill;
'That cannot be,' good Robin says;
'Ye have been at the mill.
- 87 'The mill it is a meatrif place,
They may lick what they please;
Most like ye have been at that art,
Who would look to your cloaths.'
- 88 They hangd their heads, and droped
down,
A word they could not speak:
Robin said, Because I fell a-swoon,
I think you'll do the like.
- 89 Tell on the matter, less and more,
And tell me what and how
Ye have done with the bold beggar
I sent you for right now.
- 90 And then they told him to an end,
As I have said before,
How that the beggar did them blind,
What misters process more.
- 91 And how he lin'd their shoulders broad
With his great trenchen tree,
And how in the thick wood he fled,
Eer they a stime could see,
- 92 And how they scarcely could win home,
Their bones were beft so sore:
Good Robin cry'd, Fy! out, for shame!
We're sham'd for evermore.
- 93 Altho good Robin would full fain
Of his wrong revenged be,
He smil'd to see his merry young men
Had gotten a taste of the tree.

ROBIN HOOD AND THE SHEPHERD

It is but the natural course of exaggeration that the shepherd, having beaten Robin Hood, should beat Little John. This is descending low enough, but we do not see the bottom of this kind of balladry here.

a. Garland of 1663, No. 13. b. Garland of 1670, No. 12. c. Wood, 401, leaf 13 b. d. Pepys, II, 115, No. 102.

- 1 ALL gentlemen and yeomen good,
Down a down a down a down
I wish you to draw near;
For a story of gallant brave Robin
Hood
Vnto you I wil declare.
Down, etc.
- 2 As Robin Hood walkt the forrest along,
Some pastime for to spie,
There was he aware of a jolly shepherd,
That on the ground did lie.
- 3 'Arise, arise,' cryed jolly Robin,
'And now come let me see
What is in thy bag and bottle, I say;
Come tell it unto me.'
- 4 'What's that to thee, thou proud fellow?
Tell me as I do stand
What thou hast to do with my bag and bottle?
Let me see thy command.'
- 5 'My sword, which hangeth by my side,
Is my command I know;
Come, and let me taste of thy bottle,
Or it may breed thee wo.'
- 6 'Tut, the devil a drop, thou proud fellow,
Of my bottle thou shalt see,
Untill thy valour here be tried,
Whether thou wilt fight or flee.'
- 7 'What shall we fight for?' cries bold
Robin Hood;
'Come tell it soon to me;
Here is twenty pounds in good red
gold;
Win it, and take it thee.'
- 8 The Shepherd stood all in a maze,
And knew not what to say:
'I have no money, thou proud fellow,
But bag and bottle I'll lay.'
- 9 'I am content, thou shepherd-swain,
Fling them down on the ground;
But it will breed thee mickle pain,
To win my twenty pound.'

- 10 'Come draw thy sword, thou proud fellow,
Thou stands too long to prate;
This hook of mine shall let thee know
A coward I do hate.'
- 11 So they fell to it, full hardy and sore;
It was on a summers day;
From ten till four in the afternoon
The Shepherd held him play.
- 12 Robins buckler proved his chief defence,
And saved him many a bang,
For every blow the Shepherd gave
Made Robins sword cry twang.
- 13 Many a sturdy blow the Shepherd gave,
And that bold Robin found,
Till the blood ran trickling from his
head;
Then he fell to the ground.
- 14 'Arise, arise, thou proud fellow,
And thou shalt have fair play,
If thou wilt yield, before thou go,
That I have won the day.'
- 15 'A boon, a boon,' cried bold Robin;
'If that a man thou be,
Then let me take my beauble-horn,
And blow but blasts three.'
- 16 'To blow three times three,' the Shepherd said,
'I will not thee deny;
For if thou shouldst blow till to-morrow morn,
I scorn one foot to fly.'
- 17 Then Robin set his horn to his mouth,
And he blew with mickle main,
Until he espied Little John
Come tripping over the plain.
- 18 'O who is yonder, thou proud fellow,
That comes down yonder hill?'
'Yonder is Little John, bold Robin
Hoods man,
Shall fight with thee thy fill.'
- 19 'What is the matter?' saies Little John,
'Master, come tell to me:'
'My case is great,' saies Robin Hood,
'For the Shepherd hath conquered
me.'

- 20 'I am glad of that,' cries Little John,
'Shepherd, turn thou to me;
For a bout with thee I mean to have,
Either come fight or flee.'
- 21 'With all my heart, thou proud fellow,
For it never shall be said
That a shepherds hook of thy sturdy look
Will one jot be dismaid.'
- 22 So they fell to it, full hardy and sore,
Striving for victory;
'I will know,' saies John, 'ere we give ore,
Whether thou wilt fight or flye.'
- 23 The Shepherd gave John a sturdy blow,
With his hook under the chin;
'Beshrew thy heart,' said Little John,
'Thou basely dost begin.'
- 24 'Nay, that's nothing,' said the Shepherd;
'Either yield to me the day,
Or I will bang thee back and sides,
Before thou goest thy way.'
- 25 'What? dost thou think, thou proud fellow,
That thou canst conquer me?
Nay, thou shalt know, before thou go,
I'll fight before I'll flee.'
- 26 With that to thrash Little John like mad
The Shepherd he begun;
'Hold, hold,' cryed bold Robin Hood,
'And I'll yield the wager won.'
- 27 'With all my heart,' said Little John,
'To that I will agree;
For he is the flower of shepherd-swains,
The like I never did see.'
- 28 Thus have you heard of Robin Hood,
Also of Little John,
How a shepherd-swain did conquer them;
The like did never none.

ROBIN HOOD'S DELIGHT

(ROBIN HOOD, JOHN, SCARLOCK, AND THREE KEEPERS)

'The Bold Pedlar and Robin Hood,' No. 132, a late traditional copy, shows traces of st. 20 of this ballad in st. 12, where the Pedlar says it lies with him whether he will tell his name, and again at the end, where Robin Hood, John, and the Pedlar drink friendship at the tavern. Robin Hood's antagonists are again foresters and keepers in Nos. 131 and 139. There are numerous agreements between this piece and No. 135.

'Robin Hood's Delight.' a. Wood, 401, leaf 41 b. b. Garland of 1663, No. 17. c. Garland of 1670, No. 16. d. Pepys, II, 112, No. 99.

- 1 THERE is some will talk of lords and knights,
Doun a doun a doun a doun
And some of yeoman good,
But I will tell you of Will Scarlock,
Little John and Robin Hood.
Doun a doun a doun a doun
- 2 They were outlaws, as 't is well known,
And men of a noble blood;
And a many a time was their valour shown
In the forrest of merry Sheerwood.
- 3 Vpon a time it chanced so,
As Robin Hood would have it be,
They all three would a walking go,
Some pastime for to see.
- 4 And as they walked the forest along,
Upon a midsummer day,
There was they aware of three keepers,
Clade all in green array.
- 5 With brave long fauchions by their sides,
And forest-bills in hand,
They calld aloud to those bold outlaws,
And charged them to stand.
- 6 'Why, who are you,' cry'd bold Robin,
'That speaks so boldly here?'
'We three belong to King Henry,
And are keepers of his deer.'
- 7 'The devil thou art!' says Robin Hood,
'I am sure that it is not so;
We be the keepers of this forest,
And that you soon shall know.
- 8 'Come, your coats of green lay on the ground,
And so will we all three,
And take your swords and bucklers round,
And try the victory.'
- 9 'We be content,' the keepers said,
'We be three, and you no less;
Then why should we be of you afraid,
And we never did transgress?'
- 10 'Why, if you be three keepers in this forest,
Then we be three rangers good,
And we will make you to know, before you do go,
You meet with bold Robin Hood.'
- 11 'We be content, thou bold outlaw,
Our valour here to try,
And we will make you know, before we do go,
We will fight before we will fly.
- 12 'Then, come draw your swords, you bold outlaws,
And no longer stand to prate,
But let us try it out with blows,
For cowards we do hate.
- 13 'Here is one of us for Will Scarlock,
And another for Little John,
And I my self for Robin Hood,
Because he is stout and strong.'
- 14 So they fell to it full hard and sore;
It was on a midsummers day;
From eight a clock till two and past,
They all shewed gallant play.
- 15 There Robin, and Will, and Little John,
They fought most manfully,
Till all their winde was spent and gone,
Then Robin aloud did cry:
- 16 'O hold, O hold,' cries bold Robin,
'I see you be stout men;
Let me blow one blast on my bugle-horn,
Then I 'le fight with you again.'
- 17 'That bargain's to make, bold Robin Hood,
Therefore we it deny;
Though a blast upon thy bugle-horn
Cannot make us fight nor fly.
- 18 'Therefore fall on, or else be gone,
And yield to us the day:
It shall never be said that we were afraid
Of thee, nor thy yeomen gay.'

19 'If that be so,' cries bold Robin,
 'Let me but know your names,
 And in the forest of merry Sheerwood
 I shall extol your fames.'

20 'And with our names,' one of them
 said,
 'What hast thou here to do?
 Except that you will fight it out,
 Our names thou shalt not know.'

21 'We will fight no more,' sayes bold
 Robin,
 'You be men of valour stout;
 Come and go with me to Nottingham,
 And there we will fight it out.'

22 'With a but of sack we will bang it out,
 To see who wins the day;
 And for the cost, make you no doubt
 I have gold and money to pay.'

23 'And ever after, so long as we live,
 We all will brethren be;
 For I love those men with heart and
 hand
 That will fight, and never flee.'

24 So away they went to Nottingham,
 With sack to make amends;
 For three dayes space they wine did chase,
 And drank themselves good friends.

ROBIN HOOD AND THE PEDLARS

The manuscript in which this ballad occurs contains a variety of matters, and, as the best authority has declared, may in part have been written as early as 1650, but all the ballads are in a nineteenth-century hand, and some of them are maintained to be forgeries. There is no sufficient reason for regarding this particular piece as spurious; it may be a copy of a broadside, or a copy of a copy. The story resembles that of 'Robin Hood's Delight' (No. 136), pedlars taking the place of keepers; but Robin is reduced to an ignominy paralleled only in the second ballad of 'Robin Hood and the Beggar' (No. 134).

'Robinhood and the Peddlers,' the fourth ballad in a MS. formerly in the possession of

J. Payne Collier, and now in the British Museum; previously printed in Gutch's Robin Hood, II, 851.

1 WILL you heare a tale of Robin Hood,
 Will Scarlett, and Little John?
 Now listen awhile, it will make you smile,
 As before it hath many done.

2 They were archers three, of his degree,
 As good as ever drewe bowe;
 Their arrowes were long and their armes were strong,
 As most had cause to knowe.

3 But one sommers day, as they toke their
 way
 Through the forrest of greene Sher-
 wood,
 To kill the kings deare, you shall presently heare
 What befell these archers good.

4 They were ware on the roade of three peddlers with loade,
 Ffor each had his packe,
 Ffull of all wares for countrie faires,
 Trusst up upon his backe.

5 A good oke staffe, a yard and a halfe,
 Each one had in his hande;
 And they were all bound to Nottingham
 towne,
 As you shall understand.

6 'Yonder I see bolde peddlers three,'
 Said Robin to Scarlett and John;
 'We 'le search their packes upon their backes
 Before that they be gone.

7 'Holla, good fellowes!' quod Robin
 Hood,
 'Whither is it ye doe goe?
 Now stay and rest, for that is the best,
 'Tis well ye should doe soe.'

8 'Noe rest we neede, on our roade we
 speede,
 Till to Nottingham we get:'
 'Thou tellst a lewde lye,' said Robin,
 'for I
 Can see that ye swinke and swet.'

- 9 The peddlers three crosst over the lee,
They did not list to fight:
'I charge you tarrie,' quod Robin, 'for marry,
This is my owne land by right.
- 10 'This is my mannor and this is my
parke,
I would have ye for to knowe;
Ye are bolde outlawes, I see by cause
Ye are so prest to goe.'
- 11 The peddlers three turned round to see
Who it might be they herd;
Then agen went on as they list to be
gone,
And never answered word.
- 12 Then toke Robin Hood an arrow so
good,
Which he did never lacke,
And drew his bowe, and the swift arrowe
Went through the last peddlers packe.
- 13 Ffor him it was well on the packe it fell,
Or his life had found an ende;
And it pierst the skin of his backe
within,
Though the packe did stand his frend.
- 14 Then downe they flung their packes
eche one,
And stayde till Robin came:
Quod Robin, I saide ye had better
stayde;
Good sooth, ye were to blame.
- 15 'And who art thou? by S. Crispin, I vowe
I 'le quickly cracke thy head!'
Cried Robin, Come on, all three, or one;
It is not so soone done as said.
- 16 My name, by the roode, is Robin Hood,
And this is Scarlett and John;
It is three to three, ye may plainelie
see,
Soe now, brave fellowes, laye on.
- 17 The first peddlars blowe brake Robins
bowe
That he had in his hand;
And Scarlett and John, they eche had
one
That they unneath could stand.
- 18 'Now holde your handes,' cride Robin
Hood,
'Ffor ye have got oken staves;
But tarie till wee can get but three,
And a fig for all your braves.'
- 19 Of the peddlers the first, his name Kit
o Thirske,
Said, We are all content;
Soe eche tooke a stake for his weapon,
to make
The peddlers to repent.
- 20 Soe to it they fell, and their blowes did ring well
Upon the others backes;
And gave the peddlers cause to wish
They had not cast their packes.
- 21 Yet the peddlers three of their blowes were so free
That Robin began for to rue;
And Scarlett and John had such loades laide on
It made the sunne looke blue.
- 22 At last Kits oke caught Robin a stroke
That made his head to sound;
He staggerd, and reelde, till he fell on the fiede,
And the trees with him went round.
- 23 'Now holde your handes,' cride Little
John,
And soe said Scarlett eke;
'Our maister is slaine, I tell you plaine,
He never more will speake.'
- 24 'Now, heaven forefend he come to that ende,'
Said Kit, 'I love him well;
But lett him learne to be wise in turne,
And not with pore peddlers mell.
- 25 'In my packe, God wot, I a balsame have got
That soone his hurts will heale;'
And into Robin Hoods gaping mouth
He presentlie powrde some deale.
- 26 'Now fare ye well, tis best not to
tell
How ye three peddlers met;
Or if ye doe, prithee tell alsoe
How they made ye swinke and swett.'

27 Poore Robin in sound they left on the
ground,
And hied them to Nottingham,
While Scarlett and John Robin tended
on,
Till at length his senses came.

28 Noe soone[r], in haste, did Robin
Hood taste
The balsame he had tane,
Than he gan to spewe, and up he threwe
The balsame all againe.

29 And Scarlett and John, who were looking on
Their maister as he did lie,
Had their faces besmeard, both eies and beard,
Therewith most piteously.

30 Thus ended that fray; soe beware alwaye
How ye doe challenge foes;
Looke well aboute they are not to stoute,
Or you may have worst of the blowes.

ROBIN HOOD AND ALLEN A
DALE

This ballad, it will be observed, is first found in broadside copies of the latter half of the seventeenth century. The story is told of Scarlock in the life of Robin Hood in Sloane MS. 780, 7, fol. 157, of the end of the sixteenth or beginning of the seventeenth century; Thoms, Early Prose Romances, II, p. 39.

a. 'Robin Hood and Allin of Dale,' Douce, II, leaf 185. b. 'Robin Hood and Allin of Dale,' Pepys, II, 110, No. 97. c. 'Robin Hood and Allen a Dale,' Douce, III, 119 b.

1 COME listen to me, you gallants so free,
All you that loves mirth for to hear,
And I will you tell of a bold outlaw,
That lived in Nottinghamshire. (bis.)

2 As Robin Hood in the forrest stood,
All under the green-wood tree,
There was he ware of a brave young
man,
As fine as fine might be.

3 The youngster was clothed in scarlet red,
In scarlet fine and gay,
And he did frisk it over the plain,
And chanted a roundelay.

4 As Robin Hood next morning stood,
Amongst the leaves so gay,
There did he espy the same young man
Come drooping along the way.

5 The scarlet he wore the day before,
It was clean cast away;
And every step he fetcht a sigh,
'Alack and a well a day!'

6 Then stepped forth brave Little John,
And Nick the millers son,
Which made the young man bend his bow,
When as he see them come.

7 'Stand off, stand off,' the young man
said,
'What is your will with me?'
'You must come before our master
straight,
Vnder yon green-wood tree.'

8 And when he came bold Robin before,
Robin askt him courteously,
O hast thou any money to spare
For my merry men and me?

9 'I have no money,' the young man said,
'But five shillings and a ring;
And that I have kept this seven long years,
To have it at my wedding.

10 'Yesterday I should have married a
maid,
But she is now from me tane,
And chosen to be an old knights delight,
Whereby my poor heart is slain.'

11 'What is thy name?' then said Robin
Hood,
'Come tell me, without any fail:'
'By the faith of my body,' then said the
young man,
'My name it is Allin a Dale.'

12 'What wilt thou give me,' said Robin
Hood,
'In ready gold or fee,

To help thee to thy true-love again,
And deliver her unto thee ?'

13 'I have no money,' then quoth the young
man,
'No ready gold nor fee,
But I will swear upon a book
Thy true servant for to be.'

14 'How many miles is it to thy true-love ?
Come tell me without any guile :'
'By the faith of my body,' then said the
young man,
'It is but five little mile.'

15 Then Robin he hasted over the plain,
He did neither stint nor lin,
Vntil he came unto the church
Where Allin should keep his wedding.

16 'What dost thou do here ?' the bishop
he said,
'I prethee now tell to me :'
'I am a bold harper,' quoth Robin Hood,
'And the best in the north countrey.'

17 'O welcome, O welcome,' the bishop he
said,
'That musick best pleaseth me ;'
'You shall have no musick,' quoth Robin
Hood,
'Till the bride and the bridegroom I
see.'

18 With that came in a wealthy knight,
Which was both grave and old,
And after him a floukin lass,
Did shine like glistering gold.

19 'This is no fit match,' quoth bold Robin
Hood,
'That you do seem to make here ;
For since we are come unto the church,
The bride she shall chuse her own
dear.'

20 Then Robin Hood put his horn to his
mouth,
And blew blasts two or three ;
When four and twenty bowmen bold
Came leaping over the lee.

21 And when they came into the church-
yard,
Marching all on a row,

The first man was Allin a Dale,
To give bold Robin his bow.

22 'This is thy true-love,' Robin he said,
'Young Allin, as I hear say ;
And you shall be married at this same
time,
Before we depart away.'

23 'That shall not be,' the bishop he
said,
'For thy word shall not stand ;
They shall be three times askt in the church,
As the law is of our land.'

24 Robin Hood pulld off the bishops coat,
And put it upon Little John ;
'By the faith of my body,' then Robin
said,
'This cloath doth make thee a man.'

25 When Little John went into the quire,
The people began for to laugh ;
He askt them seven times in the church,
Least three times should not be enough.

26 'Who gives me this maid ?' then said
Little John ;
Quoth Robin, That do I,
And he that doth take her from Allin a
Dale
Full dearly he shall her buy.

27 And thus having ended this merry wedding,
The bride lookt as fresh as a queen,
And so they returnd to the merry green
wood,
Amongst the leaves so green.

ROBIN HOOD'S PROGRESS TO NOTTINGHAM

This is a comparatively late ballad, but has not come down to us in its oldest form. The story is told in the life of Robin Hood in Sloane MS. 715, 7, fol. 157, written, as it seems, towards the end of the sixteenth century. See Thoms. Early Prose Romances, II, Robin Hood, pp. 87 ff.

a. Wood, 402, leaf 14 b. b. Wood, 401, leaf 37 b. c. Garland of 1663, No. 2. d. Garland of 1670, No. 1. e. Pepys, II, 104, No. 92.

1 ROBIN HOOD hee was and a tall young man,
Derry derry down
And fifteen winters old,
And Robin Hood he was a proper young man,
Of courage stout and bold.
Hey down derry derry down

2 Robin Hood he would and to fair Nottingham,
With the general for to dine;
There was he ware of fifteen forresters,
And a drinking bear, ale, and wine.

3 'What news? What news?' said bold Robin Hood;
'What news, fain wouldest thou know?
Our king hath provided a shooting-match:'
'And I'm ready with my bow.'

4 'We hold it in scorn,' then said the forresters,
'That ever a boy so young
Should bear a bow before our king,
That's not able to draw one string.'

5 'I'le hold you twenty marks,' said bold Robin Hood,
'By the leave of Our Lady,
That I'le hit a mark a hundred rod,
And I'le cause a hart to dye.'

6 'We'l hold you twenty mark,' then said the forresters,
'By the leave of Our Lady,
Thou hitst not the marke a hundred rod,
Nor causest a hart to dye.'

7 Robin Hood he bent up a noble bow,
And a broad arrow he let flye,
He hit the mark a hundred rod,
And he caused a hart to dy.

8 Some said hee brake ribs one or two,
And some said hee brake three;

The arrow within the hart would not abide,
But it glanced in two or three.

9 The hart did skip, and the hart did leap,
And the hart lay on the ground;
'The wager is mine,' said bold Robin Hood,
'If 't were for a thousand pound.'

10 'The wager's none of thine,' then said the forresters,
'Although thou beest in haste;
Take up thy bow, and get thee hence,
Lest wee thy sides do baste.'

11 Robin Hood hee took up his noble bow,
And his broad arrows all amain,
And Robin Hood he laught, and begun to smile,
As hee went over the plain.

12 Then Robin Hood hee bent his noble bow,
And his broad arrows he let flye,
Till fourteen of these fifteen forresters
Vpon the ground did lye.

13 He that did this quarrel first begin
Went tripping over the plain;
But Robin Hood he bent his noble bow,
And hee fetcht him back again.

14 'You said I was no archer,' said Robin Hood,
'But say so now again;'
With that he sent another arrow
That split his head in twain.

15 'You have found mee an archer,' saith Robin Hood,
'Which will make your wives for to wring,
And wish that you had never spoke the word,
That I could not draw one string.'

16 The people that lived in fair Nottingham
Came runing out amain,
Supposing to have taken bold Robin Hood,
With the forresters that were slain.

- 17 Some lost legs, and some lost arms,
And some did lose their blood,
But Robin Hood hee took up his noble
bow,
And is gone to the merry green wood.
- 18 They carryed these forresters into fair
Nottingham,
As many there did know;
They digd them graves in their church-
yard,
And they buried them all a row.

ROBIN HOOD RESCUING
THREE SQUIRES

'Robin Hood and the Beggar,' I (No. 133), from stanza 16, is another version of this ballad. There are passages in A and B which are almost repetitions of 'Robin Hood and the Curtal Friar' (No. 123). The rescue in the ballad is introduced into Anthony Munday's play of The Downfall of Robert, Earl of Huntington (act ii, scene 2). For the disguise, cf. 'Hind Horn' (No. 17).

And twenty pound in thy purse,
To spend att ale and wine.'
- 2 'Though your clothes are of light Lin-colne green,
And mine gray russett and torne,
Yet it doth not you beseeme
To doe an old man scorne.'
- 3 'I scorne thee not, old man,' says Robin,
'By the faith of my body;
Doe of thy clothes, thou shalt haue mine,
For it may noe better bee.'
- 4 But Robin did on this old mans hose,
The were torne in the wrist;
'When I looke on my leggs,' said Robin,
'Then for to laugh I list.'

- 5 But Robin did on the old mans shooes,
And the were clutt full cleane;
'Now, by my faith,' sayes Litle Iohn,
'These are good for thornës keene.'

- 6 But Robin did on the old mans cloake,
And it was torne in the necke;
'Now, by my faith,' said William Scar-
lett,
'Heere shold be set a specke.'

- 7 But Robin did on this old mans hood,
Itt gogled on his crowne;
'When I come into Nottingham,' said
Robin,
'My hood it will lightly downe.'

- 8 'But yonder is an outwood,' said Robin,
'An outwood all and a shade,
And thither I reede you, my merry-
men all,
The ready way to take.'

- 9 'And when you heare my litle horne

He lope over stocke and stone;
But those that saw Robin Hood run
Said he was a liuer old man.

- 11 [Then Robin set his] horne to his mowth,
A loud blast cold h[e] blow;
Ffull three hundred bold yeomen
Came rakinge all on a row.

- 12 But Robin cast downe his baggs of
bread,
Soe did he his staffe with a face,
And in a doublet of red velnett
This yeoman stood in his place.

- 13 'But bend your bowes, and stroke your strings,
Set the gallow-tree aboute,
And Christs curse on his heart,' said
Robin,
'That spares the sheriffe and the ser-giant!'

14 When the sheriffe see gentle Robin wold shoote,
 He held vp both his hands;
 Sayes, Aske, good Robin, and thou shalt haue,
 Whether it be house or land.

15 'I will neither haue house nor land,'
 said Robin,
 'Nor gold, nor none of thy fee,
 But I will haue those three squires
 To the greene fforest with me.

16 'Now marry, Gods forbott,' said the sheriffe,
 'That euer that shold bee;
 For why, they be the kings ffelons,
 They are all condemned to dye.'

17 'But grant me my askinge,' said Robin,
 'Or by the faith of my body
 Thou shalt be the first man
 Shall flower this gallow-tree.'

1 THERE are twelve months in all the
 year,
 As I hear many men say,
 But the merriest month in all the year
 Is the merry month of May.

2 Now Robin Hood is to Nottingham gone,
 With a link a down and a day,
 And there he met a silly old woman,
 Was weeping on the way.

3 'What news? what news, thou silly old woman?
 What news hast thou for me?'
 Said she, There's three squires in Nottingham town
 To-day is condemned to die.

4 'O have they parishes burnt?' he said,
 'Or have they ministers slain?
 Or have they robbed any virgin,
 Or with other men's wives have lain?'

5 'They have no parishes burnt, good
 sir,
 Nor yet have ministers slain,
 Nor have they robbed any virgin,
 Nor with other men's wives have lain.'

6 'O what have they done?' said bold
 Robin Hood,
 'I pray thee tell to me :'
 'It's for slaying of the king's fallow
 deer,
 Bearing their long bows with thee.'

7 'Dost thou not mind, old woman,' he
 said,
 'Since thou made me sup and dine?
 By the truth of my body,' quoth bold
 Robin Hood,
 You could not tell it in better time.'

8 Now Robin Hood is to Nottingham
 gone,
 With a link a down and a day,
 And there he met with a silly old palmer,
 Was walking along the highway.

9 'What news? what news, thou silly old
 man?
 What news, I do thee pray?'
 Said he, Three squires in Nottingham
 town
 Are condemnd to die this day.

10 'Come change thy apparel with me, old
 man,
 Come change thy apparel for mine;
 Here is forty shillings in good silver,
 Go drink it in beer or wine.'

11 'O thine apparel is good,' he said,
 'And mine is ragged and torn;
 Wherever you go, wherever you ride,
 Laugh neer an old man to scorn.'

12 'Come change thy apparel with me, old
 churl,
 Come change thy apparel with mine;
 Here are twenty pieces of good broad
 gold,
 Go feast thy brethren with wine.'

- 13 Then he put on the old man's hat,
It stood full high on the crown:
'The first bold bargain that I come at,
It shall make thee come down.'
- 14 Then he put on the old man's cloak,
Was patchd black, blew, and red;
He thought no shame all the day long
To wear the bags of bread.
- 15 Then he put on the old man's breeks,
Was patchd from ballup to side;
'By the truth of my body,' bold Robin
can say,
'This man lov'd little pride.'
- 16 Then he put on the old man's hose,
Were patchd from knee to wrist;
'By the truth of my body,' said bold
Robin Hood,
'I'd laugh if I had any list.'
- 17 Then he put on the old man's shoes,
Were patchd both beneath and aboon;
Then Robin Hood swore a solemn oath,
It's good habit that makes a man.
- 18 Now Robin Hood is to Nottingham gone,
With a link a down and a down,
And there he met with the proud sheriff,
Was walking along the town.
- 19 'O save, O save, O sheriff,' he said,
'O save, and you may see!
And what will you give to a silly old man
To-day will your hangman be?'
- 20 'Some suits, some suits,' the sheriff he
said,
'Some suits I'll give to thee;
Some suits, some suits, and pence thirteen
To-day's a hangman's fee.'
- 21 Then Robin he turns him round about,
And jumps from stock to stone;
'By the truth of my body,' the sheriff he
said,
'That's well jumpt, thou nimble old
man.'
- 22 'I was neer a hangman in all my life,
Nor yet intends to trade;
But curst be he,' said bold Robin,
'That first a hangman was made.'

- 23 'I've a bag for meal, and a bag for malt,
And a bag for barley and corn;
A bag for bread, and a bag for beef,
And a bag for my little small horn.
- 24 'I have a horn in my pocket,
I got it from Robin Hood,
And still when I set it to my mouth,
For thee it blows little good.'
- 25 'O wind thy horn, thou proud fellow,
Of thee I have no doubt;
I wish that thou give such a blast
Till both thy eyes fall out.'
- 26 The first loud blast that he did blow,
He blew both loud and shrill;
A hundred and fifty of Robin Hood's men
Came riding over the hill.
- 27 The next loud blast that he did give,
He blew both loud and amain,
And quickly sixty of Robin Hood's men
Came shining over the plain.
- 28 'O who are yon,' the sheriff he said,
'Come tripping over the lee?'
'The're my attendants,' brave Robin did
say,
'They'll pay a visit to thee.'
- 29 They took the gallows from the slack,
They set it in the glen,
They hangd the proud sheriff on that,
Released their own three men.

ROBIN HOOD RESCUING
WILL STUTLY

This ballad probably occurs in all the large collections of broadsides. It was made for print and has little of the traditional in the matter and nothing in the style. It may be considered as an imitation of the Rescue of the Three Squires (No. 140), whence the ambush in st. 9 and the palmer 'fair' in 10.

'Robin Hood his rescuing Will Stutly,' etc.
a. Wood, 401, leaf 85 b. b. Garland of 1663,
No. 7. c. Garland of 1670, No. 6. d. Pepys,
II, 106, No. 93.

- 1 WHEN Robin Hood in the green-wood lived,
Derry derry down
Under the green-wood tree,
Tidings there came to him with speed,
Tidings for certainty,
Hey down derry derry down
- 2 That Will Stutly surprised was,
And eke in prison lay;
Three varlets that the sheriff had hired
Did likely him betray.
- 3 I, and to-morrow hanged must be,
To-morrow as soon as it is day;
But before they could this victory get,
Two of them did Stutly slay.
- 4 When Robin Hood he heard this news,
Lord! he was grieved sore,
I, and unto his merry men [said],
Who altogether swore,
- 5 That Will Stutly should rescued be,
And be brought safe again;
Or else should many a gallant wight
For his sake there be slain.
- 6 He cloathed himself in scarlet then,
His men were all in green;
A finer show, throughout the world,
In no place could be seen.
- 7 Good lord! it was a gallant sight
To see them all on a row;
With every man a good broad sword,
And eke a good yew bow.
- 8 Forth of the green wood are they gone,
Yea, all couragiously,
Resolving to bring Stutly home,
Or every man to die.
- 9 And when they came the castle neer
Whereas Will Stutly lay,
'I hold it good,' saith Robin Hood,
'Wee here in ambush stay,
- 10 'And send one forth some news to hear,
To yonder palmer fair,
That stands under the castle-wall;
Some news he may declare.'
- 11 With that steps forth a brave young man,
Which was of courage bold;
- Thus hee did say to the old man:
I pray thee, palmer old,
- 12 Tell me, if that thou rightly ken,
When must Will Stutly die,
Who is one of bold Robins men,
And here doth prisoner lie?
- 13 'Alack, alas,' the palmer said,
'And for ever wo is me!
Will Stutly hanged must be this day,
On yonder gallows-tree.
- 14 'O had his noble master known,
Hee would some succour send;
A few of his bold yeomandree
Full soon would fetch him hence.'
- 15 'I, that is true,' the young man said;
'I, that is true,' said hee;
'Or, if they were neer to this place,
They soon would set him free.
- 16 'But fare thou well, thou good old man,
Farewell, and thanks to thee;
If Stutly hanged be this day,
Revengd his death will be.'
- 17 He was no sooner from the palmer
gone,
But the gates was opened wide,
And out of the castle Will Stutly came,
Guarded on every side.
- 18 When hee was forth from the castle
come,
And saw no help was nigh,
Thus he did say unto the sheriff,
Thus he said gallantly:
- 19 Now seeing that I needs must die,
Grant me one boon, says he;
For my noble master nere had man
That yet was hangd on the tree.
- 20 Give me a sword all in my hand,
And let mee be unbound,
And with thee and thy men I 'le fight,
Vntill I lie dead on the ground.
- 21 But his desire he would not grant,
His wishes were in vain;
For the sheriff had sworn he hanged should be,
And not by the sword be slain.

- 22 'Do but unbind my hands,' he saies,
'I will no weapons crave,
And if I hanged be this day,
Damnation let me have.'
- 23 'O no, O no,' the sheriff he said,
'Thou shalt on the gallows die,
I, and so shall thy master too,
If ever in me it lie.'
- 24 'O dastard coward!' Stutly cries,
'Thou faint-heart peasant slave!
If ever my master do thee meet,
Thou shalt thy paiment have.'
- 25 'My noble master thee doth scorn,
And all thy cowardly crew;
Such silly imps unable are Bold Robin to subdue.'
- 26 But when he was to the gallows come,
And ready to bid adiew,
Out of a bush leaps Little John,
And steps Will Stutly to.
- 27 'I pray thee, Will, before thou die,
Of thy dear friends take leave;
I needs must borrow him a while,
How say you, master sheriff?'
- 28 'Now, as I live,' the sheriff he said,
'That varlet will I know;
Some sturdy rebell is that same,
Therefore let him not go.'
- 29 With that Little John so hastily
Away cut Stutly's bands,
And from one of the sheriff his men,
A sword twicht from his hands.
- 30 'Here, Will, here, take thou this same,
Thou canst it better sway;
And here defend thy self a while,
For aid will come straight way.'
- 31 And there they turnd them back to back,
In the middle of them that day,
Till Robin Hood approached neer,
With many an archer gay.
- 32 With that an arrow by them flew,
I wist from Robin Hood;
'Make haste, make haste,' the sheriff
he said,
'Make haste, for it is good.'

- 33 The sheriff is gone; his doughty men
Thought it no boot to stay,
But, as their master had them taught,
They run full fast away.
- 34 'O stay, O stay,' Will Stutly said,
'Take leave ere you depart;
You nere will catch bold Robin Hood
Vnless you dare him meet.'
- 35 'O ill betide you,' quoth Robin Hood,
'That you so soon are gone;
My sword may in the scabbord rest,
For here our work is done.'
- 36 'I little thought when I came here,
When I came to this place,
For to have met with Little John,
Or seen my masters face.'
- 37 Thus Stutly was at liberty set,
And safe brought from his foe;
'O thanks, O thanks to my master,
Since here it was not so.'
- 38 'And once again, my fellows,
We shall in the green woods meet,
Where we will make our bow-strings twang,
Musick for us most sweet.'

LITTLE JOHN A BEGGING

The beginning of A is very like that of No. 140 A; but the disguise is for a different object. We are reminded again of 'Hind Horn' (No. 17). B is also in the Roxburghe collection, III, 10 (Ballad Society's ed., VII, 497).

'And I will giue thee some boote.'

3 But he has gotten on this old mans

It reacht not to his wrist;
'Christ's curse on's hart,' said Litle

'That thinkes my gowne amisse.'

4 But he has gotten on this old mans

Are clouted nine fold about;
'Beshrew his hart,' says Litle Iohn,

5 'Wilt teach me some phrase of thy beg-ing?' says Iohn;
'I pray thee, tell it mee,
How I may be as beggar-like
As any in my companie.'

6 'Thou must goe two foote on a staffe,
The third vpon a tree;
Full loud that thou must cry and fare,
When nothing ayleth thee.'

7 But Iohn he walket the hills soe high,
Soe did [he] the hills soe browne;
The ready way that he cold take
Was towards Nottingham towne.

8 But as he was on the hills soe high,
He mett with palmers three;
Sayes, God you saue, my brethren
all,
Now God you saue and see!

9 This seuen yeere I haue you sought;
Before I cold neuer you see!
Said they, Wee had leuer such a cankred

1 ALL you that delight to spend some time
With a hey down down a down down
A merry song for to sing,
Vnto me draw neer, and you shall hear
How Little John went a begging.

2 As Robin Hood walked the forrest along,
And all his yeomandree,
Sayes Robin, Some of you must a begging go,
And, Little John, it must be thee.

3 Sayes John, If I must a begging go,
I will have a palmers weed,
With a staff and a coat, and bags of all sort,
The better then I shall speed.

4 Come, give me now a bag for my bread,
And another for my cheese,
And one for a peny, when as I get any,
That nothing I may leese.

5 Now little John he is a begging gone,
Seeking for some relief;
But of all the beggers he met on the
way,
Little John he was the chief.

6 But as he was walking himself alone,
Four beggers he chanced to spy,
Some deaf, and some blind, and some came behind;
Sayes John, Here's brave company!

7 'Good-morrow,' said John, 'my brethren dear,
Good fortune I had you to see;
Which way do you go? pray let me
know,
For I want some company.'

8 'O what is here to do?' then said Little
John,
'Why rings all these bells?' said he;
'What dog is a hanging? come, let us
be ganging,
That we the truth may see.'

- 9 'Here is no dog a hanging,' then one of them said,
 'Good fellow, we tell unto thee;
 But here is one dead wil give us cheese and bred,
 And it may be one single peny.'
- 10 'We have brethren in London,' another he said,
 'So have we in Coventry,
 In Barwick and Dover, and all the world over,
 But nere a crookt carril like thee.'
- 11 'Therefore stand thee back, thou crooked carel,
 And take that knock on the crown;
 'Nay,' said Little John, 'I'le not yet be gone,
 For a bout will I have with you round.'
- 12 'Now have at you all,' then said Little John,
 'If you be so full of your blows;
 Fight on, all four, and nere give ore,
 Whether you be friends or foes.'
- 13 John nipped the dumb, and made him to rore,
 And the blind that could not see,
 And he that a cripple had been seven years,
 He made him run faster then he.
- 14 And flinging them all against the wall,
 With many a sturdie bang,
 It made John sing, to hear the gold ring,
 Which against the walls cryed twang.
- 15 Then he got out of the beggers cloak
 Three hundred pound in gold;
 'Good fortune had I,' then said Little John,
 'Such a good sight to behold.'
- 16 But what found he in a beggers bag,
 But three hundred pound and three?
 'If I drink water while this doth last,
 Then an ill death may I dye !
- 17 'And my begging-trade I will now give ore,
 My fortune hath bin so good;
 Therefore I'le not stay, but I will away
 To the forrest of merry Sherwood.'

- 18 And when to the forrest of Sherwood he came,
 He quickly there did see
 His master good, bold Robin Hood,
 And all his company.
- 19 'What news? What news?' then said Robin Hood,
 'Come, Little John, tell unto me;
 How hast thou sped with thy beggers trade?
 For that I fain would see.'
- 20 'No news but good,' then said Little John,
 'With begging ful wel I have sped;
 Six hundred and three I have here for thee,
 In silver and gold so red.'
- 21 Then Robin took Little John by the hand,
 And danced about the oak-tree:
 'If we drink water while this doth last,
 Then an il death may we die !'
- 22 So to conclude my merry new song,
 All you that delight it to sing,
 'Tis of Robin Hood, that archer good,
 And how Little John went a begging.

ROBIN HOOD AND THE BISHOP

This ballad and the following are variations upon the theme of Robin Hood and the Monk, in the Gest. The disguise as a woman occurs in other outlaw stories; as in Eustace the Monk, Michel, p. 43. Also in Blind Harry's Wallace, ed. Moir, book i, 239, and book iv, 764, pp. 9, 72: in the first case Wallace has a rock and sits spinning (see also No. 157). We hear again of the forced mass (st. 23) in No. 145, A 31, B 40; and of money borrowed against the bishop's will, in A 32 of the same. It is the Bishop of Hereford who suffers (see No. 144).

'Robin Hood and the Bishop.' a. Wood, 401, leaf 11 b. b. Garland of 1663, No. 5. c. Garland of 1670, No. 4. d. Pepys, ii, 109, No. 96. e. Roxburghe, i, 362, in the Ballad Society's reprint, ii, 448.

- 1 COME, gentlemen all, and listen a while,
Hey down down an a down
And a story I'll to you unfold;
I'll tell you how Robin Hood served
the Bishop,
When he robbed him of his gold.
- 2 As it fell out on a sun-shining day,
When Phebus was in his prime,
Then Robin Hood, that archer good,
In mirth would spend some time.
- 3 And as he walkd the forrest along,
Some pastime for to spy,
There was he aware of a proud bishop,
And all his company.
- 4 'O what shall I do?' said Robin Hood
then,
'If the Bishop he doth take me,
No mercy he'll show unto me, I know,
But hanged I shall be.'
- 5 Then Robin was stout, and turnd him
about,
And a little house there he did spy;
And to an old wife, for to save his life,
He loud began for to cry.
- 6 'Why, who art thou?' said the old woman,
'Come tell it to me for good:'
'I am an out-law, as many do know,
My name it is Robin Hood.
- 7 'And yonder's the Bishop and all his
men,
And if that I taken be,
Then day and night he'll work me
spight,
And hanged I shall be.'
- 8 'If thou be Robin Hood,' said the old
wife,
'As thou dost seem to be,
I'll for thee provide, and thee I will hide
From the Bishop and his company.
- 9 'For I well remember, one Saturday
night
Thou bought me both shoes and hose;
Therefore I'll provide thy person to
hide,
And keep thee from thy foes.'
- 10 'Then give me soon thy coat of gray,
And take thou my mantle of green;
Thy spindle and twine unto me resign,
And take thou my arrows so keen.'
- 11 And when that Robin Hood was so araid,
He went straight to his company;
With his spindle and twine, he oft lookt behind
For the Bishop and his company.
- 12 'O who is yonder,' quoth Little John,
'That now comes over the lee?
An arrow I will at her let flie,
So like an old witch looks she.'
- 13 'O hold thy hand, hold thy hand,' said
Robin then,
'And shoot not thy arrows so keen;
I am Robin Hood, thy master good,
And quickly it shall be seen.'
- 14 The Bishop he came to the old womans
house,
And he called with furious mood,
'Come let me soon see, and bring unto
me,
That traitor Robin Hood.'
- 15 The old woman he set on a milk-white
steed,
Himselfe on a dapple-gray,
And for joy he had got Robin Hood,
He went laughing all the way.
- 16 But as they were riding the forrest
along,
The Bishop he chanc'd for to see
A hundred brave bow-men bold
Stand under the green-wood tree.
- 17 'O who is yonder,' the Bishop then said,
'That's ranging within yonder wood?'
'Marry,' says the old woman, 'I think it to be
A man calld Robin Hood.'
- 18 'Why, who art thou,' the Bishop he said,
'Which I have here with me?'
'Why, I am an old woman, thou cuckoldly bishop;
Lift up my leg and see.'
- 19 'Then woe is me,' the Bishop he said,
'That ever I saw this day!'

He turnd him about, but Robin so stout
Calld him, and bid him stay.

20 Then Robin took hold of the Bishops
horse,
And ty'd him fast to a tree;
Then Little John smil'd his master upon,
For joy of that company.

21 Robin Hood took his mantle from 's
back,
And spread it upon the ground,
And out of the Bishops portmantle he
Soon told five hundred pound.

22 'So now let him go,' said Robin Hood;
Said Little John, That may not be;
For I vow and protest he shall sing us a mass
Before that he goe from me.

23 Then Robin Hood took the Bishop by
the hand,
And bound him fast to a tree,
And made him sing a mass, God wot,
To him and his yeomandree.

24 And then they brought him through the
wood,
And set him on his dapple-gray,
And gave the tail within his hand,
And bade him for Robin Hood pray.

OF HEREFORD

The conclusion of this ballad is to the same effect as that of the preceding, and was probably suggested by the Gest. No copy has been found in print or writing earlier than the eighteenth century; a fact of no special importance. Whenever written, if written it was, it is far superior to most of the seventeenth-century broadsides.

1 SOME they will talk of bold Robin
Hood,
And some of barons bold,
But I'll tell you how he servd the Bishop of Hereford,
When he robbd him of his gold.

2 As it befel in merry Barnsdale,
And under the green-wood tree,
The Bishop of Hereford was to come by,
With all his company.

3 'Come, kill a venson,' said bold Robin
Hood,
'Come, kill me a good fat deer;
The Bishop of Hereford is to dine with me to-day,
And he shall pay well for his cheer.

4 'We'll kill a fat venson,' said bold
Robin Hood,
'And dress it by the highway-side;
And we will watch the Bishop narrowly,
Lest some other way he should ride.'

5 Robin Hood dressd himself in shepherd's attire,
With six of his men also;
And, when the Bishop of Hereford came by,
They about the fire did go.

6 'O what is the matter?' then said the Bishop,
'Or for whom do you make this a-do?
Or why do you kill the king's venson,
When your company is so few?'

7 'We are shepherds,' said bold Robin
Hood,
'And we keep sheep all the year,
And we are disposed to be merry this
day,
And to kill of the king's fat deer.'

8 'You are brave fellows!' said the Bishop,
'And the king of your doings shall
know;
Therefore make haste and come along
with me,
For before the king you shall go.'

- 9 'O pardon, O pardon,' said bold Robin Hood,
'O pardon, I thee pray!
For it becomes not your lordship's coat
To take so many lives away.'
- 10 'No pardon, no pardon,' says the Bishop,
'No pardon I thee owe;
Therefore make haste, and come along
with me,
For before the king you shall go.'
- 11 Then Robin set his back against a tree,
And his foot against a thorn,
And from underneath his shepherd's coat
He pulld out a bugle-horn.
- 12 He put the little end to his mouth,
And a loud blast did he blow,
Till threescore and ten of bold Robin's men
Came running all on a row;
- 13 All making obeysance to bold Robin Hood;
'T was a comely sight for to see:
'What is the matter, master,' said Little John,
'That you blow so hastily?'
- 14 'O here is the Bishop of Hereford,
And no pardon we shall have:'
'Cut off his head, master,' said Little John,
'And throw him into his grave.'
- 15 'O pardon, O pardon,' said the Bishop,
'O pardon, I thee pray!
For if I had known it had been you,
I'd have gone some other way.'
- 16 'No pardon, no pardon,' said Robin Hood,
'No pardon I thee owe;
Therefore make haste and come along
with me,
For to merry Barnsdale you shall go.'
- 17 Then Robin he took the Bishop by the hand,
And led him to merry Barnsdale;
He made him to stay and sup with him
that night,
And to drink wine, beer, and ale.

- 18 'Call in the reckoning,' said the Bishop,
'For methinks it grows wondrous high:'
'Lend me your purse, Bishop,' said Little John,
'And I'll tell you bye and bye.'
- 19 Then Little John took the bishop's cloak,
And spread it upon the ground,
And out of the bishop's portmantua
He told three hundred pound.
- 20 'Here's money enough, master,' said Little John,
'And a comely sight 't is to see;
It makes me in charity with the Bishop,
Tho he heartily loveth not me.'
- 21 Robin Hood took the Bishop by the hand,
And he caused the music to play,
And he made the Bishop to dance in his boots,
And glad he could so get away.

ROBIN HOOD AND QUEEN KATHERINE

About half of A is lost, and the particulars of the outlaws' exploits are wanting in that version. Robin Hood has made Queen Katherine his friend by presenting her with a sum of gold which he has taken from the king's harbingers. The king has offered a heavy wager that his archers cannot be excelled, and the queen may have her choice of all other bowmen in England. She summons Robin Hood and his men, who are to come to London under feigned names. No. 146 is a sequel to this ballad. For the adventure of the Bishop of Hereford cf. No. 144.

- 1 Now list you, lithe you, gentlemen,
A while for a litle space,
And I shall tell you how Queene Katherine
Gott Robin Hood his grace.

- 2 Gold taken from the kings harben-gers
Seldome times hath beene seene,
.
.
- 3 .
'Queene Katherine, I say to thee;'
'That 's a princly wager,' quoth Queene Katherine,
'Betweene your grace and me.
- 4 'Where must I haue mine archers?'
says Queene Katherine;
'You haue the flower of archery:'
'Now take your choice, dame,' he sayes,
'Thorow out all England free.
- 5 'Yea from North Wales to Westchester,
And also to Couentry;
And when you haue chosen the best you can,
The wager must goe with mee.'
- 6 'If that prooue,' says Queene Katherine,
'Soone that wilbe tride and knowne;
Many a man counts of another mans
purse,
And after looseth his owne.'
- 7 The queene is to her palace gone,
To her page thus shee can say:
Come hither to me, Dicke Patrinton,
Trusty and trew this day.
- 8 Thou must bring me the names of my archers all,
All strangers must they bee,
Yea from North Wales to West Ches-
ter,
And alsoe to Couentrie.
- 9 Commend me to Robin Hood, says
Queene Katherine,
And alsoe to Litle John,
And specially to Will Scarlett,
Ffryar Tucke and Maid Marryan.
- 10 Robin Hood we must call Loxly,
And Little John the Millers sonne;
Thus wee then must change their names,
They must be strangers euery one.
- 11 Commend mee to Robin Hood, sayes
Queene Katherine,
And marke, page, what I say;
In London they must be with me
[Vpon S' Georges day.]
.
- 12 .
'These words hath sent by me;
Att London you must be with her
Vpon S' Georg[e]s day.
- 13 'Vpon S' Georg[e]s day att noone
Att London needs must you bee;
Shee wold not misse your companie
For all the gold in Cristinty.
- 14 'Shee hath tane a shooting for your
sake,
The greatest in Christentie,
And her part you must needs take Against her prince, Henery.
- 15 'Shee sends you heere her gay gold ring
A trew token for to bee;
And, as you are [a] banisht man,
Shee trusts to sett you free.'
- 16 'And I loose that wager,' says bo'd
Robin Hoode,
'I'le bring mony to pay for me;
And wether that I win or loose,
On my queenes part I will be.'
- 17 In sommer time when leaues grow
greene,
And flowers are fresh and gay,
Then Robin Hood he deckt his men
Eche one in braue array.
- 18 He deckt his men in Lincolne greene,
Himselfe in scarlett red;
Fayre of theire brest then was it seene
When his siluer armes were spread.
- 19 With hattis white and fethers blacke,
And bowes and arrowes keene,
And thus he ietted towards louly London,
To present Queene Katherine.
- 20 But when they cam to louly London,
They kneeled vpon their knee;
Sayes, God you saue, Queene Katherine,
And all your dignitie!

- 21 of my guard,
Thus can King Henry say,
'And those that wilbe of Queene Katherine
side,
They are welcome to me this day.'
- 22 'Then come hither to me, Sir Richard
Lee,
Thou art a knight full good;
Well it is knowen ffrom thy pedygree
Thou came from Gawiins blood.
- 23 'Come hither, Bishopp of Hereford,
quoth Queene Katherine —
A good preacher I watt was hee —
'And stand thou heere vpon a odd
side,
On my side for to bee.'
- 24 'I like not that,' sayes the bishopp then,
'By faikine of my body,
For if I might haue my owne will,
On the kings I wold bee.'
- 25 'What will thou be[t] against vs,' says
Loxly then,
'And stake it on the ground?'
'That will I doe, fine fellow,' he says,
'And it drawes to fne hundreth pound.'
- 26 'There is a bett,' says Loxly then;
'Wee 'le stake it merrily;
But Loxly knew full well in his mind
And whose that gold shold bee.
- 27 Then the queenes archers they shot
about
Till it was three and three;
Then the lady's gaue a merry shout,
Sayes, Woodcocke, beware thine eye!
- 28 'Well, gam and gam,' then quoth our
king,
'The third three payes for all;
Then Robine rounded with our queene,
Says, The kings part shall be small.
- 29 Loxly puld forth a broad arrowe,
He shott it vnder hand,

- 30 .
'For once he vndidd mee;
If I had thought it had beene bold Robin
Hooode,
I wold not haue betted one peny.
- 31 'Is this Robin Hood?' says the bishopp
again;
'Once I knew him to soone;
He made me say a masse against my will,
Att two a clocke in the afternoone.
- 32 'He bound me fast vnto a tree,
Soe did he my merry men;
He borrowed ten pound against my will,
But he neuer paid me againe.'
- 33 'What and if I did?' says bold Robin
Hood,
'Of that masse I was full faine;
In recompence, befor king and queene
Take halfe of thy gold againe.'
- 34 'I thanke thee for nothing,' says the bishopp,
'Thy large gift to well is knowne,
That will borrow a mans mony against his will,
And pay him againe with his owne.'
- 35 'What if he did soe?' says King Henery,
'For that I loue him neuer the worsse;
Take vp thy gold againe, bold Robin
Hood,
And put [it] in thy pursse.
- 36 'If thou woldest leaue thy bold outlawes,
And come and dwell with me,
Then I wold say thou art welcome, bold
Robin Hood,
The flower of archery.'
- 37 'I will not leaue my bold outlawes
For all the gold in Christentie;
In merry Sherwood I 'le take my end,
Vnder my trusty tree.
- 38 'And gett your shooters, my leig[e],
where you will,
For in faith you shall haue none of me;
And when Queene Katherine puts up her f[inger]
Att her Graces commandement I 'le
bee.'

- 1 GOLD tane from the kings harbengers,
Down a down a down
As seldome hath been seen,
Down a down a down
And carried by bold Robin Hood
For a present to the queen.
Down a down a down
- 2 'If that I live a year to an end,'
Thus gan Queen Katherin say,
'Bold Robin Hood, I will be thy friend,
And all thy yeomen gay.'
- 3 The queen is to her chamber gone,
As fast as she can wen;
She cals unto her her lovely page,
His name was Richard Pattringten.
- 4 'Come hither to mee, thou lovely page,
Come thou hither to mee;
For thou must post to Notingham,
As fast as thou canst dree.
- 5 'And as thou goest to Notingham,
Search all those English wood;
Enquire of one good yeoman or another
That can tell thee of Robin Hood.'
- 6 Sometimes he went, sometimes hee ran,
As fast as he could win;
And when hee came to Notingham,
There he took up his inne.
- 7 And when he came to Notingham,
And had took up his inne,
He calls for a pottle of Renish wine,
And drank a health to his queen.
- 8 There sat a yeoman by his side;
'Tell mee, sweet page,' said hee,
'What is thy business or the cause,
So far in the North Country?'
- 9 'This is my business and the cause,
Sir, I 'le tell it you for good,
To inquire of one good yeoman or another
To tell mee of Robin Hood.'

- 10 'I 'le get my horse betime in the morn,
By it be break of day,
And I will shew thee bold Robin Hood,
And all his yeomen gay.'
- 11 When that he came at Robin Hoods
place,
Hee fell down on his knee:
'Queen Katherine she doth greet you
well,
She greets you well by mee.
- 12 'She bids you post to fair London court,
Not fearing any thing;
For there shall be a little sport,
And she hath sent you her ring.'
- 13 Robin took his mantle from his back —
It was of the Lincoln green —
And sent it by this lovely page,
For a present unto the queen.
- 14 In summertime, when leaves grow green,
It is a seemly sight to see
How Robin Hood himself had drest,
And all his yeomandry.
- 15 He cloathed his men in Lincoln green,
And himself in scarlet red,
Black hats, white feathers, all alike;
Now bold Robin Hood is rid.
- 16 And when he came at Londons court,
Hee fell downe on his knee:
'Thou art welcome, Locksly,' said the
queen,
'And all thy good yeomendree.'
- 17 The king is into Finsbury field,
Marching in battel ray,
And after follows bold Robin Hood,
And all his yeomen gay.
- 18 'Come hither, Tepus,' said the king,
'Bow-bearer after mee,
Come measure mee out with this line
How long our mark shall be.'
- 19 'What is the wager?' said the queen,
'That must I now know here:'
'Three hundred tun of Renish wine,
Three hundred tun of beer.
- 20 'Three hundred of the fattest harts
That run on Dallom lee;

That's a princely wager,' said the king,
'That needs must I tell thee.'

21 With that bespoke one Clifton then,
Full quickly and full soon;
'Measure no mark for us, most sovereign
leige,
Wee'l shoot at sun and moon.'

22 'Ful fifteen score your mark shall be,
Ful fifteen score shall stand;
'I'le lay my bow,' said Clifton then;
'I'le cleave the willow wand.'

23 With that the kings archers led about,
While it was three and none;
With that the ladies began to shout,
Madam, your game is gone!

24 'A boon, a boon,' Queen Katherine cries,
'I crave on my bare knee;
Is there any knight of your privy counsel
Of Queen Katherines part will be?

25 'Come hither to mee, Sir Richard Lee,
Thou art a knight full good;
For I do know by thy pedigree
Thou springst from Goweres blood.

26 'Come hither to me, thou Bishop of Herefordshire' —
For a noble priest was he —
'By my silver miter,' said the bishop
then,
'I'le not bet one peny.

27 'The king hath archers of his own,
Full ready and full light,
And these be strangers every one,
No man knows what they height.'

28 'What wilt thou bet,' said Robin Hood,
'Thou seest our game the worse?'
'By my silver miter,' said the bishop
then,
'All the mony within my purse.'

29 'What is in thy purse?' said Robin
Hood,
'Throw it down on the ground;
'Fifteen score nobles,' said the bishop
then,
'It's neer an hundred pound.'

30 Robin Hood took his bagge from his side,
And threw it down on the green;
William Scadlocke went smiling away,
'I know who this mony must win.'

31 With that the queens archers led about,
While it was three and three;
With that the ladies gave a shont,
'Woodcock, beware thyn ee!'

32 'It is three and three, now,' said the
king,
'The next three pays for all;'
Robin Hood went and whispered to the queen,
'The kings part shall be but small.'

33 Robin Hood he led about,
He shot it under hand,
And Clifton, with a bearing arrow,
He clave the willow wand.

34 And little Midge, the Miller's son,
Hee shot not much the worse;
He shot within a finger of the prick;
'Now, bishop, beware thy purse!'

35 'A boon, a boon,' Queen Katherine cries,
'I crave on my bare knee, —
That you will angry be with none
That is of my party.'

36 'They shall have forty days to come,
And forty days to go,
And three times forty to sport and play;
Then welcome friend or fo.'

37 'Then thou art welcome, Robin Hood,' said the queen,
'And so is Little John,
So is Midge, the Miller's son;
Thrice welcome every one.'

38 'Is this Robin Hood?' the king now
said;
'For it was told to mee
That he was slain in the pallace-gate,
So far in the North Country.'

39 'Is this Robin Hood,' said the bishop
then,
'As I see well to be?
Had I knowne that had been that bold
outlaw,
I would not have bet one peny.'

40 'Hee took me late one Saturday at night,
And bound mee fast to a tree,
And made mee sing a mass, God wot,
To him and his yeomendree."

41 'What and if I did?' says Robin Hood,
'Of that mass I was full fain;
For recompense to thee,' he says,
'Here's half thy gold again.'

42 'Now nay, now nay,' saies Little John,
'Master, that shall not be;
We must give gifts to the kings officers;
That gold will serve thee and mee.'

ROBIN HOOD'S CHASE

'Robin Hood's Chase' is a sequel to 'Robin Hood and Queen Katherine' (No. 145), and begins with a summary of that story. It is a well-conceived ballad, and only needs to be older. Edition c is signed by T. R. (see p. 294, above).

'Robin Hood's Chase.' a. Garland of 1663, No. 15. b. Garland of 1670, No. 14. c. Wood, 401, leaf 29 b. d. Pepys, II, 104, No. 91.

1 COME you gallants all, to you I do call,
With a hey down down a down
down

That now is within this place,
For a song I will sing of Henry the
king,
How he did Robin Hood chase.

2 Queen Katherine she a match then did
make,
As plainly doth appear,
For three hundred tun of good red wine,
And three hundred tun of beer.

3 But yet her archers she had to seek,
With their bows and arrows so good;
But her mind it was bent, with a good intent,
To send for bold Robin Hood.

4 But when bold Robin Hood he came
there,
Queen Katherine she did say,
Thou art welcome, Locksley, said the
queen,
And all thy yeomen gay.

5 For a match at shooting I have made,
And thou my part must be:
'If I miss the mark, be it light or dark,
Then hanged I will be.'

6 But when the game came to be playd,
Bold Robin he then drew nigh;
With his mantle of green, most brave
to be seen,
He let his arrows fly.

7 And when the game it ended was,
Bold Robin wan it with a grace,
But after, the king was angry with him,
And vowed he would him chase.

8 What though his pardon granted was
While he with them did stay,
But yet the king was vexed at him
When as he was gone his way.

9 Soon after the king from the court did
hie,
In a furious angry mood,
And often enquire, both far and near,
After bold Robin Hood.

10 But when the king to Nottingham came,
Bold Robin was then in the wood;
'O come now,' said he, 'and let me see
Who can find me bold Robin Hood.'

11 But when that Robin Hood he did hear
The king had him in chase,
Then said Little John, 'T is time to be
gone,
And go to some other place.

12 Then away they went from merry Sher-
wood,
And into Yorkshire he did hie,
And the king did follow, with a hoop
and a hallow,
But could not come him nigh.

13 Yet jolly Robin he passed along,
He [went] straight to Newcastle
town,
And there stayed he hours two or three,
And then he for Berwick was gone.

14 When the king he did see how Robin
did flee,
He was vexed wondrous sore;

With a hoop and a hallow he vowed to follow,
And take him, or never give ore.

15 'Come now, let's away,' then cries Little John,
'Let any man follow that dare;
To Carlile wee'l hie with our company,
And so then to Lancaster.'

16 From Lancaster then to Chester they went,
And so did king Henery;
But Robin away, for he durst not stay,
For fear of some treachery.

17 Saies Robin, Come, let us to London go,
To see our noble queens face;
It may be she wants our company,
Which makes the king so us chase.

18 When Robin he came Queen Katherine before,
He fell upon his knee:
'If it please your Grace, I am come to this place,
To speak with king Henery.'

19 Queen Katherine she answered bold Robin again,
The king is gone to merry Sherwood;
And when he went he to me did say
He would go seek Robin Hood.

20 'Then fare you well, my gracious queen,
For to Sherwood I will hie apace;
For fain would I see what he would with me,
If I could but meet with his Grace.'

21 But when King Henery he came home,
Full weary, and vexed in mind,
When he did hear Robin had been there,
He blamed Dame Fortune unkind.

22 'You are welcome home,' Queen Katherine cried,
'Henry, my sovereign liege;
Bold Robin Hood, that archer good,
Your person hath been to seek.'

23 But when King Henry he did hear
That Robin had been there him to seek,

This answer he gave, He's a cunning knave,
For I have sought him this whole three weeks.

24 'A boon! a boon!' Queen Katherine cried,
'I beg it here on your Grace,
To pardon his life, and seek no more strife.'
And so endeth Robin Hoods chase.

ROBIN HOOD'S GOLDEN PRIZE

Edition a seems to be signed L. P., probably the initials of the versifier. The kernel of the story is an old tale, found, for example, in Pauli's Schimpf und Ernst, 1533 (Oesterley, Anhang, No. 14).

'Robin Hoods Golden Prize.' a. Wood, 401, leaf 39 b. b. Garland of 1663, No. 14. c. Garland of 1670, No. 18. d. Pepys, II, 144, No. 101.

1 I HAVE heard talk of bold Robin Hood,
Derry derry down
And of brave Little John,
Of Fryer Tuck, and Will Scarlet,
Loxley, and Maid Marion.
Hey down derry derry down

2 But such a tale as this before
I think there was never none;
For Robin Hood disguised himself,
And to the wood is gone.

3 Like to a fryer, bold Robin Hood
Was accoutered in his array;
With hood, gown, beads and crucifix,
He past upon the way.

4 He had not gone [past] miles two or three,
But it was his chance to spy
Two lusty priests, clad all in black,
Come riding gallantly.

5 'Benedicete,' then said Robin Hood,
'Some pitty on me take;
Cross you my hand with a silver groat,
For Our dear Ladies sake.

- 6 'For I have been wandring all this day,
And nothing could I get;
Not so much as one poor cup of drink,
Nor bit of bread to eat.'
- 7 'Now, by my holydame,' the priests
repli'd,
'We never a peny have;
For we this morning have been robd,
And could no mony save.'
- 8 'I am much afraid,' said bold Robin
Hood,
'That you both do tell a lye;
And now before that you go hence,
I am resolv'd to try.'
- 9 When as the priests heard him say so,
Then they rode away amain;
But Robin Hood betook him to his heels,
And soon overtook them again.
- 10 Then Robin Hood laid hold of them
both,
And pulld them down from their
horse:
'O spare us, fryer!' the priests cry'd
out,
'On us have some remorse!'
- 11 'You said you had no mony,' quoth he,
'Wherefore, without delay,
We three will fall down on our knees,
And for mony we will pray.'
- 12 The priests they could not him gainsay,
But down they kneeled with speed;
'Send us, O send us,' then quoth they,
'Some mony to serve our need.'
- 13 The priests did pray with mournful
chear,
Sometimes their hands did wring,
Sometimes they wept and cried aloud,
Whilst Robin did merrily sing.
- 14 When they had been praying an hours
space,
The priests did still lament;
Then quoth bold Robin, Now let's see
What mony heaven hath us sent.
- 15 We will be sharers now all alike
Of the mony that we have;
- And there is never a one of us
That his fellows shall deceive.
- 16 The priests their hands in their pockets put,
But mony would find none:
'We'll search our selves,' said Robin
Hood,
'Each other, one by one.'
- 17 Then Robin Hood took pains to search them both,
And he found good store of gold;
Five hundred peeces presently
Vpon the grass was told.
- 18 'Here is a brave show,' said Robin Hood,
'Such store of gold to see,
And you shall each one have a part,
Cause you prayed so heartily.'
- 19 He gave them fifty pound a-peece,
And the rest for himself did keep;
The priests durst not speak one word,
But they sighed wondrous deep.
- 20 With that the priests rose up from their
knees,
Thinking to have parted so;
'Nay, stay,' said Robin Hood, 'one thing more
I have to say ere you go.
- 21 'You shall be sworn,' said bold Robin
Hood.
'Vpon this holy grass,
That you will never tell lies again,
Which way soever you pass.
- 22 'The second oath that you here must take,
All the days of your lives
You never shall tempt maids to sin,
Nor lye with other mens wives.
- 23 'The last oath you shall take, it is this,
Be charitable to the poor;
Say you have met with a holy fryer,
And I desire no more.'
- 24 He set them upon their horses again,
And away then they did ride;
And hee return'd to the merry green-
wood,
With great joy, mirth and pride.

THE NOBLE FISHERMAN, OR ROBIN HOOD'S PREFERMENT

Robin Hood is here made to try his fortunes on the sea, like Eustace the Monk and Wallace. 'The Noble Fisherman, or, Robin Hood's great Prize' is receipted for to Francis Coules in the Stationers' Registers, June 13, 1631.

'The Noble Fisher-man, or, Robin Hood's Preferment.' a. Wood, 402, p. 18. b. Wood, 401, leaf 25 b. c. Garland of 1663, No. 12. d. Garland of 1670, No. 11. e. Rawlinson, 566. f. Pepys, II, 108, No. 95. g. Pepys, II, 123, No. 108.

- 1 In summer time, when leaves grow green,
When they doe grow both green and long,
Of a bould outlaw, calld Robin Hood,
It is of him I sing this song.
- 2 When the lilly leafe and the elephant
Doth bud and spring with a merry good cheere,
This outlaw was weary of the wood-side,
And chasing of the fallow deere.
- 3 'The fishermen brave more mony have
Then any merchant, two or three;
Therefore I will to Scarborough goe,
That I a fisherman brave may be.'
- 4 This outlaw calld his merry men all,
As they sate under the green-wood tree:
'If any of you have gold to spend,
I pray you heartily spend it with me.'
- 5 'Now,' quoth Robin, 'I 'le to Scarborough goe,
It seemes to be a very faire day;'
Who tooke up his inne at a widdow-womans house,
Hard by upon the water gray.
- 6 Who asked of him, Where wert thou borne?
Or tell to me, where dost thou fare?
'I am a poore fisherman,' saith he then,
'This day intrapped all in care.'
- 7 'What is thy name, thou fine fellow?
I pray thee heartily tell to me;'
'In mine own country where I was borne,
Men called me Simon over the Lee.'
- 8 'Simon, Simon,' said the good wife,
'I wish thou maist well brook thy name;'
The outlaw was ware of her courtesie,
And rejoyed he had got such a dame.
- 9 'Simon, wilt thou be my man?
And good round wages I 'le give thee;
I have as good a ship of mine owne
As any sayle upon the sea.
- 10 'Anchors and planks thou shalt want none,
Masts and ropes that are so long;'
'And if that you thus furnish me,'
Said Simon, 'nothing shall goe wrong.'
- 11 They pluckt up anchor, and away did sayle,
More of a day then two or three;
When others cast in their baited hooks,
The bare lines into the sea cast he.
- 12 'It will be long,' said the master then,
'Ere this great lubber do thrive on the sea;
I 'le assure you he shall have no part of our fish,
For in truth he is of no part worthy.'
- 13 'O woe is me,' said Simon then,
'This day that ever I came here!
I wish I were in Plomton Parke,
In chasing of the fallow deere.'
- 14 'For every clowne laughs me to scorne,
And they by me set nought at all;
If I had them in Plomton Park,
I would set as little by them all.'
- 15 They pluckt up anchor, and away did sayle,
More of a day then two or three;
But Simon spied a ship of warre,
That sayld towards them most valourously.

- 16 'O woe is me,' said the master then,
 'This day that ever I was borne!
 For all our fish we have got to-day
 Is every bit lost and forlorne.
- 17 'For your French robbers on the sea,
 They will not spare of us one man,
 But carry us to the coast of France,
 And ligge us in the prison strong.'
- 18 But Simon said, Doe not feare them,
 Neither, master, take you no care;
 Give me my bent bow in my hand,
 And never a Frenchman will I spare.
- 19 'Hold thy peace, thou long lubber,
 For thou art nought but braggs and boast;
 If I should cast the over-board,
 There were nothing but a lubber lost.'
- 20 Simon grew angry at these words,
 And so angry then was he
 That he tooke his bent bow in his hand,
 And to the ship-hatch goe doth he.
- 21 'Master, tye me to the mast,' saith he,
 'That at my mark I may stand fair,
 And give me my bended bow in my
 hand,
 And never a Frenchman will I spare.'
- 22 He drew his arrow to the very head,
 And drew it with all might and maine,
 And straightway, in the twinkling of an
 eye,
 Doth the Frenchmans heart the arow gain.
- 23 The Frenchman fell downe on the ship-
 hatch,
 And under the hatches down below;
 Another Frenchman that him espy'd
 The dead corps into the sea doth throw.
- 24 'O master, loose me from the mast,' he
 said,
 'And for them all take you no care,
 And give me my bent bow in my hand,
 And never a Frenchman will I spare.'
- 25 Then streight [they] did board the Frenchmans ship.
 They lying all dead in their sight;

They found within the ship of warre
 Twelve thousand pound of money
 bright.

- 26 'The one halfe of the ship,' said Simon
 then,
 'I 'le give to my dame and children
 small;
 The other halfe of the ship I 'le bestow
 On you that are my fellowes all.'
- 27 But now bespake the master then,
 For so, Simon, it shall not be;
 For you have won her with your own
 hand,
 And the owner of it you shall bee.
- 28 'It shall be so, as I have said;
 And, with this gold, for the opprest
 An habitation I will build,
 Where they shall live in peace and
 rest.'

ROBIN HOOD'S BIRTH, BREED-ING, VALOR, AND MARRIAGE

The jocular author of this ballad, who would certainly have been diverted by any one's supposing him to write under the restraints of tradition, brings Adam Bell, Clim, and Cloudeley into company with Robin Hood's father. He makes Robin Hood's mother niece to Guy of Warwick, and sister to Gamwel of Gamwel Hall. In No. 128 Young Gamwell is Robin Hood's sister's son. The author knows nothing of the Earl of Huntington and Matilda Fitzwater, but represents Robin Hood as the son of a forester. In everything except keeping Robin a yeoman, he writes "as the world were now but to begin, antiquity forgot, custom not known;" but poets in his day, to quote the editor of the ballad collection of 1723, "were looked upon like other Englishmen, born to live and write with freedom."

a. 'A new ballad of bold Robin Hood, shewing his Birth, Breeding, Valour and Marriage, at Titbury Bull-running: calculated for the meridian of Staffordshire, but may serve for Derbyshire or Kent.' Roxburghe, i, 360, in the Ballad Society's reprint, II, 440. b. Pepys, II, 116, No. 103. c. Pepys, II, 118, No. 104.

- 1 KIND gentlemen, will you be patient
 awhile?
 Ay, and then you shall hear anon

- A very good ballad of bold Robin Hood,
And of his man, brave Little John.
- 2 In Locksly town, in Nottinghamshire,
In merry sweet Locksly town,
There bold Robin Hood he was born and was bred,
Bold Robin of famous renown.
- 3 The father of Robin a forrester was,
And he shot in a lusty long bow,
Two north country miles and an inch at a shot,
As the Pinder of Wakefield does
know.
- 4 For he brought Adam Bell, and Clim
or the Clugh,
And William a Clowdesle
To shoot with our forrester for forty
mark,
And the forrester beat them all three.
- 5 His mother was neece to the Coventry
knight,
Which Warwickshire men call Sir
Guy;
For he slew the blue bore that hangs up at the gate,
Or mine host of The Bull tells a lye.
- 6 Her brother was Gamwel, of Great
Gamwel Hall,
And a noble house-keeper was he,
Ay, as ever broke bread in sweet Nottinghamshire,
And a squire of famous degree.
- 7 The mother of Robin said to her husband,
My honey, my love, and my dear,
Let Robin and I ride this morning to Gamwel,
To taste of my brothers good cheer.
- 8 And he said, I grant thee thy boon,
gentle Joan,
Take one of my horses, I pray;
The sun is a rising, and therefore make haste,
For to-morrow is Christmas-day.
- 9 Then Robin Hoods fathers grey gelding was brought,
And saddled and bridled was he;
- God wot, a blew bonnet, his new suit of cloaths,
And a cloak that did reach to his
knee.
- 10 She got on her holiday kirtle and gown,
They were of a light Lincoln green;
The cloath was homespun, but for colour and make
It might a beseemed our queen.
- 11 And then Robin got on his basket-hilt
sword,
And his dagger on his tother side,
And said, My dear mother, let's haste
to be gone,
We have forty long miles to ride.
- 12 When Robin had mounted his gelding
so grey,
His father, without any trouble,
Set her up behind him, and bad her not fear,
For his gelding had oft carried double.
- 13 And when she was settled, they rode to their neighbours,
And drank and shook hands with
them all;
And then Robin gallopt, and never gave ore,
Till they lighted at Gamwel Hall.
- 14 And now you may think the right worshipful squire
Was joyful his sister to see;
For he kist her and kist her, and swore
a great oath,
Thou art welcome, kind sister, to me.
- 15 To-morrow, when mass had been said
in the chappel,
Six tables were coverd in the hall,
And in comes the squire, and makes a short speech,
It was, Neighbours, you're welcome
all.
- 16 But not a man here shall taste my March beer,
Till a Christmas carrol be sing:
Then all clapt their hands, and they shouted and sung,
Till the hall and the parlour did
ring.

- 17 Now mustard and braun, roast beef and plumb pies,
Were set upon every table:
And noble George Gamwel said, Eat and be merry,
And drink too, as long as you're
able.
- 18 When dinner was ended, his chaplain said grace,
And, 'Be merry, my friends,' said
the squire;
'It rains, and it blows, but call for more
ale,
And lay some more wood on the fire.
- 19 'And now call ye Little John hither to
me,
For Little John is a fine lad
At gambols and juggling, and twenty such tricks
As shall make you merry and glad.'
- 20 When Little John came, to gambols
they went,
Both gentleman, yeoman and clown;
And what do you think? Why, as true as I live,
Bold Robin Hood put them all down.
- 21 And now you may think the right worshipful squire
Was joyful this sight for to see;
For he said, Cousin Robin, thou 'st go
no more home,
But tarry and dwell here with me.
- 22 Thou shalt have my land when I dye, and till then
Thou shalt be the staff of my age;
'Then grant me my boon, dear uncle,'
said Robin,
'That Little John may be my page.'
- 23 And he said, Kind cousin, I grant thee
thy boon;
With all my heart, so let it be;
'Then come hither, Little John,' said
Robin Hood,
'Come hither, my page, unto me.
- 24 'Go fetch me my bow, my longest long
bow,
And broad arrows, one, two, or three;
- For when it is fair weather we'll into Sherwood,
Some merry pastime to see.'
- 25 When Robin Hood came into merry
Sherwood,
He winded his bugle so clear,
And twice five and twenty good yeomen and bold
Before Robin Hood did appear.
- 26 'Where are your companions all?' said
Robin Hood,
'For still I want forty and three;'
Then said a bold yeoman, Lo, yonder
they stand,
All under a green-wood tree.
- 27 As that word was spoke, Clorinda came
by;
The queen of the shepherds was she;
And her gown was of velvet as green
as the grass,
And her buskin did reach to her knee.
- 28 Her gait it was graceful, her body was
straight,
And her countenance free from pride;
A bow in her hand, and quiver and arrows
Hung dangling by her sweet side.
- 29 Her eye-brows were black, ay, and so was her hair,
And her skin was as smooth as glass;
Her visage spoke wisdom, and modesty
too;
Sets with Robin Hood such a lass!
- 30 Said Robin Hood, Lady fair, whither
away?
O whither, fair lady, away?
And she made him answer, To kill a fat
buck;
For to-morrow is Titbury day.
- 31 Said Robin Hood, Lady fair, wander
with me
A little to yonder green bower;
There sit down to rest you, and you shall be sure
Of a brace or a lease in an hour.
- 32 And as we were going towards the green
bower,
Two hundred good bucks we espy'd;

- She chose out the fattest that was in the herd,
And she shot him through side and
side.
- 33 'By the faith of my body,' said bold
Robin Hood,
'I never saw woman like thee;
And comst thou from east, ay, or comst
thou from west,
Thou needst not beg venison of me.
- 34 'However, along to my bower you shall
go,
And taste of a forresters meat:'
And when we come thither, we found as good cheer
As any man needs for to eat.
- 35 For there was hot venison, and warden pies cold,
Cream clouted, with honey-combs
plenty;
And the sarvitores they were, beside
Little John,
Good yeomen at least four and twenty.
- 36 Clorinda said, Tell me your name, gentle sir;
And he said, 'Tis bold Robin Hood:
Squire Gamwel's my uncle, but all my delight
Is to dwell in the merry Sherwood.
- 37 For 't is a fine life, and 't is void of all strife.
'So 't is, sir,' Clorinda reply'd;
'But oh,' said bold Robin, 'how sweet would it be,
If Clorinda would be my bride!'
- 38 She blusht at the motion; yet, after a pauze
Said, Yes, sir, and with all my heart:
'Then let's send for a priest,' said
Robin Hood,
'And be married before we do part.'
- 39 But she said, It may not be so, gentle
sir,
For I must be at Titbury feast;
And if Robin Hood will go thither with
me,
I'll make him the most welcome
guest.
- 40 Said Robin Hood, Reach me that buck,
Little John,
For I'll go along with my dear;
Go bid my yeomen kill six brace of bucks,
And meet me to-morrow just here.
- 41 Before we had ridden five Staffordshire miles,
Eight yeomen, that were too bold,
Bid Robin Hood stand, and deliver his
buck;
A truer tale never was told.
- 42 'I will not, faith!' said bold Robin:
'come, John,
Stand to me, and we'll beat em all:'
Then both drew their swords, an so cut em and slasht em
That five of them did fall.
- 43 The three that remaind calld to Robin
for quarter,
And pitiful John beggd their lives;
When John's boon was granted, he gave them good counsel,
And so sent them home to their wives.
- 44 This battle was fought near to Titbury
town,
When the bagpipes bated the bull;
I am king of the fiddlers, and sware 't is a truth,
And I call him that doubts it a gull.
- 45 For I saw them fighting, and fidd the while,
And Clorinda sung, Hey derry down!
The bumpkins are beaten, put up thy sword, Bob,
And now let's dance into the town.
- 46 Before we came to it, we heard a strange shouting,
And all that were in it lookd madly;
For some were a bull-back, some dancing a morris,
And some singing Arthur-a-Bradly.
- 47 And there we see Thomas, our justices
clerk,
And Mary, to whom he was kind;
For Tom rode before her, and calld
Mary, Madam,
And kist her full sweetly behind.

48 And so may your worships. But we went to dinner,
With Thomas and Mary and Nan;
They all drank a health to Clorinda,
and told her
Bold Robin Hood was a fine man.

49 When dinner was ended, Sir Roger, the parson
Of Dubbridge, was sent for in haste;
He brought his mass-book, and he bade them take hands,
And he joynd them in marriage full
fast.

50 And then, as bold Robin Hood and his sweet bride
Went hand in hand to the green
bower,
The birds sung with pleasure in merry
Sherwood,
And 't was a most joyful hour.

51 And when Robin came in the sight of the bower,
'Where are my yeomen?' said he;
And Little John answered, Lo, yonder
they stand,
All under the green-wood tree,

52 Then a garland they brought her, by two and by two,
And plac'd them upon the bride's
head;
The music struck up, and we all fell to dance,
Till the bride and the groom were a-bed.

53 And what they did there must be counsel to me,
Because they lay long the next day,
And I had haste home, but I got a good piece
Of the bride-cake, and so came away.

54 Now out, alas! I had forgotten to tell ye
That marryd they were with a ring;
And so will Nan Knight, or be buried a maiden,
And now let us pray for the king:

55 That he may get children, and they may get more,
To govern and do us some good;

And then I'll make ballads in Robin
Hood's bower,
And sing em in merry Sherwood.

ROBIN HOOD AND MAID
MARIAN

Though Maid Marian and Robin Hood had perhaps been paired in popular sports, no one thought of putting more of her than her name into a ballad, until one S. S. (so the broad-side is signed) composed this foolish ditty. The bare name of Maid Marian occurs in No. 145 A, st. 9, and in No. 147, st. 1. Even in Barclay's fourth eclogue, written not long after 1500, where, according to Ritson, the earliest notice of Maid Marian occurs, and where, he says, "she is evidently connected with Robin Hood," the two are really kept distinct; for the lusty Codrus in that eclogue wishes to hear "some mery fit of Maid Marion, or els of Robin Hood." In Munday's play of The Downfall of Robert Earl of Huntington, Matilda, otherwise Marian, daughter to Lord Lacy, accompanies Earl Robert to Sherwood, upon his being outlawed for debt on the very day of their troth-plight. There she lives a spotless maiden, awaiting the time when the outlawry shall be repealed and Robin may legally take her to wife. Neither the author of the play nor that of the ballad was, so far as is known, repeating any popular tradition. The ordinary partner of Maid Marian is Friar Tuck, not Robin Hood.

'A Famous Battle between Robin Hood and Maid Marian, declaring their Love, Life, and Liberty,' Wood, 401, leaf 21 b.

1 A BONNY fine maid of a noble degree,
With a hey down down a down
down
Maid Marian calld by name,
Did live in the North, of excellent
worth,
For she was a gallant dame.

2 For favour and face, and beauty most rare,
Queen Hellen shee did excell;
For Marian then was praised of all
men
That did in the country dwell.

- 3 'Twas neither Rosamond nor Jane Shore,
Whose beauty was clear and bright,
That could surpass this country lass,
Beloved of lord and knight.
- 4 The Earl of Huntington, nobly born,
That came of noble blood,
To Marian went, with a good intent,
By the name of Robin Hood.
- 5 With kisses sweet their red lips meet,
For shee and the earl did agree;
In every place, they kindly imbrace,
With love and sweet unity.
- 6 But fortune bearing these lovers a
spight,
That soon they were forced to part,
To the merry green wood then went
Robin Hood,
With a sad and sorrowfull heart.
- 7 And Marian, poor soul, was troubled in mind,
For the absence of her friend;
With finger in eye, shee often did cry,
And his person did much comend.
- 8 Perplexed and vexed, and troubled in
mind,
Shee drest her self like a page,
And ranged the wood to find Robin
Hood,
The bravest of men in that age.
- 9 With quiver and bow, sword, buckler,
and all,
Thus armed was Marian most bold,
Still wandering about to find Robin out,
Whose person was better then gold.
- 10 But Robin Hood, hee himself had disguisd,
And Marian was strangely attir'd,
That they provd foes, and so fell to
blowes,
Whose vallour bold Robin admir'd.
- 11 They drew out their swords, and to cutting they went,
At least an hour or more,
That the blood ran apace from bold
Robins face,
And Marian was wounded sore.
- 12 'O hold thy hand, hold thy hand,' said
Robin Hood,
'And thou shalt be one of my string,
To range in the wood with bold Robin
Hood,
To hear the sweet nightingall sing.'
- 13 When Marian did hear the voice of her
love,
Her self shee did quickly discover,
And with kisses sweet she did him greet,
Like to a most loyall lover.
- 14 When bold Robin Hood his Marian did
see,
Good lord, what clipping was there!
With kind imbraces, and jobbing of faces,
Providing of gallant cheer.
- 15 For Little John took his bow in his
hand,
And wandring in the wood,
To kill the deer, and make good chear,
For Marian and Robin Hood.
- 16 A stately banquet the[y] had full soon,
All in a shaded bower,
Where venison sweet they had to eat,
And were merry that present hour.
- 17 Great flaggons of wine were set on the board,
And merrily they drunk round
Their boules of sack, to strengthen the
back,
Whilst their knees did touch the
ground.
- 18 First Robin Hood began a health
To Marian his onely dear,
And his yeomen all, both comly and tall,
Did quickly bring up the rear.
- 19 For in a brave veine they tost off the[ir]
bouls,
Whilst thus they did remain,
And every cup, as they drunk up,
They filled with speed again.
- 20 At last they ended their merrymment,
And went to walk in the wood,
Where Little John and Maid Marian Attended on bold Robin Hood.

21 In sollid content together they livd,
 With all their yeomen gay;
 They livd by their hands, without any
 lands,
 And so they did many a day.

22 But now to conclude, an end I will make
 In time, as I think it good,
 For the people that dwell in the North can tell
 Of Marian and bold Robin Hood.

THE KING'S DISGUISE, AND FRIENDSHIP WITH ROBIN HOOD

The story, as far as st. 38, is a loose paraphrase, with omissions, of the seventh and eighth fits of the Gest, and seems, like Nos. 152, 153, "to have been written by some miserable retainer to the press, merely to eke out the book; being in fact, a most contemptible performance" (Ritson). The two concluding lines are intended to serve as a link with 'Robin Hood and the Valiant Knight' (No. 153), which, however, does not succeed in the garlands, 'Robin Hood and the Golden Arrow' (No. 152) being interposed.

(but not older than 1753), p. 76, No. 25. b. Robin Hood's Garland, London. Printed by L. How, in Petticoat Lane, n. d. c. Marshall, in Aldermay Church-Yard, Bow-Lane, n. d., p. 80, No. 25.

1 KING RICHARD hearing of the pranks
 Of Robin Hood and his men,
 He much admir'd, and more desir'd,
 To see both him and them.

2 Then with a dozen of his lords
 To Nottingham he rode;
 When he came there, he made good
 cheer,
 And took up his abode.

3 He having staid there some time,
 But had no hopes to speed,
 He and his lords, with [free] accord,
 All put on monk's weeds.

4 From Fountain-abbey they did ride,
 Down to Barnsdale;
 Where Robin Hood prepar'd stood
 All company to assail.

5 The king was higher then the rest,
 And Robin thought he had
 An abbot been whom he did spleen;
 To rob him he was glad.

6 He took the king's horse by the head,
 'Abbot,' says he, 'abide;
 I am bound to rue such knaves as you,
 That live in pomp and pride.'

7 'But we are messengers from the king,'
 The king himself did say;
 'Near to this place his royal Grace
 To speak with thee does stay.'

8 'God save the king,' said Robin Hood,
 'And all that wish him well;
 He that does deny his sovereignty,
 I wish he was in hell.'

9 'O thyself thou curses,' says the king,
 'For thou a traitor art:'
 'Nay, but that you are his messenger,
 I swear you lie in heart.'

10 'For I never yet hurt any man
 That honest is and true;
 But those that give their minds to live
 Upon other men's due.

11 'I never hurt the husbandman,
 That use to till the ground;
 Nor spill their blood that range the
 wood
 To follow hawk or hound.

12 'My chiefest spite to clergy is,
 Who in these days bear a great
 sway;
 With fryars and monks, with their fine
 sprunks,
 I make my chiefest prey.

13 'But I am very glad,' says Robin Hood,
 'That I have met you here;

- Come, before we end, you shall, my friend,
Taste of our green-wood cheer.'
- 14 The king did then marvel much,
And so did all his men;
They thought with fear, what kind of cheer
Robin would provide for them.
- 15 Robin took the king's horse by the head,
And led him to the tent;
'Thou would not be so usd,' quoth he,
'But that my king thee sent.
- 16 'Nay, more than that,' said Robin Hood,
'For good king Richard's sake,
If you had as much gold as ever I told,
I would not one penny take.'
- 17 Then Robin set his horn to his mouth,
And a loud blast he did blow,
Till a hundred and ten of Robin Hood's men
Came marching all of a row.
- 18 And when they came bold Robin before,
Each man did bend his knee;
'O,' thought the king, 't is a gallant thing,
And a seemly sight to see.'
- 19 Within himself the king did say,
These men of Robin Hood's
More humble be than mine to me;
So the court may learn of the woods.
- 20 So then they all to dinner went,
Upon a carpet green;
Black, yellow, red, finely mingled,
Most curious to be seen.
- 21 Venison and fowls were plenty there,
With fish out of the river:
King Richard swore, on sea or shore,
He neer was feasted better.
- 22 Then Robin takes a can of ale:
'Come, let us now begin;
Come, every man shall have his can;
Here's a health unto the king.'
- 23 The king himself drank to the king,
So round about it went;

- Two barrels of ale, both stout and stale,
To pledge that health were spent.
- 24 And after that, a bowl of wine
In his hand took Robin Hood;
'Until I die, I'll drink wine,' said he,
'While I live in the green-wood.
- 25 'Bend all your bows,' said Robin Hood,
'And with the grey goose wing
Such sport now shew as you would do
In the presence of the king.'
- 26 They shewd such brave archery,
By cleaving sticks and wands,
That the king did say, Such men as they Live not in many lands.
- 27 'Well, Robin Hood,' then says the king,
'If I could thy pardon get,
To serve the king in every thing
Wouldst thou thy mind firm set?
- 28 'Yes, with all my heart,' bold Robin said,
So they flung off their hoods;
To serve the king in every thing,
They swore they would spend their bloods.
- 29 'For a clergyman was first my bane,
Which makes me hate them all;
But if you'll be so kind to me,
Love them again I shall.'
- 30 The king no longer could forbear,
For he was movd with ruth;
['Robin,' said he, 'I now tell thee
The very naked truth.]
- 31 'I am the king, thy sovereign king,
That appears before you all;
When Robin see that it was he,
Strait then he down did fall.
- 32 'Stand up again,' then said the king,
'I'll thee thy pardon give;
Stand up, my friend; who can contend,
When I give leave to live?'
- 33 So they are all gone to Nottingham,
All shouting as they came;
But when the people them did see,
They thought the king was slain,

34 And for that cause the outlaws were
come,
To rule all as they list;
And for to shun, which way to run
The people did not wist.

35 The plowman left the plow in the fields,
The smith ran from his shop;
Old folks also, that scarce could go,
Over their sticks did hop.

36 The king soon let them understand
He had been in the green wood,
And from that day, for evermore,
He 'd forgiven Robin Hood.

37 When the people they did hear,
And the truth was known,
They all did sing, 'God save the king!
Hang care, the town's our own!'

38 'What's that Robin Hood?' then said
the sheriff;
'That varlet I do hate;
Both me and mine he causd to dine,
And servd us all with one plate.'

39 'Ho, ho,' said Robin, 'I know what you mean;
Come, take your gold again;
Be friends with me, and I with thee,
And so with every man.

40 'Now, master sheriff, you are paid,
And since you are beginner,
As well as you give me my due;
For you neer paid for that dinner.

41 'But if that it should please the king
So much your house to grace
To sup with you, for to speak true,
[I] know you neer was base.'

42 The sheriff could not [that] gain say,
For a trick was put upon him;
A supper was drest, the king was
guest,
But he thought 't would have undone
him.

43 They are all gone to London court,
Robin Hood, with all his train;
He once was there a noble peer,
And now he's there again.

44 Many such pranks brave Robin playd
While he lived in the green wood:
Now, my friends, attend, and hear an end
Of honest Robin Hood.

GOLDEN ARROW

The first twenty-three stanzas are based upon the Gest, sts. 282-95. The remainder is mostly taken up with John's astute device for sending information to the sheriff. The two concluding lines are for connection with 'Robin Hood and the Valiant Knight,' which follows in some garlands, as here. (See Introduction to No. 151.)

a. Robin Hood's Garland, London, W. and C. Dicey, St Mary Aldermay Church-Yard, Bow-Lane, n. d., p. 80, No. 26. b. Robin Hood's Garland, London, R. Marshall, in Aldermay Church-yard, Bow-Lane, n. d., p. 84, No. 26. c. Robin Hood's Garland, Preston, Printed and sold by W. Sargent, n. d.

1 WHEN as the sheriff of Nottingham
Was come, with mickle grief,
He talkd no good of Robin Hood,
That strong and sturdy thief.
Fal lal dal de

2 So unto London-road he past,
His losses to unfold
To King Richard, who did regard
The tale that he had told.

3 'Why,' quoth the king, 'what shall I do?
Art thou not sheriff for me?
The law is in force, go take thy course
Of them that injure thee.

4 'Go get thee gone, and by thyself
Devise some tricking game
For to enthrall yon rebels all;
Go take thy course with them.'

5 So away the sheriff he returnd,
And by the way he thought
Of the words of the king, and how the thing
To pass might well be brought.

- 6 For within his mind he imagined
That when such matches were,
Those outlaws stout, without [all]
doubt,
Would be the bowmen there.
- 7 So an arrow with a golden head
And shaft of silver white,
Who won the day should bear away
For his own proper right.
- 8 Tidings came to brave Robin Hood,
Under the green-wood tree:
'Come prepare you then, my merry
men,
We'll go yon sport to see.'
- 9 With that stept forth a brave young
man,
David of Doncaster:
'Master,' said he, 'be rul'd by me,
From the green-wood we'll not stir.
- 10 'To tell the truth, I'm well informed
Yon match is a wile;
The sheriff, I wiss, devises this
Us archers to beguile.'
- 11 'O thou smells of a coward,' said Robin
Hood,
'Thy words does not please me;
Come on 't what will, I'll try my skill
At yon brave archery.'
- 12 O then bespoke brave Little John:
Come, let us thither gang;
Come listen to me, how it shall be
That we need not be kend.
- 13 Our mantles, all of Lincoln green,
Behind us we will leave;
We'll dress us all so several
They shall not us perceive.
- 14 One shall wear white, another red,
One yellow, another blue;
Thus in disguise, to the exercise
We'll gang, whateer ensue.
- 15 Forth from the green-wood they are
gone,
With hearts all firm and stont,
Resolving [then] with the sheriff's men
To have a hearty bout.
- 16 So themselves they mixed with the rest,
To prevent all suspicion;
For if they should together hold
They thought [it] no discretion.
- 17 So the sheriff looking round about,
Amongst eight hundred men,
But could not see the sight that he Had long expected then.
- 18 Some said, If Robin Hood was here,
And all his men to boot,
Sure none of them could pass these men,
So bravely they do shoot.
- 19 'Ay,' quoth the sheriff, and scratch'd
his head,
'I thought he would have been here;
I thought he would, but, tho he's bold,
He durst not now appear.'
- 20 O that word grieved Robin Hood to the
heart;
He vex'd in his blood;
Eer long, thought he, thou shalt well
see
That here was Robin Hood.
- 21 Some cried, Blue jacket! another cried,
Brown!
And the third cried, Brave Yellow!
But the fourth man said, Yon man in red
In this place has no fellow.
- 22 For that was Robin Hood himself,
For he was cloath'd in red;
At every shot the prize he got,
For he was both sure and dead.
- 23 So the arrow with the golden head
And shaft of silver white
Brave Robin Hood won, and bore with
him
For his own proper right.
- 24 These outlaws there, that very day,
To shun all kind of doubt,
By three or four, no less no more,
As they went in came out.
- 25 Until they all assembled were
Under the green-wood shade,
Where they report, in pleasant sport,
What brave pastime they made.

- 26 Says Robin Hood, All my care is,
How that you sheriff may Know certainly that it was I
That bore his arrow away.
- 27 Says Little John, My counsel good
Did take effect before,
So therefore now, if you 'll allow,
I will advise once more.
- 28 'Speak on, speak on,' said Robin Hood,
'Thy wit's both quick and sound;
[I know no man amongst us can
For wit like thee be found.']
- 29 'This I advise,' said Little John;
'That a letter shall be pend,
And when it is done, to Nottingham
You to the sheriff shall send.'
- 30 'That is well advised,' said Robin Hood,
'But how must it be sent?'
'Pugh! when you please, it's done with ease,
Master, be you content.
- 31 'I'll stick it on my arrow's head,
And shoot it into the town;
The mark shall show where it must go,
When ever it lights down.'
- 32 The project it was full performd;
The sheriff that letter had;
Which when he read, he scratchd his
head,
And rav'd like one that's mad.
- 33 So we'll leave him chafing in his grease,
Which will do him no good;
Now, my friends, attend, and hear the
end
Of honest Robin Hood.

ROBIN HOOD AND THE VAL-IANT KNIGHT

Written, perhaps, because it was thought that authority should in the end be vindicated against outlaws, which may explain why this piece surpasses in platitude everything that goes before. (See Introduction to Nos 151, 152.)

'Robin Hood and the Valiant Knight.' a. Robin Hood's Garland, London, C. Dicey, Bow Church Yard, n. d., but before 1741, p. 88, Bodleian Library, Douce H H, 88. b. Robin Hood's Garland, 1749, without place or printer, p. 101, No. 24. c. Robin Hood's Garland, London, R. Marshall, in Aldermay Church-Yard, Bow-Lane, n. d., p. 87, No. 27.

- 1 WHEN Robin Hood, and his merry men
all,
Derry, etc.
Had reigned many years,
The king was then told they had been too bold
To his bishops and noble peers.
Hey, etc.
- 2 Therefore they called a council of state,
To know what was best to be done
For to quell their pride, or else, they
reply'd,
The land would be over-run.
- 3 Having consulted a whole summers day,
At length it was agreed
That one should be sent to try the event,
And fetch him away with speed.
- 4 Therefore a trusty and worthy knight
The king was pleas'd to call,
Sir William by name; when to him he
came,
He told him his pleasure all.
- 5 'Go you from hence to bold Robin
Hood,
And bid him, without more a-do,
Surrender himself, or else the proud elf
Shall suffer with all his crew.
- 6 'Take here a hundred bowmen brave,
All chosen men of might,
Of excellent art for to take thy part,
In glittering armour bright.'
- 7 Then said the knight, My sovereign
liege,
By me they shall be led;
I'll venture my blood against bold
Robin Hood,
And bring him alive or dead.
- 8 One hundred men were chosen straight,
As proper as eer men saw;

On Midsummer-day they marched away,
To conquer that brave outlaw.

- 9 With long yew bows and shining spears,
They marchd in mickle pride,
And never delayd, or halted, or stayd,
'Till they came to the greenwood-side.
- 10 Said he to his archers, Tarry here;
Your bows make ready all,
That, if need should be, you may follow
me;
And see you observe my call.
- 11 'I'll go in person first,' he cry'd,
'With the letters of my good king,
Both signd and seald, and if he will yield,
We need not draw one string.'
- 12 He wanderd about till at length he came
To the tent of Robin Hood;
The letter he shews; bold Robin arose,
And there on his guard he stood.
- 13 'They'd have me surrender,' quoth bold
Robin Hood,
'And lie at their mercy then;
But tell them from me, that never shall
be,
While I have full seven-score men.'
- 14 Sir William the knight, both hardy and
bold,
Did offer to seize him there,
Which William Locksly by fortune did
see,
And bid him that trick forbear.
- 15 Then Robin Hood set his horn to his
mouth,
And blew a blast or twain,
And so did the knight, at which there in sight
The archers came all amain.
- 16 Sir William with care he drew up his
men,
And plac'd them in battle array;
Bold Robin, we find, he was not behind;
Now this was a bloody fray.
- 17 The archers on both sides bent their bows,
And the clouds of arrows flew;

The very first flight, that honoured
knight
Did there bid the world adieu.

- 18 Yet nevertheless their fight did last
From morning till almost noon;
Both parties were stout, and loath to give out;
This was on the last [day] of June.
- 19 At length they went off; one part they
went
To London with right good will;
And Robin Hood he to the green-wood
tree,
And there he was taken ill.
- 20 He sent for a monk, who let him blood,
And took his life away;
Now this being done, his archers they
run,
It was not a time to stay.
- 21 Some got on board and crossd the seas,
To Flanders, France, and Spain,
And others to Rome, for fear of their doom,
But soon returnd again.
- 22 Thus he that never feard bow nor spear
Was murdered by letting of blood;
And so, loving friends, the story doth
end
Of valiant bold Robin Hood.
- 23 There's nothing remains but his epitaph
now,
Which, reader, here you have;
To this very day, and read it you may,
As it was upon his grave.

Robin Hood's Epitaph,
Set on his tomb
By the Prioress of Birkslay Monastery, in Yorkshire.

Robin, Earl of Huntington,
Lies under this little stone.
No archer was like him so good;
His wildness nam'd him Robin Hood.
Full thirteen years, and something more,
These northern parts he vexed sore.
Such outlaws as he and his men
May England never know again!

A TRUE TALE OF ROBIN HOOD

. Martin Parker's True Tale of Robin Hood was entered to Francis Grove in the Stationers' Registers on the 29th of February, 1682. A copy in the British Museum, which is here reprinted, is thought to be of this first edition. The title of this copy is: 'A True Tale of Robbin [Hood], or, A briefe touch of the life and death o[f that] Renowned Outlaw, Robert Earle of Huntin[gton] vulgarly called Robbin Hood, who lived and died in [A. D.] 1198, being the 9. yeare of the reigne of King Ric[hard] the first, commonly called Richard Cuer de Lyon. Carefully collected out of the truest Writers of our English C[hroni]cles. And published for the satisfaction of those who desire to s[ee] Truth purged from falsehood. By Martin Parker. Printed at London for T. Cotes, and are to be sold by F. Grove dwellin[g] upon Snow-hill, neare the Saracen[s head].'

Martin Parker professes in st. 117 to follow chronicles, not "fained tales." Perhaps he regards broadside-ballads with historical names in them as chronicles: at any rate, though he reports some things which are found in Grafton, and in Major as cited by Grafton, much the larger part of his True Tale is now to be found only in ballads. When he does not agree with ballads which have come down to us, he may have used earlier copies, or he may have invented. The story of the abbot in sts. 23-26 is at least from the same source as 'Robin Hood and the Bishop' (No. 143); the plundering of King Richard's receivers in st. 33 is evidently the same event as that referred to in the second stanza of 'Robin Hood and Queen Katherine' (No. 145); Robin Hood is said to have built eight almshouses in 71, and one in the last stanza of 'The Noble Fisherman' (No. 148). The Gest could hardly have been unknown to Parker. Sts. 3-9, concerning Robin's rank, prodigality, and outlawry, may have been based upon Munday's play; but nothing is said of Maid Marian. Sts. 44-50 and 56-65 may report the substance of some lost broadside. Perhaps Parker calls his compilation a True Tale because a tale of Robin Hood was a proverb for an incredible story: "Tales of Robin Hood are good for fools."

- 1 BOTH gentlemen, or yoemen bould,
Or whatsoever you are,
To have a stately story tould,
Attention now prepare.

- 2 It is a tale of Robin Hood,
Which I to you will tell,
Which being rightly understood,
I know will please you well.
- 3 This Robbin, so much talked on,
Was once a man of fame,
Instiled Earle of Huntington,
Lord Robert Hood by name.
- 4 In courtship and magnificence,
His carriage won him prayse,
And greater favour with his prince
Than any in his dayes.
- 5 In bounteous liberality
He too much did excell,
And loved men of quality
More than exceeding well.
- 6 His great revenues all he sould
For wine and costly cheere;
He kept three hundred bowmen bold,
He shooting lovd so deare.
- 7 No archer living in his time
With him might well compare;
He practisd all his youthfull prime
That exercise most rare.
- 8 At last, by his profuse expence,
He had consumed his wealth,
And being outlawed by his prince,
In woods he livd by stealth.
- 9 The abbot of Saint Maries rich,
To whom he mony ought,
His hatred to this earle was such
That he his downefall wrought.
- 10 So being outlawed, as 't is told,
He with a crew went forth
Of lusty cutters, stout and bold,
And robbed in the North.
- 11 Among the rest, one Little John,
A yeoman bold and free,
Who could, if it stood him upon,
With ease encounter three.
- 12 One hundred men in all he got,
With whom, the story sayes,
Three hundred common men durst
not
Hold combate any wayes.

- 13 They Yorkshire woods frequented much,
And Lancashire also,
Wherein their practises were such
That they wrought mickle woe.
- 14 None rich durst travell to and fro,
Though nere so strongly armd,
But by these theeves, so strong in show,
They still were robd and harmd.
- 15 His chiefest spight to the clergie was,
That lived in monstrous pride;
No one of them he would let passe
Along the high-way side,
- 16 But first they must to dinner goe,
And afterwards to shrift:
Full many a one he served so,
Thus while he livd by theft.
- 17 No monkes nor fryers he would let goe,
Without paying their fees:
If they thought much to be usd so,
Their stones he made them leese.
- 18 For such as they the country filld
With bastards in those dayes;
Which to prevent, these sparkes did geld
All that came by their wayes.
- 19 But Robbin Hood so gentle was,
And bore so brave a minde,
If any in distresse did passe,
To them he was so kinde
- 20 That he would give and lend to them,
To helpe them at their neede:
This made all poore men pray for him,
And wish he well might speede.
- 21 The widdow and the fatherlesse
He would send meanes unto,
And those whom famine did oppresse
Found him a friendly foe.
- 22 Nor would he doe a woman wrong,
But see her safe conveid;
He would protect with power strong
All those who crav'd his ayde.
- 23 The abbot of Saint Maries then,
Who him undid before,
Was riding with two hundred men,
And gold and silver store.
- 24 But Robbin Hood upon him set
With his couragious sparkes,
And all the coyne perforce did get,
Which was twelve thousand markes.
- 25 He bound the abbot to a tree,
And would not let him passe
Before that to his men and he
His lordship had sayd masse.
- 26 Which being done, upon his horse
He set him fast astride,
And with his face towards his ar—
He forced him to ride.
- 27 His men were faine to be his guide,
For he rode backward home;
The abbot, being thus villifide,
Did sorely chafe and fume.
- 28 Thus Robbin Hood did vindicate
His former wrongs receivd;
For 't was this covetous prelate
That him of land bereavd.
- 29 The abbot he rode to the king
With all the haste he could,
And to his Grace he every thing
Exactly did unfold.
- 30 And sayd if that no course were tane,
By force or stratagem,
To take this rebell and his traine,
No man should passe for them.
- 31 The king protested by and by Unto the abbot then
That Robbin Hood with speed should
dye,
With all his merry men.
- 32 But ere the king did any send,
He did another feate,
Which did his Grace much more offend;
The fact indeed was great.
- 33 For in a short time after that,
The kings receivers went
Towards London with the coyne they got,
For 's Highnesse northerne rent.
- 34 Bold Robbin Hood and Little John,
With the rest of their traine,
Not dreading law, set them upon,
And did their gold obtaine.

- 35 The king much moved at the same,
And the abbots talke also,
In this his anger did proclaime,
And sent word to and fro,
- 36 That whosoere, alive or dead,
Could bring him Robbin Hood,
Should have one thousand markes, well
payd
In gold and silver good.
- 37 This promise of the king did make Full many yeomen bold
Attempt stout Robbin Hood to take,
With all the force they could.
- 38 But still when any came to him,
Within the gay greene wood,
He entertainment gave to them,
With venison fat and good.
- 39 And shewd to them such martiall sport,
With his long bow and arrow,
That they of him did give report,
How that it was great sorow,
- 40 That such a worthy man as he Should thus be put to shift,
Being late a lord of high degree,
Of living quite bereft.
- 41 The king, to take him, more and more
Sent men of mickle might,
But he and his still beate them sore,
And conquered them in fight.
- 42 Or else, with love and courtesie,
To him he won their hearts:
Thus still he lived by robbery,
Throughout the northerne parts.
- 43 And all the country stood in dread
Of Robbin Hood and 's men;
For stouter lads nere livd by bread,
In those dayes nor since then.
- 44 The abbot which before I nam'd
Sought all the meanes he could
To have by force this rebell tane,
And his adherents bold.
- 45 Therefore he armd five hundred men,
With furniture compleate,
But the outlawes slew halfe of them,
And made the rest retreat.
- 46 The long bow and the arrow keene
They were so usd unto
That still they kept the forest greene,
In spight o th' proudest foe.
- 47 Twelve of the abbots men he tooke,
Who came him to have tane,
When all the rest the field forsooke;
These he did entertaine
- 48 With banquetting and merriment,
And, having usd them well,
He to their lord them safely sent,
And willd them him to tell
- 49 That if he would be pleasd at last
To beg of our good king
That he might pardon what was past,
And him to favour bring,
- 50 He would surrender backe agen
The money which before
Was taken by him and his men,
From him and many more.
- 51 Poore men might safely passe by him,
And some that way would chuse,
For well they knew that to helpe them
He evermore did use.
- 52 But where he knew a miser rich,
That did the poore oppresse,
To feele his coyne his hand did itch;
Hee 'de have it, more or lesse.
- 53 And sometimes, when the high-way
fayld,
Then he his courage rouses;
He and his men have oft assayld
Such rich men in their houses.
- 54 So that, through dread of Robbin then
And his adventurous crew,
The mizers kept great store of men,
Which else maintaynd but few.
- 55 King Richard, of that name the first,
Sirnamed Cueur de Lyon,
Went to defeate the Pagans curst,
Who kept the coasts of Syon.
- 56 The Bishop of Ely, chancelor,
Was left as vice-roy here,
Who like a potent emperor
Did proudly dominiere.

57 Our chronicles of him report
That commonly he rode
With a thousand horse from court to
court,
Where he would make abode.

58 He, riding downe towards the north,
With his aforesayd traine,
Robbin and his did issue forth,
Them all to entertaine.

59 And, with the gallant gray-goose wing,
They shewed to them such play,
That made their horses kickle and fling,
And downe their riders lay.

60 Full glad and faine the bishop was,
For all his thousand men,
To seeke what meanes he could to passe
From out of Robbins ken.

61 Two hundred of his men were kil'd,
And fourescore horses good;
Thirty, who did as captives yeeld,
Were carryed to the greene wood.

62 Which afterwards were ransomed,
For twenty markes a man;
The rest set spurres to horse, and fled
To th' town of Warrington.

63 The hishop, sore enraged then,
Did, in King Richards name,
Muster a power of northerne men,
These outlawes bold to tame.

64 But Robbin, with his courtesie,
So wonne the meaner sort,
That they were loath on him to try
What rigor did import.

65 So that bold Robbin and his traine
Did live unhurt of them,
Vntill King Richard came againe
From faire Jerusalem.

66 And then the talke of Robbin Hood
His royall eares did fill;
His Grace admir'd that ith' greene wood
He thus continued still.

67 So that the country farre and neare
Did give him great applause;
For none of them neede stand in feare,
But such as broke the lawes.

68 He wished well unto the king,
And prayed still for his health,
And never practised any thing
Against the common wealth.

69 Onely, because he was undone
By th' crewell clergie then,
All meanes that he could thinke upon
To vex such kinde of men

70 He enterprized, with hatefull spleene;
For which he was to blame,
For fault of some, to wreeke his teene
On all that by him came.

71 With wealth which he by robbery got
Eight almes-houses he built,
Thinking thereby to purge the blot
Of blood which he had spilt.

72 Such was their blinde devotion then,
Depending on their workes;
Which, if 'twere true, we Christian
men
Inferiour were to Turkes.

73 But, to speake true of Robbin Hood,
And wrong him not a iot,
He never would shed any mans blood
That him invaded not.

74 Nor would he iuinre husbandmen,
That toyld at cart and plough;
For well he knew, were 't not for them,
To live no man knew how.

75 The king in person, with some lords,
To Notingham did ride,
To try what strength and skill affords
To crush these outlawes pride.

76 And, as he once before had done,
He did againe proclaime,
That whosoere would take upon
To bring to Notingham,

77 Or any place within the land,
Rebellious Robbin Hood,
Should be preferd in place to stand
With those of noble blood.

78 When Robbin Hood heard of the same,
Within a little space,
Into the towne of Notingham
A letter to his Grace

79 He shot upon an arrow-head,
One evening cunningly;
Which was brought to the king, and read
Before his Maiestie.

80 The tennour of this letter was
That Robbin would submit,
And be true leigeman to his Grace,
In any thing that 's fit,

81 So that his Highnesse would forgive
Him and his merry men all;
If not, he must i th' greene wood live,
And take what chance did fall.

82 The king would faine have pardoned
him,
But that some lords did say,
This president will much condemne
Your Grace another day.

83 While that the king and iords did stay
Debating on this thing,
Some of these outlawes fled away
Unto the Scottish king.

84 For they supposd, if he were tane,
Or to the king did yeeld,
By th' commons all the rest on 's traine
Full quickly would be quelld.

85 Of more than full a hundred men
But forty tarried still,
Who were resolvd to sticke to him,
Let fortune worke her will.

86 If none had fled, all for his sake
Had got their pardon free;
The king to favour meant to take
His merry men and he.

87 But ere the pardon to him came,
This famous archer dy'd:
His death, and manner of the same,
I 'le presently describe.

88 For, being vext to thinke upon
His followers revolt,
In melancholly passion
He did recount their fault.

89 'Perfideous traytors!' sayd he then,
'In all your dangers past

Have I you guarded as my men
To leave me thus at last?'

90 This sad perplexity did cause
A fever, as some say,
Which him unto confusion drawes,
Though by a stranger way.

91 This deadly danger to prevent,
He hide him with all speede
Vnto a nunnery, with intent
For his healths sake to bleede.

92 A faithlesse fryer did pretend
In love to let him blood;
But he by falshood wrought the end
Of famous Robbin Hood.

93 The fryer, as some say, did this
To vindicate the wrong
Which to the clergie he and his
Had done by power strong.

94 Thus dyed he by trechery,
That could not dye by force;
Had he livd longer, certainly,
King Richard, in remorse,

95 Had unto favour him receavd;
He brave men elevated;
'Tis pittie he was of life bereavd
By one which he so hated.

96 A treacherous leech this fryer was,
To let him bleed to death;
And Robbin was, me thinkes, an asse,
To trust him with his breath.

97 His corpes the priores of the place,
The next day that he dy'd,
Caused to be buried, in mean case,
Close by the high-way side.

98 And over him she caused a stone
To be fixed on the ground;
An epitaph was set thereon,
Wherein his name was found.

99 The date o th' yeare, and day also,
Shee made to be set there,
That all who by the way did goe
Might see it plaine appeare

100 That such a man as Robbin Hood
Was buried in that place;

- And how he lived in the greene wood,
And robd there for a space.
- 101 It seemes that though the clergie he
Had put to mickle woe,
He should not quite forgotten be,
Although he was their foe.
- 102 This woman, though she did him hate,
Yet loved his memory;
And thought it wondrous pittie that
His fame should with him dye.
- 103 This epitaph, as records tell,
Within this hundred yeares
By many was discerned well,
But time all things outweares.
- 104 His followers, when he was dead,
Were some received to grace;
The rest to forraigne countries fled,
And left their native place.
- 105 Although his funerall was but meane,
This woman had in minde
Least his fame should be buried cleane
From those that came behind.
- 106 For certainly, before nor since,
No man ere understood,
Vnder the reigne of any prince,
Of one like Robbin Hood.
- 107 Full thirteene yeares, and something
more,
These outlawes lived thus,
Feared of the rich, loved of the poore,
A thing most marvelous.
- 108 A thing impossible to us
This story seemes to be;
None dares be now so venturous;
But times are chang'd, we see.
- 109 We that live in these latter dayes
Of civill government,
If neede be, have a hundred wayes
Such outlawes to prevent.
- 110 In those dayes men more barbarous
were,
And lived lesse in awe;
Now, God be thanked ! people feare
More to offend the law.
- 111 No roaring guns were then in use,
They dreamt of no such thing;
Our English men in flight did chuse
The gallant gray-goose wing.
- 112 In which activity these men,
Through practise, were so good,
That in those dayes non equald them,
Specially Robbin Hood.
- 113 So that, it seemes, keeping in caves,
In woods and forrests thicke,
Thei'd beate a multitude with staves,
Their arrowes did so pricke.
- 114 And none durst neare unto them come,
Unlesse in courtesie;
All such he bravely would send home,
With mirth and iollity.
- 115 Which courtesie won him such love,
As I before have told;
'T was the cheefe cause that he did prove
More prosperous than he could.
- 116 Let us be thankfull for these times
Of plenty, truth and peace,
And leave out great and horrid crimes,
Least they cause this to cease.
- 117 I know there's many fained tales
Of Robbin Hood and's crew;
But chronicles, which seldome fayles,
Reports this to be true.
- 118 Let none then thinke this a lye,
For, if 't were put to th' worst,
They may the truth of all discry
I th' raigne of Richard the first.
- 119 If any reader please to try,
As I direction show,
The truth of this brave history,
Hee'l finde it true I know.
- 120 And I shall thinke my labour well
Bestowed, to purpose good,
When't shall be sayd that I did tell
True tales of Robbin Hood.
- The Epitaph which the Prioress of the Monastery of Kirkes Lay in Yorke-shire set over Robbin Hood, which, as is before mentioned, was to bee reade within these hundreth

yeares, though in old broken English, much to the same sence and meaning.

Decembris quarto die, 1198: anno regni Richardii Primi 9.

Robert Earle of Huntington

Lies under this little stone.

No archer was like him so good:

His wildnesse named him Robbin Hood.

Full thirteene yeares, and something more,

These northerne parts he vexed sore.

Such out-lawes as he and his men

May England never know agen.

Some other superstitious words were in it, which I thought fit to leave out.

SIR HUGH, OR, THE JEW'S DAUGHTER

The twenty-one versions of this ballad (so far as they are not mere fragments) agree in the outline of the story and in many of the details. In N, a singular copy obtained in New York, the boy's name is corrupted to Harry Hughes, and the Jew's daughter becomes the Duke's daughter.

The story of Hugh of Lincoln is told in the Annals of Waverley, under the year 1255, by a contemporary writer, to this effect. A boy in Lincoln, named Hugh, was crucified by the Jews in contempt of Christ with various preliminary tortures. To conceal the act from Christians, the body, when taken from the cross, was thrown into a running stream; but the water would not endure the wrong done its maker, and immediately ejected it upon dry land. The body was then buried in the earth, but was found above ground the next day. The guilty parties were now very much frightened and quite at their wits' end; as a last resort they threw the corpse into a well. Thereupon the whole place was filled with so brilliant a light and so sweet an odor that it was clear to everybody that there must be something holy and prodigious in the well. The body was seen floating on the water, and, upon its being drawn up, the hands and feet were found to be pierced, the head had, as it were, a crown of bloody points, and there were various other wounds: from all which it was plain that this was the work of the Jews. A blind woman, touching the bier on which the blessed martyr's corpse was carrying to the church, received her sight, and many other miracles followed. Eighteen Jews, convicted of the crime, and confessing it with their own mouth, were hanged. Matthew Paris, also writing contemporaneously, supplies additional circumstances, one of which, the mother's finding of the child, is prominent in the ballad. The Annals of Burton give a long report of this case, which is perhaps contemporary, though the manuscript is mostly of the next century.

An Anglo-French ballad, which also appears to be contemporary with the event, agrees in many particulars with the account given in the Annals of Burton and adds new details.

The English ballads, the oldest of which were recovered about the middle of the eighteenth century, must, in the course of five hundred years of tradition, have departed considerably from the early form. The occurrence of Our Lady's draw-well, in A, is due to a mixing, to this extent, of the story of Hugh with that of the young devotee of the Virgin who is celebrated in Chaucer's Prioresses Tale.

Murders like that of Hugh of Lincoln have been imputed to the Jews for at least seven hundred and fifty years, and the charge, which there is reason to suppose may still from time to time be renewed, has brought upon the accused every calamity that the hand of man can inflict, pillage, confiscation, banishment, torture, and death, and this in huge proportions. The process of these murders has often been described as a parody of the crucifixion of Jesus. The motive most commonly alleged, in addition to the contempt for Christianity, has been the obtaining of blood for use in the Paschal rites, — a most unhappily devised slander, in stark contradiction with Jewish precept and practice. That no Christian child was ever killed by a Jew, that there never even was so much truth as that (setting aside the object) in a single case of these particular oriminations, is what no Christian or Jew would undertake to assert; but of these charges in the mass it may safely be said, as it has been said, that they are as credible as the miracles which, in a great number of cases, are asserted to have been worked by the reliques of the young saints, and as well substantiated as the absurd sacrilege of stabbing, baking, or boiling the Host, or the enormity of poisoning springs, with which the Jews have equally been taxed. And these pretended child-murders, with their horrible consequences, are only a part of a persecution which, with all moderation, may be rubricated as the most disgraceful chapter in the history of the human race.

Several cases of such murders in England are reported from the twelfth and thirteenth centuries. The oldest is that of William of Norwich, 1144, given in the Anglo-Saxon Chronicle under 1137 (ed. Plummer, i, 265). See The Life and Miracles of Saint William, edited by Jessopp and James, 1897.

'Hugh of Lincoln,' Jamieson's Popular Ballads, i, 151, as taken down by the editor from Mrs Brown's recitation.

- 1 FOUR and twenty bonny boys
Were playing at the ba,
And by it came him sweet Sir Hugh,
And he playd oer them a'.
- 2 He kicked the ba with his right foot,
And catchd it wi his knee,
And throuch-and-thro the Jew's window
He gard the bonny ba flee.
- 3 He's doen him to the Jew's castell,
And walkd it round about;
And there he saw the Jew's daughter,
At the window looking out.
- 4 'Throw down the ba, ye Jew's daughter,
Throw down the ba to me !'
'Never a bit,' says the Jew's daughter,
'Till up to me come ye.'
- 5 'How will I come up ? How can I come up ?
How can I come to thee ?
For as ye did to my auld father.
The same ye 'll do to me.'
- 6 She's gane till her father's garden,
And pu'd an apple red and green;
'T was a' to wyle him sweet Sir Hugh,
And to entice him in.
- 7 She's led him in through ae dark
door,
And sae has she thro nine;
She's laid him on a dressing-table,
And stickit him like a swine.
- 8 And first came out the thick, thick
blood,
And syne came out the thin,
And syne came out the bonny heart's
blood;
There was nae mair within.

- 9 She's rowd him in a cake o lead,
Bade him lie still and sleep;
She's thrown him in Our Lady's draw-
well,
Was fifty fathom deep.
- 10 When bells were rung, and mass was
sung,
And a' the bairns came hame,
When every lady gat hame her son,
The Lady Maisry gat nane.
- 11 She's taen her mantle her about,
Her coffer by the hand,
And she's gane out to seek her son,
And wanderd oer the land.
- 12 She's doen her to the Jew's castell,
Where a' were fast asleep:
'Gin ye be there, my sweet Sir Hugh,
I pray you to me speak.'
- 13 She's doen her to the Jew's garden,
Thought he had been gathering fruit:
'Gin ye be there, my sweet Sir Hugh,
I pray you to me speak.'
- 14 She heard Our Lady's deep draw-well,
Was fifty fathom deep:
'Whareer ye be, my sweet Sir Hugh,
I pray you to me speak.'
- 15 'Gae hame, gae hame, my mither
dear,
Prepare my winding sheet,
And at the back o merry Lincoln
The morn I will you meet.'
- 16 Now Lady Maisry is gane hame,
Made him a winding sheet,
And at the back o merry Lincoln
The dead corpse did her meet.
- 17 And a' the bells o merry Lincoln
Without men's hands were rung,
And a' the books o merry Lincoln
Were read without man's tongue,
And neer was such a burial
Sin Adam's days begun.

Sae dois it doune the Pa;
Sae dois the lads of Mirry-land toun,
Whan they play at the ba.
- 2 Than out and cam the Jewis dochter,
Said, Will ye cum in and dine?
'I winnae cum in, I cannae cum in,
Without my play-feres nine.'
- 3 Scho powd an apple reid and white,
To intice the yong thing in:
Scho powd an apple white and reid,
And that the sweit bairne did win.
- 4 And scho has taine out a little pen-

'Little Harry Hughes and the Duke's Daughter,' Newell's Games and Songs of American Children, 1883, p. 75, as sung by a little girl in New York: derived, through her mother, from a grandmother born in Ireland.

1 It was on a May, on a midsummer's
day,
When it rained, it did rain small;
And little Harry Hughes and his play-fellows all
Went out to play the ball.

2 He knocked it up, and he knocked it
down,
He knocked it oer and oer;
The very first kick little Harry gave the ball,
He broke the duke's windows all.

3 She came down, the youngest duke's
daughter,
She was dressed in green:
'Come back, come back, my pretty little boy,
And play the ball again.'

4 'I wont come back, and I daren't come
back,
Without my playfellows all;
And if my mother she should come in,
She'd make it the bloody ball.'

5 She took an apple out of her pocket,
And rolled it along the plain;
Little Harry Hughes picked up the apple,
And sorely rued the day.

6 She takes him by the lily-white hand,
And leads him from hall to hall,
Until she came to a little dark room,
That no one could hear him call.

7 She sat herself on a golden chair,
Him on another close by,
And there's where she pulled out her little penknife,
That was both sharp and fine.

8 Little Harry Hughes had to pray for his soul,
For his days were at an end;

She stuck her penknife in little Harry's
heart,
And first the blood came very thick,
and then came very thin.

- 9 She rolled him in a quire of tin,
That was in so many a fold;
She rolled him from that to a little
draw-well,
That was fifty fathoms deep.
- 10 'Lie there, lie there, little Harry,' she cried,
'And God forbid you to swim,
If you be a disgrace to me,
Or to any of my friends.'
- 11 The day passed by, and the night came
on,
'And every scholar was home,
And every mother had her own child,
But poor Harry's mother had none.
- 12 She walked up and down the street,
With a little sally rod in her hand,
And God directed her to the little draw-
well,
That was fifty fathoms deep.
- 13 'If you be there, little Harry,' she
said,
'And God forbid you to be,
Speak one word to your own dear
mother,
That is looking all over for thee.'
- 14 'This I am, dear mother,' he cried,
'And lying in great pain,
With a little penknife lying close to my
heart,
And the duke's daughter she has me
slain.
- 15 'Give my blessing to my schoolfellows,
all,
And tell them to be at the church,
And make my grave both large and
deep,
And my coffin of hazel and green birch.
- 16 'Put my Bible at my head,
My busker (?) at my feet,
My little prayer-book at my right side,
And sound will be my sleep.'

QUEEN ELEANOR'S CONFES- SION

This ballad seems first to have got into print in the latter part of the seventeenth century, but was no doubt circulating orally some time before that, for it is in the truly popular tone. The fact that two friars hear the confession would militate against a much earlier date. Eleanor of Aquitaine was married to Henry II of England in 1152, a few weeks after her divorce from Louis VII of France, she being then about thirty and Henry nineteen years of age. "It is needless to observe," says Percy, "that the following ballad is altogether fabulous; whatever gallantries Eleanor encouraged in the time of her first husband, none are imputed to her in that of her second." In Peele's play of Edward I (1593) the story is absurdly transferred to Edward Longshanks and that model of women and wives, Eleanor of Castile. There are several sets of tales in which a husband takes a shrift-father's place and hears his wife's confession. Such are the fabliau "Du Chevalier qui fist sa femme confesse" (Montaignon, No. 16); Les Cent Nouvelles Nouvelles, 1432, No. 78; Boccaccio, vii, 5.

- 1 QUEEN ELENOR was a sick woman,
And afraid that she should dye;
Then she sent for two fryars of France,
For to speak with them speedily.
- 2 The King calld down his nobles all,
By one, by two, and by three,
And sent away for Earl Martial,
For to speak with him speedily.
- 3 When that he came before the King,
He fell on his bended knee;
'A boon, a boon! our gracious king,
That you sent so hastily.'

- 4 'I 'll pawn my living and my lands,
My septer and my crown,
That whatever Queen Elenor says,
I will not write it down.
- 5 'Do you put on one fryar's coat,
And I 'll put on another,
And we will to Queen Elenor go,
One fryar like another.'
- 6 Thus both attired then they go;
When they came to Whitehall,
The bells they did ring, and the quiris-
ters sing,
And the torches did light them all.
- 7 When that they came before the Queen,
They fell on their bended knee:
'A boon, a boon! our gracious queen,
That you sent so hastily.'
- 8 'Are you two fryars of France?' she
said,
'Which I suppose you be;
But if you are two English fryars,
Then hanged shall you be.'
- 9 'We are two fryars of France,' they
said,
'As you suppose we be;
We have not been at any mass
Since we came from the sea.'
- 10 'The first vile thing that ere I did
I will to you unfold;
Earl Martial had my maidenhead,
Underneath this cloath of gold.'
- 11 'That is a vile sin,' then said the king,
'God may forgive it thee!'
'Amen! Amen!' quoth Earl Martial,
With a heavy heart then spoke he.
- 12 'The next vile thing that ere I did
To you I 'll not deny;
I made a box of poyson strong,
To poyson King Henry.'
- 13 'That is a vile sin,' then said the King,
'God may forgive it thee!'
'Amen! Amen!' quoth Earl Martial,
'And I wish it so may be.'
- 14 'The next vile thing that ere I did
To you I will discover;

I poysoned Fair Rosamond,
All in fair Woodstock bower.'

- 15 'That is a vile sin,' then said the King,
'God may forgive it thee!'
'Amen! Amen!' quoth Earl Martial,
'And I wish it so may be.'
- 16 'Do you see yonders little boy,
A tossing of that ball?
That is Earl Martial['s] eldest son,
And I love him the best of all.
- 17 'Do you see yonders little boy,
A catching of the ball?
That is King Henry's son,' she said,
'And I love him the worst of all.
- 18 'His head is like unto a bull,
His nose is like a boar;'
'No matter for that,' King Henry said,
'I love him the better therefore.'
- 19 The King pulld of his fryar's coat,
And appeard all in red;
She shriekd and she cry'd, she wrong
her hands,
And said she was betrayd.
- 20 The King lookd over his left shoulder,
And a grim look looked he,
And said, Earl Martial, but for my oath,
Then hanged shouldst thou be.

'We menement,' sa[i]d King Henrie,
Bat a heavë, heavë heart had he.

14 'O see ye na yon bony boys,
As they play att the baa?

An see ye na Earl Merchal's son?
I lee him best of all.

15 'But see ye na King Henry's son?
He is headed leak a bull an baked leak
a bore,
I leak him warst of a':'
'An, by my soth,' says him King Henry,
'I leak him best of the twa.'

16 The king he turned him roun,
Pat on the coat of goud,
The Quin turned her roun,
The king to behald.

17
Gin I had na sworn by the croun an the septer roun,
Eearl Marchell sud ben gared dee.'

GUDE WALLACE

Blind Harry's Wallace (of about 1460, earlier than 1488) is clearly the source of this ballad. A-F are derived from vv. 1080-1119 of the Fifth Book. Here Wallace, on his way to the hostelry with a comrade, met a woman, who counselled them to pass by, if Scots, for Southrons were there, drinking and talking of Wallace; twenty are there, making great din, but no man of fence. "Wallace went in and bad Benedicite." The Captain said, "Thou art a Scot, the devil thy nation quell." Wallace drew and ran the captain through; "fifteen he straik and fifteen has he slayn;" his comrade killed the other five. G prefixes to the story of the other versions another adventure of Wallace, taken from the Fourth Book of Blind Harry, vv. 704-87. The first half of G is plainly a late piece of work, very possibly of the nineteenth century, much later than the other, which itself need not be very old. But the portions of Blind Harry's poem out of which these ballads were made were perhaps themselves composed from older ballads, and the restitution of the lyrical form may have given us something not altogether unlike what was sung in the fifteenth, or even the fourteenth century.

'On an honourable Achievement of Sir William Wallace, near Falkirk,' a chap-book of Four New Songs and a Prophecy, 1745?

The Scots Musical Museum, 1853, D. Laing's additions, iv, 458*; Maidment, Scottish Ballads and Songs, 1859, p. 83.

- 1 'HAD we a king,' said Wallace then,
 'That our kind Scots might live by their own!
But betwixt me and the English blood
I think there is an ill seed sown.'
- 2 Wallace him over a river lap,
 He lookd low down to a linn;
He was war of a gay lady
 Was even at the well washing.
- 3 'Well mot ye fare, fair madam,' he
 said,
 'And ay well mot ye fare and see!
Have ye any tidings me to tell,
 I pray you'll show them unto me.'
- 4 'I have no tidings you to tell,
 Nor yet no tidings you to ken;
But into that hostler's house
 There's fifteen of your Englishmen.
- 5 'And they are seeking Wallace there,
 For they've ordained him to be slain:'
'O God forbid!' said Wallace then,
 'For he's oer good a kind Scotsman.
- 6 'But had I money me upon,
 And evn this day, as I have none,
Then would I to that hostler's house,
 And evn as fast as I could gang.'
- 7 She put her hand in her pocket,
 She told him twenty shillings oer her
 knee;
Then he took off both hat and hood,
 And thankd the lady most reverently.
- 8 'If eer I come this way again,
 Well paid [your] money it shall be;
Then he took off both hat and hood,
 And he thankd the lady most reverently.
- 9 He leand him twofold oer a staff,
 So did he threefold oer a tree,
And he's away to the hostler's house,
 Even as fast as he might dree.
- 10 When he came to the hostler's house,
 He said, Good-ben be here! quoth he:

An English captain, being deep load,
He asked him right cankerdly,

- 11 Where was you born, thou crooked
 carle,
 And in what place, and what country?
'Tis I was born in fair Scotland,
 A crooked carle although I be.'
- 12 The English captain swore by th' rood,
 'We are Scotsmen as well as thee,
And we are seeking Wallace; then
 To have him merry we should be.'
- 13 'The man,' said Wallace, 'ye're looking for,
I seed him within these days three;
And he has slain an English captain,
 And ay the fearder the rest may be.'
- 14 'I'd give twenty shillings,' said the captain,
 'To such a crooked carle as thee,
If you would take me to the place
 Where that I might proud Wallace
 see.'
- 15 'Hold out your hand,' said Wallace
 then,
 'And show your money and be free,
For tho you'd bid an hundred pound,
 I never bade a better bode' [, said
 he].
- 16 He struck the captain oer the chafts,
 Till that he never chewed more;
He stickd the rest about the board,
 And left them all a sprawling there.
- 17 'Rise up, goodwife,' said Wallace then,
 'And give me something for to eat;
For it's near two days to an end
 Since I tasted one bit of meat.'
- 18 His board was scarce well covered,
 Nor yet his dine well scanty dight,
Till fifteen other Englishmen
 Down all about the door did light.
- 19 'Come out, come out,' said they, 'Wallace!' then,
 'For the day is come that ye must die;'
And they thought so little of his might,
 But ay the fearder they might be.

20 The wife ran but, the gudeman ran ben,
It put them all into a fever;
Then five he sticked where they stood,
And five he trampled in the gutter.

21 And five he chased to yon green wood,
He hanged them all out-oor a grain;
And gainst the morn at twelve o'clock,
He dined with his kind Scottish men.

'Sir William Wallace,' The Thistle of Scotland, Alexander Laing, p. 100, from the repetition of an old gentlewoman in Aberdeenshire. Also Motherwell's MS., p. 487, communicated by Peter Buchan of Peterhead, "who had it from an old woman in that neighborhood."

1 Woud ye hear of William Wallace,
An sek him as he goes,
Into the lan of Lanark,
Amang his mortel faes ?

2 There was fyften English sogers
Unto his ladie cam,
Said, Gie us William Wallace,
That we may have him slain.

3 Woud ye gie William Wallace,
That we may have him slain,
And ye's be wedded to a lord,
The best in Christendeem.

4 'This verra nicht at seven,
Brave Wallace will come in,
And he'll come to my chamber-door,
Without or dread or din.'

5 The fyften English sogers
Around the house did wait,
And four brave southron foragers
Stood hie upon the gait.

6 That verra nicht at seven
Brave Wallace he came in,
And he came to his ladie's bouir,
Withouten dread or din.

7 When she beheld him Wallace,
She star'd him in the face;
'Ohon, alas !' said that ladie,
'This is a woful case.'

8 'For I this nicht have sold you,
This nicht you must be taen,

And I'm to be wedded to a lord,
The best in Christendeem.'

9 'Do you repent,' said Wallace,
'The ill you've dane to me ?'
Ay, that I do,' said that ladie,
'And will do till I die.'

10 'Ay, that I do,' said that ladie,
'And will do ever still,
And for the ill I've dane to you,
Let me burn upon a hill.'

11 'Now God forfend,' says brave Wallace,
'I shoud be so unkind;
Whatever I am to Scotland's faes,
I'm aye a woman's friend.'

12 'Will ye gie me your gown, your gown,
Your gown but and your kirtle,
Your petticoat of bonny brown,
And belt about my middle ?

13 'I'll take a pitcher in ilka hand,
And do me to the well;
They'll think I'm one of your maidens,
Or think it is yoursell.'

14 She has gien him her gown, her gown,
Her petticoat and kirtle,
Her broadest belt, wi silver clasp,
To bind about his middle.

15 He's taen a pitcher in ilka hand,
And dane him to the well;
They thought him one of her maidens,
'They kend it was nae hersell.'

16 Said one of the southron foragers,
See ye yon lusty dame ?
I woud nae gie muckle to thee, neebor,
To bring her back agen.

17 Then all the southrons followd him,
And sure they were but four;
But he has drawn his trusty brand,
And slew them pair by pair.

18 He threw the pitchers frae his hands,
And to the hills fled he,
Until he cam to a fair may,
Was washin on yon lea.

19 'What news, what news, ye weel-far'd
may ?
What news hae ye to gie ?'

- 'Ill news, ill news,' the fair may said,
'Ill news I hae to thee.
- 20 'There is fyften English sogers
Into that thatched inn,
Seeking Sir William Wallace;
I fear that he is slain.'
- 21 'Have ye any money in your pocket?
Pray lend it unto me,
And when I come this way again,
Repaid ye weel shall be.'
- 22 Sbe['s] put her hand in her pocket,
And taen out shillings three;
He turnd him right and round about,
And thankd the weel-far'd may.
- 23 He had not gone a long rig length,
A rig length and a span,
Until he met a bold beggar,
As sturdy as cond gang.
- 24 'What news, what news, ye bold beggar?
What news hae ye to gie?'
'O heavy news,' the beggar said,
'I hae to tell to thee.
- 25 'There is fyften English sogers.
I heard them in yon inn,
Vowing to kill him Wallace;
I fear the chief is slain.'
- 26 'Will ye change apparell wi me, auld
man?
Change your apparell for mine?
And when I come this way again,
Ye'll be my ain poor man.'
- 27 When he got on the beggar's coat,
The pike-staff in his hand,
He's dane him down to yon tavern,
Where they were drinking wine.
- 28 'What news, what news, ye staff-beggar?
What news hae ye to gie?'
'I hae nae news, I heard nae news,
As few I'll hae frae thee.'
- 29 'I think your coat is ragged, auld
man;
But woud you wages win,
And tell where William Wallace is,
We'll lay gold in your hand.'

- 30 'Tell down, tell down your good red
gold,
Upon the table-head,
And ye sall William Wallace see,
Wi the down-come of Robin Hood.'
- 31 They had nae tauld the money down,
And laid it on his knee,
When candles, lamps, and candlesticks,
He on the floor gard flee.
- 32 And he has drawn his trusty brand,
And slew them one by one,
Then sat down at the table-head,
And called for some wine.
- 33 The goodwife she ran but, ran but,
The goodman he ran ben,
The verra bairns about the fire
Were a' like to gang brain.
- 34 'Now if there be a Scotsman here,
He'll come and drink wi me;
But if there be an English loun,
It is his time to flee.'
- 35 The goodman was an Englishman,
And to the hills he ran;
The goodwife was a Scots woman,
And she came to his hand.

HUGH SPENCER'S FEATS IN FRANCE

Of the many Hugh Spencers if we select the younger of the favorites of Edward II, his exploits, had they any foundation in reality, would necessarily fall between 1322, when Charles IV came to the French throne, and 1326, when the Spencers, father and son, ended their career. The French king says in B 8 that Spenser had sunk his ships and slain his men. Hugh Spenser the younger was engaged in piracy in 1321. The quarrel between Edward II and Charles IV, touching the English possessions in France, was temporarily arranged in 1325, but not through the mediation of the younger Spenser, who never was sent on an embassy to France. Another Sir Hugh Spenser was a commander in the Earl of Arundel's fleet in the operations against the French in Charles VI's time, 1387, and was taken prisoner in consequence of his ship grounding.

This ballad is after the fashion of Russian bylinas, and especially the bylina of Dobrynja and Vasilij Kazimirovič. In this very fine ballad, Vladimir is in arrears with his tribute to a Saracen king, and appoints Vasilij his envoy, to make payment. Vasilij asks that he may have Dobrynja go with him, and Dobrynja asks for Ivanuška's company. Dobrynja beats the king at chess and at the bow (which corresponds to the justing in the English ballad); then follows a great fight, the result of which is that the Saracen king is fain to pay tribute himself. See Wollner, Volksepik der Grossrussen, pp. 123-5.

'Hugh Spencer,' Percy MS., p. 281; Hales and Furnivall, II, 290.

- 1 THE court is kept att leue London,
And euermore shall be itt;
The King sent for a bold ambassador,
And Sir Hugh Spencer that he light.
- 2 'Come hither, Spencer,' saith our kinge,
'And come thou hither vnto mee;
I must make thee an embassadour Betweene the king of Ffrance and
mee.
- 3 'Thou must comend me to the king of
Ffrance,
And tell him thus and now ffrom mee,
I wold know whether there shold be peace in his land,
Or open warr kept still must bee.
- 4 'Thou'st haue thy shipp at thy co-
mande,
Thou'st neither want for gold nor
ffee;
Thou'st haue a hundred armed men,
All att thy bidding ffor to bee.'
- 5 The wind itt serued, and they sayled,
And towards Ffrance thus they be
gone;
The wind did bring them safe to shore,
And safelye landed euerye one.
- 6 The Ffrenchman lay on the castle-wall,
The English souldiers to behold:
'You are welcome, traitors, out of Eng-
land;
The heads of you are bought and sold.'
- 7 With that spake proud Spencer:
My leege, soe itt may not bee;
I am sent an ambassador
Ffrom our English king to yee.
- 8 The king of England greetes you well,
And hath sent this word by mee;
He wold know whether there shold be peace in your land,
Or open warres kept still must bee.
- 9 'Comend me to the English kinge,
And tell this now ffrom mee;
There shall neuer peace be kept in my
land
While open warres kept there may
bee.'
- 10 With that came downe the queene of
Ffrance,
And an angry woman then was shee;
Saies, Itt had beene as ffit now for a
king
To be in his chamber with his ladye,
Then to be pleading with traitors out of England,
Kneeling low vppon their knee.
- 11 But then bespake him prond Spencer,
For noe man else durst speake but
hee:
You haue not wiped your mouth, madam,
Since I heard you tell a lye.
- 12 'O hold thy tounge, Spencer!' shee said,
'I doe not come to plead with thee;
Darest thou ryde a course of warr
With a knight that I shall put to
thee?'
- 13 'But euer alacke!' then Spencer sayd,
'I thinke I haue deserned Gods
curse;
Ffor I haue not any armour heere,
Nor yett I haue noe iusting-horsse.'
- 14 'Thy shaukes,' quoth shee, 'beneath
the knee
Are verry small aboue the shinne
Ffor to doe any such honourablle deeds
As the Englishmen say thou has done.'
- 15 'Thy shankes beene small aboue thy
shoone,
And soe tle beene aboue thy knee;

- Thou art to slender euery way
Any good iuster ffor to bee.'
- 16 'But euer alacke,' said Spencer then,
'For one steed of the English coun-
trye!'
With that bespake and one Ffrench
knight,
This day thou 'st haue the choyce of
three.
- 17 The first steed he ffeiched out,
I-wis he was milke-white;
The ffirst ffoot Spencer in stirropp sett,
His backe did from his belly tyte.
- 18 The second steed that he ffeicht out,
I-wis that hee was verry browne;
The second ffoot Spencer in stirropp
sett,
That horsse and man and all ffell
downe.
- 19 The third steed that hee ffeichted out,
I-wis that he was verry blacke;
The third ffoote Spencer into the stir-ropp sett,
He leaped on to the geldings backe.
- 20 'But euer alacke,' said Spencer then,
'For one good steed of the English
countrye!
Goe ffeitch me hither my old hacneye,
That I brought with me hither beyond the sea.'
- 21 But when his hackney there was
brought,
Spencer a merry man there was hee;
Saies, With the grace of God and St
George of England,
The ffeild this day shall goe with
mee.
- 22 'I haue not fforgotten,' Spencer sayd,
'Since there was ffeild foughten att
Walsingam,
When the horsse did heare the trum-
petts sound,
He did beare ore both horsse and
man.'
- 23 The day was sett, and togetther they
mett,
With great mirth and melodye,
- With minstrells playing, and trumpetts
soundinge,
With drumes striking loud and hye.
- 24 The ffirst race that Spencer run,
I-wis hee run itt wonderous sore;
He [hitt] the knight vpon his brest,
But his speare itt burst, and wold touch noe more.
- 25 'But euer alacke,' said Spencer then,
'For one staffe of the English coun-
trye!
Without you 'le bind me three together,' Quoth hee, 'they 'le be to weake ffor
mee.'
- 26 With that bespake him the Ffrench
knight,
Sayes, Bind him together the whole
thirtye,
For I haue more strenght in my to
hands
Then is in all Spencers bodye.
- 27 'But proue att parting,' Spencer sayes,
'Ffrench knight, here I tell itt thee;
For I will lay thee fve to four
The bigger man I proue to bee.'
- 28 But the day was sett, and together they
mett,
With great mirth and melodye,
With minstrells playing, and trumpetts
soundinge,
With drummes strikeing loud and
hye.
- 29 The second race that Spencer run,
I-wis hee ridd itt in much pride,
And he hitt the knight vpon the brest,
And draue him ore his horsse beside.
- 30 But he run thorow the Ffrench campe;
Such a race was neuer run beffore;
He killed of King Charles his men
Att hand of thirteen or fourteen score.
- 31 But he came backe againe to the K[ing],
And kneeled him downe vpon his
knee;
Saies, A knight I haue slaine, and a steed I haue woone,
The best that is in this countrye.

32 'But nay, by my faith,' then said the
King,
'Spencer, soe itt shall not bee;
I 'le haue that traitors head of thine,
To enter plea att my iollye.'

33 But Spencer looket him once about,
He had true bretheren left but four;
He killed ther of the Kings gard
About twelve or thirteen score.

34 'But hold thy hands,' the King doth
say,
'Spencer, now I doe pray thee;
And I will goe into litle England,
Vnto that cruell kinge with thee.'

35 'Nay, by my ffaith,' Spencer sayd,
'My leege, for soe itt shall not bee;
For an you sett ffoot on English ground,
You shall be hanged vpon a tree.'

36 'Why then, comend [me] to that Eng-lishe kinge,
And tell him thus now ffrom mee,
That there shall neuer be open warres kept in my land
Whilest peace kept that there may bee.'

B

'Hugh Spencer,' Percy Papers: communicated by the Duchess Dowager of Portland.

1 OUR king lay at Westminster,
as oft times he had done,
And he sent for Hugh Spencer,
to come to him anon.

2 Then in came Hugh Spencer,
low kneeling on his knee:
'What 's the matter, my liege,
you sent so speedily for me?'

3 'Why you must go ambassadour to France now, to see Whether peace shall be taken,
aye, or open wars must be.'

4 'Who shall go with me?'
says Hugh Spencer, he:
'That shall Hugh Willoughby
and John of Atherly.'
'O then,' says Hugh Spencer,
'we 'll be a merry company.'

5 When they came before the French
king,
they kneeled low on the knee:
'O rise up, and stand up,
whose men soer you be.'

6 The first that made answer
Was Hugh Spencer, he:
'We are English ambassadours,
come hither to see
Whether peace shall be taken,
aye, or open wars must be.'

7 Then spoke the French king,
and he spoke courteously:
The last time peace was broken,
it was neer along of me.

8 For you sunk my ships, slew my
men,
and thus did ye;
And the last time peace was broken,
it was neer along of me.

9 Then in came Queen Maude,
and full as ill was she:
'A chamber of presence
is better for thee,
Then amongst English shepherds,
low bending on the knee.'

10 The first that made answer
was Hugh Spencer, he:
'We are no English shepherds,
Queen Maude, I tell thee,
But we're knights, and knights fellows,
the worst man in our company.'

11 O then spoke Queen Maude,
and full as ill was she:
Thou shouldst be Hugh Spencer,
thou talkst so boldly.

12 And if thou beest Hugh Spencer,
as well thou seemst to be,
I've oft heard of thy justling,
and some of it would fain see.

13 I have a steed in my stable
that thou canst not ride;
I have a spear in my keeping that thou canst not guide;
And I have a knight in my realm that thou darest not abide.

14 Then Spencer askd Willoughby
and John of Atherly
Whether he should take this justling in
hand,
aye, or let it be.

15 O then spoke Hugh Willoughby
and John of Atherly:
If you won't take it [in] hand,
why turn it unto we.

16 'It shall neer be said in England,'
says Hugh Spencer, he,
'That I refused a good justling
and turned it to ye.

17 'Alas,' says Hugh Spencer,
'full sore may I moan,
I have nought here but an ambler,
my good steed's at home.'

18 Then spoke a French knight,
and he spoke courteously:
I have thirty steeds in my stables,
the best of them take to thee.

19 'Gramercy,' says Spencer,
'aye, and gramercy;
If eer thou comest to England,
well rewarded shalt thou be.'

20 The first steed they brought him,
he was a milk-white:
'Take that away,' says Spencer,
'for I do not him like.'

21 The next steed they brought him,
he was a good dun:
'Take that away,' says Spencer,
'for he's not for my turn.'

22 The next steed they brought him,
he was a dapple-grey:
'Take that away,' says Spencer,
'for he is not used to the way.'

23 The next steed they brought him,
he was a coal-black;
His eyes burnt in his head,
as if fire were in flax;
'Come saddle me that horse,' says
Spencer,
'for I'll have none but that.'

24 When that horse was saddled, and Spencer got on,
With his spear at his foot,
O he was portly man!

25 'Now I am on that steede-back that I could not ride,
That spear in my keeping
that I could not guide,
Come shew me that French knight that I dare not abide.'

26 'It is a sign by thy sharp shin,
ay, and thy cropped knee,
That you are no fit match
to justle with me:'
'Why it makes no matter,' says Spencer,
'you hear no brags of me.'

27 The first time they rode together,
Now Sir Hugh and he,
He turnd him in his saddle
like an apple on a tree.

28 The next time they rode together,
now Sir Hugh and he,
He lit upon his breast-plate,
and he broke his spear in three.

29 'A spear now,' says Spencer,
'a spear now get me:'
'Thou shalt have one,' says Willoughby,
'if in France one there be.'

30 'O tye two together,
and the stronger they'll be,
For the French is the better,
and the better shall be:'
'Why it makes no matter,' says Spencer,
'you hear no brags of me.'

31 The next time they rode together,
now Sir Hugh and he,
He threw him fifteen foot from his saddle,
and he broke his back in three:
'Now I have slain thy justler,
Queen Maude, I tell thee.'

32 O then spoke Queen Maude,
and full as ill was she:
If thou'st slain my justler,
by the Kings laws thou'st dye.

- 33 'It shall neer be said in England,'
says Hugh Spencer, he;
'It shall neer be said in England,'
says Hugh Willoughby;
- 34 'It shall neer be said in England,'
says John of Atherly,
'That a queen of another nation
eer had her will of we.'
- 35 They laid their heads together,
and their backs to the wall;
There were four score of the Queen's guards,
and they slew them all.
- 36 Then spoke the French king,
and he spoke courteously:
O hold thy hand, Spencer,
I dearly pray thee.
- 37 Thou art sharp as thy spear,
and as fierce as thy steed,
And the stour of thy lilly-white hand makes my heart bleed.
- 38 Thou hadst twenty ships hither,
thou 'st have twenty away;
Then hold thy hand, Spencer,
I dearly thee pray.

DURHAM FIELD

While Edward Third was absent in France, and for the time engaged with the siege of Calais, David Bruce, the young king of Scotland, at the instance of Philip of Valois, but also because he "yearned to see fighting," invaded England with a large army. Having taken by storm the Border castle of Liddel, he was advised by William of Douglas to turn back, which, it was represented by Douglas, he could do with credit after this success. Other lords said that Douglas had filled his bags, but theirs were toom, and that the way lay open to London, for there were no men left in England but souters, skinners, and traders. The Scots moved on to Durham, and encamped in a park not far from the town, in a bad position. In the mean while a powerful force had been collected by the northern nobility and the English churchmen, without the knowledge of the Scots. William of Douglas, going out to forage, rode straight to the ground where his foes lay, and in the attempt to retreat lost five hundred of his men. King David drew up his army in three divisions: one under his own command, another under the Earl of Murray and William Douglas, the third under the Steward of Scotland and the Earl of March. The operations of the Scots were impeded by the ditches and fences that traversed the ground on which they stood, and their situation made them almost helpless, a mark for the ten thousand archers of the English army. Murray's men were completely routed by a charge of cavalry, and their leader killed. The English then fell upon the King's division, which, after a desperate fight, was "vanquished utterly." David, who had received two wounds from arrows, was taken prisoner by John Copland, "by force, not yolden," after knocking out two of the Englishman's teeth with a knife. Wynthoun's Cronykil, ed. Laing, II, 470 ff.; Scotichronicon, ed. Goodall, II, 339 ff. The battle was fought on the 17th of October, 1346.

- 1 LORDINGES, listen, and hold you still;
Hearken to me a litle;
I shall you tell of the fairest battell
That euer in England beffell.
- 2 For as it befell in Edward the Thirds
dayes,
In England, where he ware the
crowne,
Then all the cheefe chialry of Eng-
land
They busked and made them bowne.
- 3 They chosen all the best archers
That in England might be found,
And all was to fight with the king of
Ffrance,
Within a litle stounde.
- 4 And when our king was oner the water,
And on the salt sea gone,
Then tydings into Scotland came
That all England was gone.
- 5 Bowes and arrowes they were all forth,
At home was not left a man
But shepards and millers both,
And preists with shauen crownes.
- 6 Then the king of Scotts in a study stood,
As he was a man of great might;

- He sware he wold hold his parliament in leeue London,
If he cold ryde there right.
- 7 Then bespake a squier, of Scotland
borne,
And sayd, My leege, apace,
Before you come to leeue London,
Full sore you 'le rue that race.
- 8 Ther beene bold yeomen in merry Eng-
land,
Husbandmen stiffe and strong;
Sharpe swords they done weare,
Bearen bowes and arrowes longe.
- 9 The King was angrye at that word;
A long sword out hee drew,
And there befor his royall companye
His owne squier hee slew.
- 10 Hard hansell had the Scottes that day,
That wrought them woe enoughe,
For then durst not a Scott speake a word
Ffor hanging att a boughe.
- 11 'The Earle of Anguish, where art thou?
In my coate-armor thou shalt bee,
And thou shalt lead the forward
Thorow the English countrye.
- 12 'Take thee Yorke,' then sayd the King,
'In stead wheras it doth stand;
I 'le make thy eldest sonne after thee
Heyre of all Northumberland.
- 13 'The Earle of Vaughan, where be yee?
In my coate-armor thou shalt bee;
The high Peak and Darbyshire
I giue it thee to thy fee.'
- 14 Then came in famous Douglas,
Saies, What shall my meede bee?
And I 'le lead the vaward, lord,
Thorow the English countrye.
- 15 'Take thee Worster,' sayd the King,
'Tuxburye, Killingworth, Burton vpon
Trent;
Doe thou not say another day
But I haue giuen thee lands and rent.
- 16 'Sir Richard of Edenborrow, where are
yee?
A wise man in this warr!
- I 'le giue thee Bristow and the shire
The time that wee come there.
- 17 'My lord Nevill, where beene yee?
You must in this warres bee;
I 'le giue thee Shrewsburye,' saies the
King,
'And Couentrye faire and free.
- 18 'My lord of Hambleton, where art thou?
Thou art of my kin full nye;
I 'le giue thee Lincolne and Lincolne-
shire,
And that 's enoughe for thee.'
- 19 By then came in William Douglas,
As breeme as any bore;
He kneeled him downe vpon his knees,
In his hart he sighed sore.
- 20 Saies, I haue serued you, my louelye
leege,
This thirty winters and four,
And in the Marches betweene England and Scotland
I haue beene wounded and beaten sore.
- 21 For all the good service that I haue done,
What shall my meed bee?
And I will lead the vanward
Thorow the English countrye.
- 22 'Aske on, Douglas,' said the king,
'And granted it shall bee.'
'Why then, I aske litle London,' saies
William Douglas,
'Gotten giff that it bee.'
- 23 The King was wrath, and rose away,
Saies, Nay, that cannot bee!
For that I will keepe for my cheefe
chamber,
Gotten if it bee.
- 24 But take thee North Wales and Weschaster,
The cuntrye all round about,
And rewarded thou shalt bee,
Of that take thou noe doubt.
- 25 Fiue score knights he made on a day,
And dnbbd them with his hands;
Rewarded them right worthilye
With the townes in merry England.

26 And when the fresh knights they were
made,
To battell the buske them bowne;
James Douglas went before,
And he thought to haue wonnen him
shoone.

27 But the were mett in a morning of May
With the comminaltye of litle Eng-
land;
But there scaped neuer a man away,
Through the might of Christës hand.

28 But all onely James Douglas;
In Durham in the feild
An arrow stroke him in the thye;
Fast flinge[s he] towards the King.

29 The King looked toward litle Durham,
Saies, All things is not well!
For James Dowglas beares an arrow in his thye,
The head of it is of steele.

30 'How now James?' then said the King,
'How now, how may this bee?
And where beene all thy merrymen
That thou tooke hence with thee?'

31 'But cease, my king,' saies James Douglas,
'Aliue is not left a man!'
'Now by my faith,' saies the king of Scottes,
'That gate was euill gone.

32 'But I 'le reuenge thy quarrell well,
And of that thou may be faine;
For one Scott will beate fūe English-
men,
If the meeten them on the plaine.'

33 'Now hold your tounge,' saies James Douglas,
'For in faith that is not soe;
For one English man is worth fūe Scotts,
When they meeten together thee.

34 'For they are as egar men to fight
As a faulcon vpon a pray;
Alas! if euer the winne the vanward,
There scapes noe man away.'

35 'O peace thy talking,' said the King,
'They bee but English knaues,

But shepards and millers both,
And preists with their staues.'

36 The King sent forth one of his heralds of armes
To vew the Englishmen:
'Be of good cheere,' the herald said,
'For against one wee bee ten.'

37 'Who leades those ladds?' said the king of Scottes,
'Thou herald, tell thou mee:'
The herald said, The Bishopp of Dur-
ham
Is captaine of that companye.

38 'For the Bishopp hath spred the King's banner,
And to battell he buskes him bowne;'
'I sweare by St Andrewes bones,' saies
the King,
'I 'le rapp that preist on the crowne.'

39 The King looked towards litle Durham,
And that hee well beheld,
That the Earle Percy was well armed,
With his battell-axe entred the feild.

40 The King looket againe towards litle
Durham,
Four ancyents there see hee;
There were to standards, six in a valley,
He cold not see them with his eye.

41 My Lord of Yorke was one of them,
My Lord of Carlile was the other,
And my Lord Ffluwilliams,
The one came with the other.

42 The Bishopp of Durham commanded his men,
And shortlye he them bade,
That neuer a man shold goe to the feild
to fight
Till he had serued his God.

43 Fūe hundred preists said masse that
day
In Durham in the feild,
And afterwards, as I hard say,
They bare both speare and sheeld.

44 The Bishopp of Durham orders him
selfe to fight,
With his battell-axe in his hand;

He said, This day now I will fight
As long as I can stand !

45 'And soe will I,' sayd my Lord of Carlile,
'In this faire morning gay ;'
'And soe will I,' said my Lord Ffluwil-liams,
'For Mary, that myld may.'

46 Our English archers bent their bowes
Shortlye and anon;
They shott ouer the Scottish oast
And scantlye toucht a man.

47 'Hold downe your hands,' sayd the Bishopp of Durham,
'My archers good and true :'
The second shoote that the shott,
Full sore the Scottes itt rue.

48 The Bishopp of Durham spoke on hye,
That both partyes might heare:
'Be of good cheere, my merrymen
all,
The Scotts flyen, and changen there
cheere.'

49 But as the saidden, soe the didden,
They fell on heapes hye;
Our Englishmen laid on with their
bowes,
As fast as they might dree.

50 The king of Scotts in a studye stood
Amongst his companye;
An arrow stoke him thorow the nose,
And thorow his armorye.

51 The King went to a marsh-side
And light beside his steede;
He leaned him downe on his swordhilts,
To let his nose bleede.

52 There followed him a yeaman of merry
England,
His name was Iohn of Coplande:
'Yeeld thee, traytor !' saies Coplande
then,
'Thy liffe lyes in my hand.'

53 'How shold I yeeld me,' sayes the
King,
'And thou art noe gentleman ?'

'Noe, by my troth,' sayes Copland there,
'I am but a poore yeaman.

54 'What art thou better then I, Sir King ?
Tell me if that thou can !
What art thou better then I, Sir King,
Now we be but man to man ?'

55 The King smote angerly at Copland
then,
Angerly in that stonde;
And then Copland was a bold yeaman,
And bore the King to the ground.

56 He sett the King upon a palfrey,
Himselfe upon a steede;
He tooke him by the bridle-rayne,
Towards London he can him lead.

57 And when to London that he came,
The King from Ffrance was new come
home,
And there unto the king of Scottes
He sayd these words anon.

58 'How like you my shepards and my millers ?
My priests with shaven crownes ?'
'By my fayth, they are the sorest fighting men
That ever I mett on the ground.

59 'There was never a yeaman in merry
England
But he was worth a Scottish knight :'
'I, by my troth,' said King Edward,
and laughe,
'For you fought all against the right.'

60 But now the prince of merry England,
Worthilye under his sheelde,
Hath taken the king of Ffrance,
At Poytiers in the ffeelde.

61 The prince did present his father with that food,
The louely king off Ffrance,
And fforward of his iourney he is gone:
God send us all good chance !

62 'You are welcome, brother !' sayd the king of Scotts, to the king of Ffrance,
'For I am come hither to soone;
Christ leeve that I had taken my way
Unto the court of Roome !'

63 'And soe wold I,' said the king of Ffrance,
'When I came over the streame,
That I had taken my iourney
Unto Ierusalem !'

64 Thus ends the battell of ffaire Durham,
In one morning of May,
The battell of Cressey, and the battle of Potyers,
All within one monthës day.

65 Then was welthe and welfare in mery
England,
Solaces, game, and glee,
And every man loved other well,
And the King loved good yeomanrye.

66 But God that made the grasse to growe,
And leaves on greenwoode tree,
Now save and keepe our noble king,
And maintaine good yeomanry !

THE KNIGHT OF LIDDESDALE

William Douglas, the Knight of Liddesdale, who figures in the foregoing ballad (No. 159) was assassinated in 1353, while hunting in Ettrick forest, by his kinsman and godson, William Lord Douglas. According to the Scotichronicon, the motive was said to be revenge for the death by starvation of Alexander Ramsay and the murder of Sir David Berkeley. Hume of Godscroft considers the motive assigned to be quite unnatural, and at best a pretence. A ballad known to him gave a different account. "The Lord of Liddesdale, being at his pastime, hunting in Attrick forest, is beset by William Earle of Douglas, and such as hee had ordained for that purpose, and there assailed, wounded, and slain, beside Galsewood, in the year 1353; upon a jealousie that the Earle had conceived of him with his lady, as the report goeth, for so sayes the old song." After citing the stanza which follows, Hume goes on to say: "The song also declareth how shee did write her love-letters to Liddisdale, to dissuade him from that hunting. It tells likewise the manner of the taking of his men, and his owne killing at Galsewood, and how hee was carried the first night to Lindin Kirk, a mile from Selkirk, and was buried within the Abbacie of Melrose."

"The sole basis for this statement of Hume's," says Sir William Fraser (The Douglas Book, I, 223 f., 1885), "seems to be the anonymous Border ballad, part of which he quotes, to which he adds the tradition that the lady wrote to her lover to dissuade him from that hunting. Apart from the fact that this tradition is opposed to contemporary history, which states that Sir William was wholly unsuspecting of danger, the story told by Godscroft is otherwise erroneous. . . . Douglas was not created earl until 28th January, 1357-8, and there was therefore no 'Countess of Douglas' to wail for the Knight of Liddesdale. Douglas's only wife was Lady Margaret of Mar, who survived him. Douglass had no countess of the family of March in 1353, while it is doubtful if at that date he was married. Popular tradition is therefore at fault in assigning matrimonial jealousy as a motive for killing the Knight of Liddesdale."

Hume of Godscroft, History of the Houses of Douglas and Angus, 1644, p. 77.

THE Countesse of Douglas out of her boure
she came,
And loudly there that she did call:
'It is for the Lord of Liddesdale
That I let all these teares downe fall.'

THE BATTLE OF OTTERBURN

The Battle of Otterburn was fought on August 19th, 1388. The most circumstantial account may be found in Froissart's Chronicles. His narrative is, as usual, highly felicitous, and is based on the authority of knights and squires actually present, both English and Scots, and also French. That a Scots ballad of Otterburn was popular in the sixteenth century appears from The Complaynte of Scotlande, 1541, where a line is cited, "The Persee and the Mongumrye met" (p. 65, ed. Murray). Motherwell maintains that the ballad which passes as English (A) is the Scots song altered to please the other party; but his argument is far from conclusive. There is no reason to doubt that a Scots ballad once existed, much better than the two inferior, and partly suspicious, things which were printed by Herd and Scott; but there is no evidence, positive or probable, that A was adapted from the Scots song made of Otterburn. Rather are we to infer that the few verses of B and C which repeat or resemble the text of A were borrowed from A.

A, in the shape in which it has come down to us, must have a date long subsequent to the battle, but is likely to have been modernized from a ballad current as early as 1400. Scott's version (C) of the Scottish ballad in the second edition of the Minstrelsy is put together, for the most part, from two copies sent him by James Hogg. These copies are here printed as C*, and Scott's text is given in the Notes.

- 1 Yt fell abowght the Lamasse tyde,
Whan husbondes wynnes ther haye,
The dowghtye Dowglasse bowynd hym
to ryde,
In Ynglond to take a praye.
- 2 The yerlle of Fyffe, wythowghten stryffe,
He bowynd hym over Sulway;
The grete wolde ever to-gether ryde;
That raysse they may rewe for aye.
- 3 Over Hoppertope hyll they cam in,
And so down by Rodclyffe crage;
Vpon Grene Lynton they lyghted dowyn,
Styrande many a stage.
- 4 And boldely brente Northomberlond,
And haryed many a towyn;
They dyd owr Ynglyssh men grete
wrange,
To batell that were not bowyn.
- 5 Than spake a berne vpon the bent,
Of comferte that was not colde,
And sayd, We haue brente Northomber-
lond,
We haue all welth in holde.
- 6 Now we haue haryed all Bamborowe
schyre,
All the welth in the worlde hane wee,
I rede we ryde to Newe Castell,
So styll and stalworthlye.
- 7 Vpon the morowe, when it was day,
The standerds schone full bryght;
To the Newe Castell the toke the waye,
And thether they cam full ryght.
- 8 Syr Henry Perssy laye at the New Cas-
tell,
I tell yow wythowtten drede;

He had byn a march-man all hys dayes,
And kepte Barwyke vpon Twede.

- 9 To the Newe Castell when they cam,
The Skottes they cryde on hyght,
'Syr Hary Perssy, and thou byste within,
Com to the fylde, and fyght.
- 10 'For we haue brente Northomberlonde,
Thy erytage good and ryght,
And syne my logeyng I haue take Wyth my brande dubbyd many a
knyght.'
- 11 Syr Harry Perssy cam to the walles,
The Skottysch oste for to se,
And sayd, And thou hast brente North-omberlond,
Full sore it rewyth me.
- 12 Yf thou hast haryed all Bamborowe
schyre,
Thow hast done me grete envye;
For the trespasse thow hast me done,
The tone of vs schall dye.
- 13 'Where schall I byde the?' sayd the Dowglas,
'Or where wylte thow com to me?'
'At Otterborne, in the hygh way,
[T]her mast thow well logeed be.
- 14 '[T]he roo full rekeles ther sche rinnes,
[T]o make the game a[nd] glee;
[T]he fawken and the fesaunt both,
Among the holtes on hye.
- 15 'Ther mast thow haue thy welth at wyll,
Well looged ther mast be;
Yt schall not be long or I com the tyll,'
Sayd Syr Harry Perssy.
- 16 'Ther schall I byde the,' sayd the Dowg-
las,
'By the fayth of my bodey:'
'Thether schall I com,' sayd Syr Harry Perssy,
'My trowth I plyght to the.'
- 17 A pype of wyne he gaue them over the walles,
For soth as I yow saye;
Ther he mayd the Dowglasse drynke,
And all hys ost that daye.

- 18 The Dowglas turnyd hym homewarde
agayne,
For soth withowghiten naye;
He toke hys logeyng at Oterborne,
Vpon a Wedynsday.
- 19 And ther he pyght hys standerd dowyn,
Hys getting more and lesse,
And syne he warned hys men to goo
To chose ther geldynges gresse.
- 20 A Skottyshe knyght hoved vpon the
bent,
A wache I dare well saye;
So was he ware on the noble Perssy,
In the dawnyng of the daye.
- 21 He prycked to hys pavyleon-dore,
As faste as he myght ronne;
'Awaken, Dowglas,' cryed the knyght,
'For hys love that syttes in trone.
- 22 'Awaken, Dowglas,' cryed the knyght,
'For thow maste waken wyth wyne;
Yender haue I spyed the prowde Perssye,
And seven stondardes wyth hym.'
- 23 'Nay by my trowth,' the Dowglas sayed,
'It ys but a fayned taylle;
He durst not loke on my brede banner
For all Ynglonde so haylle.
- 24 'Was I not yesterdaye at the Newe Cas-
tell,
That stondes so fayre on Tyne?
For all the men the Perssy had,
He coude not garre me ones to dyne.'
- 25 He stepped owt at his pavelyon-dore,
To loke and it were lesse:
'Araye yow, lordynges, one and all,
For here bygynnes no peysse.
- 26 'The yerle of Mentaye, thow arte my eme,
The fowarde I gyve to the:
The yerlle of Huntlay, cawte and kene,
He schall be wyth the.
- 27 'The lorde of Bowghan, in armure
bryght,
On the other hand he schall be;
Lord Jhonstoune and Lorde Maxwell,
They to schall be wyth me.
- 28 'Swynton, fayre fylde vpon your pryde!
To batell make yow bowen
Syr Davy Skotte, Syr Water Stewarde,
Syr Jhon of Agurstone!'
- 29 The Perssy cam byfore hys oste,
Wych was ever a gentyll knyght;
Vpon the Dowglas lowde can he crye,
'I wyll holde that I haue hyght.
- 30 'For thou haste brente Northomber-
londe,
And done me grete envye;
For thys trespasse thou hast me done,
The tone of vs schall dye.'
- 31 The Dowglas answerde hym agayne,
Wyth grett wurdes vpon hye,
And sayd, I haue twenty agaynst thy one,
Byholde, and thou maste see.
- 32 Wyth that the Perssy was grevyd sore,
For soth as I yow saye;
He lyghted dowyn vpon his foote,
And schoote hys horsse clene awaye.
- 33 Euery man sawe that he dyd soo,
That ryall was euer in rowght;
Euery man schoote hys horsse hym froo,
And lyght hym rowynde abowght.
- 34 Thus Syr Hary Perssye toke the fylde,
For soth as I yow saye;
Jhesu Cryste in hevyn on hyght
Dyd helpe hym well that daye.
- 35 But nyne thowzand, ther was no moo,
The cronykle wyll not layne;
Forty thowsande of Skottes and fowre
That day fowght them agayne.
- 36 But when the batell byganne to ioyne,
In hast ther cam a knyght;
The letters fayre furth hath he tayne,
And thus he sayd full ryght:
- 37 'My lorde your father he gretes yow
well,
Wyth many a noble knyght;
He desyres yow to byde
That he may see thys fyght.
- 38 'The Baron of Grastoke ys com out of the west,
Wyth hym a noble companye;

- All they loge at your fathers thys nyght,
And the batell fayne wolde they see.'
- 39 'For Jhesus love,' sayd Syr Harye Persay,
'That dyed for yow and me,
Wende to my lorde my father agayne,
And saye thow sawe me not wyth yee.
- 40 'My trowth ys plyght to yonne Skottysh knyght,
It nedes me not to layne,
That I schulde byde hym vpon thys
bent,
And I haue hys trowth agayne.
- 41 'And if that I w[e]ynde of thys grow-
ende,
For soth, onfowghten awaye,
He wolde me call but a kowarde knyght
In hys londe another daye.
- 42 'Yet had I lever to be rynde and rente,
By Mary, that mykkel maye,
Then ever my manhood schulde be re-provyd
Wyth a Skotte another day.
- 43 'Wherefore schote, archars, for my
sake,
And let scharpe arowes flee;
Mynstrells, playe vp for your waryson,
And well quyt it schall bee.
- 44 'Euery man thynke on hys trewe-love,
And marke hym to the Trenite;
For to God I make myne avowe
Thys day wyll I not flee.'
- 45 The blodye harte in the Dowglas armes,
Hys standerde stode on hye,
That euery man myght full well knowe;
By syde stode starrës thre.
- 46 The whyte lyon on the Ynglyssh perte,
For soth as I yow sayne,
The lucettes and the cressawntes both;
The Skottes favght them agayne.
- 47 Vpon Sent Andrewe lowde can they
crye,
And thrysse they schowte on hyght,
And syne merked them one owr Yn-glysshe men,
As I haue tolde yow ryght.
- 48 Sent George the bryght, owr ladyes
knyght,
To name they were full fayne;
Owr Ynglyssh men they cryde on hyght,
And thrysse the schowtte agayne.
- 49 Wyth that scharpe arowes bygan to flee,
I tell yow in sertayne;
Men of armes byganne to joyne,
Many a dowghty man was ther slayne.
- 50 The Persay and the Dowglas mette,
That ether of other was fayne;
They swapped together whyll that the
swette,
Wyth swordes of fyne collayne :
- 51 Tyll the bloode from ther bassonnettes
ranne,
As the roke doth in the rayne;
'Yelde the to me,' sayd the Dowglas,
'Or elles thow schalt be slayne.
- 52 'For I see by thy bryght bassonet,
Thow arte sum man of myght;
And so I do by thy burnysshed brande;
Thow arte an yerle, or elles a knyght.'
- 53 'By my good faythe,' sayd the noble
Perssye,
'Now haste thow rede full ryght;
Yet wyll I never yelde me to the,
Whyll I may stonde and fyght.'
- 54 They swapped together whyll that they
swette,
Wyth swordës scharpe and long;
Ych on other so faste thee beette,
Tyll ther helmes cam in peyses dowyn.
- 55 The Persay was a man of strenght,
I tell yow in thys stounde;
He smote the Dowglas at the swordës
length
That he felle to the growynde.
- 56 The sworde was scharpe, and sore can byte,
I tell yow in sertayne;
To the harte he cowde hym smyte,
Thus was the Dowglas slayne.
- 57 The stonderdes stode styll on eke a syde,
Wyth many a grevous grone;

Ther the fowght the day, and all the nyght,
And many a dowghty man was slayne.

58 Ther was no freke that ther wolde flye,
But styffely in stowre can stound, Ychone hewing on other whyll they
myght drye,
Wyth many a bayllefyll bronde.

59 Ther was slayne vpon the Skottës syde,
For soth and sertenly,
Syr James a Dowglas ther was slayne,
That day that he cowde dye.

60 The yerlle of Mentaye he was slayne,
Grysely groned vpon the growynd;
Syr Davy Skotte, Syr Water Stewarde,
Syr Jhon of Agurstoune.

61 Syr Charllës Morrey in that place,
That never a fote wold flee;
Syr Hewe Maxwell, a lorde he was,
Wyth the Dowglas dyd he dye.

62 Ther was slayne vpon the Skottës syde,
For soth as I yow saye,
Of fowre and forty thowsande Scottes
Went but eyghtene awaye.

63 Ther was slayne vpon the Ynglysshe
syde,
For soth and sertenlye,
A gentell knyght, Syr Jhon Fechewe,
Yt was the more pety.

64 Syr James Hardbotell ther was slayne,
For hym ther hartes were sore;
The gentyll Lovell ther was slayne,
That the Perssys standerd bore.

65 Ther was slayne vpon the Ynglyssh perte,
For soth as I yow saye,
Of nyne thowsand Ynglyssh men
Fyve hondert cam awaye.

66 The other were slayne in the fylde;
Cryste kepe ther sowlles from wol
Seyng ther was so fewe fryndes
Agaynst so many a foo.

67 Then on the morne they mayde them
beerys
Of byrch and haysell graye;

Many a wydowe, wyth wepyng teyres,
Ther makes they fette awaye.

68 Thys fraye bygan at Otterborne,
Bytwene the nyght and the day;
Ther the Dowglas lost hys lyffe,
And the Perssy was lede awaye.

69 Then was ther a Scottysh prisoner tayne,
Syr Hewe Mougomery was hys name;
For soth as I yow saye,
He borrowed the Perssy home agayne.

70 Now let vs all for the Perssy praye
To Jhesu most of myght,
To bryng hys sowlle to the blysse of heven,
For he was a gentyll knyght.

1 It fell and about the Lammas time,
When husbandmen do win their hay,
Earl Donglass is to the English woods,
And a' with him to fetch a prey.

2 He has chosen the Lindsays light,
With them the gallant Gordons gay,
And the Earl of Fyfe, withouten strife,
And Sir Hugh Montgomery upon a grey.

3 They have taken Northumberland,
And sae hae they the north shire,
And the Otter Dale, they hae burnt it hale,
And set it a' into fire.

4 Out then spake a bonny boy,
That servd ane o Earl Donglass kin;
Methinks I see an English host,
A-coming branken us upon.

5 'If this be true, my little boy,
And it be troth that thou tells me,
The brawest bower in Otterburn
This day shall be thy morning-fee.

6 'But if it be fase, my little boy,
But and a lie that thou tells me,

On the highest tree that 's in Otterburn
With my ain hands I'll hing thee
high.'

7 The boy's taen out his little penknife,
That hanget low down by his gare,
And he gaed Earl Douglass a deadly
wound,
Alack! a deep wound and a sare.

8 Earl Douglas said to Sir Hugh Montgomery,
'Take thou the vanguard o the three,
And bury me at yon braken-bush,
That stands upon yon lilly lee.

9 Then Percy and Montgomery met,
And weel a wot they warn a fain;
They swaped swords, and they twa swat,
And ay the blood ran down between.

10 'O yield thee, yield thee, Percy,' he said,
'Or else I vow I'll lay thee low;'
'Whom to shall I yield,' said Earl Percy,
'Now that I see it maun be so?'

11 'O yield thee to yon braken-bush,
That grows upon yon lilly lee;

12 'I winna yield to a braken-bush,
Nor yet will I unto a brier;
But I would yield to Earl Douglass,
Or Sir Hugh Montgomery, if he was
here.'

13 As soon as he knew it was Montgomery,
He stuck his sword's point in the
ground,
And Sir Hugh Montgomery was a courteous knight,
And he quickly broght him by the
hand.

14 This deed was done at Otterburn,
About the breaking of the day;
Earl Douglass was buried at the braken-
bush,
And Percy led captive away.

strelsy, No. 132, Abbotsford, stanzas 1-24,
35-38, 40; the same, No. 5, stanzas 25-34, 39.

Communicated to Scott, in a letter, by James Hogg.

1 It fell about the Lammas time,
When the muir-men won their hay,
That the doughty Earl Douglas went Into England to catch a prey.

2 He chose the Gordons and the Graemes,
With the Lindsays light and gay;
But the Jardines wadna wi him ride,
And they rued it to this day.

3 And he has burnt the dales o Tine
And part of Almonshire,
And three good towers on Roxburgh fells
He left them all on fire.

4 Then he marchd up to Newcastle,
And rode it round about:
'O whae's the lord of this castle,
Or whae's the lady o't?'

5 But up spake proud Lord Piercy then,
And O but he spak hie!
I am the lord of this castle,
And my wife's the lady gaye.

6 'If you are lord of this castle,
Sae weel it pleases me;
For ere I cross the border again
The ane of us shall die.'

7 He took a lang speir in his hand,
Was made of the metal free,
And for to meet the Douglas then
He rode most furiously.

8 But O how pale his lady lookd,
Frae off the castle wa,
When down before the Scottish spear
She saw brave Piercy fa!

9 How pale and wan his lady lookd,
Frae off the castle hieght,
When she beheld her Piercy yield
To doughty Douglas' might!

10 'Had we twa been upon the green,
And never an eye to see,
I should have had ye flesh and fell;
But your sword shall gae wi me.'

11 'But gae you up to Otterburn,
And there wait dayes three,

And if I come not ere three days' end
A fause lord ca ye me.'

- 12 'The Otterburn's a bonny burn,
'T is pleasant there to be,
But there is naught at Otterburn
To feed my men and me.
- 13 'The deer rins wild ower hill and dale,
The birds fly wild frae tree to tree,
And there is neither bread nor kale
To fend my men and me.
- 14 'But I will stay at Otterburn,
Where you shall welcome be;
And if ye come not ere three days' end
A coward I'll ca thee.'
- 15 'Then gae your ways to Otterburn,
And there wait dayes three;
And if I come not ere three days' end
A coward ye's ca me.'
- 16 They lighted high on Otterburn,
Upon the bent so brown,
They lighted high on Otterburn,
And threw their pallions down.
- 17 And he that had a bonny boy
Sent his horses to grass,
And he that had not a bonny boy
His ain servant he was.
- 18 But up then spak a little page,
Before the peep of the dawn;
'O waken ye, waken ye, my good lord,
For Piercy's hard at hand!'
- 19 'Ye lie, ye lie, ye loud liar,
Sae loud I hear ye lie!
The Piercy hadna men yestreen
To dight my men and me.
- 20 'But I have seen a dreary dream,
Beyond the isle o Sky;
I saw a dead man won the fight,
And I think that man was I.'
- 21 He belted on his good broad-sword
And to the field he ran,
Where he met wi the prond Piercy,
And a' his goodly train.
- 22 When Piercy wi the Douglas met,
I wat he was right keen;

They swakked their swords till sair they
swat,
And the blood ran them between.

- 23 But Piercy wi his good broad-sword,
Was made o the metal free,
Has wounded Douglas on the brow
Till backward he did flee.
- 24 Then he calld on his little page,
And said, Run speedily,
And bring my ain dear sister's son,
Sir Hugh Montgomery.
- 25 [Who, when he saw the Douglas bleed,
His heart was wonder wae:
'Now, by my sword, that haughty
lord
Shall rue before he gae.'
- 26 'My nephew bauld,' the Douglas said,
'What boots the death of ane?
Last night I dreamd a dreary dream,
And I ken the day's thy ain.
- 27 'I dreamd I saw a battle fought
Beyond the isle o Sky,
When lo, a dead man wan the field,
And I thought that man was I.
- 28 'My wound is deep, I fain wad sleep,
Nae mair I'll fighting see;
Gae lay me in the broken bush
That grows on yonder lee.
- 29 'But tell na ane of my brave men
That I lye bleeding wan,
But let the name of Douglas still
Be shouted in the van.
- 30 'And bury me here on this lee,
Beneath the blooming brier,
And never let a mortal ken
A kindly Scot lyes here.'
- 31 He liftit up that noble lord,
Wi the sant tear in his ee,
And hid him in the broken bush,
On yonder lily lee.
- 32 The moon was clear, the day drew near,
The spears in flinters flew,
But mony gallant Englishman
Ere day the Scotsmen slew.

- 33 Sir Hugh Montgomery he rode
Thro all the field in sight,
And loud the name of Douglas still
He urgd wi a' his might.
- 34 The Gordons good, in English blood
They steepd their hose and shoon,
The Lindsays flew like fire about,
Till a' the fray was doon.]
- 35 When stout Sir Hugh wi Piercy met,
I wat he was right fain;
They swakd their swords till sair they
swat,
And the blood ran down like rain.
- 36 'O yield thee, Piercy,' said Sir Hugh,
'O yield, or ye shall die!'
'Fain wad I yield,' proud Piercy said,
'But neer to loun like thee.'
- 37 'Thou shalt not yield to knave nor loun,
Nor shalt thou yield to me;
But yield thee to the broken bush
'That grows on yonder lee.'
- 38 'I will not yield to bush or brier,
Nor will I yield to thee;
But I will yield to Lord Douglas,
Or Sir Hugh Montgomery.'
- 39 [When Piercy knew it was Sir Hugh,
He fell low on his knee,
But soon he raisd him up again,
Wi mickle courtesy.]
- 40 He left not an Englishman on the field
That he hadna either killd or taen
Ere his heart's blood was cauld.

THE HUNTING OF THE CHEVIOT

The 'Hunttis of Chevet' is among the "sangis of natural music of the antiquite" mentioned as sung by the "shepherds" in The Complaynte of Scotlande, 1549. It was an old and a popular song at the middle of the sixteenth century. A, the copy in the Ashmolean manuscript, is subscribed 'Expliceth. quod Rychard Sheale.' upon which ground Sheale has been held to be the author, and not, as Percy and Ritson assumed, simply the transcriber, of the ballad. Sheale describes himself as a minstrel living at Tamworth, whose business was to 'sing and talk,' or to chant ballads and tell stories. He was the author of four pieces of verse in the same manuscript, one of which is of the date 1559. This and another piece, in which he tells how he was robbed of above threescore pound, give a sufficient idea of his dialect and style and a measure of his ability. This ballad was of course part of his stock as minstrel; the supposition that he was the author is preposterous in the extreme.

'The Battle of Otterburn' (No. 161) and 'The Hunting of the Cheviot' appear to be founded upon the same occurrence, 'The Hunting of the Cheviot' being the later of the two, and following in part its own tradition, though repeating some portions of the older ballad. The grammatical forms of A are, however, earlier than those of the particular copy of 'The Battle of Otterburn' which has been preserved. Sidney's well-known words may apply either to 'Otterburn' or to the present ballad: "Certainly I must confesse my own barbarousnes, I never heard the olde song of Percy and Duglas, that I found not my heart mooved more then with a Trumpet," etc. (Apologie for Poetrie, ed. Arber, p. 46).

B is a striking but by no means a solitary example of the impairment which an old ballad would suffer when written over for the broadside press. This very seriously enfeebled edition was in circulation throughout the seventeenth century, and much sung (says Chappell) despite its length. It is declared by Addison, in his appreciative and tasteful critique (Spectator, Nos. 70, 74, 1711), to be the favorite ballad of the common people of England. Addison, who knew no other version, informs us that Ben Jonson used to say that he had rather have been the author of Chevy Chase than of all his works. The broadside copy may possibly have been the only one known to Jonson also, but in all probability the traditional ballad was still sung in the streets in Jonson's youth, if not later.

- 1 THE Persē owt off Northcumberlonde, and avowe to God mayd he
That he wold hunte in the mowntayns off Chyviat within days thre,
In the magger of doughtē Dogles,
and all that euer with him be.

- 2 The fattiste hartes in all Cheviat
he sayd he wold kyll, and cary them
away:
'Be my feth,' sayd the dougheti Douglas agayn,
'I wyll let that hontyng yf that I may.'
- 3 The[n] the Persë owt off Banborowe cam,
with him a myghtee meany,
With fifteen hondrith archares bold off
blood and bone;
the wear chosen owt of shyars thre.
- 4 This begane on a Monday at morn,
in Cheviat the hillys so he;
The chylde may rue that ys vn-born,
it was the mor pittë.
- 5 The dryvars thorowe the woodës went,
for to reas the dear;
Bomen byekarte vppone the bent with ther browd aros cleare.
- 6 Then the wyld thorowe the woodës went,
on euery sydë shear;
Greahondes thorowe the grevis glent,
for to kyll thear dear.
- 7 This begane in Chyviat the hyls abone,
yerly on a Monnyn-day;
Be that it drewe to the oware off none,
a hondrith fat hartës ded ther lay.
- 8 The blewe a mort vppone the bent,
the semblyde on sydis shear;
To the quyrry then the Persë went,
to se the bryttlynge off the deare.
- 9 He sayd, It was the Duglas promys
this day to met me hear;
But I wyste he wolde faylle, verament;
a great oth the Persë swear.
- 10 At the laste a squyar off Northomber-
londe
lokyde at his hand full ny;
He was war a the doughetie Douglas commynge,
with him a myghttë meany.
- 11 Both with spear, bylle, and brande,
yt was a myghtti sight to se;
Hardyar men, both off hart nor hande,
wear not in Cristiantë.
- 12 The wear twenti hondrith spear-men
good,
withoute any feale;
The wear borne along be the watter a Twyde,
yth bowndës of Tividale.
- 13 'Leave of the brytlyng of the dear,' he
sayd,
'and to your boÿs lock ye tayk good
bede;
For neuer sithe ye wear on your mothars
borne had ye neuer so mickle nede.'
- 14 The dougheti Dogglas on a stede,
he rode alle his men beforne;
His armor glytteryde as dyd a glede;
a boldar barne was never born.
- 15 'Tell me whos men ye ar,' he says,
'or whos men that ye be:
Who gave yone leave to hunte in this Chyviat chays,
in the spyt of myn and of me.'
- 16 The first mane that ever him an answer
mayd,
yt was the good lord Persë:
'We wyll not tell the whoys men we ar,'
he says,
'nor whos men that we be;
But we wyll hounte hear in this chays,
in the spyt of thyne and of the.
- 17 'The fattiste hartës in all Chyviat
we haue kyld, and cast to cary them
away:'
'Be my troth,' sayd the doughetë Dog-
glas agay[n],
'therfor the ton of vs shall de this day.'
- 18 Then sayd the doughtë Douglas unto the lord Persë:
'To kyll alle thes giltles men,
alas, it wear great pittë !
- 19 'But, Persë, thowe art a lord of lande,
I am a yerle callyd within my contrë;
Let all our men vppone a parti stande,
and do the battell off the and of me.'
- 20 'Nowe Cristes cors on his crowne,' sayd
the lorde Persë,
'who-so-euer ther-to says nay !

- Be my troth, doughttē Douglas,' he
says,
'thow shalt neuer se that day.
- 21 'Nethar in Ynglonde, Skottlonde, nar
France,
nor for no man of a woman born,
But, and fortune be my chance,
I dar met him, on man for on.'
- 22 Then bespayke a squyar off Northom-barlonde,
Richard Wytharyngton was his nam;
'It shall neuer be told in Sothe-Ynglonde,' he says,
'To Kyng Herry the Fourth for sham.
- 23 'I wat yone byn great lordēs twaw,
I am a poor squyar of lande;
I wylle neuer se my captayne fyght on a fylde,
and stande my selffe and loocke on,
But whylle I may my weppone welde,
I wylle not [fayle] both hart and hande.'
- 24 That day, that day, that dredfull day!
the first fit here I fynde;
And yone wyll here any mor a the hountynge a the Chyviat,
yet ys ther mor behynde.
- 25 The Yngglyshe men hade ther bowys
yebent,
ther hartes wer good yenoughe;
The first off arros that the shote off,
seven skore spear-men the sloughe.
- 26 Yet byddys the yerle Douglas vppon the
bent,
a captayne good yenoughe,
And that was sene verament,
for he wrought hom both woo and wouche.
- 27 The Dogglas partyd his ost in thre,
lyk a cheffe cheften off pryde;
With suar spears off myghttē tre,
the cum in on euery syde;
- 28 Thrughe our Yngglyshe archery gave many a wounde fulle wyde;
Many a doughtē the garde to dy,
which ganyde them no pryde.
- 29 The Ynglyshe men let ther boÿs be,
and pulde owt brandes that wer
bryghte;
It was a hevy syght to se
bryght swordes on basnites lyght.
- 30 Thorowe ryche male and myneyeple,
many sterne the strocke done streght;
Many a freyke that was fulle fre,
ther vndar foot dyd lyght.
- 31 At last the Duglas and the Persē met, lyk to captayns of myght and of mayne;
The swapte togethar tylle the both
swat,
with swordes that wear of fyn myllan.
- 32 Thes worthē freckys for to fyght,
ther-to the wear fulle fayne,
Tylle the bloode owte off thear basnetes
sprente,
as euer dyd heal or ra[y]n.
- 33 'Yelde the, Persē,' sayde the Douglas,
'and i feth I shalle the brynge
Wher thowe shalte haue a yerls wagis of Jamy our Skottish kyng.
- 34 'Thoue shalte haue thy ransom fre,
I hight the hear this thinge;
For the manfullyste man yet art thowe that euer I conqueryd in filde fighttynge.'
- 35 'Nay,' sayd the lord Persē,
'I tolde it the beforne,
That I wolde neuer yeldyde be to no man of a woman born.'
- 36 With that ther cam an arrowe hastely,
forthe off a myghttē wane;
Hit hathe strekene the yerle Douglas in at the brest-bane.
- 37 Thorowe lyvar and longēs bathe
the sharpe arrowe ys gane,
That neuer after in all his lyffe-days
he spayke mo wordēs but ane:
That was, Fyghte ye, my myrry men,
whyllys ye may,
for my lyff-days ben gan.
- 38 The Persē leanyde on his brande,
and sawe the Douglas de;

- He tooke the dede mane by the hande,
and sayd, Wo ys me for the !
- 39 'To haue savyde thy lyffe, I wolde haue partyde with
my landes for years thre,
For a better man, of hart nare of hande,
was nat in all the north contrë.'
- 40 Off all that se a Skottishe knyght, was callyd Ser Hewe the Monggom-
byrry;
He sawe the Duglas to the deth was dyght,
he spendyd a spear, a trusti tre.
- 41 He rod vppone a corsiare
throughe a hondrith archery:
He neuer stynttyde, nar neuer blane,
tylle he cam to the good lord Persë.
- 42 He set vppone the lorde Persë
a dynte that was full soare;
With a suar spear of a myghttë tre clean thorow the body he the Persë
ber,
- 43 A the tothar syde that a man myght se a large cloth-yard and mare:
Towe bettar captayns wear nat in Cristiantë
then that day slan wear ther.
- 44 An archar off Northomberlonde say sleen was the lord Persë;
He bar a bende bowe in his hand,
was made off trusti tre.
- 45 An arow that a cloth-yarde was lang to the harde stele halyde he;
A dynt that was both sad and soar
he sat on Ser Hewe the Monggom-byrry.
- 46 The dynt yt was both sad and sar
that he of Monggomberry sete;
The swane-fethars that his arrowe bar with his hart-blood the wear wete.
- 47 Ther was neuer a freake wone foot wolde
fle,
but still in stonr dyd stand,
Heawyng on yche othar, whylle the myghte dre,
with many a balfull brande.
- 48 This battell begane in Chyviat
an owar befor the none,
And when even-songe bell was rang,
the battell was nat half done.
- 49 The tocke . . on ethar hande
be the lyght off the mone;
Many hade no strenght for to stande,
in Chyviat the hillys abou.
- 50 Of fifteen hondrith archars of Ynglonde went away but seuenti and thre;
Of twenti hondrith spear-men of Skot-
londe,
but even five and fifti.
- 51 But all wear slayne Cheviat within;
the hade no streng[th]e to stand on
by;
The chylde may rue that ys unborne,
it was the mor pittë.
- 52 Thear was slayne, withe the lord Persë,
Ser Johan of Agerstone,
Ser Rogar, the hinde Hartly,
Ser Wyllyam, the bolde Hearone.
- 53 Ser Jorg, the worthë Loumle,
a knyghte of great renowen,
Ser Raff, the ryche Rugbe, with dyntes wear beaten dowene.
- 54 For Wetharryngton my harte was wo, that euer he slayne shulde be;
For when both his leggis wear hewyne in to,
yet he knyled and fought on hys
kny.
- 55 Ther was slayne, with the dougheti
Duglas,
Ser Hewe the Monggombyrry,
Ser Dany Lwdale, that worthë was,
his sistars son was he.
- 56 Ser Charls a Murrë in that place,
that neuer a foot wolde fle;
Ser Hewe Maxwelle, a lorde he was,
with the Doglas dyd he dey.
- 57 So on the morrowe the mayde them
byears
off birch and hasell so g[r]ay;
Many wedous, with wepyng tears,
cam to fache ther makys away.

58 Tivydale may carpe off care,
Northombarlond may mayk great mon,
For towe such captayns as slayne wear thear
on the March-parti shall neuer be non.

59 Word ys comen to Eddenburrowe, to Jamy the Skottishe kynge,
That dougheti Douglas, lyff-tenant of the Marches,
he lay sleane Chyviot within.

60 His handdës dyd he weal and wryng,
he sayd, Alas, and woe ys me !
Such an othar captayn Skotland within,
he sayd, ye-feth shuld neuer be.

61 Worde ys comyn to lovly Londone,
till the fourth Harry our kynge,
That lord Persë, leyff-tenante of the Marchis,
he lay slayne Chyviat within.

62 'God haue merci on his solle,' sayde
Kyng Harry,
'good lord, yf thy will it be !
I haue a hondrith captayns in Ynglonde,' he sayd,
'as good as euer was he:
But, Persë, and I brook my lyffe, thy deth well quyte shall be.'

63 As our noble kynge mayd his avowe, lyke a noble prince of renowen,
For the deth of the lord Persë
he dyde the battell of Hombyll-
down;

64 Wher syx and thrittë Skottishe knyghtes on a day wear beaten down;
Glendale glytteryde on ther armor
bryght,
over castille, towar, and town.

65 This was the hontynge off the Cheviat, that tear begane this spurn;
Old men that knowen the grownde well yenonghe
call it the battell of Otterburn.

66 At Otterburn begane this spurne, vppone a Monnynday;
Ther was the doughtë Douglas sleane,
the Persë neuer went away.

67 Ther was neuer a tym on the Marchepartës
sen the Douglas and the Persë met,
But yt ys mervale and the rede blade
ronne not,
as the reane doys in the stret.

68 Ihesue Crist our balys bete, and to the blys vs brynge !
Thus was the hountynge of the Chivyat:
God send vs alle good endyng !

1 GOD prosper long our noble king,
our liffes and saftyes all !
A woefull hunting once there did in Cheuy Chase befall.

2 To driue the deere with hound and
horne
Erle Percy took the way:
The child may rue that is vnborne
the hunting of that day !

3 The stout Erle of Northumberland a vow to God did make His pleasure in the Scottish woods
three sommers days to take,

4 The cheefest harts in Cheuy C[h]ase
to kill and beare away:
These tydings to Erle Douglas came in Scotland, where he lay.

5 Who sent Erle Percy present word
he wold prevent his sport;
The English erle, not fearing that,
did to the woods resort,

6 With fifteen hundred bowmen bold,
all chosen men of might,

- Who knew ffull well in time of neede to ayme their shafts arright.
- 7 The gallant greyhound[s] swiftly ran to chase the fallow deere;
On Munday they began to hunt,
ere daylight did appeare.
- 8 And long before high noone the had a hundred fat buckes slaine;
Then hauing dined, the drouyers went to rouse the deare againe.
- 9 The bowmen mustered on the hills,
well able to endure;
Theire backsids all with speciall care that day were guarded sure.
- 10 The hounds ran swiftly through the woods
the nimble deere to take,
That with their cryes the hills and dales
an eccho shrill did make.
- 11 Lord Percy to the querry went to veiw the tender deere;
Quoth he, Erle Douglas promised once
this day to meete me heere;
- 12 But if I thought he wold not come,
noe longer wold I stay.
With that a braue younge gentlman
thus to the erle did say:
- 13 'Loe, yonder doth Erle Douglas come,
hys men in armour bright;
Full twenty hundred Scottish speres
all marching in our sight.
- 14 'All men of pleasant Tiuydale, fast by the riuer Tweede:'
'O ceaze your sportts!' Erle Percy
said,
'and take your bowes with speede.
- 15 'And now with me, my countrymen,
your courage forth advance!
For there was neuer champion yett,
in Scotland nor in Ffrance,
- 16 'That euer did on horsbacke come,
[but], and if my hap it were,
I durst encounter man for man,
with him to breake a spere.'
- 17 Erle Douglas on his milke-white steede,
most like a baron bold,
Rode formost of his company,
whose armor shone like gold.
- 18 'Shew me,' sayd hee, 'whose men you
bee
that hunt soe boldly heere,
That without my consent doe chase and kill my fallow deere.'
- 19 The first man that did answer make was noble Percy hee,
Who sayd, Wee list not to declare nor shew whose men wee bee;
- 20 Yett wee will spend our deereest blood thy cheefest harts to slay.
Then Douglas swore a solempne oathe,
and thus in rage did say:
- 21 'Ere thus I will outbraued bee,
one of vs tow shall dye;
I know thee well, an erle thou art;
Lord Percy, soe am I.
- 22 'But trust me, Pearcy, pittye it were,
and great offence, to kill
Then any of these our guiltlesse men,
for they haue done none ill.
- 23 'Let thou and I the battell trye,
and set our men aside:'
'Accurst bee [he!]' Erle Pearcy sayd,
'by whome it is denyed.'
- 24 Then stept a gallant squire forth —
Witherington was his name —
Who said, 'I wold not haue it told to Henery our king, for shame,
- 25 'That ere my captaine fought on foote,
and I stand looking on.
You bee two Erles,' quoth Witherington,
'and I a squier alone;
- 26 'I'le doe the best that doe I may,
while I haue power to stand;
While I haue power to weeld my sword,
I'le fight with hart and hand.'
- 27 Our English archers bent their bowes;
their harts were good and trew;
Att the first flight of arrowes sent,
full foure score Scotts the slew.

- 28 To drive the deere with hound and horne,
Dauglas bade on the bent;
Two captaines moued with mickle might,
their speres to shiuers went.
- 29 They closed full fast on euerye side,
noe slacknes there was found,
But many a gallant gentleman
lay gasping on the ground.
- 30 O Christ ! it was great greene to see how eche man chose his spere,
And how the blood out of their bresta
did gush like water cleare.
- 31 At last these two stout erles did meet,
like captaines of great might;
Like lyons woode they layd on lode;
the made a cruell fight.
- 32 The fought vntill they both did sweat,
with swords of tempered steele,
Till blood downe their cheekes like raine
the trickling downe did feele.
- 33 'O yeeld thee, Pearcy!' Douglas
sayd,
'And in faith I will thee bringe
Where thou shall high advanced bee
by Iames our Scottish king.
- 34 'Thy ransome I will freely giue,
and this report of thee,
Thou art the most couragious knight
[that ever I did see.]'
- 35 'Noe, Douglas !' quoth Erle Percy then,
'thy profer I doe scorne;
I will not yeelde to any Scott that euer yett was borne !'
- 36 With that there came an arrow keene,
out of an English bow,
Which stroke Erle Douglas on the brest
a deepe and deadlye blow.
- 37 Who neuer sayd more words then these;
Fight on, my merry men all !
For why, my life is att [an] end,
lord Pearcy sees my fall.
- 38 Then leaning liffe, Erle Pearcy tooke
the dead man by the hand;
Who said, 'Erle Dowglas, for thy life,
wold I had lost my land !
- 39 'O Christ ! my verry hart doth bleed
for sorrow for thy sake,
For sure, a more redoubted knight mischance cold neuer take.'
- 40 A knight amongst the Scotts there
was
which saw Erle Douglas dye,
Who streight in hart did vow revenge
vpon the Lord Pearcy.
- 41 Sir Hugh Mountgomerye was he called,
who, with a spere full bright,
Well mounted on a gallant steed,
ran feirely through the fight,
- 42 And past the English archers all,
without all dread or feare,
And through Erle Percyes body then he thrust his hatfull spere.
- 43 With such a vehement force and might his body he did gore,
The staff ran through the other side
a large cloth-yard and more.
- 44 Thus did both those nobles dye,
whose courage none cold staine;
An English archer then perceiued
the noble erle was slaine.
- 45 He had [a] good bow in his hand,
made of a trusty tree;
An arrow of a cloth-yard long to the hard head haled hee.
- 46 Against Sir Hugh Mountgomerye
his shaft full right he sett;
The grey-goose-winge that was there-on in his harts bloode was wett.
- 47 This fight from breake of day did last till setting of the sun,
For when the rung the euening-bell
the battele scarce was done.
- 48 With stout Erle Percy there was slaine
Sir Iohn of Egerton,
Sir Robert Harcliffe and Sir William,
Sir Iames, that bold barron.
- 49 And with Sir George and Sir Iames, both knights of good account,
Good Sir Raphe Rebbye there was slaine, whose prowess did surmount.

- 50 For Witherington needs must I wayle
as one in dolefull dumpes;
For when his leggs were smitten of,
he fought vpon his stumpes.
- 51 And with Erle Dewglas there was slaine
Sir Hugh Mountgomerye,
And Sir Charles Morrell, that from feelde
one foote wold neuer flee;
- 52 Sir Roger Heuer of Harcliffe tow,
his sisters sonne was hee;
Sir David Lambwell, well esteemed,
but saved he cold not bee.
- 53 And the Lord Maxwell, in like case,
with Douglas he did dye;
Of twenty hundred Scottish speeres,
scarce fifty-five did flye.
- 54 Of fifteen hundred Englishmen went home but fifty-three;
The rest in Cheuy Chase were slaine, vnder the greenwoode tree.
- 55 Next day did many widdowes come their husbands to bewayle;
They washt their wounds in brinish
teares,
but all wold not prevayle.
- 56 Theyr bodyes, bathed in purple blood,
the bore with them away;
They kist them dead a thousand times
ere the were cladd in clay.
- 57 The newes was brought to Eddenborrow,
where Scottlands king did rayne,
That braue Erle Douglas soddainlye was with an arrow slaine.
- 58 'O heauy newes!' King Iames can say;
'Scotland may wittenesse bee
I haue not any captaine more of such account as hee.'
- 59 Like tydings to King Henery came,
within as short a space,
That Percy of Northumberland was slaine in Cheuy Chase.
- 60 'Now God be with him!' said our
king,
'sith it will noe better bee;

I trust I haue within my realme
five hundred as good as hee.

- 61 'Yett shall not Scotts nor Scotland say but I will vengeance take,
And be revenged on them all for braue Erle Percyes sake.'
- 62 This vow the king did well performe
after on Humble-downe;
In one day fifty knights were slayne,
with lords of great reuowne.
- 63 And of the rest, of small account,
did many hundreds dye:
Thus endeth the hunting in Cheuy Chase,
made by the Erle Pearcy.
- 64 God saue our king, and blesse this land with plentye, ioy, and peace,
And grant henceforth that foule debate
twixt noble men may ceaze!

THE BATTLE OF HARLAW

The Battle of Harlaw was fought on the 24th July, 1411. Donald of the Isles, to maintain his claim to the Earldom of Ross, invaded the country south of the mountains with ten thousand islanders and men of Ross in the hope of sacking Aberdeen, and reducing to his power the country as far as the Tay. He was met at Harlaw, eighteen miles northwest of Aberdeen, by Alexander Stewart, Earl of Mar, and Alexander Ogilby, sheriff of Angus, with the forces of Mar, Garioch, Angus, and The Mearns, and his further progress was stayed. The Celts lost more than nine hundred, the Lowlanders five hundred, including nearly all the gentry of Buchan. This defeat was in the interest of civilization against savagery, and was felt, says Burton, "as a more memorable deliverance even than that of Bannockburn."

As might be expected, the Lowlanders made a ballad about this hard fight. 'The battel of the Hayrlaw' is noted among other popular songs, in immediate connection with 'The Huntis of Chevet,' by the author of The Complaynt of Scotland, 1549, but most unfortunately this ancient song, unlike Chevy Chase, has been lost. There is a well-known poem upon the battle, printed by Ramsay, in his Ever Green, 1724, but it is not in the least of a popular character.

1 As I cam in by Dnuidier,
An doun by Netherha,
There was fifty thousand Hielanmen
A-marching to Harlaw.
Wi a dree dree dradie drumtie dree.

2 As I cam on, an farther on,
An doun an by Balquhain,
Oh there I met Sir James the Rose,
Wi him Sir John the Gryme.

3 'O cam ye frae the Hielans, man?
An cam ye a' the wey?
Saw ye Macdonell an his men,
As they cam frae the Skee?'

4 'Yes, me cam frae ta Hielans, man,
An me cam a' ta wey,
An she saw Macdonell an his men,
As they cam frae ta Skee.'

5 'Oh was ye near Macdonell's men?
Did ye their numbers see?
Come, tell to me, John Hielanman,
What micht their numbers be?'

6 'Yes, me was near, an near enench,
An me their numbers saw;
There was fifty thousan Hielanmen
A-marchin to Harlaw.'

7 'Gin that be true,' says James the Rose,
'We'll no come meikle speed;
We'll cry upo our merry men,
And lichtly mount our steed.'

8 'Oh no, oh no,' says John the Gryme,
'That thing maun never be;
The gallant Grymes were never bate,
We'll try phat we can dee.'

9 As I cam on, an farther on,
An doun an by Harlaw,
They fell fu close on ilka side;
Sic fun ye never saw.

10 They fell fu close on ilka side,
Sic fun ye never saw;
For Hielan swords gied clash for clash,
At the battle o Harlaw.

11 The Hielanmen, wi their lang swords,
They laid on us fu sair,
An they drave back our merry men
Three acres breadth an mair.

12 Brave Forbës to his brither did say,
Noo brither, dinna ye see?
They beat us back on ilka side,
An we 'se be forced to flee.

13 'Oh no, oh no, my brither dear,
That thing maun never be;
Tak ye your good sword in your hand,
An come your wa's wi me.'

14 'Oh no, oh no, my brither dear,
The clans they are ower strang,
An they drive back our merry men,
Wi swords baith sharp an lang.'

15 Brave Forbës drew his men aside,
Said, Tak your rest a while,
Until I to Drumminnor send,
To fess my coat o mail.

16 The servan he did ride,
An his horse it did na fail,
For in twa hours an a quarter
He brocht the coat o mail.

17 Then back to back the brithers twa
Gaed in amo the thrang,
An they hewed down the Hielanmen,
Wi swords baith sharp an lang.

18 Macdonell, he was young an stout,
Had on his coat o mail,
An he has gane oot throw them a',
To try his han himsell.

19 The first ae straik that Forbës strack,
He garrt Macdonell reel,
An the neist ae straik that Forbës strack,
The great Macdonell fell.

20 An siccan a lierachie
I'm sure ye never saw
As wis amo the Hielanmen,
When they saw Macdonell fa.

- 21 An whan they saw that he was deid,
They turnd an ran awa,
An they buried him in Leggett's Den,
A large mile frae Harlaw.
- 22 They rade, they ran, an some did gang,
They were o sma record;
But Forbës an his merry men,
They slew them a' the road.
- 23 On Monanday, at mornin,
The battle it began,
On Saturday, at gloamin,
Ye'd scarce kent wha had wan.
- 24 An sic a weary buryin
I'm sure ye never saw
As wis the Sunday after that,
On the muirs aneath Harlaw.
- 25 Gin ony body speer at you
For them ye took awa,
Ye may tell their wives and bairnies
They're sleepin at Harlaw.

The Thistle of Scotland, 1823, p. 92.

- 1 As I cam thro the Garrioch land,
And in by Over Ha,
There was sixty thousan Highland men
Marching to Harlaw.
- 11 The Highland men, with their broad
sword,
Pushd on wi might and power,
Till they bore back the red-coat lads
Three furlongs long, and more.
- 15 Lord Forbës calld his men aside,
Says, Take your breath awhile,
Until I send my servant now
To bring my coat o mail.

KING HENRY FIFTH'S CON-QUEST OF FRANCE

All the known copies are of recent date, and the ballad may probably have first been published in the second quarter of the eighteenth century. The broadside is in a popular manner, but has no mark of antiquity. It may, however, represent an older ballad disfigured by some purveyor for the Aldermay press. The recited versions probably had their ultimate source in print. Another and much more circumstantial ballad on Agincourt, written from the chronicles, was current in the seventeenth century. It may be seen in the Percy Manuscript (Hales and Furnivall, II, 166).

- 1 As our king lay musing on his bed,
He bethought himself upon a time
Of a tribute that was due from France,
Had not been paid for so long a time.
Fal, lal, etc.
- 2 He called for his lovely page,
His lovely page then called he,
Saying, You must go to the king of France,
To the king of France, sir, ride speedily.
- 3 O then went away this lovely page,
This lovely page then away went he;
And when he came to the king of France,
Low he fell down on his bended knee.
- 4 'My master greets you, worthy sir;
Ten ton of gold that is due to he,
That you will send him his tribute home,
Or in French land you soon will him
see.'
- 5 'Your master's young and of tender
years,
Not fit to come into my degree,
And I will send him three tennis-balls,
That with them he may learn to
play.'

- 6 O then returned this lovely page,
This lovely page then returned he,
And when he came to our gracious
king,
Low he fell down on his bended knee.
- 7 'What news, what news, my trusty
page?
What is the news you have brought to
me?'
'I have brought such news from the king of France
That you and he will never agree.
- 8 'He says you're young and of tender
years,
Not fit to come into his degree,
And he will send you three tennis-balls,
That with them you may learn to
play.'
- 9 'Recruit me Cheshire and Lancashire,
And Derby Hills that are so free;
No marryd man nor no widow's son;
For no widow's curse shall go with
me.'
- 10 They recruited Cheshire and Lanca-
shire,
And Derby Hills that are so free;
No marryd man, nor no widow's son;
Yet there was a jovial bold company.
- 11 O then wemarchd into the French land,
With drums and trumpets so merrily;
And then bespoke the king of France,
'Lo, yonder comes proud King
Henry.'
- 12 The first shot that the Frenchmen gave,
They killd our Englishmen so free;
We killd ten thousand of the French,
And the rest of them they ran away.
- 13 And then we marched to Paris gates,
With drums and trumpets so merrily:
O then bespoke the king of France,
'The Lord have mercy on my men
and me !
- 14 'O I will send him his tribute home,
Ten ton of gold that is due to he,
And the finest flower that is in all France
To the Rose of England I will give free.'

SIR JOHN BUTLER

The subject of this ballad is the murder of a Sir John Butler at Bewsey Hall, near Warrington, Lancashire. The person meant died in 1468, and there is no evidence that he was murdered, though the ballad and a parallel tradition so assert. His wife afterwards married for her third husband Henry Lord Grey of Codnor (cf. st. 25).

'Sir Iohn Butler,' Percy MS., p. 427; Hales and Furnivall, III, 205.

- 1 But word is come to Warrington,
And Busye Hall is laid about;
Sir Iohn Butler and his merry men
Stand in full great doubt.
- 2 When they came to Busye Hall
Itt was the merke midnight,
And all the bridges were vp drawen,
And neuer a candle-light.
- 3 There they made them one good
boate,
All of one good bull skinn;
William Sauage was one of the ffirst
That euer came itt within.
- 4 Hee sayled ore his merrymen,
By two and two together,
And said itt was as good a bote
As ere was made of lether.
- 5 'Waken you, waken you, deare ffather !
God waken you within !
For heere is your vnckle Standlye
Come your hall within.'
- 6 'If that be true, Ellen Butler,
These tydings you tell mee,
A hundred pound in good redd gold
This night will not borrow mee.'
- 7 Then came downe Ellen Butler
And into her ffathers hall,
And then came downe Ellen Butler,
And shee was laced in pall.
- 8 'Where is thy ffather, Ellen Butler ?
Hane done, and tell itt mee :'
'My ffather is now to London ridden,
As Christ shall haue part of mee.'

- 9 'Now nay, now nay, Ellen Butler,
Ffor soe itt must not bee;
Ffor ere I goe fforth of this hall,
Your ffather I must see.'
- 10 The sought that hall then vp and downe
Theras Iohn Butler lay;
The sought that hall then vp and downe
Theras Iohn Butler lay.
- 11 Ffaire him ffall, litle Holcrofft!
Soe merrilye he kept the dore,
Till that his head ffrom his shoulders
Came tumbling downe the ffloore.
- 12 'Yeeld thee, yeelde thee, Iohn Butler!
Yeelde thee now to mee!
'I will yeelde me to my vnckle Stanlye,
And neere to ffalse Peeter Lee.'
- 13 'A preist, a preist,' saies Ellen Butler,
'To housle and to shriue!
A preist, a preist,' sais Ellen Butler,
'While that my father is a man aliue!'
- 14 Then bespake him William Sauage,
A shames death may hee dye!
Sayes, He shall haue no other preist
But my bright sword and mee.
- 15 The Ladye Butler is to London rydden,
Shee had better haue beene att home;
Shee might haue beggd her owne marryed lord
Att her good brother Iohn.
- 16 And as shee lay in leue London,
And as shee lay in her bedd,
Shee dreamed her owne married lord
Was swiminge in blood soe red.
- 17 Shee called vp her merry men all,
Long ere itt was day;
Saies, Wee must ryde to Busye Hall,
With all speed that wee may.
- 18 Shee mett with three Kendall men,
Were ryding by the way:
'Tydings, tydings, Kendall men,
I pray you tell itt mee!'
- 19 'Heauy tydings, deare madam;
Ffrom you wee will not leane;
The worthyest knight in merry England,
Iohn Butler, Lord! hee is slaine!'

- 20 'Ffarewell, ffarwell, Iohn Butler!
Ffor thee I must neuer see:
Ffarewell, ffarwell, Busye Hall!
For thee I will neuer come nye.'
- 21 Now Ladye Butler is to London againe,
In all the speed might bee,
And when shee came before her prince,
Shee kneeled low downe on her knee.
- 22 'A boone, a boone, my leege!' shee
sayes,
'Ffor Gods loue grant itt mee!'
'What is thy boone, Lady Butler?
Or what wold thou haue of mee?'
- 23 'What is thy boone, Lady Butler?
Or what wold thou haue of mee?'
'That ffalse Peeres of Lee, and my brother Stanley,
And William Sauage, and all, may
dye.'
- 24 'Come you hither, Lady Butler,
Come you ower this stone;
Wold you haue three men ffor to dye,
All ffor the losse off one?'
- 25 'Come you hither, Lady Butler,
With all the speed you may;
If thou wilt come to London, Lady Butler,
Thou shalt goe home Lady Gray.'

THE ROSE OF ENGLAND

The title of this ballad is quoted in Fletcher's Monsieur Thomas (printed in 1639), act iii, scene 3. The subject is the winning of the crown of England from Richard III by Henry VII, and the parties on both sides, though some of them are sometimes called by their proper names, are mostly indicated by their badges or cognizances.

The red rose of Lancaster was rooted up by a boar, Richard, who was generally believed to have murdered Henry VI and his son Edward, the Prince of Wales; but the seed of the rose, the Earl of Richmond, afterwards wore the crown. The sixth stanza gives us to understand that the young Earl of Richmond was under the protection of Lord Stanley at Lathom before his uncle, the Earl of Pembroke, fled with him to Brittany, in 1471; but this does not appear in the histories. The Earl of Richmond came back to claim his right (in 1485), and brought with him the blue boar, the Earl of Oxford, to encounter with Richard, the white boar. Richmond sends a messenger to the old eagle, Lord Stanley, his stepfather, to announce his arrival; Stanley thanks God, and hopes that the rose shall flourish again. The Welshmen rise in a mass under Rice ap Thomas and shog on to Shrewsbury. Master Mitton, bailiff of Shrewsbury, refuses first to let Richmond enter, but, upon receiving letters from Sir William Stanley of Holt Castle, opens the gates. Richmond moves on to Newport, and then has a private meeting at Atherstone with Lord Stanley, who makes great moan because the young eagle, Lord Strange, his eldest son, is a hostage in the hands of the white boar (Richard). At the battle Oxford (the blue boar) has the van; Lord Stanley follows fast. The Talbot-dog (Sir Gilbert Talbot) bites sore; the unicorn (Sir John Savage) quits himself well; then comes in the hart's head (Sir William Stanley), the field is fought, the white boar slain, and the young eagle saved as by fire.

'The Rose of Englande,' Percy MS., p. 423; Hales and Furnivall, III, 187.

1 THROUGHOUT a garden greene and gay,
A seemly sight itt was to see
How fflowers did flourish fresh and gay,
And birds doe sing melodiouslye.

2 In the midst of a garden there sprange
a tree,
Which tree was of a mickle price,
And there vppon sprang the rose soe
redd,
The goodlyest that euer sprange on rise.

3 This rose was faire, fresh to behold,
Springing with many a royall lance;
A crowned king, with a crowne of gold,
Ouer England, Ireland, and of
Ffrance.

4 Then came in a beast men call a bore,
And he rooted this garden vpp and
downe;
By the seede of the rose he sett noe
store,
But afterwards itt wore the crowne.

5 Hee tooke the branches of this rose away,
And all in sunder did them teare,

And he buryed them vnder a clodd of clay,
Swore they shold neuer bloome nor
beare.

6 Then came in an egle gleaming gay,
Of all faire birds well worth the best;
He took the branche of the rose away,
And bore itt to Latham to his nest.

7 But now is this rose out of England exiled,
This certaine truth I will not laine;
But if itt please you to sitt a while,
I'le tell you how the rose came in
again.

8 Att Milford Hauen he entered in;
To claime his right, was his delight;
He brought the blew bore in with him,
To encounter with the bore soe white.

9 The[n] a messenger the rose did send
To the egles nest, and bidd him bye:
'To my ffather, the old egle, I doe [me]
comend,
His aide and helpe I craue speedyllye.'

10 Saies, I desire my father att my com-inge
Of men and mony att my need,
And alsoe my mother of her deer bless-
ing;
The better then I hope to speede.

11 And when the messenger came before
thold egle,
He kneeled him downe vpon his knee;
Saith, Well greeteth you my lord the
rose,
He hath sent you greetings here by me.

12 Safe ffrom the seas Christ hath him
sent,
Now he is entered England within:
'Let vs thanke God,' the old egle did
say,
'He shall be the fflower of all his kine.

13 'Wend away, messenger, with might
and maine;
Itt's hard to know who a man may trust;
I hope the rose shall flourish againe,
And haue all things att his owne lust.'

14 Then Sir Rice ap Thomas drawes Wales with him;
A worthy sight itt was to see,
How the Welchmen rose wholly with him,
And shogged them to Shrewsburye.

15 Att that time was baylye in Shrews-
burye
One Master Mitton, in the towne;
The gates were strong, and he mad them ffast,
And the portcullis he lett downe.

16 And throug a garrett of the walls,
Ouer Severne these words said hee;
'Att these gates no man enter shall;
But he kept him out a night and a day.

17 These words Mitton did Erle Richmond
tell
(I am sure the chronicles of this will not lye);
But when lettres came from Sir William
Stanley of the Holt castle,
Then the gates were opened present-
lye.

18 Then entred this towne the noble lord,
The Erle Richmond, the rose soe
redd;
The Erle of Oxford, with a sword,
Wold haue smitt of the bailiffes head.

19 'But hold your hand,' saies Erle Richmond,
'Ffor his lone that dyed vpon a tree!
Ffor if wee begin to head so soone,
In England wee shall beare no degree.'

20 'What offence haue I made thee,' sayd
Erle Richmonde,
'That thou kept me out of my
towne?'
'I know no king,' sayd Mitton then,
'But Richard now, that weares the
crowne.'

21 'Why, what wilt thou say,' said Erle
Richmonde,
'When I haue put King Richard
downe?'
'Why, then Ile be as true to you, my
lord,
After the time that I am sworne.'

22 'Were itt not great pitty,' sayd Erle
Richmond,
'That such a man as this shold dye,
Such loyall service by him done?
(The cronickles of this will not lye.)

23 'Thou shalt not be harmed in any case;'
He pardone[d] him presentlye;
They stayd not past a night and a day,
But towards Newport did they hye.

24 But [at] Attherston these lords did
meete;
A worthy sight itt was to see,
How Erle Richmond tooke his hatt in his hand,
And said, Cheshire and Lancashire,
welcome to me!

25 But now is a bird of the egle taken;
Ffrom the white bore he cannot flee;
Therefore the old egle makes great
moane,
And prayes to God most certainly.

26 'O stedfast God, verament,' he did say,
'Thre persons in one god in Trinytye,
Saue my soune, the young egle, this
day
Ffrom all ffalse craft and trecherye!'

27 Then the blew bore the vanward had;
He was both warry and wise of witt;
The right hand of them he tooke,
The sunn and wind of them to gett.

28 Then the egle ffollowed fast vpon his pray,
With sore dints he did them smyte;
The talbott he bitt wonderous sore,
Soe well the vnicorne did him quite.

29 And then came in the harts head;
A worthy sight itt was to see,
The iacketts that were of white and
redd,
How they laid about them lustilye.

30 But now is the ffierce ffeeld foughten and ended,
And the white bore there lyeth
slaine,
And the young egle is preserued,
Aud come to his nest againe.

31 But now this garden flourishes freshly and gay,
With fragrant flowers comely of hew,
And gardners itt doth maintaine;
I hope they will proue iust and true.

32 Our king, he is the rose soe redd,
That now does flourish ffresh and
gay:
Confound his ffoes, Lord, wee beseeche,
And loue His Grace both night and
day!

SIR ANDREW BARTON

Andrew Barton had letters of reprisal from the king of Scotland against the Portuguese in consequence of the seizure of a ship commanded by his father. There is some reason to believe that he abused this privilege, and in 1511 Sir Thomas and Sir Edward Howard, with the consent of Henry VIII, set out with two ships against him. There was a hard fight. Barton was killed, and his ship, The Lion, was captured. The king of Scotland demanded redress, which was refused on the ground that Barton was a pirate.

A version of this ballad from a sixteenth-century manuscript in York Minster Library is much like A. Some of the more interesting variations are given in the Notes. B is a broadside version, and is here omitted.

A

'Sir Andrew Bartton,' Percy MS., p. 490;
Hales and Furnivall, III, 399.

1 As itt beffell in m[i]dsummer-time,
When burds singe sweetlye on enery
tree,
Our noble king, King Henery the Eighth,
Ouer the riuer of Thames past hee.

2 Hee was no sooner ouer the riner,
Downe in a fforrest to take the ayre,
But eighty merchants of London cittye
Came kneeling before King Henery
there.

3 'O vee are welcome, rich merchants,
[Good saylers, welcome unto me!']

They swore by the rood the were saylers
good,
But rich merchants they cold not bee.

4 'To Ffrance nor Fflanders dare we nott
passe,
Nor Burdeaux voyage wee dare not
ffare,
And all ffor a ffalse robber that lyes on the seas,
And robb[s] vs of our merchants-
ware.'

5 King Henery was stout, and he turned him about,
And swore by the Lord that was mickle of might,
'I thought he had not beene in the world throughout
That durst haue wrought England such vnright.'

6 But euer they sighed, and said, alas!
Vnto King Harry this answere againe:
'He is a proud Scott that will robb vs
all
If wee were twenty shipps and hee
but one.'

7 The king looket ouer his left shoulder,
Amongst his lords and barrons soe
ffree:
'Haue I neuer lord in all my realme
Will fleitch yond traitor vnto mee?'

8 'Ye  that dare I!' sayes my lord
reles Howard,
Neere to the king wheras hee did
stand;
'If that Your Grace will giue me leaue,
My selfe wilbe the only man.'

9 'Thou shalt haue six hundred men,' saith our king,
'And chuse them out of my realme
soe ffree;
Besids marriners and boyes,
To guide the great shipp on the sea.'

10 'I'le goe speake with Sir Andrew,' sais
Charles, my lord Haward;
'Vpon the sea, if hee be there;
I will bring him and his shipp to shore.
Or before my prince I will neuer come neere.

- 11 The first of all my lord did call,
A noble gunner hee was one;
This man was three score yeeres and
ten,
And Peeter Simon was his name.
- 12 'Peeter,' sais hee, 'I must sayle to the
sea,
To seeke out an enemye; God be my
speed!
Before all others I haue chosen thee;
Of a hundred gunners thoust be my
head.'
- 13 'My lord,' sais hee, 'if you haue chosen
mee
Of a hundred gunners to be the head,
Hange me att your maine-mast tree
If I misse my marke past three pence
bread.'
- 14 The next of all my lord he did call,
A noble bowman hee was one;
In Yorekeshire was this gentleman
borne,
And William Horsley was his name.
- 15 'Horsley,' sayes hee, 'I must sayle to
the sea,
To seeke out an enemye; God be my
speede!
Before all others I haue chosen thee;
Of a hundred bowemen thoust be my
head.'
- 16 'My lord,' sais hee, 'if you haue chosen
mee
Of a hundred bowemen to be the head,
Hang me att your mainemast-tree
If I misse my marke past twelue
pence bread.'
- 17 With pikes, and gunnes, and bowemen
bold,
This noble Howard is gone to the sea
On the day before midsummer-euen,
And out att Thames mouth sayled they.
- 18 They had not sayled dayes three Vpon their iourney they tooke in
hand,
But there they mett with a noble shipp,
And stontely made itt both stay and
stand.
- 19 'Thou must tell me thy name,' sais
Charles, my lord Haward,
'Or who thou art, or ffrom whence thou came,
Yea, and where thy dwelling is,
To whom and where thy shipp does belong.'
- 20 'My name,' sayes hee, 'is Henery Hunt,
With a pure hart and a penitent mind;
I and my shipp they doe belong
Vnto the New-castle that stands vpon Tine.'
- 21 'Now thou must tell me, Harry Hunt,
As thou hast sayled by day and by
night,
Hast thou not heard of a stout robber?
Men calls him Sir Andrew Barton,
knight.'
- 22 But euer he sighed, and sayd, Alas!
Ffull well, my lord, I know that
wight;
He robd me of my merchants ware,
And I was his prisoner but yester-
night.
- 23 As I was sayling vppon the sea,
And [a] Burdeaux voyage as I did
ffare,
He clasped me to his archborde,
And robd me of all my merchants-
ware.
- 24 And I am a man both poore and bare,
And euery man will haue his owne of
me,
And I am bound towards London to
ffare,
To complaine to my prince Henerye.
- 25 'That shall not need,' sais my lord
Haward;
'If thou canst lett me this robber
see,
Ffor euery peny he hath taken thee
ffroe,
Thou shalt be rewarded a shilling,'
quoth hee.
- 26 'Now God fforefend,' saies Henery
Hunt,
'My lord, you shold worke soe ffarr
amisse!

God keepe you out of that traitors
hands!

For you wott ffull litle what a man
hee is.

27 'Hee is brasse within, and steele without,
And beames hee beares in his top-castle stronge;
His shipp hath ordinance cleane round
about;
Besids, my lord, hee is verry well
mand.

28 'He hath a pinnace, is deerlye dight,
Saint Andrews crosse, that is his guide;
His pinnace beares nine score men and
more,
Besids fifteen cannons on euery side.

29 'If you were twenty shippes, and he
but one,
Either in archbord or in hall,
He wold ouercome you enerye one,
And if his beames they doe downe
ffall.'

30 'This is cold comfort,' sais my Lord
Haward,
'To wellcome a stranger thusto the sea;
I'll bring him and his shipp to shore,
Or else into Scotland hee shall carrye
mee.'

31 'Then you must gett a noble gunner,
my lord,
That can sett well with his eye,
And sinke his pinnace into the sea,
And soone then ouercome will hee bee.

32 'And when that you haue done this,
If you chance Sir Andrew for to bord,
Lett no man to his topcastle goe;
And I will giue you a glasse, my lord,

33 'And then you need to ffeare no Scott, Whether you sayle by day or by
night;
And to-morrow, by seuen of the clocke,
You shall meete with Sir Andrew
Bartton, knight.

34 'I was his prisoner but yester night,
And he hath taken mee sworne,' quoth
hee;

'I trust my L[ord] God will me fforgiue
And if that oath then broken bee.

35 'You must lend me sixe peeces, my lord,' quoth hee,

'Into my shipp, to sayle the sea,
And to-morrow, by nine of the clocke,
Your Honour againe then will I see.'

* * * * *

36 And the hache-bord where Sir Andrew lay

Is hached with gold deerlye dight:
'Now by my ffaith,' sais Charles, my lord Haward,
'Then yonder Scott is a worthy
wight!

37 'Take in your ancyents and your standards,

Yea that no man shall them see,
And put me fforth a white willow wand,
As merchants vse to sayle the sea.'

38 But they stirred neither top nor mast,
But Sir Andrew they passed by:

'Whatt English are yonder,' said Sir
Andrew,
'That can so litle curtesye?

39 'I haue beene admirall ouer the sea
More then these yeeres three;
There is neuer an English dog, nor Portingall,
Can passe this way without leaue of
mee.

40 'But now yonder pedlers, they are past,
Which is no litle greffe to me:

Ffeich them backe,' sayes Sir Andrew
Bartton,

'They shall all hang att my maine-mast tree.'

41 With that the pinnace itt shott of,
That my Lord Haward might itt well
ken;

Itt stroke downe my lords fforemast,
And killed fourteen of my lord his
men.

42 'Come hither, Simon!' sayes my lord
Haward,

'Looke that thy words be true thou
sayd;

I 'le hang thee att my maine-mast tree
If thou misse thy marke past twelue
pence bread.'

43 Simon was old, but his hart itt was
bold;
Hee tooke downe a peece, and layd
itt ffull lowe;
He put in chaine yeards nine,
Besids other great shott lesse and
more.

44 With that hee lett his gun-shott goe;
Soe well hee settled itt with his eye,
The ffirst sight that Sir Andrew sawe,
Hee see his pinnace sunke in the
sea.

45 When hee saw his pinace sunke,
Lord! in his hart hee was not well:
'Cutt my ropes! itt is time to be gon!
I 'le goe ffeitch yond pedlers backe
my selfe!'

46 When my lord Haward saw Sir Andrew loose,
Lord! in his hart that hee was ffaine:
'Strike on your drummes! spread out your ancyents!
Sound out your trumpetts! sound out amaine!'

47 'Fight on, my men!' sais Sir Andrew Barton;
'Weate, howsoeuer this geere will
sway,
Itt is my lord Adm[i]rall of England
Is come to seeke mee on the sea.'

48 Simon had a sonne; with shott of a gunn —
Well Sir Andrew might itt ken —
He shott itt in att a priuye place,
And killed sixty more of Sir Andrews men.

49 Harry Hunt came in att the other syde,
And att Sir Andrew hee shott then;
He droue downe his fformast-tree,
And killed eighty more of Sir Andriwes men.

50 'I haue done a good turne,' sayes
Harry Hunt;
'Sir Andrew is not our kings ffreind;

He hoped to haue vndone me yester-
night,
But I hope I haue quitt him well in the end.'

51 'Euer alas!' sayd Sir Andrew Barton,
'What shold a man either thinke or
say?
Yonder ffalse theeffe is my strongest
enemye,
Who was my prisoner but yesterday.

52 'Come hither to me, thou Gourden
good,
And be thou readye att my call,
And I will giue thee three hundred
pound
If thou wilt lett my beames downe
ffall.'

53 With that hee swarued the maine-mast
tree,
Soe did he itt with might and maine;
Horseley, with a bearing arrow,
Stroke the Gourden through the braine.

54 And he ffell into the haches againe,
And sore of this wound that he did bleed;
Then word went throug Sir Andrews
men,
That the Gourden hee was dead.

55 'Come hither to me, Iames Hambliton,
Thou art my sisters sonne, I haue no
more;
I will giue [thee] six hundred pound
If thou will lett my beames downe
ffall.'

56 With that hee swarued the maine-mast
tree,
Soe did hee itt with might and
maine:
Horseley, with another broad arrow,
Strake the yeaman through the
braine.

57 That hee ffell downe to the haches
againe;
Sore of his wound that hee did bleed;
Conetousness getts no gaine,
Itt is verry true, as the Welchman
sayd.

- 58 But when hee saw his sisters sonne
slaine,
Lord! in his heart hee was not well:
'Goe ffeitch me downe my armour of
proue,
Ffor I will to the topcastle my-selfe.
- 59 'Goe ffeitch me downe my armour of
prooffe,
For itt is guilded with gold soe
cleere;
God be with my brother, Iohn of Bart-
ton!
Amongst the Portingalls hee did itt weare.'
- 60 But when hee had his armour of
prooffe,
And on his body hee had itt on,
Euery man that looked att him
Sayd, Gunn nor arrow hee neede feare none.
- 61 'Come hither, Horsley!' sayes my lord
Haward,
'And looke your shaft that itt goe right;
Shoot a good shoote in the time of need,
And ffor thy shooting thoust be made a knight.'
- 62 'I'le doe my best,' sayes Horslay then,
'Your Honor shall see beffore I
goe;
If I shold be hanged att your maine-
mast,
I haue in my shipp but arrowes tow.'
- 63 But att Sir Andrew hee shott then;
Hee made sure to hitt his marke;
Vnder the spole of his right arme
Hee smote Sir Andrew quite throw the hart.
- 64 Yett ffrom the tree hee wold not start,
But hee clinged to itt with might
and maine;
Vnder the collar then of his iacke,
He stroke Sir Andrew thorow the
braine.
- 65 'Ffight on my men,' sayes Sir Andrew
Bartton,
'I am hurt, but I am not slaine;
- I'le lay mee downe and bleed a-while,
And then I'le rise and ffight againe.
- 66 'Ffight on my men,' sayes Sir Andrew
Bartton,
'These English doggs they bite soe
lowe;
Ffight on ffor Scotland and Saint Andrew
Till you heare my whistle blowe!'
- 67 But when the cold not heare his whistle
blow,
Sayes Harry Hunt, I'le lay my head
You may bord yonder noble shipp, my
lord,
For I know Sir Andrew hee is dead.
- 68 With that they barded this noble shipp,
Soe did they itt with might and
maine;
The ffound eighteen score Scotts aline,
Besids the rest were maimed and
slaine.
- 69 My lord Haward tooke a sword in his
hand,
And smote of Sir Andrews head;
The Scotts stood by did weepe and mourne,
But neuer a word durst speake or say.
- 70 He caused his body to be taken downe,
And ouer the hatch-bord cast into
the sea,
And about his middle three hundred
crownes:
'Whersoeuer thou lands, itt will bury
thee.'
- 71 With his head they sayled into England againe,
With right good will, and fforce and
main,
And the day beffore Newyeeres euen
Into Thames mouth they came
againe.
- 72 My lord Haward wrote to King Heneryes grace,
With all the newes hee cold him bring:
'Such a Newyeeres giffit I haue brought to your Gr[ace]
As neuer did subiect to any king.

73 'Ffor merchandyes and manhood,
The like is nott to be ffound;
The sight of these wold doe you good,
Ffor you haue not the like in your English ground.'

74 But when hee heard tell that they were
come,
Full royally hee welcomed them
home;
Sir Andrews shipp was the kings Newyeeres guift;
A brauer shipp you neuer saw none.

75 Now hath our king Sir Andrews shipp, Besett with pearles and precyous stones;
Now hath England two shippes of warr,
Two shippes of warr, before but one.

76 'Who holpe to this?' sayes King Henerye,
'That I may reward him ffor his
paine.'
'Harry Hunt, and Peeter Simon,
William Horseleay, and I the same.'

77 'Harry Hunt shall haue his whistle and chaine,
And all his iewells, whatsoener they
bee,
And other rich giffts that I will not
name,
For his good service he hath done
mee.

78 'Horslay, right thoust be a knight,
Lands and liuings thou shalt haue
store;
Howard shalbe erle of Nottingham,
And soe was neuer Haward before.

79 'Now, Peeter Simon, thou art old;
I will maintaine thee and thy soune;
Thou shalt haue fflue hundred pound all in gold
Ffor the good service that thou hast
done.'

80 Then King Henerye shifted his roome;
In came the Queene and ladies
bright;
Other arrands they had none
But to see Sir Andrew Barton,
knight.

81 But when they see his deadly fface,
His eyes were hollow in his head;
'I wold giue a hundred pound,' sais
King Henerye,
'The man were alieue as hee is dead !

82 'Yett ffor the manfull part that hee hath playd,
Both heere and beyond the sea,
His men shall haue halfe a crowne a day
To bring them to my brother, King Iamye.'

FLODDEN FIELD

"A booke called Jack of Newberry" was entered to Thomas Millington, March 7, 1597 (Arber, Stationers' Registers, III, 81). The edition of 1633, the earliest which Mr Halliwell-Phillipps had met with, was the ninth, published by Cuthbert Wright. The author has introduced several pieces of verse into his tale, two of them popular ballads, 'The Fair Flower of Northumberland' and this of Flodden, of which Deloney says, "in disgrace of the Scots, and in remembrance of the famous atchieved historie, the commons of England made this song, which to this day is not forgotten of manv" (p. 47). The Field of Flodden was fought September 9, 1513. For other pieces (not ballads) on Flodden, see Percy MS., Hales and Furnivall, I, 199 ff., 313 ff.; Robson, Chetham Miscellanies, 1855; The Battle of Flodden Field, edited by Henry Weber, 1806; Child, III, 353 ff.

From Deloney's Pleasant History of John Winchcomb, in his younger yeares called Jacke of Newberie, etc., London, 1633; reprinted by J. O. Halliwell, London, 1859, p. 48.

1 KING JAMIE hath made a vow,
Keepe it well if he may !
That he will be at lovely London
Upon Saint James his day.

2 'Upon Saint James his day at noone,
At faire London will I be,
And all the lords in merrie Scotland,
They shall dine there with me.'

3 Then bespake good Queene Margaret,
The teares fell from her eye:
'Leave off these warres, most noble king,
Keepe your fidelitie.

- 4 'The water runnes swift and wondrous deepe,
From bottome unto the brimme;
My brother Henry hath men good enough;
England is hard to winne.'
- 5 'Away,' quoth he, 'with this silly foole!
In prison fast let her lie:
For she is come of the English bloud,
And for these words she shall dye.'
- 6 With that bespake Lord Thomas Howard,
The queenes chamberlaine that day:
'If that you put Queene Margaret to death,
Scotland shall rue it alway.'
- 7 Then in a rage King Jamie did say,
'Away with this foolish mome!
He shall be hanged, and the other be burned,
So soone as I come home.'
- 8 At Flodden Field the Scots came in,
'Which made our English men faue;
At Bramstone Greene this battaile was seene,
There was King Jamie slaine.
- 9 Then presently the Scots did flie,
Their cannons they left behind;
Their ensignes gay were won all away,
Our souldiers did beate them blinde.
- 10 To tell you plaine, twelve thousand were slaine
That to the fight did stand,
And many prisoners tooke that day,
The best in all Scotland.
- 11 That day made many [a] fatherlesse child,
And many a widow poore,
And many a Scottish gay lady
Sate weeping in her bower.
- 12 Jack with a feather was lapt all in leather,
His boastings were all in vaine;
He had such a chance, with a new morrice-dance,
He never went home againe.

JOHNIE ARMSTRONG

'Thonne Ermistrangis dance' is mentioned in The Complaynt of Scotland, 1549 (ed. Murray, p. 66). The ballad is known in two forms,—one represented by A and B, the other by C. It was an early favorite of Goldsmith's: "The music of the finest singer is dissonance to what I felt when our old dairy-maid sung me into tears with Johnny Armstrong's Last Good-Night, or the Cruelty of Barbara Allen" (Essays, 1765, p. 14).

The Armstrongs were people of consideration in Liddesdale from the end, or perhaps from the middle, of the fourteenth century, and by the sixteenth had become the most important sept, as to numbers, in that region, not only extending themselves over a large part of the Debateable Land, but spreading also into Eskdale, Ewesdale, Wauchopedale, and Annandale. The Earl of Northumberland, in 1528, puts the power of the Armstrongs, with their adherents, above three thousand horsemen. Mangerton, in Liddesdale, on the east bank of the Liddel, a little north of its junction with the Kersope, was the seat of the chief. John Armstrong, known later as Gilnockie, a brother of Thomas, laird of Mangerton, is first heard of in 1525. Removing from Liddesdale early in the century, as it is thought, he settled on the church lands of Canonby, and at a place called The Hollows, on the west side of the Esk, built a tower, which still remains. The Armstrongs, if nominally Scots, were so far from being "in due obeysaunce" that, at a conference of commissioners of both realms in November of the year 1528, the representatives of the Scottish king could not undertake to oblige them to make a redress for injuries done the English, though a peace depended upon this condition. Both the English and the Scottish border suffered from their forays. Other measures having failed, King James V, in 1530, took the pacifying of his borders into his own hand, and for this purpose levied an army of from eight to twelve thousand men. Among the reivers who suffered death was John Armstrong of Gilnockie, the hero of the present ballad. It appears from various accounts that his capture was not effected by honorable means. There is no record of a trial, and the execution was probably as summary as the arrest was perfidious.

- 1 THERE dwelt a man in faire Westmerland,
Ionnë Armestrong men did him call,
He had nither lands nor rents coming in,
Yet he kept eight score men in his hall.
- 2 He had horse and harness for them all,
Goodly steeds were all milke-white;
O the golden bands an about their necks,
And their weapons, they were all alike.
- 3 Newes then was brought unto the king
That there was sicke a won as hee,
That livèd lyke a bold out-law,
And robbèd all the north country.
- 4 The king he writt an a letter then,
A letter which was large and long;
He signèd it with his owne hand,
And he promised to doe him no wrong.
- 5 When this letter came Ionnnë untill,
His heart it was as blythe as birds on the tree:
'Never was I sent for before any king,
My father, my grandfather, nor none but mee.
- 6 'And if wee goe the king before,
I would we went most orderly;
Every man of you shall have his scarlet cloak,
Laced with silver laces three.
- 7 'Every won of you shall have his velvet coat,
Laced with sillver lace so white;
O the golden bands an about your necks,
Black hatts, white feathers, all alyke.'
- 8 By the morrow morninge at ten of the clock,
Towards Edenborough gon was hee,
And with him all his eight score men;
Good lord, it was a goodly sight for to see!
- 9 When Ionnnë came befower the king,
He fell downe on his knee;
'O pardon, my souveraine leige,' he said,
'O pardon my eight score men and mee!'
- 10 'Thou shalt have no pardon, thou traytor strong,
For thy eight score men nor thee;
For to-morrow morning by ten of the clock,
Both thou and them shall hang on the gallow-tree.'
- 11 But Ionnnë looke'd over his left shoulder,
Good Lord, what a greivous look looked hee!
Saying, Asking grace of a graceles face—
Why there is none for you nor me.
- 12 But Ionnnë had a bright sword by his side,
And it was made of the mettle so free,
That had not the king stept his foot aside,
He had smitten his head from his faire boddë.
- 13 Saying, Fight on, my merry men all,
And see that none of you be taine;
For rather then men shall say we were hange'd,
Let them report how we were slaine.
- 14 Then, God wott, faire Eddenburrrough rose,
And so besett poore Ionnnë rounde,
That fowerscore and tenn of Ionnnës best men
Lay gasping all upon the ground.
- 15 Then like a mad man Ionnnë laide about,
And like a mad man then fought bee,
Untill a falce Scot came Ionnnë behinde,
And runn him through the faire boddee.
- 16 Saying, Fight on, my merry men all,
And see that none of you be taine;
For I will stand by and bleed but awhile,
And then will I come and fight againe.

17 Newes then was brought to young Iounë Armestrong,
 As he stood by his nurses knee,
 Who vowed if ere he live'd for to be a man,
 O the treacherous Scots revengd hee 'd
 be.

 strongs last Good-Night,' A Collection of Old
 Ballads, 1723, I, 170.

1 Is there never a man in all Scotland,
 From the highest state to the lowest degree,
 That can shew himself now before the
 king?
 Scotland is so full of their traitery.

2 Yes, there is a man in Westmerland,
 And John Armstrong some do him
 call;
 He has no lands nor rents coming in,
 Yet he keeps eightscore men within his hall.

3 He has horse and harness for them all,
 And goodly steeds that be milk-white,
 With their goodly belts about their necks,
 With hats and feathers all alike.

4 The king he writ a lovely letter,
 With his own hand so tenderly,
 And has sent it unto John Armstrong,
 To come and speak with him speedily.

5 When John he looked the letter upon,
 Then, Lord! he was as blithe as a bird in a tree:
 'I was never before no king in my life,
 My father, my grandfather, nor none of us three.

6 'But seeing we must [go] before the king,
 Lord! we will go most valiantly;
 You shall every one have a velvet coat,
 Laid down with golden laces three.

7 'And you shall every one have a scarlet cloak,
 Laid down with silver laces five,

With your golden belts about your necks,
 With hats [and] brave feathers all alike.'

8 But when John he went from Guiltknock
 Hall!
 The wind it blew hard, and full sore it did rain:
 'Now fare you well, brave Guiltknock
 Hall!
 I fear I shall never see thee again.'

9 Now John he is to Edenborough gone,
 And his eightscore men so gallantly,
 And every one of them on a milk-white
 steed,
 With their bucklers and swords hanging down to the knee.

10 But when John he came the king before,
 With his eightscore men so gallant to
 see,
 The king he moved his bonnet to him;
 He thought he had been a king as well as he.

11 'O pardon, pardon, my sovereign leige, Pardon for my eightscore men and
 me!
 For my name it is John Armstrong,
 And a subject of yours, my leige,' said
 he.

12 'Away with thee, thou false traitor!
 No pardon I will grant to thee,
 But, to-morrow before eight of the clock,
 I will hang thy eightscore men and
 thee.'

13 O how John looked over his left shoulder!
 And to his merry men thus said he:
 I have asked grace of a graceless face,
 No pardon here is for you nor me.

14 Then John pulld out a nut-brown
 sword,
 And it was made of mettle so free;
 Had not the king moved his foot as he did,
 John had taken his head from his body.

15 'Come, follow me, my merry men all,
 We will scorn one foot away to fly;

It never shall be said we were hung like doggs;
No, wee 'l fight it out most manfully.'

16 Then they fought on like champions
bold —
For their hearts was sturdy, stout, and free —
Till they had killed all the kings good guard;
There was none left alive but onely
three.

17 But then rise up all Edenborough,
They rise up by thousands three;
Then a cowardly Scot came John behind,
And run him thorow the fair body.

18 Said John, Fight on, my merry men all,
I am a little hurt, but I am not slain;
I will lay me down for to bleed a while,
Then I 'le rise and fight with you
again.

19 Then they fought on like mad men all,
Till many a man lay dead on the plain;
For they were resolved, before they would yield,
That every man would there be slain.

20 So there they fought couragiously,
'Till most of them lay dead there and
slain,
But little Musgrave, that was his foot-
page,
With his bonny grissell got away un-
tain.

21 But when he came up to Guiltknock Hall,
The lady spyed him presently:
'What news, what news, thou little foot-page?
What news from thy master and his company?'

22 'My news is bad, lady,' he said,
'Which I do bring, as you may see;
My master, John Armstrong, he is slain,
And all his gallant company.'

23 'Yet thou are welcome home, my bonny grisel!
Full oft thou hast fed at the corn and
hay,

But now thou shalt be fed with bread and
wine,
And thy sides shall be spurred no more, I say.'

24 O then bespoke his little son,
As he was set on his nurses knee:
'If ever I live for to be a man,
My fathers blood revenged shall be.'

C

'Johnie Armstrong,' Allan Ramsay, The Ever Green, 1724, II, 190, "copied from a gentleman's mouth of the name of Armstrong, who is the 6th generation from this John."

1 SUM speiks of lords, sum speiks of lairds,
And siclyke men of hie degrie;
Of a gentleman I sing a sang,
Suntyme calld Laird of Gilnockie.

2 The king he wrytes a luvng letter,
With his ain hand sae tenderly:
And he hath sent it to Johny Armstrong,
To cum and speik with him speidily.

3 The Eliots and Armstrangs did convene,
They were a gallant company:
'We 'ill ryde and meit our lawful king,
And bring him safe to Gilnockie.'

4 'Make kinnen and capon ready, then,
And venison in great plenty;
We 'ill welcome hame our royal king;
I hope he 'ill dyne at Gilnockie!'

5 They ran their horse on the Langum howm,
And brake their speirs with mekle
main;
The ladys lukit frae their loft-windows,
'God bring our men weil back again!'

6 When Johny came before the king,
With all his men sae brave to see,
The king he movit his bonnet to him;
He weind he was a king as well as he.

7 'May I find grace, my sovereign liege,
Grace for my loyal men and me?
For my name it is Johny Armstrong,
And subject of yours, my liege,' said
he.

- 8 'Away, away, thou traytor, strang!
Out of my sicht thou mayst sune be!
I grantit nevir a traytors lyfe,
And now I'll not begin with thee.'
- 9 'Grant me my lyfe, my liege, my king,
And a bony gift I will give to thee;
Full four-and-twenty milk-whyte steids,
Were a' foald in a yeir to me.
- 10 'I'll gie thee all these milk-whyte steids,
That prance and nicher at a speir,
With as mekle gude Inglis gilt
As four of their braid backs dow beir.'
- 11 'Away, away, thou traytor strang!
Out o' my sicht thou mayst sune be!
I grantit nevir a traytors lyfe,
And now I'll not begin with thee.'
- 12 'Grant me my lyfe, my liege, my king,
And a bony gift I'll gie to thee;
Gude four-and-twenty gauging mills,
That gang throw a' the yeir to me.
- 13 'These four-and-twenty mills complete
Sall gang for thee throw all the yeir,
And as mekle of gude reid wheit
As all their happers dow to bear.'
- 14 'Away, away, thou traytor, strang!
Out of my sicht thou mayst sune be!
I grantit nevir a traytors lyfe,
And now I'll not begin with thee.'
- 15 'Grant me my lyfe, my liege, my king,
And a great gift I'll gie to thee;
Bauld four-and-twenty sisters sons,
Sall for the fecht, tho all sould flee.'
- 16 'Away, away, thou traytor, strang!
Out of my sicht thou mayst sune be!
I grantit nevir a traytors lyfe,
And now I'll not begin with thee.'
- 17 'Grant me my lyfe, my liege, my king,
And a brave gift I'll gie to thee;
All betwene heir and Newcastle town
Sall pay thair yeirly rent to thee.'
- 18 'Away, away, thou traytor, strang!
Out of my sicht thou mayst sune be!
I grantit nevir a traytors lyfe,
And now I'll not begin with thee.'
- 19 'Ye lied, ye lied, now, king,' he says,
'Althocht a king and prince ye be,
For I luid naithing in all my lyfe,
I dare well say it, but honesty;
- 20 'But a fat horse, and a fair woman,
Twa bony dogs to kill a deir:
But Ingland suld haif found me meil
and malt,
Gif I had livd this hundred yeir!
- 21 'Scho suld haif found me meil and malt,
And beif and mutton in all plentie;
But neir a Scots wyfe could haif said
That eir I skaithd her a pure flie.
- 22 'To seik het water beneth could yce,
Surely it is a great folie;
I haif asked grace at a graceless face,
But there is nane for my men and me.
- 23 'But had I kend, or I came frae hame,
How thou unkynd wadst bene to me,
I wad haif kept the border-syde,
In spyte of all thy force and thee.
- 24 'Wist Englands king that I was tane,
O gin a blyth man wald he be!
For anes I slew his sisters son,
And on his breist-bane brak a tree.'
- 25 John wore a girdle about his midle,
Imbroiderd owre with burning gold,
Bespangled with the same mettle,
Maist beautifull was to behold.
- 26 Ther hang nine targats at Johnys hat,
And ilk an worth three hundred
pound:
'What wants that knave that a king
suld haif,
But the sword of honour and the crown!
- 27 'O whair gat thou these targats, Johnie,
That blink sae brawly abune thy brie?'
I gat them in the field fechtin,
Wher, cruel king, thou durst not be.
- 28 'Had I my horse, and my harness gude,
And ryding as I wont to be,
It sould haif bene tald this hundred yeir
The meiting of my king and me.

29 'God be withee, Kirsty, my brither,
Lang live thou Laird of Mangertoun!
Lang mayst thou live on the border-
syde
Or thou se thy brither ryde up and doun.

30 'And God be withee, Kirsty, my son,
Whair thou sits on thy nurses knee!
But and thou live this hundred yeir,
Thy fathers better thoult never be.

31 'Farweil, my bonny Gilnock-Hall,
Whair on Esk-syde thou standest stout!
Gif I had lived but seven yeirs mair,
I wald haif gilt thee round about.'

32 John mured was at Carlinrigg,
And all his galant companie:
But Scotlands heart was never sae wae,
To see sae mony brave men die.

33 Because they savd their country deir
Frae Englishmen; nane were sae
bauld,
Whyle Johnie livd on the border-syde,
Nane of them durst cum neir his hald.

THE DEATH OF QUEEN JANE

Jane Seymour gave birth to Prince Edward October 12, 1537, and by a natural process, but, in consequence of imprudent management, died twelve days after. There was a belief that severe surgery had been required, under which the queen sank.

Percy Papers, communicated to Percy by the Dean of Derry, as written from memory by his mother, Mrs Bernard, February, 1776.

1 QUEEN JANE was in labour full six weeks and more,
And the women were weary, and fain
would give oer:
'O women, O women, as women ye be,
Rip open my two sides, and save my baby!'

2 'O royal Queen Jane, that thing may not be;
We'll send for King Henry to come
unto thee.'

King Henry came to her, and sate on her bed:

'What ails my dear lady, her eyes look so red?'

3 'O royal King Henry, do one thing for
me:

Rip open my two sides, and save my baby!'

'O royal Queen Jane, that thing will not do;

If I lose your fair body, I'll lose your baby too.'

4 She wept and she waild, and she wrung
her hands sore;

O the flour of England must flourish
no more!

She wept and she waild till she fell in a
swoond,

They opend her two sides, and the baby was found.

5 The baby was christened with joy and
much mirth,

Whilst poor Queen Jane's body lay cold under earth:

There was ringing and singing and mourning all day,

The princess Eliz[abeth] went weeping away.

6 The trumpets in mourning so sadly did
sound,

And the pikes and the muskets did trail on the ground.

'Queen Jeanie,' Kinloch's Ancient Scottish
Ballads, p. 116.

1 QUEEN JEANIE, Queen Jeanie, traveld six weeks and more,

Till women and midwives had quite
gien her oer:

'O if ye were women as women should be,
Ye would send for a doctor, a doctor
to me.'

2 The doctor was called for and set by her bedside:

‘What aileth thee, my ladie, thine eyes seem so red?’

‘O doctor, O doctor, will ye do this for me, To rip up my two sides, and save my babie?’

3 ‘Queen Jeanie, Queen Jeanie, that’s the thing I’ll neer do, To rip up your two sides to save your babie:’

Queen Jeanie, Queen Jeanie, traveld six weeks and more, Till midwives and doctors had quite gien her oer.

4 ‘O if ye were doctors as doctors should be, Ye would send for King Henry, King Henry to me’

King Henry was called for, and sat by her bedside,

‘What aileth thee, Jeanie? what aileth my bride?’

5 ‘King Henry, King Henry, will ye do this for me, To rip up my two sides, and save my babie?’

‘Queen Jeanie, Queen Jeanie, that’s what I’ll never do, To rip up your two sides to save your babie.’

6 But with sighing and sobbing she’s fallen in a swoon,

Her side it was ript up, and her babie was found;

At this bonie babie’s christning there was meikle joy and mirth, But bonnie Queen Jeanie lies cold in the earth.

7 Six and six coaches, and six and six more, And royal King Henry went mourning before;

O two and two gentlemen carried her away, But royal King Henry went weeping away.

8 O black were their stockings, and black were their bands, And black were the weapons they held in their hands;

O black were their mufflers, and black were their shoes, And black were the cheverons they drew on their luvies.

9 They mourned in the kitchen, and they mournd in the ha, But royal King Henry mournd langest of a’:

Farewell to fair England, farewell for evermore!

For the fair flower of England will never shine more.

THOMAS CROMWELL

June 10, 1540, Thomas Lord Cromwell, “when he least expected it,” was arrested at the council-table by the Duke of Norfolk for high-treason, and on the 28th of July following he was executed. Cromwell, says Lord Herbert of Cherbury, judged “his perdition more certain that the duke was uncle to the Lady Katherine Howard, whom the king began now to affect.” Later writers have asserted that Katherine Howard exerted herself to procure Cromwell’s death, and we can understand nobody else but her to be doing this in the third stanza of this fragment; nevertheless there is no authority for such a representation. The king had no personal interview with the minister whom he so suddenly struck down, but he did send the Duke of Norfolk and two others to visit Cromwell in prison, for the purpose of extracting confessions pertaining to Anne of Cleves. Cromwell wrote two letters to the king, imploring the mercy which, as well as confession, he refuses in stanza five. (See Merriman, Life and Letters of Thomas Cromwell, 1902.)

‘Nay, it is not touching your crowne,’

For Thomas had woout to haue carryed his head vp,
But now he hanges it vppon his knee.

5 'How now? How now?' the king did
say,
'Thomas, how is it with thee?'
'Hanging and drawing, O king!' he
saide;
'You shall neuer gett more from

MUSSELBURGH FIELD

The Protector Somerset, to overcome or to punish the opposition of the Scots to the marriage of Mary Stuart with Edward VI, invaded Scotland at the end of the summer of 1547 with eighteen thousand men, supported by a fleet. The Scots mustered at Musselburgh, a town on the water five or six miles east of Edinburgh. The northern army abandoned an impregnable position, and their superior, but ill-managed and partly ill-composed force, after successfully resisting a cavalry charge, was put to flight by the English, who had an advantage in cannon and cavalry as well as generalship. A hideous slaughter followed; it is said that in the chase and battle, there were slain above ten thousand Scots. The battle is known also by the name of Pinkie or Pinkie Cleuch, appellations of an estate, a burn and a hill, near or within the field of operations.

The ballad is perhaps quoted by Sir Toby, in Twelfth Night, act ii, scene 3: "O, the twelfth day of December!"

'Musleboorrowe ffeild,' Percy MS., p. 54; Hales and Furnivall, i, 123.

1 ON the tenth day of December,
And the fourth yeere of King Edwards
raigne,

Att Musleboorrowe, as I remember,
Two goodly hosts there mett on a
plaine.

2 All that night they camped there,
Soe did the Scotts, both stout and stubborne;
But "wellaway," it was their song,
For wee hane taken them in their owne turne.

3 Over night they carded for our English
mens coates;
They fished before their netts were
spunn;
A white for sixpence, a red for two groates;
Now wisdome wold haue stayed till they had been woone.

4 Wee feared not but that they wold
fight,
Yett itt was turned vnto their owne
paine;
Thoe against one of vs that they were eight,
Yett with their owne weapons wee did them beat.

5 On the twelfth day in the morne
The made a face as the wold fight,
But many a proud Scott there was downe
borne,
And many a ranke coward was put to flight.

6 But when they heard our great gunnes
cracke,
Then was their harts turned into their hose;
They cast down their weapons, and turned their backes,
They ran soe fast that the fell on their nose.

7 The Lord Huntley, wee had him there;
With him hee brought ten thousand
men,
Yett, God bee thanked, wee made them
such a banquet
That none of them returned againe.

8 Wee chased them to D[alkeith]

MARY HAMILTON

When Mary Stuart was sent to France in 1548, being then between five and six, she had four companions "sundry gentlewomen and noblemen's sons and daughters, almost of her own age, of the which there were four in special of whom every one of them bore the same name of Mary, being of four sundry honorable houses, to wit, Fleming, Livingston, Seton, and Beaton of Creich; who remained all four with the queen in France during her residence there, and returned again in Scotland with her Majesty in the year of our Lord 1561." Leeley, History of Scotland, 1830, p. 209.

This ballad purports to relate the tragic history of one of the queen's Marias. In some of the versions her lover is said to be the king (Darnley). The ballad seems to have taken its rise in an incident which occurred at Mary's court in 1563, which involved the queen's apothecary and "a French woman that served in the queen's chamber." There is also a striking coincidence between the ballad and the fate of a Miss Hamilton who, in the reign of Peter the Great, was one of the attendants of the Russian Empress. The subject is fully discussed by Professor Child, Ballads, III, 381 ff., v, 298 f., and Mr Andrew Lang, Blackwood's Magazine, September, 1895, pp. 381 ff.

Aungervyle Society's publications, No. v, p. 5 (First Series, p. 85); "taken down early in the present century from the lips of an old lady in Annandale."

- 1 WORD 's gane to the kitchen,
And word 's gane to the ha,
That Marie Hamilton gangs wi bairn
To the hichest Stewart of a'.
- 2 He 's courted her in the kitchen,
He 's courted her in the ha,
He 's courted her in the laigh cellar,
And that was warst of a'.
- 3 She 's tyed it in her apron
And she 's thrown it in the sea;
Says, Sink ye, swim ye, bonny wee babe!
You 'l neer get mair o me.

- 4 Down then cam the auld queen,
Goud tassels tying her hair:
'O Marie, where 's the bonny wee babe
That I heard greet sae sair?'
- 5 'There was never a babe intill my room,
As little designs to be;
It was but a touch o my sair side,
Come oer my fair bodie.'
- 6 'O Marie, put on your robes o black,
Or else your robes o brown,
For ye maun gang wi me the night,
To see fair Edinbro town.'
- 7 'I winna put on my robes o black,
Nor yet my robes o brown;
But I 'll put on my robes o white,
To shine through Edinbro town.'
- 8 When she gaed up the Cannogate,
She laughd loud laughters three;
But whan she cam down the Cannogate
The tear blinded her ee.
- 9 When she gaed up the Parliament stair,
The heel cam aff her shce;
And lang or she cam down again
She was condemn'd to dee.
- 10 When she cam down the Cannogate,
The Cannogate sae free,
Many a ladie lookd oer her window,
Weeping for this ladie.
- 11 'Ye need nae weep for me,' she says,
'Ye need nae weep for me;
For had I not slain mine own sweet babe,
This death I wadna dee.
- 12 'Bring me a bottle of wine,' she says,
'The best that eer ye hae,
That I may drink to my weil-wishers,
And they may drink to me.
- 13 'Here 's a health to the jolly sailors,
That sail upon the main;
Let them never let on to my father and
mother
But what I 'm coming hame.
- 14 'Here 's a health to the jolly sailors,
That sail upon the sea;
Let them never let on to my father and
mother
That I cam here to dee.

- 15 'Oh little did my mother think,
The day she cradled me,
What lands I was to travel through,
What death I was to dee.
- 16 'Oh little did my father think,
The day he held up me,
What lands I was to travel through,
What death I was to dee.
- 17 'Last night I washd the queen's feet,
And gently laid her down;
And a' the thanks I've gotten the nicht
To be hangd in Edinbro town!
- 18 'Last nicht there was four Maries,
The nicht there 'l be but three;
There was Marie Seton, and Marie
Beton,
And Marie Carmichael, and me.'

'Mary Hamilton,' Motherwell's MS., p. 337.

- 1 THERE were ladies, they lived in a bower,
And oh but they were fair!
The youngest o themisto the king's court,
To learn some unco lair.
- 2 She hadna been in the king's court
A twelve month and a day,
Till of her they could get na wark,
For wantonness and play.
- 3 Word is to the kitchen gane,
And word is to the ha,
And word is up to Madame the Queen,
And that is warst of a',
That Mary Hamilton has born a bairn,
To the hichest Stewart of a'.
- 4 'O rise, O rise, Mary Hamilton,
O rise, and tell to me
What thou did with thy sweet babe
We sair heard weep by thee.'
- 5 'Hold your tongue, madame,' she said,
'And let your folly be;
It was a shouir o sad sickness
Made me weep sae bitterlie.'
- 6 'O rise, O rise, Mary Hamilton,
O rise, and tell to me
What thou did with thy sweet babe
We sair heard weep by thee.'
- 7 'I put it in a piner-pig,
And set it on the sea;
I bade it sink, or it might swim,
It should neer come hame to me.'
- 8 'O rise, O rise, Mary Hamilton,
Arise, and go with me;
There is a wedding in Glasgow town
This day we 'll go and see.'
- 9 She put not on her black clothing,
She put not on her brown,
But she put on the glistering gold,
To shine thro Edinburgh town.
- 10 As they came into Edinburgh town,
The city for to see,
The bailie's wife and the provost's wif
Said, Och an alace for thee!
- 11 'Gie never alace for me,' she said,
'Gie never alace for me;
It's all for the sake of my poor babe,
This death that I maun die.'
- 12 As they gaed up the Tolbuith stair,
The stair it was sae hie,
The bailie's son and the provost's son
Said, Och an alace for thee!
- 13 'Gie never alace for me,' she said,
'Gie never alace for me!
It's all for the sake of my puir babe,
This death that I maun die.'
- 14 'But bring to me a cup,' she says,
'A cup bot and a can,
And I will drink to all my friends,
And they 'll drink to me again.'
- 15 'Here's to you all, travellers,
Who travels by land or sea;
Let na wit to my father nor mother
The death that I must die.'
- 16 'Here's to you all, travellers,
That travels on dry land;
Let na wit to my father nor mother
But I am coming hame.'
- 17 'Little did my mother think,
First time she cradled me,

What land I was to travel on,
Or what death I would die.

- 18 'Little did my mother think,
First time she tied my head,
What land I was to tread upon,
Or where I would win my bread.
- 19 'Yestreen Queen Mary had four Maries,
This night she 'll hae but three;
She had Mary Seaton, and Mary Beaton,
And Mary Carmichael, and me.
- 20 'Yestreen I wush Queen Mary's feet,
And bore her till her bed;
This day she 's given me my reward,
This gallows-tree to tread.
- 21 'Cast off, cast off my gown,' she said,
'But let my petticoat be,
And tye a napkin on my face,
For that gallows I downa see.'
- 22 By and cum the king himsell,
Lookd up with a pitiful ee:
'Come down, come down, Mary Hamil-
ton,
This day thou wilt dine with me.'
- 23 'Hold your tongne, my sovereign leige,
And let your folly be;
An ye had a mind to save my life,
Ye should na shamed me here.'

EARL BOTHWELL

This ballad represents the murder of Darnley as done in revenge for his complicity in the murder of Riccio. The Regent Murray is described as "banishing" Queen Mary, whereupon she fled to England. Mary escaped from Lochleven Castle on the second of May, 1568, and took refuge in England on the sixteenth. We must suppose the ballad to have been made not long after.

'Earle Bodwell,' Percy MS., p. 272; Hales and Furnivall, II, 260.

- 1 WOE worth thee, woe worth thee, false Scottlande!
Ffor thou hast euer wrought by a sleight;

For the worthyest prince that euer was
borne,
You hanged vnder a cloud by night.

- 2 The Queene of France a letter wrote,
And sealed itt with hart and ringe,
And bade him come Scotland within,
And shee wold marry him and crowne him king.
- 3 To be a king, itt is a pleasant thing,
To bee a prince vnto a peere;
But you haue heard, and so haue I too,
A man may well by gold to deere.
- 4 There was an Italian in that place,
Was as wel beloued as euer was hee;
Lord David was his name,
Chamberlaine vnto the queene was hee.
- 5 Ffor if the king had risen forth of his place,
He wold haue sitt him downe in the cheare,
And tho itt beseemed him not soe well,
Altho the king had beene present
there.
- 6 Some lords in Scotland waxed wonder-ous wroth,
And quarrelld with him for the nounce;
I shall you tell how itt beffell;
Twelue daggers were in him all att
once.
- 7 When this queene see the chamberlaine was slaine,
For him her cheeks shee did weete,
And made a vow for a twelue month
and a day
The king and shee wold not come in one sheete.
- 8 Then some of the lords of Scotland
waxed wrothe,
And made their vow vehementlye,
'For death of the queenes chamber-
laine
The king himselfe he shall dye.'
- 9 They strowed his chamber ouer with gunpowder,
And layd greene rushes in his way;
Ffor the traitors thought that night
The worthy king for to betray.

10 To bedd the worthy king made him
bowne,
To take his rest, that was his desire;
He was noe sooner cast on sleepe,
But his chamber was on a blasing fyer.

11 Vp he lope, and a glasse window broke,
He had thirty foote for to ffall;
Lord Bodwell kept a priuy wach
Vnderneath his castle-wall:
'Who haue wee heere?' sayd Lord Bod-
well;
'Answer me, now I doe call.'

12 'King Henery the Eighth my vnckle
was;
Some pittie show for his sweet sake!
Ah, Lord Bodwell, I know thee well;
Some pittie on me I pray thee take!'

13 'I 'le pittie thee as much,' he sayd,
'And as much favor I 'le show to
thee
As thou had on the queene's chamber-
laine
That day thou deemedst him to dye.'

14 Through halls and towers this king they ledd,
Through castles and towers that were
hye,
Through an arbor into an orchard,
And there hanged him in a peare tree.

15 When the gouernor of Scottland he heard tell
That the worthe king he was slaine,
He hath banished the queene soe bitterlye
That in Scottland shee dare not re-
maine.

16 But shee is fled into merry England,
And Scottland to a side hath laine,
And through the Queene of Englands good grace
Now in England shee doth remaine.

THE RISING IN THE NORTH

The ballad, which is the work of a loyal but not unsympathetic minstrel, gives a cursory and imperfect account of the rebellion of the Earls of Northumberland and Westmoreland in 1569.

'Risinge in the Northe,' Percy MS., p. 256;
Hales and Furnivall, II, 210.

1 LISTEN, liuely lordings all,
And all that beene this place within:
If you 'le giue eare vnto my souge,
I will tell you how this geere did
begin.

2 It was the good Erle of Westmorlande,
A noble erle was call'd hee,
And he wrought treason against the
crowne;
Alas, itt was the more pittye!

3 And soe itt was the Erle of Northum-
berland,
Another good noble erle was hee;
They tooke both vpon one part,
Against the crowne they wolden bee.

4 Earle Percy is into his garden gone,
And after walkes his awne ladye:
'I heare a bird sing in my eare
That I must either flight or flee.'

5 'God fforbidd,' shee sayd, 'good my
lord,
That euer soe that it shalbee!
But goe to London to the court,
And faire ffall truth and honestye!'

6 'But nay, now nay, my ladye gay,
That euer it shold soe bee;
My treason is knowen well enoughe;
Att the court I must not bee.'

7 'But goe to the court yet, good my lord,
Take men enowe with thee;
If any man will doe you wronge,
Your warrant they may bee.'

8 'But nay, now nay, my lady gay,
For soe itt must not bee;
If I goe to the court, ladye,
Death will strike me, and I must dye.'

9 'But goe to the court yett, [good] my
lord,
I my-selfe will ryde with thee;
If any man will doe you wronge,
Your borrow I shalbee.'

- 10 'But nay, now nay, my lady gay,
For soe it must not bee;
For if I goe to the court, ladye,
Thou must me neuer see.
- 11 'But come hither, thou litle foot-page,
Come thou hither vnto mee,
For thou shalt goe a message to Master
Norton,
In all the hast that euer may bee.
- 12 'Comend me to that gentleman;
Bring him here this letter from mee,
And say, I pray him earnestlye
That hee will ryde in my companye.'
- 13 But one while the foote-page went,
Another while he rann;
Vntill he came to Master Norton,
The ffoot-page neuer blanne.
- 14 And when he came to Master Nortton,
He kneeled on his knee,
And tooke the letter betwixt his hands,
And lett the gentleman it see.
- 15 And when the letter itt was reade,
Affore all his companye,
I-wis, if you wold know the truth,
There was many a weeping eye.
- 16 He said, Come hither, Kester Nortton,
A ffine ffellow thou seemes to bee;
Some good counsell, Kester Nortton,
This day doe thou giue to mee.
- 17 'Marry, I 'le giue you conncell, ffather,
If you 'le take counsell att me,
That if you haue spoken the word,
father,
That backe againe you doe not flee.'
- 18 'God a mercy! Christopher Nortton,
I say, God a mercye!
If I doe liue and scape with liffe,
Well advanced shalt thou bee.
- 19 'But come you hither, my nine good
sonnes,
In mens estate I thinke you bee;
How many of you, my children deare,
On my part that wilbe?'
- 20 But eight of them did answer soone,
And spake ffull hastilye;

Sayes, We wilbe on your part, ffather,
Till the day that we doe dye.

- 21 'But God a mercy! my children deare,
And euer I say God a mercy!
And yett my blessing you shall haue,
Whether-soeuer I liue or dye.
- 22 'But what sayst thou, thou Ffrancis
Nortton,
Mine eldest sonne and mine heyre
trulye?
Some good counsell, Ffrancis Nortton,
This day thou giue to me.'
- 23 'But I will giue you counsell, ffather,
If you will take counsell att mee;
For if you wold take my counsell, father,
Against the crowne you shold not bee.'
- 24 'But ffye vpon thee, Ffrancis Nortton
I say ffye vpon thee!
When thou was younge and tender of
age
I made ffull much of thee.'
- 25 'But your head is white, ffather,' he
sayes,
'And your beard is wonderous gray;
Itt were shame ffor your cuntrye
If you shold rise and fflee away.'
- 26 'But ffye vpon thee, thou coward Ffran-cis!
Thou neuer tookest that of mee!
When thou was younge and tender of
age
I made too much of thee.'
- 27 'But I will goe with you, father,' quoth
hee;
'Like a naked man will I bee;
He that strikes the first stroake against the crowne,
An ill death may hee dye!'
- 28 But then rose vpp Master Nortton, that esquier,
With him a ffull great companye;
And then the erles they comen downe
To ryde in his companye.
- 29 Att Whethersbye the mustered their
men,
Vpon a ffull fayre day;

Thirteen thousand there were seene
To stand in battel ray.

30 The Erle of Westmoreland, he had in his ancyent
The dunn bull in sight most hye,
And three doggs with golden collers
Were sett out royallye.

31 The Erle of Northumberland, he had in his ancyent
The halfe moone in sight soe hye,
As the Lord was crucifyed on the crosse,
And set forthe pleasantlye.

32 And after them did rise good Sir George
Bowes,
After them a spoyle to make;
The erles returned backe againe,
Thought euer that knight to take.

33 This barron did take a castle then,
Was made of lime and stone;
The vttermost walls were ese to be woon;
The erles haue woon them anon.

34 But tho they woone the vttermost walls,
Quickly and anon,
The innermost walles the cold not winn;
The were made of a rocke of stone.

35 But newes itt came to leene London,
In all the speede that euer might bee;
And word it came to our royall queene
Of all the rebels in the north coun-
trye.

36 Shee turned her grace then once about,
And like a royall queene shee sware;
Sayes, I will ordaine them such a breake-
fast
As was not in the north this thousand
yeere !

37 Shee caused thirty thousand men to be
made,
With horsse and harneis all quicklye;
And shee caused thirty thousand men to be made,
To take the rebels in the north coun-
trye.

38 They tooke with them the false Erle of Warwicke,
Soe did they many another man;

Vntill they came to Yorke castle,
I-wis they neuer stinted nor blan.

* * * * *

39
‘ Spread thy ancyent, Erle of Westmore-
land !
The halfe-moone ffaine wold wee see !’

40 But the halfe-moone is fled and gone,
And the dun bull vanished awaye;
And Ffrancis Nortton and his eight
sonnes
Are fled away most cowardlye.

41 Ladds with mony are counted men,
Men without mony are counted none;
But hold your tounge ! why say you soe?
Men wilbe men when mony is gone.

NORTHUMBERLAND BETRAYED BY DOUGLAS

The Earl of Northumberland, after the failure of the Rising in the North, took refuge in Liddesdale, but was soon given up to the Regent Murray, and confined in the castle of Lochleven. Here he remained, in the custody of Douglas of Lochleven, from January, 1570, to June, 1572. The Countess of Northumberland had offered Douglas two thousand pounds for her husband ; but, as the result of diplomatic negotiations, the same amount was paid by Lord Hunsdon, Queen Elizabeth's representative, and the Earl was put into his hands. The ballad-minstrel acquaints us with circumstances concerning this surrender which are unknown to the historians.

‘ Northumberland betrayd by Dowglas.’
Percy MS., p. 259 ; Hales and Furnivall, II, 217.

1 Now list and lithe, you gentlemen,
And I’st tell you the veretye,
How they haue dealt with a banished
man,
Driuen out of his countrye.

2 When as hee came on Scottish ground,
As woe and wonder be them amonge !
Ffull much was there traitorye
The wrought the Erle of Northumberland.

- 3 When they were att the supper sett,
Beffore many goodly gentlemen,
The fell a flouting and mocking both,
And said to the Erle of Northumber-
land:
- 4 'What makes you be soe sad, my lord,
And in your mind soe sorrowfullye?
In the north of Scotland to-morrow
there's a shooting,
And thither thou 'st goe, my Lord
Percye.
- 5 'The buttes are sett, and the shooting
is made,
And there is like to be great royaltie,
And I am sworne into my bill
Thither to bring my Lord Percy.'
- 6 'I 'le giue thee my hand, Douglas,' he
sayes,
'And be the faith in my bodye,
If that thou wilt ryde to the worlds end,
I 'le ryde in thy companye.'
- 7 And then bespake the good ladye,
Marry a Douglas was her name:
'You shall byde here, good English
lord;
My brother is a traiterous man.
- 8 'He is a traitor stout and stronge,
As I 'st tell you the veretye;
For he hath tane liuerance of the Erle,
And into England he will liur thee.'
- 9 'Now hold thy tounge, thou goodlye
ladye,
And let all this talking bee;
Ffor all the gold that's in Long Leuen,
William wold not liur mee.
- 10 'It wold breake truce betweene England and Scotland,
And freinds againe they wold neuer
bee,
If he shold liur a bani[s]ht erle,
Was driuen out of his owne countrye.'
- 11 'Hold your tounge, my lord,' shee sayes,
'There is much ffalsehood them
amonge;
When you are dead, then they are done,
Soone they will part them freinds
againe.
- 12 'If you will giue me any trust, my
lord,
I 'le tell you how you best may bee;
You 'st lett my brother ryde his wayes,
And tell those English lords, trulye,
- 13 'How that you cannot with them ryde,
Because you are in an ile of the sea;
Then, ere my brother come againe,
To Edenborrow castle I 'le carry thee.
- 14 'I 'le liur you vnto the Lord Hume,
And you know a trew Scothe lord is
hee,
For he hath lost both land and goods
In ayding of your good bodye.'
- 15 'Marry, I am woe, woman,' he sayes,
'That any freind fares worse for
mee;
For where one saith it is a true tale,
Then two will say it is a lye.
- 16 'When I was att home in my [realme],
Amonge my tennants all trulye,
In my time of losse, wherin my need
stoode,
They came to ayd me honestlye.
- 17 'Therefore I left a many a child ffather-lese,
And many a widdow to looke wanne;
And therefore blame nothing, ladye,
But the woefull warres which I began.'
- 18 'If you will giue me noe trust, my
lord,
Nor noe credence you will give mee,
And you 'le come hither to my right
hand,
Indeed, my lord, I 'le lett you see.'
- 19 Saies, I neuer loued noe witchcraft,
Nor neuer dealt with treacherye,
But enermore held the hye way;
Alas, that may be seene by mee!
- 20 'If you will not come your selfe, my
lord,
You 'le lett your chamberlaine goe
with mee,
Three words that I may to him speake,
And soone he shall come againe to
thee.'

- 21 When Iames Swynard came that lady
before,
Shee let him see thorow the weme
of her ring
How many there was of English lords
To wayte there for his master and
him.
- 22 'But who beene yonder, my good ladye,
That walkes soe royallye on yonder
greene?'
'Yonder is Lord Hunsden, Iamy,' she
saye[d],
'Alas, hee'le doe you both tree and teene!'
- 23 'And who beene yonder, thou gay
ladye,
That walkes soe royallye him be-
side?'
'Yond is Sir William Drurye, Iamy,' shee sayd,
'And a keene captain hee is, and tryde.'
- 24 'How many miles is itt, thou good
ladye,
Betwixt yond English lord and mee?'
'Marry, thrise fifty mile, Iamy,' shee
sayd,
'And euen to seale and by the sea.'
- 25 'I neuer was on English ground,
Nor neuer see itt with mine eye,
But as my witt and wisdomes serues,
And as [the] booke it telleth mee.'
- 26 'My mother, shee was a witch woman,
And part of itt shee learned mee;
Shee wold let me see out of Lough
Leuen
What they dyd in London cytye.'
- 27 'But who is yonde, thou good laydye,
That comes yonder with an osterne
fface?'
'Yond's Sir Iohn Forster, Iamy,' shee
sayd;
'Methinkes thou sholdest better know him then I.'
'Euen soe I doe, my goodlye ladye,
And euer alas, soe woe am I!'
- 28 He pulled his hatt ouer his eyes,
And, Lord, he wept soe tenderlye!
- He is gone to his master againe,
And euen to tell him the veretye.
- 29 'Now hast thou beene with Marry,
Iamy,' he sayd,
'Euen as thy tounge will tell to mee;
But if thou trust in any womans words,
Thou must refraine good companye.'
- 30 'It is noe words, my lord,' he sayes;
'Yonder the men shee letts me see,
How many English lords there is
Is wayting there for you and mee.'
- 31 'Yonder I see the Lord Hunsden,
And hee and you is of the third degree;
A greater enemye, indeed, my Lord,
In England none haue yee.'
- 32 'And I haue beene in Lough Leuen
The most part of these yeeres three:
Yett had I neuer noe out-rake,
Nor good games that I cold see.'
- 33 'And I am thus bidden to yonder shooting
By William Douglas all trulye;
Therefore speake neuer a word out of thy mouth
That thou thinkes will hinder mee.'
- 34 Then he writhe the gold ring of his ffingar
And gaue itt to that ladye gay;
Sayes, That was a legacye left vnto
mee
In Harley woods where I cold bee.
- 35 'Then ffarewell hart, and farewell hand,
And ffarwell all good companye!
That woman shall neuer beare a sonne
Shall know soe much of your priui-
tye.'
- 36 'Now hold thy tounge, ladye,' hee sayde,
'And make not all this dole for mee,
For I may well drinke, but I'st neuer
eate,
Till againe in Lough Leuen I bee.'
- 37 He tooke his boate att the Lough Leuen,
For to sayle now ouer the sea,
And he hath cast vpp a siluer wand,
Saies, Fare thou well, my good ladye!

The ladye looked ouer her left sholder ;
In a dead swoone there fell shee.

38 'Goe backe againe, Douglas !' he sayd,
'And I will goe in thy companye,
For sudden sicknesse yonder lady has
tane,
And euer, alas, shee will but dye !

39 'If ought come to yonder ladye but
good,
Then blamed sore that I shall bee,
Because a banished man I am,
And driuen out of my owne countrye.'

40 'Come on, come on, my lord,' he sayes,
'And lett all such talking bee;
There's ladyes enow in Lough Leuen
And for to cheere yonder gay ladye.'

41 'And you will not goe your selfe, my
lord,
You will lett my chamberlaine go
with mee;
Wee shall now take our boate againe,
And soone wee shall ouertake thee.'

42 'Come on, come on, my lord,' he
sayes,
'And lett now all this talking bee;
Ffor my sister is craftye enoughe
For to beguile thousands such as you and mee.'

43 When they had sayled fifty myle,
Now fifty mile vpon the sea,
Hee had fforgotten a message that
hee
Shold doe in Lough Leuen trulye:
Hee asked, how ffarr it was to that shooting
That William Douglas promised mee.

44 'Now faire words makes fooles faine,
And that may be seene by thy master
and thee;
Ffor you may happen think itt soone
enoughe
When-euer you that shooting see.'

45 Iamye pulled his hatt now ouer his browe,
I wott the teares fell in his eye;
And he is to his master againe,
And ffor to tell him the veretye.

46 'He sayes fayre words makes fooles
faine,
And that may be seene by you and
mee,
Ffor wee may happen thinke itt soone
enoughe
When-euer wee that shooting see.

47 'Hold vpp thy head, Iamye,' the erle
sayd,
'And neuer lett thy hart fayle thee;
He did itt but to proue thee with,
And see how thow wold take with death trulye.'

48 When they had sayled other fifty mile,
Other fifty mile vpon the sea,
Lord Percy called to him, himselfe,
And sayd, Douglas, what wilt thou doe with mee ?

49 'Looke that your brydle be wight, my
lord,
That you may goe as a shipp att sea;
Looke that your spurres be bright and sharpe,
That you may pricke her while shee 'le awaye.'

50 'What needeth this, Douglas,' he sayth,
'That thou needest to floute mee ?
For I was counted a horsseman good
Before that euer I mett with thee.

51 'A ffalse Hector hath my horsse,
And euer an euill death may bee dye !
And Willye Armestronge hath my spurres
And all the geere belongs to mee.'

52 When the had sayled other fifty mile,
Other fifty mile vpon the sea,
The landed low by Barwicke-side;
A deputed lord landed Lord Percy.

THE EARL OF WESTMORE- LAND

The first thirteen stanzas have an historical substratum, though details are inaccurate. They give a brief account of what happened to the Earl of Westmoreland (Charles Neville) from the failure of the Rising in the North to his embarkation for Flanders in 1570. What follows is an imitation of old romance, very possibly of Libeaus Desconus (see Schofield, Studies on the Libeaus Desconus, p. 242).

'Earle of Westmorlande,' Percy MS., p. 112; Hales and Furnivall, 1, 292.

- 1 'How long shall fortune faile me now,
And keepe me heare in deadlye
dreade?
How long shall I in bale abide,
In misery my life to leade?
- 2 'To ffall from my rose, it was my chance;
Such was the Queene of England free;
I tooke a lake, and turned my backe,
On Bramaball More shee caused me
flye.
- 3 'One gentle Armstrong that I doe ken,
Alas, with thee I dare not mocke!
Thou dwellest soe far on the west border,
Thy name is called the Lord Iocke.'
- 4 Now hath Armstrong taken noble Nevill,
And as one Martinfield did profecye;
He hath taken the Lord Dakers,
A lords sonne of great degree.
- 5 He hath taken old Master Nortton,
And sonnes four in his companye;
Hee hath taken another gentleman,
Called Iohn of Carnabie.
- 6 Then bespake him Charles Nevill;
To all his men, I wott, sayd hee,
Sayes, I must into Scotland fare;
Soe nie the borders is noe biding for
me.
- 7 When he came to Humes Castle,
And all his noble companye;
The Lord Hume halched them right
soone,
Saying, Banished men, welcome to
mee!
- 8 They had not beene in Humes Castle
Not a month and dayes three,
But the regent of Scotland and he got witt
That banished men there shold be.
- 9 'I'le write a letter,' sayd the regent then,
'And send to Humes Castle hastilye,
To see whether Lord Hume wilbe soe
good
To bring the banished men vnto mee.
- 10 'That lord and I haue beene att deadlye
fuyde,
And hee and I cold neuer agree;
Writting a letter, that will not serue;
The banished men must not speake
with me.
- 11 'But I will send for the garrison of Barwicke,
That they will come all with speede,
And with them will come a noble cap-
taine,
Which is called Captain Reade.'
- 12 Then the Lord Hume he got witt
They wold seeke vnto Nevill, where he did lye;
He tooke them out of the castle of
Hume,
And brought them into the castle of Camelye.
- 13 Then bespake him Charles Nevill,
To all his men, I wott, spoke hee,
Sayes, I must goe take a noble shippe,
And wee 'le be marriners vpon the sea.
- 14 I'le seeke out fortune where it doth
lye;
In Scotland there is noe byding for
mee;
Then the tooke leaue with fayre Scott-
land,
For they are sealing vpon the sea.
- 15 They had not sayled vpon the sea
Not one day and monthes three,
But they were ware of a noble shippe,
That fve topps bare all soe hye.
- 16 Then Nevill called to Martinfeeld, Sayd, Martinfeeld, come hither to
mee;
Some good counsell, Martinfeeld,
I pray thee giue it vnto mee.
- 17 Thou told me when I was in England
fayre,
Before that I did take the sea,

- Thou neuer sawst noe banner borne
But thou wold ken it with thine eye.
- 18 Thou neuer saw noe man in the face,
Iff thou had seene before with thine
eye,
[But] thou coldest haue kend thy freind
by thy foe,
And then haue told it vnto mee.
- 19 Thou neuer heard noe speeche spoken,
Neither in Greeke nor Hebrewe,
[But] thou coldest haue answered them
in any language,
And then haue told it vnto mee.
- 20 'Master, master, see you yonder faire ancyent?
Yonder is the serpent and the serpents head,
The mould-warpe in the middest of itt,
And itt all shines with gold soe redde.
- 21 'Yonder is Duke Iohn of Austria,
A noble warryour on the sea,
Whose dwelling is in Ciuill land,
And many men, God wot, hath hee.'
- 22 Then bespake him Martinfeelde,
To all his fellowes, I wot, said hee,
Turne our noble shipp about,
And that's a token that wee will flee.
- 23 'Thy councell is not good, Martinfeeld;
Itt falleth not out fitting for mee;
I rue the last time I turnd my backe;
I did displease my prince and the
countrie.'
- 24 Then bespake him noble Nevill,
To all his men, I wott, sayd hee,
Sett me vp my faire Dun Bull,
With gilden hornes hee beares all soe
hye.
- 25 And I will passe yonder noble Duke,
By the leaue of mild Marye;
For yonder is the Duke of Austria,
That traueles now vpon the sea.
- 26 And then bespake this noble Duke,
Vnto his men then sayd hee,
Yonder is sure some nobleman,
Or else some youth that will not
flee.
- 27 I will put out a pinace fayre,
A harold of armes vpon the sea,
And goe thy way to yonder noble shippe,
And bring the masters name to mee.
- 28 When the herald of armes came before noble Nevill,
He fell downe low vpon his knee:
'You must tell me true what is your
name,
And in what countrie your dwelling
may bee.'
- 29 'That will I not doe,' sayd noble Nevill,
'By Mary mild, that mayden ffree,
Except I first know thy masters name,
And in what country his dwelling may
bee.'
- 30 Then bespake the herald of armes,
O that he spoke soe curteouslye!
Duke Iohn of Austria is my masters
name,
He will neuer lene it vpon the sea.
- 31 He hath beene in the citye of Rome,
His dwelling is in Ciuillee:
'Then wee are poore Brittons,' the Nevill
can say,
'Where wee trauell vpon the sea.
- 32 'And Charles Nevill itt is my name,
I will neuer lene it vpon the sea;
When I was att home in England faire,
I was the Erle of Westmoreland,' sayd hee.
- 33 Then backe is gone this herald of armes
Whereas this noble duke did lye;
'Loe, yonder are poore Brittons,' can he
say,
'Where the trauell vpon the sea.
- 34 'And Charles Nevill is their masters
name,
He will neuer lene it vpon the sea;
When he was at home in England fayre,
He was the Erle of Westmoreland, said hee.'
- 35 Then bespake this noble duke,
And ener he spake soe hastilye,
And said, Goe backe to yonder noble-
man,
And bid him come and speake with me.

36 For I haue read in the Booke of Mable,
There shold a Brittain come ouer
the sea,
Charles Nevill with a child's voice:
I pray God that it may be hee.

37 When these two nobles they didden
meete,
They halched eche other right cur-
teouslye;
Yett Nevill halched Iohn the sooner
Because a banished man, alas! was
hee.

38 'Call in your men,' sayd this noble duke,
'Faine your men that I wold see;'
'Euer alas!' said noble Nevill,
'They are but a litle small companye.'

39 First he called in Martinfield,
That Martinffeild that cold prophe-cye;
He call[ed] in then Lord Dakers,
A lords sonne of high degree.

40 Then called he in old Master Nortton,
And sonnes four in his companye;
He called in one other gentleman,
Called Iohn of Carnabye.

41 'Loe! these be all my men,' said noble
Nevill,
'And all that's in my companye;
When we were att home in England
fayre,
Our prince and wee cold not agree.'

42 Then bespake this noble duke:
To try your manhood on the sea,
Old Master Nortton shall goe ouer into France,
And his sonnes four in his companye.

43 And my lord Dakers shall goe over into
Ffrance,
There a captaine ffor to bee;
And those two other gentlemen wold
goe with him,
And for to fare in his companye.

44 And you your-selfe shall goe into Ciuill
land,
And Marttinffeild that can prophecie;
'That will I not doe,' sayd noble Nevill,
'By Mary mild, that mayden free.

45 'For the haue knowen me in wele and woe,
In neede, scar[s]nesse and pouertye;
Before I 'le part with the worst of them,
I 'le rather part with my liffe,' sayd
hee.

46 And then bespake this noble duke,
And euer he spake soe curteouslye;
Sayes, You shall part with none of
them,
There is soe much manhood in your bodye.

47 Then these two noblemen labored together,
Pleasantlye vpon the sea;
Their landing was in Ciuill land,
In Ciuilee that ffaire citye.

48 Three nights att this dukes Nevill did
lye,
And serued like a nobleman was hee;
Then the duke made a supplication,
And sent it to the queene of Ciuilee.

49 Saying, Such a man is your citye within,
I mett him pleasantlye vpon the sea;
He seemes to be a noble man,
And captaine to your Grace he faine wold bee.

50 Then the queene sent for [these] noble
men
For to come into her companye;
When Nevill came before the queene,
Hee kneeled downe vpon his knee.

51 Shee tooke him vp by the lilly-white
hand,
Said, Welcome, my lord, hither to
me;
You must first tell me your name,
And in what countrye thy dwelling
may bee.

52 He said, Charles Nevill is my name;
I will neuer lene it in noe countrye;
When I was att home in England fayre,
I was the Erle of Westmorland trulye.

53 The queene made him captaine ouer
forty thousand,
Watch and ward within Ciuill land
to keepe,

- And for to warr against the heathen
soldan,
And for to helpe her in her neede.
- 54 When the heathen soldan he gott witt,
In Barbarye where he did lye,
Sainge, Such a man is in yonder citye
within,
And a bold venturer by sea is hee,
- 55 Then the heathen soldan made a letter,
And sent it to the queene instantlye,
And all that heard this letter reade
Where it was rehersed in Ciuillie.
- 56 Saying, Haue you any man your land
within
Man to man dare fight with mee?
And both our lands shalbe ioyned in
one,
And cristened lands they both shalbe.
- 57 Shee said, I haue noe man my land
within
Man to man dare fight with thee;
But euery day thou shalt haue a battell,
If it be for these weekes three.
- 58 All beheard him Charles Nevill,
In his bedd where he did lye,
And when he came the queene before,
He fell downe low vpon his knee.
- 59 'Grant me a boone, my noble dame,
For Chrissts loue that dyed on tree;
Ffor I will goe fight with yond heathen
soldan,
If you will bestowe the manhood on
mee.'
- 60 Then bespake this curteous queene,
And euer shee spoke soe curteouslye:
Though you be a banished man out of your realme,
It is great pitye that thou shold dye.
- 61 Then bespake this noble duke,
As hee stood hard by the queenes
knee:
As I haue read in the Booke of Mable,
There shall a Brittone come ouer the
sea,
- 62 And Charles Nevill shold be his name;
But a childs voyce, I wott, hath hee,
- And if he be in Christendome;
For hart and hand this man hath hee.
- 63 Then the queenes counsell cast their heads together,
That Nevill shold fight with the heathen
soldan
That dwelt in the citye of Barbarye.
- 64 The battell and place appointed was
In a fayre greene, hard by the sea,
And they shood meete att the Headless
Crosse,
And there to fight right manfullye.
- 65 Then Nevill cald for the queenes ancient,
And faine that ancient he wold see;
The brought him forth the broken sword,
With bloodye hands therein trulye.
- 66 The brought him forth the headless
crosse,
In that ancyent it was seene;
'O this is a token,' sayd Martinfeeld,
'That sore ouerthrowen this prince hath beene.
- 67 'O sett me vp my fayre Dun Bull,
And trumpetts blow me farr and nee,
Vntill I come within a mile of the Head-
lesse Crosse,
That the Headlesse Crosse I may see.'
- 68 Then lighted downe noble Nevill,
And sayd, Marttinffeeld, come hither
to me;
Heere I make thee choice captain over my host
Vntill againe I may thee see.
- 69 Then Nevill rode to the Headless Crosse,
Which stands soe fayre vpon the sea;
There was he ware of the heathen soldan,
Both fowle and vglye for to see.
- 70 Then the soldan began for to call;
Twise he called lowd and hye,
And sayd, What is this? Some kitchin
boy
That comes hither to fight with mee?
- 71 Then bespake him Charles Nevill,
But a childs voice, I wott, had hee:

'Thou spekest soe litle of Gods might,
Much more lesse I doe care for thee.'

72 Att the first meeting that these two mett,
The heathen soldan and the christen
man,
The broke their speares quite in sunder,
And after that on foote did stand.

73 The next meeting that these two mett,
The swapt together with swords soe
fine;
The fought together till they both swett,
Of blowes that were both derf and dire.

74 They fought an houre in battell strong;
The soldan marke[d] Nevill with his
eye;
'There shall neuer man me ouercome
Except it be Charles Nevill,' sayd hee.

75 Then Nevill he waxed bold,
And cunning in fight, I wott, was hee;
Euen att the gorgett of the soldans iacke
He stroke his head of presentlye.

76 Then kneeled downe noble Nevill,
And thanked God for his great grace,
That he shold come soe farr into a strang[e] land,
To ouercome the soldan in place.

77 Hee tooke the head vpon his swordpoynt,
And carryed it amongst his host soe
fayre;
When the saw the soldans head,
They thanked God on their knees
there.

78 Seuen miles from the citye the queene him mett,
With procession that was soe fayre;
Shee tooke the crowne beside her heade,
And wold hane crowned him king
there.

79 'Now nay! Now nay! my noble dame,
For soe, I wott, itt cannott bee;
I haue a ladye in England fayre,
And wedded againe I wold not bee.'

80 The queene shee called for her penman,
I wot shee called him lowd and hye,

Saying, 'Write him downe a hundred pound a day,
To keepe his men more merrylye.'

81 'I thanke your Grace,' sayd noble Nevill,
'For this worthy gift you haue giuen
to me;
If euer your Grace doe stand in neede,
Champion to your Highnesse again
I 'le bee.'

CAPTAIN CAR, OR, EDOM O
GORDON

During the three wretched and bloody years which followed the assassination of the Regent Murray, the Catholic Earl of Huntly, George Gordon, was one of the most eminent and active of the partisans of the queen. Mary created him her lieutenant-governor, and his brother, Adam Gordon, a remarkably gallant and able soldier, whether so created or not, is sometimes called the queen's deputy-lieutenant in the north. Our ballad is concerned with a minor incident of the hostilities in Aberdeenshire between the Gordons and the Forbeses, a rival but much less powerful clan, who supported the Reformed faith and the regency or king's party. In November, 1571, Captain Thomas Ker was sent by Adam Gordon to reduce the house of Towie, belonging to Alexander (or John) Forbes, who was absent, or, perhaps, to conduct a general harrying against the Forbeses. The lady refused to surrender the place, and it was burnt, with all the household. The details are somewhat in dispute; but there must have been something quite beyond the common in Captain Ker's proceedings, for they are denounced even in those days as infamous, and the name of Adam Gordon is said to have been made odious by them. It is not certain how far Gordon was responsible for the outrage.

1 It befell at Martynmas,
When wether waxed colde,
Captaine Care said to his men,
We must go take a holde.

- Syck, sike, and to-towe sike,
And sike and like to die;
The sikest nighte that euer I abode,
God lord haue mercy on me !
- 2 'Haille, master, and wether you will,
And wether ye like it best;
'To the castle of Crecrynbroghe,
And there we will take our reste.'
- 3 'I knowe wher is a gay castle,
Is builded of lyme and stone;
Within their is a gay ladie,
Her lord is riden and gone.'
- 4 The ladie she lend on her castle-walle,
She loked vpp and downe;
There was she ware of an host of men,
Come riding to the towne.
- 5 'Se yow, my meri men all,
And se yow what I see ?
Yonder I see an host of men,
I muse who they bee.'
- 6 She thought he had ben her wed lord,
As he comd riding home;
Then was it traitur Captaine Care,
The lord of Ester-towne.
- 7 They wer no soner at supper sett,
Then after said the grace,
Or Captaine Care and all his men
Wer lighte aboute the place.
- 8 'Gyue ouer thi howsse, thou lady gay,
And I will make the a bande;
To-nighte thou shall ly within my armes,
To-morrowe thou shall ere my lande.'
- 9 Then bespake the eldest sonne,
That was both whitt and redde:
O mother dere, geue ouer your howsse,
Or elles we shalbe deade.
- 10 'I will not gene ouer my hous,' she saithe,
'Not for feare of my lyffe;
It shalbe talked throughout the land,
The slaughter of a wyffe.
- 11 'Fetch me my pestilett,
And charge me my gonne,
That I may shott at yonder bloddy
butcher,
The lord of Easter-towne.'
- 12 Styfly vpon her wall she stode,
And lett the pelletes flee;
But then she myst the bloody bucher,
And she slew other three.
- 13 '[I will] not gene ouer my hous,' she saithe,
'Netheir for lord nor lowne;
Nor yet for traitour Captaine Care,
The lord of Easter-towne.
- 14 'I desire of Captaine Care,
And all his bloddye band,
That he would saue my eldest sonne,
The eare of all my lande.'
- 15 'Lap him in a shete,' he sayth,
'And let him downe to me,
And I shall take him in my armes,
His waran shall I be.'
- 16 The captayne sayd unto him selfe:
Wyth sped, before the rest,
He cut his tonge out of his head,
His hart out of his brest.
- 17 He lapt them in a handkerchef,
And knet it of knotis three,
And cast them ouer the castell-wall,
At that gay ladye.
- 18 'Fye vpon the, Captayne Care,
And all thy bloddy band !
For thou hast slayne my eldest sonne,
The ayre of all my land.'
- 19 Then bespake the yongest sonne,
That sat on the nurses knee,
Sayth, Mother gay, geue ouer your
house;
It smoldereth me.
- 20 'I wold geue my gold,' she saith,
'And so I wolde my ffee,
For a blaste of the westryn wind,
To dryue the smoke from thee.
- 21 'Fy vpon the, John Hamleton,
That euer I paid the hyre !
For thou hast broken my castle-wall,
And kyndled in the ffyre.'
- 22 The lady gate to her close parler,
The fire fell aboute her head ;

She toke vp her children thre,
Seth, Babes, we are all dead.

23 Then bespake the hye steward,
That is of hye degree;
Saith, Ladie gay, you are in close,
Wether ye fighte or flee.

24 Lord Hamleton dremd in his dream,
In Caruall where he laye,
His halle were all of fyre,
His ladie slayne or daye.

25 'Busk and bowne, my mery men all,
Even and go ye with me;
For I dremd that my haal was on fyre,
My lady slayne or day.'

26 He buskt him and bownd hym,
And like a worthi knighte;
And when he saw his hall burning,
His harte was no dele lighte.

27 He sett a trumpett till his mouth,
He blew as it plesd his grace;
Twenty score of Hamlentons
Was light aboute the place.

28 'Had I knowne as much yesternighte
As I do to-daye,
Captaine Care and all his men
Should not haue gone so quite.

29 'Fye vpon the, Captaine Care,
And all thy bloody bande!
Thou haste slayne my lady gay,
More wurth then all thy lande.

30 'If thou had ought eny ill will,' he saith,
'Thou shoulde haue taken my lyffe,
And haue saved my children thre,
All and my lousome wyffe.'

Percy MS., p. 34; Hales and Furnivall, I, 79.

1 'FRATH, master, whither you will,
Whereas you like the best;
Vnto the castle of Bittons-borrow,
And there to take your rest.'

2 'But yonder stands a castle faire,
Is made of lyme and stone;
Yonder is in it a fayre lady,
Her lord is ridden and gone.'

3 The lady stood on her castle-wall,
She looked vpp and downe;
She was ware of an hoast of men,
Came rydinge towards the towne.

4 'See you not, my merry men all,
And see you not what I doe see?
Methinks I see a hoast of men;
I muse who they shold be.'

5 She thought it had beene her louly lord,
He had come ryding home;
It was the traitor, Captaine Carre,
The lord of Westerton-towne.

6 They had noe sooner super sett,
And after said the grace,
But the traitor, Captaine Carre,
Was light about the place.

7 'Giue over thy house, thou lady gay,
I will make thee a band;
All night with-in mine armes thou'st
lye,
To-morrow be the heyre of my land.'

8 'I 'le not giue over my house,' shee said,
'Neither for ladds nor man,
Nor yet for traitor Captaine Carre,
Vntill my lord come home.

9 'But reach me my pistoll pe[c]e,
And charge you well my gunne;
I 'le shoote at the bloody bucher,
The lord of Westerton.'

10 She stood vppon her castle-wall
And let the bulletts flee,
And where shee mist

11 But then bespake the litle child,
That sate on the nurses knee;
Saies, Mother deere, giue ore this house,
For the smoake it smoothers me.

12 'I wold gine all my gold, my childe,
Soe wold I doe all my fee,
For one blast of the westerne wind
To blow the smoke from thee.'

13 But when shee saw the fier
Came flaming ore her head,
Shee tooke then vpp her children two,
Sayes, Babes, we all beene dead!

- 14 But Adam then he fired the house,
A sorrowfull sight to see;
Now hath he burned this lady faire
And eke her children three.
- 15 Then Captaine Carre he rode away,
He staid noe longer at that tide;
He thought that place it was to warme
Soe neere for to abide.
- 16 He calld vnto his merry men all,
Bidd them make hast away;
'For we haue slaine his children three,
All and his lady gay.'
- 17 Worde came to lonly London,
To London wheras her lord lay,
His castle and his hall was burned,
All and his lady gay.
- 18 Soe bath he done his children three,
More dearer vnto him
Then either the siluer or the gold,
That men soe faine wold win.
- 19 But when he looket this writing on,
Lord, in is hart he was woe!
Saies, I will find thee, Captaine Carre,
Wether thou ryde or goe!
- 20 Buske yee, bowne yee, my merry men all,
With tempered swords of steele,
For till I haue found out Captaine
Carre,
My hart it is nothing weele.
- 21 But when he came to Dractons-borrow,
Soe long ere it was day,
And ther he found him Captaine Carre;
That night he ment to stay.

The New Statistical Account of Scotland, v, 846, 1845, Parish of Loudoun, by Rev. Norman Macleod: "known among the peasantry from time immemorial;" 'Loudoun Castle,' The Ballads and Songs of Ayrshire, J. Paterson and C. Gray, 1st Series, p. 74, Ayr, 1846.

- 1 It fell about the Martinmas time,
When the wind blew snell and cauld,
That Adam o Gordon said to his men,
Where will we get a hold?

- 2 See [ye] not where yonder fair castle
Stands on yon lily lee?
The laird and I hae a deadly feud,
The lady fain would I see.
- 3 As she was up on the househead,
Behold, on looking down,
She saw Adam o Gordon and his men,
Coming riding to the town.
- 4 The dinner was not well set down,
Nor the grace was scarcely said,
Till Adam o Gordon and his men
About the walls were laid.
- 5 'It's fause now fa thee, Jock my man!
Thou might a let me be;
Yon man has lifted the pavement-stone,
An let in the low unto me.'
- 6 'Seven years I served thee, fair ladie,
You gave me meat and fee;
But now I am Adam o Gordon's man,
An maun either do it or die.'
- 7 'Come down, come down, my lady Lou-
doun,
Come down thou unto me!
I'll wrap thee on a feather-bed,
Thy warrand I shall be.'
- 8 'I'll no come down, I'll no come down,
For neither laird no[r] loun;
Nor yet for any bloody butcher
That lives in Altringham town.
- 9 'I would give the black,' she says,
'And so would I the brown,
If that Thomas, my only son,
Could charge to me a gun.'
- 10 Out then spake the lady Margaret,
As she stood on the stair;
The fire was at her goud garters,
The lowe was at her hair.
- 11 'I would give the black,' she says,
'And so would I the brown,
For a drink of yon water,
That runs by Galston Town.'
- 12 Out then spake fair Annie,
She was baith jimp and sma:
'O row me in a pair o sheets,
And tow me down the wa!'

13 'O hold thy tongue, thou fair Annie,
And let thy talkin be;
For thou must stay in this fair castle,
And bear thy death with me.'

14 'O mother,' spoke the lord Thomas,
As he sat on the nurse's knee,
'O mother, give up this fair castle,
Or the reek will worrie me.'

15 'I would rather be burnt to ashes
sma,
And be cast on yon sea-foam,
Before I'd give up this fair castle,
And my lord so far from home.

16 'My good lord has an army strong,
He's now gone oer the sea;
He bad me keep this gay castle,
As long as it would keep me.

17 'I've four-and-twenty brave milk kye,
Gangs on yon lily lee;
I'd give them a' for a blast of wind,
To blaw the reek from me.'

18 O pittie on yon fair castle,
That's built with stone and lime!
But far mair pittie on Lady Loudoun,
And all her children nine!

Scotch Ballads, Materials for Border Minstrelsy, No. 75, Abbotsford. Communicated to Scott November 6, 1803, by Bruce Campbell, Sornbeg, Galston, Ayrshire, through David Boyle, Advocate, afterwards Lord Justice General of Scotland.

1 It fell about the Martinmass time,
When the wind blew shill and cald,
That Adam McGordon said to his
men,
Where will we get a hall?

2 'There is a hall here near by,
Well built with lime and stone;
There is a lady there within
As white as the . . . bone.'

3 'Seven year and more this lord and I
Has had a deadly feud,
And now, since her good lord's frae
hame,
His place to me she'll yield.'

4 She looked oer her castle-wall,
And so she looked down,
And saw Adam McGordon and his
men
Approaching the wood-end.

5 'Steik up, steik up my yett,' she says,
'And let my draw-bridge fall;
There is meickle treachery
Walking about my wall.'

6 She had not the sentence past,
Nor yet the word well said,
When Adam McGordon and his men
About the walls were laid.

7 She looked out at her window,
And then she looked down,
And then she saw Jack, her own man,
Lifting the pavement-stane.

8 'Awa, awa, Jack my man!
Seven year I paid you meat and fee,
And now you lift the pavement-stane
To let in the low to me.'

9 'I yield, I yield, O lady fair, Seven year ye paid me meat and
fee;
But now I am Adam McGordon's man,
I must either do or die.'

10 'If ye be Adam McGordon's man,
As I true well ye be,
Prove true unto your own master,
And work your will to me.'

11 'Come down, come down, my lady
Campbell,
Come down into my hand;
Ye shall lye all night by my side,
And the morn at my command.'

12 'I winna come down,' this lady says,
'For neither laird nor lown,
Nor to no bloody butcher's son,
The Laird of Auchindown.

13 'I wald give all my kine,' she says,
'So wald I fifty pound,
That Andrew Watty he were here;
He would charge me my gun.

14 'He would charge me my gun,
And put in bullets three,

That I might shoot that cruel traitor
That works his wills on me.'

15 He shot in, and [s]he shot out,
The value of an hour,
Until the hall Craigie North
Was like to be blawn in the air.

16 He fired in, and she fired out,
The value of hours three,
Until the hall Craigie North
The reik went to the sea.

17 'O the frost, and ae the frost,
The frost that freezes fell!
I cannot stay within my bower,
The powder it blows sae bald.'

18 But then spake her oldest son,
He was both white and red;
'O mither dear, yield up your house!
We'll all be burnt to deed.'

19 Out then spake the second son,
He was both red and fair;
'O brother dear, would you yield up your house,
And you your father's heir!'

20 Out then spake the little babe,
Stood at the nurse's knee;
'O mither dear, yield up your house!
The reik will worry me.'

21 Out then speaks the little nurse,
The babe upon her knee;
'O lady, take from me your child!
I'll never crave my fee.'

22 'Hold thy tongue, thou little nurse,
Of thy prating let me bee;
For be it death or be it life,
Thou shall take share with me.

23 'I wald give a' my sheep,' she says,
'T[hat] . . . yon . . . s[ha],
I had a drink of that wan water
That runs down by my wa.'

ROOKHOPE RYDE

The date of this ryde, or raid, may be precisely ascertained from the ballad itself; it is shown by 13⁴, 11 to be December 6, 1569. The thieves of Thirlwall (Northumberland) and Williehaver, or Willeva (Cumberland), avail themselves of the confusion incident to the Rising in the North and of the absence of a part of the fencible men (some of whom were with the earls, others with Bowes in Barnard castle) to make a foray into Rookhope, in Weardale, Durham. Rookhope is the name of a valley, about five miles in length, at the termination of which Rookhope burn empties itself into the river Wear.

The Bishopric Garland, or Durham Minstrel, [edited by Joseph Ritson,] 2d ed., Newcastle, 1792; here, from the reprint by Joseph Haslewood, 1809, p. 54, in Northern Garlands, London, 1810. "Taken down from the chanting of George Collingood the elder, late of Boltsburn, in the neighborhood of Ryhope," who died in 1785.

- 1 ROOKHOPE stands in a pleasant place,
If the false thieves wad let it be;
But away they steal our goods apace,
And ever an ill death may they die!
- 2 And so is the men of Thirlwa 'nd Willie-haver,
And all their companies thereabout,
That is minded to do mischief,
And at their stealing stands not out.
- 3 But yet we will not slander them all,
For there is of them good enough;
It is a sore consumed tree
That on it bears not one fresh bough.
- 4 Lord God! is not this a pitful case,
That men dare not drive their goods
to t' fell,
But limmer thieves drives them away,
That fears neither heaven nor hell?
- 5 Lord, send us peace into the realm,
That every man may live on his own!
I trust to God, if it be his will,
That Weardale men may never be overthrown.
- 6 For great troubles they've had in
hand,
With borderers pricking hither and thither,
But the greatest fray that eer they had
Was with the 'men' of Thirlwa 'nd Williehaver.

- 7 They gatherd together so royally,
The stoutest men and the best in gear,
And he that rade not on a horse,
I wat he rade on a weil-fed mear.
- 8 So in the morning, before they came
out,
So well, I wot, they broke their fast;
In the [forenoon they came] unto a bye fell,
Where some of them did eat their
last.
- 9 When they had eaten aye and done,
They sayd some captains here needs must be:
Then they choosed forth Harry Corbyl,
And 'Symon Fell,' and Martin Ridley.
- 10 Then oer the moss, where as they came,
With many a brank and whew,
One of them could to another say,
'I think this day we are men anew.
- 11 'For Weardale men is a journey taen;
They are so far out-oer yon fell
That some of them 's with the two earls,
And others fast in Barnard castell.
- 12 'There we shal get gear enough,
For there is nane but women at hame;
The sorrowful fend that they can make
Is loudly cries as they were slain.'
- 13 Then in at Rookhope-head they came,
And there they thought tul a had their
prey,
But they were spy'd coming over the Dry Rig,
Soon upon Saint Nicholas' day.
- 14 Then in at Rookhope-head they came,
They ran the forest but a mile;
They gatherd together in four hours
Six hundred sheep within a while.
- 15 And horses I trow they gat
But either ane or twa,
And they gat them all but ane
That belanged to great Rowley.
- 16 That Rowley was the first man that did them spy;
With that he raised a mighty cry;

The cry it came down Rookhope burn,
And spread through Weardale hasteyly.

- 17 Then word came to the bailif's house,
At the East Gate, where he did dwell;
He was walkd out to the Smale Burns,
Which stands above the Hanging
Well.
- 18 His wife was wae when she heard tell,
So well she wist her husband wanted
gear;
She gard saddle him his horse in haste,
And neither forgot sword, jack, nor spear.
- 19 The bailif got wit before his gear came
'That such news was in the land;
He was sore troubled in his heart,
That on no earth that he could stand.
- 20 His brother was hurt three days before,
With limmer thieves that did him
prick;
Nineteen bloody wounds lay him upon;
What ferly was 't that he lay sick?
- 21 But yet the bailif shrinked nought,
But fast after them he did hye,
And so did all his neighbours near,
That went to bear him company.
- 22 But when the bailiff was gathered,
And all his company,
They were numberd to never a man
But forty [or] under fifty.
- 23 Thethieves was numberd a hundred men,
I wat they were not of the worst
That could be choosed out of Thirlwa
'nd Williehaver,
.
- 24 But all that was in Rookhope-head,
And all that was i Nuketon Cleugh,
Where Weardale men oertook the thieves,
And there they gave them fighting
eneugh.
- 25 So sore they made them fain to flee,
As many was 'a' out of hand,
And, for tul have been at home again,
They would have been in iron bands;

26 And for the space of long seven years,
As sore they mighten a had their lives;
But there was never one of them
That ever thought to have seen their 'wives.'

27 About the time the fray began,
I trow it lasted but an hour,
Till many a man lay weaponless,
And was sore wounded in that stour.

28 Also before that hour was done,
Four of the thieves were slain,
Besides all those that wounded were,
And eleven prisoners there was taen.

29 George Carrick and his brother Edie,
Them two, I wot, they were both
slain;
Harry Corbyl and Lennie Carrick
Bore them company in their pain.

30 One of our Weardale men was slain,
Rowland Emerson his name hight;
I trust to God his soul is well,
Because he 'fought' unto the right.

31 But thus they sayd: 'We 'll not depart
While we have one; speed back
again !'
And when they came amongst the dead
men,
There they found George Carrick
slain.

32 And when they found George Carrick
slain,
I wot it went well near their 'heart;'
Lord, let them never make a better end
That comes to play them sicken a
'part !'

33 I trust to God, no more they shal,
Except it be one for a great chance;
For God wil punish all those
With a great heavy pestilence.

34 Thir limmer thieves, they have good hearts,
They nevir think to be oerthrown;
Three banners against Weardale men
they bare,
As if the world had been all their own.

35 Thir Weardale men, they have good
hearts,
They are as stif as any tree;
For, if they 'd every one been slain,
Never a foot back man would flee.

36 And such a storm amongst them fell
As I think you never heard the like,
For he that bears his head so high,
He oft-times falls into the dyke.

37 And now I do entreat you all,
As many as are present here,
To pray for [the] singer of this song,
For he sings to make blithe your cheer.

KING JAMES AND BROWN

This ballad must of course not be regarded as historical, but there are correspondences between the story and the proceedings by which the Earl of Morton, in April, 1578, after his resignation of the regency, obtained possession of the person of the young king James VI and virtually reëstablished himself in power. The citizens of Edinburgh rose in arms against Morton (cf. sts. 21, 22), and large forces collected from other parts of Scotland for the liberation of James. The Douglas of the ballad is clearly William Douglas of Lochleven, who was a partisan of Morton.

'Kinge James and Browne,' Percy MS., p. 58; Hales and Furnivall, I, 185.

1 As I did walke my selfe alone,
And by one garden greene,
I heard a yonge prince make great
moane,
Which did turne my hart to teene.

2 'O Lord !' he then said vntou me,
'Why haue I liued soe long ?
For yonder comes a cruell Scott,' Quoth hee, 'that will doe me some ronge.'

3 And then came traitor Douglas there,
He came for to betray his king;
Some they brought bills, and some they brought bowes,
And some the brought other things.

- 4 The king was aboue in a gallery,
With a heauy heart;
Vnto his body was sett about
With swords and speares soe sharpe.
- 5 'Be you the lordes of Scotland,' he said,
'That hither for counsell seeke to
me?
Or bee yoe traitors to my crowne,
My blood that you wold see?'
- 6 'Wee are the lords of Scotland,' they
said,
'Nothing we come to craue of thee;
But wee be traitors to thy crowne,
Thy blood that wee will see.'
- 7 'O fye vpon you, you false Scotts!
For you neuer all trew wilbe;
My grandfather you haue slaine,
And caused my mother to flee.
- 8 'My grandfather you haue slaine,
And my owne father you hanged on a
tree;
And now,' quoth he, 'the like treason
You haue now wrought for me.
- 9 'Ffarwell hart, and farwell hand!
Farwell all pleasures alsoe!
Farwell th . . . my head
- 10
'If thou wilt
And soe goe away with mee.'
- 11 'Goe marry thy daughter to whome
thou wilt,
Quoth Browne; 'thou marrys none to
me;
For I 'le not be a traitor,' quoth Browne,
'For all the gold that euer I see.'
- 12 This Douglas, hearing Browne soe say,
Began to flee away full fast;
'But tarry a while,' saies lusty Browne,
'I 'le make you to pay before you
passe.'
- 13 He hath taken the Douglas prisoner,
And hath brought him before the king;
He kneeled low vpon his knee,
For pardon there prainge.
- 14 'How shold I pardon thee,' saith the
king,
'And thou 'le remaine a traitor still?
For euer since that I was borne,
Quoth he, 'thou hast sought my blood to spill.'
- 15 'For if you will grant me my pardon,'
he said,
'Out of this place soe free,
I wilbe sworne before your Grace
A trew subiect to bee.'
- 16 'God for-gaue his death,' said the king,
'When he was nayled vpon a tree;
And as free as euer God forgaue his
death,
Douglas,' quoth he, 'I 'le forgiue thee.
- 17 'And all the traitors in Scotland,'
Quoth he, 'both great and small;
As free as euer God forgaue his death,
Soe free I will forgiue them all.'
- 18 'I thanke you for your pardon, king,
That you haue granted forth soe
plaine;
If I liue a twelue month to an end,
You shall not alieue remaine.
- 19 'Tomorrow yet, or ere I dine,
I meane to doo thee one good turne;
For Edenborrow, that is thine owne,' Quoth he, 'I will both h[arry] and [burne].'
- 20 Thus Douglas hied towards Edenborrow,
And many of his men were gone
beffore,
And after him on euery side,
With him there went some twenty
score.
- 21 But when that they did see him come,
They cryed lowd with voices, saying,
'Yonder comes a false traitor,
That wold haue slaine our king.'
- 22 They chaynd vp the gates of Edenborrow,
And there the made them wonderous
fast,
And there Browne sett on Douglas
again, e,
And quicklye did him ouer cast.

23 But worde came backe againe to the king,
With all the speed that euer might
bee,
That traitor Douglas there was taken,
And his body was there to see.

24 'Bring me his taker,' quoth the king,
'Come, quickly bring him vnto me!
I 'le giue a thousand pound a yeere,
What man soeuer he bee.'

25 But then they called lusty Browne;
Sayes, 'Browne, come thou hither to
mee.
How oft hast thou foughten for my sake,
And alwayes woone the victory?'

26 'The first time that I fought for you,
It was in Edenborrow, king;
If there I had not stoutly stood,
My leege, you neuer had beene king.

27 'The second time I fought for you,
Here I will tell you in this place;
I killd the sheriffs sonne of Carlile,
Quoth he, 'that wold haue slaine your
Grace.

28 'The third time that I fought for you,
Here for to let you vnderstand,
I slew the Bishopp of S' Andrew[s], Quoth he, 'with a possat in [his
hand].'

29 quoth hee,
'That euer my manhood I did trye;
I 'le make a vow for Englands sake
That I will neuer battell flee.'

30 'God amercy, Browne,' then said the
king,
'And God amercy heartilye!
Before I made thee but a knight,
But now an earle I will make thee.

31 'God saue the queene of England,' he
said,
'For her blood is verrey neshe;
As neere vnto her I am
As a colloppe shorne from the fleshe.

32 'If I be false to England,' he said,
'Either in earnest or in iest,
I might be likened to a bird,'
Quoth he, 'that did defile it nest.'

THE BONNY EARL OF MURRAY

James Stewart, son of Sir James Stewart of Doune, became Earl of Murray in consequence of his marriage with the oldest daughter and heiress of the Regent Murray. "He was a comely personage, of a great stature, and strong of body like a kemp." There was a violent hostility between Murray and the Earl of Huntly. According to Spottiswood (History of the Church of Scotland, 1655, p. 387), after his assault on Holyrood House in December (or September), 1591, "Bothwell went into the north, looking to be supplied by the Earl of Murray, his cousin-german; which the king suspecting, Andrew Lord Ochiltree was sent to bring Murray unto the south, of purpose to work a reconciliation betwixt him and Huntly. But a rumor being raised in the mean while that the Earl of Murray was seen in the palace with Bothwell on the night of the enterprise, the same was entertained by Huntly (who waited then at court) to make him suspected of the king, and prevailed so far as he did purchase a commission to apprehend and bring Murray to his trial. The nobleman, not fearing that any such course should be used, was come to Donibristle, a house situated on the north side of Forth, and belonging to his mother the Lady Doune. Huntly, being advertised of his coming, and how he lay there secure, accompanied only with the Sheriff of Murray and a few of his own retinue, went thither and beset the house, requiring him to render. The Earl of Murray refusing to put himself in the hands of his enemy, after some defence made, wherein the sheriff was killed, fire was set to the house, and they within forced by the violence of the smoke and flame to come forth. The earl staid a great space after the rest, and, the night falling down, ventured among his enemies, and, breaking through the midst of them, did so far outrun them all as they supposed he was escaped; yet searching him among the rocks, he was discovered by the tip of his head-piece, which had taken fire before he left the house, and unmercifully slain." This outrage was done in the month of Febrnary, 1592. Huntly sheltered himself under the king's commission, and was not punished.

'The Bonny Earl of Murray,' Ramsay's Tea-Table Miscellany, 11th ed., London, 1750, p. 356 (vol. iv).

- 1 Ye Highlands, and ye Lawlands,
Oh where have you been?
They have slain the Earl of Murray,
And they layd him on the green.
- 2 'Now wae be to thee, Huntly!
And wherefore did you sae?
I bade you bring him wi you,
But forbade you him to slay.'
- 3 He was a braw gallant,
And he rid at the ring;
And the bonny Earl of Murray,
Oh he might have been a king!
- 4 He was a braw gallant,
And he playd at the ba;
And the bonny Earl of Murray
Was the flower amang them a'.
- 5 He was a braw gallant,
And he playd at the glove;
And the bonny Earl of Murray,
Oh he was the Queen's love!
- 6 Oh lang will his lady
Look oer the castle Down,
Eer she see the Earl of Murray
Come sounding thro the town!
Eer she, etc.

B

'The Bonnie Earl o Murray,' Finlay's Scottish Ballads, II, 11; from recitation.

- 1 'OPEN the gates,
and let him come in;
He is my brother Huntly,
he'll do him nae harm.'
- 2 The gates they were opent,
they let him come in,
But fause traitor Huntly,
he did him great harm.
- 3 He's ben and ben,
And ben to his bed,
And with a sharp rapier
he stabbed him dead.
- 4 The lady came down the stair,
wringing her hands:
'He has slain the Earl o Murray,
the flower o Scotland.'

- 5 But Huntly lap on his horse,
rade to the king:
'Ye're welcome hame, Huntly, and whare hae ye been?'

- 6 'Whare hae ye been?
and how hae ye sped?'
'I've killed the Earl o Murray, dead in his bed.'

- 7 'Foul fa you, Huntly!
and why did ye so?
You might have taen the Earl o Murray,
and saved his life too.'

- 8 'Her bread it's to bake,
her yill is to brew;
My sister's a widow,
and sair do I rue.

- 9 'Her corn grows ripe,
her meadows grow green,
But in bonny Dinnibristle
I darena be seen.'

THE LAIRD O LOGIE

Francis Stewart, Earl of Bothwell, a madcap cousin of James VI, had been guilty of a violent assault upon Holyrood House in December (or September), 1591, and in June, 1592, had "conspired the apprehension of the king's person" while James was residing at Falkland. A confederate, Wemyss of Logie, was arrested and "ordained to be tried by an assize and executed to the death. But the same night that he was examined, he escaped out by the means of a gentlewoman whom he loved, a Dane, who conveyed him out of his keepers' hands, through the queen's chamber, where his Majesty and the queen were lying in their beds, to a window in the backside of the place, where he went down upon a tow [rope], and shot three pistols in token of his onlouping [mounting his horse] where some of his servants, with the laird of Niddry, were awaiting him." (Moysie's Memoirs, p. 95.) According to another account, the gentlewoman got Logie out of his keepers' hands by pretending that the king wished to speak with him, and they, "suspecting nothing, for they knew her to be the principal maid in the chamber, conveyed him to the door of the bedchamber" and waited there while she was letting him down at a window. Though the queen had no hand in the freeing of Young Logie, she stood by her Danish attendant, and appears to have pacified the king. Logie was pardoned and married the gentlewoman. Her name was really Margaret, as in the ballad.

'The Laird of Logie,' Scotch Ballads, Materials for Border Minstrelsy, No. 3 a, Abbotsford. Sent to Scott September 11, 1802, by William Laidlaw; received by him from Mr Bartram of Biggar.

- 1 I WILL sing, if ye will harken,
An ye wad listen unto me;
I'll tell ye of a merry passage
Of the wanton laird of Young Logie.
- 2 Young Logie's laid in Edinburgh
chapel,
Carmichael's keeper of the key;
I heard a may lamenting sair,
All for the laird of Young Logie.
- 3 'Lament, lament na, May Margret,
And o your weeping let me be;
For ye maun to the king your sell,
And ask the life of Young Logie.'
- 4 May Margaret has kilted her green
cleeding,
And she's currd back her yellow
hair,
And she's away to the king hersell,
And adieu to Scotland for ever mair!
- 5 When she came before the king,
She fell low down on her knee:
'It's what's your will wi me, May
Margret,
And what makes all this courtesey?'
'Naething, naething, my sovereign liege,
But grant me the life of Young Logie.'
- 6 'O no, O no, May Margret,
No, in sooth it maun na be;
For the morn, or I taste meat or drink,
Hee hanged shall Young Logie be.'
- 7 She has stolen the king's reeding-comb,
But an the queen her wedding-knife,
And she has sent it to Carmichael,
To cause Young Logie come by life.

- 8 She sent him a purse of the red gold,
Another of the white money,
And sent him a pistol into each hand,
And bade him shoot when he got fra.
- 9 When he came to the Tolbooth stair,
There he loot his volley flee,
Which made the king in his chamber start,
Even in the chamber where he lay.
- 10 'Gae out, gae out, my merrie men,
And gar Carmichael come speake wi
me,
For I'll lay my life the pledge of that,
That yon's the volley of Young Logie.'
- 11 When Carmichael came before the king,
He fell low down on his knee;
The very first word that the king spake,
'How dois the laird o Young Logie?'
- 12 Carmichael turnd him round about,
A wait the salt tear blint his eye:
'There came a tacken frae the king
Has tean the laird awa frae me.'
- 13 'Hast thou playd me that, Carmichael?
Hast thou playd me that?' quo he;
'The morn the Justice Court's to stand,
And Logie's place ye maun supply.'
- 14 Carmichael's awa to May Margr[e]t's
bower,
Een as fast as he may dree:
'It's if Young Logie be within,
Tell him to come speak to me.'
- 15 May Margret's turnd her round about,
A wait a loud laughter gae she:
'The egg is cheeped and the bird is flown,
And seek ye the laird of Young Logie.'
- 16 The one is sheppd at the pier o Leith,
The other at the Queen's Ferry,
And she has gotten a father to her
bairn,
The wanton laird of Young [Logie].

Listen to what I tel to thee;
The king has taiken a poor prisoner,
The wanton laird of Ochiltrie.
- 2 When news came to our guidly queen,
Sche sicht, and said right mournfullie,
'O what will cum of Lady Margret!
Wha beirs sick luve to Ochiltrie.'
- 3 Lady Margret tore hir yellow hair
When as the queen tald hir the saim:
'I wis that I had neir bin born,
Nor neir had knawn Ochiltrie's naim!'
- 4 'Fie, na!' quoth the queen, 'that maunna

Fie, na! that maunna be;
I'll fynd ye out a better way
To saif the lyfe of Ochiltrie.'
- 5 The queen sche trippit up the stair,
And lowlie knielt upon hir knie:
'The first boon which I cum to craive
Is the life of gentel Ochiltrie.'
- 6 'O iff you had askd me castels or towirs,
I wad hae gin thaim, twa or thrie;
Bot a' the monie in fair Scotland
Winna buy the lyfe of Ochiltrie.'
- 7 The queen sche trippit down the stair,
And down she gade richt mournfullie:
'It's a' the monie in fair Scotland
Winna buy the lyfe of Ochiltrie!'
- 8 Lady Margaret tore her yellow hair
When as the queen tald hir the saim:
'I'll tak a knife and end my lyfe,
And be in the grave as soon as him!'
- 9 'Ah, na! Fie, na!' quoth the queen,
'Fie, na! Fie, na! this maunna be;
I'll set ye on a better way
To loose and set Ochiltrie frie.'
- 10 The queen sche slippit up the stair,
And sche gaid up richt privatlie,
And sche has stoun the prison-keys,
And gane and set Ochiltrie frie.

- 11 And sche's gien him a purse of gowd,
And another of whyt monie;
Sche's gien him twa pistoles by 's syde,
Saying to him, Shute, when ye win frie.
- 12 And when he cam to the queen's window,
Whaten a joyfou shute gae he!
'Peace be to our royal queen,
And peace be in hir companie!'
- 13 'O whaten a voyce is that?' quoth the
king,
'Whaten a voyce is that?' quoth he;
'Whaten a voyce is that?' quoth the
king;
'I think it's the voyce of Ochiltrie.'
- 14 'Call to me a' my gaolours,
Call thaim by thirtie and by thrie;
Whairfoir the morn, at twelve a clock,
It's hangit schall they ilk ane be.'
- 15 'O didna ye send your keyis to us?
Ye sent thaim be thirtie and be thrie,
And wi thaim sent a strait command
To set at lairge young Ochiltrie.'
- 16 'Ah, na! Fie, na!' quoth the queen,
'Fie, my dear luve, this maunna be!
And iff ye're gawn to hang thaim a',
Indeed ye maun begin wi me.'
- 17 The tane was schippit at the pier of Leith,
The ither at the Queen's Ferrie,
And now the lady has gotten hir luve,
The winsom laird of Ochiltrie.

WILLIE MACINTOSH

The murder of the "Bonny Earl of Murray" (see No. 181) was the occasion of serious commotions in the North Highlands. Towards the end of the year 1592, the Macintoshes of the Clan Chattan, who of all the faction of Murray "most eagerly endeavored to revenge his death," invaded the estates of the Earl of Huntly, and killed four gentlemen of the surname of Gordon. Huntly retaliated, "and rade into Pettie (which was then in the possession of the Clan Chattan), where he wasted and spoiled all the Clan Chattan's lands, and killed divers of them. But as the Earl of Huntly had returned home from Pettie, he was advertised that William Macintosh with eight hundred of Clan Chattan were spoiling his lands of Cabrach: whereupon Huntly and his uncle Sir Patrick Gordon of Auchindown, with some few horsemen, made speed towards the enemy, desiring the rest of his company to follow him with all possible diligence. . . . Huntly overtook the Clan Chattan before they left the bounds of Cabrach, upon the head of a hill called Stapliegate, where, without staying for the rest of his men, he invaded them with those few he then had. After a sharp conflict he overthrew them, chased them, killed sixty of their ablest men, and hurt William Macintosh with divers others of his company."

Two William Macintoshes are confounded in the ballad. The burning of Auchindown is attributed, rightly or wrongly, to an earlier William, captain of the clan, who, in August, 1500, was formally convicted of conspiracy against the life of the Earl of Huntly, then lieutenant in the north, sentenced to lose his life and lands, and, despite a pledge to the contrary, executed shortly after by the Countess of Huntly.

Turn, I bid you;
Gin ye burn Auchindown,

2 'Head me or hang me,
That canna fley me;
I'll burn Auchendown
Ere the life lea me.'

3 Coming down Deeside,
In a clear morning,
Auchindown was in flame,
Ere the cock-crawling.

4 But coming oer Cairn Croom,
And looking down, man,
I saw Willie Macintosh
Burn Auchindown, man.

5 'Bonny Willie Macintosh,
Whare left ye your men?'
'I left them in the Stapler,
But they 'll never come hame.'

6 'Bonny Willie Macintosh,
Whare now is your men?'

3 'Head me, hang me,
That sall never fear me;

THE LADS OF WAMPHRAY

"The following song celebrates the skirmish, in 1598, betwixt the Johnstones and Crichtons, which led to the revival of the ancient quarrel betwixt Johnstone and Maxwell, and finally to the battle of Dryffe Sands, in which the latter lost his life. Wamphray is the name of a parish in Annandale. Lethenhall was the abode of Johnstone of Wamphray, and continued to be so till of late years. William Johnstone of Wamphray, called the Galliard, was a noted freebooter. A place near the head of Teviotdale retains the name of the Galliard's Faulds (folds), being a valley where he used to secrete and divide his spoil with his Liddesdale and Eskdale associates. His nom de guerre seems to have been derived from the dance called the galliard. The word is still used in Scotland to express an active, gay, dissipated character. Willie of Kirkhill, nephew to the Galliard, and his avenger, was also a noted Border robber." (Minstrelsy, I, 208, ed. 1802.)

It is hard to determine whether the first eight stanzas of the ballad are anything more than a prelude, and whether sts. 5, 7 note the customary practice of the Lads of Wamphray, or anticipate, as is done in st. 3, certain points in the story which follows.

'Lads of Wamphray, ane old ballad, sometimes called 'The Galliard,' Glenriddell MSS., xi, 34, 1791.

- 1 TWIXT the Girthhead and Langwood-
end
Livd the Galliard and Galliard's men.
- 2 It is the lads of Lethenha,
The greatest rogues among them a'.
- 3 It is the lads of Leverhay,
That drove the Crichtons' gier away.
- 4 It is the lads o the Kirkhill,
The gay Galliard and Will o Kirkhill,
- 5 But and the lads o Stefenbiggin,
They broke the house in at the riggin.
- 6 The lads o Fingland and Hellbackhill,
They were neer for good, but aye for ill.
- 7 Twixt the Staywood Buss and Langside
Hill,
They stell'd the broked cow and branded bull.
- 8 It is the lads o the Girthhead,
The diel's in them for pride and greed.
- 9
- 10 The Galliard is to the stable gane;
Instead o the Dun, the Blind he's taen.
- 11 'Come out now, Simmy o the Side,
Come out and see a Johnston ride!
- 12 'Here's the boniest horse in a' Nith-
side,
And a gentle Johnston aboon his hide.'
- 13 Simmy Crichton's mounted then,
And Crichtons has raised mony a ane.
- 14 The Galliard thought his horse had been fleet,
But they did outstrip him quite out o
sight.
- 15 As soon as the Galliard the Crichton he saw,
Beyond the saugh-bush he did draw.
- 16 The Crichtons there the Galliard hae
taen,
And nane wi him but Willy alane.
- 17 'O Simmy, Simmy, now let me gang,
And I vow I'll neer do a Crichton wraug!
- 18 'O Simmy, Simmy, now let me be,
And a peck o goud I'll gie to thee!
- 19 'O Simmy, Simmy, let me gang,
And my wife shall heap it wi her hand!'
- 20 But the Crichtons wadna let Willy bee,
But they hanged him high upon a tree.
- 21 O think then Will he was right wae,
When he saw his uncle guided sae.
- 22 'But if ever I live Wamphray to see,
My uncle's death revenged shall be!'
- 23 Back to Wamphray Willy's gane,
And riders has raised mony a ane.
- 24 Saying, My lads, if ye'll be true,
Ye's a' be clad in the noble blue.
- 25 Back to Nidsdale they are gane,
And away the Crichtons' nout they hae
taen.
- 26 As they came out at the Wallpath-head,
The Crichtons bad them light and lead.
- 27 And when they came to the Biddess-
burn,
The Crichtons bad them stand and turn.
- 28 And when they came to the Biddess-
strand,
The Crichtons they were hard at hand.

- 29 But when they cam to the Biddess-law,
The Johnstons bad them stand and draw.
- 30 Out then spake then Willy Kirkhill:
'Of fighting, lads, ye 's hae your fill.'
- 31 Then off his horse Willy he lap,
And a burnishd brand in his hand he took.
- 32 And through the Crichtons Willy he ran,
And daug them down both horse and
man.
- 33 O but these lads were wondrous rude,
When the Biddess-burn ran three days
blood!
- 34 'I think, my lads, we've done a noble
deed;
We have revengd the Galiard's blood.
- 35 'For every finger o the Galiard's hand,
I vow this day I've killed a man.'
- 36 And hame for Wamphray they are
gane,
And away the Crichtons' nout they've
taen.
- 37 'Sin we've done na hurt, nor we'll take na wrang,
But back to Wamphray we will gang.'
- 38 As they came in at Evanhead,
At Reaklaw-holm they spred abroad.
- 39 'Drive on, my lads, it will be late;
We'll have a pint at Wamphray Gate.
- 40 'For where eer I gang, or eer I ride,
The lads o Wamphr[a]y's on my side.
- 41 'For of a' the lads that I do ken,
The lads o Wamphr[a]y's king o men.'

DICK O THE COW

a seems to have been communicated to Percy by Roger Halt in 1775. b was contributed to Caw's Museum by John Elliot of Reidheugh, a gentleman, says Scott, well skilled in the antiquities of the western border. c was taken down "from the singing and recitation of a Liddesdale-man, namely, Robert Shortreed, sheriff-substitute of Roxburghshire, in the autumn of 1816;" but it differs from b in no important respect except the omission of thirteen stanzas, 17, 18, 24, 32, 35-38, 51, 52, 56-58. The ballad was popular before the end of the sixteenth century, as is shown by a passage in Nashe's Have with you to Saffron Walden, 1596: "Dick of the Cow, that mad demi-lance northren borderer, who plaied his prizes with the lord Jockey so bravely" (Grosart's Nashe, III, 6). In a list of books printed for and sold by P. Brooksby, 1688, occurs "Dick-a-the-Cow, containing north-country songs." The Cow in Dick's name can have no reference to cattle, for then his style would have been 'Dick o the Kye.' It may possibly denote the hut in which he lived; or brush, or broom.

a. 'An excelent old song cald Dick of the Cow.' Percy Papers, 1775. b. Caw's Poetical Museum, p. 22, 1784. c. Campbell, Albyn's Anthology, II, 31, 1818.

- 1 Now Liddisdale has lain long in,
Fa la
There is no rideing there a ta;
Fa la
Their horse is growing so lidder and fatt
That are lazie in the sta.
Fa la la didle
- 2 Then Johnē Armstrang to Willie cansay,
Billie, a rideing then will we;
England and us has been long at a feed;
Perhaps we may hitt of some bootie.
- 3 Then they'r comd on to Hutton Hall,
They rade that proper place about;
But the laird he was the wiser man,
For he had left nae gear without.
- 4 Then he had left nae gear to steal,
Except six sheep upon a lee;
Says Johnie, I'de rather in England
die
Before their six sheep good to Liddisdale with me.
- 5 'But how cald they the man we last with mett,
Billie, as we came over the know?'
'That same he is an innocent fool,
And some men calls him Dick o the Cow.'

- 6 'That fool has three as good kyne of his
own
As is in a' Cumberland, billie,' quoth
he:
'Betide my life, betide my death,
These three kyne shal go to Liddisdaile with me.'
- 7 Then they're comd on to the poor fool's
house,
And they have broken his wals so wide;
They have loosd out Dick o the Cow's kyne three,
And tane three coerlets off his wife's
bed.
- 8 Then on the morn, when the day grew
light,
The shouts and crys rose loud and
high:
'Hold thy tongue, my wife,' he says,
'And of thy crying let me bee.'
- 9 'Hald thy tongue, my wife,' he says,
'And of thy crying let me bee,
And ay that where thou wants a kow,
Good sooth that I shal bring the three.'
- 10 Then Dick's comd on to lord and master,
And I wate a drerie fool [was] he:
'Hald thy tongue, my fool,' he says,
'For I may not stand to jest with
thee.'
- 11 'Shame speed a your jesting, my lord,'
quo Dickie,
'For nae such jesting grees with me;
Liddesdaile has been in my house this
last night,
And they have tane my three kyne
from me.'
- 12 'But I may nae langer in Cumberland
dwel,
To be your poor fool and your leel,
Unless ye give me leave, my lord,
To go to Liddisdale and steal.'
- 13 'To give thee leave, my fool,' he says,
'Thou speaks against mine honour
and me;
Unless thou give me thy trouth and thy right hand
Thou'l steal frae nane but them that sta from thee.'
- 14 'There is my trouth and my right hand;
My head shal hing on Hairibie,
I'le never crose Carlele sands again,
If I steal frae a man but them that sta frae me.'
- 15 Dickie has tane leave at lord and mas-
ter,
And I wate a merrie fool was he;
He has bought a bridle and a pair of new spurs,
And has packed them up in his breechthigh.
- 16 Then Dickie's come on for Puddin-
burn,
Even as fast as he may drie;
Dickie's come on for Puddinburn,
Where there was thirty Armstrongs
and three.
- 17 'What's this comd on me!' quo Dickie,
'What meakle wae's this happend on me,' quo he,
'Where here is but ae innocent fool,
And there is thirty Armstrongs and
three!'
- 18 Yet he's comd up to the hall among
them all;
So wel he became his courtesie:
'Well may ye be, my good Laird's Jock!
But the deil bless all your companie.'
- 19 'I'm come to plain of your man Fair
Johnie Armstrong,
And syne his billie Willie,' quo he;
'How they have been in my house this
last night,
And they have tane my three ky frae
me.'
- 20 Quo Johnie Armstrong, We'll him hang;
'Nay,' thain quo Willie, 'we'll him
slae;
But up bespake another young man
We'll nit him in a four-nooked sheet.
Give him his burden of batts, and lett him gae.'
- 21 Then up bespake the good Laird's Jock,
The best falla in the companie:
Sitt thy way down a little while, Dickie,
And a peice of thine own cow's bough
I'll give to thee.

- 22 But Dicki's heart it grew so great
That never a bitt of it he dought to eat;
But Dickie was warr of ane auld peat-
house,
Where there al the night he thought for to sleep.
- 23 Then Dickie was warr of that auld peat-
house,
Where there al the night he thought
for to ly;
And a' the prayers the poor fool prayd
was,
'I wish I had a mense for my own three kye!'
- 24 Then it was the use of Puddinburn,
And the house of Mangertoun, all haile!
These that came not at the first call
They gott no more meat till the next meall.
- 25 The lads, that hungry and aevery was,
Above the door-head they flang the key;
Dickie took good notice to that;
Says, There's a bootie younder for me.
- 26 Then Dickie's gane into the stable,
Where there stood thirty horse and
three;
He has ty'd them a' with St Mary knot,
All these horse but barely three.
- 27 He has ty'd them a' with St Mary knott,
All these horse but barely three;
He has loupn on one, taken another in
his hand,
And out at the door and gane is Dickie.
- 28 Then on the morn, when the day grew
light,
The shouts and cryes rose loud and
high;
'What's that theife?' quo the good
Laird's Jock;
'Tel me the truth and the verity.
- 29 'What's that theife?' quo the good
Laird's Jock;
'See unto me ye do not lie:'
'Dick o the Cow has been in the stable
this last night,
And has my brother's horse and mine
frae me.'

- 30 'Ye wad never be teld it,' quo the Laird's
Jock;
'Have ye not found my tales fu leel?
Ye wade never out of England bide,
Till crooked and blind and a' wad steal.'
- 31 'But will thou lend me thy bay?' Fair
Johnie Armstrong can say,
'There's nae mae horse loose in the stable but he;
And I 'le either bring ye Dick o the Kow again,
Or the day is come that he must die.'
- 32 'To lend thee my bay,' the Laird's Jock
can say,
'He's both worth gold and good
monie;
Dick o the Kow has away twa horse,
I wish no thou should no make him
three.'
- 33 He has tane the Laird's jack on his back,
The twa-handed sword that hang
liengh by his thigh;
He has tane the steel cap on his head,
And on is he to follow Dickie.
- 34 Then Dickie was not a mile off the town,
I wate a mile but barely three,
Till John Armstrong has oertane Dick
o the Kow,
Hand for hand on Cannobei lee.
- 35 'Abide th[e], bide now, Dickie than,
The day is come that thow must die;'
Dickie looked oer his left shoulder;
'Johnie, has thow any mo in thy company?'
- 36 'There is a preacher in owr chapell,
And a' the lee-lang day teaches he;
When day is gane, and night is come,
There's never a word I mark but
three.
- 37 'The first and second's Faith and Conscience;
The third is, Johnie, Take head of
thee;
But what faith and conscience had thow,
traitor,
When thou took my three kye frae
me?'

38 'And when thou had tane my three kye, Thou thought in thy heart thou was no wel sped;
But thou sent thi billie Willie oer the
know,
And he took three coerlets of my wife's bed.'

39 Then Johne lett a spear fa leaugh by his thigh,
Thought well to run the innocent
through;
But the powers above was more than his,
He ran but the poor fool's jerkin
through.

40 Together they ran or ever they blan —
This was Dickie, the fool, and hee —
Dickie could not win to him with the blade of the sword,
But he feld [him] with the plummet
under the eye.

41 Now Dickie has [feld] Fair Johnē Arm-
strong,
The prettiest man in the south coun-
tre;'
'Gramercie,' then can Dickie say,
'I had twa horse, thou has made me
three.'

42 He has tane the laird's jack off his back,
The twa-handed sword that hang
leugh by his thigh;
He has tane the steel cape off his head:
'Johnie, I 'le tel my master I met with
thee.'

43 When Johnē wakend out of his dream,
I wate a dreiry man was he:
'Is thou gane now, Dickie, than?
The shame gae in thy company!

44 'Is thou gane now, Dickie, than?
The shame go in thy companie!
For if I should live this hundred year,
I shal never fight with a fool after
thee.'

45 Then Dickie comed home to lord and
master,
Even as fast as he may drie:
'Now Dickie, I shal neither eat meat
nor drink
Till high hanged that thou shall be!'

46 'The shame speed the liars, my lord!'
quo Dickie,
'That was so the promise ye made to
me;
For I 'd never gane to Liddesdale to steal
Till that I sought my leave at thee.'

47 'But what gart thou steal the Laird's-Jock's horse?
And, limmer, what gart thou steal
him?' quo he;
'For lang might thou in Cumberland dwelt
Or the Laird's Jock had stoln ough frae thee.'

48 'Indeed I wate ye leed, my lord,
And even so loud as I hear ye lie;
I wan him frae his mau, Fair Johnē
Armstrong,
Hand for hand on Cannobie lee.

49 'There's the jack was on his back,
The twa-handed sword that hung
leugh by his thigh;
There's the steel cap was on his head;
I have a' these takens to lett you see.'

50 'If that be true thou to me tels —
I trow thou dare not tel a lie —
I 'le give thee twenty pound for the good horse,
Wel told in thy cloke-lap shall be.

51 'And I 'le give thee one of my best
milk-kye,
To maintain thy wife and children
three;
[And that may be as good, I think,
As ony twa o thine might be.]

52 'The shame speed the liars, my lord!'
quo Dicke,
'Trow ye ay to make a fool of me?
I 'le either have thirty pound for the
good horse,
Or els he's gae to Mattan fair wi me.'

53 Then he has given him thirty pound for the good horse,
All in gold and good monie;
He has given him one of his best milk-
kye,
To maintain his wife and children
three.

54 Then Dickie's come down through Carlile town,
Even as fast as he may drie:
The first of men that he with mett
Was my lord's brother, Bailife Gla-zenberrie.

55 'Well may ye be, my good Ralph Scrupe !'
'Welcome, my brother's fool !' quo
he;
'Where did thou gett Fair Johnie Armstrong's horse ?'
'Where did I get him but steall him,'
quo he.

56 'But will thou sell me Fair Johnie Armstrong['s] horse ?
And, billie, will thou sel him to me ?'
quo he:
'Ay, and tel me the monie on my cloke-
lap,
For there's not one fathing I 'le trust
thee.'

57 'I 'le give thee fifteen pound for the
good horse,
Wel told on thy cloke-lap shal be;
And I 'le give [thee] one of my best
milk-kye,
To maintain thy wife and thy children three.'

58 'The shame speed the liars, my lord !'
quo Dickie,
'Trow ye ay to make a fool of me ?'
quo he:
'I 'le either have thirty pound for the
good horse,
Or else he's to Mattan Fair with me.'

59 He has given him thirty pound for the
good horse,
All in gold and good monie;
He has given him one of his best milk-
kye,
To maintain his wife and children
three.

60 Then Dickie lap a loup on high,
And I wate a loud laughter leugh he:
'I wish the neck of the third horse were
browken,
For I have a better of my own, and onie better can be.'

61 Then Dickie comd hame to his wife
again;
Judge ye how the poor fool he sped;
He has given her three score of English
pounds
For the three auld coerlets was tane of her bed.

62 'Hae, take thee there twa as good
kye,
I trow, as al thy three might be;
And yet here is a white-footed naigg;
I think he 'le carry booth thee and
me.

63 'But I may no langer in Cumberland
dwell;
The Armstrongs the 'le hang me high:'
But Dickie has tane leave at lord and
master,
And Burgh under Stanemuir there
dwels Dickie.

KINMONT WILLIE

This ballad celebrates a bold and masterly exploit of Sir Walter Scott of Branxholm, laird of Buccleuch, April 13, 1596, which is fully narrated by a contemporary, Archbishop Spotiswood, in his History of the Church of Scotland, ed. 1655, pp. 413 ff. Kinmont Willie was "one William Armstrong, commonly called Will of Kinmouth, against whom the English had a quarrel for many wrongs he had committed, as he was indeed a notorious thief." Sir Walter Scott, who alone preserves the ballad, says that it had been "much mangled by reciters" and that "some conjectural emendations [were] absolutely necessary to render it intelligible." Probably a great deal more emendation was done than this observation would indicate. One would like, for example, to see sts. 10-12 and 31 in their mangled condition.

Minstrelsy of the Scottish Border, I, 111, 1802; II, 82, 1833.

1 O HAVE ye na heard o the fause Sakelde?
O have ye na heard o the keen Lord
Scroop ?
How they hae taen bauld Kinmont
Willie,
Ou Hairibee to hang him up ?

- 2 Had Willie had but twenty men,
But twenty men as stout as he,
Fause Sakelde had never the Kinmont
taen,
Wi eight score in his companie.
- 3 They band his legs beneath the steed,
They tied his hands behind his back;
They guarded him, fivesome on each
side,
And they brought him ower the Liddel-rack.
- 4 They led him thro the Liddel-rack,
And also thro the Carlisle sands;
They brought him to Carlisle castell,
To be at my Lord Scroope's commands.
- 5 'My hands are tied, but my tongue is
free,
And whae will dare this deed avow?
Or answer by the border law?
Or answer to the bauld Buccleuch?'
- 6 'Now hand thy tongue, thou rank reiver!
There's never a Scot shall set ye free;
Before ye cross my castle-yate,
I trow ye shall take farewell o me.'
- 7 'Fear na ye that, my lord,' quo Willie;
'By the faith o my bodie, Lord
Scroop,' he said,
'I never yet lodged in a hostelrie
But I paid my lawing before I gaed.'
- 8 Now word is gane to the bauld Keeper,
In Branksome Ha where that he lay,
That Lord Scroope has taen the Kin-mont Willie,
Between the hours of night and day.
- 9 He has taen the table wi his hand,
He garrd the red wine spring on
hie;
'Now Christ's curse on my head,' he
said,
'But avenged of Lord Scroop I'll be!'
- 10 'O is my basnet a widow's curch?
Or my lance a wand of the willow-
tree?
Or my arm a ladye's lilve hand?
That an English lord should lightly
me.
- 11 'And have they taen him Kinmont Willie,
Against the truce of Border tide,
And forgotten that the bauld Bacleuch
Is keeper here on the Scottish side?
- 12 'And have they een taen him Kinmont
Willie,
Withouten either dread or fear,
And forgotten that the bauld Bacleuch
Can back a steed, or shake a spear?
- 13 'O were there war between the lands,
As well I wot that there is none,
I would slight Carlisle castell high,
Tho it were builded of marble-stone.
- 14 'I would set that castell in a low,
And sloken it with English blood;
There's never a man in Cumberland
Should ken where Carlisle castell
stood.
- 15 'But since nae war's between the lands,
And there is peace, and peace should
be,
I'll neither harm English lad or lass,
And yet the Kinmont freed shall
be!'
- 16 He has calld him forty marchmen
bauld,
I trow they were of his ain name,
Except Sir Gilbert Elliot, calld
The Laird of Stobs, I mean the same.
- 17 He has calld him forty marchmen
bauld,
Were kinsmen to the bauld Buc-
cleuch,
With spur on heel, and splent on spanld,
And gleuves of green, and feathers blue.
- 18 There were five and five before them a',
Wi hunting-horns and bugles bright;
And five and five came wi Buccleuch,
Like Warden's men, arrayed for fight.
- 19 And five and five like a mason-gang,
That carried the ladders lang and
hie;
And five and five like broken men;
And so they reached the Woodhouse-
lee.

- 20 And as we crossd the Bateable Land,
When to the English side we held,
The first o men that we met wi,
Whae sould it be but fause Sakelde!
- 21 'Where be ye gaun, ye hunters keen?'
Quo fause Sakelde; 'come tell to me!'
'We go to hunt an English stag,
Has trespassd on the Scots countrie.'
- 22 'Where be ye gann, ye marshal-men?'
Quo fause Sakelde; 'come tell me
true!'
'We go to catch a rank reiver,
Has broken faith wi the bauld Buc-
cleuch.'
- 23 'Where are ye gaun, ye mason-lads,
Wi a' your ladders lang and hie?'
'We gang to herry a corbie's nest,
That wons not far frae Woodhouse-
lee.'
- 24 'Where be ye gaun, ye broken men?'
Quo fause Sakelde; 'come tell to me!'
Now Dickie of Dryhope led that hand,
And the never a word o lear had he.
- 25 'Why trespass ye on the English side?
Row-footed outlaws, stand!' quo he;
The neer a word had Dickie to say,
Sae he thrust the lance thro his fause bodie.
- 26 Then on we held for Carlisle tonn,
And at Staneshaw-bank the Eden we crossd;
The water was great, and meikle of spait,
But the nevir a horse nor man we lost.
- 27 And when we reachd the Staneshaw-
bank,
The wind was rising loud and hie;
And there the laird garrd leave our steeds,
For fear that they should stamp and nie.
- 28 And when we left the Staneshaw-bank,
The wind began full loud to blaw;
But 't was wind and weet, and fire and
sleet,
When we came beneath the castle-wa.

- 29 We crept on knees, and held our breath,
Till we placed the ladders against the
wa;
And sae ready was Buccleuch himsell
To mount the first before us a'.
- 30 He has taen the watchman by the throat,
He flung him down upon the lead:
'Had there not been peace between our
lands,
Upon the other side thou hadst gaed.
- 31 'Now sound out, trumpets!' quo Buc-
cleuch;
'Let's waken Lord Scroope right
merrilie!'
Then loud the Warden's trumpets
blew
'O whae dare meddle wi me?'
- 32 Then speedilie to wark we gaed,
And raised the slogan ane and a',
And cut a hole thro a sheet of lead,
And so we wan to the castle-ha.
- 33 They thought King James and a' his
men
Had won the house wi bow and speir;
It was but twenty Scots and ten
That put a thousand in sic a stear!
- 34 Wi coulters and wi forehammers,
We garrd the bars bang merrilie,
Untill we came to the inner prison,
Where Willie o Kinmont he did lie.
- 35 And when we cam to the lower prison,
Where Willie o Kinmont he did lie,
'O sleep ye, wake ye, Kinmont Willie,
Upon the morn that thou's to die?'
- 36 'O I sleep saft, and I wake aft,
It's lang since sleeping was fleyd frae
me;
Gie my service back to my wyfe and
bairns,
And a' gude fellows that speer for
me.'
- 37 Then Red Rowan has hente him up,
The starkest men in Teviotdale:
'Abide, abide now, Red Rowan,
Till of my Lord Scroope I take fare-
well.

38 'Farewell, farewell, my gude Lord
Scroope!
My gude Lord Scroope, farewell!' he
cried;
'I'll pay you for my lodging-maill
When first we meet on the border-
side.'

39 Then shoulder high, with shout and cry,
We bore him down the ladder lang;
At every stride Red Rowan made,
I wot the Kinmont's airns playd clang.

40 'O mony a time,' quo Kinmont Willie,
'I have ridden horse baith wild and
wood;
But a rougher beast than Red Rowan
I ween my legs have neer bestrode.

41 'And mony a time,' quo Kinmont Willie,
'I've pricked a horse out oore the furs;
But since the day I backed a steed
I nevir wore sic cumbrous spurs.'

42 We scarce had won the Staneshaw-
bank,
When a' the Carlisle bells were rung,
And a thousand men, in horse and foot,
Cam wi the keen Lord Scroope along.

43 Buccleuch has turned to Eden Water,
Even where it flowd frae bank to brim,
And he has plunged in wi a' his band,
And safely swam them thro the stream.

44 He turned him on the other side,
And at Lord Scroope his glove flung
he:
'If ye like na my visit in merry Eng-
land,
In fair Scotland come visit me!'

45 All sore astonished stood Lord Scroope,
He stood as still as rock of stane;
He scarcely dared to trew his eyes
When thro the water they had gane.

46 'He is either himsell a devil frae hell,
Or else his mother a witch maun be;
I wad na have ridden that wan water
For a' the gowd in Christentie.'

JOCK O THE SIDE

The earliest appearance of John o the Side is, perhaps, in the list of the marauders against whom complaint was made to the Bishop of Carlisle "presently after" Queen Mary Stuart's departure for France; not far, therefore, from 1550: "John of the Side (Gleed John)." The earls of Northumberland and Westmoreland, after the failure of the Rising in the North, fled first to Liddesdale, and thence "to one of the Armstrongs," in the Debateable Land. The Liddesdale men stole the Countess of Northumberland's horses, and the earls, continuing their flight, left her "on foot, at John of the Syde's house, a cottage not to be compared to any dog-kennel in England." At his departing, "my lord of Westmoreland changed his coat of plate and sword with John of the Syde, to be the more unknown" (Sussex to Cecil, December 22, 1569, printed in Sharp's Memorials of the Rebellion, p. 114 f.).

This ballad is one of the best in the world, and enough to make a moss-trooper of any young borderer, had he lacked the impulse. In deference to history, it is put after Kinmont Willie, for it may be a free version of his story. Scott's version (Minstrelsy, 1802, i, 154) is B b, with the insertion of three stanzas (6, 7 28) from B a.

'John a Side,' Percy MS., p. 254; Hales and Furnivall, II, 203.

* * * * *

1 PETER a Whifeild he hath slaine,
And Iohn a Side, he is tane,
'And Iohn is bound both hand and foote,
And to the New-castle he is gone.

2 But tydinges came to the Sybill o the
Side,
By the water-side as shee rann;
Shee tooke her kirtle by the hem,
And fast shee runn to Mangerton.

3
The lord was sett downe at his meate;
'When these tydings shee did him tell,
Neuer a morsell might he eate.

4 Ent lords, the wrunge their fingers white,
Ladies did pull themselves by the haire,

Crying, Alas and weladay !

For Iohn o the Side wee shall neuer see more.

5 'But wee 'le goe sell our droues of kine,
And after them our oxen sell,
And after them our troopes of sheepe,
But wee will loose him out of the New Castell.'

6 But then bespake him Hobby Noble,
And spoke these words wonderous
hye;
Sayes, Giue me fwe men to my selfe,
And I 'le feitch Iohn o the Side to
thee.

7 'Yea, thou 'st haue fwe, Hobby Noble,
Of the best that are in this countrie;
I 'le giue thee fwe thousand, Hobby
Noble,
That walke in Tyuidale trulye.'

8 'Nay, I 'le haue but fwe,' saies Hobby
Noble,
'That shall walke away with mee;
Wee will ryde like noe men of warr;
But like poore badgers wee wilbe.'

9 They stuffet vp all their baggs with straw,
And their steeds barefoot must bee;
'Come on, my bretheren,' sayes Hobby
Noble,
'Come on your wayes, and goe with
mee.'

10 And when they came to Culerton ford,
The water was vp, they cold it not
goe;
And then they were ware of a good old
man,
How his boy and hee were at the plowe.

11 'But stand you still,' sayes Hobby Noble,
'Stand you still heere at this shore,
And I will ryde to yonder old man,
And see w[h]ere the gate it lyes ore.

12 'But Christ you saue, father !' quoth
hee,
'Crist both you saue and see !
Where is the way ouer this fford ?
For Christ's sake tell itt mee !'

13 'But I haue dwelled heere three score
yeere,
Soe haue I done three score and three;
I neuer sawe man nor horsse goe ore,
Except itt were a horse of tree.'

14 'But fare thou well, thou good old man !
The devill in hell I leave with thee,
Noe better comfort heere this night
Thow giues my bretheren heere and
me.'

15 But when he came to his brether againe,
And told this tydings full of woe,
And then they found a well good gate
They might ryde ore by two and two.

16 And when they were come ouer the fforde,
All safe gotten att the last,
'Thankes be to God !' sayes Hobby
Nobble,
'The worst of our perill is past.'

17 And then they came into Howbrame
wood,
And there then they found a tree,
And cutt itt downe then by the roote;
The lenght was thirty ffoote and three.

18 And four of them did take the planke,
As light as it had beene a flee,
And carryed itt to the New Castle,
Where as Iohn a Side did lye.

19 And some did climbe vp by the walls,
And some did climbe vp by the tree,
Vntill they came vpp to the top of the castle,
Where Iohn made his moane trulye.

20 He sayd, God be with thee, Sybill o the
Side !
My owne mother thou art, quoth hee;
If thou knew this night I were here,
A woe woman then woldest thou bee.

21 And fare you well, Lord Mangerton !
And euer I say God be with thee !
For if you knew this night I were heere,
You wold sell your land for to loose
mee.

22 And fare thou well, Much, Millers sonne !
Much, Millars sonne, I say;

- Thou has beene better att merke mid-
night
Then euer thou was att noone o the
day.
- 23 And fare thou well, my good Lord
Clough !
Thou art thy ffathers sonne and heire;
Thou neuer saw him in all thy liffe
But with him durst thou breake a speare.
- 24 Wee are brothers childer nine or ten,
And sisters children ten or eleven.
We neuer came to the feild to fight,
But the worst of us was counted a
man.
- 25 But then bespake him Hoby Noble,
And spake these words vnto him;
Saies, Sleepest thou, wakest thou, Iohn
o the Side,
Or art thou this castle within ?
- 26 'But who is there,' quoth Iohn oth Side,
'That knowes my name soe right and
free ?'
'I am a bastard-brother of thine;
This night I am comen for to loose
thee.'
- 27 'Now nay, now nay,' quoth Iohn o the
Side;
'Itt feares me sore that will not bee;
Ffor a pecke of gold and silver,' Iohn
sayd,
'In faith this night will not loose mee.'
- 28 But then bespake him Hobby Noble,
And till his brother thus sayd hee;
Sayes, Four shall take this matter in
hand,
And two shall tent our geldings ffree.
- 29 Four did breake one dore without,
Then Iohn brake fne himsell;
But when they came to the iron dore,
It smote twelue vpon the bell.
- 30 'Itt feares me sore,' sayd Much, the Miller,
'That heere taken wee all shalbee;'
'But goe away, bretheren,' sayd Iohn a
Side,
'For euer alas ! this will not bee.'
- 31 'But fye vpon thee !' sayd Hobby
Noble;
'Much, the Miller, fye vpon thee !
It sore feares me,' said Hobby Noble,
'Man that thou wilt neuer bee.'
- 32 But then he had Fflanders fles two or
three,
And hee fyled downe that iron dore,
And tooke Iohn out of the New Castle,
And sayd, Looke thou neuer come heere more !
- 33 When he had him fforth of the New Castle,
'Away with me, Iohn, thou shalt
ryde :'
But euer alas ! itt cold not bee;
For Iohn cold neither sitt nor stryde.
- 34 But then he had sheets two or three,
And bound Iohns boults fast to his
ffete,
And sett him on a well good steede,
Himselfe on another by him seete.
- 35 Then Hobby Noble smiled and lough[e],
And spoke these worde in mickle
pryde:
Thou sitts soe finely on thy geldinge
That, Iohn, thou rydes like a bryde.
- 36 And when they came thorow How-brame towne,
Iohns horasse there stumbled at a
stone;
'Out and alas !' cryed Much, the Miller,
'Iohn, thou 'le make vs all be tane.'
- 37 'But fye vpon thee !' saies Hobby
Noble,
'Much, the Millar, fye on thee !
I know full well,' sayes Hobby Noble,
'Man that thou wilt neuer bee.'
- 38 And when the came into Howbrame
wood,
He had Fflanders fles two or three
To file Iohns bolts beside his ffete,
That hee might ryde more easilye.
- 39 Sayes, 'Iohn, now leape ouer a steede !'
And Iohn then hee lope ouer fne:
'I know well,' sayes Hobby Noble,
'Iohn, thy ffellow is not aline.'

40 Then he brought him home to Manger-
ton;
The lord then he was att his meate;
But when Iohn o the Side he there did
see,
For faine hee cold noe more eate.

41 He sayes, Blest be thou, Hobby Noble,
That euer thou wast man borne !
Thou hast feitched vs home good Iohn
oth Side,
That was now cleane ffrom vs gone.

'Jock o the Side.' a. Caw's Poetical Museum, 1784, p. 145 ; "from an old manuscript
copy." b. Campbell's Albyn's Anthology, II, 28, 1818 ; "taken down from the recitation of Mr Thomas Shortreed," of Jedburgh, "who learnt it from his father."

1 'Now Liddisdale has ridden a raid,
But I wat they had better staid at
hame;
For Mitchel o Winfield he is dead,
And my son Johnie is prisner tane.'
With my fa ding diddle, la la dow diddle.

2 For Mangerton House auld Downie is
gane;
Her coats she has kilted up to her
knee,
And down the water wi speed she
rins,
While tears in spaits fa fast frae her eie.

3 Then up and bespake the lord Manger-
ton:
'What news, what news, sister Downie, to me ?'
'Bad news, bad news, my lord Manger-
ton;
Mitchel is kild, and tane they hae my son Johnie.'

4 'Neer fear, sister Downie,' quo Manger-
ton;
'I hae yokes of oxen four and twentie,
My barns, my byres, and my faulds, a'
weel filld,
And I'll part wi them a' ere Johnie shall die.

5 'Three men I'll take to set him free,
Weel harness'd a' wi best o steel;
The English rogues may hear, and drie
The weight o their braid swords to feel.

6 'The Laird's Jock ane, the Laird's Wat
twa,
Oh, Hobie Noble, thou ane maun
be ;
Thy coat is blue, thou has been true,
Since England banish'd thee, to me.'

7 Now Hobie was an English man,
In Bewcastle-dale was bred and born;
But his misdeeds they were sae great,
They banish'd him neer to return.

8 Lord Mangerton them orders gave,
'Your horses the wrang way maun a'
be shod;
Like gentlemen ye must not seem,
But look like corn-caugers gawn ae road.

9 'Your armour gude ye maunna shaw,
Nor ance appear like men o weir;
As country lads be all arrayd,
Wi branks and brecham on ilk mare.'

10 Sae now a' their horses are shod the wrang way,
And Hobie has mounted his grey sae
fine,
Jock his lively bay, Wat 's on his white horse behind,
And on they rode for the water o
Tyne.

11 At the Choler-ford they a' light down,
And there, wi the help o the light o
the moon,
A tree they cut, wi fifteen naggs upo
ilk side,
To climb up the wa o Newcastle town.

12 But when they cam to Newcastle town,
And were alighted at the wa,
They fand their tree three ells oer laigh,
They fand their stick baith short and
sma.

13 Then up and spake the Laird's ain Jock,
'There's naething for 't, the gates
we maun force;'

But when they cam the gates unto,
A proud porter withstood baith men and horse.

14 His neck in twa I wat they hae wrung,
Wi hand or foot he neer playd paw;
His life and his keys at aunes they hae
tane,
And cast his body ahind the wa.

15 Now soon they reach Newcastle jail,
And to the prisner thus they call:
'Sleips thou, wakes thou, Jock o the
Side?
Or is thou wearied o thy thrall?'

16 Jock answers thus, wi dolefu tone:
Aft, aft I wake, I seldom sleip;
But wha's this kens my name sae weel,
And thus to hear my waes do[e]s
seik?

17 Then up and spake the good Laird's
Jock,
'Neer fear ye now, my billie,' quo he;
'For here's the Laird's Jock, the Laird's Wat,
And Hobie Noble, come to set thee
free.'

18 'Oh, had thy tongue, and speak nae
mair,
And o thy tawk now let me be!
For if a' Liddisdale were here the night,
The morn's the day that I maun die.

19 'Full fifteen stane o Spanish iron
They hae laid a' right sair on me;
Wi locks and keys I am fast bound
Into this dungeon mirk and drearie.'

20 'Fear ye no that,' quo the Laird's Jock;
'A faint heart neer wan a fair ladie;
Work thou within, we'll work without,
And I'll be bound we set thee free.'

21 The first strong dore that they came at,
They loosed it without a key;
The next chaind dore that they cam at,
They gard it a' in flinders flee.

22 The prisner now, upo his back,
The Laird's Jock's gotten up fu hie;
And down the stair him, irons and a',
Wi nae sma speed and joy brings he.

23 'Now, Jock, I wat,' quo Hobie Noble,
'Part o the weight ye may lay on me;'
'I wat weel no,' quo the Laird's Jock,
'I count him lighter than a flee.'

24 Sae out at the gates they a' are gane,
The prisner's set on horseback hie;
And now wi speed they've tane the
gate,
While ilk ane jokes fu wantonlie.

25 'O Jock, sae winsomely's ye ride,
Wi baith your feet upo ae side!
Sae weel's ye're harnessd, and sae trig!
In troth ye sit like ony bride.'

26 The night, tho wat, they didna mind,
But hied them on fu mirrilie,
Until they cam to Cholerford brae,
Where the water ran like mountains
hie.

27 But when they came to Cholerford,
There they met with an auld man;
Says, Honest man, will the water ride?
Tell us in haste, if that ye can.

28 'I wat weel no,' quo the good auld man;
'Here I hae livd this threty yeirs and
three,
And I neer yet saw the Tyne sae big,
Nor rinning ance sae like a sea.'

29 Then up and spake the Laird's saft Wat,
The greatest coward in the company;
'Now halt, now halt, we needna try't;
The day is comd we a' maun die!'

30 'Poor faint-hearted thief!' quo the Laird's Jock,
'There'll nae man die but he that's fie;
I'll lead ye a' right safely through;
Lift ye the prisner on ahint me.'

31 Sae now the water they a' hae tane,
By anes and twas they a' swam
through;
'Here are we a' safe,' says the Laird's
Jock,
'And, poor faint Wat, what think ye
now?'

32 They scarce the ither side had won,
When twenty men they saw pursue;

Frae Newcastle town they had been sent,
A' English lads, right good and true.

33 But when the land-sergeant the water
saw,
'It winna ride, my lads,' quo he;
Then out he cries, Ye the prisner may
take,
But leave the irons, I pray, to me.

34 'I wat weel no,' cryd the Laird's Jock,
'I 'll keep them a', shoon to my mare
they 'll be;
My good grey mare, for I am sure,
She's bought them a' fu dear frae
thee.'

35 Sae now they're away for Liddisdale,
Een as fast as they coud them hie;
The prisner's brought to his ain fireside,
And there o's airns they make him
free.

36 'Now, Jock, my billie,' quo a' the three,
'The day was comd thou was to die;
But thou's as weel at thy ain fire-side,
Now sitting, I think, tween thee and
me.'

37 They hae gard fill up ae punch-bowl,
And after it they maun hae anither,
And thus the night they a' hae spent,
Just as they had been brither and brither.

ARCHIE O CAWFIELD

This ballad is in all of the salient features a repetition of 'Jock o the Side' (No. 187), Halls playing the parts of Armstrongs. The Halls are several times complained of for reif and away-taking of ky, oxen, etc., in 1579. B a was printed by Scott in the first edition of his Minstrelsy, with certain changes, besides Scotticising of the spelling. The later edition of the same contains ten stanzas from another version preserved in Abbotsford MS. (see Child, iv, 516) and omits some stanzas of B a. The new stanzas are given in the Notes as they stand in the manuscript.

A

'Archie of the Cawfield,' Percy Papers. communicated to Percy by Miss Fisher of Carlisle, 1780.

1 LATE in an evening forth as I went,
'T was on the dawning of the day;
I heard two brothers make their moan,
I listend well what they did say.

2
We were three born brethren,
There[s] one of us condemnd to die.

3 Then up bespake Jock the laird:
'If I had but a hundre men,
A hundred o th best i Christenty,
I wad go on to fair Dumfries, I wad loose my brother and set him free.'

4 So up bespak then Dicky Ha,
He was the wisest o the three:
'A hundre men we'll never get,
Neither for gold nor fee,
But some of them will us betray;
They 'l neither fight for gold nor fee.

5 'Had I but ten well-wight men,
Ten o the best i Christenty,
I wad gae on to fair Dumfries,
I wad loose my brother and set him
free.

6 'Jocky Ha, our cousin, 's be the first
man '
(For leugh o Liddesdale cracked he);
'An ever we come till a pinch,
He 'll be as good as ony three.'

7 They mounted ten well-wight men,
Ten o the best i Christenty;

8 There was horsing and horsing of haste,
And cracking o whips out oer the
lee,
Till they came to fair Barngliss,
And they ca'd the smith right quietly.

9 He has shod them a' their horse,
He 's shod them sicker and honestly,
And he as turnd the cawkers backwards
oer,
Where foremost they were wont to be.

10 And there was horsing, horsing of haste,
And cracking of whips out oer the
lee,

Until they came to the Bonshaw wood,
Where they held their council privately.

11 Some says, We'll gang the Annan road,
It is the better road, said they;
Up bespak then Dicky Ha,
The wisest of that company.

12 'Annan road's a publick road,
It's no the road that makes for me;
But we will through at Hoddam ford,
It is the better road,' said he.

13 And there was horsing, horsing o haste,
And cracking of whips out oer the lea,
Until they came to fair Dumfries,
And it was newly stricken three.

14 Up bespake then Jocky Ha,
For leugh o Liddesdale cracked he:
'I have a mare, they ca her Meg,
She is the best i Christenty;
An ever we come till a pinch,
She'll bring awa both thee and me.'

15 'But five we'll leave to had our horse,
And five will watch, guard for to be;
Who is the man,' said Dicky then,
'To the prison-door will go with me?'

16 Up bespak then Jocky Ha,
For leugh o Liddesdale cracked he:
'I am the man,' said Jocky than,
'To the prison-door I'll go with thee.'

17 They are up the jail-stair,
They stepped it right soberly,
Until they came to the jail-door;
They ca'd the prisoner quietly.

18 'O sleeps thou, wakest thou, Archie, my billy?
O sleeps thou, wakes thou, dear billy?
'Sometimes I sleep, sometimes I wake;
But who's that knows my name so well?' [said he.]
'I am thy brother Dicky,' he says;
'This night I'm come to borrow thee.'

19 But up bespake the prisoner then,
And O but he spake woefully!
'Today has been a justice-court,
.

And a' Liddesdale were here the night,
The morn's the day at I'se to die.'

20 'What is thy crime, Archie, my billy?
What is the crime they lay to thee?
I brake a spear i the warden's breast,
For saving my master's land,' said he.

21 'If that be a' the crime they lay to thee,
Archie, my billy,
If that be the crime they lay to thee,
Work thou within, and me without,
And thro good strength I'll borrow thee.'

22 'I cannot work, billy,' he says,
'I cannot work, billy, with thee,
For fifteen stone of Spanish iron
Lyes fast to me with lock and key.'

23 When Dicky he heard that,
'Away, thou crabby chiel!' cried he;
He's taen the door aye with his foot,
And fast he followd it with his knee.
Till a' the bolts the door hung on,
O th' prison-floor he made them flee.

24 'Thou's welcome, welcome, Archy, my billy,
Thou's aye right dear welcome to me;
There shall be straits this day,' he said,
'This day or thou be taen from me.'

25 He's got the prisoner on o his back,
He's gotten him irons and aw,
.

26 Up bespake then Jocky Ha,
'Let some o th' prisoner lean on me;'
'The diel o there,' quo Dicky than,
'He's no the wightdom of a flea.'

27 They are on o that gray mare,
And they are on o her aw three,
And they linked the irons about her neck,
And galloped the street right wantonly.

28 'To horse, to horse,' then, 'all,' he says,
'Horse ye with all the might ye may,
For the jailor he will waken next;
And the prisoners had a' wan away.'

- 29 There was horsing, horsing of haste,
And cracking o whips out oer the lea,
Until they came to the Bonshaw Shield;
There they held their council privately.
- 30 Some says, 'We'll gang the Annan road;
It is the better road,' said they;
But up bespak than Dicky Ha,
The wisest of that company:
- 31 'Annan road's a publick road,
It's not the road that makes for me;
But we will through at Annan Holme,
It is the better road,' said he;
'An we were in at Wamfrey Gate,
The Johnstones they will a' help me.'
- 32 But Dicky lookd oer his left shoulder,
I wait a wiley look gave he;
He spied the lieutenant coming,
And a hundre men of his company.
- 33 'So horse ye, horse ye, lads!' he said,
'O horse ye, sure and siccerly!
For yonder is the lieutenant,
With a hundred men of his company.'
- 34 There was horsing, horsing of haste,
And cracking o whips out oer the lea,
Until they came to Annan Holme,
And it was running like a sea.
- 35 But up bespake the lieutenant,
Until a bonny lad said he,
'Who is the man,' said the lieutenant,
'Rides foremost of yon company?'
- 36 Then up bespake the bonny lad,
Until the lieutenant said he,
'Some men do ca him Dicky Ha,
Rides foremost of yon company.'
- 37 'O haste ye, haste ye!' said the lieutenant,
'Pursue with a' the might ye may!
For the man had needs to be well saint
That comes thro the hands o Dicky Ha.'
- 38 But up bespak Jock the laird,
'This has been a dearsome night to me;

- I've a colt of four years old,
I wait he wannelld like the wind;
If ever he come to the deep,
He will plump down, leave me behind.'
- 39 'Wae light o thee and thy horse baith,
Jock,
And even so thy horse and thee!
Take thou mine, and I'll take thine,
Foul fa the warst horse i th' company!
I'll cast the prisoner me behind;
There'll no man die but him that's fee.'
- 40 There they've a' taen the flood,
And they have taen it hastily;
Dicky was the hindmost took the flood,
And foremost on the land stood he.
- 41 Dicky's turnd his horse about,
And he has turnd it hastily:
'Come through, come thro, my lieutenant,
Come thro this day, and drink wi me,
And thy dinner's be dressd in Annan Holme,
It sall not cost thee one penny.'
- 42 'I think some witch has bore the, Dicky,
Or some devil in hell been thy daddy;
I woud not swum that wan water double-horsed,
For a' the gold in Christenty.
- 43 'But throw me thro my irons, Dicky,
I wait they cost me full dear;
'O devil be there,' quo Jocky Hall,
'They'll be good shoon to my gray mare.'
- 44 O up bespoke then Jock the laird,
'This has been a dearsome night to me;
For yesternight the Cawfield was my ain,
Landsman again I neer sall be.'
- 45 'Now wae light o thee and thy lands baith, Jock,
And even so baith the land and thee!
For gear will come and gear will gang,
But three brothers again we never were to be.'

'Archie of Cafield' (miswritten 'Capeld'), Glenriddell MSS., xi, 14, 1791, "an old West
Border ballad;" Scott's Minstrelsy, 1802, i, 177.

- 1 As I was walking mine alane,
It was by the dawning o the day,
I heard twa brothers make their maine,
And I listned well what they did say.
- 2 The eldest to the youngest said,
'O dear brother, how can this be!
There was three brethren of us born,
And one of us is condemnd to die.'
- 3 'O chuse ye out a hundred men,
A hundred men in Christ[e]udie,
And we'll away to Dumfries town,
And set our billie Archie free.'
- 4 'A hundred men you cannot get,
Nor yet sixteen in Christeudie;
For some of them will us betray,
And other some will work for fee.
- 5 'But chuse ye out eleven men,
And we ourselves thirteen will be,
And we'll away to Dumfries town,
And borrow bony billie Archie.'
- 6 There was horsing, horsing in haste,
And there was marching upon the lee,
Untill they came to the Murraywhat,
And they lighted a' right speedylie.
- 7 'A smith, a smith!' Dickie he crys,
'A smith, a smith, right speedily,
To turn back the cakers of our horses feet!
For it is forward we woud be.'
- 8 There was a horsing, horsing in haste,
There was marching on the lee,
Untill they came to Dumfries port,
And there they lighted right manfulie.
- 9 'There six of us will hold the horse,
And other five watchmen will be;
But who is the man among you a'
Will go to the Tolbooth door wi me?'
- 10 O up then spake Jokie Hall
(Fra the laigh of Tiviotdale was he),

- 'If it should cost my life this very night,
I'll ga to the Tollbooth door wi thee.'
- 11 'O sleepst thou, wakest thow, Archie laddie?
O sleepst thou, wakest thow, dear
billie?'
 - 'I sleep but saft, I waken oft,
For the morn's the day that I man
die.'
 - 12 'Be o good cheer now, Archie lad,
- Be o good cheer now, dear billie;
Work thow within and I without,
And the morn thou's dine at Cafield
wi me.'
 - 13 'O work, O work, Archie?' he cries,
'O work, O work? ther's na working for me;
For ther's fifteen stane o Spanish iron,
And it lys fow sair on my body.'
 - 14 O Jokie Hall stept to the door,
And he bended it back upou his knee,
And he made the bolts that the door hang on
Jump to the wa right wantonlie.
 - 15 He took the prisoner on his back,
And down the Tollbooth stairs came
he;
Out then spak Dickie and said,
Let some o the weight fa on me;
'O shame a ma!' co Jokie Ha,
'For he's no the weight of a poor flee.
 - 16 The gray mare stands at the door,
And I wat neer a foot stirt she,
Till they laid the links out oer her neck,
And her girth was the gold-twist to be.
 - 17 And they came down thro Dumfries
town,
And O but they came bonily!
Untill they came to Lochmaben port,
And they leugh a' the night manfulie.
 - 18 There was horsing, horsing in haste,
And there was marching on the lee,
Untill they came to the Murraywhat,
And they lighted a' right speedilie.
 - 19 'A smith, a smith!' Dickie he cries,
'A smith, a smith, right speedilie,

- To file off the shakles fra my dear brother!
For it is forward we wad be.'
- 20 They had not flitt a shakle of iron,
A shakle of iron but barely three,
Till out then spake young Simon brave,
'Ye do na see what I do see.
- 21 'Lo yonder comes Liewtenant Gordon,
And a hundred men in his company:'
'O wo is me!' then Archie cries,
'For I'm the prisoner, and I must die.'
- 22 O there was horsing, horsing in haste,
And there was marching upon the lee,
Untill they came to Annan side,
And it was flowing like the sea.
- 23 'I have a colt, and he's four years old,
And he can amble like the wind,
But when he comes to the belly deep,
He lays himself down on the ground.'
- 24 'But I have a mare, and they call her Meg,
And she's the best in Christendie;
Set ye the prisoner me behind;
Ther'll na man die but he that's fae!'
- 25 Now they did swim that wan water,
And O but they swam bonilie!
Untill they came to the other side,
And they wrang their cloathes right drunk[i]lie.
- 26 'Come through, come through, Liew-
tenant Gordon!
Come through, and drink some wine
wi me!
For ther's a ale-house neer hard by,
And it shall not cost thee one penny.'
- 27 'Throw me my irons, Dickie!' he cries,
'For I wat they cost me right dear;'
'O shame a ma!' cries Jokie Ha,
'For they'll be good shoon to my gray mare.'
- 28 'Surely thy minnie has been some witch,
Or thy dad some warlock has been;
Else thow had never attempted such,
Or to the bottom thow had gone.

29 'Throw me my irons, Dickie!' he cries,
'For I wot they cost me dear enough;'
'O shame a ma!' cries Jokie Ha,
'They'll be good shakles to my plough.'

30 'Come through, come through, Liewtenant Gordon!
Come throw, and drink some wine wi
me!
For yesterday I was your prisoner,
But now the night I am set free.'

HOBIE NOBLE

Hobie Noble, though banished from Bewcastle for his irregularities, will always command the hearty liking of those who live too late to suffer from them, on account of his gallant bearing in the rescue of Jock o the Side (No. 187); see especially A, of which Hobie is the hero. All that we know of him is so much as we are told in that ballad and in this.

a. Caw's Poetical Museum, p. 193. b. 'Hobie Noble,' Percy Papers, apparently from Roger Hail, 1775.

- 1 FOUL fa the breast first treason bred in!
That Liddisdale may safely say,
For in it there was baith meat and drink,
And corn unto our geldings gay.
Fala la diddle, etc.
- 2 We were stout-hearted men and true,
As England it did often say;
But now we may turn our backs and fly,
Since brave Noble is sold away.
- 3 Now Hobie he was an English man,
And born into Bewcastle dale,
But his misdeeds they were sae great,
They banishd him to Liddisdale.
- 4 At Kershope-foot the tryst was set,
Kershope of the lily lee;
And there was traitour Sim o the Mains,
With him a private companie.
- 5 Then Hobie has graithd his body weel,
I wat it was wi baith good iron and steel;

- And he has pulld out his fringed grey,
And there, brave Noble, he rade him
weel.
- 6 Then Hobie is down the water gane,
Een as fast as he may drie;
Tho they shoud a' brusten and broken their hearts,
Frae that tryst Noble he would not be.
- 7 'Weel may ye be, my feiries five!
And aye, what is your wills wi me?'
Then they cryd a' wi ae consent,
Thou'rt welcome here, brave Noble,
to me.
- 8 Wilt thou with us in England ride?
And thy safe-warrant we will be,
If we get a horse worth a hundred
punds,
Upon his back that thou shalt be.
- 9 'I dare not with you into England ride,
The land-sergeant has me at feid;
I know not what evil may betide
For Peter of Whitfield his brother's dead.
- 10 'And Anton Shiel, he loves not me,
For I gat twa drifts of his sheep;
The great Earl of Whitfield loves me
not,
For nae gear frae me he eer coud keep.
- 11 'But will ye stay till the day gae down,
Until the night come oer the grund,
And I'll be a guide worth ony twa
That may in Liddisdale be fund.
- 12 'Tho dark the night as pick and tar,
I'll guide ye oer yon hills fu hie,
And bring ye a' in safety back,
If you'll be true and follow me.'
- 13 He's guided them oer moss and muir,
Oer hill and houp, and mony ae down,
Til they came to the Foulbogshiel,
And there brave Noble he lighted
down.
- 14 Then word is gane to the land-sergeant,
In Askirton where that he lay:
'The deer that ye hae hunted lang
Is seen into the Waste this day.'
- 15 'Then Hobie Noble is that deer;
I wat he carries the style fu hie!
Aft has he beat your slough-hounds
back,
And set yourselves at little eie.
- 16 'Gar warn the bows of Hartlie-burn,
See they shaft their arrows on the wa!
Warn Willeva and Spear Edom,
And see the morn they meet me a'.
- 17 'Gar meet me on the Rodrie-haugh,
And see it be by break o day;
And we will on to Consowthart Green,
For there, I think, w'll get our
prey.'
- 18 Then Hobie Noble has dreamd a dream,
In the Foulbogshiel where that he lay;
He thought his horse was neath him
shot,
And he himself got hard away.
- 19 The cocks could crow, and the day
could dawn,
And I wat so even down fell the rain;
If Hobie had no wakend at that time,
In the Foulbogshiel he had been tane or slain.
- 20 'Get up, get up, my feiries five —
For I wat here makes a fu ill day —
And the warst clock of this companie
I hope shall cross the Waste this
day.'
- 21 Now Hobie thought the gates were clear,
But, ever alas! it was not sae;
They were beset wi cruel men and keen,
That away brave Noble could not gae.
- 22 'Yet follow me, my feiries five,
And see of me ye keep good ray,
And the worst clock of this companie
I hope shall cross the Waste this
day.'
- 23 There was heaps of men now Hobie
before,
And other heaps was him behind,
That had he been as wight as Wallace
was
Away brave Noble he could not win.

24 Then Hobie he had but a laddies sword,
But he did more than a laddies deed;
In the midst of Conscauthart Green,
He brake it oer Jers a Wigham's
head.

25 Now they have tane brave Hobie Noble,
Wi his ain bowstring they band him
sae;
And I wat his heart was neer sae sair
As when his ain five band him on the brae.

26 They have tane him [on] for West Carlisle;
They askd him if he knew the way;
Whateer he thought, yet little he said;
He knew the way as well as they.

27 They hae tane him up the Ricker-gate;
The wives they cast their windows
wide,
And ilka wife to anither can say,
That's the man loosed Jock o the
Side!

28 'Fy on ye, women! why ca ye me man?
For it's nae man that I'm usd like;
I'm bnt like a forfonghen hound,
Has been fighting in a dirty syke.'

29 Then they hae tane him up thro Carlisle town,
And set him by the chimney-fire;
They gave brave Noble a wheat loaf to eat,
And that was little his desire.

30 Then they gave him a wheat loaf to eat
And after that a can o beer;
Then they cried a', wi ae consent,
Eat, brave Noble, and make good
cheer!

31 Confess my lord's horse, Hobie, they
say,
And the morn in Carlisle thou's no
die;
'How shall I confess them?' Hobie
says,
'For I never saw them with mine eye.'

32 Then Hobie has sworn a fu great aith,
By the day that he was gotten or
born,

He never had onything o my lord's
That either eat him grass or corn.

33 'Now fare thee weel, sweet Mangerton!
For I think again I'll neer thee see;
I wad betray nae lad alive,
For a' the goud in Christentie.

34 'And fare thee well now, Liddisdale,
Baith the hie land and the law!
Keep ye weel frae traitor Mains!
For goud and gear he'll sell ye a'.

35 'I'd rather be ca'd Hobie Noble,
In Carlisle, where he suffers for his faut,
Before I were ca'd traitor Mains,
That eats and drinks of meal and maut.'

JAMIE TELFER IN THE FAIR
DODHEAD

A* is from a manuscript written about the beginning of the nineteenth century and now in the possession of Mr William Macmath. Scott's copy (Minstrelsy, 1802, i, 80) has a few more stanzas than A, and attributes the honor of the rescue to the Scotts of Teviotdale, but it resembles A closely, even in details of phraseology. Scott's title, 'Jamie Telfer of the Fair Dodhead,' makes Jamie proprietor of the estate, whereas 'in' signifies, according to Scottish usage, that he was a tenant simply. The situation of the Dodhead is uncertain.

'Jamie Telfer in the Fair Dodhead,' C. K. Sharpe's papers.

1 It fell about the Martinmas,
When steads were fed wi corn and
hay,
The Captain of Bewcastle said to his lads,
We'll into Tiviotdale and seek a prey.

2 The first ae guide that they met with
Was high up in Hardhaugh swire,
The second guide that they met with
Was laigh down in Borthick water.

- 3 'What tidings, what tidings, my bonny guide ?'
'Nae tidings, nae tidings I hae to thee;
But if ye 'll gae to the Fair Dodhead
Mony a cow's calf I 'll let ye see.'
- 4 When they came to the Fair Dodhead,
Right hastily they clam the peel,
They loosd the nolt out, ane and a',
And ranshakled the house right weel.
- 5 Now Jamie's heart it was right sair,
The tear ay rowing in his eye;
He pled wi the Captain to hae his gear,
Or else revenged he would be.
- 6 Bat the Captain turnd himsel about,
Said, Man, there's naething in thy house
But an auld sword without a scabbard,
That scarcely now would fell a mouse.
- 7 The moon was up and the sun was down,
'T was the gryming of a new-fa'n snaw;
Jamie Telfer has run eight miles bare-foot
Between Dodhead and Branzholm Ha.
- 8 And when he came to Branzholm Ha
He shouted loud and cry'd weel he,
Till up bespake then auld Buccleugh,
'Whae's this that brings the fray to me ?'
- 9 'It's I, Jamie Telfer i the Fair Dod-head,
And a harried man I think I be;
There's naething left i the Fair Dod-head
But only wife and children three.'
- 10 'Gae seek your succour frae Martin Elliot,
For succour ye's get nane frae me;
Gae seek your succour where ye paid blackmail,
For, man, ye never paid money to me.'
- 11 Jamie he's turnd him round about,
And ay the tear blinded his eye:
'I'se never pay mail to Scott again,
Nor the Fair Dodhead I 'll ever see.'
- 12 Now Jamie is up the water-gate,
Een as fast as he can drie,
Till he came to the Coultart Cleugh,
And there he shouted and cry'd weel he.
- 13 Then up bespake him auld Jock Grieve,
'Whae's this that bring[s] the fray to me ?'
'It's I, Jamie Telfer i the Fair Dod-head,
And a harried man I think I be.
- 14 'There's naething left i the Fair Dod-head
But only wife and children three,
And sax poor calves stand i the sta,
A' routing loud for their minnie.'
- 15 'Alack, wae's me !' co auld Jock Grieve,
'Alack, alack, and wae is me !
For ye was married t' the auld sister,
And I t' the younges[t] o the three.'
- 16 Then he's taen out a bonny black,
It was weel fed wi corn and hay,
And set Jamie Telfer on his back,
To the Catlock hill to take the fray.
- 17 When he came to the Catlock hill,
He shouted loud and cry'd weel he;
Whae's that, whae's that ?' co Martin's Hab,
'Whae's this that brings the fray to me ?'
- 18 'It's I, Jamie Telfer i the Fair Dod-head,
And a harried man I think I be;
There's neathing left i the Fair Dod-head
But only wife and children three.'
- 19 'Alack, wae's me !' co Martin's Hab,
'Alack, awae, my heart is sair !
I never came bye the Fair Dodhead
That ever I faund thy basket bare.'
- 20 Then he's taen out a bonny black,
It was weel fed wi corn and hay,
And set Jamie Telfer on his back
To the Pricken haugh to take the fray
- 21 When he came to the Pricken haugh,
He shouted loud and cry'd weel he;

- Up then bespake auld Martin Elliot,
'Whae's this that brings the fray to
me?'
- 22 'It's I, Jamie Telfer i the Fair Dod-
head,
And a harried man I think I be;
There's naething left i the Fair Dod-
head
But only wife and children three.'
- 23 'Ever alack!' can Martin say,
'And ay my heart is sair for thee!
But fy, gar ca on Simmy my son,
And see that he come hastily.'
- 24 'Fy, gar warn the water-side,
Gar warn it soon and hastily;
Them that winna ride for Telfer's kye,
Let them never look i the face o me.'
- 25 'Gar warn the water, braid and wide,
And warn the Currers i the shaw;
When ye come in at the Hermitage slack,
Warn doughty Willie o Gorrenberry.'
- 26 The gear was driven the Frostily up,
From the Frostily into the plain;
When Simmie lookèd him afore,
He saw the kye right fast driving.
- 27 'Whae drives the kye,' then Simmy can
say,
'To make an outspeckle o me?'
'It's I, the Captain o Bewcastle, Sim-my,
I winna lain my name frae thee.'
- 28 'O will ye let the gear gae back?
Or will ye do ony thing for me?'
'I winna let the gear gae back,
Nor naething, Simmy, I'll do for
the[e].'
- 29 'But I'll drive Jamie Telfer's kye
In spite o Jamie Telfer's teeth and
thee;'
'Then by my sooth,' can Simmy say,
'I'll ware my dame's calfskin on
thee.'
- 30 'Fa on them, lads!' can Simmy say,
'Fy, fa on them cruelly!
For or they win to the Ritter ford
Mony toom saddle there shall be.'
- 31 But Simmy was striken oer the head,
And thro the napskape it is gane,
And Moscrop made a dolefull rage
When Simmy on the ground lay slain.
- 32 'Fy, lay on them!' co Martin Elliot,
'Fy, lay on them cruelly!
For ere they win to the Kershop ford
Mony toom saddle there shall be.'
- 33 John o Biggam he was slain,
And John o Barlow, as I heard say,
And fifteen o the Captain's men
Lay bleeding on the ground that
day.
- 34 The Captain was shot through the head,
And also through the left ba-stane;
Tho he had livd this hundred years,
He'd neer been loed by woman again.
- 35 The word is gane unto his bride,
Een in the bower where she lay,
That her good lord was in 's enemy's
land
Since into Tiviotdale he led the way.
- 36 'I loord a had a winding sheed
And helpd to put it oer his head,
Or he'd been taen in 's enemy's lands,
Since he oer Liddle his men did lead.'
- 37 There was a man in our company,
And his name was Willie Wudëspurs:
'There is a house in the Stanegarside,
If any man will ride with us.'
- 38 When they came to the Stanegarside,
They bangd wi trees and brake the
door,
They loosed the kye out, ane and a',
And set them furth our lads before.
- 39 There was an auld wif ayont the fire,
A wee bit o the Captain's kin:
'Whae loo[s]es out the Captain's kye,
And sae mony o the Captain's men
wi[t]hin?'
- 40 'I, Willie Wudëspurs, let out the kye,
I winna lain my name frae thee,
And I'll loose out the Captain's kye
In spite o the Captaiu's teeth and
thee.'

- 41 Now on they came to the Fair Dodhead,
They were a welcome sight to see,
And instead of his ain ten milk-kye
Jamie Telfer's gotten thirty and
three.

HUGHIE GRAME

Scott's copy in the Minstrelsy (1803, III, 85) is from O*, a version procured for him by William Laidlaw, with the insertion of some stanzas from Ritson's Ancient Songs. Ritson's version is A a, collated with another copy. Scott conjectures that Hugh Graham may have been one of more than four hundred borderers against whom complaints were exhibited to the Lord Bishop of Carlisle in 1548.

A

'The Life and Death of Sir Hugh of the Grime.' a. Roxburghe Ballads, II, 294. b. Douce Ballads, II, 204 b. c. Rawlinson Ballads, 566, fol. 9. All printed for P. Brooksby: 1672-95 (?). d. Pills to purge Melancholy, VI, 289, 17. e. Roxburghe Ballads, III, 344.

- 1 As it befell upon one time,
About mid-summer of the year,
Every man was taxt of his crime,
For stealing the good Lord Bishop's mare.
- 2 The good Lord Screw he saddled a horse,
And rid after this same scime;
Before he did get over the moss,
There was he aware of Sir Hugh of the Grime.
- 3 'Turn, O turn, thou false traytor,
Turn, and yield thyself unto me;
Thou hast stolen the Lord Bishops mare,
And now thou thinkest away to flee.'
- 4 'No, soft, Lord Screw, that may not be!
Here is a broad sword by my side,
And if that thou canst conquer me,
The victory will soon be try'd.'
- 5 'I ner was afraid of a traytor bold,
Although thy name be Hugh in the Grime;
I'll make thee repent thy speeches foul,
If day and life but give me time.'

- 6 'Then do thy worst, good Lord Screw,
And deal your blows as fast as you
can;
It will be try'd between me and you
Which of us two shall be the best
man.'
- 7 Thus as they dealt their blows so free,
And both so bloody at that time,
Over the moss ten yeomen they see,
Come for to take Sir Hugh in the Grime.
- 8 Sir Hugh set his back against a tree,
And then the men encompass him
round;
His mickle sword from his hand did
flee,
And then they brought Sir Hugh to
the ground.
- 9 Sir Hugh of the Grime now taken is
And brought back to Garlard town;
[Then cry'd] the good wives all in Gar-lard town,
'Sir Hugh in the Grime, thou 'st ner
gang down.'
- 10 The good Lord Bishop is come to the
town,
And on the bench is set so high;
And every man was taxt to his crime,
At length he called Sir Hugh in the Grime.
- 11 'Here am I, thou false bishop,
Thy humours all to fulfill;
I do not think my fact so great
But thou mayst put it into thy own
will.'
- 12 The quest of jury-men was calld,
The best that was in Garlard town;
Eleven of them spoke all in a breast,
'Sir Hugh in the Grime, thou 'st ner
gang down.'
- 13 Then another qnestry-men was calld,
The best that was in Rumary;
Twelve of them spoke all in a breast,
'Sir Hugh in the Grime, thou 'st now guilty.'
- 14 Then came down my good Lord Boles,
Falling down upon his knee:

'Five hundred pieces of gold would I give,
To grant Sir Hugh in the Grime to
me.'

15 'Peace, peace, my good Lord Boles,
And of your speeches set them by!
If there be eleven Grimes all of a name,
Then by my own honour they all should dye.'

16 Then came down my good Lady Ward,
Falling low upon her knee:
'Five hundred measures of gold I'll give,
To grant Sir Hugh of the Grime to
me.'

17 'Peace, peace, my good Lady Ward,
None of your proffers shall him buy!
For if there be twelve Grimes all of a
name,
By my own honour they all should dye.'

18 Sir Hugh of the Grime's condemn'd to
dye,
And of his friends he had no lack;
Fourteen foot he leapt in his ward,
His hands bound fast upon his back.

19 Then he lookt over his left shoulder,
To see whom he could see or spy;
Then was he aware of his father dear,
Came tearing his hair most pittifully.

20 'Peace, peace, my father dear,
And of your speeches set them by!
Though they have bereav'd me of my life,
They cannot bereave me of heaven so
high.'

21 He lookt over his right shoulder,
To see whom he could see or spy;
There was he aware of his mother dear,
Came tearing her hair most pittifully.

22 'Pray have me remembred to Peggy,
my wife;
As she and I walkt over the moor,
She was the cause of [the loss of] my life,
And with the old bishop she plaid the whore.

23 'Here, Johnny Armstrong, take thou
my sword,
That is made of the mettle so fine,

And when thou comst to the border-side,
Remember the death of Sir Hugh of
the Grime.'

Scotch Ballads, Materials for Border Minstrelsy, No. 87, Abbotsford; in the handwriting of William Laidlaw. "From Robert Laidlaw."

1 Gude Lord Scroop's to the huntin gane;
He's ridden oer monie a moss an muir,
An he has grippit Hughie the Græme,
For stealin o the bishop's mare.

2 An they hae grippit Hughie the Græme,
An brought him up thro Carlisle
town;
The lasses an lads they stood by the
wa's,
Cryin, Hughie the Græme, thou's no
gae down!

3 They ha chosen a jury o men,
The best that were i Coventry,
An fifteen o them out a' at anse,
'Hughie the Græme, thou art guil-
tie.'

4 Than up bespak him gude Lord Hume,
As he sat at the judge's knee;
'Twentie white ousen, my gude lord,
If ye'll grant Hughie the Græme to
me.'

5 'O no, no, no, my gude Lord Hume,
For sooth an so it manna be;
For war there but twae Græms o the
name,
They sould be hangit a' for me.'

6 'T was up than spak her gude Lady
Hume,
As she sat by the judge's knee;
'A peck o white pennies, my gude lord,
If ye'll grant Hughie the Greame to
me.'

7 'O no, O no, my gude Lady Hume,
For sooth an so it sal na be;
For war there but twae Greames of the
name,
They sould be hangit a' for me.'

- 8 'If I be guilty,' said Hughie the Græme,
'Of me my friends sal hae nae lack;'
An he has luppen fifteen feet an three,
An his hands they war tyed ahint his
back.
- 9 He's lookit oer his left shouther,
To see what he coud see,
An there he saw his auld father com-
min,
An he was weepin bitterlie.
- 10 'O had yer tongue, my father,' he
says,
'An see that ye dinna weep for me,
For they may ravish me o my life,
But they canna banish me thrae the heavens hie.
- 11 'Fare ye weel, Maggie, my wife;
The last time I came oer the muir,
It was you berievt me o my life,
An wi the bishop playd the w[hore].'

THE LOCHMABEN HARPER

Scott's version of this ballad (Minstrelsy, 1802, I, 65) is that in the Glenriddell MSS., with some changes.

A

a. 'The Blind Harper of Lochmaben,' Glenriddell MSS., XI, 42, 1791; "from a MS. collection of Mr Henderson." b. 'The Blind Harper,' Johnson's Museum, No. 579, VI, 598, 1803, communicated by Burns. c. 'The Lochmaben Harper,' Minstrelsy of the Scottish Border, 1802, I, 65; 1833, I, 422.

- 1 HEARD ye eer of the silly blind harper,
That long livd in Lochmaben town,
How he wad gang to fair England,
To steal King Henry's Wanton
Brown?
Sing, Faden dilly and faden dilly
Sing, Faden dilly and deedle dan
- 2 But first he gaed to his gude wife,
Wi a' the speed that he cond thole;
'This wark,' quo he, 'will never work
Without a mare that has a foal.'

- 3 Quo she, Thou has a gude gray mare, That'al rin oer hills baith law and
hie;
Gae tak the gray mare in thy hand,
And leave the foal at hame wi me.
- 4 'And tak a halter in thy hose,
And o thy purpose dinna fail;
But wap it oer the Wanton's nose,
And tie her to the gray mare's tail.
- 5 'Syne ca her out at yon back geate,
Oer moss and muir and ilka dale;
For she'll neer let the Wanton bite
Till she come hame to her ain foal.'
- 6 So he is up to England gane,
Even as fast as he can hie,
Till he came to King Henry's geate;
And wha was there but King Henry?
- 7 'Come in,' quo he, 'thou silly blind
harper,
And of thy harping let me hear;'
'O, by my sooth,' quo the silly blind
harper,
'I'd rather hae stabling for my
mare.'
- 8 The king he looks oer his left shoulder,
And says unto his stable-groom,
Gae tak the silly poor harper's mare,
And tie her side my Wanton Brown.
- 9 And ay he harpit, and ay he carpit,
Till a' the lords had fitted the floor;
They thought the music was sae sweet,
And they forgot the stable-door.
- 10 And ay he harpit, and ay he carpit,
Till a' the nobles were sound asleep;
Then quietly he took aff his shoon,
And safly down the stair did creep.
- 11 Syne to the stable-door he hies,
Wi tread as light as light coud be,
And when he opned and gaed in,
There he fand thirty gude steeds and
three.
- 12 He took the halter frae his hose,
And of his purpose did na fail;
He slipt it oer the Wanton's nose,
And tied it [to] his gray mare's tail

13 He ca'd her out at yon back geate,
Oer moss and muir and ilka dale,
And she loot neer the Wanton bite,
But held her still gaun at her tail.

14 The gray mare was right swift o fit,
And did na fail to find the way,
For she was at Lochmaben geate
Fu lang three hours ere 't was day.

15 When she came to the harper's door,
There she gave mony a nicher and sneer;
'Rise,' quo the wife, 'thou lazey lass,
Let in thy master and his mare.'

16 Then up she rose, pat on her claes,
And lookit out through the lock-hole;
'O, by my sooth,' then quoth the lass,
'Our mare has gotten a braw big
foal!'

17 'Come had thy peace, thou foolish lass,
The moon's but glancing in thy eye;
I'll wad my hail fee against a groat,
It's bigger than eer our foal will
be.'

18 The neighbours too that heard the noise
Cried to the wife to put hir in;
'By my sooth,' then quo the wife,
'She's better than ever he rade on.'

19 But on the morn, at fair day light,
Whan they had ended a' thier chear,
King Henry's Wanton Brown was
stawn,
And eke the poor old harper's mare.

20 'Allace! allace!' says the silly blind
harper,
'Allace, allace, that I came here!
In Scotland I've tint a braw cowte-
foal,
In England they've stawn my gude
gray mare.'

21 'Come had thy tongue, thou silly blind
harper,
And of thy allacing let me be;
For thou shalt get a better mare,
And weel paid shall thy cowte-foal
be.'

THE DEATH OF PARCY REED

Mr Robert White records a tradition in Redesdale, Northumberland, which accords in almost every particular with this ballad. He thinks that the story is not to be dated later than the sixteenth century (Richardson's Borderer's Table Book, vii, 361).

A

'A song of Parcy Reed and the Three False Halls,' the late Robert White's papers; "Woodburn, December 1, 1829, Thomas Hedley, Bridge End, Corsonside Parish."

1 THE Liddesdale Crosiers hae ridden a race,
And they had far better staid at hame,
For they have lost a gallant gay,
Young Whinton Crosier it was his
name.

2 For Parcy Reed he has him taen,
And he's delivered him to law,
But auld Crosier has made answer
That he'll gar the house of the Troughend fa.

3 So as it happened on a day
That Parcy Reed is a hunting gane,
And the three false Halls of Girson-
field
They all along with him are gane.

4 They hunted up and they hunted down,
They hunted all Reedwater round,
Till weariness has on him seized;
At the Batinghope he's fallen asleep.

5 O some they stole his powder-horn,
And some put water in his lang gun:
'O waken, waken, Parcy Reed!
For we do doubt thou sleeps too
sound.

6 'O waken, O waken, Parcy Reed!
For we do doubt thou sleeps too long;
For yonder's the five Crosiers coming,
They're coming by the Hingin Stane.'

7 'If they be five men, we are four,
If ye will all stand true to me;

Now every one of you may take one,
And two of them ye may leave to
me.'

8 'We will not stay, nor we dare not
stay,
O Percy Reed, for to fight with thee;
For thou wilt find, O Percy Reed,
That they will slay both us and thee.'

9 'O stay, O stay, O Tommy Hall,
O stay, O man, and fight with me!
If we see the Troughend again,
My good black mare I will give thee.'

10 'I will not stay, nor I dare not stay,
O Percy Reed, to fight for thee;
For thou wilt find, O Percy Reed,
That they will slay both me and thee.'

11 'O stay, O stay, O Johnnie Hall,
O stay, O man, and fight for me!
If I see the Troughend again,
Five yoke of oxen I will give thee.'

12 'I will not stay, nor I dare not stay,
O Percy Reed, for to fight with thee;
For thou wilt find, O Percy Reed,
That they will slay both me and thee.'

13 'O stay, O stay, O Willie Hall,
O stay, O man, and fight for me!
If we see the Troughend again,
The half of my land I will give thee.'

14 'I will not stay, nor I dare not stay,
O Percy Reed, for to fight with thee;
For thou wilt find, O Percy Reed,
That they will slay both me and thee.'

15 'Now foul fa ye, ye traitors all,
That ever ye should in England won!
You have left me in a fair field standin,
And in my hand an uncharged gun.

16 'O fare thee well, my wedded wife!
O fare you well, my children five!
And fare thee well, my daughter Jane,
That I love best that's born alive!

17 'O fare thee well, my brother Tom!
And fare you well his children five!
If you had been with me this day,
I surely had been man alive.

18 'Farewell all friends! as for my foes,
To distant lands may they be tane,
And the three false Halls of Girsonsfield,
They'll never be trusted nor trowed
again.'

THE LAIRD OF WARISTON

John Kincaid of Wariston was murdered in 1600 by Robert Weir, at the instigation of Kincaid's wife, Jean Livingston, who was incensed by his brutal treatment of her. Jean Livingston's nurse, Janet Murdo, was an agent in the affair, summoning Weir, who had been a servant of the wife's father. All three were executed. Both Kincaid and his wife belonged to houses of some note, and the case attracted much attention.

A

'The Laird of Waristoun,' Jamieson's Popular Ballads, i, 109, as taken down by Sir Walter Scott from the recitation of his mother.

1 Down by yon garden green
Sae merrily as she gaes;
She has twa weel-made feet,
And she trips upon her taes.

2 She has twa weel-made feet,
Far better is her hand;
She's as jimp in the middle
As ony willow-wand.

3 'Gif ye will do my bidding,
At my bidding for to be,
It's I will make you lady
Of a' the lands you see.'

* * * * *

4 He spak a word in jest;
Her answer wasna good;
He threw a plate at her face,
Made it a' gush out o' blood.

5 She wasna frae her chamber
A step but barely three,
When up and at her right hand
There stood Man's Enemy.

6 'Gif ye will do my bidding,
At my bidding for to be,

I 'll learn you a wile Avenge'd for to be.'

7 The Foul Thief knotted the tether,
She lifted his head on hie,
The nurice drew the knot
That gard lord Waristoun die.

8 Then word is gane to Leith,
Also to Edinburgh town,
That the lady had killd the laird,
The laird o Waristoun.

* * * *

9 'Tak aff, tak aff my hood,
But lat my petticoat be;
Put my mantle oer my head,
For the fire I downa see.

10 'Now, a' ye gentle maids,
Tak warning now by me,
And never marry ane
But wha pleases your ee.

11 'For he married me for love,
But I married him for fee;
And sae brak out the feud
That gard my dearie die.'

B

'Laird o Waristoun,' Kinloch MSS., vii, 217;
from the recitation of Jenny Watson; Kinloch's Ancient Scottish Ballads, p. 49.

1 It was at dinner as they sat,
And whan they drank the wine,
How happy war the laird and lady
Of bonnie Wariston!

2 The lady spak but ae word,
The matter to conclude;
The laird strak her on the mouth,
Till she spat out o blude.

3 She did not know the way
Her mind to satisfy,
Till evil cam into [her] head
All by the Enemy.

* * * *

4 'At evening when ye sit,
And whan ye drink the wine,

See that ye fill the glass weill up
To the laird o Wariston.'

5 So at table whan they sat,
And whan they drank the wine,
She made the glass aft gae round
To the laird o Wariston.

6 The nurice she knet the knot,
And O she knet it sicker!
The lady did gie it a twig,
Till it began to wicker.

7 But word's gane down to Leith,
And up to Embro toun,
That the lady she has slain the laird,
The laird o Waristoun.

8 Word has gane to her father, the grit
Dunipace,
And an angry man was he;
Cries, Gar mak a barrel o pikes,
And row her down some lea!

9 She said, Wae be to ye, Wariston,
I wish ye may sink for sin!
For I have been your wife
These nine years, running ten;
And I never loved ye sae well
As now whan ye're lying slain.

10 'But tak aff this gowd brocade,
And let my petticoat stay,
And tie a handkerchief round my face,
That the people may not see.'

LORD MAXWELL'S LAST GOODNIGHT

John, ninth Lord Maxwell, killed Sir James Johnstone, with whom he had an old feud, in 1608. Maxwell fled the country, but was sentenced to death in his absence. Returning after four years, he was betrayed into the power of the government by a kinsman, and was beheaded at Edinburgh, May 21, 1613. Lord Byron, in the preface to Childe Harold, says that "the good-night in the beginning of the first canto was suggested by Lord Maxwell's Goodnight in the Border Minstrelsy." Scott's text (Minstrelsy, 1802, i, 194) is based on B.

A

'Lord Maxwell's Last Goodnight,' communicated to Percy by G. Paton, Edinburgh, December 4, 1778.

- 1 'GOOD lord of the land, will you stay thane
About my faither's house,
And walk into these gardines green,
In my arms I'll the embrace.
- 2 'Ten thousand times I'll kiss thy face;
Make sport. and let's be mery:
'I thank you, lady, fore your kindness;
Trust me, I may not stay with the.
- 3 'For I have kil'd the laird Johnston;
I vallow not the feed;
My wiked heart did still incline;
He was my faither's dead.
- 4 'Both night and day I did proceed,
And a' on him revaingd to be;
But now have I gotten what I long sowght,
Trust me, I may not stay with the.
- 5 'Aduie, Dumfriese, that proper place!
Fair well, Carlaurike faire!
Aduie the castle of the Trive,
And all my buldings there!
- 6 'Aduie, Lochmaben gaits so faire,
And the Langhm shank, where birks
bobs bony!
Aduie, my leady and only joy!
Trust me, I may not stay with the.
- 7 'Aduie, fair Eskdale, up and down,
Wher my poor frends do duell!
The bangisters will beat them down,
And will them sore compell.
- 8 'I'll reveinge the cause mysell,
Again when I come over the sea;
Aduie, my leady and only joy!
Fore, trust me, I may not stay with
the.
- 9 'Aduie, Dumlanark! fals was ay,
And Closburn! in a band;
The laird of the Lag from my faither fled
When the Jhohnstones struek of his
hand.

- 10 'They wer three brethren in a band;
I pray they may never be merry;
Aduie, my leady and only joy!
Trust me, I may not stay with the.
- 11 'Aduie, madam my mother dear,
But and my sister[s] two!
Fair well, Robin in the Orchet!
Fore the my heart is wo.
- 12 'Aduie, the lillie, and fair well, rose,
And the primros, spreads fair and bony!
Aduie, my leady and only joy!
Fore, trust me, I may not stay with the.'
- 13 He took out a good gold ring,
Where at haug sygnets three:
'Take thou that, my own kind thing,
And ay have mind of me.
- 14 'Do not mary another lord
Agan or I come over the sea;
Aduie, my leady and only joy!
For, trust me, I may not stay with
the.'
- 15 The wind was fair, and the ship was clare,
And the good lord went away;
The most part of his frends was there,
Giving him a fair convoy.
- 16 They drank the wine, they did not spare,
Presentting in that good lord's sight;
Now he is over the floods so gray;
Lord Maxwell has te'n his last good-
night.

Glenriddell MSS., xi, 18, 1791.

- 1 'ADIEW, madam my mother dear,
But and my sisters two!
Adiew, fair Robert of Oarchyardtoan!
For thee my heart is woe.
- 2 'Adiew, the lilly and the rose,
The primrose, sweet to see!
Adiew, my lady and only joy!
For I manna stay with thee.
- 3 'Tho I have killed the laird Johnston,
What care I for his feed?

My noble mind dis still incline;
He was my father's dead.

4 'Both night and day I laboured oft
Of him revenged to be,
And now I've got what I long sought;
But I manna stay with thee.

5 'Adiew, Drumlanrig! false was ay,
And Cloesburn! in a band,
Where the laird of Lagg fra my father
fled
When the Johnston struck off his
hand.

6 'They were three brethren in a band;
Joy may they never see!
But now I've got what I long sought,
And I mauuna stay with thee.

7 'Adiew, Dumfries, my proper place,
But and Carlaverock fair,
Adiew, the castle of the Thrieve,
And all my buildings there!

8 'Adiew, Lochmaben's gates so fair,
The Langholm shank, where birks
they be!
Adiew, my lady and only joy!
And, trust me, I mauuna stay with
thee.

9 'Adiew, fair Eskdale, up and down,
Where my poor friends do dwell!
The bangisters will ding them down,
And will them sore compel.

10 'But I'll revenge that feed mysell
When I come ou'r the sea;
Adiew, my lady and only joy!
For I mauuna stay with thee.'

11 'Lord of the land, will you go then
Unto my father's place,
And walk into their gardens green,
And I will you embrace.

12 'Ten thousand times I'll kiss your face,
And sport, and make you merry;
'I thank thee, my lady, for thy kindness,
But, trust me, I mauuna stay with
thee.'

13 Then he took off a great gold ring,
Where at hang signets three:

'Hae, take thee that, my ain dear
thing,
And still hae mind of me.

14 'But if thow marry another lord
Ere I come ou'r the sea —
Adiew, my lady and only joy!
For I mauuna stay with thee.'

15 The wind was fair, the ship was close,
That good lord went away,
And most part of his friends were there,
To give him a fair convay.

16 They drank thair wine, they did not spare,
Even in the good lord's sight;
Now he is oer the floods so gray,
And Lord Maxwell has taen his good-
night.

THE FIRE OF FRENDRAUGHT

James Crichton of Frendraught in Aberdeenshire and William Gordon of Rothiemay in Banffshire (a neighboring estate on the opposite side of the Deveron) had a fierce dispute about fishing-rights. This resulted in private warfare, in the course of which Rothiemay was killed. The feud was settled by the mediation of the Marquis of Huntly; but friends of the parties were soon embroiled, and Frendraught went to Huntly and begged him to make peace. Huntly, fearing for Frendraught's safety, kept him two days at the Bog of Gight, and then, hearing that the Leslies were lying in wait, sent his own son, John Gordon (Viscount Aboyne), and the young laird of Rothiemay, to protect him on the way home. Arrived there, the laird and his lady begged these young gentlemen to remain over night, "and did their best, with all demonstration of love and kindness, to entertain them, thinking themselves happy now to have purchased such friends who had formerly been their foes." At about two in the morning the tower of Frendraught house, in which these guests lay, took fire, and they with four of their servants were burnt to death. This occurred in October, 1630. The ballad lays the blame on the Frendraughts (especially on Lady Frendraught). The matter was never cleared up, but the evidence tends to show that the fire was an accident.

a. 'Fire of Frendraught,' Motherwell's Minstrelsy, p. 161, from a MS. of Charles Kirkpatrick Sharpe. b. 'Burning of Frendraught,' Maidment's North Countrie Garland, p. 4; "long preserved by tradition in Aberdeenshire, and procured from an intelligent individual resident in that part of Scotland."

- 1 THE eighteenth of October,
A dismal tale to hear
How good Lord John and Rothiemay
Was both burnt in the fire.
- 2 When steeds was saddled and well
bridled,
And ready for to ride,
Then out it came her false Frendraught,
Inviting them to bide.
- 3 Said, 'Stay this night untill we sup,
The morn untill we dine;
'T will be a token of good greement
'Twixt your good lord and mine.'
- 4 'We'll turn again,' said good Lord
John;
'But no,' said Rothiemay,
'My steed's trapand, my bridle's broken,
I fear the day I'm fey.'
- 5 When mass was sung, and bells was
rung,
And all men bound for bed,
Then good Lord John and Rothiemay
In one chamber was laid.
- 6 They had not long cast off their cloaths,
And were but now asleep,
When the weary smoke began to rise,
Likewise the scorching heat.
- 7 'O waken, waken, Rothiemay!
O waken, brother dear!
And turn you to our Saviour;
There is strong treason here.'
- 8 When they were dressed in their cloaths,
And ready for to boun,
The doors and windows was all secur'd,
The roof-tree burning down.
- 9 He did him to the wire-window,
As fast as he could gang;
Says, Wae to the hands put in the stanchions!
For out we'll never win.
- 10 When he stood at the wire-window,
Most doleful to be seen,
He did espy her Lady Frendraught,
Who stood upon the green.
- 11 Cried, Mercy, mercy, Lady Frend-
raught!
Will ye not sink with sin?
For first your husband killed my father,
And now you burn his son.
- 12 O then out spoke her Lady Frendraught,
And loudly did she cry;
'It were great pity for good Lord
John,
But none for Rothiemay;
But the keys are casten in the deep
draw-well,
Ye cannot get away.'
- 13 While he stood in this dreadful plight,
Most piteous to be seen,
There called out his servant Gordon,
As he had frantic been:
- 14 'O loup, O loup, my dear master!
O loup and come to me!
I'll catch you in my arms two,
One foot I will not flee.
- 15 'O loup, O loup, my dear master!
O loup and come away!
I'll catch you in my arms two,
But Rothiemay may lie.'
- 16 'The fish shall never swim in the flood,
Nor corn grow through the clay,
Nor the fiercest fire that ever was kindled
Twin me and Rothiemay.
- 17 'But I cannot loup, I cannot come,
I cannot win to thee;
My head's fast in the wire-window,
My feet burning from me.
- 18 'My eyes are seething in my head,
My flesh roasting also,
My bowels are boiling with my blood;
Is not that a woeful woe?

- 19 'Take here the rings from my white
fingers,
That are so long and small,
And give them to my lady fair,
Where she sits in her hall.
- 20 'So I cannot loup, I cannot come,
I cannot loup to thee;
My earthly part is all consumed,
My spirit but speaks to thee.'
- 21 Wringing her hands, tearing her hair,
His lady she was seen,
And thus addressed his servant Gordon,
Where he stood on the green.
- 22 'O wae be to you, George Gordon!
An ill death may you die!
So safe and sound as you stand there,
And my lord bereaved from me.'
- 23 'I bad him loup, I bad him come,
I bad him loup to me;
I'd catch him in my arms two,
A foot I should not flee. &c.
- 24 'He threw me the rings from his white
fingers,
Which were so long and small,
To give to you, his lady fair,
Where you sat in your hall.' &c.
- 25 Sophia Hay, Sophia Hay,
O bonny Sophia was her name,
Her waiting maid put on her cloaths,
But I wot she tore them off again.
- 26 And aft she cried, Ohon! alas! alas!
A sair heart's ill to win;
I wan a sair heart when I married him,
And the day it's well returnd again.

'The Fire of Frendraught,' from a notebook of Dr Joseph Robertson: "procured in the parish of Forgue by A. Scott; communicated to me by Mr John Stuart, Aberdeen, 11 October, 1832."

- 1 It was in October the woe began —
It lasts for now and aye, —
The burning o the bonny house o fause
Frendraught,
Lord John and Rothiemay.

- 2 When they were in their saddles set,
And ready to ride away,
The lady sat down on her bare knees,
Beseeching them to stay.
- 3 'Ye's hae a firloot o the gude red gowd,
Well straiket wi a wan;
And if that winna please you well,
I'll heap it wi my han.'
- 4 Then out it spake the gude Lord John,
And said to Rothiemay,
'It is a woman that we're come o,
And a woman we'll obey.'
- 5 When a' man was well drunken,
And a' man bound for bed,
The doors were lockd, the windows shut,
And the keys were casten by.
- 6 When a' man was well drunken,
And a' man bound for sleep,
The dowy reek began to rise,
And the joists began to crack.
- 7 He's deen him to the wire-window,
And ruefu strack and dang;
But they would neither bow nor brack,
The staunchions were so strang.
- 8 He's deen him back and back again,
And back to Rothiemay;
Says, Waken, waken, brother dear!
Waken, Rothiemay!
- 9 'Come let us praise the Lord our God,
The fiftieth psalm and three;
For the reek and smoke are us about,
And there's fause treason tee.
- 10 'O mercy, mercy, Lady Frendraught!
As ye walk on the green:'
'The keys are in the deep draw-well,
The doors were lockt the streen.'
- 11 'O woe be to you, Lady Frendraught!
An ill death may you die!
For think na ye this a sad torment
Your own flesh for to burn?'
- 12 George Chalmers was a bonny boy;
He leapt the stanks so deep,
And he is on to Rothiemay,
His master for to help.

13 Colin Irving was a bonny boy,
And leapt the stauks so deep:
'Come down, come down, my master
dear!
In my arms I'll thee kep.'

14 'Come down? come down? how can I
come?
How can I come to thee?
My flesh is burning me about,
And yet my spirit speaks to thee.'

15 He's taen a purse o the gude red
gowd,
And threw it oer the wa:
'It's ye'll deal that among the poor,
Bid them pray for our souls a'.'

16 He's taen the rings off his fingers,
And threw them oer the wa;
Says, Ye'll gie that to my lady dear,
From me she'll na get more.

17 'Bid her make her bed well to the length,
But no more to the breadth,
For the day will never dawn
That I'll sleep by her side.'

18 Lady Rothiemay came on the morn,
She kneeled it roun and roun:
'Restore your lodgers, fause Frend-
raught,
That ye burnd here the streen.

19 'O were I like yon turtle-dove,
Had I wings for to flie,
I'd fly about fause Frendraught
Crying vengeance till I die.

20 'Frendraught fause, all thro the ha's,
Both back and every side;
For ye've betrayd the gay Gordons,
And lands wherein they ride.

21 'Frendraught fause, all thro the ha's;
I wish you'd sink for sin;
For first you killd my own good lord,
And now you've burnd my son.

22 'I caredna sae muckle for my good
lord
I saw him in battle slain,
But a' is for my own son dear,
The heir o a' my lan.

23 'I caredna sae muckle for my good
lord
I saw him laid in clay,
But a' is for my own son dear,
The heir o Rothiemay.'

JAMES GRANT

There was an implacable feud between the Grants of Ballindalloch and the Grants of Carron, for as much as ninety years after 1550. This fragment has to do with the later stage of their enmity. In 1628, John Grant of Ballindalloch killed John Grant of Carron. James Grant of Carron, uncle of the slain man, burnt all the corn, barns, and byres of Ballindalloch young and old, and took to the hills (1630). The Ballindallochs complained to Murray, the lieutenant, and he set the Clanchattan upon James Grant. They laid siege to a house where he was with a party of his men; he made his way out, was pursued, and was taken after receiving eleven arrow-wounds. When he was well enough to travel, he was sent to Edinburgh, and, as everybody supposed, to his death; but after a confinement of more than a year he broke ward. Large sums were offered for him, alive or dead, but in 1633 he began to appear again in the north. A gang of the McGregors, who had been brought into the country by Ballindalloch to act against James Grant, beset him in a small house in Carron where he was visiting his wife, having only his son and one other man with him; but he defended himself with the spirit of another Cloudesly, shot the captain, and got off to the bog with his men. In 1636 "some of the Marquis of Huntly's followers and servants did invade the rebel James Grant and some of his associates, hard by Strathbogy. They burnt the house wherein he was, but, the night being dark and windy, he and his brother, Robert Grant, escaped." (Sir Robert Gordon, History of the Earldom of Sutherland, pp. 481, 480.) This last escapade of James Grant may perhaps be the one to which this fragment has reference, though Ballindalloch was not personally engaged in the assault on the house.

1 'AWAY with you, away with you, James de Grant !
And, Douglas, ye'll be slain;
For Baddindalloch's at your gates,
With many brave Highland men.'

2 'Baddindalloch has no feud at me,
And I have none at him;
Cast up my gates baith broad and wide,
Let Baddindalloch in.'

3 'James de Grant has made a vaunt,
And leaped the castle-wa;
But, if he comes this way again,
He'll no win sae well awa.

4 'Take him, take him, brave Gordons,
O take him, fine fellows a' !
If he wins but ae mile to the Highland hills,
He'll defy you Gordons a'.'

BONNY JOHN SETON

The ballad is accurate as to the date, not commonly a good sign for such things. On Tuesday, the eighteenth of June, 1639, Montrose began an attack on the bridge of Dee, which had been fortified and manned by the royalists of Aberdeen to stop his advance on the city. The bridge was bravely defended that day and part of the next by Lieutenant-Colonel Johnston (not Middleton; Middleton was of the assailants). The young Lord of Aboyne, just made the king's lieutenant in the north, had a small body of horse on the north side of the river. Montrose's cavalry were sent up the south side as if to cross (though there was no ford), and Aboyne's were moved along the opposite bank to resist a passage. This exposed the latter to Montrose's cannon, and the Covenanters let fly some shot at them, one of which killed "a gallant gentleman, John Seton of Pitmeddin." Johnston's leg was crushed by stones and he had to be carried off. The loss of their commander and the disappearance of Aboyne's horse discouraged the now small party who were holding the bridge, and they abandoned it. Aboyne rode off, and left Aberdeen to shift for itself.

1 UPON the eighteenth day of June,
A dreary day to see,
The southern lords did pitch their camp
Just at the bridge of Dee.

2 Bonny John Seton of Pitmeddin,
A bold baron was he,
He made his testament ere he went
out,
The wiser man was he.

3 He left his land to his young son,
His lady her dowry,
A thousand crowns to his daughter Jean,
Yet on the nurse's knee

4 Then out came his lady fair,
A tear into her ee;
Says, Stay at home, my own good lord,
O stay at home with me !

5 He looked over his left shoulder,
Cried, Souldiers, follow me !
O then she looked in his face,
An angry woman was she:
'God send me back my steed again,
But neer let me see thee !'

6 His name was Major Middleton
That manned the bridge of Dee,
His name was Colonel Henderson
That let the cannons flee.

7 His name was Major Middleton
That manned the bridge of Dee,
And his name was Colonel Henderson
That dung Pitmeddin in three.

8 Some rode on the black and grey,
And some rode on the brown,
But the bonny John Seton
Lay gasping on the ground.

9 Then bye there comes a false Forbes,
Was riding from Driminere;
Says, Here there lies a proud Seton;
This day they ride the rear.

10 Cragievar said to his men,
'You may play on your shield;

For the proudest Seton in all the lan
This day lies on the field.'

11 'O spoil him! spoil him!' cried Cragievar,

'Him spoiled let me see;
For on my word,' said Cragievar,
'He had no good will at me.'

12 They took from him his armour clear,
His sword, likewise his shield;
Yea, they have left him naked there,
Upon the open field.

13 The Highland men, they're clever men
At handling sword and shield,
But yet they are too naked men
To stay in battle field.

14 The Highland men are clever men
At handling sword or gun,
But yet they are too naked men
To bear the cannon's rung.

15 For a cannon's roar in a summer night
Is like thunder in the air;
There's not a man in Highland dress
Can face the cannon's fire.

THE BONNIE HOUSE O AIRLIE

The Committee of Estates, June 12, 1640, gave commission to the Earl of Argyll to rise in arms against certain people, among whom was the Earl of Airlie, as enemies to religion and unnatural to their country, and to pursue them with fire and sword until they should be brought to their duty or else be utterly rooted out. The Earl of Airlie had gone to England and had left his house to the keeping of his eldest son, Lord Ogilvie. Montrose, who had signed the commission as one of the Committee, but was not inclined to so strenuous proceedings, invested Airlie, forced a surrender, and put a garrison in the place to hold it for the "public." Argyll did not interpret his commission in this mild way. He took Airlie in hand in the beginning of July, and caused both this house and that of Forthar, belonging to Lord Ogilvie, to be pillaged, burned, and demolished. The earliest copy of this ballad hitherto found is a broadside of 1790, used by Finlay in forming the text in his Ballads, II, 25.

1 It fell on a day, and a bonny summer day,
When corn grew green and yellow,
That there fell out a great dispute
Between Argyll and Airly.

2 Argyll has raisd an hundred men,
An hundred men, and so many,
And he is away by the back of Dunkeld,
For to plunder the bonny house of Airly.

3 Lady Margaret looks oer her bower-window,
And O but she looks weary!
And there she spied the great Argyll,
Coming to plunder the bonny house of Airly.

4 'Comedown, come down, Lady Margret,'
he said,
'Come down, and kiss me fairly.'
'O I will not kiss the great Argyll,
If he should not leave a standing stone in Airly.'

5 He hath taken her by the left shoulder,
Says, Lady, where lyes thy dowry?
'It's up and it's down by the bonny bank-side,
Amongst the planting of Airly.'

6 They have sought it up, they have sought it down,
They have sought it both late and early,

And they have found it in the bonny
plumb-tree
That shines on the bowling-green of Airly.

7 He hath taken her by the middle so small,
And O but she lookd weary!
He hath laid her down by the bonny
burn-side,
Till he hath plundered the bonny
house of Airly.

8 'If my good lord were at home this
night,
As he is with Prince Charly,
Nouther you nor no Scottish lord
Durst have set a foot on the bowling-green of Airly.

9 'Ten bonny sons I have born unto him,
The eleventh neer saw his daddy;
Although I had an hundred more,
I would give them all to Prince Charly.'

THE GYPSY LADDIE

The earliest edition of the ballad styles the gypsy Johnny Faa, but gives no clew to the fair lady. Johnny Faa was a prominent and frequent name among the gypsies. Johnnē Faw's right and title as lord and earl of Little Egypt were recognized by James V in 1540. But in the next year Egyptians were ordered to quit the realm within thirty days on pain of death. The gypsies were formally expelled from Scotland by act of Parliament in 1609. Johnnē, alias Willie, Faa, with three others of the name, remained notwithstanding, and were sentenced to be hanged, 1611. In 1616, July 24, Johnnē Faa, Egyptian, his son, and two others were condemned to be hanged for contemptuous repairing to the country and abiding therein. Finally, in 1624, January 24, Captain Johnnē Faa and seven others were sentenced to be hanged for the same offence. The execution of the notorious Egyptian and chieftain Johnny Faa must have made a considerable impression, and it is presumable that this ballad may have arisen not long after. Whether this were so or not, Johnny Faa acquired popular fame, and became a personage to whom any adventure might plausibly be imputed.

Toward the end of the eighteenth century we begin to hear that the people in Ayrshire make the wife of the Earl of Cassilis the heroine of the ballad; but there is positive evidence that this lady (who died in 1642) had never done anything to alienate her husband's affections.

The Scottish ballad appears to have been first printed in the fourth volume of the Tea-Table Miscellany, 1740, but no copy of that edition has been recovered. The English version (G), though derived from the Scottish ballad, may perhaps have been printed earlier; it is found in a broadside in the Roxburghe collection, III, 685.

'Johnny Faa, the Gypsy Laddie,' Ramsay's Tea-Table Miscellany, vol. IV, 1740. Here from the London edition of 1763, p. 427.

1 THE gypsies came to our good lord's
gate,
And wow but they sang sweetly!
They sang sae sweet and sae very compleat
That down came the fair lady.

2 And she came tripping down the stair,
And a' her maids before her;
As soon as they saw her well-far'd face,
They coost the glamer oer her.

3 'Gae tak frae me this gay mantle,
And bring to me a plaidie;
For if kith and kin and a' had sworn,
I'll follow the gypsie laddie.

4 'Yestreen I lay in a well-made bed,
And my good lord beside me;
This night I'll ly in a tenant's barn,
Whatever shall betide me.'

5 'Come to your bed,' says Johnny Faa,
'Oh come to your bed, my deary;
For I vow and I swear, by the hilt of
my sword,
That your lord shall nae mair come near ye.'

6 'I'll go to bed to my Johnny Faa,
I'll go to bed to my deary;
For I vow and I swear, by what past
yestreen,
That my lord shall nae mair come near me.

7 'I'll mak a hap to my Johnny Faa,
And I'll mak a hap to my deary;
And he's get a' the coat gaes round,
And my lord shall nae mair come near
me.'

8 And when our lord came hame at een,
And speir'd for his fair lady,
The tane she cry'd, and the other re-
ply'd,
'She's away with the gypsie laddie.'

9 'Gae saddle to me the black, black
steed,
Gae saddle and make him ready;
Before that I either eat or sleep,
I'll gae seek my fair lady.'

10 And we were fifteen well-made men,
Altho we were nae bonny;
And we were a' put down for ane,
A fair young wanton lady.

nicated by Mr Alexander Laing, 1873.

1 THE gypsies they came to my lord Cas-silis' yett,
And O but they sang bonnie!
They sang so sweet and so complete
Till down came our fair ladie.

2 She came tripping down the stairs,
And all her maids before her;
As soon as they saw her weel-far'd
face,
They cast their glamourie owre her.

3 She gave them the good wheat bread,
And they give her the ginger;
But she give them a far better thing,
The gold rings of her fingers.

4 'Will you go with me, my hinny and my heart?
Will you go with me, my dearie?

And I will swear, by the hilt of my
spear,
That your lord shall no more come near thee.'

5 'Gar take from me my silk manteel,
And bring to me a plaidie,
For I will travel the world owre
Along with the gypsie laddie.

6 'I could sail the seas with my Jackie
Faa,
I could sail the seas with my dearie;
I could sail the seas with my Jackie
Faa,
And with pleasure could drown with my dearie.'

7 They wandred high, they wandred low,
They wandred late and early,
Untill they came to an old farmer's barn,
And by this time she was weary.

8 'Last night I lay in a weel-made bed,
And my noble lord beside me,
And now I most ly in an old farmer's
barn,
And the black crae glowring owre
me.'

9 'Hold your tongue, my hinny and my
heart,
Hold your tongue, my dearie,
For I will swear, by the moon and the stars,
That thy lord shall no more come
near thee.'

10 They wandred high, they wandred low,
They wandred late and early,
Untill they came to that on water,
And by this time she was wearie.

11 'Many a time have I rode that on wa-
ter,
And my lord Cassilis beside me,
And now I most set in my white feet
and wade,
And carry the gypsie laddie.'

12 By and by came home this noble lord,
And asking for his ladie,
The one did cry, the other did reply,
'She is gone with the gypsie laddie.'

- 13 'Go saddle to me the black,' he says,
'The brown rides never so speedie,
And I will neither eat nor drink
Till I bring home my ladie.'
- 14 He wandred high, he wandred low,
He wandred late and early,
Untill he came to that on water,
And there he spied his ladie.
- 15 'O wilt thou go home, my hinny and my
heart,
O wilt thou go home, my dearie?
And I'll close thee in a close room,
Where no man shall come near thee.'
- 16 'I will not go home, my hinny and my
heart,
I will not go home, my dearie;
If I have brewn good beer, I will drink
of the same,
And my lord shall no more come near
me.
- 17 'But I will swear, by the moon and the stars,
And the sun that shines so clearly,
That I am as free of the gypsie gang
As the hour my mother bore me.'
- 18 They were fifteen valiant men,
Black, but very bonny,
They lost all their lives for one,
The Earl of Cassillis' ladie.

BESSY BELL AND MARY GRAY

This little ballad, or song, was very well known in the last years of the seventeenth century. The first stanza was made by Ramsay the beginning of a song of his own (Poems, Edinburgh, 1721, p. 80). The most important document relating to Bessy Bell and Mary Gray is a letter written June, 1781, by Major Barry, then proprietor of Lednock, and printed in the Transactions of the Society of Antiquaries of Scotland, II, 108, 1822. "When I came first to Lednock," says Major Barry, "I was shewn in a part of my ground (called the Dranoeh-haugh) an heap of stones almost covered with briars, thorns and fern, which they assured me was the burial place of Bessie Bell and Mary Gray. The tradition of the country relating to these ladys is, that Mary Gray's father was laird of Lednock and Bessie Bell's of Kinvaid, a place in this neighbourhood; that they were both very handsome, and an intimate friendship subsisted between them; that while Miss Bell was on a visit to Miss Gray, the plague broke out, in the year 1666; in order to avoid which they built themselves a bower about three quarters of a mile west from Lednock House, in a very retired and romantic place called Burn-braes, on the side of Beauchieburn. Here they lived for some time; but the plague raging with great fury, they caught the infection, it is said, from a young gentleman who was in love with them both. He used to bring them their provision. They died in this bower, and were buried in the Dranoeh-haugh, at the foot of a brae of the same name, and near to the bank of the river Almond. The burial-place lies about half a mile west from the present house of Lednock."

Major Barry's date of 1666 should be put back twenty years. Perth and the neighborhood (Lednock is seven miles distant) were fearfully ravaged by the plague in 1645 and a year or two following. Three thousand people are said to have perished. Scotland escaped the pestilence of 1665-66.

Bessy Bell was made into a nursery-rhyme in England (see Halliwell's Nursery Rhymes, 1874, No. 484).

a. Sharpe's Ballad Book, 1823, p. 62. b. Lyle's Ancient Ballads and Songs, 1827, p. 160, "collated from the singing of two aged persons, one them a native of Perthshire." c. Scott's Minstrelsy, 1830, I, 89, 1833, I, 45, two stanzas, (1, 3).

- 1 O BESSIE BELL and Mary Gray,
They war twa bonnie lasses;
They bigget a bower on yon burn-brae,
And theekit it oer wi rashes.
- 2 They theekit it oer wi rashes green,
They theekit it oer wi heather;
But the pest cam frae the burrows-town,
And slew them baith thegither.
- 3 They thought to lye in Methven kirk-
yard,
Amang their noble kin;
But they maun lye in Stronach haugh,
To biek forenent the sin.
- 4 And Bessy Bell and Mary Gray,
They war twa bonnie lasses;
They biggit a bower on yon burn-brae,
And theekit it oer wi rashes.

THE BATTLE OF PHILIP-
HAUGH

After six brilliant victories, gained in less than a year, September 1, 1644 – August 15, 1645, Montrose was surprised by David Leslie at Philiphaugh, September 13 following, and his army cut to pieces or dispersed. This army, consisting of only five hundred Irish foot and twelve hundred Scottish horse, was lying at Philiphaugh, a meadow on the west side of the Ettrick, and at Selkirk, on and above the opposite bank. Leslie came down from the north with four thousand cavalry and some infantry, was less than four miles from Selkirk the night of the twelfth, and on the morrow, favored by a heavy mist, had advanced to about half a mile's distance before his approach was reported. A hundred and fifty of Montrose's horse received and repulsed two charges of greatly superior numbers; the rest stood off and presently took to flight. The foot remained firm. Two thousand of Leslie's horse crossed the river and got into Montrose's rear, and made resistance vain. Montrose and a few friends hewed their way through the enemy.

Minstrelsy of the Scottish Border, III, 153, 1803, II, 166, 1833, "preserved by tradition in Selkirkshire."

- 1 ON Philiphaugh a fray began,
At Hairheadwood it ended;
The Scots outoer the Græmes they ran,
Sae merrily they bended.
- 2 Sir David frae the Border came,
Wi heart an hand came he;
Wi him three thousand bonny Scots,
To bear him company.
- 3 Wi him three thousand valiant men,
A noble sight to see!
A cloud o mist them weel conceald,
As close as eer might be.
- 4 When they came to the Shaw burn,
Said he, Sae weel we frame,
I think it is convenient
That we should sing a psalm.
- 5 When they came to the Lingly burn,
As daylight did appear,
They spy'd an aged father,
And he did draw them near.

- 6 'Come hither, aged father,'
Sir David he did cry,
'And tell me where Montrose lies,
With all his great army.'
- 7 'But first you must come tell to me,
If friends or foes you be;
I fear you are Montrose's men,
Come frae the north country.'
- 8 'No, we are nane o Montrose's men,
Nor eer intend to be;
I am Sir David Lesly,
That's speaking unto thee.'
- 9 'If you're Sir David Lesly,
As I think weel ye be,
I am sorry ye hae brought so few
Into your company.'
- 10 'There's fifteen thousand armed men
Encamped on yon lee;
Ye'll never be a bite to them,
For aught that I can see.'
- 11 'But halve your men in equal parts,
Your purpose to fulfill;
Let ae half keep the water-side,
The rest gae round the hill.'
- 12 'Your nether party fire must,
Then beat a flying drum;
And then they'll think the day's their
ain,
And frae the trench they'll come.'
- 13 'Then, those that are behind them mair
Gie shot, baith grit and sma;
And so, between your armies twa,
Ye may make them to fa.'
- 14 'O were ye ever a soldier?'
Sir David Lesly said;
'O yes; I was at Solway Flow,
Where we were all betrayd.'
- 15 'Again I was at curst Dunbar,
And was a prisner taen,
And many weary night and day
In prison I hae lien.'
- 16 'If ye will lead these men aright,
Rewarded shall ye be;
But, if that ye a traitor prove,
I'll hang thee on a tree.'

- 17 'Sir, I will not a traitor prove;
Montrose has plunderd me;
I'll do my best to banish him
Away frae this country.'
- 18 He halvd his men in equal parts,
His purpose to fulfill;
The one part kept the water-side,
The other gaed round the hill.
- 19 The nether party fired brisk,
Then turnd and seemd to rin;
And then they a' came frae the trench,
And cry'd, 'The day's our ain!'
- 20 The rest then ran into the trench,
And loosd their cannons a':
And thus, between his armies twa,
He made them fast to fa.
- 21 Now let us a' for Lesly pray,
And his brave company,
For they hae vanquishd great Montrose,
Our cruel enemy.

THE BARON OF BRACKLEY

At least two events are probably confounded in this ballad: (1) the murder of the Baron of Brackley, in 1592, by Highland caterans whom he had hospitably entertained, and (2) an affray occurring in 1666 between John Gordon of Brackley and John Farquharson of Inverey. Other tragedies in the troubled history of the Brackley family may also have contributed to the tradition.

- 1 INVEREY cam doun Deeside, whistlin
and playin,
He was at brave Braikley's yett ere it was dawin.
- 2 He rappit fu loudly an wi a great roar,
Cried, Cum doun, cum doun, Braikley, and open the door.

- 3 'Are ye sleepin, Baronne, or are ye wakin?
There's sharpe swords at your yett, will gar your blood spin.
- 4 'Open the yett, Braikley, and lat us
within,
Till we on the green turf gar your bluid
rin.'
- 5 Out spak the brave baronne, owre the castell-wa:
'Are ye cum to spulyie and plunder mi
ha?
- 6 'But gin ye be gentlemen, licht and cum
in:
Gin ye drink o my wine, ye'll nae gar
my bluid spin.
- 7 'Gin ye be hir'd widifus, ye may gang
by,
Ye may gang to the lawlands and steal
their fat ky.
- 8 'Ther spulyie like rievvers o wyld ket-
trin clan,
Who plunder unsparing baith houses
and lan.
- 9 'Gin ye be gentlemen, licht an cum
[in],
Ther's meat an drink i my ha for every
man.
- 10 'Gin ye be hir'd widifus, ye may gang
by,
Gang doun to the lawlands, and steal
horse and ky.'
- 11 Up spak his ladie, at his bak where she
lay,
'Get up, get up, Braikley, and be not afraid;
The'r but young hir'd widifus wi belted plaids.'
- 12 'Cum kiss me, mi Peggy, I'le nae langer stay,
For I will go out and meet Inverey.
- 13 'But hand your tongue, Peggy, and mak
nae sic din,
For yon same hir'd widifus will prove themselves men.'

- 14 She called on her marys, they cam to her hand;
Cries, Bring me your rocks, lassies, we will them command.
- 15 'Get up, get up, Braikley, and turn bak your ky,
Or me an mi women will them defy.
- 16 'Cum forth then, mi maidens, and show them some play;
We'll ficht them, and shortly the cowards will fly.
- 17 'Gin I had a husband, whereas I hae nane,
He woud nae ly i his bed and see his ky taen.
- 18 'Ther's four-and-twenty milk-whit calves, twal o them ky,
In the woods o Glentanner, it's ther thei a' ly.
- 19 'Ther's goat i the Etnach, and sheep o the brae,
An a' will be plunderd by young Inverey.'
- 20 'Now hand your tongue, Peggy, and gie me a gun, Ye'll see me gae furth, but I'll never cum in.
- 21 'Call mi brother William, mi unkl also,
Mi cousin James Gordon; we'll mount and we'll go.'
- 22 When Braikley was ready and stood i the closs,
He was the bravest baronne that eer mounted horse.
- 23 Whan all wer assembld o the castell green,
No man like brave Braikley was ther to be seen.
- 24
'Turn bak, brother William, ye are a bridegroom;
- 25 'Wi bonnie Jean Gordon, the maid o the mill;
Osichin and sobbinshe'll soon get her fill.'
- 26 'I'm no coward, brother, 't is kend I'm a man;
I'll ficht i your quarral as lang's I can stand.
- 27 'I'll ficht, my dear brother, wi heart and gude will,
And so will youug Harry that lives at the mill.
- 28 'But turn, mi dear brother, and nae langer stay:
What'll cum o your ladie, gin Braikley thei slay?
- 29 'What'll cum o your ladie and bonnie young son?
O what'll cum o them when Braikley is gone?'
- 30 'I never will turn: do you think I will fly?
But here I will ficht, and here I will die.'
- 31 'Strik dogs,' crys Inverey, 'and ficht till ye're slayn,
For we are four hundered, ye are but four men.
- 32 'Strik, strik, ye prond boaster, your honour is gone,
Your lands we will plunder, your castell we'll burn.'
- 33 At the head o the Etnach the battel began,
At Little Auchoilzie thei kild the first man.
- 34 First thei kild ane, and soon they kild twa,
Thei kild gallant Braikley, the flour o them a'.
- 35 Thei kild William Gordon, and James o the Knox,
And brave Alexander, the flour o Glenmuick.
- 36 What sichin and moaning was heard i the glen,
For the Baronne o Braikley, who basely was slayn!

- 37 'Cam ye bi the castell, and was ye in there?
Saw ye pretty Peggy tearing her hair?'
- 38 'Yes, I cam by Braikley, and I gaed in there,
And there [saw] his ladie braiding her hair.
- 39 She was rantin, and dancin, and singin for joy,
And vowin that nicht she woud feest Inverey.
- 40 'She eat wi him, drank wi him, welcomd him in,
Was kind to the man that had slayn her baronne.'
- 41 Up spake the son on the nourice's knee,
'Gin I live to be a man, revenged I'll be.'
- 42 Ther's dool i the kitchin, and mirth i the ha,
The Baronne o Braikley is dead and awa.

'The Baron of Brackley' Kinloch MSS., v, 379, in the handwriting of John Hill Burton.

- 1 'BARON of Brackley, are ye in there?
The 're sharp swords at yer yetts, wiuna ye spear.'
- 2 'If they be gentlemen, lat them cum in;
But if they be reavers, we'll gar them be taen.'
- 3 'It is na gentlemen, nor yet pretty lads,
But a curri hir'd widdifus, wears belted plaids.'
- 4 She called on her women and bade them come in:
'Tack a' yer rocks, lasses, and we'll them coman.'
- 5 'We'll fecht them, we'll slight them,
we'll do what we can,
And I vow we will shoot them altho we shod bang.

- 6 'Rise up, John,' she said, 'and turn in yer kye,
For they'll hae them to the Hielands,
and you they'll defie.'
- 7 'Had your still, Catharine, and still yer young son,
For ye'll get me out, but I'll never cum in.'
- 8 'If I had a man, as I hae na nane,
He wudna lye in his bed and see his kye tane.'
- 9 'Ye'll cum kiss me, my Peggy, and bring me my gun,
For I'm gaing out, but I'll never cum in.'
- 10 There was twenty wi Invery, twenty and ten;
There was nane wi the baron but his brother and him.
- 11 At the head of Reneeten the battle began;
Ere they wan Auchoilzie, they killed mony a man.
- 12 They killed Harry Gordon and Harry of the Knock,
The mullertd's four sons up at Glenmuick.
- 13 They killed Harry Gordon and Harry of the Knock,
And they made the brave baron like kail to a pot.
- 14 First they killed ane, and then they killed twa,
Then they killed the brave baron, the flower o them a'.
- 15 Then up came Craigievar, and a party wi him;
If he had come an hour sooner, Brackley had not been slain.
- 16 'Came ye by Brackley? and was ye in there?
Or say ye his lady, was making great care?'
- 17 'I came by Brackley, and I was in there,
But I saw his lady no makin great care.

18 'For she eat wi them, drank wi them, welcomed them in;
She drank to the villain that killed her guid man.

19 'Woe to ye, Kate Fraser! sorry may yer heart be,
To see yer brave baron's blood cum to yer knee.'

20 There is dule in the kitchen, and mirth
i the ha,
But the Baron o B[r]ackley is dead and awa.

JAMIE DOUGLAS

Lady Barbara Erskine, eldest daughter of John, Earl of Mar, was married to James, second Marquis of Douglas, near the end of the year 1670. The marriage did not prove to be happy, and the parties were formally separated in 1681. The blame of the alienation of Douglas from his wife is imputed by tradition to William Lawrie, the marquis's principal chamberlain or factor, who was appointed to that place in 1670, the year of the marriage. Lawrie married Marion Weir, of the family of Blackwood, then a widow. He is often styled the laird of Blackwood, a title which belonged to his son by this marriage, his own proper designation being, after the birth of his son, the Tutor of Blackwood.

The ballad first appeared in print in the second edition of Herd's Scottish Songs, 1776, but only as a fragment of five stanzas. Most of the versions have from one stanza to four of a beautiful song, known from the first quarter of the eighteenth century, and printed fifty years earlier than any copy of the ballad (see Notes).

A

'Lord Douglas,' or, 'The Laird of Blackwood,' Kinloch MSS., i, 93; from the recitation of Mary Barr, Lesmahago. Lanarkshire, May, 1827, and learned by her about sixty years before from an old dey at Douglas Castle.

1 I WAS a lady of high renown
As lived in the north countrie;
I was a lady of high renown
Whan Earl Douglas loved me.

2 Whan we cam through Glasgow toun,
We war a comely sight to see;

My gude lord in velvet green,
And I mysel in cramasie.

3 Whan we cam to Douglas toun,
We war a fine sight to behold;
My gude lord in cramasie,
And I myself in shining gold.

4 Whan that my auld son was born,
And set upon the nurse's knee,
I was as happy a woman as eer was
born,
And my gude lord he loved me.

5 But oh, an my young son was born,
And set upon the nurse's knee,
And I mysel war dead and gaue,
For a maid again I'll never be!

6 There cam a man into this house,
And Jamie Lockhart was his name,
And it was told to my gude lord
That I was in the bed wi him.

7 There cam anither to this house,
And a bad friend he was to me;
He put Jamie's shoon below my bed-stock,
And bade my gude lord come and see.

8 O wae be unto thee, Blackwood,
And ae an ill death may ye dee!
For ye was the first and the foremost
man
That parted my gude lord and me.

9 Whan my gude lord cam in my room,
This grit falsehood for to see,
He turnd about, and, wi a gloom,
He straucht did tak farewell o me.

10 'O fare thee well, my once lovely maid!
O fare thee well, once dear to me!
O fare thee well, my once lovely maid!
For wi me again ye sall never be.'

11 'Sit down, sit down, Jamie Douglas,
Sit thee down and dine wi me,
And I'll set thee on a chair of gold,
And a silver towel on thy knee.'

12 'Whan cockle-shells turn silver bells,
And mussels they bud on a tree,
Whan frost and snaw turns fire to burn,
Then I'll sit down and dine wi thee.'

13 O wae be unto thee, Blackwood,
And ae an ill death may ye dee !
Ye war the first and the foremost man
That parted my gude lord and me.

14 Whan my father he heard word
That my gude lord had forsaken
me,
He sent fifty o his brisk dragoons
To fesh me hame to my ain countrie.

15 That morning before I did go,
My bonny palace for to leave,
I went into my gude lord's room,
But alas ! he wad na speak to me.

16 'Fare thee well, Jamie Douglas !
Fare thee well, my ever dear to me !
Fare thee well, Jamie Douglas !
Be kind to the three babes I've born
to thee.'

LOUDON HILL, OR, DRUM-
CLOG

This ballad gives an account of the fight at Drumclog, near Loudon Hill on the borders of the shires of Ayr and Lanark, June 1, 1679, between the "Gospel-lads" or Covenanters and Claverhouse. The Covenanters were commanded by Robert Hamilton, with whom were associated John Balfour of Kinloch, called Burly, and others.

'The Battle of Loudon Hill,' Minstrelsy of the Scottish Border, III, 188, 1803; II, 206, 1833.

1 You 'l marvel when I tell ye o
Our noble Burly and his train,
When last he marchd up through the
land,
Wi sax-and-twenty westland men.

2 Than they I neer o braver heard,
For they had a' baith wit and skill;
They proved right well, as I heard tell,
As they cam up oer Loudoun Hill.

3 Weel prosper a' the gospel-lads
That are into the west countrie
Ay wicked Claverse to demean,
And ay an ill dead may he die !

4 For he's drawn up i battle rank,
An that baith soon an hastilie;
But they wha live till simmer come,
Some bludie days for this will see.

5 But up spak cruel Claverse then,
Wi hastie wit an wicked skill,
'Gae fire on yon westlan men;
I think it is my sovrein's will.'

6 But up bespake his cornet then,
'It's be wi nae consent o me;
I ken I 'll neer come back again,
An mony mae as weel as me.

7 'There is not ane of a' yon men
But wha is worthy other three;
There is na ane amang them a'
That in his cause will stap to die.

8 'An as for Burly, him I knaw;
He's a man of honour, birth, an fame;
Gie him a sword into his hand,
He 'll fight thysel an other ten.'

9 But up spake wicked Claverse then —
I wat his heart it raise fu hie —
And he has cry'd, that a' might hear,
'Man, ye hae sair deceived me.

10 'I never kend the like afore,
Na, never since I came frae hame,
That you sae cowardly here suld prove,
An yet come of a noble Græme.'

11 But up bespake his cornet then,
'Since that it is your honour's will,
Mysel shall be the foremost man
That shall gie fire on Loudoun Hill.

12 'At your command I 'll lead them on,
But yet wi nae consent o me;
For weel I ken I 'll neer return,
And mony mae as weel as me.'

13 Then up he drew in battle rank —
I wat he had a bonny train —
But the first time that bullets flew
Ay he lost twenty o his men.

14 Then back he came the way he gaed,
I wat right soon an suddenly;
He gave command amang his men,
And sent them back, and bade them
flee.

- 15 Then up came Burly, bauld an stout,
Wi's little train o westland men,
Wha mair than either aince or twice
In Edinburgh confind had been.
- 16 They hae been up to London sent,
An yet they're a' come safely down;
Sax troop o horsemen they hae beat,
And chased them into Glasgow town.

BOTHWELL BRIDGE

The report of the success of the Covenanters at Drumclog (see No. 205) brought four or five thousand malcontents into the rising. They established their camp on June 19, 1679, at Hamilton, on the south side of the Clyde, near the point where the river is crossed by Bothwell Bridge. The king named the Duke of Monmouth to command his army in Scotland. The royal forces were at Bothwell Muir on June 22d, and their advanced guards within a quarter of a mile of the bridge. The duke marched his army to an eminence opposite the main body of the enemy, who lay on the moor (st. 10). The defenders of the bridge maintained themselves until their powder was exhausted, and then unwillingly withdrew to the main body. The bridge was cleared of obstructions, and the royal army crossed and advanced against the rebels on the moor. The first fire made the Covenanters' horse wheel about, and their retreat threw the nearest foot into disorder; in consequence of which the whole army fell into confusion. Twelve hundred surrendered without resistance, the rest fled, and several hundred were killed in the pursuit.

Minstrelsy of the Scottish Border, III, 209, 1808; II, 226, 1833. From recitation.

- 1 'O BILLIE, billie, bonny billie,
Will ye go to the wood wi me?
We'll ca our horse hame masterless,
An gar them trow slain men are we.'
- 2 'O no, O no!' says Earlstoun,
'For that's the thing that mauna be;
For I am sworn to Bothwell Hill,
Where I maun either gae or die.'
- 3 So Earlstoun rose in the morning,
An mounted by the break o day,

An he has joiud our Scottish lads,
As they were marching out the way.

- 4 'Now, farewell, father! and farewell,
mother!
An fare ye weel, my sisters three!
An fare ye well, my Earlstoun!
For thee again I'll never see.'
- 5 So they're awa to Bothwell Hill,
An waly, they rode bonnily!
When the Duke o Monmouth saw them
comin,
He went to view their company.
- 6 'Ye're welcome, lads,' then Monmouth
said,
'Ye're welcome, brave Scots lads, to
me;
And sae are you, brave Earlstoun,
The foremost o your company.'
- 7 'But yield your weapons ane an a',
O yield your weapons, lads, to me;
For, gin ye'll yield your weapons up,
Ye'se a' gae hame to your country.'
- 8 Out then spak a Lennox lad,
And waly, but he spoke bonnily!
'I winna yield my weapons up,
To you nor nae man that I see.'
- 9 Then he set up the flag o red,
A' set about wi bonny blue:
'Since ye'll no cease, and be at peace,
See that ye stand by ither true.'
- 10 They stell'd their cannons on the height,
And showrd their shot down in the how,
An beat our Scots lads even down;
Thick they lay slain on every know.
- 11 As eer you saw the rain down fa,
Or yet the arrow frae the bow,
Sae our Scottish lads fell even down,
An they lay slain on every know.
- 12 'O hold your hand,' then Monmouth
cry'd,
'Gie quarters to yon men for me;
But wicked Claverhouse swore an oath
His cornet's death revengd sud be.'

13 'O hold your hand,' then Monmouth
cry'd,
'If ony thing you 'll do for me;
Hold up your hand, you cursed Græme,
Else a rebel to our king ye 'll be.'

14 Then wicked Claverhouse turnd about —
I wot an angry man was he —
And he has lifted up his hat,
And cry'd, God bless his Majesty !

15 Than he 's awa to London town,
Ay een as fast as he can dree;
Fause witnesses he has wi him taen,
An taen Monmouth's head frae his body.

16 Alang the brae beyond the brig,
Mouy brave man lies cauld and still;
But lang we 'll mind, and sair we 'll rue,
The bloody battle of Bothwell Hill.

LORD DELAMERE

The duel in this ballad is on a par for historical verity with that in 'Johnie Scot' (No. 99). If there was to be a duel, Devonshire (Earl, he was not created Duke till 1694, the last year of Delamere's life) was well chosen for the nonce. He had fought with Lord Mohun, in 1676, and was credited with challenging Count Königsmark, in 1682. What is true in the ballad is that Delamere was a strenuous and uncompromising advocate of constitutional government, and that he and Devonshire were political and personal friends. Both were particularly active in bringing in the Prince of Orange; and so was Lord Danby, with whom, according to the title of B (not here printed), Devonshire was fighting the duel the year before the revolution.

'The Long-armed Duke,' taken down from recitation in Derbyshire, and first printed, about 1843, in a periodical called The Story Teller; afterwards in Notes and Queries, First Series, v, 243, 1852, by C. W. G.

1 GOOD people, give attention, a story you shall hear,
It is of the king and my lord Dela-mere;

The quarrel it arose in the Parliament
House,
Concerning some taxations going to be put in force.
Ri toora loora la.

2 Says my lord Delamere to his Majesty
soon,
'If it please you, my liege, of you I 'll soon beg a boon.'
'Then what is your boon? let me it understand:'
'It's to have all the poor men you have in your land.'

3 'And I 'll take them to Cheshire, and there I will sow
Both hempseed and flaxseed, and [hang] them all in a row.
- Why, they 'd better be hanged, and stopped soon their breath,
If it please you, my liege, than to starve them to death.'

4 Then up starts a French lord, as we do
hear,
Saying, 'Thou art a proud Jack,' to my
lord Delamere;
'Thou oughtest to be stabbed' — then he turnd him about —
'For affronting the king in the Parliament House.'

5 Then up starts his grace, the Duke of Devonshire,
Saying, I 'll fight in defence of my lord
Delamere.
Then a stage was erected, to battle they
went,
To kill or to be killed was our noble duke's intent.

6 The very first push, as we do understand,
The duke's sword he bended it back into his hand.
He waited a while, but nothing he spoke,
Till on the king's armour his rapier he broke.

7 An English lord, who by that stage did
stand,
Threw Devonshire another, and he got it in his hand:

'Play low for your life, brave Devonshire,' said he,
'Play low for your life, or a dead man you will be.'

8 Devonshire dropped on his knee, and gave him his death-wound;
O then that French lord fell dead upon the ground.
The king called his guards, and he unto them did say,
'Bring Devonshire down, and take the dead man away.'

9 'No, if it please you, my liege, no! I've slain him like a man;
I'm resolved to see what clothing he's got on.
Oh, fie upon your treachery, your treachery!' said he,
'Oh, king, 't was your intention to have took my life away.'

10 'For he fought in your armour, whilst I have fought in bare;
The same thou shalt win, king, before thou does it wear.'
Then they all turned back to the Parliament House,
And the nobles made obsequies with their hands to their mouths.

11 'God bless all the nobles we have in our land,
And send the Church of England may flourish still and stand;
For I've injured no king, no kingdom, nor no crown,
But I wish that every honest man might enjoy his own.'

LORD DERWENTWATER

James Ratcliffe, Earl of Derwentwater, being suspected or known to be engaged in concerting a rising in the north of England in behalf of the Pretender, a warrant was issued by the Secretary of State for his apprehension, towards the end of September, 1715. Hereupon he took arms, and he was one of the fifteen hundred English and Scots who were forced to an inglorious surrender at Preston, November 14. Derwentwater was impeached of high treason, and pleaded guilty, in January, 1716; was sentenced to death February 9, and was executed February 24.

A

'Lord Dunwaters,' Motherwell's MS., p. 331, July 19, 1825, "from the recitation of Agnes Lile, Kilbarchan, a woman verging on fifty;" learned from her father, who died fourteen years before, at the age of eighty. 'Lord Derwentwater,' Motherwell's Minstrelsy, p. 349.

1 OUR king has wrote a lang letter,
And sealed it owre with gold;
He sent it to my lord Dunwaters,
To read it if he could.

2 He has not sent it with a boy, with a boy,
Nor with anie Scotch lord;
But he's sent it with the noblest knight
Eer Scotland could afford.

3 The very first line that my lord did read,
He gave a smirking smile;
Before he had the half o't read,
The tears from his eyes did fall.

4 'Come saddle to me my horse,' he said,
'Come saddle to me with speed;
For I must away to fair London town,
For me was neer more need.'

5 Out and spoke his lady gay,
In child-bed where she lay:
'I would have you make your will, my lord Dunwaters,
Before you go away.'

6 'I leave to you, my eldest son,
My houses and my land;
I leave to you, my second son,
Ten thousand pounds in hand.

7 'I leave to you, my lady gay —
You are my wedded wife —
I leave to you, the third of my estate;
That 'll keep you in a lady's life.'

8 They had not rode a mile but one,
Till his horse fell owre a stane:
'It's warning gude eneuch,' my lord Dunwaters said,
'Alive I'll neer come hame.'

- 9 When they came into fair London town,
Into the courtiers' hall,
The lords and knights in fair London town
Did him a traitor call.
- 10 'A traitor! a traitor!' says my lord,
'A traitor! how can that be,
An it was na for the keeping of five thousand men
To fight for King Jamie?
- 11 'O all you lords and knights in fair London town,
Come out and see me die;
O all you lords and knights into fair London town,
Be kind to my ladie.
- 12 'There's fifty pounds in my right pocket,
Divide it to the poor;
There's other fifty pounds in my left pocket,
Divide it from door to door.'

D

'Lord Derntwater,' Kinloch MSS., I, 323.

- 1 THE king has written a braid letter,
And seald it up wi gowd,
And sent it to Lord Derntwater,
To read it if he cond.
- 2 The first lines o't that he read,
A blythe, blythe man was he;
But ere he had it half read through,
The tear blinded his ee.
- 3 'Go saddle to me my milk-white horse,
Go saddle it with speed;
For I maun ride to Lun[n]on town,
To answer for my head.'
- 4 'Your will, your will, my lord Derntwater,
Your will before ye go;
For you will leave three dochters fair,
And a wife to wail and woe.'
- 5 'My will, my will, my lady Derntwater?
Ye are my wedded wife;
Be kind, be kind to my dochters dear,
If I should lose my life.'

- 6 He set his ae fit on the grund,
The tither on the steed;
The ring upon his finger burst,
And his nose began to bleed.
- 7 He rode till he cam to Lunnon town,
To a place they ca Whiteha;
And a' the lords o merry England
A traitor him gan ca.
- 8 'A traitor! a traitor! O what means this?
A traitor! what mean ye?'
'It's a' for the keeping o five hundred men
To fecht for bonny Jamie.'
- 9 Then up started a gray-headed man,
Wi a braid axe in his hand:
'Your life, your life, my lord Derntwater,
Your life's at my command.'
- 10 'My life, my life, ye old gray-headed man,
My life I'll freely gie;
But before ye tak my life awa
Let me speak twa words or three.
- 11 'I've fifty pounds in ae pocket,
Go deal it frae door to door;
I've fifty five i the other pocket,
Go gie it to the poor.
- 12 'The velvet coat that I hae on,
Ye may tak it for your fee;
And a' ye lords o merry Scotland
Be kind to my ladie!'

GEORDIE

Kinloch and others incline to take Geordie to be George Gordon, fourth earl of Huntly, who incurred the Queen Regent's displeasure for failing to execute a commission against a Highland robber in 1554. Huntly was committed to Edinburgh Castle, and some of his many enemies urged that he should be put to death. The Earl of Cassilis, though a foe to Huntly, resisted these measures on grounds of patriotism, and proposed that he should be deprived of certain honors and offices and fined. A fine was exacted, and the places which had been taken from him were restored. With regard to this hypothesis, it may at least be said that, if it should be accepted, the ballad would be quite as faithful to history as many others.

A

'Geordie,' Johnson's Musical Museum, No. 346, p. 357, 1792; communicated by Robert Burns.

- 1 THERE was a battle in the north,
And nobles there was many,
And they hae killd Sir Charlie Hay,
And they laid the wyte on Geordie.
- 2 O he has written a lang letter,
He sent it to his lady:
'Ye maun cum up to Enbrugh town,
To see what word's o Geordie.'
- 3 When first she lookd the letter on,
She was baith red and rosy;
But she had na read a word but twa
Till she wallowt like a lily.
- 4 'Gar get to me my gude grey steed,
My menyie a' gae wi me,
For I shall neither eat nor drink
Till Enbrugh town shall see me.'
- 5 And she has mountit her gude greysteed,
Her menyie a' gaed wi her,
And she did neither eat nor drink
Till Enbrugh town did see her.
- 6 And first appeard the fatal block,
And syne the aix to head him,
And Geordie cumin down the stair,
And bands o airn upon him.
- 7 But tho he was chaind in fetters strang,
O airn and steel sae heavy,
There was na ane in a' the court
Sae bra a man as Geordie.
- 8 O she's down on her bended knee,
I wat she's pale and weary:
'O pardon, pardon, noble king,
And gie me back my dearie !
- 9 'I hae born seven sons to my Geordie
dear,
The seventh neer saw his daddie.
O pardon, pardon, noble king,
Pity a waefu lady !'

- 10 'Gar bid the headin-man mak haste,'
Our king reply'd fu lordly:
'O noble king, tak a' that's mine,
But gie me back my Geordie !'

- 11 The Gordons cam, and the Gordons ran,
And they were stark and steady,
And ay the word amang them a'
Was, Gordons, keep you ready !

- 12 An aged lord at the king's right hand
Says, Noble king, but hear me;
Gar her tell down five thousand pound,
And gie her back her dearie.

- 13 Some gae her marks, some gae her
crowns,
Some gae her dollars many,
And she's telld down five thousand
pound,
And she's gotten again her dearie.

- 14 She blinkit blythe in her Geordie's face,
Says, Dear I've bought thee, Geordie;
But there sud been bluidy bouks on the green
Or I had tint my laddie.

- 15 He claspit her by the middle sma,
And he kist her lips sae rosy:
'The fairest flower o woman-kind
Is my sweet, bonie lady !'

D

'The Laird of Gigh, or Gae,' Scotch Ballads, Materials for Border Minstrelsy, No. 64, MS. of Thomas Wilkie, 1813-15, p. 50, Abbotsford. "I took this down from the recitation of Janet Scott, Bowden, who sung it to a beautiful plaintive old air."

- 1 THERE was a battle i the north
Among the nobles many,
The Laird of Gigh he's killd a man,
The brother of his lady.
- 2 'Where will I get a man or boy,
That will win both goud and money,
That will run into the north,
And fetch to me my lady ?'
- 3 Up then spake a bonny boy,
He was both blythe and merry;

- 'O I will run into the north,
And fetch to you your lady.'
- 4 'You may tell her to sew me a gude side shirt,
She 'll no need to sew me mony;
Tell her to bring me a gude side shirt,
It will be the last of any.'
- 5 He has written a broad letter,
And he's sealed it sad and sorry;
He's gaen it to that bonny boy,
To take to his fair lady.
- 6 Away the bonny boy he's gaen,
He was both blythe and merrie;
He's to that fair lady gaue,
And taen her word frae Geordie.
- 7 When she looked the letter on,
She was both sad and sorrie:
'O I'll away to fair Edinburgh town
Myself and see my Geordie.
- 8 'Gar saddle to me the black,' she says,
'The brown was neer sae bonny;
And I'll straight to Edinburgh
Myself and see my Geordie.'
- 9 When she came to that wan water,
The boats was not yet ready;
She wheeld her horse's head around,
And swimd at the Queen's Ferry.
- 10 When she came to the Parliament
Close,
Amang the poor folks many,
She dealt the crowns with duckatoons,
And bade them pray for Geordy.
- 11 When she came to the Parliament
House,
Among the nobles many,
The rest sat all wi hat on head,
But hat in hand sat Geordie.
- 12 Up bespake an English lord,
And he spake blythe and merrie;
'Was Geordie's head upon the block,
I am sure I would have his lady.'
- 13 Up bespake that lady fair,
And O but she was sorrie!
'If Geordie's head were on the block,
There's never a man gain his lady.

- 14 'I have land into the north,
And I have white rigs many,
And I could gie them a' to you
To save the life of Geordie.
- 15 'I have seven children in the north,
And they seem very bonnie,
And I could bear them a' over again
For to win the life o Geordie.'
- 16 Up bespake the gude Argyle;
He has befriended many;
'If ye'll tell down ten hundred crowns,
Ye's win the life o Geordie.'
- 17 Some gaed her shillings, and some her
crowns,
And some gaed her guineas many,
And she's telld down ten hundred
crowns,
And she's wone the life o Geordie.
- 18 When she came down through Edinborough,
And Geordie in her hand, O,
'Where will I get a writer's [house],
A writer's house so ready,
That I may write into the north
I have wone the life o Geordie'?

BONNIE JAMES CAMPBELL

The James Campbell of this ballad cannot be identified. C, like many things in the Scotish Minstrel, has passed through editorial hands.

A

Herd's MSS., I, 40, II, 184.

- 1 O it's up in the Highlands,
and along the sweet Tay,
Did bonie James Campbell ride monie a day.
- 2 Saddled and bridled,
and bonie rode he;
Hame came horse, hame came saddle,
but neer hame cam he.
- 3 And down cam his sweet sisters,
greeting sae sair,

And down cam his bonie wife,
tearing her hair.

- 4 ' My house is unbigged,
my barn 's unbeen,
My corn 's unshorn,
my meadow grows green.'

* * * *

Finlay's Scottish Ballads, 1808, I, xxxiii.

- 1 SADDLED and bridled
and bootied rade he;
Toom hame cam the saddle,
but never cam he.
- 2 Down cam his auld mither,
greetin fu sair,
And down cam his bonny wife,
wringin her hair.
- 3 Saddled and bridled
and bootied rade he;
Toom hame cam the saddle,
but never cam he.

C

' Bonnie George Campbell,' Smith's Scottish Minstrel, v, 42.

- 1 HIE upon Hielands,
and laigh upon Tay,
Bonnie George Campbell
rode out on a day.
- 2 He saddled, he bridled,
and gallant rode he,
And hame cam his guid horse,
but never cam he.
- 3 Out cam his mother dear,
greeting fu sair,
And out cam his bonnie bryde,
riving her hair.
- 4 ' The meadow lies green,
the corn is unshorn,
But bonnie George Campbell will never return.'

- 5 Saddled and bridled
and bootied rode he,
A plume in his helmet,
A sword at his knee.

- 6 But toom cam his saddle,
all bloody to see,
Oh, hame cam his guid horse,
but never cam he !

D

Cunningham's Songs of Scotland, III, 2, communicated by Mr Yellowlees.

- 1 HIGH upon Highlands,
and low upon Tay,
Bonnie George Campbell
rode out on a day.
- 2 ' My meadow lies green,
and my corn is unshorn,
My barn is to build,
and my babe is unborn.'

BEWICK AND GRAHAM

There was no doubt an older and better copy of this ballad than those which are extant, the earliest of which is of the eighteenth century. The story is so well composed, proportion is so well kept, on the whole, that it is reasonable to suppose that certain passages may have suffered some injury. But it is a fine-spirited ballad as it stands.

Angus and Son, Newcastle, Bell Ballads, Abbotsford Library, P. 5, vol. 1, No. 60. e. Broadside, in "A Jolly Book of Garlands collected by John Bell in Newcastle." No. 29, Abbotsford Library, E. 1. f. 'Bewick and Graham,' chapbook, Newcastle, W. For-dyce. g. Scotch Ballads, Materials for Border Minstrelsy, No. 145, Abbotsford. h. 'Christie Græme,' the same, No. 89.

1 Old Grahame [he] is to Carlisle gone,
Where Sir Robert Bewick there met
he;
In arms to the wine they are gone,
And drank till they were both merry.

2 Old Grahame he took up the cup,
And said, 'Brother Bewick, here 's to
thee;
And here 's to our two sons at home,
For they live best in our country.'

3 'Nay, were thy son as good as mine,
And of some books he could but read,
With sword and buckler by his side,
To see how he could save his head,

4 'They might have been calld two bold
brethren
Where ever they did go or ride;
They might [have] been calld two bold
brethren,
They might have crackd the Border-
side.

5 'Thy son is bad, and is but a lad,
And bully to my son cannot be;
For my son Bewick can both write and
read,
And sure I am that cannot he.'

6 'I put him to school, but he would not learn,
I bought him books, but he would not
read;
But my blessing he 's never have Till I see how his hand can save his
head.'

7 Old Grahame called for an account,
And he askd what was for to pay;
There he paid a crown, so it went round,
Which was all for good wine and hay.

8 Old Grahame is into the stable gone,
Where stood thirty good steeds and
three;
He 's taken his own steed by the head,
And home rode he right wantonly.

9 When he came home, there did he espy,
A loving sight to spy or see,
There did he espy his own three sons,
Young Christy Grahame, the foremost was he.

10 There did he espy his own three sons,
Young Christy Grahame, the fore-
most was he:
'Where have you been all day, father,
That no counsel you would take by
me?'

11 'Nay, I have been in Carlisle town,
Where Sir Robert Bewick there met
me;
He said thou was bad, and calld thee a lad,
And a baffled man by thou I be.

12 'He said thou was bad, and calld thee
a lad,
And bully to his son cannot be;
For his son Bewick can both write and
read,
And sure I am that cannot thee.

13 'I put thee to school, but thou would not learn,
I bought thee books, but thou would not read;
But my blessing thou 's never have Till I see with Bewick thou can save thy head.'

14 'Oh, pray forbear, my father dear;
That ever such a thing should be!
Shall I venture my body in field to fight
With a man that 's faith and troth to
me?'

15 'What 's that thou sayst, thou limmer
loon?
Or how dare thou stand to speak to
me?
If thou do not end this quarrel soon,
Here is my glove thou shalt fight me.'

16 Christy stoopd low unto the ground,
Unto the ground, as you 'll understand:
'O father, put on your glove again,
The wind hath blown it from your
hand.'

17 'What 's that thou sayst, thou limmer
loon?
Or how dare thou stand to speak to
me?
If thou do not end this quarrel soon,
Here is my hand thou shalt fight me.'

- 18 Christy Grahame is to his chamber gone,
And for to study, as well might be,
Whether to fight with his father dear,
Or with his bully Bewick he.
- 19 'If it be [my] fortune my bully to kill,
As you shall boldly understand,
In every town that I ride through,
They 'll say, There rides a brother-less man !
- 20 'Nay, for to kill my bully dear,
I think it will be a deadly sin;
And for to kill my father dear,
The blessing of heaven I neer shall
win.
- 21 'O give me your blessing, father,' he
said,
'And pray well for me for to thrive;
If it be my fortune my bully to kill,
I swear I 'll neer come home alive.'
- 22 He put on his back a good plate-jack,
And on his head a cap of steel,
With sword and buckler by his side;
O gin he did not become them
well !
- 23 'O fare thee well, my father dear !
And fare thee well, thou Carlisle
town !
If it be my fortune my bully to kill,
I swear I 'll neer eat bread again.'
- 24 Now we 'll leave talking of Christy
Grahame,
And talk of him again belive;
But we will talk of bonny Bewick,
Where he was teaching his scholars five.
- 25 Now when he had learnd them well to fence,
To handle their swords without any
doubt,
He 's taken his own sword under his arm,
And walkd his father's close about.
- 26 He lookd between him and the sun,
To see what farleys he coud see;
There he spy'd a man with armour on,
As he came riding over the lee.
- 27 'I wonder much what man you be
That so boldly this way does come;
I think it is my nighest friend,
I think it is my bully Grahame.
- 28 'O welcome, O welcome, bully Grahame !
O man, thou art my dear, welcome !
O man, thou art my dear, weloome !
For I love thee best in Christendom.'
- 29 'Away, away, O bully Bewick,
And of thy bullyship let me be !
The day is come I never thought on;
Bully, I 'm come here to fight with
thee.'
- 30 'O no ! not so, O bully Grahame !
That eer such a word should spoken
be !
I was thy master, thou was my scholar:
So well as I have learn'd thee.'
- 31 'My father he was in Carlisle town,
Where thy father Bewick there met
he;
He said I was bad, and he calld me a
lad,
And a baffled man by thou I be.'
- 32 'Away, away, O bully Grahame,
And of all that talk, man, let us
be !
We 'll take three men of either side
To see if we can our fathers agree.'
- 33 'Away, away, O bully Bewick,
And of thy bullyship let me be !
But if thou be a man, as I trow thou art,
Come over this ditch and fight with
me.'
- 34 'O no ! not so, my bully Grahame !
That eer such a word should spoken
be !
Shall I venture my body in field to fight
With a man that 's faith and troth to
me ?'
- 35 'Away, away, O bully Bewick,
And of all that care, man, let us
be !
If thou be a man, as I trow thou art,
Come over this ditch and fight with
me.'

- 36 'Now, if it be my fortune thee, Grahame, to kill,
As God's will's, man, it all must
be;
But if it be my fortune thee, Grahame,
to kill,
'T is home again I'll never gae.'
- 37 'Thou art of my mind then, bully Be-wick,
And sworn-brethren will we be;
If thou be a man, as I trow thou art,
Come over this ditch and fight with
me.'
- 38 He flang his cloak from [off] his shoulders,
His psalm-book out of his hand flang
he,
He clapt his hand upon the hedge,
And oer lap he right wantonly.
- 39 When Grahame did see his bully come,
The salt tear stood long in his eye:
'Now needs must I say that thou art a
man,
That dare venture thy body to fight
with me.
- 40 'Now I have a harness on my back;
I know that thou hath none on thine;
But as little as thou hath on thy back,
Sure as little shall there be on mine.'
- 41 He flang his jack from off his back,
His steel cap from his head flang
he;
He's taken his sword into his hand,
He's tyed his horse unto a tree.
- 42 Now they fell to it with two broa[d
swords],
For two long hours fought Bewick
[and he];
Much sweat was to be seen on them
both,
But never a drop of blood to see.
- 43 Now Grahame gave Bewick an ackward
stroke,
An ackward stroke surely struck he;
He struck him now under the left
breast,
Then down to the ground as dead fell
he.
- 44 'Arise, arise, O bully Bewick,
Arise, and speak three words to me!
Whether this be thy deadly wound,
Or God and good surgeons will mend
thee.'
- 45 'O horse, O horse, O bully Grahame,
And pray do get thee far from me!
Thy sword is sharp, it hath wounded my
heart,
And so no further can I gae.
- 46 'O horse, O horse, O bully Grahame,
And get thee far from me with speed!
And get thee out of this country quite!
That none may know who's done the deed.'
- 47 'O if this be true, my bully dear,
The words that thou dost tell to
me,
The vow I made, and the vow I'll keep;
I swear I'll be the first that die.'
- 48 Then he stuck his sword in a moody-
hill,
Where he lap thirty good foot and
three;
First he bequeathed his soul to God,
And upon his own sword-point lap he.
- 49 Now Grahame he was the first that died,
And then came Robin Bewick to
see;
'Arise, arise, O son!' he said,
'For I see thou's won the victory.
- 50 'Arise, arise, O son!' he said,
'For I see thou's won the victory:'
'[Father, co]uld ye not drunk your wine
at home,
[And le]tten me and my brother be?
- 51 'Nay, dig a grave both low and wide,
And in it us two pray bury;
But bury my bully Grahame on the sun-
side,
For I'm sure he's won the victory.'
- 52 Now we'll leave talking of these two
brethren,
In Carlisle town where they lie slain,
And talk of these two good old men,
Where they were making a pitiful
moan.

53 With that bespoke now Robin Bewick:
 'O man, was I not much to blame?
 I have lost one of the liveliest lads
 That ever was bred unto my name.'

54 With that bespoke my good lord Gra-
 hame:
 'O man, I have lost the better block;
 I have lost my comfort and my joy,
 I have lost my key, I have lost my
 lock.

55 'Had I gone through all Ladderdale,
 And forty horse had set on me,
 Had Christy Grahame been at my back,
 So well as he woud guarded me.'

56 I have no more of my song to sing,
 But two or three words to you I'll
 name;
 But 't will be talk'd in Carlisle town
 That these two [old] men were all the blame

THE DUKE OF ATHOLE'S NURSE

The 'new-come darling' of the Duke of Athole offers the duke's nurse a ring if she will carry a word to her leman. This leman had previously been the nurse's lover, and comes to tell her that another has now possession of his heart. The nurse plans revenge, but dissimulates; she tells the faithless fellow to go for the night to an ale-house, and she will meet him there in the morning. But instead of the nurse he sees a band of men, her seven brothers (nine brothers, F'), coming towards the house, and easily divines that they are coming to slay him. He appeals to the landlady to save him; she dresses him in woman's clothes and sets him to her baking. The seven brothers ask the landlady if she had a lodger last night; they are come to pay his reckoning. A lodger had been there, but he did not stay till morning. They search the house and stab the beds, often passing the sham baking-maid without detecting the disguise. C-F have nothing about the 'new-come darling,' but begin at once with the nurse, who longs for her lover, and would give her half year's fee to see him. He appears, and avows to her that another woman has gained his heart. Compare 'Sir James the Rose' (No. 213).

Cromek's Select Scottish Songs, 1810, n, 196, 194; sent, with other fragments, by Robert Burns to William Tytler, August, 1790; stanzas 2-6.

- * * * * *
- 1 'WHERE shall I gang, my ain true
 love?
 Where shall I gang to hide me?
 For weel ye ken i yere father's bowr
 It wad be death to find me.'
- 2 'O go you to yon tavern-house,
 An there count owre your lawin,
 An, if I be a woman true,
 I'll meet you in the dawin.'
- 3 O he's gone to yon tavern-house,
 An ay he counted his lawin,
 An ay he drank to her guid health
 Was to meet him in the dawin.
- 4 O he's gone to yon tavern-house,
 An counted owre his lawin,
 When in there cam three armed men,
 To meet him in the dawin.
- 5 'O woe be unto woman's wit!
 It has beguiled many;
 She promised to come hersel,
 But she sent three men to slay me.'

B

Skene MS., p. 10; taken down in the north of Scotland, 1802-3.

- 1 'YE are the Duke of Athol's nurse,
 And I'm the new-come darling;
 I'll gie you my gay gold rings
 To get ae word of my leman.'
- 2 'I am the Duke of Athol's nurse,
 And ye're the new-come darling;
 Keep well your gay gold rings,
 Ye sall get twa words o your leman.'
- 3 He leand oure his saddle-bow,
 It was not for to kiss her:
 'Anither woman has my heart,
 And I but come here to see ye.'
- 4 'If anither woman has your heart,
 O dear, but I am sorry!

Ye hie you down to yon ale-house,
And stay untill 't be dawing,
And if I be a woman true
I'll meet you in the dawing.'

5 He did him down to yon ale-house,
And drank untill 't was dawing;
He drank the bonnie lassie's health
That was to clear his lawing.

6 He lookit out of a shot-window,
To see if she was coming,
And there he seed her seven brithers,
So fast as they were running!

7 He went up and down the house,
Says, 'Landlady, can you save me?
For yonder comes her seven brithers,
And they are coming to slay me.'

8 So quick she minded her on a wile
How she might protect him!
She dressed him in a suit of woman's attire
And set him to her baking.

9 'Had you a quarterer here last night,
Or staid he to the dawing?
Shew us the room the squire lay in,
We are come to clear his lawing.'

10 'I had a quarterer here last night,
But he staid not to the dawing;
He called for a pint, and paid as he
went,
You have nothing to do with his law-
ing.'

11 They searchd the house baith up and
down,
The curtains they spaird not to rive
em,
And twenty times they passed
The squire at his baking.

SIR JAMES THE ROSE

There are some resemblances between 'Sir James the Rose' and No. 212. 'Sir James the Ross,' composed by Michael Bruce (d. 1767) upon the story of the present ballad, has perhaps enjoyed more favor than the original.

'Sir James the Rose.' a. From a stall-tract of about 1780, Abbotsford library, P. 6. b. Motherwell's Minstrelsy, p. 321. c. Sir James the Rose's Garland, one of a volume of the like from Heber's library. d. Motherwell's MS., p. 281; from the recitation of Mrs Gentles, of Paisley. e. Herd's MSS., i, 82. f. The same, ii, 42. g. 'Sir James the Rose,' Pinkerton's Scottish Tragic Ballads, 1781, p. 61.

1 O HEARD ye of Sir James the Rose,
The young heir of Buleighen?
For he has killd a gallant squire,
An's friends are out to take him.

2 Now he's gone to the House of Marr,
Where the nourice was his leman;
To see his dear he did repair,
Thinking she would befriend him.

3 'Where are you going, Sir James?' she
says,
'Or where now are you riding?'
'O I am bound to a foreign land,
For now I'm under hiding.

4 'Where shall I go? Where shall I
run?
Where shall I go to hide me?
For I have killd a gallant squire,
And they're seeking to slay me.'

5 'O go ye down to yon ale-house,
And I'll pay there your lawing;
And, if I be a woman true,
I'll meet you in the dawing.'

6 'I'll not go down to yon ale-house,
For you to pay my lawing;
There's forty shillings for one supper,
I'll stay in 't till the dawing.'

7 He's turnd him right and round about
And rowd him in his brechan,
And he has gone to take a sleep,
In the lowlands of Buleighen.

8 He was not well gone out of sight,
Nor was he past Milstrethen,
Till four and twenty belted knights
Came riding oer the Leathen.

9 'O have you seen Sir James the Rose,
The young heir of Buleighen?
For he has killd a gallant squire,
And we're sent out to take him.'

- 10 'O I have seen Sir James,' she says,
 'For he past here on Monday;
 If the steed be swift that he rides on,
 He's past the gates of Loudon.'
- 11 But as they were going away,
 Then she call'd out behind them;
 'If you do seek Sir James,' she says,
 'I'll tell you where you'll find him.'
- 12 'You'll seek the bank above the mill,
 In the lowlands of Buleighen,
 And there you'll find Sir James the
 Rose,
 Lying sleeping in his brechan.'
- 13 'You must not wake him out of sleep,
 Nor yet must you affright him,
 Till you run a dart quite thro his heart,
 And thro the body pierce him.'
- 14 They sought the bank above the mill,
 In the lowlands of Buleighan,
 And there they found Sir James the Rose,
 A sleeping in his brechan.'
- 15 Then out bespoke Sir John the Græme,
 Who had the charge a keeping;
 'It's neer be said, dear gentlemen,
 We'll kill him when he's sleeping.'
- 16 They seiz'd his broadsword and his targe,
 And closely him surrounded;
 But when he wak'd out of his sleep,
 His senses were confounded.
- 17 'O pardon, pardon, gentlemen!
 Have mercy now upon me!'
 'Such as you gave, such you shall have,
 And so we'll fall upon thee.'
- 18 'Donald my man, wait me upon,
 And I'll give you my brechan,
 And, if you stay here till I die,
 You'll get my trews of tartan.'
- 19 'There is fifty pounds in my pocket,
 Besides my trews and brechan;
 You'll get my watch and diamond ring;
 And take me to Loch Largon.'
- 20 Now they have taken out his heart
 And stuck it on a spear,

Then took it to the House of Marr,
 And gave it to his dear.

- 21 But when she saw his bleeding heart
 She was like one distracted;
 She smote her breast, and wrung her
 hands,
 Crying, 'What now have I acted!'
- 22 'Sir James the Rose, now for thy sake
 O but my heart's a breaking!
 Curst be the day I did thee betray,
 Thou brave knight of Buleighen.'
- 23 Then up she rose, and forth she goes,
 All in that fatal hour,
 And bodily was born away,
 And never was seen more.
- 24 But where she went was never kend,
 And so, to end the matter,
 A traitor's end, you may depend,
 Can be expect'd no better.

THE BRAES O YARROW

First published in Minstrelsy of the Scottish Border, 1803, principally from E. A had been somewhat edited before it was communicated to Percy; the places were, however, indicated by commas. There is no basis for an identification of the story with any historical event. The facts must have occurred often enough, and there is a similar story in other ballads, as the Scandinavian 'Herr Helmer.' 'The Braes of Yarrow' ('Busk ye, busk ye, my bonny, bonny bride'), by William Hamilton of Bangour, was suggested by the present ballad.

'The Braes of Yarrow,' communicated to Percy by Dr William Robertson, Principal of Edinburgh.

- 1 'I DREAMED a dreary dream this night,
 That fills my heart wi sorrow;
 I dreamed I was pouing the heather
 green
 Upon the braes of Yarrow.
- 2 'O true-luve mine, stay still and dine,
 As ye ha done before, O;'

- 'O I'll be hame by hours nine,
And frae the braes of Yarrow.'
- 3 I dreamed a dreary dream this night,
That fills my heart wi sorrow;
I dreamed my luv came headless
hame,
O frae the braes of Yarrow!
- 4 'O true-luv mine, stay still and dine,
As ye ha done before, O;'
'O I'll be hame by hours nine,
And frae the braes of Yarrow.'
- 5 'O are ye going to hawke,' she says,
'As ye ha done before, O?'
Or are ye going to weild your brand,
Upon the braes of Yarrow?'
- 6 'O I am not going to hawke,' he says,
'As I have done before, O,
But for to meet your brother Jhon,
Upon the braes of Yarrow.'
- 7 As he gade down yon dowy den,
Sorrow went him before, O;
Nine well-wight men lay waiting him,
Upon the braes of Yarrow.
- 8 'I have your sister to my wife,
'Ye' think me an unmeet marrow;
But yet one foot will I never flee
Now frae the braes of Yarrow.'
- 9 'Than' four he killd and five did
wound,
That was an unmeet marrow!
'And he had weel nigh wan the day
Upon the braes of Yarrow.'
- 10 'Bot' a cowardly 'loon' came him behind,
Our Lady lend him sorrow!
And wi a rappier pierced his heart,
And laid him low on Yarrow.
- 11 'Now Douglas' to his sister's gane,
Wi meikle dale and sorrow:
'Gae to your luv, sister,' he says,
'He's sleeping sound on Yarrow.'
- 12 As she went down yon dowy den,
Sorrow went her before, O;
She saw her true-love lying slain
Upon the braes of Yarrow.

- 13 'She swoond thrice upon his breist
That was her dearest marrow;
Said, Ever alace and wae the day
Thou wentst frae me to Yarrow!'
- 14 She kist his mouth, she kaimed his hair,
As she had done before, O;
She 'wiped' the blood that trickled down
Upon the braes of Yarrow.
- 15 Her hair it was three quarters lang,
It hang baith side and yellow;
She tied it round 'her' white hause-bane,
'And tint her life on Yarrow.'

- 1 LATE at een, drinkin the wine,
Or early in a mornin,
The set a combat them between,
To fight it in the dawnin.
- 2 'O stay at hame, my noble lord!
O stay at hame, my marrow!
My cruel brother will you betray,
On the dowy houms o Yarrow.'
- 3 'O fare ye weel, my lady gaye!
O fare ye weel, my Sarah!
For I maun gae, tho I neer return
Frae the dowy banks o Yarrow.'
- 4 She kist his cheek, she kaimd his
hair,
As she had done before, O;
She belted on his noble brand,
An he's awa to Yarrow.
- 5 O he's gane up yon high, high hill —
I wat he gaed wi sorrow —
An in a den spied nine armd men,
I the dowy houms o Yarrow.
- 6 'O ir ye come to drink the wine,
As ye hae doon before, O?
Or ir ye come to wield the brand,
On the bonny banks o Yarrow?'

7 'I im no come to drink the wine,
As I hae doon before, O,
But I im come to wield the brand,
On the dowy houms o Yarrow.'

8 Four he hurt, an five he slew,
On the dowy houms o Yarrow,
Till that stubborn knight came him behind,
An ran his body thorow.

9 'Gae hame, gae hame, good-brother
John,
An tell your sister Sarah
To come an lift her noble lord,
Who's sleepin sound on Yarrow.'

10 'Yestreen I dreamd a dolefu dream;
I kend there wad be sorrow;
I dreamd I pu'd the heather green,
On the dowy banks o Yarrow.'

11 She gaed up yon high, high hill —
I wat she gaed wi sorrow —
An in a den spy'd nine dead men,
On the dowy houms o Yarrow.

12 She kissd his cheek, she kaimd his hair,
As oft she did before, O;
She drauk the red blood frae him ran,
On the dowy houms o Yarrow.

13 'O haud your tongue, my douchter dear,
For what needs a' this sorrow?
I'll wed you on a better lord
Than him you lost on Yarrow.'

14 'O haud your tongue, my father dear,
An dinna grieve your Sarah;
A better lord was never born
Than him I lost on Yarrow.

15 'Tak hame your ousen, tak hame your
kye,
For they hae bred our sorrow;
I wiss that they had a' gane mad
Whan they cam first to Yarrow.'

RARE WILLIE DROWNED IN YARROW, OR, THE WATER O GAMRIE

Willie is drowned in Yarrow according to the older (southern) tradition, A; also B, C. In the northern copies, D, E, F, with which G, H, agree, the scene is transferred to Gamrie, on the coast of the Moray Frith, where "there is no water that Willie could have been drowned in but the sea, on his way along the sands to the old kirk." In No. 216, a western variety of the same story, Willie is drowned in the Clyde.

'Willy's rare and Willy's fair,' Thomson's
Orpheus, Caledonius, II, 110, 1733.

1 'WILLY's rare, and Willy's fair,
And Willy's wondrous bony,
And Willy heght to marry me,
Gin eer he marryd ony.

2 'Yestreen I made my bed fu brade,
The night I'll make it narrow,
For a' the live-long winter's night
I lie twin'd of my marrow.

3 'O came you by yon water-side?
Pu'd you the rose or lilly?
Or came you by yon meadow green?
Or saw you my sweet Willy?'

4 She sought him east, she sought him
west,
She sought him brade and narrow;
Sine, in the clifing of a craig,
She found him drownd in Yarrow.

1 SHE sought him east, she sought him
west,
She sought him braid and narrow,
Till in the clintin of a craig
She found him drownd in Yarrow.

2 She's taen three links of her yellow
hair,
That hung down lang and yellow,
And she's tied it about sweet Willie's waist,
An drawn him out o Yarrow.

THE MOTHER'S MALISON, OR,
CLYDE'S WATER

The passage in A 10-16, in which the mother, pretending to be her daughter, repels the lover, and the daughter, who has dreamed that her lover had come and had been refused admittance, is told by her mother that this had actually happened, and sets off in pursuit of her lover, seems to have been adopted from No. 76. A very popular Italian ballad (Nigra, No. 23) has some of the traits of 'The Mother's Malison,' parts being exchanged and the girl drowned.

'Willie and May Margaret,' Jamieson's Popular Ballads, I, 135; from Mrs Brown's recitation, apparently in 1800.

- 1 'GIE corn to my horse, mither,
Gie meat unto my man,
For I maun gang to Margaret's bower
Before the nicht comes on.'
- 2 'O stay at hame now, my son Willie,
The wind blaws cald and sour;
The nicht will be baith mirk and late
Before ye reach her bower.'
- 3 'O tho the nicht were ever sae dark,
Or the wind blew never sae cald,
I will be in my Margaret's bower
Before twa hours be tald.'
- 4 'O gin ye gang to May Margaret,
Without the leave of me,
Clyde's water's wide and deep enough,
My malison drown thee!'
- 5 He mounted on his coal-black steed,
And fast he rade awa,
But ere he came to Clyde's water
Fu loud the wind did blaw.
- 6 As he rode oer yon hich, hich hill,
And down you dowie den,
There was a roar in Clyde's water
Wad feard a hunder men.
- 7 His heart was warm, his pride was up;
Sweet Willie kentna fear;
But yet his mither's malison
Ay sounded in his ear.
- 8 O he has swam through Clyde's water,
Tho it was wide and deep,
And he came to May Margaret's door,
When a' were fast asleep.
- 9 O he's gane round and round about,
And tirl'd at the pin;
But doors were steekd, and windows
barrd,
And nane wad let him in.
- 10 'O open the door to me, Margaret!
O open and lat me in!
For my boots are full o Clyde's water
And frozen to the brim.'
- 11 'I darena open the door to you,
Nor darena lat you in,

THE BROOM OF COWDEN- KNOWS

This ballad was widely diffused in Scotland. "It would be useless," says Motherwell, "to enumerate the titles of the different versions which are common among reciters." The earliest known copies are of the second half of the eighteenth century. There is an English "ditty" (not a traditional ballad) of a northern lass who got harm while milking her father's ewes, which was printed in the first half of the seventeenth century. This ditty is "to a pleasant Scotch tune called The broom of Cowden Knowes," and the burden is:

With, O the broome, the bonny broome,
The broome of Cowden Knowes!
Fain would I be in the North Countrey,
To milk my dadyes ewes.

The tune was remarkably popular, and the burden is found, variously modified, in connection with several songs.

There is very little story to the English ditty, far too little to have served as a basis for the Scottish ballad. On the other hand, the English author seems to have known only the burden of the Scottish ballad and to have built his very slight tale on that.

'Malfred og Sadelmand,' Kristensen, I, 258, No. 99, is an independent ballad, but has some of the traits of this: the maid, who is treated with great violence, asks the knight's name, as in two versions of 'The Broom of Cowdenknows'; he comes back to marry her, after she has borne twins.

Cowdenknowes is on the east bank of Leader, near Earlston, and some four or five miles from Melrose.

A

'The Laird of Knottington,' Percy Papers; communicated to Percy by R. Lambe, of Northam, August 17, 1768, and dated May, 1768.

- 1 THERE was a troop of merry gentlemen
Was riding atween twa knows,
And they heard the voice of a bonny lass,
In a bught milking her ewes.
- 2 There's ane o them lighted frae off his
steed,
And has ty'd him to a tree,
And he's gane away to yon ew-bught,
To hear what it might be.
- 3 'O pity me, fair maid,' he said,
'Take pity upon me;
'O pity me, and my milk-white steed
That's trembling at yon tree.'
- 4 'As for your steed, he shall not want
The best of corn and hay;
But as to you yoursel, kind sir,
I've naething for to say.'
- 5 He's taen her by the milk-white hand,
And by the green gown-sleeve,
And he as led her into the ew-bught,
Of her friends he speerd nae leave.
- 6 He as put his hand in his pocket,
And given her guineas three:
'If I dinna come back in half a year,
Then luke nae mair for me.'
- 7 'Now show to me the king's hie street,
Now show to me the way;
Now show to me the king's hie street,
And the fair water of Tay.'
- 8 She showd to him the king's hie street,
She showd to him the way;
She showd him the way that he was to go,
By the fair water of Tay.
- 9 When she came hame, her father said,
'Come, tell to me right plain;
I doubt you've met some in the way,
You have not been your lain.'
- 10 'The night it is baith mist and mirk,
You may gan out and see;
The night is mirk and misty too,
There's nae body been wi me.'
- 11 'There was a tod came to your flock,
The like I neer did see;
When he spake, he lifted his hat,
He had a bonny twinkling eee.'
- 12 When fifteen weeks were past and gane,
Full fifteen weeks and three,
Then she began to think it lang
For the man wi the twinkling eee.
- 13 It fell out on a certain day,
When she cawd out her father's ky,
There was a troop of gentlemen
Came merrily riding by.
- 14 'Weel may ye sigh and sob,' says ane,
'Weel may you sigh and see;
Weel may you sigh, and say, fair maid,
Wha's gotten this bairn wi thee?'
- 15 She turned her sel then quickly about,
And thinking meikle shame,
O no, kind sir, it is na sae,
For it has a dad at hame.'
- 16 'O hawd your tongue, my bonny lass,
Sae loud as I hear you lee!
For dinna you mind that summer night
I was in the bught wi thee?'
- 17 He lighted off his milk-white steed,
And set this fair maid on;
'Now caw out your ky, good father,' he
said,
'She'll neer caw them out again.'
- 18 'I am the laird of Knottington,
I've fifty plows and three;
I've gotten now the bonniest lass
That is in the hale country.'

b. Johnson's Museum, No. 110, p. 113.

1 It was on an evning sae saft and sae clear
A bonny lass was milking the kye,
And by came a troupe of gentlemen,
And rode the bonny lassie by.

2 Then one of them said unto her,
'Bonny lass, prythee shew me the way:
'O if I do sae, it may breed me wae,
For langer I dare nae stay.'

* * * * *

3 But dark and misty was the night
Before the bonny lass came hame:
'Now where hae you been, my ae doughter?
I am sure you was nae your lane.'

4 'O father, a tod has come oer your lamb,
A gentleman of high degree,
And ay whan he spake he lifted his hat,
And bonny, bonny blinkit his ee.'

5 Or eer six months were past and gane,
Six months but and other three,
The lassie begud for to fret and to frown,
And think lang for his blinkin ee.

6 'O wae be to my father's shepherd,
An ill death may he die!
He bigged the bughts sae far frae hame,
And trysted a gentleman to me!'

7 It fell upon another fair evening
The bonny lassie was milking her ky,
And by came the troop of gentlemen,
And rode the bonny lassie by.

8 Then one of them stopt, and said to her,
'Whae's aught that baby ye are wi?'
The lassie began for to blush, and think,
To a father as good as ye.

9 'O had your tongue, my bonny may,
Sae loud I hear you lie!
O dinnae you mind the misty night
I was in the bught with thee?'

10 Now he's come aff his milk-white steed,
And he has taen her hame:

'Now let your father bring hame the ky,
You neer mair shall ca them agen.

11 'I am a lord of castles and towers,
With fifty ploughs of land and three,
And I have gotten the bonniest lass
That is in this countrie.'

THE FALSE LOVER WON BACK

Two pretty stanzas in A (4, 5) seem not to belong to the story. The inconstant youth would have been only too glad to have the faithful maid look to other men, and gives her all liberty to do so. These two stanzas are first found in Herd's MSS., I, 53, and in Herd's Ancient and Modern Scottish Songs, 1776, II, 6, as follows:

False luvie, and hae ye played me this,
In the simmer, mid the flowers?
I sall repay ye back agen,
In the winter, mid the showers.

Bot again, dear luvie, and again, dear luvie,
Will ye not turn again?
As ye look to ither women,
Sall I to ither men.

'The Fause Lover,' Buchan's MSS., I, 114;
Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, I, 268.

1 A FAIR maid sat in her bower-door,
Wringing her lily hands,
And by it came a sprightly youth,
Fast tripping oer the strands.

2 'Where gang ye, young John,' she says,
'Sae early in the day?
It gars me think, by your fast trip,
Your journey's far away.'

3 He turnd about wi surly look,
And said, What's that to thee?
I'm gaen to see a lovely maid,
Mair fairer far than ye.

- 4 'Now hae ye playd me this, fause love,
In simmer, mid the flowers?
I shall repay ye back again,
In winter, mid the showers.
- 5 'But again, dear love, and again, dear love,
Will ye not turn again?
For as ye look to other women,
I shall to other men.'
- 6 'Make your choice of whom you please,
For I my choice will have;
I've chosen a maid more fair than thee,
I never will deceive.'
- 7 But she's kilt up her claitthing fine,
And after him gaed she;
But aye he said, Ye'll turn again,
Nae farder gae wi me.
- 8 'But again, dear love, and again, dear love,
Will ye never love me again?
Alas for loving you sae well,
And you nae me again!'
- 9 The first an town that they came till,
He bought her brooch and ring;
And aye he bade her turn again,
And gang nae farder wi him.
- 10 'But again, dear love, and again, dear love,
Will ye never love me again?
Alas for loving you sae well,
And you nae me again!'
- 11 The next an town that they came till,
He bought her muff and gloves;
But aye he bade her turn again,
And choose some other loves.
- 12 'But again, dear love, and again, dear love,
Will ye never love me again?
Alas for loving you sae well,
And you nae me again!'
- 13 The next an town that they came till,
His heart it grew mair fain,
And he was as deep in love wi her
As she was ower again.

- 14 The next an town that they came till,
He bought her wedding gown,
And made her lady of ha's and bowers,
Into sweet Berwick town.

'The place where my love Johnny dwells,' Christie's Traditional Ballad Airs, I, 144; from the recitation of a woman born in Buchan.

- 1 THE sun shines high on yonder hill,
And low on yonder town;
In the place where my love Johnny dwells,
The sun gaes never down
- 2 'O when will ye be back, bonny lad,
O when will ye be hame?'
'When heather-hills are nine times
brunt,
And a' grown green again.'
- 3 'O that's ower lang awa, bonny lad,
O that's ower lang frae hame;
For I'll be dead and in my grave
Ere ye come back again.'
- 4 He put his foot into the stirrup
And said he maun go ride,
But she kilted up her green claitthing
And said she woudna bide.
- 5 The firsten town that they came to,
He bought her hose and sheen,
And bade her rue and return again,
And gang nae farther wi him.
- 6 'Ye likena me at a', bonny lad,
Ye likena me at a';'
'It's sair for you likes me sae weel
And me nae you at a'.'
- 7 The nexten town that they came to,
He bought her a braw new gown,
And bade her rue and return again,
And gang nae farther wi him.
- 8 The nexten town that they came to,
He bought her a wedding ring,
And bade her dry her rosy cheeks,
And he would tak her wi him.

THE GARDENER

The Gardener is in Five Excellent New Songs, Edinburgh, Printed and sold by William Forrest, 1766; but the copy is considerably corrupted and is not given here (see Child, v, 258). A 7 is found substantially in the preceding ballad, and perhaps belonged originally to neither.

A

Kinloch MSS., v, 47, in the handwriting of James Beattie; from the recitation of his aunt, Miss Elizabeth Beattie.

- 1 THE gardener stands in his bower-door,
With a primrose in his hand,
And by there came a leal maiden,
As jimp's a willow wand.
And by, etc.

- 2 'O lady, can you fancy me,
For to be my bride,
You'll get a' the flowers in my garden,
To be to you a weed.

- 3 'The lily white shall be your smock;
Becomes your body neat;
And your head shall be deckd with jelly-flower,
And the primrose in your breast.

- 4 'Your gown shall be o the sweet-william,
Your coat o camovine,
And your apron o the sallads neat,
That taste baith sweet and fine.

- 5 'Your stockings shall be o the broad kail-blade,
That is baith broad and long;
And narrow, narrow at the coot,
And broad, broad at the brawn.

- 6 'Your gloves shall be the marygold,
All glittering to your hand,

Well spread oer wi the blue blaewort,
That grows in corn-land.'

- 7 'O fare you well, young man,' she says,
'Farewell, and I bid adieu;
Since you've provided a weed for me,
Among the summer flowers,
Then I'll provide another for you,
Among the winter showers.

- 8 'The new-fallen snow to be your smock;
Becomes your body neat;
And your head shall be deckd with the eastern wind,
And the cold rain on your breast.'

THE BONNY LASS OF ANGLESEY

There is a resemblance, remarkable as far as it goes, to the Scandinavian ballad of 'Little Kirstin's Dance' (Grundtvig, No. 263). In the Danish ballad (A), a king's son, to induce Little Kirstin to dance before him, promises a succession of gifts, none of which avail until he plights his honor and troth. The remainder of the story is like the conclusion of 'Gil Brenton' (No. 5).

A

'The Bonny Lass of Anglesey,' Herd's MSS., i, 148; Herd's Ancient and Modern Scottish Songs, 1776, ii, 231.

- 1 OUR king he has a secret to tell,
And ay well keepit it must be:
The English lords are coming down
To dance and win the victory.

- 2 Our king has cry'd a noble cry,
And ay well keepit it must be:
Gar saddle ye, and bring to me
The bonny lass of Anglesey.'

- 3 Up she starts, as white as the milk,
Between him and his company:
'What is the thing I hae to ask,
If I could win the victory?'

- 4 'Fifteen ploughs but and a mill
I gie thee till the day thou die,
And the fairest knight in a' my court
To chuse thy husband for to be.'

5 She's taen the fifteen lord[s] by the
hand,
Saying, 'Will ye come dance with
me?'

But on the morn at ten o'clock
They gave it oer most shamefully.

6 Up then rais the fifteenth lord —
I wat an angry man was he —
Laid by frae him his belt and sword,
And to the floor gaed manfully.

7 He said, 'My feet shall be my dead
Before she win the victory;'
But before 't was ten o'clock at night
He gaed it oer as shamefully.

'The Bonny Lass o Englessie's Dance,' Buchanan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, II, 63.

1 WORD has gane thro a' this land,
And O well noticed it maun be!
The English lords are coming down
To dance and gain the victorie.

2 The king has made a noble cry,
And well attended it maun be:
'Come saddle ye, and bring to me
The bonny lass o Englessie.'

3 She started up, a' dress'd in white,
Between him and his companie;
Said, What will ye gie, my royal liege,
If I will dance this dance for thee?

4 'Five good ploughs but and a mill
I'll give you till the day ye die;
The bravest knight in all my court,
I'll give, your husband for to be.'

5 She's taen the first lord by the hand,
Says, 'Ye'll rise up and dance wi me;'
But she made a' these lords fifeteen
To gie it up right shamefullie.

6 Then out it speaks a younger lord,
Says, 'Fye for shame! how can this
be?'
He loosd his brand frae aff his side,
Likewise his buckler frae his knee.

7 He sware his feet should be his dead
Before he lost the victorie;
He danc'd full fast, but tired at last,
And gae it up as shamefullie.

KATHARINE JAFFRAY

The ballad was first published by Sir Walter Scott, under the title 'The Laird of Lamington,' in the first edition of the Minstrelsy, 1802, I, 216. This copy was fashioned by the editor from A and B. Scott's later copy (Minstrelsy, 1803, I, 238; 1833, III, 122) is chiefly made up from A, B, and C. 'Lochinvar,' in the fifth canto of Marmion, was modelled on 'Katharine Jaffray.' The lover is called Lochinvar in several versions of the ballad. Another ballad, much later and inferior, in which a lover carries off a bride on her wedding-day is No. 254.

A

'Katharine Jaffray.' a. Herd's MSS., I, 61, II, 56. b. The Aldine edition of Burns's Poems, by Sir Harris Nicolas, 1839, III, 181, from Burns's autograph.

1 THERE livd a lass in yonder dale,
And doun in yonder glen, O
And Kathrine Jaffray was her name,
Well known by many men. O

2 Out came the Laird of Lauderdale,
Out frae the South Countrie,
All for to court this pretty maid,
Her bridegroom for to be.

3 He has told her father and mither baith,
And a' the rest o her kin,
And has told the lass hersell,
And her consent has wiin.

4 Then came the Laird of Lochinton,
Out frae the English border,
All for to court this pretty maid,
Well mounted in good order.

5 He's told her father and mither baith,
As I hear sindry say,
But he has nae told the lass her sell,
Till on her wedding day.

6 When day was set, and friends were
met,
And married to be,
Lord Lauderdale came to the place,
The bridal for to see.

7. 'O are you came for sport, young man?
Or are you come for play?

Or are you come for a sight o our bride,
Just on her wedding day ?'

8 'I 'm nouthar come for sport,' he says,
'Nor am I come for play;
But if I had one sight o your bride,
I 'll mount and ride away.'

9 There was a glass of the red wine
Filld up them atween,
And ay she drank to Lauderdale,
Wha her true-love had been.

10 Then he took her by the milk-white
hand,
And by the grass-green sleeve,
And he mounted her high behind him
there,
At the bridegroom he askt nae leive.

11 Then the blude run down by the Cowden Banks,
And down by Cowden Braes,
And ay she gard the trumpet sound,
'O this is foul, foul play !'

12 Now a' ye-that in England are,
Or are in England born,
Come nere to Scotland to court a lass,
Or else ye 'l get the scorn.

13 They haik ye up and settle ye by,
Till on your wedding day,
And gie ye frogs instead o fish,
And play ye foul, foul play.

B

'The Laird of Laminton,' Herd's MSS., I,
164, II, 58.

1 THE gallant laird of Lamington
Cam frae the North Countree
To court a gallant gay lady,
And wi presents entered he.

2 He neither stood for gould nor gear —
For she was a well-fared may —
And whan he got her friends' consent
He set the wedding-day.

3 She 's sent unto her first fere love,
Gin he would come to see,
And he has sent word back again
Weel answered should she be.

4 He has sent a messenger
Right quietly throo the land,
Wi mony armed men,
To be at his command.

5 The bridegroom looked out at a high
window,
Beheld baith dool and doon,
And there he spied her first fere love,
Come riding to the toun.

6 She scoffed and she scorned him,
Upo the wedding-day,
And said it had been the Fairy Court
That he had seen in array.

7 But as he sat at yon table-head,
Amo yon gentlemen,
And he began to speak some words
That na ane there could ken.

8 'There is a lass into this town —
She is a weel-far'd may —
She is another man's bride today,
But she 'll play him foul play.'

9 Up did start the bonny bridegroom,
His hat into his hand,

10 'O cam you here, young man, to fight ?
Or came you here to flee ?
Or cam you here to drink good wine,
And be good company ?'

11 They filled a cup o good red wine,
Drunk out between them twa:
'For one dance wi your bonny bride,
I shall gae hame my wa.'

12 He 's taen her by the milk-white hand,
And by the grass-green sleeve,
He 's mounted her high behind himself,
At her kin 's speired nae leave.

13 Now
And swords flew in the skies,
And droop and drowsie was the blood
Ran our yon lilly braes.

14 The blood ran our the lilly bank,
And our the lilly brae,
And sighing said the bonny bride,
'A, wae 's me for foul play !'

- 15 'My blessing on your heart, sweet thing,
Wae to your wilfu will !
So many a gallant gentleman's blood
This day as ye've garred spill.
- 16 'But a' you that is norland men,
If you be norland born,
Come never south to wed a bryde,
For they'll play you the scorn.
- 17 'They will play you the scorn
Upo your wedding-day,
And gie you frogs instead o fish,
And do you foul, foul play.'

'Katherine Jaffarie,' Scotch Ballads, Materials for Border Minstrelsy, No. 30, Abbotsford. Sent Scott by William Laidlaw, in September, 1802; obtained by him from Jean Scott.

- 1 THERE leeft a may, an a weel-far'd may,
High, high up in yon glen; O
Her name was Katarine Janfarie,
She was courtit by monie men. O
- 2 Up then cam Lord Lauderdale,
Up thrae the Lawland border,
And he has come to court this may,
A' mountit in gude order.
- 3 He's telld her father, he's telld her mother,
An a' the lave o her kin,
An he has telld the bonnie lass hersel,
An has her favour win.
- 4 Out then cam Lord Faughanwood,
Out frae the English border,
An for to court this well-far'd may,
A' mountit in gude order.
- 5 He telld her father, he telld her mother,
An a' the rest o her kin,
But he neer telld the bonnie lass herself
Till on her waddin-een.
- 6 When they war a' at denner set,
Drinkin the bluid-red wine,
'T was up then cam Lord Lauderdale,
The bridegroom soud hae been.
- 7 Up then spak Lord Faughanwood,
An he spak very slee:
'O are ye come for sport?' he says,
'Or are ye come for play?
Or are ye come for a kiss o our bride,
An the morn her waddin-day?'
- 8 'O I'm no come for ought,' he says,
'But for some sport or play;
An ae word o yer bonnie bride,
Than I'll horse an ride away.'
- 9 She filld a cup o the gude red wine,
She filld it to the ee:
'Here's a health to you, Lord Lauderdale,
An a' your companie.'
- 10 She filld a cup o the gude red wine,
She filld it to the brim:
'Here's a health to you, Lord Lauderdale,
My bridegroom should hae been.'
- 11 He's taen her by the milk-white hand,
And by the gars-green sleeve,
An he has mountit her behind him,
O the bridegroom spierd nae leave.
- 12 'It '[s] now take yer bride, Lord
Faughanwood,
Now take her an ye may;
But if ye take yer bride again
We will ca it foul play.'
- 13 There war four a twenty bonnie boys,
A' clad i the simple grey;
They said the wad take their bride again,
By the strang hand an the may.
- 14 Some o them were fu willin men,
But they war na willin a';
Sae four an twentie ladies gay
Bade them ride on their way.
- 15 The bluid ran down by the Cadan bank,
An in by the Cadan brae,
An ther the gard the piper play
It was a' for foul, foul play.
- 16 A' ye lords in fair England
That live by the English border,
Gang never to Scotland to seek a wife,
Or than ye'll get the scorn.

17 They 'll keep ye up i temper guid
Untill yer wadin-day,
They 'll thraw ye frogs instead o fish,
An steal your bride away.

BONNY BABY LIVINGSTON

A is the only version of this ballad that ends well. The others give the story a tragical catastrophe. The kidnapping of women for a compulsory marriage was a practice which prevailed for hundreds of years, and down to a late date, and, of course, not only in Great Britain. Other Scottish ballads celebrating similar abductions are Nos. 223, 224, 225.

A

'Bonny Baby Livingston.' a. Jamieson-Brown MS., Appendix, p. xii, sent by Mrs Brown to Jamieson, in a letter dated September 15, 1800. b. Jamieson's Popular Ballads, II, 135, as taken from Mrs Brown's recitation a short time before a was written down.

- 1 O BONNY Baby Livingston
Went forth to view the hay,
And by it came him Glenlion,
Sta bonny Baby away.
- 2 O first he 's taen her silken coat,
And neest her satten gown,
Syne rowd her in a tartan plaid,
And hapd her round and rown.
- 3 He has set her upon his steed
And roundly rode away,
And neer loot her look back again
The live-long summer's day.
- 4 He 's carried her oer hills and muirs
Till they came to a Highland glen,
And there he 's met his brother John,
With twenty armed men.
- 5 O there were cows, and there were ewes,
And lasses milking there,
But Baby neer anse lookd about,
Her heart was filld wi care.
- 6 Glenlion took her in his arms,
And kissd her, cheek and chin;
Says, I 'd gie a' these cows and ewes
But ae kind look to win.

- 7 'O ae kind look ye neer shall get,
Nor win a smile frae me,
Unless to me you 'll favour shew,
And take me to Dundee.'
- 8 'Dundee, Baby? Dundee, Baby?
Dundee you neer shall see
Till I 've carried you to Glenlion
And have my bride made thee.
- 9 'We'll stay a while at Auchingour,
And get sweet milk and cheese,
And syne we 'll gang to Glenlion,
And there live at our ease.'
- 10 'I winna stay at Auchingour,
Nor eat sweet milk and cheese,
Nor go with thee to Glenlion,
For there I 'll neer find ease.'
- 11 Than out it spake his brother John,
'O were I in your place,
I 'd take that lady hame again,
For a' her bonny face.
- 12 'Commend me to the lass that 's kind,
Tho na so gently born;
And, gin her heart I coudna gain,
'To take her hand I 'd scorn.'
- 13 'O had your tongue now, John,' he
says,
'You wis na what you say;
For I 've lood that bonny face
This twelve month and a day.
- 14 'And tho I 've lood her lang and sair
A smile I neer coud win;
Yet what I 've got anse in my power
To keep I think nae sin.'
- 15 When they came to Glenlion castle,
They lighted at the yate,
And out it came his sisters three,
Wha did them kindly greet.
- 16 O they 've taen Baby by the hands
And led her oer the green,
And ilka lady spake a word,
But bonny Baby spake nane.
- 17 Then out it spake her bonny Jean,
The youngest o the three,
'O lady, dinna look sae sad,
But tell your grief to me.'

- 18 'O wherefore should I tell my grief,
Since lax I canna find?
I'm stown frae a' my kin and friends,
And my love I left behind.
- 19 'But had I paper, pen, and ink,
Before that it were day,
I yet might get a letter sent
In time to Johny Hay.'
- 20 O she's got paper, pen, and ink,
And candle that she might see,
And she has written a broad letter
To Johny at Dundee.
- 21 And she has gotten a bonny boy,
That was baith swift and strang,
Wi philabeg and bonnet blue,
Her errand for to gang.
- 22 'O boy, gin ye'd my blessing win
And help me in my need,
Run wi this letter to my love,
And bid him come wi speed.
- 23 'And here's a chain of good red gowd,
And gowdn guineas three,
And when you've well your errand
done,
You'll get them for your fee.'
- 24 The boy he ran oer hill and dale,
Fast as a bird coud flee,
And eer the sun was twa hours height
The boy was at Dundee.
- 25 And when he came to Johny's door
He knocked loud and sair;
Then Johny to the window came,
And loudly cry'd, 'Wha's there?'
- 26 'O here's a letter I have brought,
Which ye maun quickly read,
And, gin ye woud your lady save,
Gang back wi me wi speed.'
- 27 O when he had the letter read,
An angry man was he;
He says, Glenlion, thou shalt rue
This deed of villany!
- 28 'O saddle to me the black, the black,
O saddle to me the brown,
O saddle to me the swiftest steed
That eer rade frae the town.
- 29 'And arm ye well, my merry men a',
And follow me to the glen,
For I vow I'll neither eat nor sleep
Till I get my love again.'
- 30 He's mounted on a milk-white steed,
The boy upon a gray,
And they got to Glenlion's castle
About the close of day.
- 31 As Baby at her window stood,
The west wind saft did bla;
She heard her Johny's well-kent voice
Beneath the castle wa.
- 32 'O Baby, haste, the window jump!
I'll kep you in my arm;
My merry men a' are at the yate,
To rescue you frae harm.'
- 33 She to the window fixt her sheets
And slipped safely down,
And Johny catchd her in his arms,
Neer loot her touch the ground.
- 34 When mounted on her Johny's horse,
Fou blithely did she say,
'Glenlion, you hae lost your bride!
She's aff wi Johny Hay.'
- 35 Glenlion and his brother John
Were birling in the ha,
When they heard Johny's bridle ring,
As first he rade awa.
- 36 'Rise, Jock, gang out and meet the priest,
I hear his bridle ring;
My Baby now shall be my wife
Before the laverocks sing.'
- 37 'O brother, this is not the priest;
I fear he'll come oer late;
For armed men with shining brands
Stand at the castle-yate.'
- 38 'Haste Donald, Duncan, Dugald, Hugh!
Haste, take your sword and spier!
We'll gar these traytors rue the hour
That eer they ventured here.'
- 39 The Highland men drew their claymores,
And gae a warlike shout,
But Johny's merry men kept the yate,
Nae ane durst venture out.

- 40 The lovers rade the live-lang night,
And safe gat on their way,
And bonny Baby Livingston
Has gotten Johny Hay.
- 41 'Awa, Glenlion ! fy for shame !
Gae hide ye in some den !
You've lett'n your bride be stown frae
you,
For a' your armed men.'

Motherwell's MS., p. 875, from the recitation of Agnes Lyle of Kilbarchan; 'Barbara Livingston,' Motherwell's Minstrelsy, p. 304.

- 1 FOUR-AND-TWENTY ladies fair
Was playing at the ba,
And out cam Barbra Livingston,
The flower amang them a'.
- 2 Out cam Barbra Livingston,
The flower amang them a';
The lusty laird of Linlyon
Has stown her clean awa.
- 3 'The Hielands is no for me, kind sir,
The Hielands is no for me;
But, if you wud my favour win,
You'll tak me to Dundee.'
- 4 'The Hielands'll be for thee, my dear,
The Hielands will be for thee;
To the lusty laird o Linlyon
A-married ye shall be.'
- 5 When they came to Linlyon's yetts,
And lichted on the green,
Every ane spak Earse to her,
The tears cam trinkling down.
- 6 When they went to bed at nicht,
To Linlyon she did say,
'Och and alace, a weary nicht !
Oh, but it's lang till day !'
- 7 'Your father's steed in my stable,
He's eating corn and hay,
And you're lying in my twa arms;
What need you long for day ?'
- 8 'If I had paper, pen, and ink,
And candle for to see,
I wud write a lang letter
To my love in Dundee.'

- 9 They brocht her paper, pen, and ink,
And candle for to see,
And she did write a lang letter
To her love in Dundee.

- 10 When he cam to Linlyon's yetts,
And lichtit on the green,
But lang or he wan up the stair
His love was dead and gane.

- 11 'Woe be to thee, Linlyon,
An ill death may thou die !
Thou might hae taen anither woman,
And let my lady be.'

EPPIE MORRIE

'This ballad,' says Maidment, "is probably much more than a century old, though the circumstances which have given rise to it were unfortunately too common to preclude the possibility of its being of a later date." He does not tell us where the ballad came from; but a copy has been found among Sharpe's papers.

a. 'Eppie Morrie,' Maidment's North Coun-trie Garland, p. 40, 18. b. MS. of C. K.
Sharpe; also a copy of the same pieces, North Country Ballads, in Miscellanea Curiosa, Abbotsford Library.

- 1 FOUR-AND-TWENTY Highland men
Came a' from Carrie side
To steal awa Eppie Morrie,
Cause she would not be a bride.
- 2 Ont it's came her mother,
It was a moonlight night,
She could not see her daughter,
Their swords they shin'd so bright.
- 3 'Hand far awa frae me, mother,
Hand far awa frae me;
There's not a man in a' Strathdon
Shall wedded be with me.'
- 4 They have taken Eppie Morrie,
And horse back bound her on,
And then awa to the minister,
As fast as horse could gang.
- 5 He's taken out a pistol,
And set it to the minister's breast:

'Marry me, marry me, minister,
Or else I'll be your priest.'

6 'Haud far awa frae me, good sir,
Haud far awa frae me;
For there's not a man in all Strathdon
That shall married be with me.'

7 'Haud far awa frae me, Willie,
Haud far awa frae me;
For I darna avow to marry you,
Except she's as willing as ye.'

8 They have taken Eppie Morrie,
Since better could nae be,
And they're awa to Carrie side,
As fast as horse could flee.

9 When mass was sung, and bells were rung,
And all were bound for bed,
Then Willie an Eppie Morrie
In one bed they were laid.

10 'Haud far awa frae me, Willie,
Haud far awa frae me;
Before I'll lose my maidenhead,
I'll try my strength with thee.'

11 She took the cap from off her head
And threw it to the way;
Said, Ere I lose my maidenhead,
I'll fight with you till day.

12 Then early in the morning,
Before her clothes were on,
In came the maiden of Scalletter,
Gown and shirt alone.

13 'Get up, get up, young woman,
And drink the wine wi me;
'You might have called me maiden,
I'm sure as leal as thee.'

14 'Wally fa you, Willie,
That ye could nae prove a man
And taen the lassie's maidenhead!
She would have hired your han.'

15 'Haud far awa frae me, lady,
Haud far awa frae me;
There's not a man in a' Strathdon
The day shall wed wi me.'

16 Soon in there came Belbordlane,
With a pistol on every side:

'Come awa hame, Eppie Morrie,
And there you'll be my bride.'

17 'Go get to me a horse, Willie,
And get it like a man,
And send me back to my mother
A maiden as I cam.

18 'The sun shines oer the westlin hills;
By the light lamp of the moon,
Just saddle your horse, young John Forsyth,
And whistle, and I'll come soon.'

THE LADY OF ARNGOSK

The subject of this ballad is the carrying off of Miss Margaret Gibb by a Mr Graham about 1736. Full particulars are given in a letter from a daughter of the lady's waiting-maid to Sharpe, printed by Child, iv, 241 ff.

Sharpe's Ballad Book, 1823, p. 99.

1 THE Highlandmen hae a' come down,
They've a' come down almost,
They've stowen away the bonny lass,
The Lady of Arngosk.

2 They hae put on her petticoat,
Likewise her silken gown;
The Highland man he drew his sword,
Said, Follow me ye's come.

3 Behind her back they've tied her hands,
An then they set her on;
'I winna gang wi you,' she said,
'Nor ony Highland loon.'

ROB ROY

The hero of this ballad was the youngest of the five sons of the Rob Roy who has been immortalized by Sir Walter Scott, and was known as Robert Oig, i. e. 'young,' or 'junior.' In 1730, with the aid of his brothers James and Duncan, he carried off Jean Key, a young widow of means, whom he constrained to marry him. Rob Oig was apprehended, and was executed in 1754. The ballad adheres to fact rather closely.

The Old Lady's Collection, MS., No. 9; north of Scotland; copied in Skene's MS., p. 41, with a few slight changes.

- 1 ROB ROY, frae the high Highlands,
Came to the Lawlan border;
It was to steel a lady away,
To keep his Highland house in order.
- 2 As he came in by White House,
He sent nae ane before him;
Or she wad hae secured the house,
For she did ay abhor him.
- 3 Twenty men serundad the house, an twenty they went in,
They found her wi her mither;
Wi sighs an cries an watery eyes
They parted fra each other.
- 4 'O will ye be my dear?' he says,
'Or will ye be my bonnie?
O will ye be my wedded wife?
I lee you best of ony.'
- 5 'I winna be your dear,' [she says,]
'Nor will I be your honnie,
Nor will I be your wedded wife;
Ye lee me for my money.'
- 6 by the way,
This lady aftimes fainted;
Says, Woe be to my cursed gold,
This road to me has invented!
- 7 He gave her no time for to dress
Like ladies when they're ridin,
But set her on hie horseback,
Himsell beside her.
- 8 Whan they came by Black House,
And at Stirling tarried,
There he bought her coat an gown,
But she would not be married.
- 9 Four men held her to the priest,
An four they did her bed,
Wi sighs an cries an watery eyes
Whan she by him was laid.
- 10 'Be content, [be content,]
Be content wi me, lady;

Now ye are my wedded wife
Untill the day ye die, lady.

- 11 'My father was a Highlan laird,
McGrigor was his name, [lady];
A' the country roun about
They dreadit his great fame, lady.
- 12 'He kept a hedge about his land,
A prickie for his foes, [lady,]
Every ane that did him wrang,
He took them by the nose, lady.
- 13 'My father delights in nout and goats,
[An] me in horse and sheep, lady;
You an twenty thousan pound
Makes me a man complete, lady.
- 14 'Y'er welcome to this Highlan lan,
It is my native plain, lady;
Think nae mair of gauin back,
But tak it for your hame, lady.
- 15 'I'm gauin, [I'm ganin,]
I'm gauin to France, lady;
Whan I come back
I'll learn ye a dance, lady.
- 16 'Set your foot, [set your foot,]
Set your foot to mine, lady;
Think nae mair of gauin back,
But tak it for your hame, lady.'

B

'Rob Roy,' Kinloch MSS., I, 343.

- 1 ROB ROY frae the Hielands cam
Unto the Lawland border,
And he has stown a ladie fair,
To haud his house in order.
- 2 He gwarded the house round about,
Himsel went in and found her out,
She hung close by her mither;
Wi dolefu cries and watery eyes
They parted frae each ither.
- 3 'Gang wi me, my dear,' he says,
'Gang and be my honey;
Gang and be my wedded wife,
I loe ye best o onie.'
- 4 'I winna gang wi yon,' she says,
'I winna be your honey;

I winna be your wedded wife;
Ye loe me for my money.'

5 He gied na her na time to dress
As ladies whan they're brides,
But hurried her awa wi speed,
And rowd her in his plaids.

6 He gat her up upon a horse,
Himself lap on ahind her;
And they're awa to the Hieland hills;
Her friends they canna find her.

7 As they gaed oore the Hieland hills,
This lady aften fainted,
Saying, Wae be to my cursed gowd,
This road to me invented!

8 As they gaed oore the Hieland hills,
And at Buchanan tarried,
He bought to her baith cloak and gown,
Yet she wadna be married.

9 Six held her up afore the priest,
Four laid her in a bed, O;
Maist mournfully she wept and cried
Whan she bye him was laid, O.

10 'O be content, be content,
Be content to stay, ladie;
For now ye are my wedded wife
Unto your dying day, ladie.

11 'Rob Roy was my father calld,
M'Gregor was his name, ladie;
And in a' the country whare he dwalt
He exceeded ae in fame, ladie.

12 'He was a hedge unto his friends,
A heckle to his faes, ladie;
And ilka ane that did him wrang,
He beat him on the neis, ladie.

13 'I'm as bold, I am as bold
As my father was afore, ladie;
Ilka ane that does me wrang
Sall feel my gude claymore, ladie.

14 'There neer was frae Lochlomond west
That eer I did him fear, ladie;
For, if his person did escape,
I seizd upon his gear, ladie.

15 'My father delights in horse and kye,
In sheep and goats and a', ladie,

And thee wi me and thirty merks
Will mak me a man fu braw, ladie.

16 'I hae been in foreign lands,
And servd the king o France, ladie;
We will get the bagpipes,
And we'll hae a dance, ladie.'

LIZIE LINDSAY

In his preface to B, Kinloch remarks that the ballad is very popular in the North, "and few milk-maids in that quarter but can chaunt it, to a very pleasing tune. Lizzie Lindsay," he adds, "according to the tradition of Mearns-shire, is said to have been a daughter of Lindsay of Edzell; but I have searched in vain for genealogical confirmation of the tradition."

Jamieson's Popular Ballads, 1806, II, 149, "transmitted to the editor by Professor Scott of Aberdeen, as it was taken down from the recitation of an old woman," but "corrected" from Jamieson's recollection in two or three passages.

* * * * *

1 Out it spake Lizee Linzee,
The tear blinket in her ee;
How can I leave father and mother,
Along with young Donald to gae!

2 Out spoke Lizee's young handmaid,
A bonny young lassie was she;
Said, Were I heress to a kingdom,
Along with young Donald I'd ga-

3 'O say ye so to me, Nelly?
O say ye so to me?
Must I leave Edinburgh city,
To the high Highland to gae?'

4 Out spoke Lizzie's own mother,
A good old lady was she;
If you speak such a word to my dochter,
I'll gar hang [you] hi.

5 'Keep well your dochter from me, madam.
Keep well your dochter fa me;

For I care as little for your dochter
As ye can care for me.'

6 The road grew wetty and dubby,
And Lizee began to think lang;
Said, I wish had staid with my mother,
And nae wi young Donald had gane.

7 'You 'r welcome hame, Sir Donald,
You 'r thrice welcome to me;
You 'r welcome hame, Sir Donald,
And your young lady you wi.'

8
'Ye call na me Sir Donald,
But ca me Donald your son.'

9 'Rise up, Lizee Linzee,
Yon [have] lain too long in the day;
Ye might have helped my mother
To milch her goats and her kie.'

10 Out it spake Lizee Linzee,
The tear blinket in her eye;
'The ladys of Edinburgh city,
They neither milch goats nor kie.'

B

'Donald of the Isles,' Kinloch MSS., I, 237,
from Miss Catherine Beattie, Mearnsshire.
Aytoun's Ballads of Scotland, 1859, I, 277.

1 It's of a young lord o the Hielands,
A bonnie braw castle had he,
And he says to his lady mither,
'My boon ye will grant to me:
Sall I gae to Edinbruch city,
And fesh hame a lady wi me?'

2 'Ye may gae to Edinbruch city,
And fesh hame a lady wi thee,
But see that ye bring her but flattrie,
And court her in grit povertie.'

3 'My coat, mither, sall be o the plaiden,
A tartan kilt oure my knee,
Wi hosens and brogues and the bonnet;
I'll court her wi nae flattrie.'

4 Whan he cam to Edinbruch city,
He playd at the ring and the ba,
And saw monie a bonnie young ladie,
But Lizie Lindsay was first o them a'.

5 Syne, dressed in his Hieland grey plaiden,
His bonnet abune his ee-bree,
He called on fair Lizie Lindsay;
Says, Lizie, will ye fancy me?

6 'And gae to the Hielands, my lassie,
And gae, gae wi me?
O gae to the Hielands, Lizie Lindsay,
I'll feed ye on curds and green whey.

7 'And ye 'se get a bed o green bracken,
My plaidie will hap thee and me;
Ye 'se lie in my arms, bonnie Lizie,
If ye 'll gae to the Hielands wi me.'

8 'O how can I gae to the Hielands,
Or how can I gae wi thee,
Whan I dinna ken whare I 'm gaing,
Nor wha I hae to gae wi?'

9 'My father, he is an auld shepherd,
My mither, she is an auld dey;
My name it is Donald Macdonald,
My name I 'll never deny.'

10 'O Donald, I'll gie ye five guineas
To sit ae hour in my room,
Till I tak aff your ruddy picture;
Whan I hae 't, I'll never think lang.'

11 'I dinna care for your five guineas;
It's ye that's the jewel to me;
I've plenty o kye in the Hielands,
To feed ye wi curds and green whey.

12 'And ye 'se get a bonnie blue plaidie,
Wi red and green strips thro it a';
And I'll be the lord o your dwalling,
And that's the best picture ava.

13 'And I am laird o a' my possessions;
The king canna boast o na mair;
And ye 'se hae my true heart in keeping,
There'll be na ither een hae a share.

14 'Sae gae to the Hielands, my lassie,
O gae awa happy wi me;
O gae to the Hielands, Lizie Lindsay,
And hird the wee lammies wi me.'

15 'O how can I gae wi a stranger, Oure hills and oure glens frae my
hame?'
'I tell ye I am Donald Macdonald;
I'll ever be proud o my name.'

- 16 Doun cam Lizie Liindsay's ain father,
A knight o a noble degree;
Says, If ye do steal my dear daughter,
It's hangit ye quickly sall be.
- 17 On his heel he turnd round wi a bouncie,
And a licht lauch he did gie:
'There's nae law in Edinbruch city
This day that can dare to hang me.'
- 18 Then up bespak Lizie's best woman,
And a bonnie young lass was she;
'Had I but a mark in my pouchie,
It's Donald that I wad gae wi.'
- 19 'O Helen, wad ye leave your coffer,
And a' your silk kirtles sae braw.
And gang wi a bare-houghd puir laddie,
And leave father, mither, and a'?
- 20 'But I think he's a witch or a war-
lock,
Or something o that fell degree,
For I'll gae awa wi young Donald,
Whatever my fortune may be.'
- 21 Then Lizie laid down her silk mantle,
And put on her waiting-maid's gown,
And aff and awa to the Hiellands
She's gane wi this young shepherd loun.
- 22 Thro glens and oure mountains they wanderd,
Till Lizie had scantlie a shoe;
'Alas and ohone!' says fair Lizie,
'Sad was the first day I saw you!
I wish I war in Edinbruch city;
Fu sair, sair this pastime I rue.'
- 23 'O haud your tongue now, bonnie Lizie,
For yonder's the shieling, my hame;
And there's my guid auld honest mither,
That's coming to meet ye her lane.'
- 24 'O ye're welcome, ye're welcome, Sir
Donald,
Ye're welcome hame to your ain.'
'O ca me na young Sir Donald,
But ca me Donald my son;
And this they hae spoken in Erse,
That Lizie nicht not understand.
- 25 The day being weetie and daggie,
They lay till 't was lang o the day:

'Win up, win up, bonnie Lizie,
And help at the milking the kye.'

- 26 O slowly raise up Lizie Lindsay,
The saut tear blindit her ee:
'O, war I in Edinbruch city,
The Hiellands shoud never see me!'
- 27 He led her up to a hie mountain
And bade her look out far and wide:
'I'm lord o thae isles and thae mountains,
And ye're now my beautiful bride.
- 28 'Sae rue na ye've come to the Hiellands,
Sae rue na ye've come aff wi me,
For ye're great Macdonald's braw lady,
And will be to the day that ye dee.'

BONNY LIZIE BAILLIE

"The heroine of this song," says Sharpe, "was a daughter of Baillie of Castle Carey, and sister, as it is said, to the wife of Macfarlane of Gartartan." The Baillies, as Maidment has shown, acquired Castle Cary "at a comparatively recent date," and that editor must be nearly, or quite, right in declaring the ballad to be not older than the commencement of the eighteenth century.

The broadside which contains a may probably have been printed at the beginning of the eighteenth century, at Edinburgh.

- 1 It fell about the Lambmass tide,
When the leaves were fresh and green.
Lizie Bailie is to Gartartain [gane],
To see her sister Jean.
- 2 She had not been in Gartartain
Even but a little while
Till luck and fortune happend her,
And she went to the Isle.

- 3 And when she went into the Isle
She met with Duncan Grahame;
So bravely as he courted her !
And he convoyd her hame.
- 4 ' My bonny Lizie Bailie,
I'll row thee in my pladie,
If thou will go along with me
And be my Highland lady.'
- 5 ' If I would go along with thee,
I think I were not wise;
For I cannot milk cow nor ewe,
Nor yet can I speak Erse.'
- 6 ' Hold thy tongue, bonny Lizie Bailie,
And hold thy tongue,' said he;
' For any thing that thou does lack,
My dear, I'll learn thee.'
- 7 She would not have a Lowland laird,
He wears the high-heeld shoes;
She will marry Duncan Grahame,
For Duncan wears his trews.
- 8 She would not have a gentleman,
A farmer in Kilsyth,
But she would have the Highland man,
He lives into Monteith.
- 9 She would not have the Lowland man,
Nor yet the English laddie,
But she would have the Highland man,
To row her in his pladie.
- 10 He took her by the milk-white hand,
And he convoyd her hame,
And still she thought, both night and
day,
On bonny Duncan Grahame.
- 11 ' O bonny Duncan Grahame,
Why should ye me miscarry ?
For, if you have a love for me,
We'll meet a[t] Castle Carry.
- 12 ' As I came in by Dennie bridge,
And by the holland-bush,
My mother took from me my cloaths,
My rings, ay and my purse.
- 13 ' Hold your tongue, my mother dear,
For that I do not care;
For I will go with Duncan Grahame
Tho I should ner get mair.
- 14 ' For first when I met Duncan Grahame
I met with meikle joy,
And many pretty Highland men
Was there at my convoy.'
- 15 And now he is gone through the muir,
And she is through the glen:
' O bonny Lizie Bailie,
When will we meet again !'
- 16 Shame light on these logerheads
That lives in Castle Carry,
That led away the bonny lass
The Highland man to marry !
- 17 ' O bonny Lizie, stay at home !
Thy mother cannot want thee;
For any thing that thou does lack,
My dear, I'll cause get thee.'
- 18 ' I would not give my Duncan Grahame
For all my father's land,
Altho he had three lairdships more,
And all at my command.'
- 19 Now she's cast off her silken gowns,
That she weard in the Lowland,
And she's up to the Highland hills,
To wear [the] gowns of tartain.
- 20 And she's cast off her high-heeld
shoes,
Was made of the gilded leather,
And she's up to Giliecrankie,
To go among the heather.
- 21 And she's cast off her high-heeld shoes,
And put on a pair of laigh ones,
And she's away with Duncan Grahame,
To go among the brachans.
- 22 ' O my bonny Lizie Bailie,
Thy mother cannot want thee;
And if thou go with Duncan Grahame
Thou'll be a Giliecrankie.'
- 23 ' Hold your tongue, my mother dear,
And folly let thee be;
Should not I fancie Duncan Grahame
When Duncan fancies me ?
- 24 ' Hold your tongue, my father dear,
And folly let thee be;
For I will go with Duncan Grahame
Fore all the men I see.'

- 25 'Who is it that's done this turn?
Who has done this deed?'
'A minister it's, father,' she says,
'Lives at the Rughburn bridge.'
- 26 'A minister, daughter?' he says,
'A minister for mister!'
'O hold your tongue, my father dear,
He married first my sister.'
- 27 'O fare you well, my daughter dear,
So dearly as I lovd thee!
Since thou wilt go to Duncan Grahame,
My bonny Lizie Bailie.'
- 28 'O fare you well, my father dear,
Also my sister Betty;
O fare you well, my mother dear,
I leave you all compleatly.'

GLASGOW PEGGIE

Sharpe printed A, with a few slight changes, in his Ballad Book, p. 40.

A*

From a MS. among C. K. Sharpe's relics, having 1819 in the water-mark; in two hands,
sta. 1-6, 8, 9¹ in one, 7 (inserted in the margin)
and the rest in another.

- 1 'As I cam in by boney Glassgow town,
The Highland troops were a' before
me,
And the bon[ey]est lass that ere I saw,
She lives in Glassgow, tha ca her
Peggy.'
- 2 'I wad gie my boney black horse,
So wad I my good gray nagie,
If I were a hundred miles in the North,
And nan wee me but my boney
Peggy.'
- 3 Up then spoke her father dear,
Dear vow! but he was wondrous
sorey;
'Weel may yea steel a cow or a ewe,
But ye darna steel my boney Peggy.'
- 4 Up then spoke her mother dear,
Dear vow! but she spoke wondrous
sorey;
- 'Now, since I've brought ye up this
length,
Wod ye gang awa wee a Highland
fellow?'
- 5 He set her on his boney black horse,
He set himsel on his good gray nagy;
They have riden over hill[s] and dales,
Now he is awa wee his boney Peggy.
- 6 They are riden or hills and dales,
They have riden or mountains maney,
Untill that thay com to a low, low glen,
And there he's lain down wee his boney Peggy.
- 7 Up then spoke the Earll o Argyle,
Dear vow! bet he spoke wondrous
sorry;
'The bonniest lass in a' Scotland
Is af an awa wi [a] Highland fellow!'
- 8 There bed was of the boney green grass,
There blankets was o the hay sa
boney;
He falded his philabeg below her head,
Now he's lawing down wee his boney
Peggy.
- 9 Up then spoke the boney Lawland lass,
And oh, but she spoke wondrous
sorry;
'A's warruant my mother would hae a gae soir heart.
To see me hiam here wi you, my
Willie!'
- 10 'In my father's house there's feather-beds,
Feather-beds an blankets many;
The're a' mine, an the'll shoon be thine,
An what needs your mother be sae
sorry, Peggy?'
- 11 'Dinna you see yon nine score o kye,
Feding on yon hill sae boney?
The're a' mine, an the'll shoon be thine,
An what needs your mother be sorry,
Peggy?'
- 12 'Dinna you see yon nine score o sheep,
Feeding on yon brae sae bonny?
The're a' mine, an the'll shoon be thine,
An what needs your mother be sorry
for you?'

- 13 'Dinna you see yon bonny white house,
Shining on yon brae sae bonny?
An I am the earl o the Isle o Sky,
And surely my Peggie will be calle[d] a lady.'

EARL CRAWFORD

The late Earl of Crawford recognized in some of the details of this story an agreement with facts of his family history in the second half of the sixteenth century.

A

'Earl Crawford.' a. Christie's Traditional Ballad Airs, I, 290, as taken down 1867-73, from the recitation of Mrs. Mary Robertson, wife of James Robertson, shoemaker, Bogmoor, near Fochabers. b. Obtained by Mr Macmath, March 25, 1890, from the daughter of Mrs Robertson, Mrs Mary Thomson, wife of James Thomson, gardener at Gordon Castle gardens, Fochabers.

- 1 O we were sisters, sisters seven,
We were a comely crew to see,
And some got lairds, and some got lords,
And some got knights o hie degree;
And I mysel got the Earl o Crawford,
And wasna that a great match for me!
- 2 It was at fifteen that I was married,
And at sixteen I had a son;
And wasna that an age ower tender
For a lady to hae her first-born!
And wasna, etc.
- 3 But it fell ance upon a day
I gaed into the garden green,
And naebody was therein walking
But Earl Crawford and his young son.
- 4 'I wonder at you, ye Earl Crawford,
I wonder at you wi your young son;
Ye daut your young son mair than your Lillie;
[I'm sure you got na him your lane.]
- 5 [He turned about upon his heel,
I wite an angry man was he;
Says, If I got nae my young son my
lane,
Bring me here the one that helpet me.]

- 6 ['O hold your tongue, my Earl Crawford,
And a' my folly lat it be;
There was nane at the gettin o oor son,
Nae body only but you and me.']
- 7 He set her on a milk-white steed,
Her little young son her before;
~~Says, Ye maun gae to bonny Stobha,~~
For ye will enter my yates no more.
- 8 When she cam to her father's bowers,
She lichtit low down on the stane,
And wha sae ready as her auld father
To welcome Lady Lillie in?
- 9 'O how's a' wi you, my daughter Lillie,
That ye come here sae hastilie?
And how's a' wi' the Earl o Crawford,
That he didna send a boy wi thee?'
- 10 'O haud your tongue now, my old
father,
And ye'll lat a' your folly be;
For ae word that my merry mou spak
Has parted my good lord and me.'
- 11 'O haud your tongue, my daughter Lillie,
And a' your follies lat them be;
I'll double your portion ten times ower,
And a better match I'll get for thee.'
- 12 'O haud your tongue now, my old father,
And a' your folly lat it be;
I wouldna gie ae kiss o Crawford
For a' the goud that ye can gie.
- 13 'Whare will I get a bonny boy,
That's willin to win meat and fee,
Wha will gae on to Earl Crawford
An see an's heart be fawn to me?'
- 14 When he cam to the yates o Crawford,
They were a' sitting down to dine:
'How comes it now, ye Earl Crawford,
Ye arena takin Lady Lillie hame?'
- 15 'Ye may gae tell her Lady Lillie,
And ye maun neither lee nor len,
She may stay in her father's bowers,
For she'll not enter my yates again.'
- 16 When he cam back to her father's yates,
He lichtit low down on his knee:

- 'What news, what news, my bonny boy?
What news, what news hae ye to me?'
- 17 'I'm bidden tell you, Lady Lillie —
I'm bidden neither to lee nor len —
She may stay in her father's bowers,
For she'll not enter my yates again.'
- 18 She stretched out her lily hand,
Says, 'Adieu, adieu to ane and a!
Adieu, adieu to Earl Crawford!'
Wi that her sair heart brak in twa.
- 19 Then dowie, dowie her father raise up,
And dowie, dowie the black put on,
And dowie, dowie he mounted the brown,
And dowie, dowie sat thereon.
- 20 And dowie rade to the yates o Crawford,
And when to Crawford's yates he came,
They were a' dressd in the robes o scarlet,
Just gann to tak Lady Lillie hame.
- 21 'Ye may cast aff your robes o scarlet —
I wyte they set you wondrous weel —
And now put on the black sae dowie,
And come and bury your Lady Lill.'
- 22 He took his hat into his hand,
And laid it low down by his knee:
'An it be true that Lillie's dead,
The sun shall nae mair shine on me.'

THE SLAUGHTER OF THE
LAIRD OF MELLERSTAIN

This fragment tells of the murder of John Haitlie, of Mellerstain, in 1603. Mellerstain stands on a rising ground near the right bank of the Eden. The lady of stanza 1 was Marion Lumsden, Haitlie's wife.

In a folio volume with the title "Miscellanies," the last piece in the volume, Abbotsford.

- 1
As they came in by the Eden side,
They heard a lady lamenting sair,
Bewailing the time she was a bride.

- 2
A stately youth of blude and bane,
John Hately, the laird of Mellerstain.
- 3 'Cowdenknows, had ye nae lack?
And Earlstoun, had ye nae shame?
Ye took him away behind my back,
But ye never saw to bring him hame.'
- 4 And she has lookit to Fieldiesha,
So has she through Yirdandstane;
She lookit to Earlstoun, and she saw the Fans,
But he's coming hame by West Gordon.
- 5 And she staggerd and she stood,
.
.
- 6 ' wude;
How can I keep in my wits,
When I look on my husband's blood?'
- 7 'Had we been men as we are women,
And been at his back when he was slain,
It should a been tauld for mony a lang year,
The slaughter o the laird of Mellerstain.'

THE EARL OF ERROL

Sir Gilbert Hay, tenth Earl of Errol, was married to Lady Catherine Carnegie, younger daughter of James, second Earl of Southesk, January 7, 1658, and had no children by her. He died in 1674. The ballad, says the person who communicated A b to the Edinburgh Miscellany, was "founded, it would seem, on some attempt to withhold from the Earl of Errol his consort's portion." It will be observed that the father proposes a beguiling to his daughter, and that she is ready to assent, in A, 12, 13. It appears from a letter cited by Sharpe in his Ballad Book that the matters treated in the ballad were agitating, and had even "come to public hearing," in February, 1659.

A

a. 'Kate Carnegie,' Campbell MSS., n. 94.
 b. The Edinburgh Magazine, or Literary Miscellany, June, 1803, p. 458.

- 1 THERE was a jury sat at Perth,
 In the merry month of May,
 Betwixt the noble Duke of Perth
 But and Sir Gilbert Hay.
- 2 My lord Kingside has two daughters,
 They are proper, straight and tall;
 But my lord Carnegie he has two
 That far excells them all.
- 3 Then Errol he has dressed him,
 As very well he could;
 I'm sure there was not one cloth-yard
 But what was trimmd with gold.
- 4 'Ane asking, ane asking, my lord Carnegie,
 Ane asking I've to thee;
 I'm come to court your daughter Jean,
 My wedded wife to be.'
- 5 'My daughter Jean was wed yestreen,
 To one of high degree,
 But where Jean got one guinea of gold
 With Kate I'll give thee three.
- 6 'Full fifteen hundred pounds
 Had Jean Carnegie,
 But three fifteen hundred pounds
 With Kate I'll gie to thee.'
- 7 Then Errol he has wed her,
 And fairly brought her hame;
 There was nae peace between them twa
 Till they sundered oer again.
- 8 When bells were rung, and mess was
 sung,
 And a' man bound to bed,
 The Earl of Errol and his countess
 In one chamber was laid.
- 9 Early in the morning
 My lord Carnegie rose,
 The Earl of Errol and his countess,
 And they've put on their clothes.
- 10 Up spake my lord Carnegie;
 'Kate, is your toucher won?'
- 'Ye may ask the Earl of Errol,
 If he be your good-son.
- 11 'What need I wash my petticoat
 And hing it on a pin?
 For I am as leal a maid yet
 As yestreen when I lay down.
- 12 'What need I wash my apron
 And hing it on the door?
 It's baith side and wide enough,
 Hangs even down before.'
- 13 Up spake my lord Carnegie;
 'O Kate, what do ye think?
 We'll beguile the Earl of Errol
 As lang as he's in drink.'
- 14 'O what will ye beguile him wi?
 Or what will ye do than?
 I'll swear before a justice-court
 That he's no a sufficient man.'
- 15 Then Errol he cam down the stair,
 As bold as oney rae:
 'Go saddle to me my Irish coach,
 To Edinbro I'll go.'
- 16 When he came to Edinbro,
 He lighted on the green;
 There were four-and-twenty maidens
 A' dancing in a ring.
- 17 There were four-and-twenty maidens
 A' dancing in a row;
 The fatest and the fairest
 To bed wi him must go.
- 18 He's taen his Peggy by the hand,
 And he led her thro the green,
 And twenty times he kissd her there,
 Before his ain wife's een.
- 19 He's taen his Peggy by the hand,
 And he's led her thro the hall,
 And twenty times he's kissd her there,
 Before his nobles all.
- 20 'Look up, look up, my Peggy lass,
 Look up, and think nae shame;
 Ten hundred pounds I'll gie to you
 To bear to me a son.'
- 21 He's keepit his Peggy in his room
 Three quarter of a year,

And just at the nine months' end
She a son to him did bear.

22 'Now if ye be Kate Carnegie,
And I Sir Gilbert Hay,
I'll make your father sell his lands
Your toucher for to pay.'

23 'To make my father sell his lands,
It wad be a great sin,
To toucher oney John Sheephead
That canna toucher win.'

24 'Now hold your tongue, ye whorish bitch,
Sae loud as I hear ye lie!
For yonder sits Lord Errol's son,
Upon his mother's knee;
For yonder sits Lord Errol's son,
Altho he's no by thee.'

25 'You may take hame your daughter
Kate,
And set her on the glen;
For Errol canna please her,
Nor nane o Errol's men;
For Errol canna please her,
Nor twenty of his men.'

26 The ranting and the roving,
The thing we a' do ken,
The lady lost her right that night,
The first night she lay down;
And the thing we ca the ranting o't,
The lady lies her lane.

RITCHIE STORY

"Lillias Fleming, a daughter of John, third Earl of Wigton by his wife Jane Drummond, did elope with and marry one of her father's servants, named Richard Storry. In 1673, she, with consent of her husband, resigned her portion, consisting of the five-merk land of Smythson, etc., in the barony of Lenzie, into the hands of her brother, Lieutenant-Colonel Fleming. The Fleming family afterwards procured for Richie a situation in the Custom-House." Hunter, Biggar and the House of Fleming, p. 555.

The well-known song of 'Huntingtower' ('When ye gang awa, Jamie') is founded on this ballad. It has been often printed; as, for example, in G. F. Graham's Popular Songs of Scotland, revised by J. Muir Wood, Glasgow, 1887, p. 152.

'Ritchie Storie,' Motherwell's MS., p. 426; from the recitation of Mrs —, of Kilbarchan, January 3, 1826.

1 THE Earl of Wigton had three daughters,
Oh and a waly, but they were unco bonnie!

The eldest of them had the far brawest house,
But she's fallen in love with her footman-laddie.

2 As she was a walking down by yon riverside,
Oh and a wally, but she was unco bonnie!

There she espied her own footman,
With ribbons hanging over his shoulders sae bonnie.

3 'Here's a letter to you, madame,
Here's a letter to you, madame;
The Earl of Hume is waiting on,
And he has his service to you, madame.'

4 'I'll have none of his service,' says she,
'I'll have none of his service,' says she,
'For I've made a vow, and I'll keep it true,
That I'll marry none but you, Ritchie.'

5 'O say not so again, madame,
O say not so again, madame;
For I have neither lands nor reuts
For to keep you on, madam.'

6 'I'll live where eer you please, Ritchie,
I'll live where eer you please,
[Ritchie,]
And I'll be ready at your ca',
Either late or early, Ritchie.'

7 As they went in by Stirling toun,
O and a wally, but she was unco bonnie!
A' her silks were sailing on the ground,
But few of them knew of Ritchie Story.

- 8 As they went in by the Parliament Close,
O and a wally, but she was unco
bonnie !
All the nobles took her by the hand,
But few of them knew she was Ritchie's lady.
- 9 As they came in by her goodmother's
yetts,
O and a wally, but she was unco
bonnie !
Her goodmother bade her kilt her coats,
And muck the byre with Ritchie Storie.
- 10 'Oh, may not ye be sorry, madame,
Oh, may not ye be sorry, madame,
To leave a' your lands at bonnie Cum-bernaud,
And follow home your footman-lad-
die ?'
- 11 'What need I be sorry ?' says she,
'What need I be sorry ?' says she,
'For I've gotten my lot and my heart's desire,
And what Providence has ordered for
me.'

- 1 COMARNAD it is a very bonny place,
An ther is ladys three, madam,
Bat the farest an rarest of them a'
Has marred Richerd Storry.
- 2 'O hear is a letter to ye, madam,
Hear is a letter to ye, madam;
The Earl of Hume, that galant knight,
Is faln in love we you, madam.
- 3 'Ther is a letter to you, madam,
[Ther is a letter to you, madam;]
The Eearl of Hume, that galant knight,
Disers to be yer servant tron, madam.'
- 4 'I ill haa nan of his letters, Richerd,
I ill hae nane of his letters, [Richerd,]
I have voued, an I ill keep it tron,
I ill marry nane bat ye, Richie.'

ANDREW LAMMIE

Jamieson, in his preface, 1806, says that this ballad was current in the Border counties within a few years, and that A was taken down by Leyden from the recitation of a young lady who learned it in Teviotdale.

"Bonny Andrew Lammie" was a well-known personage at the beginning of the eighteenth century, for, as Jamieson has pointed out, he is mentioned in a way that implies this by Allan Ramsay, in the second of his two cantos in continuation of Christ's Kirk on the Green, written, as Ramsay says, in 1718. Mill of Tif-tie is, or was, a farmhouse on the side of a glen about half a mile northeast of the castle of Fyvie, and in view of its turrets. Annie was Agnes Smith, Nannie being among her people an affectionate form for Agnes. An inscription on her gravestone makes Agnes Smith to have died January 19, 1673.

A

'The Trumpeter of Fyvie,' Jamieson's Popular Ballads, I, 126; "taken down by Dr Leyden from the recitation of a young lady, Miss Robson, of Edinburgh, who learned it in Teviotdale."

- 1 'At Fyvie's yetts there grows a flower,
It grows baith braid and bonny;
There's a daisie in the midst o it,
And it's ca'd by Andrew Lammie.
- 2 'O gin that flower war in my breast,
For the love I bear the laddie!
I wad kiss it, and I wad clap it,
And daut it for Andrew Lammie.
- 3 'The first time me and my love met
Was in the woods of Fyvie;
He kissed my lips five thousand times,
And ay he ca'd me bonny,
And a' the answer he gat frae me,
Was, My bonny Andrew Lammie!'
- 4 'Love, I maun gang to Edinburgh;
Love, I maun gang and leave thee!
'I sighed right sair, and said nae mair
But, O gin I were wi ye!'
- 5 'But true and trusty will I be,
As I am Andrew Lammie;
I'll never kiss a woman's mouth
Till I come back and see thee.'
- 6 'And true and trusty will I be,
As I am Tiftie's Annie;
I'll never kiss a man again
Till ye come back and see me.'
- 7 Syne he's come back frae Edinburgh
To the bonny hows o Fyvie,
And ay his face to the nor-east,
To look for Tiftie's Annie.
- 8 'I hae a love in Edinburgh,
Sae hae I intill Leith, man;
I hae a love intill Montrose,
Sae hae I in Dalkeith, man.
- 9 'And east and west, whereer I go,
My love she's always wi me;
For east and west, whereer I go,
My love she dwells in Fyvie.
- 10 'My love possesses a' my heart,
Nae pen can eer indite her;
She's ay sae stately as she goes
That I see nae mae like her.
- 11 'But Tiftie winna gie consent
His dochter me to marry,
Because she has five thousand marks,
And I have not a penny.
- 12 'Love pines away, love dwines away,
Love, love decays the body;
For love o thee, oh I must die;
Adieu, my bonny Annie!'
- 13 Her mither raise out o her bed,
And ca'd on baith her women:
'What ails ye, Annie, my dochter dear?
O Annie, was ye dreamin?'
- 14 'What dule disturbd my dochter's sleep?
O tell to me, my Annie!'
She sighed right sair, and said nae mair
But, O for Andrew Lammie!
- 15 Her father beat her cruellie,
Sae also did her mother;
Her sisters sair did scoff at her;
But wae betide her brother!
- 16 Her brother beat her cruellie,
Till his straits they werena canny;
He brak her back, and he beat her sides,
For the sake o Andrew Lammie.
- 17 'O fie, O fie, my brother dear!
The gentlemen'll shame ye;
The Laird o Fyvie he's gaun by,
And he'll come in and see me.
- 18 'And he'll kiss me, and he'll clap me,
And he will speer what ails me;
And I will answer him again,
It's a' for Andrew Lammie.'
- 19 Her sisters they stood in the door,
Sair grievd her wi their folly:
'O sister dear, come to the door,
Your cow is lowin on you.'
- 20 'O fie, O fie, my sister dear!
Grieve me not wi your folly;
I'd rather hear the trumpet sound
Than a' the kye o Fyvie.

- 21 'Love pines away, love dwines away,
Love, love decays the body;
For love o thee now I maun die;
Adieu to Andrew Lammie !'
- 22 But Tiftie's wrote a braid letter,
And sent it into Fyvie,
Saying his daughter was bewitchd
By bonny Andrew Lammie.
- 23 'Now, Tiftie, ye maun gie consent,
And lat the lassie marry;'
'I'll never, never gie consent
To the trumpeter of Fyvie.'
- 24 When Fyvie looked the letter on,
He was baith sad and sorry:
Says, The bonniest lass o the country-
side
Has died for Andrew Lammie.
- 25 O Andrew's gane to the house-top
O the bonny house o Fyvie,
He's blawn his horn baith loud and shill
Oer the lawland leas o Fyvie.
- 26 'Mony a time hae I walkd a' night,
And never yet was weary;
But now I may walk wae my lane,
For I'll never see my deary.
- 27 'Love pines away, love dwines away,
Love, love decays the body;
For the love o thee now I maun die;
I come, my bonny Annie !'

CHARLIE MACPHERSON

Buchan's version (B) in his Ballads of the North of Scotland, I, 85, completes the story, but very tamely, for we expect a collision, and judging by A, st. 8, there was one. For the pertinent stanzas see Notes.

A

'Charlie MacPherson,' Harris MS., fol. 23 b;
from Mrs Harris's singing.

- 1 CHARLIE MACPHERSON, that braw Hie-
land lad[die],
On Valentine's even cam down to Kinal-
tie,

Courtit Burd Hellen, baith wakin an sleepin:
'Oh, fair fa them has my love in keep-
in !'

- 2 Charlie MacPherson cam doun the dyke-
side,
Baith Milton an Muirton an a' bein his
guide;
Baith Milton an Muirton an auld Water
Nairn,
A' gaed wi him, for to be his warn.
- 3 Whan he cam to the hoose o Kinaltie,
'Open your yetts, mistress, an lat us
come in !
Open your yetts, mistress, an lat us
come in !
For here's a commission come frae your gude-son.
- 4 'Madam,' says Charlie, 'whare [i]s your dochter ?
Mony time have I come to Kinatie an socht her;
Noo maun she goe wi me mony a mile,
Because I've brocht mony men frae the West Isle.'
- 5 'As for my dochter, she has gane abroad,
You'll no get her for her tocher
gude;
She's on to Whitehouse, to marry auld Gairn:
Oh, fair fa them that wait on my bairn !'
- 6 Charlie MacPherson gaed up the dyke-
side,
Baith Muirtoun an Milton an a' bein his
guide;
Baith Muirton an Milton an auld Water
Nairn,
A' gaed wi him, for to be his warn.
- 7 Whan he cam to the hoose in Braemar, Sae weel as he kent that his Nellie was
there !
An Nellie was sittin upon the bed-side,
An every one there was ca'ing her,
bride.
- 8 The canles gaed oot, they waurna weel
licht,
Swords an spears they glancet fou
bricht;

Sae laith as she was her true-love to beguile,
Because he brocht mony men frae the
West Isle.

THE EARL OF ABOYNE

Charles, first Earl of Aboyne, married for his first wife Margaret Irvine of Drum, who died in 1662. The story of the ballad, so far as is known, is an absolute fiction.

A

'The Earl of Aboyne,' Kinloch MSS., v, 351;
in the handwriting of John Hill Burton.

- 1 THE Earl of Aboyne he 's courteous and kind,
He 's kind to every woman,
And the Earl of Aboyne he 's courteous and kind,
But he stays ower lang in London.
- 2 The ladie she stood on her stair-head,
Beholding his grooms a coming;
She knew by their livery and raiment so rare
That their last voyage was from London.
- 3 'My grooms all, ye 'll be well in call,
Hold all the stables shining;
With a brettther o degs ye 'll clear up my nags,
Sin my gude Lord Aboyne is a coming.
- 4 'My minstrels all, be well in call,
Hold all my galleries ringing;
With music springs ye 'll try well your strings,
Sin my gude lord 's a coming.
- 5 'My cooks all, be well in call,
Wi pots and spits well ranked;
And nothing shall ye want that ye call for,
Sin my gude Lord Aboyne 's a coming.
- 6 'My chamber-maids, ye 'll dress up my beds,
Hold all my rooms in shining;

With Dantzic waters ye 'll sprinkle my walls,
Sin my good lord 's a coming.'

- 7 Her shoes was of the small cordain,
Her stockings silken twisting;
Cambrick so clear was the pretty lady's smock,
And her stays o the braided sattin.
- 8 Her coat was of the white sarsenent,
Set out wi silver quiltin,
And her gown was o the silk damask,
Set about wi red gold walting.
- 9 Her hair was like the threads o gold,
Wi the silk and sarsanet shining,
Wi her fingers sae white, and the gold rings sae grite,
To welcome her lord from London.
- 10 Sae stately she steppet down the stair,
And walket to meet him coming;
Said, O ye 'r welcome, my bonny lord,
Ye 'r thrice welcome home from London!
- 11 'If this be so that ye let me know,
Ye 'll come kiss me for my coming,
For the morn should hae been my bonny wedding-day
Had I stayed the night in London.'
- 12 Then she turned her about wi an angry look,
O for such an a sorry woman!
'If this be so that ye let me know,
Gang kiss your ladies in London.'
- 13 Then he looked ower his left shoulder
To the worthie companie wi him;
Says he, Isna this an unworthy welcome
The we 've got, comin from London!
- 14 'Get yer horse in call, my nobles all,
And I 'm sorry for yer coming,
But we 'll horse, and awa to the bonny Bog o Gight,
And then we 'll go on to London.'
- 15 'If this be Thomas, as they call you,
You 'll see if he 'll hae me with him;
And nothing shall he be troubled with me
But myself and my waiting-woman.'

16 'I've asked it already, lady,' he says,
 'And your humble servant, madam;
 But one single mile he winna lat you
 ride
 Wi his company and him to London.'

17 A year and mare she lived in care,
 And docters wi her dealin,
 And with a craek her sweet heart brack,
 And the letters is on to London.

18 When the letters he got, they were all sealed in black,
 And he fell in a grievous weeping;
 He said, She is dead whom I loved
 best
 If I had but her heart in keepin.

19 Then fifteen o the finest lords
 That London could afford him,
 From their hose to their hat, they were all clad in black,
 For the sake of her corpse, Margaret
 Irvine.

20 The furer he gaed, the sorer he wept,
 Come keping her corpse, Margaret
 Irvine,
 Until that he came to the yetts of Aboyne,
 Where the corpse of his lady was lying.

THE LAIRD O DRUM

Alexander Irvine, the young laird of Drum (ten miles west of Aberdeen), was married to the lady Mary Gordon in 1643. Lady Mary Gordon was fourth daughter to George the second Marquis of Huntly, and niece to the Marquis of Argyll. The Laird of Drum suffered extremely in his worldly fortunes through his fidelity to the cause of the Stuarts. This would have been a natural reason for his declining a peerage offered him at the Restoration, and for his marrying, the second time, to win and not to spend. He took for his second wife Margaret Coutts (A 9), "a woman of inferior birth and manners, which step gave great offence to his relations" (Kinloch). He died in 1687. After the death of Irvine of Drum, Margaret Coutts married Irvine of Cultra. She died in 1710, at the age of only forty-five.

a. Kinloch MSS., v, 9, in the handwriting of James Beattie. b. 'Laird of Drum,' Kinloch's Ancient Scottish Ballads, p. 109; "from recitation."

1 O rr fell out upon a day,
 When Drums was going to ride, O
 And there he met with a well-far'd
 may,
 Keeping her flocks on yon side. O

2 'O fair may, O rare may,
 Can not you fancy me?
 Of a' the lasses here about
 I like nane so well as thee.'

3 'Set your love on another, kind sir,
 Set it not on me,
 For I'm not fit to be your bride,
 And your whore I'll never be.'

4 Drums is to her father gane,
 Keeping his flocks on yon hill,
 And he has gotten his consent,
 And the maid was at his will.

5 'My daughter can neither read nor write,
 She was neer brought up at school;
 But well can she milk cow and ewe,
 And make a kebbuck well.

6 'She'll winn in your barn at bear-seed
 time,
 Cast out your muck at Yule;
 She'll saddle your steed in time o need,
 Draw aff your boots hersell.'

7 'Have not I no clergymen?
 Pay I no clergy fee?
 I'll school her as I think fit,
 And as I think fit to be.'

8 Drums is to the Highlands gane
 For to be made ready,
 And a' the gentry thereabout Says, Yonder comes Drums and his lady.

9 'Peggy Coutts is a very bonnie bride,
 And Drums is a wealthy laddie;
 But Drums might hae chosen a higher match
 Than any shepherd's daughter.'

- 10 Then up bespake his brother John,
Says, Brother you 've done us wrong;
You 've married ane below our degree,
A stain to a' our kin.
- 11 'Hold your tongue, my brother John,
I have done you no wrong;
For I 've married ane to wirk and win,
And ye 've married ane to spend.
- 12 'The last time that I had a wife,
She was above my degree;
I durst not come in her presence
But with my hat on my knee.'
- 13 There was four-and-twenty gentlemen
Stood at the yetts o Drum;
There was na ane amang them a'
That welcomd his lady in.
- 14 He 's taen her by the milk-white hand
And led her in himsell,
And in thro ha's and in thro bowers,
'And you're welcome, Lady o Drum.'
- 15 Thrice he kissd her cherry cheek,
And thrice her cherry chin,
And twenty times her comely mouth,
'And you're welcome, Lady o Drum.'
- 16 'Ye shall be cook in my kitchen,
Butler in my ha;
Ye shall be lady at my command
When I ride far awa.'
- 17 'But what will I do when auld Drum
dies,
When auld Drum dies and leaves me?
Then I 'll tak back my word again,
And the Coutts will come and see me.'

THE DUKE OF GORDON'S DAUGHTER

'The Duke of Gordon's Three Daughters,' Macmath MS., p. 31, a fragment recited by Mrs Macmath, senior, in 1874, and learned by her fifty years before. i. Copy in a collection of folio sheet ballads, British Museum, 1346, m. 8, September, 1775.

- 1 THE Duke of Gordon has three daughters,
Elizabeth, Margaret, and Jean;
They would not stay in bonny Castle Gordon,
But they would go to bonny Aberdeen.
- 2 They had not been in Aberdeen
A twelvemonth and a day
Till Lady Jean fell in love with Captain Ogilvie,
And away with him she would gae.
- 3 Word came to the Duke of Gordon,
In the chamber where he lay,
Lady Jean has fell in love with Captain Ogilvie,
And away with him she would gae.
- 4 'Go saddle me the black horse,
And you'll ride on the grey,
And I will ride to bonny Aberdeen,
Where I have been many a day.'
- 5 They were not a mile from Aberdeen,
A mile but only three,
Till he met with his two daughters walking,
But away was Lady Jean.
- 6 'Where is your sister, maidens?
Where is your sister now?
Where is your sister, maidens,
That she is not walking with you?'
- 7 'O pardon us, honoured father,
O pardon us,' they did say;
'Lady Jean is with Captain Ogilvie,
And away with him she will gae.'

- 8 When he came to Aberdeen,
And down upon the green,
There did he see Captain Ogilvie,
Training up his men.
- 9 'O wo to you, Captain Ogilvie,
And an ill death thou shalt die;
For taking to thee my daughter,
Hanged thou shalt be.'
- 10 Duke Gordon has wrote a broad letter,
And sent it to the king,
To cause hang Captain Ogilvie
If ever he hanged a man.
- 11 'I will not hang Captain Ogilvie,
For no lord that I see;
But I'll cause him to put off the lace
and scarlet,
And put on the single livery.'
- 12 Word came to Captain Ogilvie,
In the chamber where he lay,
To cast off the gold lace and scarlet,
And put on the single livery.
- 13 'If this be for bonny Jeany Gordon,
This pennance I'll take wi;
If this be for bonny Jeany Gordon,
All this I will dree.'
- 14 Lady Jean had not been married,
Not a year but three,
Till she had a babe in every arm,
Another upon her knee.
- 15 'O but I'm weary of wandering !
O but my fortune is bad !
It sets not the Duke of Gordon's daugh-
ter
To follow a soldier-lad.
- 16 'O but I'm weary of wandering !
O but I think lang !
It sets not the Duke of Gordon's daughter
To follow a single man.'
- 17 When they came to the Highland hills,
Cold was the frost and snow;
Lady Jean's shoes they were all torn,
No farther could she go.
- 18 'O wo to the hills and the mountains !
Wo to the wind and the rain !

- My feet is sore with going barefoot,
No further am I able to gang.
- 19 'Wo to the hills and the mountains !
Wo to the frost and the snow !
My feet is sore with going barefoot,
No farther am I able for to go.
- 20 'O if I were at the glens of Foudlen,
Where hunting I have been,
I would find the way to bonny Castle
Gordon,
Without either stockings or shoon.'
- 21 When she came to Castle Gordon,
And down upon the green,
The porter gave out a loud shout,
'O yonder comes Lady Jean !'
- 22 'O you are welcome, bonny Jeany Gordon,
You are dear welcome to me;
You are welcome, dear Jeany Gordon,
But away with your Captain Ogilvie.'
- 23 Now over seas went the captain,
As a soldier under command;
A message soon followed after
To come and heir his brother's land.
- 24 'Come home, you pretty Captain Ogilvie,
And heir your brother's land;
Come home, ye pretty Captain Ogilvie,
Be Earl of Northumberland.'
- 25 'O what does this mean ?' says the captain;
'Where's my brother's children
three ?'
'They are dead and buried,
And the lands they are ready for
thee.'
- 26 'Then hoist up your sails, brave captain,
Let's be jovial and free;
I'll to Northumberland and heir my estate,
Then my dear Jeany I'll see.'
- 27 He soon came to Castle Gordon,
And down upon the green;
The porter gave out with a loud shout,
'Here comes Captain Ogilvie !'

28 'You're welcome, pretty Captain Ogilvie,
Your fortune's advanced I hear;
No stranger can come unto my gates
That I do love so dear.'

29 'Sir, the last time I was at your gates,
You would not let me in;
I'm come for my wife and children,
No friendship else I claim.'

30 'Come in, pretty Captain Ogilvie,
And drink of the beer and the wine;
And thou shalt have gold and silver
To count till the clock strike nine.'

31 'I'll have none of your gold or silver,
Nor none of your white-money;
But I'll have bonny Jeany Gordon,
And she shall go now with me.'

32 Then she came tripping down the stair,
With the tear into her eye;
One babe was at her foot,
Another upon her knee.

33 'You're welcome, bonny Jeany Gordon,
With my young family;
Mount and go to Northumberland,
There a countess thou shall be.'

GLENLOGIE, OR, JEAN O
BETHELNIE

The earliest copy taken down is among the Percy Papers (F), and was communicated to Percy by R. Lambe, 1768, but it is not unvarnished tradition.

Skene MS., p. 13; taken down from recitation in the north of Scotland, 1802-3.

1 FOUR an twenty noblemen they rode thro Banchory fair,
But bonnie Glenlogie was flower [of a']
that was there.

2 Four and twenty noblemen rode from Banchory ha,
But bonnie Glenlogie he was flower of
them a'.

3 'O bonnie Glenlogie, be constant and kind,
An, bonnie Glenlogie, I'll tell you my mind.

4 . . . so frank and so
free,
. . . and I get na Glenlogie,
I'll die.'

5 'O bonnie Jeanie, your portion's but
sma
To lay your love on me, that's promist
awa.'

6 Her cherry cheeks grew pale an wan;
with the tear in her ee,
'Gin I get na Glenlogie, I surely will
die.'

7 Ben came her father, steps to her bowr:
'Dear Jeanie, you'r acting the part of a [whore].

8 'You're seeking ane that cares na for
thee;
Ye's get Lord William, let Glenlogie
be.'

9 'O had you still, father, let your folly
be;
Gin I get na Glenlogie, I surely will
die.'

10 Ben came her mother, steps on the floor:
'Dear daughter Jeanie, you're acting
the [whore],

11 'Seeking of ane that cares na for
thee;
For ye'll get Lord William, let Glenlogie be.'

12 'O had your tongue, mother, and let me
be;
An I get na Glenlogie, I surely will die.'

13 O ben came her father's chaplain, a man
of great skill,
And he has written a broad letter, and he has pennd it well.

14 H'as pennd it well, an sent it awa
To bonnie Glenlogie, the flower of them
a'.

- 15 When he got the letter, his tears did down fa;
'She's laid her love on me, that was promist awa.'
- 16 He calld on his servant wi speed, and bade him saddle his horses, and briddle them a':
'For she has laid her love on me, altho
I was promist awa.'
- 17 The horses were saddled wi speed, but ere they came he was four mile awa,
To Jean of Bethelny, the flowr of them a'.
- 18 But when he came to her bowr she was pale and wan,
But she grew red and ruddy when Glenlogie came in.
- 19 'Cheer up, bonnie Jeannie, ye are flowr
o them a';
I have laid my love on you, altho I was
promist awa.'
- 20 Her beauty was charming, her tocher down tauld;
Bonnie Jean of Bethelny was scarce fifteen year auld.

'Glenlogie,' Sharpe's Ballad Book, p. 37, 1823.

- 1 FOUR and twenty nobles sits in the king's
ha,
Bonnie Glenlogie is the flower among
them a'.
- 2 In came Lady Jean, skipping on the floor,
And she has chosen Glenlogie 'mong a'
that was there.
- 3 She turned to his footman, and thus she did say:
Oh, what is his name? and where does he stay?
- 4 'His name is Glenlogie, when he is from
home;
He is of the gay Gordons, his name it is
John.'
- 5 'Glenlogie, Glenlogie, an you will prove kind,
My love is laid on you; I am telling my
mind.'

- 6 He turned about lightly, as the Gordons does a':
'I thank you, Lady Jean, my loves is promised awa.'
- 7 She called on her maidens her bed for
to make,
Her rings and her jewels all from her to take.
- 8 In came Jeanie's father, a wae man was
he;
Says, I'll wed you to Drumfendrich, he has mair gold than he.
- 9 Her father's own chaplain, being a man
of great skill,
He wrote him a letter, and indited it
well.
- 10 The first lines he looked at, a light laugh laughed he;
But ere he read through it the tears
blinded his ee.
- 11 Oh, pale and wan looked she when Glenlogie cam in,
But even rosy grew she when Glenlogie
sat down.
- 12 'Turn round, Jeanie Melville, turn round
to this side,
And I'll be the bridegroom, and you'll be the bride.'
- 13 Oh, 't was a merry wedding, and the portion down told,
Of bonnie Jeanie Melville, who was scarce sixteen years old.

LORD SALTOUN AND AUCHANACHIE

There can hardly be a doubt that this is one of five ballads mentioned by Mrs. Brown in a letter of Dec. 23, 1800, and called by her 'The Lass o Philorth.' Philorth is the seat of the Fraser of Saltoun, near Fraserburg, in the extreme northeast corner of Aberdeenshire.

A

'Lord Salton and Auchanachie.' a. Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, II,

133, 1828. b. Maidment's North Countrie Garland, p. 10, 1824; Buchan's Gleanings, p. 161, 1825.

- 1 'AUCHANACHIE GORDON is bonny and braw,
He would tempt any woman that ever he saw;
He would tempt any woman, so has he tempted me,
And I'll die if I getna my love Auchanachie.'
- 2 In came her father, tripping on the floor,
Says, Jeanie, ye're trying the tricks o a whore;
Ye're caring for them that cares little for thee;
Ye must marry Salton, leave Auchanachie.
- 3 'Auchanachie Gordon, he is but a man;
Altho he be pretty, where lies his free land?
Salton's lands they lie broad, his towers they stand hie,
Ye must marry Salton, leave Auchanachie.
- 4
.
'Salton will gar you wear silk gowns fring'd to thy knee,
But ye'll never wear that wi your love Auchanachie.'
- 5 'Wi Auchanachie Gordon I would beg my bread
Before that wi Salton I'd wear gowd on my head,
Wear gowd on my head, or gowns fring'd to the knee;
And I'll die if I getna my love Auchanachie.
- 6 'O Salton's [a] valley lies low by the sea,
He's bowed on the back, and thrawin on the knee;
.
.
- 7 'O Salton's a valley lies low by the sea;
Though he's bowed on the back and thrawin on the knee,

Though he's bowed on the back and thrawin on the knee,
The bonny rigs of Salton they're nae thrawin tee.'

- 8 'O you that are my parents to church may me bring,
But unto young Salton I'll never bear a son;
For son or for daughter, I'll ne'er bow my knee,
And I'll die if I getna my love Auchanachie.'
- 9 When Jeanie was married, from church was brought hame,
When she wi her maidens sae merry shoud hae been,
When she wi her maidens sae merry shoud hae been,
She's called for a chamber, to weep there her lane.
- 10 'Come to your bed, Jeanie, my honey and my sweet,
For to stile you mistress I do not think it meet.'
'Mistress or Jeanie, it is a' ane to me,
It's in your bed, Salton, I never will be.'
- 11 Then out spake her father, he spake wi renown;
Some of you that are maidens, ye'll loose aff her gown;
Some of you that are maidens, ye'll loose aff her gown,
And I'll mend the marriage wi ten thousand crowns.
- 12 Then ane of her maidens they loosed aff her gown,
But bonny Jeanie Gordon she fell in a swoon;
She fell in a swoon low down by their knee;
Says, Look on, I die for my love Auchanachie!
- 13 That very same day Miss Jeanie did die,
Aud hame came Auchanachie, hame frae the sea;
Her father and mither, welcomd him at the gate;
He said, Where's Miss Jeanie, that she's nae here yet?

14 Then forth came her maidens, all wringing their hands,
Saying, Alas for your staying sae lang frae the land!
Sae lang frae the land, and sae lang on the fleed!
They've wedded your Jeanie, and now she is dead.

15 'Some of you, her maidens, take me by the hand,
And show me the chamber Miss Jeanie died in;
He kissed her cold lips, which were colder than stane,
And he died in the chamber that Jeanie died in.

THE RANTIN LADDIE

The 'rantin' laddie' turns out to be the Earl of Aboyne, who is also celebrated in No. 235.

1 'AFTEN hae I playd at the cards and the dice,
For the love of a bonie rantin laddie,
But now I maun sit in my father's kitchen-neuk
And balow a bastard babie.

2 'For my father he will not me own,
And my mother she neglects me,
And a' my friends hae lightlyed me,
And their servants they do slight me.

3 'But had I a servant at my command,
As aft times I've had many,
That wad rin wi a letter to bonie Glenswood,
Wi a letter to my rantin laddie!'

4 'O is he either a laird or a lord,
Or is he but a cadie,
That ye do him ca sae aften by name
Your bonie, bonie rantin laddie?'

5 'Indeed he is baith a laird and a lord,
And he never was a cadie,
But he is the Earl o bonie Aboyne,
And he is my rantin laddie.'

6 'O ye'se get a servant at your command,
As aft times ye've had many,
That sall rin wi a letter to bonie Glenswood,
A letter to your rantin laddie.'

7 When Lord Aboyne did the letter get,
O but he blinket bonie!
But or he had read three lines of it
I think his heart was sorry.

8 'O wha is [this] daur be sae bauld
Sae cruelly to use my lassie?

9 'For her father he will not her know,
And her mother she does slight her,
And a' her friends hae lightlied her,
And their servants they neglect her.

10 'Go raise to me my five hundred men,
Make haste and make them ready,
With a milk-white steed under every ane,
For to bring hame my lady.'

11 As they cam in thro Buchanshire,
They were a company bonie,
With a gude claymor in every hand,
And O but they shin'd bonie!

THE BARON O LEYS

This ballad purports to relate an escapade of one of the Burnetts of Leys, Kincardineshire.

Skene MS., p. 20; taken down in the north of Scotland, 1802-8.

1 THE Laird of Leys is on to Edinbrugh,
To shaw a fit o his follie;
He drest himsel in the crimson-brown,
An he provd a rantin laddie.

- 2 Ben came a weel-faird lass,
Says, Laddie, how do they ca ye?
'They ca me this, an they ca me that,
Ye wudna ken fat they ca me;
But whan I 'm at home on bonnie Deeside
They ca me The Rantin Laddie.'
- 3 They sought her up, they sought her down,
They sought her in the parlour;
She coudna be got but whar she was,
In the bed wi The Rantin Laddie.
- 4 'Tell me, tell me, Baron of Leys,
Ye tell me how they ca ye!
Your gentle blood moves in my side,
An I dinna ken how they ca ye.'
- 5 'They ca me this, an they ca me that,
Ye couldna ken how they ca me;
But whan I 'm at home on bonnie Deeside
They ca me The Rantin Laddie.'
- 6 'Tell me, tell me, Baron of Leys,
Ye tell me how they ca ye!
Your gentle blood moves in my side,
An I dinna ken how to ca ye.'
- 7 'Baron of Leys, it is my stile,
Alexander Burnett they ca me;
Whan I 'm at hame on bonnie Deeside
My name is The Rantin Laddie.'
- 8 'Gin your name be Alexander Burnett,
Alas that ever I saw ye!
For ye hae a wife and bairns at hame,
An alas for lyin sae near ye!
- 9 'But I 'se gar ye be headit or hangt,
Or marry me the morn,
Or else pay down ten thousand crowns
For giein o me the scorn.'
- 10 'For my head, I canna want;
I love my lady dearly;
But some o my lands I maun lose in the case,
Alas for lyin sae near ye!'
- 11 Word has gane to the Lady of Leys
That the laird he had a bairn;
The warst word she said to that was,
'I wish I had it in my arms.'

- 12 'For I will sell my jointure-lands —
I am broken an I 'm sorry —
An I 'll sell a', to my silk gowns,
An get hame my rantin laddie.'

THE COBLE O CARGILL

Stobhall is on the left bank of the Tay, eight miles above Perth, in Cargill parish, and Cargill is a little farther up. Balathy is opposite Cargill, and Kercock is higher up the river on the right bank. The local tradition, as given by Motherwell in his manuscript and his book, is that the butler of Stobhall had a leman both at Kercock and at Balathy. Upon an occasion when the butler had gone to Kercock, the lass of Balathy scuttled the coble, which he had left below, "and waited his return, deeming that her suspicions of his infidelity would be well founded if he took the boat without visiting her in passing." The butler took the boat without stopping at Balathy, and in her sight the weary coble sank. Local tradition in such cases seldom means more than a theory which people have formed to explain a preëxisting ballad.

'The Coble o Cargill,' Motherwell's MS., p. 80; 'The Weary Coble o Cargill,' Motherwell's Minstrelsy, p. 230. Communicated to Motherwell by William George, tenant in Cambus Michael, Perthshire, who took it from the recitation of an old woman.

- 1 DAVID DRUMMOND's destinie,
Gude man o appearance o Cargill;
I wat his blude rins in the flude,
Sae sair against his parents' will.
- 2 She was the lass of Balathy toun,
And he the butler o Stobhall,
And mony a time she wauked late
To bore the coble o Cargill.
- 3 His bed was made in Kercock ha,
Of gude clean sheets and of [the] hay;
He wudna rest ae nicht therein,
But on the prude waters he wud gae.
- 4 His bed was made in Balathy toun,
Of the clean sheets and of the strae;
But I wat it was far better made
Into the bottom o bonnie Tay.

- 5 She bored the coble in seven pairts,
I wat her heart might hae been fu
sair;
For there she got the bonnie lad lost
Wi the curly locks and the yellow
hair.
- 6 He put his foot into the boat,
He little thocht o ony ill;
But before that he was mid-waters,
The weary coble began to fill.
- 7 'Woe be to the lass o Balathy toun,
I wat an ill death may she die!
For she bored the coble in seven pairts,
And let the waters perish me.
- 8 'Oh, help, oh help, I can get nane,
Nae help o man can to me come!'
This was about his dying words,
When he was choaked up to the
chin.
- 9 'Gae tell my father and my mother
It was naeboddy did me this ill;
I was a-going my ain errands,
Lost at the coble o bonnie Cargill.'
- 10 She bored the boat in seven pairts,
I wat she bored it wi gude will;
And there they got the bonnie lad's corpse,
In the kirk-shot o bonnie Cargill.
- 11 Oh a' the keys o bonnie Stobha
I wat they at his belt did hing;
But a' the keys of bonnie Stobha
They now ly low into the stream.
- 12 A braver page into his age
Neer set a foot upon the plain;
His father to his mother said,
'Oh, sae soon as we've wanted him!
- 13 'I wat they had mair luv than this
When they were young and at the scule;
But for his sake she wauked late,
And bored the coble o bonnie Cargill.'
- 14 'There's neer a clean sark gae on my
back,
Nor yet a kame gae in my hair;
There's neither coal nor candle-light
Shall shine in my bouir for evir mair.

15 'At kirk nor market I'se neer be at,
Nor yet a blythe blink in my ee;
There's neer a ane shall say to anither,
That's the lassie gard the young man
die.

16 'Between the yates o bonnie Stobha
And the kirk-style o bonnie Cargill,
There is mony a man and mother's son
That was at my love's burial.'

JAMES HARRIS
(THE DÆMON LOVER)

There are several copies of the broadside version (A); that in the Pepys collection was printed for Thackeray and Passenger, and the ballad is No. 71 in Thackeray's list, printed 1685. 'The Dæmon Lover' was first published in Scott's Minstrelsy, 5th edition, 1812 (F). William Laidlaw, who furnished the copy, inserted four stanzas of his own (here omitted). D (probably by the fortunate accident of being a fragment) leaves us to put our own construction upon the weird seaman; and though it retains the homely ship-carpenter, is on the whole the most satisfactory of all the versions.

A

A Warning for Married Women, being an example of Mrs Jane Reynolds (a West-country woman), born near Plymouth, who, having plighted her troth to a Seaman, was afterwards married to a Carpenter, and at last carried away by a Spirit, the manner how shall presently be recited. To a West-country tune called 'The Fair Maid of Bristol,' 'Bateman,' or 'John True.' Pepys Ballads, iv, 101.

- 1 THERE dwelt a fair maid in the West,
Of worthy birth and fame,
Neer unto Plimouth, stately town,
Jane Reynolds was her name.
- 2 This damsel dearly was belovd
By many a proper youth,
And what of her is to be said
Is known for very truth.
- 3 Among the rest a seaman brave
Unto her a wooing came;
A comely proper youth he was,
James Harris calld by name.

- 4 The maid and young man was agreed,
As time did them allow,
And to each other secretly
They made a solemn vow,
- 5 That they would ever faithfull be
Whilst Heaven afforded life;
He was to be her husband kind,
And she his faithfull wife.
- 6 A day appointed was also
When they was to be married;
But before these things were brought to
pass
Matters were strangely carried.
- 7 All you that faithfull lovers be
Give ear and hearken well,
And what of them became at last
I will directly tell.
- 8 The young man he was prest to sea,
And forc'd was to go;
His sweet-heart she must stay behind,
Whether she would or no.
- 9 And after he was from her gone
She three years for him staid,
Expecting of his comeing home,
And kept herself a maid.
- 10 At last news came that he was dead
Within a forraign land,
And how that he was buried
She well did understand,
- 11 For whose sweet sake the maiden she Lamented many a day,
And never was she known at all
The wanton for to play.
- 12 A carpenter that livd hard by,
When he heard of the same,
Like as the other had done before,
To her a wooing came.
- 13 But when that he had gained her
love
They married were with speed,
And four years space, being man and
wife,
They loveingly agreed.
- 14 Three pritty children in this time
This loving couple had,
Which made their father's heart re-joyce,
And mother wondrous glad.
- 15 But as occasion servd, one time
The good man took his way
Some three days journey from his home,
Intending not to stay.
- 16 But, whilst that he was gone away,
A spirit in the night
Came to the window of his wife,
And did her sorely fright.
- 17 Which spirit spake like to a man,
And unto her did say,
'My dear and onely love,' quoth he,
'Prepare and come away.'
- 18 'James Harris is my name,' quoth he,
'Whom thou didst love so dear,
And I have traveld for thy sake
At least this seven year.'
- 19 'And now I am returnd again,
To take thee to my wife,
And thou with me shalt go to sea,
To end all further strife.'
- 20 'O tempt me not, sweet James,' quoth
she,
'With thee away to go;
If I should leave my children small,
Alas! what would they do?'
- 21 'My husband is a carpenter,
A carpenter of great fame;
I would not for five hundred pounds
That he should know the same.'
- 22 'I might have had a king's daughter,
And she would have married me;
But I forsook her golden crown,
And for the love of thee.'
- 23 'Therefore, if thou 'lt thy husband for-
sake,
And thy children three also,
I will forgive the[e] what is past,
If thou wilt with me go.'
- 24 'If I forsake my husband and
My little children three,
What means hast thou to bring me to,
If I should go with thee?'

25 'I have seven ships upon the sea;
When they are come to land,
Both marriners and marchandize
Shall be at thy command.

26 'The ship wherein my love shall sail
Is glorious to behold;
The sails shall be of finest silk,
And the mast of shining gold.'

27 When he had told her these fair tales,
To love him she began,
Because he was in human shape,
Much like unto a man.

28 And so together away they went
From off the English shore,
And since that time the woman-kind
Was never seen no more.

29 But when her husband he come home
And found his wife was gone,
And left her three sweet pretty babes
Within the house alone,

30 He beat his breast, he tore his hair,
The tears fell from his eyes,
And in the open streets he run
With heavy doleful cries.

31 And in this sad distracted case
He hangd himself for woe
Upon a tree near to the place;
The truth of all is so.

32 The children now are fatherless,
And left without a guide,
But yet no doubt the heavenly powers
Will for them well provide.

D

'The Carpenter's Wife,' Kinloch MSS., i, 297; from the recitation of T. Kinnear, Stonehaven.

1 'O WHARE hae ye been, my dearest dear,
These seven lang years and more?'
'O I am come to seek my former vows,
That ye promisd me before.'

2 'Awa wi your former vows,' she says,
'Or else ye will breed strife;
Awa wi your former vows,' she says,
'For I'm become a wife.'

3 'I am married to a ship-carpenter,
A ship-carpenter he's bound;
I wadna he kend my mind this night
For twice five hundred pound.'

* * * * *

4 She has put her foot on gude ship-board,
And on ship-board she's gane,
And the veil that hung oure her face
Was a' wi gowd begane.

5 She had na sailed a league, a league,
A league but barely twa,
Till she did mind on the husband she left,
And her wee young son alsua.

6 'O hand your tongue, my dearest dear,
Let all your follies abee;
I'll show whare the white lillies grow,
On the banks of Italie.'

7 She had na sailed a league, a league,
A league but barely three,
Till grim, grim grew his countenance,
And gurly grew the sea.

8 'O hand your tongue, my dearest dear,
Let all your follies abee;
I'll show whare the white lillies grow,
In the bottom of the sea.'

9 He's tane her by the milk-white hand,
And he's thrown her in the main;
And full five-and-twenty hundred ships
Perishd all on the coast of Spain.

F

'The Dæmon Lover,' Minstrelsy of the Scottish Border, 5th edition, 1812, ii, 427; taken down from the recitation of Walter Grieve by William Laidlaw.

1 'O WHERE have you been, my long, long
love,
This long seven years and mair?'
'O I'm come to seek my former vows
Ye granted me before.'

2 'O hold your tongue of your former
vows,
For they will breed sad strife;
O hold your tongue of your former
vows,
For I am become a wife.'

- 3 He turned him right and round about,
And the tear blinded his ee:
'I wad never hae trodden on Irish
ground,
If it had not been for thee.
- 4 'I might hae had a king's daughter,
Far, far beyond the sea;
I might have had a king's daughter,
Had it not been for love o thee.'
- 5 'If ye might have had a king's daughter,
Yer sel ye had to blame;
Ye might have taken the king's daughter,
For ye kend that I was nane.
- 6 'If I was to leave my husband dear,
And my two babes also,
O what have you to take me to,
If with you I should go?'
- 7 'I hae seven ships upon the sea —
The eighth brought me to land —
With four-and-twenty bold mariners,
And music on every hand.'
- 8 She has taken up her two little babes,
Kissd them baith cheek and chin:
'O fair ye weel, my ain two babes,
For I 'll never see you again.'
- 9 She set her foot upon the ship,
No mariners could she behold;
But the sails were o the taffetie,
And the masts o the beaten gold.
- 10 She had not sailed a league, a league,
A league but barely three,
When dismal grew his countenance,
And drumlie grew his ee.
- 11 They had not saild a league, a league,
A league but barely three,
Until she espied his cloven foot,
And she wept right bitterlie.
- 12 'O hold your tongue of your weeping,' says he,
'Of your weeping now let me be;
I will shew you how the l'ies grow
On the banks of Italy.'
- 13 'O what hills are yon, yon pleasant hills,
That the sun shines sweetly on?'

'O yon are the hills of heaven,' he said,
'Where you will never win.'

- 14 'O whaten a mountain is yon,' she said,
'All so dreary wi frost and snow?'
'O yon is the mountain of hell,' he cried,
'Where you and I will go.'

- 15 He strack the tap-mast wi his hand,
The fore-mast wi his knee,
And he brake that gallant ship in twain,
And sank her in the sea.

JAMES HATLEY

In a version in Motherwell's MS. (C), Fenwick becomes Phenix and James Hatley becomes Jamie O'Lee.

a. Scotch Ballads, Materials for Border Minstrelsy, No. 85, MS. of Thomas Wilkie, p. 6, Abbotsford; "from Betty Hoyl, who learned it from her mother," Gattonside. b. 'James Hatley,' Campbell MSS., II, 289. c. 'James Hatelie,' R. Chambers, The Romantic Scottish Ballads, etc., 1859, p. 37; "taken down many years ago from the singing of an old man in the south of Scotland."

- 1 It happened once upon a time,
When the king he was from home,
Sir Fenwick he has stolen his jewels,
And laid the blame on James Hatley.
- 2 James Hatley was in prison strong,
A wait he was condemned to die;
There was not one in all the court
To speak one word for James Hatley.
- 3 No one but the king's daughter,
A wait she loved him tenderlie;
She's stolen the keys from her father's head,
And gaed and conversed wi James Hatley.
- 4 'Come, tell to me now, James,' she said,
'Come, tell to me if thou hast them stolen,
And I'll make a vow, and I'll keep it true,
Ye shall never be the worse of me.'

- 5 'I have not stolen them, lady,' he said,
'Nor as little it was intended by me;
Sir Fenwick he has stolen them himself;
A wait he has laid the blame on me.'
- 6 'One asking, one asking, father dear,
One asking, one asking grant to me,
For I never asked one in my life;
I am sure you cannot but grant it to me.'
- 7 'Weel ask it, weel ask it, daughter dear,
Ask it, and it granted shall be;
If it should be my hale estate,
Naesaid, naesaid, it shall not be.'
- 8 'I want none of your gold, father,
And I want none of your fee;
All that I ask, father dear,
It is the life of James Hatley.'
- 9 'Weel ask it, weel ask it, daughter dear,
Weel ask it, and it answer'd shall be;
For I'll make a vow, and I'll keep it true,
James Hatley shall never hang'd be.'
- 10 'Another asking, father dear,
Another asking grant to me;
Let Fenwick and Hatley go [to] the sword,
And let them try their verity.'
- 11 'Tis weel ask'd, daughter dear,
'Tis weel asked, and it granted shall be;
For eer the morn or twelve o'clock
They both at the point of the sword shall be.'
- 12 James Hatley was fifteen years old,
Sir Fenwick he was thirty three;
But James lapabout, and he struck about,
Till he's gaen Sir Fenwick wounds three.
- 13 'Hold up, hold up, James Hatley,' he cry'd,
'And let my breath go out and in;
For I have stolen them myself,
More shame and disgrace it is to me.'
- 14 Up and spake an English lord,
And O but he spake haughtily!

'I would reather given my whole estates
Before ye had not hanged James Hatley.'

- 15 But up and spake a Scottish lord,
And O but he spake boldly!
'I would reather hae foughten among blood to the knees
Before ye had hanged James Hatley.'

- 16 Up and spake the king's eldest son,
'Come hame, James Hatley, and dine wi me;
For I've made a vow, I'll keep it true,
Ye's be my captain by land and by sea.'

- 17 Up and spake the king's daughter,
'Come hame, James Hatley, and dine wi me;
For I've made a vow, I'll keep it true,
I'll never marry a man but thee.'

YOUNG ALLAN

This ballad is mixed with 'Sir Patrick Spens' (No. 58). By far the most interesting feature in it is Allan's addressing his ship and the ship's intelligent behavior. Such ships are known elsewhere in popular tradition. In one of the best of the Danish ballads (Grundtvig, No. 50), the Ox, when sailed by St Olav, responds to his commands as if fully endowed with consciousness; he thwacks it in the side and over the eye, and it goes faster and faster; but it is animate only for the nonce. The Phæacian ships have neither helmsman nor helm, and know men's minds and the way to all cities: Odyssey, viii, 557 ff. There is a magical self-moving ship in Marie de France's Guigemar, and elsewhere.

The Old Lady's Collection, MS., No. 4.

- 1 AA the skippers of bonny Lothen,
As they sat att the wine,
Ther fell a rosin them among,
An it was in an unhappy time.

- 2 Some of them roused ther haks,
An some of them ther hounds,
An some of them ther gay ladys,
Trood neat on the plain:

- Young Allan he roused his comely
coug,
That lay upon the strand.
- 3 'I haa as good a ship this day
As ever sailed our seas,
Except it be the Burges Black,
Bat an the Small Cordvine,
The comly coug of Dornisdall;
We sall lay that three bay in time.'
- 4 Out spak a littel boy,
Just att Young Allan's knee,
'Ye lie, ye lie, ye Young Allan,
Sae loud as I hear ye lie.
- 5 'For my master has a littel boat
Will sail thris as well as thin;
For she 'll come in att your formast
An gee out att yer forlee,
An nine times in a winter night
She 'll take the wine fra the.
- 6 'O fatt will ye wade, ye Young Allan,
Or fatt will ye wad we me?'
'I ill wad my head agenst yer land,
Till I gett more monie.'
- 7 They hed na sailed a legg, [a legg,]
A legg bat bairly three,
Till throug an throu ther bonny ship
They saa the green wall sea.
- 8 They had na sailed a leag, [a leag,]
A leag bat barly fave,
Till through en throu ther bonny ship
They saa the green wall wave.
- 9 He gied up to the tapmast,
To see fat he coud see,
An ther he saa the Burges Black,
Bat an the Small Cordvine,
The comly coug of Dornasdell;
The three was rent in nine.
- 10 Young Allan he grat, an he wrang his hans,
An he kent na fat till dee:
'The win is loud, an the waves is prood,
An we will a' sink in the sea.
- 11 'Bat gin I cod gett a bonny boy
To tak my healm in han,
. . . that wad bring
My bonny ship safe to lan,
- 12 'He sud gett the tua part of my
goud,
An the therd part of my lan,
An gin we wine safe to shor
He sud gett my daughter Ann.'
- 13 'Hear am I, a bonny boy
That will take yer helm in han,
. . . an will bring
Your bonny ship safe to land.
- 14 'Ye take four-an-twenty fether-beds,
An ye lay the bonny ship roun,
An as much of the good cannis
As make her hell an soun.'
- 15 They took four-an-tuenty fether-beds,
An laid the bonny ship roun,
An as much of the good canies
As made her hell an soun.
- 16 'Spring up, my bony ship,
An goud sall be yer hair!'
Fan the bonny ship hard of that,
Att goud sud be her hire,
She sprang as fast fra the sate water
As the spark dis frae the fire.
- 17 'Spring up, my bonny ship,
An goud sall be yer fee!'
An fan the bonny ship hard of that,
Goud was to be her fee,
She sprang as fast fra the sat water
As the life dos fra the tree.
- 18 The salors stans on the shore-sid,
We ther ill-bukled shen:
'Thanks to God an our gued mas-
ter
That ever we came to land!'
- 19 'Far is the bonny boy
That took my healm in hand?
. . . that brought
My bonny ship safe to land?
- 20 'He's gett the twa part of my goud,
The therd part of my lan,
An since we ha wone safe to shore
He's gett my doughter Ann.'
- 21 'Hear am I, the bonny boy
That took yer healm in han,
That brought yer bonny ship,
An brought her safe to lan.

22 'I winnè ha the tua part of yer goud,
Nor the therd part of yer lan,
Bat since we ha wine safe to shor
I will wed yer daughter Ann.'

23 Fortey ships went to the sea,
Forty ships an five,
An ther came never on back
Bat Young Allan alive.

REDESDALE AND WISE
WILLIAM

This ballad may be an offshoot from a widely spread story which is tediously told further on in 'The Twa Knights' (No. 268). A, sts. 1, 2, 5, are substantially a repetition of No. 245, A, 1, 2, 6, etc.

A

'Reedisdale and Wise William,' Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, II, 701, written down from memory by Mr Nicol, Strichen, as learned in his earlier years from old people; Motherwell's MS., p. 452; Motherwell's Minstrelsy, p. 298.

1 WHEN Reedisdale and Wise William
Were drinking at the wine,
There fell a roosing them amang,
On an unruly time.

2 For some o them hae roosd their hawks,
And other some their hounds,
And other some their ladies fair,
And their bowers whare they walkd in.

3 When out it spake him Reedisdale,
And a rash word spake he;
Says, There is not a lady fair,
In bower wherever she be,
But I could aye her favour win
Wi ae blink o my ee.

4 Then out it spake him Wise William,
And a rash word spake he;
Says, I have a sister of my own,
In bower where ever she be,
And ye will not her favour win
With three blinks of your ee.

5 'What will ye wager, Wise William?
My lands I'll wad with thee;'

'I'll wad my head against your land,
Till I get more monie.'

6 Then Reedisdale took Wise William,
Laid him in prison strang,
That he might neither gang nor ride,
Nor ae word to her send.

7 But he has written a braid letter,
Between the night and day,
And sent it to his own sister
By dun feather and gray.

8 When she had read Wise William's letter,
She smilèd and she leugh;
Said, Very well, my dear brother,
Of this I have eneuch.

9 She looked out at her west window
To see what she could see,
And there she spied him Reedisdale
Come riding ower the lea.

10 Says, Come to me, my maidens all,
Come hitherward to me;
For here it comes him Reedisdale,
Who comes a-courting me.

11 'Come down, come down, my lady
fair,
A sight of you give me;'
'Go from my yetts now, Reedisdale,
For me you will not see.'

12 'Come down, come down, my lady
fair,
A sight of you give me;
And bonny are the gowns of silk
That I will give to thee.'

13 'If you have bonny gowns of silk,
O mine is bonny tee;
Go from my yetts now, Reedisdale,
For me you shall not see.'

14 'Come down, come down, my lady fair,
A sight of you I'll see;
And bonny jewels, brooches and rings
I will give unto thee.'

15 'If you have bonny brooches and rings,
O mine are bonny tee;
Go from my yetts now, Reedisdale,
For me you shall not see.'

- 16 'Come down, come down, my lady fair,
One sight of you I'll see;
And bonny are the ha's and bowers
That I will give to thee.'
- 17 'If you have bonny ha's and bowers,
O mine are bonny tee;
Go from my yetts now, Reedisdale,
For me you shall not see.'
- 18 'Come down, come down, my lady fair,
A sight of you I'll see;
And bonny are my lands so broad
That I will give to thee.'
- 19 'If you have bonny lands so broad,
O mine are bonny tee;
Go from my yetts now, Reedisdale,
For me ye will not see.'
- 20 'Come down, come down, my lady fair,
A sight of you I'll see;
And bonny are the bags of gold
That I will give to thee.'
- 21 'If you have bonny bags of gold,
I have bags of the same;
Go from my yetts now, Reedisdale,
For down I will not come.'
- 22 'Come down, come down, my lady fair,
One sight of you I'll see;
Or else I'll set your house on fire,
If better cannot be.'
- 23 Then he has set the house on fire,
And all the rest it tuke;
He turned his wight horse head about,
Said, Alas, they'll ne'er get out!
- 24 'Look out, look out, my maidens fair,
And see what I do see,
How Reedisdale has fired our house,
And now rides oer the sea.
- 25 'Come hitherwards, my maidens fair,
Come hither unto me;
For thro this reek, and thro this smeek,
O thro it we must be!'
- 26 They took wet mantles them about,
Their coffers by the band,
And thro the reek, and thro the flame,
Alive they all have wan.

- 27 When they had got out thro the fire,
And able all to stand,
She sent a maid to Wise William,
To bruik Reedisdale's land.

- 28 'Your lands is mine now, Reedisdale,
For I have won them free;
'If there is a gude woman in the world,
Your one sister is she.'

LADY ELSPAT

This ballad was No. 10 of the fifteen of Mrs Brown's which were obtained by William Tytler from Professor Thomas Gordon in 1783.

'Lady Elspat.' a. Jamieson-Brown MS., p. 19. Printed in Jamieson's Popular Ballads, II. 191. b. Scottish Songs, MS., fol. 30, Abbotsford Library, N. 8, in the handwriting of Walter Scott, about 1795.

- 1 'How brent is your brow, my Lady Elspat!
How golden yallow is your hair!
Of all the maids of fair Scotland,
'There's nane like Lady Elspat fair.'
- 2 'Perform your vows, Sweet William,'
she says,
'The vows which ye ha made to me,
An at the back o my mother's castle
This night I'll surely meet wi thee'
- 3 But wae be to her brother's page,
Who heard the words this twa did say!
He's told them to her lady mother,
Who wrought Sweet William mieckle wae.
- 4 For she has taen him Sweet William,
An she's gard bind him wi his bow-string
Till the red bluide o his fair body
Frae ilka nail o his hand did spring.
- 5 O it fell once upon a time
That the Lord Justice came to town;
Out has she taen him Sweet William,
Brought him before Lord Justice boun.

- 6 'An what is the crime, now, madame,'
he says,
'Has been committed by this young
man?'
- 'O he has broken my bonny castel,
That was well biggit wi lime an stane.
- 7 'An he has broken my bonny coffers,
That was well banded wi aiken ban,
An he has stohn my rich jewels;
I wot he has them every one.'
- 8 Then out it spake her Lady Elspat,
As she sat by Lord Justice knee;
'Now ye hae taul your tale, mother,
I pray, Lord Justice, you 'l now hear
me.
- 9 'He has na broken her bonny castel,
That was well biggit wi lime an stane,
Nor has he stohn her rich jewels,
For I wot she has them every one.
- 10 'But tho he was my first true love,
An tho I had sworn to be his bride,
Cause he had not a great estate,
She would this way our loves divide.'
- 11 An out it spake the Lord Justice,
I wot the tear was in his ee;
'I see nae fault in this young man,
Sae loose his bans, an set him free.
- 12 'Take back your love, now, Lady Elspat,
An my best blessing you baith upon!
For gin he be your first true love,
He is my eldest sister's son.
- 13 'There is a steed in my stable
Cost me baith gold and white money;
Ye 's get as mieckle o my free lan
As he 'll ride about in a summer's
day.'

THE GREY COCK, OR, SAW YOU MY FATHER?

This piece is a variety of the aube (concerning which species see Jeanroy, Les Origines de la Poésie lyrique en France, chapter 3), but is none the less quite modern. There are French and Italian ballads of the same general description. The treacherous or troublesome bird is in French the lark, in one case the cock; in Italian the swallow.

a. 'The Grey Cock,' Herd's Ancient and Modern Scots Songs, 1769, p. 324; Herd's MSS., i, 4; Herd's Ancient and Modern Scottish Songs, 1776, ii, 208. b. 'Saw you my father?' Chappell's Popular Music of the Olden Time, p. 731.

- 1 'O saw ye my father? or saw ye my mother?
Or saw ye my true-love John?'
'I saw not your father, I saw not your
mother,
But I saw your true-love John.
- 2 'It's now ten at night, and the stars gie
nae light,
And the bells they ring ding, dang;
He's met wi some delay that causeth
him to stay,
But he will be here ere lang.'
- 3 The surly auld carl did naething but snarl,
And Johny's face it grew red;
Yet, tho he often sighd, he neer a word replied
Till all were asleep in bed.
- 4 Up Johny rose, and to the door he goes,
And gently tirl'd the pin;
The lassie taking tent unto the door she
went,
And she opend and let him in.
- 5 'And are ye come at last? and do I hold ye fast?
And is my Johny true?'
'I hae nae time to tell, but sae lang's
I like mysell
Sae lang will I love you.'
- 6 'Flee, flee up, my bonny grey cock,
And craw whan it is day;
Your neck shall be like the bonny beaten
gold,
And your wings of the silver grey.'
- 7 The cock prov'd false, and untrue he was,
For he crew an hour oer soon;
The lassie thought it day when she sent her love away,
And it war but a blink of the moon.

AULD MATRONS

This piece was made by some one who had acquaintance with the first fit of 'Adam Bell.' The anonymous 'old wife' becomes 'auld Matrons;' Inglewood, Ringlewood. The conclusion is in imitation of the rescues in Robin Hood ballads.

'Auld Matrons,' Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, II, 238; Motherwell's MS., p. 585, with the title 'Love Annie.'

- 1 My love she is a gentlewoman,
Has her living by the seam;
I kenna how she is provided
This night for me and my foot-
groom.
- 2 He is gane to Annie's bower-door,
And gently tirl'd at the pin:
'Ye sleep, ye wake, my love Annie,
Ye'll rise and lat your true-love
in.'
- 3 Wi her white fingers lang and sma
She gently lifted up the pin;
Wi her arms lang and bent
She kindly caught sweet Willie in.
- 4 'O will ye go to cards or dice?
Or will ye go to play?
Or will ye go to a well made bed,
And sleep a while till day?'
- 5 'I winna gang to cards nor dice,
Nor yet will I to play;
But I will gang to a well made bed,
And sleep a while till day.
- 6 'My love Annie, my dear Annie,
I would be at your desire;
But wae mat fa the auld Matrons,
As she sits by the kitchen fire!'
- 7 'Keep up your heart, Willie,' she said,
'Keep up your heart, dinna fear;
It's seven years, and some guid mair,
Sin her foot did file the fear.'
- 8 They hadna kiss'd nor love clapp'd,
As lovers when they meet,
Till up it raise the auld Matrons,
Sae well's she spread her feet.

- 9 O wae mat fa the auld Matrons,
Sae clever's she took the gate!
And she's gaen ower yon lang, lang hill,
Knock'd at the sheriff's yate.
- 10 'Ye sleep, ye wake, my lord?' she said;
'Are ye not your bower within?
There's a knight in bed wi your daugh-
ter,
I fear she's gotten wrang.'
- 11 'Ye'll do ye down thro Kelso town,
Waken my wall-wight men;
And gin ye hae your wark well dune
I'll be there at command.'
- 12 She's done her down thro Kelso town,
Wakend his wall-wight men;
But gin she had her wark well done
He was there at command.
- 13 He had his horse wi corn fodderd,
His men armd in mail;
He gae the Matrons half a merk
'To show them ower the hill.
- 14 Willie sleep'd, but Annie waked
Till she heard their bridles ring;
Then tapp'd on her love's shoulder,
And said, Ye've sleepit lang.
- 15 'O save me, save me, my bless'd lady,
Till I've on my shooting-gear;
I dinna fear the king himsell,
Tho he an's men were here.'
- 16 Then they shot in, and Willie out,
The arrows graz'd his brow;
The maid she wept and tore her hair,
Says, This can never do.
- 17 Then they shot in, and he shot out,
The bow brunt Willie's hand;
But aye he kiss'd her ruby lips,
Said, My dear, thinkna lang.
- 18 He set his horn to his mouth,
And has blawn loud and shrill,
And he's call'd on his brother John,
In Ringlewood he lay still.
- 19 The first an shot that Lord John shot,
He wound fifty and fifteen;
The next an shot that Lord John shot,
He ca'd out the sheriff's een.

20 'O some o you lend me an arm,
Some o you lend me twa;
And they that came for strife this day,
Take horse, ride fast awa.

21 'But wae mat fa you, auld Matrons,
An ill death mat ye die!
I'll burn you on yon high hill-head,
Blaw your ashes in the sea.'

HENRY MARTYN

This ballad must have sprung from the ashes of 'Sir Andrew Barton' (No. 167). It comes nearer than the others to the original, but stas. 11-13 are derived from No. 287, stas. 8, 10. Only one copy (A a) preserves the trait of Barton's death, an incident not quite in keeping with the rest of the story of the new ballad.

A

'Henry Martyn,' taken down by the Rev. S. Baring-Gould. a. From Matthew Baker, an old cripple, Lew Down, Devon. b. From Roger Luxton, an old man at Halwell, North Devon.

1 In merry Scotland, in merry Scotland
There lived brothers three;
They all did cast lots which of them should go
A robbing upon the salt sea.

2 The lot it fell on Henry Martyn,
The youngest of the three;
That he should go rob on the salt, salt
sea,
To maintain his brothers and he.

3 He had not a sailed a long winter's
night,
Nor yet a short winter's day,
Before that he met with a lofty old ship,
Come sailing along that way.

4 O when she came by Henry Martyn,
'I prithee now, let us go!'
'O po! God wot, that, that will I not,
O that will I never do.

5 'Stand off! stand off!' said Henry Martyn,
'For you shall not pass by me;

For I am a robber all on the salt seas,
To maintain us brothers three.

6 'How far, how far,' cries Henry Martyn,
'How far do you make it?' said he;
'For I am a robber all on the salt seas,
To maintain us brothers three.'

7 For three long hours they merrily
fought,
For hours they fought full three;
At last a deep wound got Henry Martyn,
And down by the mast fell he.

8 'T was broadside to a broadside then,
And a rain and hail of blows,
But the salt sea ran in, ran in, ran in,
To the bottom then she goes.

9 Bad news, bad news for old England,
Bad news has come to the town,
For a rich merchant's vessel is cast
away,
And all her brave seamen drown.

10 Bad news, bad news through London street,
Bad news has come to the king,
For all the brave lives of the mariners
lost,
That are sunk in the watery main.

E

'Andrew Bartin,' communicated by Miss Louise Porter Haskell as derived from Gen. E. P. Alexander of South Carolina, and derived by him from the singing of a cadet at West Point Military Academy in the winter of 1856-7. Two or three slight corrections have been made by Mrs A. C. Haskell, sister of Gen. Alexander.

1 THREE bold brothers of merrie Scot-
land,
And three bold brothers were they,
And they cast lots the one with the
other,
To see who should go robbing all oer
the salt sea;
And they cast lots the one with the
other,
To see who should go robbing all oer
the salt sea.

2 The lot it fell on Andrew Bartin,
The youngest of the three,

That he should go robbing all oer the salt sea,
To maintain his two brothers and
he.

3 He had not sailed but one long summer
night,
When daylight did appear;
He saw a ship sailing far off and far
round,
At last she came sailing quite near.

4 'Who art? who art?' says Andrew
Bartin,
'Who art thee comes sailing so nigh?'
'We are the rich merchants of merrie
England,
Just please for to let us pass by.'

5 'Pass by? pass by?' says Andrew
Bartin,
'No, no, that never can be;
Your ship and your cargo I will take
away,
And your brave men drown in the
sea.'

6 Now when this news reached merrie
England —
King George he wore the crown —
That his ship and his cargo were taken
away,
And his brave men they were all drowned.

7 'Go build me a ship,' says Captain
Charles Stewart,
'A ship both stout and sure,
And if I dont fetch this Andrew Bartin,
My life shall no longer endure.'

8 He had not sailed but one long summer
night,
When daylight did appear,
He saw a ship sailing far off and far
round,
And then she came sailing quite near.

9 'Who art? who art?' says Captain
Charles Stewart,
'Who art comes sailing so nigh?'
'We are the bold brothers of merrie
Scotland,
Just please for to let us pass by.'

10 'Pass by? pass by?' says Captain
Charles Stewart,
'No, no, that never can be;
Your ship and your cargo I will take
away,
And your brave men carry with
me.'

11 'Come on! come on!' says Andrew
Bartin,
'I value you not one pin;
And though you are lined with good brass without,
I'll show you I've fine steel within.'

12 Then they drew up a full broadside
And each at other let pour;
They had not fought for four hours or
more,
When Captain Charles Stewart gave
oer.

13 'Go home! go home!' says Andrew
Bartin,
'And tell your king for me,
That he may reign king of the merry dryland,
But that I will be king of the sea.'

LANG JOHNNY MORE

'Lang Johnny More' should be compared with 'Johnie Scot' (No. 99). It is perhaps an imitation, and in fact almost a parody of that ballad. There John is the little Scot; here he is the muckle Scot, stanza 6 (Gaelic mar = big), and his helpmates, as well as he, are of gigantic size. Except this and one other particular, the stories are materially the same.

'Lang Johnny Moir,' Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, I, 248.

1 THERE lives a man in Rynie's land,
Anither in Auchindore,
The bravest lad amo them a'
Was lang Johnny Moir.

2 Young Johnny was an airy blade,
Fu sturdy, stout, and strang;
The sword that hang by Johnny's
side
Was just full ten feet lang.

- 3 Young Johnny was a clever youth,
Fu sturdy, stout, and wight,
Just full three yards around the waist,
And fourteen feet in hight.
- 4 But if a' be true they tell me now,
And a' be true I hear,
Young Johnny's on to Lundan gane,
The king's banner to bear.
- 5 He hadna been in fair Lundan
But twalmonths twa or three
Till the fairest lady in a' Lundan
Fell in love wi young Johnny.
- 6 This news did sound thro Lundan town,
Till it came to the king
That the muckle Scot had fa'in in love
Wi his daughter, Lady Jean.
- 7 Whan the king got word o that,
A solemn oath sware he,
This weighty Scot sall strait a rope,
And hanged he shall be.
- 8 When Johnny heard the sentence past,
A light laugh then gae he:
'While I hae strength to wield my blade,
Ye darena a' hang me.'
- 9 The English dogs were cunning rogues;
About him they did creep,
And gae him draps o lodomy
That laid him fast asleep.
- 10 Whan Johnny wakend frae his sleep
A sorry heart had he;
His jaws and hands in iron bands,
His feet in fetters three.
- 11 'O whar will I get a little wee boy
Will work for meat and fee,
That will rin on to my uncle,
At the foot of Benachie?'
- 12 'Here am I, a little wee boy
Will work for meat and fee,
That will rin on to your uncle,
At the foot of Benachie.'
- 13 'Whan ye come whar grass grows green,
Slack your shoes and rin;
And whan ye come whar water's strong,
Ye'll bend your bow and swim.
- 14 'And whan ye come to Benachie
Ye'll neither chap nor ca;
Sae well's ye'll ken auld Johnny there,
Three feet abeen them a'.
- 15 'Ye'll gie to him this braid letter,
Seald wi my faith and troth,
And ye'll bid him bring along wi him
The body Jock o Noth.'
- 16 Whan he came whar grass grew green,
He slackt his shoes and ran;
And whan he came whar water's strong
He bent his bow and swam.
- 17 And whan he came to Benachie
Did neither chap nor ca;
Sae well's he kent auld Johnny there,
Three feet abeen them a'.
- 18 'What news, what news, my little wee
boy?
Ye never were here before;'
'Nae news, nae news, but a letter from Your nephew, Johnny Moir.
- 19 'Ye'll take here this braid letter,
Seald wi his faith and troth,
And ye're bidden bring along wi you
The body Jock o Noth.'
- 20 Benachie lyes very low,
The tap o Noth lyes high;
For a' the distance that's between,
He heard auld Johnny cry.
- 21 Whan on the plain these champions
met,
Twa grizly ghosts to see,
There were three feet between their brows,
And shoulders were yards three.
- 22 These men they ran ower hills and dales,
And ower mountains high,
Till they came on to Lundan town,
At the dawn o the third day.
- 23 And whan they came to Lundan town
The yetts were lockit wi bands,
And wha were there but a trumpeter,
Wi trumpet in his hands?
- 24 'What is the matter, ye keepers all?
Or what's the matter within

- That the drums do beat and bells do
ring,
And make sic dolefu din ?'
- 25 'There 's naething the matter,' the keeper said,
'There 's naething the matter to thee,
But a weighty Scot to strait the rope,
And the morn he maun die.'
- 26 'O open the yetts, ye proud keepers,
Ye'll open without delay;'
The trembling keeper, smiling, said,
'O I hae not the key.'
- 27 'Ye'll open the yetts, ye proud keepers,
Ye'll open without delay,
Or here is a body at my back
Frae Scotland has brought the key.'
- 28 'Ye'll open the yetts,' says Jock o Noth,
'Ye'll open them at my call;'
Then wi his foot he has drove in Three yards braid o the wall.
- 29 As they gaed in by Drury Lane,
And down by the town's hall,
And there they saw young Johnny Moir
Stand on their English wall.
- 30 'Ye're welcome here, my uncle dear,
Ye're welcome unto me;
Ye'll loose the knot, and slack the rope,
And set me frae the tree.'
- 31 'Is it for murder, or for theft ?
Or is it for robberie ?
If it is for ony heinous crime,
There 's nae remeid for thee.'
- 32 'It's nae for murder, nor for theft,
Nor yet for robberie;
A' is for the loving a gay lady
They're gaun to gar me die.'
- 33 'O whar 's thy sword,' says Jock o Noth,
'Ye brought frae Scotland wi thee ?
I never saw a Scotsman yet
But coud wield a sword or tree.'
- 34 'A pox upo their lodomy,
On me had sic a sway
Four o their men, the bravest four,
They bore my blade away.'
- 35 'Bring back his blade,' says Jock o Noth,
'And freely to him it gie,
Or I hae sworn a black Scot's oath
I'll gar five million die.'
- 36 'Now whar's the lady ?' says Jock o
Noth,
'Sae fain I woud her see;'
'She's lockd up in her ain chamber,
The king he keeps the key.'
- 37 So they hae gane before the king,
With courage bauld and free;
Their armour bright cast sic a light
That almost dim'd his ee.
- 38 'O whar 's the lady ?' says Jock o Noth,
'Sae fain as I woud her see;
For we are come to her wedding,
Frae the foot o Benachie.'
- 39 'O take the lady,' said the king,
'Ye welcome are for me;
I never thought to see sic men,
Frae the foot o Benachie.'
- 40 'If I had kend,' said Jock o Noth,
'Ye'd wonderd sae muckle at me,
I woud hae brought ane larger far
By sizes three times three.'
- 41 'Likewise if I had thought I'd been
Sic a great fright to thee,
I'd brought Sir John o Erskine Park;
He's thretty feet and three.'
- 42 'Wae to the little boy,' said the king,
'Brought tidings unto thee !
Let all England say what they will,
High hang'd shall he be.'
- 43 'O if ye hang the little wee boy
Brought tidings unto me,
We shall attend his burial,
And rewarded ye shall be.'
- 44 'O take the lady,' said the king,
'And the boy shall be free;'
'A priest, a priest,' then Johnny cried,
'To join my love and me.'
- 45 'A clerk, a clerk,' the king replied,
'To seal her tocher wi thee;'
Out it speaks auld Johnny then,
These words pronounced he:

- 46 'I want nae lands and rents at hame,
I'll ask nae gowd frae thee;
I am possessd o riches great,
Hae fifty ploughs and three;
Likewise fa's heir to ane estate
At the foot o Benachie.
- 47 'Hae ye ony masons in this place,
Or ony at your call,
That ye may now send some o them
To build your broken wall?'
- 48 'Yes, there are masons in this place,
And plenty at my call;
But ye may gang frae whence ye
came,
Never mind my broken wall.'
- 49 They've taen the lady by the hand
And set her prison-free;
Wi drums beating, and fifes playing,
They spent the night wi glee.
- 50 Now auld Johnny Moir, and young Johnny Moir,
And Jock o Noth, a' three,
The English lady, and little wee boy,
Went a' to Benachie.

THE KITCHIE-BOY

This ballad is a modern adaptation of 'King Horn' (No. 17), from which some stanzas are taken outright.

A*

The Old Lady's Collection, MS., No. 20.

- 1 THER was a lady fair an rear,
A lady of birth an fame,
She loyed her father's kitchen-boy,
The greater was her shame.
- 2 She coud never her love revell,
Nor to him take,
Bat in the forestes weed an brade,
Far they wer wont to wake.
- 3 It fell ance apon a day
Her father went fra home,
An she sent for the kitchë-boy
Into her room.
- 4 'Canna ye fancë me, Willie?
Cannie ye fancë me?
By a' the lords I ever seed,
Ther is nane I cane loie bat ye.'
- 5 'O latt ne this be kent, lady,
O lat ne this be knouen,
For in yer father got word of this,
I vou he wad gare me die.'
- 6 'Yer life sall na be tane, Willie,
Yer life sall na be tean;
I rader loss my ain heart-blead
Or thy body gat wrang.'
- 7 We her mony fair spiches
She made the boy bold,
Till he began to kiss an clap,
An on his love lay hold.
- 8 They hadne kissed an love-clapet,
As lovers fan they meatt,
.
- 9 'The master-cook he will on me call,
An ansured he man be;
In it war kent I war in bour we the,
I fear they woud gar me diei.'
- 10 'The master-cook may on ye call,
But ansured he will never be,
For I haa thrie coffers fue of goud,
Yer eyen did never see.
- 11 'An I will buld a bony ship for my
love,
An sett her to the seea,
An saill she east, or saill she west,
The ship sall be fair to see.'
- 12 She has buld a bonny ship,
An sett her to the sea;
The top-masts was of the read goud,
The saill of taffety.
- 13 She gaie him a gay gold ring,
To mind him on a gay lady
That ance bair love to him.
- 14 The day was fair, the ship was rair,
Fan that suan sett to sea;
Fan that day tuall-month came an gade,
Att London landed he.

- 15 A lady louked our castell-wa,
Beheld the day gaa doun,
An she beheld that bonny ship,
Came halling to the toun.
- 16 'Come hear, come hear, my mairës a',
Ye see na fat I see;
The bonnest ship is coming to land
Yer eyen did ever see.
- 17 'Ye busk ye, busk ye, my marrës a',
Ye busk ye unco fine,
Till I gaa doun to yon shore-side
To invite yon squar to dine.
- 18 'O ye come up, ye gay young squar,
An take we me a dine;
Ye sall eatt of the gued white lofe,
An drink the claret wine.'
- 19 'I thank ye for yer bread,
I thank ye for yer wine,
I thank ye for yer courticë,
Bat indeed I hanna time.'
- 20 'Canna ye fancë me?' she says,
'Cannie ye fancë me?
Bay a' the lords an lairds I see,
Ther is nane I fancë bat ye.'
- 21 'They are farr awa fra me,' he says,
'The'r farr ayont the sea,
That has my heart an hand,
An my love ay sall be.'
- 22 'Hear is a gued gould ring,
It will mind ye on a gay lady
That ance bare love to ye.'
- 23 'I haa a ring on my finger
I lee thrice as well as thine,
Tho yours war of the gued read goud,
An mine bat simpell tin.'
- 24 The day was fair, the ship was rair,
Fan that squar sett to sea;
Fan that day tuall-month came an gaid,
Att hame again landed he.
- 25 The lady's father louked ouer castell-
wa,
Beheld the day gaa doun,
An he beheld that bonny ship
Come halling to the toun.
- 26 'Come hear, my a dother,
Ye see na fat I see;
The bonnest ship is coming to land
My eyen did ever see.
- 27 'Ye busk ye, my dother,
Ye busk ye unco fine,
An I ill gai doun to yon shore-side
An invite yon squer to dine:
I wad gie a' my reants
To haa ye marrëd to him.'
- 28 'They ar farr awa fra me,' she says,
'The'r far ayont the sea,
That has my heart an hand,
An my love ay sall be.'
- 29 'O will ye come, ye gay hine squar,
An take we me a dine?
Ye sall eat of the gued fait bread
An drink the claret wine.'
- 30 'I thank ye for yer bread,
I thank ye for your wine,
I thank ye for your courtisy,
For indeed I haa na grait time.'
- 31 'O cannie ye fancë me?' [he says,
'Cannie ye fancë me?]
By a' the ladys I eair did see,
Ther is nain I lue bat ye.'
- 32 'They are farr awa fra me,' she says,
'They are farr ayont the sea,
That has my heart an han,
An my love ay sall be.'
- 33 'Hear it is, a gay goud ring,
It will mind ye on a gay hin chill
That ance bare love to ye.'
- 34 'O gatt ye that ring on the sea sal-
ing?
Or gat ye it on the sand?
Or gat ye it on the shore laying,
On a drowned man's hand?'
- 35 'I got na it on the sea saling,
I got na it on the sand,
Bat I gat it on the shore laying,
On a drowned man's hand.
- 36 'O bonny was his chike,
And lovely was his face!'

'Alass' says she, 'it is my true-love
Willie,

37 He turned him rond about,
An suitly could he smill;
She turned her round, says, My love
Willie,
Hou could ye me biggeall?

38 'A prist, a prist,' the old man crayed,
'Latt this tua marrëd be:'
Bat lettell did the old man keen
It was his ain kittchen-boy.

THOMAS O YONDERDALE

This looks like a recent piece, fabricated, with a certain amount of cheap mortar, from recollections of Nos. 62, 78, and 53.

a. Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, I, 221. b. Christie's Traditional Ballad Airs, I, 96.

- 1 LADY MAISRY lives intill a bower,
She never wore but what she would;
Her gowns were o the silks sae fine,
Her coats stood up wi bolts o gold.
- 2 Mony a knight there courted her,
And gentlemen o high degree,
But it was Thomas o Yonderdale
That gaird the love o this ladie.
- 3 Now he has hunted her till her bower,
Baith late at night and the mid day,
But when he stole her virgin rose Nae mair this maid he would come nigh.
- 4 But it fell ance upon a time
Thomas her bower he walkëd by;
There he saw her Lady Maisry,
Nursing her young son on her knee.
- 5 'O seal on you, my bonny babe,
And lang may ye my comfort be!
Your father passes by our bower,
And now minds neither you nor me.'
- 6 Now when Thomas heard her speak,
The sant tear trinkled frae his ee;

To Lady Maisry's bower he went,
Says, Now I'm come to comfort thee.

- 7 'Is this the promise ye did make
Last when I was in your companie?
You said before nine months were gane
Your wedded wife that I should be.'
- 8 'If Saturday be a bonny day,
Then, my love, I maun sail the sea;
But if I live for to return,
O then, my love, I'll marry thee.'
- 9 'I wish Saturday a stormy day,
High and stormy be the sea,
Ships may not sail, nor boats row,
But gar true Thomas stay wi me.'
- 10 Saturday was a bonny day,
Fair and leesome blew the wind;
Ships did sail, and boats did row,
Which had true Thomas to unco
ground.
- 11 He hadna been on unco ground
A month, a month but barely three,
Till he has courted anither maid,
And quite forgotten Lady Maisry.
- 12 Ae night as he lay on his bed,
In a dreary dream dreamed he
That Maisry stood by his bedside,
Upbraiding him for 's inconstancie.
- 13 He's calld upon his little boy,
Says, Bring me candle, that I see;
And ye maun gang this night, [my]
boy,
Wi a letter to a gay ladie.
- 14 'It is my duty you to serve,
And bring you coal and candle-light,
And I would rin your errand, master,
If't were to Lady Maisry bright.
- 15 'Tho my legs were sair I condna gang,
Tho the night were dark I coudna
see,
Tho I should creep on hands and feet,
I woud gae to Lady Maisry.'
- 16 'Win up, win up, my bonny boy,
And at my bidding for to be;
For ye maun quickly my errand rin,
For it is to Lady Maisry.

- 17 'Ye'll bid her dress in the gowns o silk,
Likewise in the coats o cramasie;
Ye'll bid her come alang wi you,
True Thomas's wedding for to see.
- 18 'Ye'll bid her shoe her steed before,
And a' gowd graithing him behind;
On ilka tip o her horse mane,
Twa bonny bells to loudly ring.
- 19 'And on the tor o her saddle
A courtly bird to sweetly sing;
Her bridle-reins o silver fine,
And stirrups by her side to hing.'
- 20 She dressd her in the finest silk,
Her coats were o the cramasie,
And she's awa to unco land,
True Thomas's wedding for to see.
- 21 At ilka tippet o her horse mane,
Twa bonny bells did loudly ring,
And on the tor o her saddle
A courtly bird did sweetly sing.
- 22 The bells they rang, the bird he sang,
As they rode in yon pleasant plain;
Then soon she met true Thomas's bride,
Wi a' her maidens and young men.
- 23 The bride she gazed round about,
'I wonder,' said she, 'who this may be?
It surely is our Scottish queen,
Come here our wedding for to see.'
- 24 Out it speaks true Thomas's boy,
'She maunna lift her head sae hie;
But it's true Thomas's first love,
Come here your wedding for to see.'
- 25 Then out bespake true Thomas's bride,
I wyte the tear did blind her ee;
If this be Thomas's first true-love,
I'm sair afraid he'll neer hae me.
- 26 Then in it came her Lady Maisry,
And aye as she trips in the fleer,
'What is your will, Thomas?' she said,
'This day, ye know, ye calld me here.'
- 27 'Come hither by me, ye lily flower,
Come hither and set ye down by
me,
For ye're the ane I've call'd upon,
And ye my wedded wife maun be.'

- 28 Then in it came true Thomas's bride,
And aye as she trippd on the stane,
'What is your will, Thomas?' she said,
'Thisday, ye know, ye calld me hame.'
- 29 'Ye hae come on hired horseback,
But ye'se gae hame in coach sae
free;
For here's the flower into my bower
I mean my wedded wife shall be.'
- 30 'O ye will break your lands, Thomas,
And part them in divisions three;
Gie twa o them to your ae brother,
And cause your brother marry me.'
- 31 'I wiinna break my lands,' he said,
'For ony woman that I see;
My brother's a knight o wealth and
might,
He'll wed nane but he will for me.'

LORD WILLIAM, OR, LORD
LUNDY

For the story, compare 'Katharine Jaffray,'
No. 221. In Buchan's version the lady's father is "Lord Lundie."

Motherwell's MS., p. 361; from the recitation of Agnes Lyle, an old woman of Kilbar-chan. 'Sweet William,' Motherwell's Mistrelsy, p. 307.

- 1 SWEET WILLIAM's gone over seas,
Some unco lair to learn,
And our gude Bailie's ae dochter
Is awa to learn the same.
- 2 In one broad buke they learned baith,
In one broad bed they lay;
But when her father came to know
He gart her come away.
- 3 'It's you must marry that Southland
lord,
His lady for to be;
It's ye maun marry that Southland lord,
Or nocht ye'll get frae me.'
- 4 'I must marry that Southland lord,
Father, an it be your will;

But I rather it were my burial-day,
My grave for to fill.'

5 She walked up, she walked down,
Had none to make her moan,
Nothing but the pretty bird
Sat on the causey-stone.

6 'If thou could speak, wee bird,' she says,
'As weell as thou can flee,
I would write a long letter
To Will ayont the sea.'

7 'What thou wants wi Will,' it says,
'Thou'll seal it with thy ring,
Tak a thread o silk and anither o twine,
About my neck will hing.'

8 What she wanted wi Willie
She sealed it wi a ring,
Took a thread of silk, another o twine,
About its neck did hing.

9 This bird flew high, this bird flew low,
This bird flew owre the sea,
Until it entered the same room
Wherein was Sweet Willie.

10 This bird flew high, this bird flew low,
Poor bird, it was mistaen !
It let the letter fa on Baldie's breist,
Instead of Sweet William.

11 'Here's a letter, William,' he says,
I'm sure it's not to me;
And gin the morn gin twelve o'clock
Your love shall married be.'

12 'Come saddle to me my horse,' he said,
'The brown and a' that's speedie,
And I'll awa to Old England,
To bring home my ladie.'

13 Awa he gaed, awa he rade,
Awa wi mickle speed;
He lichtit at every twa miles' end,
Lichtit and changed his steed.

14 When she entered the church-style,
The tear was in her ee;
But when she entered the church-door
A blythe sicht did she see.

15 'O hold your hand, you minister,
Hold it a little wee,

Till I speak wi the bonnie bride,
For she's a friend to me.

16 'Stand off, stand off, you braw bridegroom,
Stand off a little wee;
Stand off, stand off, you braw bride-
groom,
For the bride shall join wi me.'

17 Up and spak the bride's father,
And an angry man was he;
'If I had pistol, powther and lead,
And all at my command,
I would shoot thee stiff and dead
In the place where thou dost stand.'

18 Up and spoke then Sweet William,
And a blithe blink from his ee;
'If ye neer be shot till I shoot you,
Ye'se neer be shot for me.

19 'Come out, come out, my foremost
man,
And lift my lady on;
Commend me all to my good-mother,
At night when ye gang home.'

WILLIE'S FATAL VISIT

The first half of this piece is a medley of
'Sweet William's Ghost' (No. 77), 'Clerk Saunders' (No. 69) and 'The Grey Cock' (No. 248).
St. 13 is caught, or taken from 'Clyde's Water'
(No. 216), A 7.

Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland,
II, 259.

1 'T WAS on an evening fair I went to take the air,
I heard a maid making her moan;
Said, Saw ye my father? Or saw ye my mother?
Or saw ye my brother John?
Or saw ye the lad that I love best,
And his name it is Sweet William?

2 'I saw not your father, I saw not your
mother,
Nor saw I your brother John;
But I saw the lad that ye love best,
And his name it is Sweet William.'

- 3 'O was my love riding? or was he running?
Or was he walking alone?
Or says he that he will be here this night?
O dear, but he tarries long!'
- 4 'Your love was not riding, nor yet was he running,
But fast was he walking alone;
He says that he will be here this night to thee,
And forbids you to think long.'
- 5 Then Willie he has gane to his love's door,
And gently tirl'd the pin:
'O sleep ye, wake ye, my bonny Meggie, Ye'll rise, lat your true love in.'
- 6 The lassie being swack ran to the door fu snack,
And gently she lifted the pin,
Then into her arms sae large and sae lang
She embraced her bonny love in.
- 7 'O will ye gang to the cards or the dice,
Or to a table o wine?
Or will ye gang to a well-made bed,
Well coverd wi blankets fine?'
- 8 'O I winna gang to the cards nor the dice,
Nor yet to a table o wine;
But I'll rather gang to a well-made bed,
Well coverd wi blankets fine.'
- 9 'My braw little cock, sits on the house tap,
Ye'll craw not till it be day,
And your kame shall be o the gude red gowd,
And your wings o the siller grey.'
- 10 The cock being fause untrue he was,
And he crew an hour ower seen;
They thought it was the gude day-light,
But it was but the light o the meen.
- 11 'Ohon, alas!' says bonny Meggie then,
'This night we hae slept ower lang!'
'O what is the matter?' then Willie replied,
'The faster then I must gang.'
- 12 Then Sweet Willie raise, and put on his claise,
And drew till him stockings and sheen,
And took by his side his berry-brown sword,
And ower yon lang hill he's gane.
- 13 As he gaed ower yon high, high hill,
And down yon dowie den,
Great and grievous was the ghost he saw,
Would fear ten thousand men.
- 14 As he gaed in by Mary kirk,
And in by Mary stile,
Wan and weary was the ghost
Upon sweet Willie did smile.
- 15 'Aft hae ye travelld this road, Willie,
Aft hae ye travelld in sin;
Ye neer said sae muckle for your saul
As My Maker bring me hame!'
- 16 'Aft hae ye travelld this road, Willie,
Your bonny love to see;
But ye'll never travel this road again
Till ye leave a token wi me.'
- 17 Then she has taen him Sweet Willie,
Riven him frae gair to gair,
And on ilka seat o Mary's kirk
O Willie she hang a share;
Even abeen his love Meggie's dice,
Hang's head and yellow hair.
- 18 His father made moan, his mother made moan,
But Meggie made muckle mair;
His father made moan, his mother made moan,
But Meggie reave her yellow hair.

ALISON AND WILLIE

a. 'My luvie she lives in Lincolnshire.' Harris MS., fol. 18 b; Mrs Harria. b. 'Alison.' Buchan's MSS., I, 231.

- 1 'My luvie she lives in Lincolnshire,
I wat she's neither black nor brown,
But her hair is like the thread o gowd,
Aye an it waur weel kaim'd down.'

- 2 She's pue'd the black mask owre her face,
An blinkit gaily wi her ee:
'O will you to my weddin come,
An will you bear me gude companie?'
- 3 'I winna to your weddin come,
Nor [will] I bear you gude companie,
Unless you be the bride yoursell,
An me the bridegroom to be.'
- 4 'For me to be the bride mysel,
An you the bonnie bridegroom to be —
Cheer up your heart, Sweet Willie,' she said,
'For that 's the day you 'll never see.
- 5 'Gin you waur on your saiddle set,
An gaily ridin on the way,
You 'll hae nae mair mind o Alison
Than she waur dead an laid in clay.'
- 6 When he was on his saiddle set,
An slowly ridin on the way,
He had mair mind o Alison
Than he had o the licht o day.
- 7 He saw a hart draw near a hare,
An aye that hare drew near a toun,
An that same hart did get a hare,
But the gentle knight got neer a toun.
- 8 He leant him owre his saiddle-bow,
An his heart did brak in pieces three;
Wi sighen said him Sweet Willie,
'The pains o luve hae taen hald o me.'
- 9
There cam a white horse an a letter,
That stopped the weddin speidilie.
- 10 She leant her back on her bed-side,
An her heart did brak in pieces three;
She was buried an bemoaned,
But the birds waur Willie's companie.

BURD ISABEL AND EARL PATRICK

B (Buchan's Ballads) has nearly the same story as A, with additional circumstances.

Patrick wishes that eleven devils may attend his last day should he wed another woman. When he goes to inquire how Isabel came to refuse the request he had made through his aunt, he takes the opportunity to make over to her child the third part of his land. She has two clerks, her consins, at her call, who see to the legal formalities pertaining to this transfer; she commits the boy to one of these, and herself goes to an unco land to drive love out of her mind. We hear of nothing worse happening to Earl Patrick for selling his precious soul than his never getting further ben than the church door. C (Motherwell's MS.) is a variety of B, but not half so long.

'Burd Bell,' Kinloch MSS., i, 211; "obtained in the North Country, from the recitation of Mrs Charles."

- 1 THERE is a stane in yon water,
It's lang or it grow green;
It's a maid that maks her ain fortune,
It 'll never end its leen.
- 2 Burd Bell was na full fyfteen
Till to service she did gae;
Burd Bell was na full sixteen
Till big wi bairn was scho.
- * * * * *
- 3 'Burd Bell she is a gude woman,
She bides at hame wi me;
She never seeks to gang to church,
But bides at hame wi me.'
- 4 It fell ance upon a day
She fell in travail-pain;
He is gane to the stair-head
Some ladies to call in.
- 5 'O gin ye hae a lass-bairn, Burd Bell,
A lass-bairn though it be,
Twenty ploughs bot and a mill
Will mak ye lady free.
- 6 'Bnt gin ye hae a son, Burd Bell,
Ye 'se be my wedded wife,
.'
- 7 The knights they knock their white fingers,
The ladies sat and sang,

'T was a' to cheer bonnie Burd Bell,
She was far sunk in pain.

* * * *

8 Earl Patrick is to his mither gane,
As fast as he could hie:

'An askin, an askin, dear mither,
An askin I want frae thee.

9 'Burd Bell has born to me a son;
What sall I do her wi?'

'Gie her what ye like, Patrick,
Mak na her your ladie.'

10 He has gane to bonnie Burd Bell,
Hir heart was pressd wi care:

11 'My father will dee, bonnie Burd Bell,
My mither will do the same,
And whan ye hear that they are gane
It's then I'll bring ye hame.'

12 Earl Patrick's bigget to her a bour,
And strawn it round wi sand;
He coverd it wi silver on the outside,
Wi the red gowd within.

13 It happened ance upon a day
She was kaiming his yellow hair,

14 'Your father is dead, Earl Patrick,
Your mither is the same;
And what is the reason, Earl Patrick,
Ye winna tak me hame?'

15 'I've bigget to you a bonnie bour,
I've strawn it round wi sand;
I've coverd it wi silver on the out-
side,
Wi gude red gowd within.

16 'If eer I marry anither woman,
Or bring anither hame,
I wish a hundred evils may enter me,
And may I fa oure the brim!'

17 It was na very lang after this
That a duke's dochter he's wed,

Wi a waggon fu of gowd

18 Burd Bell lookit oure her castle-wa,
And spied baith dale and down,
And there she saw Earl Patrick's aunt
Come riding to the town.

19 'What want ye here, Earl Patrick's aunt?

What want ye here wi me?'

'I want Earl Patrick's bonnie young
son;
His bride fain wad him see.'

20 'I wad like to see that woman or man,
Of high or low degree,
That wad tak the bairn frae my foot
That I ance for bowd my knee.'

* * * *

21 'Burd Bell, she's the bauldest woman
That ever I did see:'

'It's I'll gang to bonnie Burd Bell,
She was never bauld to me.'

22 Burd Bell lookit oure her castle-wa,
Behauding brave dale and down,
And there she spied him Earl Patrick
Slowly riding to the town.

23 'What said ye to my great-grand-aunt

24 'I said nathing to your great-grand-aunt
But I will say to thee:

I wad like to see the woman or man,
Of high or low degree,
That wad tak the bairn frae my foot
I ance for bowd my knee.

25 'O dinna ye mind, Earl Patrick,

The vows ye made to me,
That a hundred evils wad enter you
If ye provd fause to me?'

26 He's turnd him richt and round about,
His horse head to the wind,
The hundred evils enterd him,
And he fell oure the brim.

BROUGHTY WA'S

A young woman is carried off from Broughty Castle, near Dundee, by a body of armed Highlanders. Her lover, who is making her a visit at the time, is either taken along with her — an unnecessary incumbrance, one would think — or follows her. The pair go out to take the air; she throws herself into a river; her lover leaps in after her and is drowned. She kilts up her clothes and makes her way to Dundee, congratulating herself that she had learned to swim for liberty.

a. 'Helen,' Buchan's MSS., i, 233. b. 'Burd Hellen,' or 'Broughty Wa's,' Harris MS., fol. 17 b, from Mrs Harris.

- 1 BURD HELEN was her mother's dear,
Her father's heir to be;
He was the laird of Broughty Walls,
And the provost o Dundee.
- 2 Burd Helen she was much admired
By all that were round about;
Unto Hazelan she was betrothed,
Her virgin days were out.
- 3 Glenhazlen was a comely youth,
And virtuous were his friends;
He left the schools o bonny Dundee
And on to Aberdeen.
- 4 It fell upon a Christmas Day
Burd Helen was left alone
For to keep her father's towers;
They stand two miles from town.
- 5 Glenhazlen's on to Broughty Walls,
Was thinking to win in;
But the wind it blew, and the rain dang on
And wat him to the skin.
- 6 He was very well entertaind,
Baith for his bed and board,
Till a band o men surrounded them,
Well armd wi spear and sword.
- 7 They hurried her along wi them,
Lockd up her maids behind;
They threw the keys out-ower the walls,
That none the plot might find.
- 8 They hurried her along wi them,
Ower mony a rock and glen,

But, all that they could say or do,
From weeping would not refrain.

- 9 'The Hiland hills are hie, hie hills,
The Hiland hills are hie;
They are no like the banks o Tay,
Or bonny town o Dundee.'
- 10 It fell out ance upon a day
They went to take the air;
She threw hersell upon the stream,
Against wind and despair.
- 11 It was sae deep he coudna wide,
Boats werna to be found,
But he leapt in after himsell,
And sunk down like a stone.
- 12 She kilted up her green claiding
A little below her knee,
And never rest nor was undrest
Till she reachd again Dundee.
- 13 'I learned this at Broughty Walls,
At Broughty near Dundee,
That if water were my prison strong
I would swim for libertie.'

LORD THOMAS STUART

Lord Thomas Stuart has married a young countess, and has given her Strathbegie and Aboyne for a morning-gift. The lady has a desire to see these places. As they are on their way thither (from Edinburgh), her husband is attacked with a pain which obliges him to turn back; he tells her to ride on, and she seems so to do. The pain proves to be beyond the skill of leeches. Lord Thomas begs his father to see that his wife gets what he has given her. He dies; the horses turn wild in the stables, the hounds howl on the leash. Lady Stuart has the usual dream (No. 74, A 8, B 11, etc.). She comes back wringing her hands; she knows by the horses that are standing about the house that the burial is preparing.

Maidment's North Countrie Garland, p. 1.

- 1 THOMAS STUART was a lord,
A lord of mickle land;
He used to wear a coat of gold,
But now his grave is green.

- 2 Now he has wooed the young countess,
The Countess of Balquhin,
An given her for a morning-gift
Strathboggie and Aboyne.
- 3 But women's wit is aye willful,
Alas that ever it was sae !
She longed to see the morning-gift
That her gude lord to her gae.
- 4 When steeds were saddled an weel
bridled,
An ready for to ride,
There came a pain on that gude lord,
His back, likewise his side.
- 5 He said, Ride on, my lady fair,
May goodness be your guide !
For I'm sae sick an weary that
No farther can I ride.
- 6 Now ben did come his father dear,
Wearing a golden band;
Says, Is there nae leech in Edinburgh
Can cure my son from wrang ?
- 7 'O leech is come, an leech is gane,
Yet, father, I'm aye waur;
There's not a leech in Edinbro
Can death from me debar.
- 8 'But be a friend to my wife, father,
Restore to her her own;
Restore to her my morning-gift,
Strathboggie and Aboyne.
- 9 'It had been gude for my wife, father,
To me she'd born a son;
He would have got my land an rents,
Where they lie out an in.
- 10 'It had been gude for my wife, father,
To me she'd born an heir;
He would have got my land an rents,
Where they lie fine an fair.'
- 11 The steeds they strave into their stables,
The boys could'nt get them bound;
The hounds lay howling on the leech,
Cause their master was behind.
- 12 'I dreamed a dream since late yestreen,
I wish it may be good,
That our chamber was full of swine,
An our bed full of blood.'

- 13 I saw a woman come from the West,
Full sore wringing her hands,
And aye she cried, Ohon, alas !
My good lord's broken bands.
- 14 As she came by my good lord's bower,
Saw mony black steeds an brown:
'I'm feared it be mony unco lords
Havin my love from town !'
- 15 As she came by my gude lord's bower,
Saw mony black steeds an grey:
'I'm feared it's mony unco lords
Havin my love to the clay !'

LORD THOMAS AND LADY
MARGARET

Christie, who gives B, "epitomized and slightly changed," under the title 'Clerk Tamas and Fair Annie,' Traditional Ballad Airs, II, 12, says that he can trace the ballad, traditionally, far into the eighteenth century.

A

a. 'Lord Thomas,' Motherwell's MS., p. 407; from the recitation of Mrs Parkhill, Maxwelltown, 28 September, 1825 (with variations, furnished by another person of the same neighborhood, interlined). b. 'Lord Thomas and Lady Margaret,' Motherwell's MS., p. 71; from Miss —, Glasgow.

- 1 LORD THOMAS is to the hunting gone,
To hunt the fallow deer;
Lady Margaret's to the greenwood
shaw,
To see her lover hunt there.
- 2 He has looked over his left shoulder,
To see what might be seen,
And there he saw Lady Margaret,
As she was riding her lane.
- 3 He called on his servants all,
By one, by two, by three:
'Go hunt, go hunt that wild woman,
Go hunt her far from me !'
- 4 They hunted her high, they hunted her
low,
They hunted her over the plain,

- And the red scarlet robes Lady Margaret had on
Would never be mended again.
- 5 They hunted her high, they hunted her low,
They hunted her over the plain,
Till at last she spy'd a tall young man,
As he was riding alane.
- 6 'Some relief, some relief, thou tall young man!
Some relief I pray thee grant me!
For I am a lady deep wronged in love,
And chased from my own countrie.'
- 7 'No relief, no relief, thou lady fair,
No relief will I grant unto thee
Till once thou renounce all the men in the world
My wedded wife for to be.'
- 8 Then he set her on a milk-white steed,
Himself upon a gray,
And he has drawn his hat over his face,
And chearfully they rode away.
- 9 Lady Margaret was at her bower-window,
Sewing her silken seam,
And there she spy'd, like a wandering bodie,
Lord Thomas begging alane.
- 10 'Some relief, some relief, thou lady fair!
Some relief, I pray thee grant me!
For I am a puir auld doited carle,
And banishd from my ain countrie.'
- 11 'No relief, no relief, thou perjured man,
No relief will I grant unto thee;
For oh, if I had thee within my bower,
There hanged dead thou would be.'
- 12 'No such thing, Lady Margaret,' he said,
'Such a thing would never be;
For with my broadsword I would kill thy wedded lord,
And carry thee far off with me.'
- 13 'Oh no, no! Lord Thomas,' she said,
'Oh, no such things must be;
For I have wine in my cellars,
And you must drink with me.'
- 14 Lady Margaret then called her servants all,
By one, by two, by three:
'Go fetch me the bottles of blude-red wine,
That Lord Thomas may drink with me.'
- 15 They brought her the bottles of blude-red wine,
By one, by two, by three,
And with her fingers long and small
She poisonsd them all three.
- 16 She took the cup in her lilly-white hand,
Betwixt her finger and her thumb,
She put it to her red rosy lips,
But never a drop went down.
- 17 Then he took the cup in his manly hand,
Betwixt his finger and his thumb,
He put it to his red rosy lips,
And so merrily it ran down.
- 18 'Oh, I am wearied drinking with thee, Margaret!
I am wearied drinking with thee!' 'And so was I,' Lady Margaret said,
'When thou hunted thy hounds after me.'
- 19 'But I will bury thee, Lord Thomas,' she said,
'Just as if thou wert one of my own;
And when that my good lord comes home
I will say thou's my sister's son.'

LADY ISABEL

Sts. 20, 21 are a commonplace. St. 24, in various forms, not always well adapted to the particular circumstances, ends several ballads: as 'Lord Ingram and Chiel Wyet' (No. 66), A 29 (in this case it occurs shortly before the end); 'Glasgerion' (No. 67), B, etc.

'Lady Isabel,' Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, I, 129.

- 1 'T WAS early on a May morning
Lady Isabel combd her hair;
But little kent she, or the morn
She woud never comb it mair.

- 2 'T was early on a May morning
Lady Isabel rang the keys;
But little kent she, or the morn
A fey woman she was.
- 3 Ben it came her step-mother,
As white 's the lily flower:
'It 's tauld me this day, Isabel,
You are your father's whore.'
- 4 'O them that tauld you that, mother,
I wish they neer drink wine;
For if I be the same woman
My ain sell drees the pine.
- 5 'And them that 's tauld you that, mother,
I wish they neer drink ale;
For if I be the same woman
My ain sell drees the dail.'
- 6 'It may be very well seen, Isabel,
It may be very well seen;
He buys to you the damask gowns,
To me the dowie green.'
- 7 'Ye are of age and I am young,
And young amo my flowers;
The fairer that my claithing be,
The mair honour is yours.
- 8 'I hae a love beyond the sea,
And far ayont the faem;
For ilka gown my father buys me,
My ain luve sends me ten.'
- 9 'Come ben, come ben now, Lady Isabel,
And drink the wine wi me;
I hae twa jewels in ae coffer,
And ane o them I 'll gie [ye].'
- 10 'Stay still, stay still, my mother dear,
Stay still a little while,
Till I gang into Marykirk;
It 's but a little mile.'
- 11 When she gaed on to Marykirk,
And into Mary's quire,
There she saw her ain mother
Sit in a gowden chair.
- 12 'O will I leave the lands, mother?
Or shall I sail the sea?
Or shall I drink this dowie drink
That is prepar'd for me?'
- 13 'Ye winna leave the lands, daughter,
Nor will ye sail the sea,
But ye will drink this dowie drink
This woman 's prepar'd for thee.
- 14 'Your bed is made in a better place
Than ever hers will be,
And ere ye 're cauld into the room
Ye will be there wi me.'
- 15 'Come in, come in now, Lady Isabel,
And drink the wine wi me;
I hae twa jewels in ae coffer,
And ane o them I 'll gie [ye].'
- 16 'Stay still, stay still, my mother dear,
Stay still a little wee,
Till I gang to yon garden green,
My Maries a' to see.'
- 17 To some she gae the broach, the broach,
To some she gae a ring;
But wae befa her step-mother!
To her she gae nae thing.
- 18 'Come in, come in now, Lady Isabel,
And drink the wine wi me;
I hae twa jewels in ae coffer,
And ane o them I 'll gie [ye].'
- 19 Slowly to the bower she came,
And slowly enterd in,
And being full o courtesie,
Says, Begin, mother, begin.
- 20 She put it till her cheek, her cheek,
Sae did she till her chin,
Sae did she till her fu fause lips,
But never a drap gaed in.
- 21 Lady Isabel put it till her cheek,
Sae did she till her chin,
Sae did she till her rosy lips,
And the rank poison gaed in.
- 22 'O take this cup frae me, mother,
O take this cup frae me;
My bed is made in a better place
Than ever yours will be.
- 23 'My bed is in the heavens high,
Amang the angels fine;
But yours is in the lowest hell,
To drie torment and pine.'

24 Nae moan was made for Lady Isabel
In bower where she lay dead,
But a' was for that ill woman,
In the fields mad she gaed.

LORD LIVINGSTON

As far as can be made out, Livingston and Seaton engage themselves to play against one another at some game, the victor expecting to stand the better in the eyes of a lady. They then proceed to Edinburgh castle, where a lady, whose 'gowns seem like green,' marshals the company in pairs, and chooses Livingston for her own partner. This preference enrages Seaton, who challenges Livingston to fight with him the next day. Up to this point the pairing may have been for a dance, or what not, but now we are told that Livingston and the fair dame are laid in the same bed, and further on that they were wedded that same night. In the morning Livingston arms himself for his fight; he declines to let his lady dress herself in man's clothes and fight in his stead. On his way 'to plain fields' a witch warns him that she has had the dream which Sweet William dreams in No. 74, and others elsewhere. Livingston is 'slain,' but for all that stands presently bleeding by his lady's knee. She begs him to hold out but half an hour, and every leech in Edinburgh shall come to him (see No. 88, A 12, etc.). He orders his lands to be dealt as in 'Bonny Bee Hom' (No. 92). The lady will now do for his sake what other ladies would not be equal to (what nevertheless many other ballad-ladies have undertaken, as in No. 69 and elsewhere). When seven years are near an end her heart breaks.

This ballad, or something like it, was known at the end of the eighteenth century.

'Lord Livingston,' Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, II, 39.

- 1 It fell about the Lammas time,
When wightsmen won their hay,
A' the squires in merry Linkum
Went a' forth till a play.
- 2 They playd until the evening tide,
The sun was gaeing down;
A lady thro plain fields was bound,
A lily leesome thing.
- 3 Two squires that for this lady pledged,
In hopes for a renown,
The one was calld the proud Seaton,
The other Livingston.

- 4 'When will ye, Michael o Livingston,
Wad for this lady gay?'
'To-morrow, to-morrow,' said Livingston,
'To-morrow, if you may.'
- 5 Then they hae wadded their wagers,
And laid their pledges down;
To the high castle o Edinbro
They made them ready boun.
- 6 The chamber that they did gang in,
There it was daily dight;
The kipples were like the gude red gowd,
As they stood up in hight,
And the roof-tree like the siller white,
And shin'd like candles bright.
- 7 The lady fair into that ha
Was comely to be seen;
Her kirtle was made o the pa,
Her gowns seemd o the green.
- 8 Her gowns seemd like green, like green,
Her kirtle o the pa;
A siller wand intill her hand,
She marshalld ower them a'.
- 9 She gae every knight a lady bright,
And every squire a may;
Her own sell chose him Livingston,
They were a comely tway.
- 10 Then Seaton started till his foot,
The fierce flame in his ee:
'On the next day, wi sword in hand,
On plain fields meet ye me.'
- 11 When bells were rung, and mass was sung,
And a' man bound for bed,
Lord Livingston and his fair dame
In bed were sweetly laid.
- 12 The bed, the bed where they lay in
Was coverd wi the pa;
A covering o the gude red gowd
Lay nightly ower the twa.
- 13 So they lay there, till on the morn
The sun shone on their feet;
Then up it raise him Livingston
To draw to him a weed.
- 14 The first an weed that he drew on
Was o the linen clear;

The next an weed that he drew on,
It was a weed o weir.

- 15 The niest an weed that he drew on
Was gude iron and steel;
Twa gloves o plate, a gowden helmet,
Became that hind chiel weel.
- 16 Then out it speaks that lady gay —
A little forbye stood she —
'I'll dress mysell in men's array,
Gae to the fields for thee.'
- 17 'O God forbid,' said Livingston,
'That eer I dree the shame;
My lady slain in plain fields,
And I coward knight at hame!'
- 18 He scarcely travelled frae the town
A mile but barely twa
Till he met wi a witch-woman,
I pray to send her wae!
- 19 'This is too gude a day, my lord,
To gang sae far frae town;
This is too gude a day, my lord,
On field to make you boun.
- 20 'I dreamd a dream concerning thee,
O read ill dreams to guid!
Your bower was full o milk-white swans,
Your bride's bed full o bluid.'
- 21 'O bluid is gude,' said Livingston,
'To bide it whoso may;
If I be frae yon plain fields,
Nane knew the plight I lay.'
- 22 Then he rade on to plain fields
As swift's his horse coud hie,
And there he met the proud Seaton,
Come boldly ower the lee.
- 23 'Come on to me now, Livingston,
Or then take foot and flee;
This is the day that we must try
Who gains the victorie.'
- 24 Then they fought with sword in hand
Till they were bluidy men;
But on the point o Seaton's sword
Brave Livingston was slain.
- 25 His lady lay ower castle-wa,
Beholding dale and down,

When Blenchant brave, his gallant steed,
Came prancing to the town.

- 26 'O where is now my ain gude lord
He stays sae far frae me?'
'O dinna ye see your ain gude lord
Stand bleeding by your knee?'
- 27 'O live, O live, Lord Livingston,
The space o ae half hour,
There's nae a leech in Edinbro town
But I'll bring to your door.'
- 28 'Awa wi your leeches, lady,' he said,
'Of them I'll be the waur;
There's nae a leech in Edinbro town
That can strong death debar.
- 29 'Ye'll take the lands o Livingston
And deal them liberallie,
To the auld that may not, the young that cannot,
And blind that does na see,
And help young maidens' marriages,
That has nae gear to gie.'
- 30 'My mother got it in a book,
The first night I was born,
I woud be wedded till a knight,
And him slain on the morn.
- 31 'But I will do for my love's sake
What ladies woudna thole;
Ere seven years shall hae an end,
Nae shoe's gang on my sole.
- 32 'There's never lint gang on my head,
Nor kame gang in my hair,
Nor ever coal nor candle-light
Shine in my bower mair.'
- 33 When seven years were near an end,
The lady she thought lang,
And wi a crack her heart did brake,
And sae this ends my sang.

THE NEW-SLAIN KNIGHT

A large part of this piece is imitated or taken outright from very well known ballads (Nos. 76, 88, etc.). The ninth stanza is pretty, but not quite artless.

'The New-Slain Knight,' Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, i, 197.

- 1 My heart is lighter than the poll;
My folly made me glad,
As on my rambles I went out,
Near by a garden-side.
- 2 I walked on, and farther on,
Love did my heart engage;
There I spied a well-faird maid,
Lay sleeping near a hedge.
- 3 Then I kissd her with my lips
And stroked her with my hand:
'Win up, win up, ye well-faird maid,
This day ye sleep oer lang.
- 4 'This dreary sight that I hae seen
Unto my heart gives pain;
At the south side o your father's garden,
I see a knight lies slain.'
- 5 'O what like was his hawk, his hawk?
Or what like was his hound?
And what like was the trusty brand
This new-slain knight had on?'
- 6 'His hawk and hound were from him
gone,
His steed tied to a tree;
A bloody brand beneath his head,
And on the ground lies he.'
- 7 'O what like was his hose, his hose?
And what like were his shoon?
And what like was the gay clothing
This new-slain knight had on?'
- 8 'His coat was of the red scarlet,
His waistcoat of the same;
His hose were of the bonny black,
And shoon laced with cordin.
- 9 'Bonny was his yellow hair,
For it was new combd down;
Then, sighing sair, said the lady fair,
'I combd it late yestreen.
- 10 'O wha will shoe my fu fair foot?
Or wha will glove my hand?
Or wha will father my dear bairn,
Since my love's dead and gane?'
- 11 'O I will shoe your fu fair foot,
And I will glove your hand;
And I'll be father to your bairn,
Since your love's dead and gane.'

- 12 'I winna father my bairn,' she said,
'Upon an unkent man;
I'll father it on the King of Heaven,
Since my love's dead and gane.'
- 13 The knight he knackd his white fingers,
'The lady tore her hair;
He's drawn the mask from off his face,
Says, Lady, mourn nae mair.
- 14 'For ye are mine, and I am thine,
I see your love is true;
And if I live and brook my life
Ye'se never hae cause to rue.'

THE WHITE FISHER

To make this story hang together at all, we must suppose that the third and fourth stanzas are tropical, and that Willie was the priest; or else that they are sarcastic, and are uttered in bitter resentment of Willie's suspicion, or affected suspicion.

'The White Fisher,' Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, I, 200.

- 1 'It is a month, and isna mair,
Love, sin I was at thee,
But find a stirring in your side;
Who may the father be?
- 2 'Is it to a lord of might,
Or baron of high degree?
Or is it to the little wee page
That rode along wi me?'
- 3 'It is not to a man of might,
Nor baron of high degree,
But it is to a popish priest;
My lord, I winna lie.
- 4 'He got me in my bower alone,
As I sat pensively;
He vowed he would forgive my sins,
If I would him obey.'
- 5 Now it fell ance upon a day
This young lord went from home,
And great and heavy were the pains
That came this lady on.
- 6 Then word has gane to her gude lord,
As he sat at the wine,

And when the tidings he did hear
Then he came singing hame.

- 7 When he came to his own bower-door,
He tirl'd at the pin:
'Sleep ye, wake ye, my gay lady,
Ye'll let your gude lord in.'
- 8 Huly, huly raise she up,
And slowly put she on,
And slowly came she to the door;
She was a weary woman.
- 9 'Ye'll take up my son, Willie,
That ye see here wi me,
And hae him down to yon shore-side,
And throw him in the sea.
- 10 'Gin he sink, ye'll let him sink,
Gin he swim, ye'll let him swim;
And never let him return again
Till white fish he bring hame.'
- 11 Then he's taen up his little young son,
And rowd him in a band,
And he is on to his mother,
As fast as he could gang.
- 12 'Ye'll open the door, my mother dear,
Ye'll open, let me come in;
My young son is in my arms twa,
And shivering at the chin.'
- 13 'I tauld you true, my son Willie,
When ye was gann to ride,
That lady was an ill woman
That ye chose for your bride.'
- 14 'O hold your tongue, my mother dear,
Let a' your folly be;
I wat she is a king's daughter
That's sent this son to thee.
- 15 'I wat she was a king's daughter
I loved beyond the sea,
And if my lady hear of this Right angry will she be.'
- 16 'If that be true, my son Willie —
Your ain tongue winna lie —
Nae waur to your son will be done
Than what was done to thee.'
- 17 He's gane hame to his lady,
And sair mourning was she:

'What ails you now, my lady gay,
Ye weep sa bitterlie?'

- 18 'O bonny was the white fisher
That I sent to the sea;
But lang, lang will I look for fish
Ere white fish he bring me!
- 19 'O bonny was the white fisher
That ye kiest in the faem;
But lang, lang will I look for fish
Ere white fish he fetch hame!
- 20 'I fell a slumbering on my bed
That time ye went frae me,
And dreamd my young son filld my arms,
But when waked, he's in the sea.'
- 21 'O hold your tongue, my gay lady,
Let a' your mourning be,
And I'll gie you some fine cordial,
My love, to comfort thee.'
- 22 'I value not your fine cordial,
Nor aught that ye can gie;
Who could hae drownd my bonny young
son
Could as well poison me.'
- 23 'Cheer up your heart, my lily flower,
Think nae sic ill o me;
Your young son's in my mother's bower,
Set on the nourice knee.
- 24 'Now, if ye'll be a gude woman,
I'll neer mind this to thee;
Nae waur is done to your young son
Than what was done to me.'
- 25 'Well fells me now, my ain gude lord;
These words do cherish me;
If it hadna come o yoursell, my lord,
'T would neer hae come o me.'

THE KNIGHT'S GHOST

The piece has not a perceptible globule of old blood in it, yet it has had the distinction of being more than once translated as a specimen of Scottish popular ballads.

'The Knight's Ghost,' Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, i, 227.

- 1 'THERE is a fashion in this land,
And even come to this country,
That every lady should meet her lord
When he is newly come frae sea:
- 2 'Some wi hawks, and some wi hounds,
And other some wi gay monie;
But I will gae myself alone,
And set his young son on his knee.'
- 3 She 's taen her young son in her arms,
And nimbly walkd by yon sea-strand,
And there she spy'd her father's ship,
As she was sailing to dry land.
- 4 'Where hae ye put my ain gude lord,
This day he stays sae far frae me?'
'If ye be wanting your ain gude lord,
A sight o him ye 'll never see.'
- 5 'Was he brunt? or was he shot?
Or was he drowned in the sea?
Or what 's become o my ain gude lord,
That he will neer appear to me?'
- 6 'He wasna brunt, nor was he shot,
Nor was he drowned in the sea;
He was slain in Dumfermling,
A fatal day to you and me.'
- 7 'Come in, come in, my merry young
men,
Come in and drink the wine wi me;
And a' the better ye shall fare
For this gude news ye tell to me.'
- 8 She 's brought them down to yon cellar,
She brought them fifty steps and
three;
She birled wi them the beer and wine,
Till they were as drunk as drunk could be.
- 9 Then she has lockd her cellar-door,
For there were fifty steps and three:
'Lie there, wi my sad malison,
For this bad news ye 've tauld to me.
- 10 She 's taen the keys intill her hand
And threw them deep, deep in the sea:
'Lie there, wi my sad malison,
Till my gude lord return to me.'
- 11 Then she sat down in her own room,
And sorrow lulld her fast asleep,

And up it starts her own gude lord,
And even at that lady's feet.

- 12 'Take here the keys, Janet,' he says,
'That ye threw deep, deep in the sea;
And ye 'll relieve my merry young men,
For they 've nane o the swick o me.
- 13 'They shot the shot, and drew the stroke,
And wad in red bluid to the knee;
Nae sailors mair for their lord coud do
Nor my young men they did for me.'
- 14 'I hae a question at you to ask,
Before that ye depart frae me;
You 'll tell to me what day I 'll die,
And what day will my burial be?'
- 15 'I hae nae mair o God's power
Than he has granted unto me;
But come to heaven when ye will,
There porter to you I will be.
- 16 'But ye 'll be wed to a finer knight
Than ever was in my degree;
Unto him ye 'll hae childreu nine,
And six o them will be ladies free.
- 17 'The other three will be bold young men,
To fight for king and countrie;
The ane a duke, the second a knight,
And third a laird o lands sae free.'

JOHN THOMSON AND THE TURK

This ridiculous ballad is a seedling from the ancient and widespread story of King Solomon and his wife. A typical version, preserved in a Russian prose tale, may be summarized as follows: The wife of Solomon is stolen from him by his brother Kitovras, through the agency of a magician, who, in the character of a merchant, excites Solomon's admiration for a magnificent purple robe. Solomon buys the robe, and invites the seeming merchant to his table. During the repast the magician envelops the king and his people in darkness, brings a heavy slumber upon the queen and her people, and carries her off in his arms to his ship. Solomon proceeds against Kitovras with an army, which he orders to come to his help when they shall hear his horn sound the third time.

Clad as an old pilgrim or beggar, he enters Kitovras's garden, where he comes upon a girl with a gold cup, who is about to draw water. He asks to drink from the king's cup. The girl objects, but the gift of a gold ring induces her to consent. The queen sees the ring on the girl's hand, and asks who gave it to her. 'An old pilgrim,' she replies. 'No pilgrim,' says the queen, 'but my husband, Solomon.' Solomon is brought before the queen, and asked what he has come for. 'To take off your head,' he answers. 'To your own death!' rejoins the queen. 'You shall be hanged.' Kitovras is sent for, and pronounces this doom. Solomon reminds Kitovras that they are brothers, and asks that he may die in regal style; that Kitovras and the queen shall attend the execution, with all the people of the city; and that there shall be ample provision of food and drink: all which is granted. At the gallows he finds a noose of bast; he begs that two other nooses may be provided, one of red silk, one of yellow, so that he may have a choice, and this whim is complied with. Always urging their brotherhood, Solomon, at three successive stages, asks the privilege of blowing his horn. The army is at hand upon the third blast, and is ordered to kill everybody. Kitovras and the queen are hanged in the silken nooses, the magician in the bast. (Jagić, Archiv für slavische Philologie, I, 107 f.; Vesselofsky, the same, VI, 406.)

Other versions of the Solomon story are found in the old German poems of Salman und Morolf, Salomon und Morolf, and König Rother, in the Cligès of Crestien de Troies, in the romance of Li Bastars de Buillon, in the Portuguese legend of Don Ramiro, and elsewhere.

Two versions of the Scottish ballad are known, A and B, the latter a fragment of four stanzas. Leyden, to whom we owe B, says that he "had heard the whole song when very young."

'John Thomson and the Turk,' Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, II, 159; Motherwell's MS., p. 615; Motherwell's Minstrelsy, Appendix, p. ix.

- 1 JOHN THOMSON fought against the Turks
Three years into a far country,
And all that time, and something more,
Was absent from his gay lady.
- 2 But it fell ance upon a time,
As this young chieftain sat alane,
He spied his lady in rich array,
As she walkd oer a rural plain.

- 3 'What brought you here, my lady gay,
So far awa from your own country?
I've thought lang, and very lang,
And all for your fair face to see.'
- 4 For some days she did with him stay,
Till it fell ance upon a day,
'Farewell for a time,' she said,
'For now I must bound home away.'
- 5 He's gien to her a jewel fine,
Was set with pearl and precious stone;
Says, My love, beware of these savages
bold,
That's on your way as ye go home.
- 6 Ye'll take the road, my lady fair,
That leads you faer across the lee;
That keeps you from wild Hind Soldan,
And likewise from base Violentrie.
- 7 With heavy heart these two did part,
And minted as she would go home;
Hind Soldan by the Greeks was slain,
But to base Violentrie she's gone.
- 8 When a twelvemonth had expired,
John Thomson he thought wondrous
lang,
And he has written a broad letter,
And seald it well with his own hand.
- 9 He sent it along with a small vessel
That there was quickly going to
sea,
And sent it on to fair Scotland,
To see about his gay ladie.
- 10 But the answer he received again,
The lines did grieve his heart right
sair;
None of her friends there had her seen
For a twelvemonth and something mair.
- 11 Then he put on a palmer's weed,
And took a pikestaff in his hand;
To Violentrie's castle he bied,
But slowly, slowly he did gang.
- 12 When within the hall he came,
He joukd and couchd out-oor his tree:
'If ye be lady of this hall,
Some of your good bountieth give me.'

13 'What news, what news, palmer?' she
said,
'And from what countrie came ye?'
'I'm lately come from Grecian plains,
Where lys some of the Scots amny.'

14 'If ye be come from Grecian plains,
Some more news I will ask of thee;
Of one of the chieftains that lies there,
If he have lately seen his gay ladie.'

15 'It is twelve months and something
more
Since we did part in yonder plain;
And now this knight has begun to fear
One of his foes he has her taen.'

16 'He has not taen me by force nor
might,
It was all by my own free will;
He may tarry in the fight,
For here I mean to tarry still.

17 'And if John Thomson ye do see,
Tell him I wish him silent sleep;
His head was not so cozelie
Nor yet so well as lies at my feet.'

18 With that he threw [aff] his strange disguise,
Laid by the mask that he had on;
Said, Hide me now, my ladie fair,
For Violentrie will soon be home.

19 'For the love I bare thee once,
I'll strive to hide you if I can;
Then put him down to a dark cellar,
Where there lay mony a new slain
man.

20 But he hadna in the cellar been
Not an hour but barely three,
Till hideous was the sound he heard;
Then in at the gates came Violentrie.

21 Says, I wish you well, my lady fair,
It's time for us to sit and dine;
Come, serve me with the good white
bread,
And likewise with the claret wine.

22 'That Scots chieftain, our mortal foe,
So oft from field has made us flee,
Ten thousand sequins this day I'd give
That I his face could only see.'

23 'Of that same gift would ye give me,
If I could bring him unto thee?
I fairly hold you at your word;
Come ben, John Thomson, to my lord.'

24 Then from the vault John Thomson
came,
Wringing his hands most piteouslie;
'What would ye do,' the Turk he cried,
'If ye had me, as I have thee?'

25 'If I had you, as ye have me,
I'll tell you what I'd do to thee;
I'd hang you up in good greenwood,
And cause your own hand wile the
tree.

26 'I meant to stick you with my knife,
For kissing my beloved wife;
'But that same weed ye've shaped for
me,
It quickly shall be sewed for thee.'

27 Then to the wood they both are gone,
John Thomson clamb from tree to
tree;
And aye he sighd, and said, Ohon!
Here comes the day that I must die!

28 He tied a ribbon on every branch,
Put up a flag his men might see;
But little did his false foe ken
He meant them any injurie.

29 He set his horn to his mouth,
And he has blawu baith loud and
shrill;
And then three thousand armed men
Came tripping all out-oer the hill.

30 'Deliver us our chief!' they all did cry,
'It's by our hand that ye must die!'
'Here is your chief,' the Turk replied,
With that fell on his bended knee.

31 'O mercy, mercy, good fellows all,
Mercy I pray you'll grant to me!'
'Such mercy as ye meant to give,
Such mercy we shall give to thee.'

32 This Turk they in his castle burnt,
That stood upon yon hill so hie;
John Thomson's gay lady they took,
And hangd her on yon greenwood
tree.

- 1 O CAM ye in by the House o Rodes,
Or cam ye there away?
Or have [ye] seen Johne Tamson?
They say his wife has run away.

* * * * *

- 2 'O what wad ye do, Johne Tamson,
Gin ye had me as I hae thee?'
'I wad tak ye to the gude green-wood,
And gar your ain hand weil the tree.'

* * * * *

- 3 Johne Tamson peeped and poorly spake
Untill he did his ain men see;
'O by my sooth,' quo Johne Tamson,
'Methinks I see a coming tree.'

- 4 And they hae hanged that grim Soudan
For a' his mirth and meikle pride,
And sae hae they that ill woman,
Upon a scrogg-bush him beside.

THE HEIR OF LINNE

Percy, Reliques, 1763, II, 309 (1794, II, 128), revised and completed A by "the insertion of supplemental stanzas," "suggested by a modern ballad on a similar subject." In fact, Percy made a new ballad, and a very good one, which since his day has passed for 'The Heir of Linne.' The modern ballad on a similar subject used by Percy was 'The Drunkard's Legacy,' an inexpressibly pitiable ditty, from which Percy did not and could not take a line, but only, as he says, a suggestion for the improvement of the story.

There are several Oriental stories which closely resemble that of 'The Drunkard's Legacy,' or of Percy's 'Heir of Linne.' Such are the tale of Sinadab (Gueulette, Contes Tartares, Cabinet des Fées, XXI, 66 ff., 89 ff.); The Forty Vezirs, Gibb, p. 244; Arabian Nights. Habicht, von der Hagen u. Schall, 1840, XIV, 65 ff., etc. Cf. also the Greek Anthology, ix, 44, 45 (translated by Ausonius, Epigrammata, 22, 23); Giraldi Cinthio, Hecatommiti, 1565, II, 563; the Greek Syntipas, Æsop, ed. Coray, p. 246, No. 384; Anvar-i Suhaili, Eastwick, p. 74.

'The Heir of Lin,' Percy MS., p. 71; Hales and Furnivall, I, 174.

- 1 OFF all the lords in faire Scotland
A song I will begin;
Amongst them all there dweld a lord
Which was the vuthrifty lord of Linne.

- 2 His father and mother were dead him
froe,
And soe was the head of all his
kinne;
To the cards and dice that he did run
He did neither cease nor bl[i]une.

- 3 To drinke the wine that was soe cleere,
With euery man he wold make merry;
And then bespake him Iohn of the Scales,
Vnto the heire of Linne sayd hee.

- 4 Sayes, How dost thou, Lord of Linne?
Doest either want gold or fee?
Wilt thou not sell thy lands soe brode
To such a good fellow as me?

- 5 'Ffor . . I . . ' he said,
'My land, take it vnto thee;'
'I draw you to record, my lord[ë]s
all;'
With that he cast him a god's peny.

- 6 He told him the gold ypon the bord,
It wanted neuer a bare penny:
'That gold is thine, the land is mine,
The heire of Linne I wilbee.'

- 7 'Heere's gold inoughe,' saithe the heire
of Linne,
'Both for me and my company:'
He drunke the wine that was soe cleere,
And with euery man he made merry.

- 8 With-in three quarters of a yeere
His gold and fee it waxed thinne,
His merry men were from him gone,
And left him himselfe all alone.

- 9 He had neuer a penny left in his purse,
Neuer a penny [left] but three,
And one was brasse, and another was
lead,
And another was white mony.

- 10 'Now well-aday!' said the heire of Linne,
 'Now welladay, and woe is mee!
 For when I was the lord of Linne,
 I neither wanted gold nor fee.
- 11 'For I haue sold my lands soe broad,
 And haue not left me one penny;
 I must goe now and take some read
 Vnto Edenborrow, and begg my bread.'
- 12 He had not beene in Edenborrow
 Not three quarters of a yeere,
 But some did giue him, and some said nay,
 And some bid 'to the deelee gang yee!
- 13 'For if we shold hang any landles feer,
 The first we wold begin with thee.'
 'Now welladay!' said the heire of Linne,
 'No[w] welladay, and woe is mee!
- 14 'For now I have sold my lands soe broad,
That mery man is irke with mee;
 But when that I was the lord of Linne,
 Then on my land I liued merrily.
- 15 'And now I have sold my land soe broade
That I haue not left me one penny!
 God be with my father!' he said,
 'On his land he liued merrily.'
- 16 Still in a study there as he stood,
 He vnbethought him of [a] bill;
 He vnbethought him of [a] bill
 Which his father had left with him.
- 17 Bade him he shold neuer on it looke
 Till he was in extreame neede,
 'And by my faith,' said the heire of Linne,
 'Then now I had neuer more neede.'
- 18 He tooke the bill, and looked it on,
 Good comfort that he found there;
 Itt told him of a castle wall
 Where there stood three chests in feare.
- 19 Two were full of the beaten gold,
 The third was full of white-mony;
 He turned then downe his baggs of bread,
 And filled them full of gold soe red.
- 20 Then he did neuer cease nor blinne
 Till Iohn of the Scales house he did winne.
 When that he came to Iohn of the Scales,
 Vpp at the speere he looked then.
- 21 There sate three lords vpon a rowe,
 And Iohn o the Scales sate at the bord's head,
 And Iohn o the Scales sate at the bord's head,
 Because he was the lord of Linne.
- 22 And then bespake the heire of Linne,
 To Iohn o the Scales' wiffe thus sayd hee:
 Sayd, Dame, wilt thou not trust me one shott
That I may sitt downe in this company?
- 23 'Now, Christ's curse on my head,' shee said,
 'If I doe trust thee one penny;'
 Then be-spake a good fellowe,
 Which sate by Iohn o the Scales his knee.
- 24 Said, Haue thou here, thou heire of Linne,
 Forty pence I will lend thee;
 Some time a good fellow thou hast beene;
 And other forty if neede bee.
- 25 The dru[n]ken wine that was soe cleere,
 And euery man the made merry;
 And then bespake him Iohn o the Scales,
 Vnto the lord of Linne said hee.
- 26 Said, How doest thou, heire of Linne,
 Since I did buy thy lands of thee?
 I will sell it to thee twenty pound better cheepe
 Nor euer I did buy it of thee.
- 27 'I draw you to recorde, lord[ë]s all,'
 With that he cast him [a] god's penny;
 Then he tooke to his baggs of bread,
 And they were full of the gold soe redd.
- 28 He told him the gold then over the borde,
 It wanted neuer a broad penny:

'That gold is thine, the land is mine,
And the heire of Linne againe I wil-
bee.'

29 'Now welladay !' said Iohn o the Scales'
wife,
'Welladay, and woe is me !
Yesterday I was the lady of Linne,
And now I am but Iohn o the Scales'
wiffe !'

30 Saies, Haue thou heere, thou good fellow,
Forty pence thou did lend me,
Forty pence thou did lend me,
And forty pound I will giue thee.

31 'He make thee keeper of my forrest
Both of the wild deere and the tame,'

32 But then bespake the heire of Linne,
These were the words, and thus said
hee,
Christs curse light vpon my crowne
If ere my land stand in any ieopardye !

1 'THE bonny heir, and the well-faird heir,
And the weary heir o Linne,
Yonder he stands at his father's yetts,
And naebody bids him come in.

2 'O see for he gangs, an see for he stands,
The weary heir o Linne !
O see for he stands on the cauld
casey,
And nae an bids him come in !

3 'But if he had been his father's heir,
Or yet the heir o Linne,
He wadna stand on the cauld casey,
Some an woud taen him in.'

4 'Sing ower again that sang, nourice,
The sang ye sung just now ;'
'I never sung a sang in my life
But I woud sing ower to you.

5 'O see for he gangs, an see' for he stands,
The weary heir o Linne !
O see for he stands on the cauld casey,
An nae an bids him come in !

6 'But if he had been his father's heir,
Or yet the heir o Linne,
He woudna stand on the cauld casey,
Some an woud taen him in.

7 'When his father's lands a selling were,
His claise lay well in fauld,
But now he wanders on the shore,
Baith hungry, weet, and cauld.'

8 As Willie he gaed down the town,
The gentlemen were drinking;
Some bade gie Willie a glass, a glass,
And some bade him gie nane,
Some bade gie Willie a glass, a glass,
The weary heir o Linne.

9 As Willie he came up the town,
The fishers were a' sitting;
Some bade gie Willie a fish, a fish,
Some bade gie him a flu,
Some bade gie him a fish, a fish,
And lat the palmer gang.

10 He turned him right and round about,
As will as a woman's son,
And taen his cane into his hand,
And on his way to Linne.

11 His nourice at her window lookd,
Beholding dale and down,
And she beheld this distressed young man
Come walking to the town.

12 'Come here, come here, Willie,' she
said,
'And rest yoursel wi me;
I hae seen you in better days,
And in jovial companie.'

13 'Gie me a sheave o your bread, nourice,
And a bottle o your wine,
And I'll pay you it a' ower again,
When I'm the laird o Linne.'

- 14 'Ye 'se get a sheave o my bread, Willie,
And a bottle o my wine,
But ye 'll pay me when the seas gang
dry,
For ye 'll neer be heir o Linne.'
- 15 Then he turnd him right and round
about,
As will as woman's son,
And aff he set, and bent his way,
And straightway came to Linne.
- 16 But when he came to that castle,
'They were set down to dine;
A score o nobles there he saw,
Sat drinking at the wine.
- 17 Then some bade gie him beef, the beef,
And some bade gie him the bane;
And some bade gie him naething at a',
But lat the palmer gang.
- 18 Then out it speaks the new-come laird,
A saucy word spake hee;
'Put round the cup, gie my rival a sup,
Let him fare on his way.'
- 19 Then out it speaks Sir Ned Magnew,
Ane o young Willie's kin;
'This youth was ance a sprightly boy
As ever lived in Linne.'
- 20 He turned him right and round about,
As will as woman's son,
'Then minded him on a little wee key,
That his mother left to him.
- 21 His mother left [him] this little wee
key
A little before she died;
And bade him keep this little wee key
Till he was in maist need.
- 22 Then forth he went, these nobles left,
All drinkin' in the room,
Wi walking rod intill his hand,
He walked the castle roun.
- 23 There he found out a little door,
For there the key slipped in,
And there [he] got as muckle red gowd
As freed the lands o Linne.
- 24 Back through the nobles then he went,
A saucy man was then:
- 'I 'll take the cup frae this new-come laird,
For he neer bade me sit down.'
- 25 Then out it speaks the new-come laird,
He spake wi mock an jeer;
'I 'd gie a seat to the laird o Linne,
Sae be that he were here.
- 26 'When the lands o Linne a selling were,
A' men said they were free;
This lad shall hae them frae me this
day,
If he 'll gie the third pennie.'
- 27 'I take ye witness, nobles a',
Guide witnesses ye 'll be;
I'm promised the lands o Linne this
day,
If I gie the third pennie.'
- 28 'Ye 've taen us witness, Willie,' they
said,
'Guide witnesses we 'll be;'
'Buy the lands o Linne who likes,
They 'll neer be bought by thee.'
- 29 He 's done him to a gaming-table,
For it stood fair and clean;
There he tauld down as much rich gowd
As freed the lands o Linne.
- 30 Thus having done, he turnd about,
A saucy man was he;
'Take up your monie, my lad,' he says,
'Take up your third pennie.
- 31 'Aft hae I gane wi barefeet cauld,
Likewise wi legs full bare,
An mony days walkd at these yetts
Wi muckle dool and care.
- 32 'But now my sorrow 's past and gane,
And joy 's returned to me,
And here I 've gowd enough forbye,
Ahin this third pennie.'
- 33 As Willie he gaed down the town,
There he crawd wonderous crouse;
He calld the may afore them a',
The nourice o the house,
- 34 'Come here, come here, my nurse,' he
says,
'I 'll pay your bread and wine;

Seas ebb and flow [as] they wont to do,
Yet I 'm the laird o Linne.'

35 As he gaed up the Gallowgate port,
His hose abeen his sheen;
But lang ere he came down again
Was convoyed by lords fifeteen.

THE TWA KNIGHTS

This ballad can have had no currency in Scotland, and perhaps was known only through print. A similar one is strictly traditional in Greece, and widely dispersed, both on the mainland and among the islands. There are numerous tales in which a man wagers heavily upon a woman's (generally his wife's) constancy, and, upon plausible evidence, which in the end proves to be nugatory, is adjudged to have lost. Such are the Old French Roman de la Violette and Flore et Jehane; Decameron, ii, 9 (repeated in Shakspeare's Cymbeline), etc. Only a small section of these stories, however, has the distinctive traits of the Scottish and Romaic ballads. Examples are the thirteenth-century rhymed tale 'Von zwein Kaufmannen' (von der Hagen, Gesammtabenteuer, III, 357) and the Welsh tale of 'Taliesin' in the so-called Mabinogian.

Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, II, 271.

1 THERE were twa knights in fair Scotland,
And they were brothers sworn;
They made a vow to be as true
As if they 'd been brothers born.

2 The one he was a wealthy knight,
Had lands and buildings free;
The other was a young hynde squire,
In rank of lower degree.

3 But it fell ance upon a day
These squires they walkd alone,
And to each other they did talk
About the fair women.

4 'O wed a may,' the knight did say,
'For your credit and fame;
Lay never your love on lemanry,
Bring nae gude woman to shame.'

5 'There 's nae gude women,' the squire
did say,
'Into this place but nine;'
'O well falls me,' the knight replied,
'For ane o them is mine.'

6 'Ye say your lady 's a gude woman,
But I say she is nane;
I think that I could gain her love
Ere six months they are gane.

7 'If ye will gang six months away,
And sail upon the faem,
Then I will gain your lady's love
Before that ye come hame.'

8 'O I 'll gang till a far countrie,
And far beyond the faem,
And ye winna gain my lady's love
Whan nine lang months are gane.'

9 When the evening sun did set,
And day came to an end,
In then came the lady's gude lord,
Just in at yon town's end.

10 'O comely are ye, my lady gay,
Sae fair and rare to see;
I wish whan I am gane away
Ye keep your mind to me.'

11 She gae 'm a bason to wash in,
It shin'd thro a' the ha;
But aye as she gaed but and ben
She loot the saut tears fa.

12 'I wonder what ails my gude lord
He has sic jealousy;
Never when we parted before,
He spak sic words to me.'

13 When cocks did crow, and day did daw,
This knight was fair at sea;
Then in it came the young hynde squire,
To work him villanie.

14 'I hae a coffer o gude red gowd,
Another o white monie;
I woud gie you 't a', my gay lady,
To lye this night wi me.'

15 'If ye warnna my lord's brother,
And him sae far frae hame,
Even before my ain bower-door
I 'd gar hang you on a pin.'

- 16 He's gane frae the lady's bower,
Wi the saut tear in his ee,
And he is to his foster-mother
As fast as gang coud he.
- 17 'There is a fancy in my head
That I'll reveal to thee,
And your assistance I will crave
If ye will grant it me.
- 18 'I've fifty guineas in my pocket,
I've fifty o them and three,
And if ye'll grant what I request
Ye'se hae them for your fee.'
- 19 'Speak on, speak on, ye gude hynde
squire,
What may your asking be?
I kenna wha woud be sae base
As nae serve for sic a fee.'
- 20 'O I hae wagherd wi my brother,
When he went to the faem,
That I woud gain his lady's love
Ere six months they were gane.
- 21 'To me he laid his lands at stake
Tho he were on the faem,
I wudna gain his lady's love
Whan nine lang months were gane.
- 22 'Now I hae tried to gain her love,
But finds it winna do;
And here I'm come, as ye her know,
To seek some help frae you.
- 23 'For I did lay my life at stake,
Whan my brother went frae hame,
That I woud gain his lady's love
Whan he was on the faem.'
- 24 But when the evening sun was set,
And day came to an end,
In it came that fause carline,
Just in at yon town's end.
- 25 'O comely are ye, my gay lady,
Your lord is on the faem;
Yon unco squire will gain your love,
Before that he come hame.'
- 26 'Forbid it,' said the lady fair,
'That eer the like shoud be,
That I woud wrang my ain gude lord,
And him sae far at sea.'
- 27 'O comely are ye, my gay lady,
Stately is your fair bodie;
Your lovely visage is far chang'd,
That is best known to me.
- 28 'You're sair dune out for want o sleep
Sin your lord went to sea;
Unless that ye do cease your grief,
It will your ruin be.
- 29 'You'll send your maids unto the hay,
Your young men unto the corn;
I'll gar ye sleep as soun a sleep
As the night that ye were born.'
- 30 She sent her maids to ted the hay,
Her men to shear the corn,
And she gard her sleep as soun a sleep
As the night that she was born.
- 31 She rowd that lady in the silk,
Laid her on holland sheets;
Wi fine enchanting melodie
She lulld her fast asleep.
- 32 She lockd the yetts o that castle
Wi thirty locks and three,
Then went to meet the young hynde
squire,
To him the keys gae she.
- 33 He's opend the locks o that castle,
Were thirty and were three,
And he's gane where that lady lay,
And thus to her said he.
- 34 'O wake, O wake, ye gay lady,
O wake and speak to me;
I hae it fully in my power
To come to bed to thee.'
- 35 'For to defile my husband's bed,
I woud think that a sin;
As soon as this lang day is gane,
Then I shall come to thine.'
- 36 ~~Then she has~~ calld her niece Maisry,
Says, An asking ye'll grant me,
For to gang to yon unco squire
And sleep this night for me.
- 37 'The gude red gowd shall be your hire,
And siller's be your fee;
Five hundred pounds o pennies round,
Your tocher it shall be.'

38 She turnd her right and round about,
And thus to her did say;
O there was never a time on earth
So fain 's I woud say nay.

39 But when the evening sun was set,
And day drawn to an end,
Then Lady Maisry she is gane,
Fair out at yon town-end.

40 Then she is to yon hynde squire's yates,
And tirl'd at the pin;
Wha was sae busy as the hynde squire
To lat that lady in !

41 He 's taen her in his arms twa,
He was a joyfu man;
He neither bade her meat nor drink,
But to the bed he ran.

42 When he had got his will o her,
His will as he lang sought,
Her ring but and her ring-finger
Away frae her he brought.

43 With discontent straight home she went
And thus lamented she;
Says, Wae be to yon young hynde squire !
Sae ill as he 's used me.

44 When the maids came frae the hay,
The young men frae the corn,
Ben it came that lady gay,
Who thought lang for their return.

45 ' Where hae ye been, my maidens a',
Sae far awa frae me ?
My foster-mother and lord's brother
Thought to hae beguiled me.

46 ' Had not she been my foster-mother,
I suckd at her breast-bane,
Even before my ain bower-door,
She in a gleed shoud burn.

47 ' The squire he thought to gain my
love,
He 's got but Lady Maisry;
He 's cutted her ring and her ring-finger,
A love-token for to be.

48 ' I 'll tie my finger in the dark,
Where nae ane shall me see;
I hope to loose it in the light,
Amang gude companie.'

49 When night was gane, and birds did sing,
And day began to peep,
The hynde squire walkd alang the shore,
His brother for to meet.

50 ' Ye are welcome, welcome, landless
lord,
To my ha's and my bowers;
Ye are welcome hame, ye landless lord,
To my lady white like flowers.'

51 ' Ye say I am a landless lord,
But I think I am nane,
Without ye show some love-token
Awa frae her ye 've tane.'

52 He drew the strings then o his purse,
And they were a' bludie;
The ring but and the ring-finger
Sae soon as he lat him see.

53 ' O wae be to you, fause hynde squire,
Ane ill death mat ye dee !
It was too sair a love-token
To take frae my ladie.

54 ' But ae asking of you, hynde squire,
In your won bowers to dine ;'
' With a' my heart, my brother dear,
Tho ye had asked nine.'

55 Then he is to his lady's father,
And a sorrow man was he:
' O judge, O judge, my father dear,
This judgment pass for me.

56 ' What is the thing that shoud be done
Unto that gay lady
Who woud gar her lord gae landless,
And children bastards to be ?'

57 ' She shoud be brunt upon a hill,
Or hangd upon a tree,
That woud gar her lord gang landless,
And children bastards be.'

58 ' Your judgment is too rash, father;
Your ain daughter is she
That this day has made me landless;
Your squire gaird it frae me.

59 ' Yet nevertheless, my parents dear,
Ae favour ye 'll grant me,
And gang alang to my lost ha'a,
And take your dine wi me.'

60 He threw the charters ower the table,
And kissd the yates o tree;
Says, Fare ye well, my lady gay,
Your face I 'll never see.

61 Then his lady calld out to him,
'Come here, my lord, and dine;
There 's nae a smith in a' the land
That can ae finger join.

62 'I tied my fluger in the dark,
Whan nae ane did me see;
But now I 'll loose it in the light,
Amang gude companie.

63 'Even my niece, Lady Maisry,
The same woman was she;
The gude red gowd shall be her hire,
And likeways white monie.

64 'Five hundred pounds o pennies round
Her tocher then shall be,
Because she did my wills obey,
Beguile the squire for me.'

65 Then they did call this young hynde
squire
To come right speedilie,
Likeways they calld young Lady Maisry
To pay her down her fee.

66 Then they laid down to Lady Maisry
The brand but and the ring;
It was to stick him wi the brand,
Or wed him wi the ring.

67 Thrice she minted to the brand,
But she took up the ring;
And a' the ladies who heard o it
Said she was a wise woman.

LADY DIAMOND

The source of this ballad is Boccaccio's tale of Guiscardo and Ghismonda in the Decameron, iv. 1. Guiscardo has sunk to the rank of kitchen-boy. An echo of Guismonda's name is heard in Dysmal, Diamond, the name of the heroine in C, D; in A she is called Daisy; in B, Dayesie; in E, Dysie. Boccaccio's story belongs to a large and complicated group of popular and romantic fictions (see Child, v, 29 ff.).

'Lady Daisy,' Aytoun's Ballads of Scotland, II, 173, 1859, from the recollection of a lady residing at Kirkaldy.

1 THERE was a king, and a very great king,
And a king of meikle fame;
He had not a child in the world but ane,
Lady Daisy was her name.

2 He had a very bonnie kitchen-boy,
And William was his name;
He never lay out o Lady Daisy's bower,
Till he brought her body to shame.

3 Wheneen-birds sung, and een-bells rung,
And a' men were boune to rest,
The king went on to Lady Daisy's bower,
Just like a wandering ghaist.

4 He has drawn the curtains round and
round,
And there he has sat him down;
'To whom is this, Lady Daisy,' he says,
'That now you go sae round ?

5 'Is it to a laird ? or is it to a lord ?
Or a baron of high degree ?
Or is it William, my bonnie kitchen-boy ?
Tell now the truth to me.'

6 'It's no to a laird, and it's no to a lord,
Nor a baron of high degree:
But it's to William, your bonnie kitchen-boy:
What cause hae I to lee ?'

7 'O where is all my merry, merry men,
That I pay meat and fee,
That they will not take out this kitchen-boy,
And kill him presentlie ?'

8 They hae taen out this bonnie kitchen-boy,
And killd him on the plain;
His hair was like the threads o gold,
His een like crystal stane;
His hair was like the threads o gold,
His teeth like ivory bane.

9 They hae taen out this bonnie boy's heart,
Put it in a cup o gold;
'Take that to Lady Daisy,' he said,
'For she's impudent and bold;'

And she washd it with the tears that ran from her eye
Into the cup of gold.

10 'Now fare ye weel, my father the king !
You hae taen my earthly joy;
Since he 's died for me, I 'll die for him,
My bonnie kitchen-boy.'

11 'O where is all my merry, merry men,
That I pay meat and wage,
That they could not withhold my cruel
hand,
When I was mad with rage ?

12 'I think nae wonder, Lady Daisy,' he
said,
'That he brought your body to shame;
For there never was man of woman born
Sae fair as him that is slain.'

THE EARL OF MAR'S
DAUGHTER

The lover in bird-shape is a very familiar trait in fiction, particularly in popular tales.
So in Marie de France's Lai d'Yonec, and in the Scandinavian ballad 'Ridderen i Fugleham' (Grundtvig, No. 68).

'The Earl of Mar's Daughter,' Buchan's
Ballads of the North of Scotland, I, 49; Motherwell's MS., p. 565.

1 It was intill a pleasant time,
Upon a simmer's day,
The noble Earl of Mar's daughter
Went forth to sport and play.

2 As thus she did amuse hersell,
Below a green aik tree,
There she saw a sprightly doo
Set on a tower sae hie.

3 'O Cow-me-doo, my love sae true,
If ye 'll come down to me,
Ye 'se hae a cage o guid red gowd
Instead o simple tree:

4 'I 'll put gowd hingers roun your cage,
And siller roun your wa;
I 'll gar ye shine as fair a bird
As ony o them a'.'

5 But she hadnae these words well spoke,
Nor yet these words well said,
Till Cow-me-doo flew frae the tower
And lighted on her head.

6 Then she has brought this pretty bird
Hame to her bowers and ha,
And made him shine as fair a bird
As ony o them a'.

7 When day was gane, and night was come,
About the evening tide,
This lady spied a sprightly youth
Stand straight up by her side.

8 'From whence came ye, young man ?'
she said;
'That does surprise me sair;
My door was bolted right secure,
What way hae ye come here ?'

9 'O had your tongue, ye lady fair,
Lat a' your folly be;
Mind ye not on your turtle-doo
Last day ye brought wi thee ?'

10 'O tell me mair, young man,' she said,
'This does surprise me now;
What country hae ye come frae ?
What pedigree are you ?'

11 'My mither lives on foreign isles,
She has nae mair but me;
She is a queen o wealth and state,
And birth and high degree.

12 'Likewise well skilld in magic spells,
As ye may plainly see,
And she transformd me to yon shape,
To charm such maids as thee.

13 'I am a doo the live-lang day,
A sprightly youth at night;
This aye gars me appear mair fair
In a fair maiden's sight.

14 'And it was but this verra day
That I came ower the sea;
Your lovely face did me enchant;
I 'll live and dee wi thee.'

15 'O Cow-me-doo, my love sae true,
Nae mair frae me ye 'se gae;
That 's never my intent, my love,
As ye said, it shall be sae.'

- 16 'O Cow-me-doo, my luv sae true,
It's time to gae to bed;
'Wi a' my heart, my dear marrow,
It's be as ye hae said.'
- 17 Then he has staid in bower wi her
For sax lang years and ane,
Till sax young sons to him she bare,
And the seventh she's brought hame.
- 18 But aye as ever a child was born
He carried them away,
And brought them to his mither's
care,
As fast as he coud fly.
- 19 Thus he has staid in bower wi her
For twenty years and three;
There came a lord o high renown
To court this fair ladie.
- 20 But still his proffer she refused,
And a' his presents too;
Says, I'm content to live alane
Wi my bird, Cow-me-doo.
- 21 Her father sware a solemn oath
Amang the nobles all,
'The morn, or ere I eat or drink,
This bird I will gar kill.'
- 22 The bird was sitting in his cage,
And heard what they did say;
And when he found they were dismiss,
Says, Wae's me for this day!
- 23 'Before that I do langer stay,
And thus to be forlorn,
I'll gang unto my mither's bower,
Where I was bred and born.'
- 24 Then Cow-me-doo took flight and flew
Beyond the raging sea,
And lighted near his mither's castle,
On a tower o gowd sae hie.
- 25 As his mither was wauking out,
To see what she cond see,
And there she saw her little son,
Set on the tower sae hie.
- 26 'Get dancers here to dance,' she said,
'And minstrells for to play;
For here's my young son, Florentine,
Come here wi me to stay.'
- 27 'Get nae dancers to dance, mither,
Nor minstrells for to play,
For the mither o my seven sons,
The morn's her wedding-day.'
- 28 'O tell me, tell me, Florentine,
Tell me, and tell me true,
Tell me this day without a flaw,
What I will do for you.'
- 29 'Instead of dancers to dance, mither,
Or minstrells for to play,
Turn four-and-twenty wall-wight men
Like storks in feathers gray;
- 30 'My seven sons in seven swans,
Aboon their heads to flee;
And I mysell a gay gos-hawk,
A bird o high degree.'
- 31 Then sichin said the queen hersell,
'That thing's too high for me;'
But she applied to an auld woman,
Who had mair skill than she.
- 32 Instead o dancers to dance a dance,
Or minstrells for to play,
Four-and-twenty wall-wight men
Turnd birds o feathers gray;
- 33 Her seven sons in seven swans,
Aboon their heads to flee;
And he himsell a gay gos-hawk,
A bird o high degree.
- 34 This flock o birds took flight and flew
Beyond the raging sea,
And landed near the Earl Mar's castle,
Took shelter in every tree.
- 35 They were a flock o pretty birds,
Right comely to be seen;
The people viewd them wi surprise,
As they dancd on the green.
- 36 These birds ascended frae the tree
And lighted on the ha,
And at the last wi force did flee
Amang the nobles a'.
- 37 The storks there seized some o the men,
They coud neither fight nor flee;
The swans they bound the bride's best
man
Below a green aik tree.

- 38 They lighted next on maidens fair,
Then on the bride's own head,
And wi the twinkling o an ee
The bride and them were fled.
- 39 There's ancient men at weddings been
For sixty years or more,
But sic a curious wedding-day
They never saw before.
- 40 For naething coud the companie do,
Nor naething coud they say
But they saw a flock o pretty birds
That took their bride away.
- 41 When that Earl Mar he came to know
Where his dochter did stay,
He sign'd a bond o unity,
And visits now they pay.

THE LORD OF LORN AND THE FALSE STEWARD

'The Lord of Lorne and the false Steward' was entered in the Stationers' Registers, with two other ballads, to Master Walley, 6 October, 1580; 'Lord of Lorne' to Master Pavier and others (among 128 pieces), 14 December, 1624. There are several broadsides of the second half of the seventeenth century, affording version B, which is an abridgement of an old copy. The story of B is the same as that of A in all material particulars.

'The Lord of Lorn' is apparently founded on the romance of Roswall and Lillian, which itself belongs with a well-known group of popular tales, represented by the Grimms' 'Goose-girl' (No. 89).

A

'Lord of Learne,' Percy MS., p. 73; Hales and Furnivall, I, 180.

- 1 It was the worthy Lord of Learen,
He was a lord of a hie degree;
He had noe more children but one sonne,
He sett him to schoole to learne curtesie.
- 2 Lear[n]ing did soe proceed with that
child,
I tell you all in veretie,
He learned more vpon one day
Then other children did on three,

- 3 And then bespake the schoole-master,
Vnto the Lord of Learne said hee,
I thinke thou be some stranger borne,
For the holy gost remaines with thee.
- 4 He said, I am noe stranger borne,
Forsooth, master, I tell it to thee;
It is a gift of Almighty God
Which he hath giuen vnto mee.
- 5 The schoole-master turnd him round
about,
His angry mind he thought to asswage,
For the child coud answer him soe
quicklie,
And was of soe tender yeere of age.
- 6 The child he caused a steed to be brought,
A golden bridle done him vpon;
He tooke his leaue of his schoolfellowa,
And home the child that he is gone.
- 7 And when he came before his father,
He ffell low downe vpon his knee:
'My blessing, father, I wold aske,
If Christ wold grant you wold giue
it me.'
- 8 'Now God thee blesse, my sonne and
my heire,
His servant in heauen that thou may
bee!
What tydings hast thou brought me,
child,
Thou art comen home so soone to
mee?'
- 9 'Good tydings, father, I haue you
brought,
Goo[d tydings] I hope it is to thee;
The booke is not in all S[c]ottlande
But I can reade it before your eye.'
- 10 A ioyed man his father was,
Euen the worthy Lord of Learne:
'Thou shalt goe into Ffrance, my child,
The speeches of all strange lands to
learne.'
- 11 But then bespake the child his mother,
The Lady of Learne and then was abee;
Saies, Who must be his well good guide,
When he goes into that strange country?

12 And then bespake that bonnie child,
Vntill his father tenderlie;
Saies, Father, I'le haue the hend steward,
For he hath beene true to you and
mee.

13 The lady to concell the steward did
take,
And counted downe a hundred pound
there;
Saies, Steward, be true to my sonne and
my heire,
And I will giue thee mickle mere.

14 'If I be not true to my master,' he said,
'Christ himselve be not trew to mee!
If I be not true to my lord and master,
An ill death that I may die!'

15 The Lord of Learne did apparell his child
With bruche, and ringe, and many a
thinge;
The apparrell he had his body vpon,
Thé say was worth a squier's liuinge.

16 The parting of the younge Lord of
Learne
With his ffather, his mother, his fellows deere,
Wold haue made a manis hart for to change,
If a lew borne that he were.

17 The wind did serue, and thé did sayle
Over the sea into Ffrance land;
He vsed the child soe hardlie,
He wold let him haue neuer a penny to spend.

18 And meate he wold let the child haue
none,
Nor mony to buy none, trulie;
The boy was hungry and thirsty both;
Alas! it was the more pittie.

19 He laid him downe to drinke the water
That was soe low beneathe the brime;
He [that] was wont to hane drunke both ale and wine
Then was faine of the water soe thinne.

20 And as he was drinking of the water
That ran soe low beneath the brime,

Soe ready was the false steward
To drowne the bonny boy therin.

21 'Haue mercy on me, worthy steward!
My life,' he said, 'lend it to mee,
And all that I am heire vpon,'
Saies, 'I will giue vnto thee.'

22 Mercy to him the steward did take,
And pulld the child out of the brime;
Euer alacke, the more pittie!
He tooke his clothes euen from him.

23 Saies, 'Doe thou me of that veluett
gowne,
The crimson hose beneath thy knee,
And doe me of thy cordiuant shoone,
Are buckled with the gold soe free.

24 'Doe thou me off thy sattin doublett,
Thy shirtband wrought with glister-
ing gold,
And doe mee off thy golden chaine,
About thy necke soe many a fold.

25 'Doe thou me off thy veluett hat,
With fether in that is soe ffine;
All vnto thy silken shirt,
That's wrought with many a golden seam.'

26 The child before him naked stood,
With skin as white as lilly flower;
For [t]his worthy lords bewtie
He might haue beene a ladye's para-moure.

27 He put vpon him a lether cote,
And breeches of the same beneath
the knee,
And sent that bony child him froe,
Service for to craue, truly.

28 He pulld then forth a naked sword
That hange full low then by his
side;
'Turne thy name, thou villaine,' he said,
'Or else this sword shall be thy
guide.'

29 'What must be my name, worthy steward?
I pray thee now tell it me:'
'Thy name shalbe Pore Disaware,
To tend sheepe on a lonelye lee.'

- 30 The bonny child he went him free,
And looked to himselfe, truly;
Saw his apparrell soe simple vpon;
O Lord! he weeped tenderlye.
- 31 Vnto a shepard's house that childe did
goe,
And said, Sir, God you saue and see!
Doe you not want a servant-boy,
To tend your sheepe on a lonelie lee?
- 32 'Where was thou borne?' the shepard
said,
'Where, my boy, or in what country?'
'Sir,' he said, 'I was borne in fayre
Scotland,
That is soe farr beyond the sea.'
- 33 'I haue noe child,' the shepard sayd;
'My boy, thoust tarry and dwell with
mee;
My liuinge,' he sayd, 'and all my goods,
I'll make thee heire [of] after mee.'
- 34 And then bespake the shepard's wife,
To the Lord of Learne thus did she say;
'Goe thy way to our sheepe,' she said,
'And tend them well both night and
day.'
- 35 It was a sore office, O Lord, for him
That was a lord borne of a great degree!
As he was tending his sheepe alone,
Neither sport nor play cold hee.
- 36 Let vs leaue talking of the Lord of
Learne,
And let all such talking goe;
Let vs talke more of the false steward,
That caused the child all this woe.
- 37 He sold this Lord of Learne's his clothes
For fye hundred pound to his pay
[there],
And bought himselfe a suite of apparrell
Might well besee me a lord to weare.
- 38 When he that gorgeous apparrell bought,
That did soe finelie his body vpon,
He laughed the bonny child to scorne
That was the bonny Lord of Learne.
- 39 He laughed that bonny boy to scorne;
Lord! pittie it was to heare;
- I haue herd them say, and soe haue you
too,
That a man may buy gold to deere.
- 40 When that he had all that gorgeous apparrell,
That did soe finelie his body vpon,
He went a woing to the Duke's daughter of France,
And called himselfe the Lord of
Learne.
- 41 The Duke of Ffrance heard tell of this,
To his place that worthy lord was come, truly;
He entertained him with a quart of red
Renish wi[ne],
Saies, Lord of Learne, thou art welcome to me.
- 42 Then to supper that they were sett,
Lords and ladies in their degree;
The steward was sett next the Duke of France;
An vnseemly sight it was to see.
- 43 Then bespake the Duke of Ffrance,
Vnto the Lord of Learne said hee there,
Sayes, Lord of Learne, if thou'll marry
my daught[er],
I'll mend thy liuing fye hundred pound a yeere.
- 44 Then bespake that lady fayre,
Answered her ffather soe alone,
That shee would be his marryed wiffe
If he wold make her lady of Learne.
- 45 Then hand in hand the steward her he tooke,
And plight that lady his troth alone,
That she shold be his marryed wiffe,
And he wold make her the ladie of Learne.
- 46 Thus that night it was gone,
The other day was come, truly;
The lady wold see the robucke run,
Vp hills and dales and forrest free.
- 47 Then shee was ware of the younge Lor:
of Learne
Tending sheepe vnder a bryar, trulye
.
.

- 48 And thus shee called vnto her maids,
And held her hands vp thus an hie;
Sayes, Feitch me yond shepard's boy,
I'le know why he doth mourne, trulye.
- 49 When he came before that lady fayer,
He fell downe vpon his knee;
He had beene so well brought vpp
He needed not to learne curtesie.
- 50 'Where wast thou borne, thou bonny
boy?
Where or in what countrie?'
'Madam, I was borne in faire Scott-
land,
That is soe farr beyond the sea.'
- 51 'What is thy name, thou bonny boy?
I pray thee tell it vnto mee;'
'My name,' he sayes, 'is Poore Disa-
ware,
That tends sheepe on a lonely lee.'
- 52 'One thing thou must tell mee, bonny
boy,
Which I must needs aske of thee,
Dost not thou know the young Lord of Learne?
He is comen a woing into France to
me.'
- 53 'Yes, that I doe, madam,' he said,
And then he wept most tenderlie;
'The Lord of Learne is a worthy lord,
If he were at home in his oune country.'
- 54 'What ayles thee to weepe, my bonny
boy?
Tell me or ere I part thee free:'
'Nothing but for a freind, madam,
That's dead from me many a yeere agoe.'
- 55 A loud laughter the ladie lought,
O Lord! shee smiled wonderous hie:
'I haue dwelled in France since I was
borne;
Such a shepard's boy I did neuer see.
- 56 'Wilt thou not leaue thy sheepe, my
child,
And come vnto service vnto mee?
And I will giue thee meate and fee,
And my chamberlaine thou shalt bee.'
- 57 'Then I will leaue my sheepe, madam,'
he sayd,
'And come into service vnto thee,
If you will giue me meate and fee,
Your chamberlaine that I may bee.'
- 58 When the lady came before her father,
Shee fell low downe vpon her knee;
'Grant me, father,' the lady said,
'This boy my chamberlaine to be.'
- 59 'But O nay, nay,' the duke did say,
'Soe my daughter it may not bee;
The lord that is come a woing to you
Will be offended with you and mee.'
- 60 Then came downe the false steward,
Which called himselfe the Lord of Learne, trulie;
When he looked that bonny boy vpon,
An angry man i-wis was hee.
- 61 'Where was thou borne, thou vagabond?
Where?' he sayd, 'and in what country?'
Says, I was borne in fayre Scotland,
That is soe far beyond the sea.
- 62 'What is thy name, thou vagabond?
Haue done qu[i]cklie, and tell it to
me;'
'My name,' he sayes, 'is Poore Disa-
ware,
I tend sheep on the lonelie lee.'
- 63 'Thou art a theefe,' the steward said,
'And soe in the end I will prooue thee;'
.
- 64 Then be-spake the ladie fayre,
'Peace, Lord of Learne! I doe pray
thee;
Ffor if noe loue you show this child,
Noe favor can you haue of mee.'
- 65 'Will you beleue me, lady faire,
When the truth I doe tell yee?
Att Aberdonie, beyond the sea,
His father he robbed a hundred three.'
- 66 Bnt then bespake the Duke of France
Vnto the boy soe tenderlie;
Saies, Boy, if thou loue harsses well,
My stable-groome I will make thee.

- 67 And thus that that did passe vpon
Till the twelve monthes did draw to an ende;
The boy applyed his office soe well
Euery man became his freind.
- 68 He went forth earlye one morning
To water a gelding at the water soe free;
The gelding vp, and with his head
He hitt the child aboue his eye.
- 69 'Woe be to thee, thou gelding,' he sayd,
'And to the mare that foled thee!
Thou hast striken the Lord of Learne
A litle tinye aboue the eye.
- 70 'First night after I was borne, a lord I
was,
An earle after my father doth die;
My father is the worthy Lord of Learne,
And child he hath noe more but mee;
He sent me over the sea with the false
steward,
And thus that he hath beguiled mee.'
- 71 The lady [wa]s in her garden greene,
Walking with her mayds, trulye,
And heard the boy this mourning make,
And went to weeping, trulie.
- 72 'Sing on thy song, thou stable groome,
I pray thee doe not let for mee,
And as I am a true ladie
I wilbe trew vnto thee.'
- 73 'But nay, now nay, madam!' he sayd,
'Soe that it may not bee;
I am tane sworne vpon a booke,
And forsworne I will not bee.'
- 74 'Sing on thy song to thy gelding,
And thou doest not sing to mee;
And as I am a true ladie
I will euer be true vnto thee.'
- 75 He sayd, Woe be to thee, gelding,
And to the mare that foled thee!
For thou hast stricken the Lord of
Learne
A litle aboue mine eye.
- 76 First night I was borne, a lord I was,
An earle after my father doth dye;
My father is the good Lord of Learne,
And child he hath noe other but mee;

- My father sent me over [the sea] with the false steward,
And thus that he hath beguiled mee.
- 77 'Woe be to the steward, lady,' he sayd,
'Woe be to him verrily!
He hath beene about this twelve months
day
For to deceiue both thee and mee.
- 78 'If you doe not my counsell keepe,
That I haue told you with good intent,
And if you doe it not well keepe,
Ffarwell! my life is at an ende.'
- 79 'I wil be true to thee, Lord of Learne,
Or else Christ be not soe vnto me;
And as I am a trew ladye,
I'le neuer marry none but thee.'
- 80 Shee sent in for her father, the Duke,
In all the speed that ere might bee;
'Put of my wedding, father,' shee said,
'For the loue of God, this monthes
three.
- 81 'Sicke I am,' the ladye said,
'O sicke, and verry like to die!
Put of my wedding, father Duke,
Ffor the loue of God, this monthes
three.'
- 82 The Duke of France put of this wedding
Of the steward and the lady monthes
three,
For the ladie sicke shee was,
Sicke, sicke, and like to die.
- 83 Shee wrote a letter with her owne hand,
In all the speede that euer might bee;
Shee sent [it] over into Scotland,
That is soe ffarr beyond the sea.
- 84 When the messenger came beffore the old Lord of Learne,
He kneeled low downe on his knee,
And he deliuered the letter vnto him,
In all the speed that euer might bee.
- 85 [The] first looke he looked the letter
vpon,
Lo! he wept full bitterly;
The second looke he looked it vpon,
Said, False steward, woe be to thee!

- 86 When the Ladye of Learne these tydings heard,
O Lord ! shee wept soe biterlye:
'I told you of this, now good my lord,
When I sent my child into that wild country.'
- 87 'Peace, Lady of Learne,' the lord did say,
'For Christ his loue I doe pray thee;
And as I am a christian man,
Wroken vpon him that I wilbe.'
- 88 He wrote a letter with his owne hand,
In all the speede that ere might bee;
He sent it into the lords in Scotland,
That were borne of a great degree.
- 89 He sent for lords, he sent for knights,
The best that were in the countrye,
To go with him into the land of France,
To seeke his sonne in that strange country.
- 90 The wind was good, and they did sayle,
Fiue hundred men into France land,
There to seeke that bonny boy
That was the worthy Lord of Learne.
- 91 They sought the country through and through,
Soe farr to the Duke's place of Ffrance land;
There they were ware of that bonny boy,
Standing with a porter's staffe in his hand.
- 92 Then the worshippfull, thé did bowe,
The serving-men fell on their knee,
They cast their hatts vp into the ayre
For ioy that boy that they had seene.
- 93 The Lord of Learne then he light downe,
And kist his child both cheeke and chinne,
And said, God blesse thee, my sonne and my heire !
The blisse of heauen that thou may winne !
- 94 The false steward and the Duke of France
Were in a castle-topp, trulie;
- 'What fooles are yond,' says the false steward,
'To the porter makes soe lowe curtesie ?'
- 95 Then bespake the Duke of Ffrance,
Calling my Lord of Learne, trulie;
He sayd, I doubt the day be come
That either you or I must die.
- 96 Thé sett the castle round about,
A swallow cold not haue flone away;
And there thé tooke the false steward
That the Lord of Learne did betray.
- 97 And when they had taken the false steward,
He fell lowe downe vpon his knee,
And craued mercy of the Lord of Learne
For the villanous dedd he had done, trulye.
- 98 'Thou shalt haue mercy,' said the Lord of Learne,
'Thou vile traitor, I tell to thee,
As the lawes of the realme they will thee beare,
Wether it bee for thee to liue or dye.'
- 99 A quest of lords that there was chosen,
To goe vppon his death, trulie;
There thé iudged the false steward,
Whether he was guiltie, and for to dye.
- 100 The forman of the iury he came in,
He spake his words full lowd and hie;
Said, Make thee ready, thou false steward,
For now thy death it drawes full nie.
- 101 Sayd he, If my death it doth draw nie,
God forgiue me all I haue done amisse !
Where is that lady I haue loned soe longe ?
Before my death to giue me a kisse.
- 102 'Away, thou traitor !' the lady said,
'Auoyd out of my company !
For thy vild treason thou hast wrought,
Thou had need to cry to God for mer-cye.'

- 103 First they tooke him and h[a]ngd him
halfe,
And let him downe before he was
dead,
And quartered him in quarters many,
And sodde him in a boyling lead.
- 104 And then they tooke him out againe,
And cutten all his ieynts in sunder,
And burnte him eke vpon a hyll;
I-wis the did him carstlye cumber.
- 105 A loud laughter the lady laught,
O Lord ! she smiled merrylie;
She sayd, I may praise my heauenly
king
That euer I seene this vile traytor die.
- 106 Then bespake the Duke of France,
Vnto the right Lord of Learne sayd
he there;
Says, Lord of Learne, if thou wilt marry
my daught[er]
I'le mend thy liuing fye hundred a yeere.
- 107 But then bespake that bonie boy,
And answered the Duke quicklie,
I had rather marry your daughter with a ring of go[ld]
Then all the gold that ere I blinket on with mine eye.
- 108 But then bespake the old Lord of
Learne,
To the Duke of France thus he did
say,
Seeing our children doe soe well agree,
They shalbe marryed ere wee goe
away.
- 109 The Lady of Learne shee was sent for Throughout Scotland soe speedilie,
To see these two children sett vpp
In their seats of gold full royallye.

THE SUFFOLK MIRACLE

This ballad is, in a blurred, enfeebled, and disfigured shape, the representative in England of one of the most remarkable tales and one of the most impressive and beautiful ballads of the European continent. The relationship is put beyond doubt by the existence of a story in Cornwall which comes much nearer to the Continental tale.

Long, long ago, Frank, a farmer's son, was in love with Nancy, a very attractive girl, who lived in the condition of a superior servant in his mother's house. Frank's parents opposed their matching, and sent the girl home to her mother; but the young pair continued to meet, and they bound themselves to each other for life or for death. To part them effectually, Frank was shipped for an India voyage. He could not write, and nothing was heard of him for nearly three years. On All-hallows-Eve Nancy went out with two companions to sow hemp-seed. Nancy began the rite, saying:

Hemp-seed, I sow thee,
Hemp-seed, grow thee!
And he who will my true-love be Come after me
And shaw thee.

This she said three times, and then, looking back over her left shoulder, she saw Frank indeed, but he looked so angry that she shrieked, and so broke the spell. One night in November a ship was wrecked on the coast, and Frank was cast ashore, with just enough life in him to ask that he might be married to Nancy before he died, a wish which was not to be fulfilled. On the night of his funeral, as Nancy was about to lock the house-door, a horseman rode up. His face was deadly pale, but Nancy knew him to be her lover. He told her that he had just arrived home, and had come to fetch her and make her his bride. Nancy was easily induced to spring on the horse behind him. When she clasped Frank's waist, her arm became stiff as ice. The horse went at a furious pace; the moon came out in full splendor. Nancy saw that the rider was in grave-clothes. She had lost the power of speech, but, passing a blacksmith's shop, where the smith was still at work, she recovered voice and cried, Save me! with all her might. The smith ran out with a hot iron in his hand, and, as the horse was rushing by, caught the girl's dress and pulled her to the ground. But the rider held on to the gown, and both Nancy and the smith were dragged on till they came near the churchyard. There the horse stopped for a moment, and the smith seized his chance to burn away the gown with his iron and free the girl. The horseman passed over the wall of the churchyard, and vanished at the grave in which the young man had been laid a few hours before. A piece of Nancy's dress was found on the grave. Nancy died before morning. It was said that one or two of the sailors who survived the wreck testified that Frank, on

Halloween, was like one mad, and, after great excitement, lay for hours as if dead, and that when he came to himself he declared that if he ever married the woman who had cast the spell, he would make her suffer for drawing his soul out of his body. (Popular Romances of the West of England, collected and edited by Robert Hunt, First Series, pp. 265-72, dating from about 1830.) A tale of a dead man coming on horseback to his inconsolable love, and carrying her to his grave, is widely spread among the Slavic people and the Austrian Germans, was well known a century ago among the northern Germans, and has lately been recovered in the Netherlands, Denmark, Iceland, and Brittany. Besides the tale in its integrity, certain verses which occur in it, and which are of a kind sure to impress the memory, are very frequent, and these give evidence of a very extensive distribution. The verses are to this effect:

The moon shines bright in the lift,
The dead, they ride so swift,
Love, art thou not afraid?

to which the lovelorn maid answers,

How fear, when I am with thee?

A portion (or portions) of a Low German tale of this class, the verses and a little more, was the basis of Bürger's 'Lenore,' composed in 1773. There are also ballads with the same story, one in German, several in Slavic, but these have not so original a stamp as the tale, and have perhaps sprung from it.

In marked and pleasing contrast with most of the versions of this tale, in so many copies grotesque and ferocious, is a dignified and tender ballad, in which the lovers are replaced by brother and sister. This ballad is found among the Servians, Bulgarians, Greeks, Albanians, and Roumanians. Professor Schischmánov (Indogermanische Forschungen, iv, 412-48, 1894) makes out a very strong probability of the derivation of all the ballads of 'The Dead Brother' from the Greek.

'The Suffolk Miracle,' broadsides. a. Wood, E. 25, fol. 83 [1689]. b. Roxburghe, II, 240; Moore's Pictorial Book of Ancient Ballad Poetry, p. 463.

1 A WONDER stranger ne'r was known
Then what I now shall treat upon.
In Suffolk there did lately dwell
A farmer rich and known full well.

2 He had a daughter fair and bright,
On whom he plac'd his chief delight.
Her beauty was beyond compare,
She was both virtuous and fair.

3 A young man there was living by,
Who was so charm'd with her eye
That he could never be at rest,
He was with love so much possess'd.

4 He made address to her, and she Did grant him love immediately;
Which when her father came to hear,
He parted her and her poor dear.

5 Forty miles distant was she sent,
Unto his brother's, with intent
That she should there so long remain
Till she had chang'd her mind again.

6 Hereat this young man sadly griev'd,
But knew not how to be reliev'd;
He sigh'd and sob'd continually
That his true love he could not see.

7 She by no means could to him send
Who was her heart's espous'd friend;
He sigh'd, she griev'd, but all in vain,
For she confin'd must still remain.

8 He mourn'd so much that doctor's art
Could give no ease unto his heart;
Who was so strang[e]ly terrified,
That in short time for love he dyed.

9 She that from him was sent away
Knew nothing of his dying-day,
But constant still she did remain;
To love the dead was then in vain.

10 After he had in grave been laid
A month or more, unto this maid
He comes about middle of the night,
Who joy'd to see her heart's delight.

11 Her father's horse, which well she knew,
Her mother's hood and safeguard too,
He brought with him to testifie
Her parents' order he came by.

12 Which when her unckle understood,
He hop't it would be for her good,
And gave consent to her straightway
That with him she should come away.

13 When she was got her love behind,
They pass'd as swift as any wind,
That in two hours, or little more,
He brought her to her father's door.

- 14 But as they did this great haste make,
He did complain his head did ake;
Her handkerchief she then took out,
And tyed the same his head about.
- 15 And unto him she thus did say:
'Thou art as cold as any clay;
When we come home, a fire wee 'l have;
But little dreamt he went to grave.
- 16 Soon were they at her father's door,
And after she ne'r see him more;
'I 'le set the horse up,' then he said,
And there he left this harmless maid.
- 17 She knockt, and strait a man he cryed,
'Who's there?' 'T is I,' she then replied;
Who wondred much her voice to hear,
And was possest with dread and fear.
- 18 Her father he did tell, and then
He stared like an affrighted man:
Down stairs he ran, and when he see
her,
Cry'd out, My child, how cam'st thou
here?
- 19 'Pray, sir, did you not send for me,
By such a messenger?' said she:
Which made his hair stare on his head,
As knowing well that he was dead.
- 20 'Where is he?' then to her he said;
'He's in the stable,' quoth the maid.
'Go in,' said he, 'and go to bed;
I 'le see the horse well littered.'
- 21 He stared about, and there could hee
No shape of any mankind see,
But found his horse all on a sweat;
Which made him in a deadly fret.
- 22 His daughter he said nothing to,
Nor no one else, though well they knew
That he was dead a month before,
For fear of grieveing her full sore.
- 23 Her father to his father went
Who was deceasd, with this intent,
To tell him what his daughter said;
So both came back unto this maid.
- 24 They askd her, and she still did say
'T was he that then brought her away;

Which when they heard they were amaz'd,
And on each other strang[e]ly gaz'd.

- 25 A handkerchief she said she tyed
About his head, and that they tryed;
The sexton they did speak unto,
That he the grave would then undo.
- 26 Affrighted then they did behold
His body turning into mould,
And though he had a month been dead,
This kercheif was about his head.
- 27 This thing unto her then they told,
And the whole truth they did unfold;
She was thereat so terrified
And grievd, she quickly after dyed.
- 28 Part not true love, you rich men, then;
But, if they be right honest men
Your daughters love, give them their
way,
For force oft breeds their lives' decay.

KING EDWARD THE FOURTH AND A TANNER OF TAM- WORTH

In the Stationers' Registers, Oct. 6, 1600, there was entered to William White, by the consent of Widow Danter, 'A merye, pleasant and delectable history betwene Kinge Edward the IIIJth and a Tanner of Tamworthe,' and, by like consent of the Widow Danter, "the bal-[l]ad of the same matter that was printed by her husband John Danter." Arber, III, 173. The ballad mentioned in this entry is unquestionably our ballad, or an earlier form of it. No copy from the first half of the seventeenth century is known to be preserved. The "delectable history" entered under the same date is extant in an edition of 1596, printed by John Danter, and in one of 1613, printed by William White (both edited in Child, v, 81 ff.). The ballad, as we have it, was made by abridging the fifty-six stanzas of the history to thirty-nine, with other changes. The history itself has its undoubted original in 'The King and the Barker' (printed in Child, v, 78 ff.), between which and the history, though the former has come down to us in a sadly mutilated condition, and has been freely treated in the remodelling, there still remain a few verbal correspondences. Several good points are added in the history, and one or two dropped.

Other similar rhymed tales in English are John the Reeve (Percy MS.), Rauf Coilyear, King Edward III and the Shepherd (Hartshorne's Ancient Metrical Tales), King Henry II and the Miller of Mansfield (Child, v, 84 ff.), etc.

a. Wood, 401, fol. 44. b. Douce, i, 109. c. Roxburghe, i, 176, 177; Chappell, Roxburghe Ballads, i, 529.

- 1 IN summer time, when leaves grew green,
and birds were singing on every tree,
King Edward would a hunting ride,
some pastime for to see.
- 2 Our king he would a hunting ride,
by eight a clock of the day,
And well was he ware of a bold tanner,
came riding on the way.
- 3 A good russet coat the tanner had on,
fast buttoned under his chin,
And under him a good cow-hide,
and a mare of four shilling.
- 4 'Now stand you here, my good lords all,
under this trusty tree,
And I will wend to yonder fellow,
to know from whence came he.
- 5 'God speed, God speed,' then said our king;
'thou art welcome, good fellow,' quoth he;
'Which is the way to Drayton Basset
I pray thee shew to me.'
- 6 'The ready way to Drayton Basset, from this place as thou dost stand,
The next pair of gallows thou comst to thou must turn up [on] thy right hand.'
- 7 'That is not the way,' then said our king,
'the ready way I pray thee shew me;'
'Whether thou be thief or true man,'
quoth the tanner,
'I'm weary of thy company.
- 8 'Away, with a vengeance,' quoth the tanner,
'I hold thee out of thy wit,
For all this day have I ridden and gone,
And I am fasting yet.'
- 9 'Go with me to Drayton Basset,' said our king,
'no daintyes we will lack;
We'll have meat and drink of the best,
And I will pay the shot.'
- 10 'Godamercy for nothing,' said the tanner,
'thou shalt pay for no dinner of mine;
I have more groats and nobles in my purse
then thou hast pence in thine.'
- 11 'God save your goods,' then said the king,
'and send them well to thee!'
'Be thou thief or true man,' quoth the tanner,
'I am weary of thy company.
- 12 'Away, with a vengeance,' quoth the tanner,
'of thee I stand in fear;
The aparrell thou wearst on thy back
May seem a good lord to wear.'
- 13 'I never stole them,' said our king,
'I swear to thee by the rood;'
'Thou art some ruffian of the country, thou rid'st in the midst of thy good.'
- 14 'What news dost thou hear?' then said our king,
'I pray what news do you hear?'
'I hear no news,' answered the tanner,
'but that cow-hides be dear.'
- 15 'Cow-hides? cow-hides?' then said our king,
'I marvell what they be;'
'Why, art thou a fool?' quoth the tanner,
'look, I have one under me.'
- 16 'Yet one thing now I would thee pray,
so that thou wouldst not be strange;
If thy mare be better then my steed,
I pray thee let us change.'
- 17 'But if you needs with me will change,
As change full well may ye,
By the faith of my body,' quoth the tanner,
'I look to have boot of thee.'

- 18 'What boot wilt thou ask?' then said
our king,
'what boot dost thou ask on this
ground?'
'No pence nor half-pence,' said the tan-
ner,
'but a noble in gold so round.'
- 19 'Here's twenty good groats,' then said
the king,
'so well paid see you be;'
'I love thee better then I did before,
I thought thou hadst nere a penny.'
- 20 'But if so be we needs must change,
as change thou must abide,
Though thou hast gotten Brock my
mare,
thou shalt not have my cow-hide.'
- 21 The tanner took the good cow-hide,
that of the cow was hilt,
And threw it upon the king's saddle,
that was so fairly guilt.
- 22 'Now help me, help me,' quoth the tanner,
'Full quickly that I were gone,
For when I come home to Gillian my
wife
she'll say I'm a gentleman.'
- 23 The king took the tanner by the leg,
he girded a fart so round;
'You'r very homely,' said the king,
'were I aware, I'd laid you o th'
ground.'
- 24 But when the tanner was in the king's saddle
astonéd then he was;
He knew not the stirrups that he did wear,
whether they were gold or brass.
- 25 But when the steed saw the black cow-tale wag,
for and the black cow-horn,
The steed began to run away,
as the divel the tanner had born.
- 26 Untill he came unto a nook,
a little beside an ash;
The steed gave the tanner such a fall
his neck was almost brast.
- 27 'Take thy horse again, with a vergeance,' he said,
'with me he shall not abide;'
'It is no marvell,' said the king, and laught,
'he knew not your cow-hide.'
- 28 'But if that we needs now must change,
as change that well we mought,
I'll swear to you plain, if you have your mare,
I look to have some boot.'
- 29 'What boot will you ask?' quoth the
tanner,
'What boot will you ask on this
ground?'
'No pence nor half-pence,' said our king,
'but a noble in gold so round.'
- 30 'Here's twenty [good] groats,' said the
tanner,
'and twenty more I have of thine;
I have ten groats more in my purse,
we'll drink five of them at the wine.'
- 31 The king set a bugle-horne to his
mouth,
that blew both loud and shrill,
And five hundred lords and knights came riding over a hill.
- 32 'Away, with a vengeance,' quoth the
tanner,
'with thee I'll no longer abide;
Thou art a strong thief, yonder be thy fellows,
they will steal away my cow-hide.'
- 33 'No, I protest,' then said our king,
'for so it may not be;
They be the lords of Drayton Basset,
come out of the North Country.'
- 34 But when they came before the king
full low they fell on their knee;
The tanner had rather then a thousand
pound
he had been out of his company.
- 35 'A collar! a collar!' then said the king,
'a collar!' then did he cry;
Then would he have given a thousand
pound
he had not been so nigh.

36 'A collar? a collar?' then quoth the tanner,
'it is a thing which will breed sorrow;
For after a collar commeth a halter,
and I shall be hanged tomorrow.'

37 'No, do not fear,' the king did say;
'for pastime thou hast shown me,
No collar nor halter thou shalt have,
but I will give thee a fee.

38 'For Plompton Park I will give thee, with tenements three beside,
Which is worth three hundred pound a
year,
to maintain thy good cow-hide.'

39 'Godamercy, Godamercy,' quoth the tanner;
'for this good deed thou hast done,
If ever thou comest to merry Tamworth, thou shalt have clouting-leather for thy shone.'

OUR GOODMAN

B is a broadside version which has had an interesting history on the Continent. It was translated into German by Friedrich Wilhelm Meyer, in 1789, in very happy style, with a dénouement in which the man gives his wife a beating and explains his cuffs as caresses which her mother has sent her. Meyer's ballad was printed in 1790. It had great and immediate success, was circulated as a broadside, and was taken up by the people, in whose mouth it underwent the usual treatment of ballads traditionally propagated. From Germany it spread into Scandinavia and Hungary, and perhaps elsewhere.

A similar ballad, 'Marion' or 'Le Jaloux,' is common in France, especially in the south. For a serious ballad exhibiting similar questions and evasions, see 'Clerk Saunders' (No. 69 F).

Herd's MSS., i, 140; Herd's Ancient and Modern Scottish Songs, 1776, ii, 172.

1 HAME came our goodman,
And hame came he.
And then he saw a saddle-horse,
Where nae horse should be.

2 'What's this now, goodwife?
What's this I see?
How came this horse here,
Without the leave o me?'

Recitative. 'A horse?' quo she.
'Ay, a horse,' quo he.

3 'Shame fa your cuckold face,
Ill mat ye see!
'Tis naething but a broad sow,
My minnie sent to me.'

'A broad sow?' quo he.
'Ay, a sow,' quo shee.

4 'Far hae I ridden,
And farer hae I gane,
But a saddle on a sow's back
I never saw nane.'

5 Hame came our goodman,
And hame came he;
He spy'd a pair of jack-boots,
Where nae boots should be.

6 'What's this now, goodwife?
What's this I see?
How came these boots here,
Without the leave o me?'

'Boots?' quo she.
'Ay, boots,' quo he.

7 'Shame fa your cuckold face,
And ill mat ye see!
It's but a pair of water-stoups,
My minnie sent to me.'

'Water-stoups?' quo he.
'Ay, water-stoups,' quo she.

8 'Far hae I ridden,
And farer hae I gane,
But siller spurs on water-stoups
I saw never nane.'

9 Hame came our goodman,
And hame came he,
And he saw a sword,
Whare a sword should na be.

10 'What's this now, goodwife?
What's this I see?
How came this sword here,
Without the leave o me?'

'A sword?' quo she.
'Ay, a sword,' quo he.

11 'Shame fa your cuckold face,
Ill mat ye see!
It's but a porridge-spurtle,
My minnie sent to me.'

'A spurtle?' quo he.
'Ay, a spurtle,' quo she.

12 'Far hae I ridden,
And farer hae I gane,
But siller-handed spurtles
I saw never nane.'

13 Hame came our goodman,
And hame came he;
There he spy'd a powderd wig,
Where nae wig shoud be.

14 'What's this now, goodwife?
What's this I see?
How came this wig here,
Without the leave o me?'

'A wig?' quo she.
'Ay, a wig,' quo he.

15 'Shame fa your cuckold face,
And ill mat you see!
'T is naething but a clocken-hen,
My minnie sent to me.'

'Clocken hen?' quo he.
'Ay, clocken hen,' quo she.

16 'Far hae I ridden,
And farer hae I gane,
But powder on a clocken-hen
I saw never nane.'

17 Hame came our goodman,
And hame came he,
And there he saw a muckle coat,
Where nae coat shoud be.

18 'What's this now, goodwife?
What's this I see?
How came this coat here,
Without the leave o me?'

'A coat?' quo she.
'Ay, a coat,' quo he.

19 'Shame fa your cuckold face,
Ill mat ye see!
It's but a pair o blankets,
My minnie sent to me.'

'Blankets?' quo he.
'Ay, blankets,' quo she.

20 'Far hae I ridden,
And farer hae I gane,
But buttons upon blankets
I saw never nane.'

21 Ben went our goodman,
And ben went he,
And there he spy'd a sturdy man,
Where nae man shoud be.

22 'What's this now, goodwife?
What's this I see?
How came this man here,
Without the leave o me?'

'A man?' quo she.
'Ay, a man,' quo he.

23 'Poor blind body,
And blinder mat ye be!
It's a new milking-maid,
My mither sent to me.'

'A maid?' quo he.
'Ay, a maid,' quo she.

24 'Far hae I ridden,
And farer hae I gane,
But lang-bearded maidens
I saw never nane.'

'The Merry Cuckold and Kind Wife,' a broadside: Printed and Sold at the Printing-Office in Bow Church-Yard, London.

1 O I WENT into the stable,
and there for to see,
And there I saw three horses stand,
by one, by two, and by three.

2 O I calld to my loving wife,
and 'Anon, kind sir!' quoth she:
'O what do these three horses here,
without the leave of me?'

3 'Why, you old cuckold, blind cuckold,
can't you very well see?

- These are three milking-cows,
my mother sent to me.'
- 4 'Heyday! Godzounds! Milking-cows with bridles and saddles on!
the like was never known!
Old Wicket a cuckold went out,
and a cuckold he came home.
- 5 O I went into the kitchen,
and there for to see,
And there I saw three swords hang,
by one, by two, and by three.
- 6 O I calld to my loving wife,
and 'Anon, kind sir!' quoth she:
'O what do these three swords do here,
without the leave of me?'
- 7 'Why, you old cuckold, blind cuckold,
can't you very well see?
They are three roasting-spits,
my mother sent to me.'
- 8 'Heyday! Godzounds! Roasting spits with scabbards on!
the like was never known!
Old Wicket a cuckold went out,
and a cuckold he came home.
- 9 O I went into the parlour,
and there for to see,
And there I saw three cloaks hang,
by one, by two, and by three.
- 10 O I calld to my loving wife,
and 'Anon, kind sir!' quoth she:
'O what do these three cloaks do here,
without the leave of me?'
- 11 'Why, you old cuckold, blind cuckold,
can't you very well see?
These are three mantuas,
my mother sent to me.'
- 12 'Heyday! Godzounds! Mantuas with capas on!
the like was never known!
Old Wicket a cuckold went out,
and a cuckold he came home.
- 13 I went into the pantry,
and there for to see,
And there I saw three pair of boots hang,
by one, by two, and by three.
- 14 O I called to my loving wife,
and 'Anon, kind sir!' quoth she:
'O what do these three pair of boots do
here,
without the leave of me?'
- 15 'Why, you old cuckold, blind cuckold,
can't you very well see?
These are three pudding-bags,
my mother sent to me.'
- 16 'Heyday! Godzounds! Pudding-bags with spurs on!
the like was never known!
Old Wicket a cuckold went out,
and a cuckold he came home.
- 17 I went into my closet,
and there for to see,
And there I saw three pair of breeches
lie,
by one, by two, and by three.
- 18 O I calld to my loving wife,
and 'Anon, kind sir!' quoth she:
'O what do these three pair of breeches
do here,
without the leave of me?'
- 19 'Why, you old cuckold, blind cuckold,
can't you very well see?
These are three petticoats,
my mother sent to me.'
- 20 'Heyday! Godzounds! Petticoats with waistbands on!
the like was never known!
Old Wicket a cuckold went out,
and a cuckold he came home.
- 21 I went into the dairy,
and there for to see,
And there I saw three hats hang,
by one, by two, and by three.
- 22 I calld to my loving wife,
and 'Anon, kind sir!' quoth she:
'Pray what do these three hats do
here,
without the leave of me?'
- 23 'Why, you old cuckold, blind cuckold,
can't you very well see?
They are three skimming-dishes,
my mother sent to me.'

24 'Heyday ; Godzounds ! Skimmingdishes with hat-bands on !
the like was never known !'
Old Wichet a cuckold went out,
and a cuckold he came home.

25 I went into the chamber,
and there for to see,
And there I saw three men in bed lie,
by one, by two, and by three.

26 I called to my loving wife,
and 'Anon, kind sir !' quoth she:
'O what do these three men in bed,
without the leave of me ?'

27 'Why, you old cuckold, blind cuckold,
don't you very well see ?
They are three milking-maids,
my mother sent to me.'

28 'Heyday ! Godzounds ! Milking-maids with beards on !
the like was never known !'
Old Wichet a cuckold went out,
and a cuckold he came home.

GET UP AND BAR THE DOOR

This tale is one of a group which may or may not have had a single archetype. Of the varieties, that which comes nearest is the first story in Straparola's Eighth Day. The story is well known in the East (see, for example, Forty Vezirs, Gibb, p. 171) and elsewhere (see Crane, Italian Popular Tales, p. 284).

1 It fell about the Martinmas time,
And a gay time it was then,
When our goodwife got puddings to make,
And she's boild them in the pan.

2 The wind sae cauld blew south and north,
And blew into the floor;
Quoth our goodman to our goodwife,
'Gae out and bar the door.'

3 'My hand is in my hussyfskap,
Goodman, as ye may see;
An it shoud nae be barrd this hundred
year,
It's no be barrd for me.'

4 They made a paction tween them twa,
They made it firm and sure,
That the first word whaeer shoud speak,
Shoud rise and bar the door.

5 Then by there came two gentlemen,
At twelve o'clock at night,
And they could neither see house nor
hall,
Nor coal nor candle-light.

6 'Now whether is this a rich man's house,
Or whether is it a poor ?'
But neer a word wad ane o them speak,
For barring of the door.

7 And first they ate the white puddings,
And then they ate the black;
Tho muckle thought the goodwife to hersel,
Yet neer a word she spake.

8 Then said the one unto the other,
'Here, man, tak ye my knife;
Do ye tak aff the auld man's beard,
And I'll kiss the goodwife.'

9 'But there's nae water in the house,
And what shall we do than ?'
'What ails ye at the pudding-broo,
That boils into the pan ?'

10 O up then started our goodman,
An angry man was he:
'Will ye kiss my wife before my een,
And scad me wi pudding-bree ?'

11 Then up and started our goodwife,
Gied three skips on the floor:
'Goodman, you've spoken the foremost word,
Get up and bar the door.'

- 1 THERE leaved a wee man at the fit o
yon hill,
John Blunt it was his name, O
And he sell'd liquor and ale o the best,
And bears a wondrous fame. O
Tal lara ta lilt, tal lare a lilt,
Tal lara ta lilt, tal lara
- 2 The win it blew frae north to south,
It blew into the floor;
Says auld John Blunt to Janet the wife,
Ye maun rise up and bar the door.
- 3 'My hans are in my husseyskep,
I canna weel get them free,
And if ye dinna bar it yersel
It'll never be barred by me.'
- 4 They made it up atween them twa,
They made it unco sure,
That the ane that spoke the foremost word
Was to rise and bar the door.
- 5 There was twa travellers travelling late,
Was travelling cross the muir,
And they cam unto wee John Blunt's,
Just by the light o the door.
- 6 'O whether is this a rich man's house,
Or whether is it a puir?'
But never a word would the auld bodies
speak,
For the barring o the door.
- 7 First they bad good een to them,
And syne they bad good morrow;
But never a word would the auld bodies
speak,
For the barring o the door, O.
- 8 First they ate the white puddin,
And syne they ate the black,
And aye the auld wife said to hersel,
May the deil slip down wi that!
- 9 And next they drank o the liquor sae
strong,
And syne they drank o the yill:
'Now since we hae got a house o our ain
I'm sure we may tak our fill.'
- 10 It's says the ane unto the ither,
Here, man, tak ye my knife,
An ye'll scrape aff the auld man's beard,
While I kiss the gudewife.

- 11 'Ye hae eaten my meat, ye hae drucken
my drink,
Ye'd make my auld wife a whore!'
'John Blunt, ye hae spoken the foremost word,
Ye maun rise up and bar the door.'

THE FRIAR IN THE WELL

A reference of Skelton's in his Colyn Cloute (vv. 879 ff.) carries the story, and almost certainly the ballad, back to the first quarter of the sixteenth century. The Scottish ballad (B) is an improvement on the English. The tale appears to be of Oriental origin. It is also represented in English by 'The Wright's Chaste Wife,' by Adam of Cobsam.

- 1 As I lay musing all alone,
fa, la, la, la, la
A pretty jeast I thought upon;
fa, la, la, la, la
Then listen a while, and I will you tell
Of a fryer that loved a bonny lass well.
fa, la, la, la, la
fa, la, la, lang-tre-down-dilly
- 2 He came to the maid when she went to
bed,
Desiring to have her maidenhead,
But she deny'd his desire,
And told him that she feard hell-fire.
- 3 'Tush,' quoth the fryer, 'thou needst not doubt
If thou wert in hell I could sing thee
out:'
'Then,' quoth the maid, 'thou shalt have thy request:'
The fryer was glad as a fox in his nest.
- 4 'But one thing,' quoth she, 'I do desire,
Before you have what you require;
Before that you shall do the thing,
An angel of mony thou shalt me bring.'

- 5 'Tush,' quoth the fryer, 'we shall agree,
No mony shall part my love and me;
Before that I will see thee lack,
I 'le pawn the grey gown from my back.'
- 6 The maid bethought her of a wile
How she the fryer might beguile;
While he was gone, the truth to tell,
She hung a cloth before the well.
- 7 The fryer came, as his covenant was,
With money to his bonny lass;
'Good morrow, fair maid!' 'Good morrow!' quoth she.
'Here is the mony I promised thee.'
- 8 She thankt the man, and she took his mony:
'Now let us go to 't,' quoth he, 'sweet hony:'
'O stay,' quoth she, 'some respite make,
My father comes, he will me take.'
- 9 'Alas!' quoth the fryer, 'where shall I
run,
To hide me till that he be gone?'
'Behinde the cloath run thou,' quoth she,
'And there my father cannot thee see.'
- 10 Behind the cloath the fryer crept,
And into the well on the sudden he leapt;
'Alas,' quoth he, 'I am in the well!'
'No matter,' quoth she, 'if thou wert in hell.
- 11 'Thou sayst thou couldst sing me out of hell,
Now prithee sing thy self out of the
well:'
The fryer sung with a pittiful sound,
Oh help me out, or I shall be dround!
- 12 'I trow,' quoth she, 'your courage is coold.'
Quoth the fryer, I was never so foold,
I never was servèd so before.
'Then take heed,' quoth she, 'thou comst there no more.'
- 13 Quoth he, For sweet Saint Francis sake
On his disciple some pitty take:
Quoth she, Saint Francis never taught
His scholars to tempt young maids to naught.

- 14 The fryer did entreat her still
That she should help him out of the well;
She heard him make such pittious moan
She helpd him out, and bid him be gone.
- 15 Quoth he, Shall I have my mony again,
Which thou from me hast beforehand
tane?
Good sir,' said she, 'there's no such matter;
I 'le make you pay for fouling my
water.'
- 16 The fryer went all along the street,
Dropping wet, like a new-washd sheep;
Both old and young commended the
maid
That such a witty prank had plaid.

- 1 O HEARKEN and hear, and I will you tell
Sing, Faldidae, faldidadi
Of a friar that loved a fair maiden well.
Sing, Faldi dadi di di (bis)
- 2 The friar he came to this maiden's bed-
side,
And asking for her maidenhead.
- 3 'O I would grant you your desire,
If't werena for fear o hell's burning fire.'
- 4 'O hell's burning fire ye need have no
doubt;
Altho you were in, I could whistle you
out.'
- 5 'O if I grant to you this thing,
Some money you unto me must bring.'
- 6 He brought her the money, and did it down tell;
She had a white cloth spread over the
well.
- 7 Then the fair maid cried out that her master was come;
'O,' said the friar, 'then where shall I
run?'

- 8 'O ye will go in behind yon screen,
And then by my master ye winna be seen.'
- 9 Then in behind the screen she him sent,
But he fell into the well by accident.
- 10 Then the friar cried out with a piteous
moan,
O help ! O help me ! or else I am gone.
- 11 'Ye said ye wad whistle me out o hell;
Now whistle your ain sel out o the well.'
- 12 She helped him out and bade him be gone;
The friar he asked his money again.
- 13 'As for your money, there is no much
matter
To make you pay more for jumblin'g our water.'
- 14 Then all who hear it commend this fair
maid
For the nimble trick to the friar she played.
- 15 The friar he walked on the street,
And shaking his lugs like a well-washen sheep.

THE WIFE WRAPT IN WETHER'S SKIN

The story of the ballad was in all likelihood traditionally derived from the good old tale of the Wife Lapped in Morrell's Skin (Hazlitt's Early Popular Poetry, iv, 179). Here a husband, who has put up with a great deal from an excessively restive wife, flays his old horse Morrell and salts the hide, takes the shrew down cellar, and, after a sharp contest for mastery, beats her with birchen rods till she swoons, then wraps her in the salted hide: by which process the woman is perfectly reformed.

a. 'Sweet Robin,' Jamieson's Popular Ballads, 1, 319. "From the recitation of a friend of the editor's in Morayshire."

- 1 SHE wadna bake, she wadna brew,
Hollin, green hollin
For spoiling o her comely hue.
Bend your bow, Robin

- 2 She wadna wash, she wadna wring,
For spoiling o her gay goud ring.
- 3 Robin he's gane to the fald
And catched a weather by the spauld.
- 4 And he has killed his weather black
And laid the skin upon her back.
- 5 'I darena pay you, for your kin,
But I can pay my weather's skin.
- 6 'I darena pay my lady's back,
But I can pay my weather black.'
- 7 'O Robin, Robin, lat me be,
And I'll a good wife be to thee.
- 8 'It's I will wash, and I will wring,
And never mind my gay goud ring.
- 9 'It's I will bake, and I will brew,
And never mind my comely hue.
- 10 'And gin ye thinkna that eneugh,
I'se tak the goad and I'se ca the pleugh.
- 11 'Gin ye ca for mair whan that is doon,
I'll sit i the neuk and I'll dight your shoon.'

'Robin he's gane to the wude,' Harris MS., fol. 26 b, No. 25, from Miss Harris.

- 1 ROBIN he's gane to the wast,
Hollin, green hollin
He's waled a wife amang the warst.
Bend your bows, Robin
- 2 She could neither bake nor brew,
For spoilin o her bonnie hue.
- 3 She could neither spin nor caird,
But fill the cup, an sair the laird.
- 4 She could neither wash nor wring,
For spoilin o her gay goud ring.
- 5 Robin's sworn by the rude
That he wald mak an ill wife gude.
- 6 Robin he's gaun to the fauld,
An taen his blaik [wither] by the spauld.

- 7 He 's taen aff his wither's skin
An he has preened his ain wife in.
- 8 'I daurna beat my wife, for a' her kin,
But I may beat my wither's skin.'
- 9 'I can baith bake an brew;
What care I for my bonnie hue ?
- 10 'I can baith wash an wring;
What care I for my gay gowd ring ?
- 11 'I can baith spin an caird;
Lat onybodie sair the laird.'
- 12 Robin 's sworn by the rude
That he has made an ill wife gude.

of R. Scott to Jamieson, June 9, 1805.

- 1 THREE livd a laird down into Fife,
Riftly, raftly, now, now, now
An he has married a bonny young
wife.
Hey Jock Simpleton, Jenny['s] white
petticoat,
Robin a Rashes, now, now, now
- 2 Hecourted her and he brought her hame,
An thought she would prove a thrifty
dame.
- 3 She could neither spin nor caird,
But sit in her chair and dawt the laird.
- 4 She wadna bake and she wadna brew,
An a' was for spoiling her delicate hue.
- 5 She wadna wash nor wad she wring,
For spoiling o her gay gowd ring.
- 6 But he has taen him to his sheep-fauld,
An taen the best weather by the spauld.
- 7 Aff o the weather he took the skin,
An rowt his bonny lady in.

F

From the recitation of Miss Lydia R. Nichols, Salem, Massachusetts, as heard in the early years of the nineteenth century; sung by a
New England country fellow on ship-board:
Journal of American Folk-Lore, vii, 253 ff., 1894.

- 1 SWEET WILLIAM he married a wife,
Gentle Jenny cried rosemaree
To be the sweet comfort of his life.
As the dew flies over the mulberry
tree.
- 2 Jenny couldnt in the kitchen to go,
For fear of dirting her white-beeled
shoes.
- 3 Jenny couldnt wash, and Jenny couldnt
bake,
For fear of dirting her white apurn tape.
- 4 Jenny couldnt card, and Jenny couldnt spin,
For fear of hurting her gay gold ring.
- 5 Sweet William came whistling in from
plaow,
Says, 'O my dear wife, is my dinner
ready naow ?'
- 6 She called him a dirty paltry whelp:
'If you want any dinner, go get it yourself.'
- 7 Sweet William went aout unto the sheep-
fold,
And aout a fat wether he did pull.
- 8 And daown on his knees he began for
to stick,
And quicklie its skin he thereof did strip.
- 9 He took the skin and laid on his wife's
back,
And with a good stick went whikety whack.
- 10 'I'll tell my father and all my kin
How still a quarrel you've begun.'
- 11 'You may tell your father and all your
kin
How I have thrashed my fat wether's skin.'

12 Sweet William came whistling in from
plaow,
Says, 'O my dear wife, is my dinner
ready naow ?'

13 She drew her table and spread her board,
And, 'Oh my dear husband,' was every word.

14 And naow they live free from all care
and strife,
And naow she makes William a very good wife.

THE FARMER'S CURST WIFE

A curst wife who was a terror to demons is a feature in a widely spread and highly humorous tale, Oriental and European. See Benfey, Pantschatantra, I, 519-34; and, for a variety which is, at the beginning, quite close to our ballad, Ralston, Russian Folk-Tales, p. 39.

'The Farmer's Old Wife,' Dixon, Ancient Poems, Ballads, and Songs, p. 210, Percy Society, vol. XVII.

1 THERE was an old farmer in Sussex did
dwell,

(Chorus of whistlers)

There was an old farmer in Sussex did
dwell,

And he had a bad wife, as many knew
well.

(Chorus of whistlers)

2 Then Satan came to the old man at the plough:

'One of your family I must have now.

3 'It is not your eldest son that I crave,
But it is your old wife, and she I will have.'

4 'O welcome, good Satan, with all my
heart!
I hope you and she will never more part.'

5 Now Satan has got the old wife on his
back,
And he lugged her along, like a pedlar's pack.

6 He trudged away till they came to his hall-gate;
Says he, Here, take in an old Sussex
chap's mate.

7 O then she did kick the young imps
about;
Says one to the other, Let's try turn her out.

8 She spied thirteen imps all dancing in chains,
She up with her pattens and beat out their brains.

9 She knocked the old Satan against the wall:
'Let's turn her out, or she'll murder us all.'

10 Now he's bundled her up on his back
amain,
And to her old husband he took her again.

11 'I have been a tormentor the whole of
my life,
But I neer was tormented so as with your wife.'

This resembles the well-known rhymed tale of The Gaberlunzie-Man, but has a romantic conclusion, resembling that of 'Lizie Lindsay'
(No. 226).

JOCK THE LEG AND THE
MERRY MERCHANT

This piece, but for names (and Jock the Leg is only a thin shrouding for Little John), might have gone with the Robin Hood ballads. It was composed, probably, in the last half of the eighteenth century, and for hawker's purposes, but it is a better ballad, imitation as it is, than some of the seventeenth-century broadsides of the same class (which is indeed saying very little). The fight for the pack we have in 'The Bold Pedlar and Robin Hood' (No. 132); the "asking" of a blast on the horn and the scornful reply, in 'Robin Hood and the Shepherd' (No. 135).

Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, II, 165.

- 1 As Jock the Leg and the merry merchant
Came from you borrow's town,
They took their budgets on their backs,
And fieldert they were boun.
- 2 But they came to a tavern-house,
Where chapmen used to be:
'Provide, provide,' said Jock the Leg,
'A good supper for me.
- 3 'For the merry merchant shall pay it a',
Tho it were good merks three;
'But never a penny,' said the merry merchant,
'But shot, as it fa's me.
- 4 'A bed, a bed,' said the merry merchant,
'It's time to go to rest;'
'And that ye shall,' said the good good-
wife,
'And your coverings o the best.'
- 5 Then Jock the Leg in one chamber was
laid,
The merchant in another,
And lockfast door atween them twa,
That the one might not see the other.
- 6 But the merchant was not well lain down,
Nor yet well fa'en asleep,
Till up it starts him Jock the Leg,
Just at the merchant's feet.
- 7 'Win up, win up,' said Jock the Leg,
'We might hae been miles three;'

'But never a foot,' said the merry merchant,
'Till day that I do see.

- 8 'For I cannot go by Barnisdale,
Nor yet by Coventry;
For Jock the Leg, that common thief,
Would take my pack from me.'
- 9 'I'll hae you in by Barnisdale,
And down by Coventry,
And I'll guard you frae Jock the Leg
Till day that ye do see.'
- 10 When they were in by Barnisdale,
And in by Coventry,
'Repeat, repeat,' said Jock the Leg,
'The words ye ance tauld me.'
- 11 'I never said aught behind your back
But what I'll say to thee;
Are ye that robber, Jock the Leg,
Will take my pack frae me?'
- 12 'O by my sooth,' said Jock the Leg,
'You'll find that man I be;
Surrender that pack that's on your back,
Or then be slain by me.'
- 13 He's ta'en his pack down frae his back,
Set it below yon tree;
Says, I will fight for my good pack
Till day that I may see.
- 14 Then they fought there in good green-
wood
Till they were bloody men;
The robber on his knees did fall,
Said, Merchant, hold your hand.
- 15 'An asking, asking,' said Jock the Leg,
'An asking ye'll grant me;'
'Ask on, ask on,' said the merry merchant,
'For men to asking are free.'
- 16 'I've dune little harm to you,' he said,
'More than you'd been my brother;
Give me a blast o my little wee horn,
And I'll give you another.'
- 17 'A blast o your little wee horn,' he said,
'Of this I take no doubt;
I hope you will take such a blast
Ere both your eyes fly out.'

- 18 He set his horn to his mouth,
And he blew loud and shrill,
And four-and-twenty bauld bowmen
Came Jock the Leg until.
- 19 'Ohon, alas !' said the merry merchant,
'Alas ! and woe is me !
Sae many, a party o common thieves,
But nane to party me !
- 20 'Ye'll wile out six o your best bowmen,
Yourself the seventh to be,
And, put me one foot frae my pack,
My pack ye shall have free.'
- 21 He wiled six o his best bowmen,
Himself the seventh to be,
But [him] frae his pack they couldna get,
For all that they could dee.
- 22 He's taen his pack into one hand,
His broadsword in the other,
And he slew five o the best bowmen,
And the sixth he has dung over.
- 23 Then all the rest they gae a shout,
As they stood by the tree;
Some said they would this merchant head,
Some said they'd let him be.
- 24 But Jock the Leg he then replied,
To this I'll not agree;
He is the boldest broadsword-man
That ever I fought wi.
- 25 'If ye could wield the bow, the bow
As ye can do the brand,
I would hae you to good greenwood,
To be my master's man.'
- 26 'Tho I could wield the bow, the bow
As I can do the brand,
I would not gang to good greenwood,
To join a robber-band.'
- 27 'O give me some of your fine linen,
To cleathe my men and me,
And ye'se hae some of my dun deers'
skins,
Below yon greenwood-tree.'
- 28 'Ye'se hae nane o my fine linen,
To cleathe your men and thee,
And I'll hae nane o your stown deers'
skins,
Below yon greenwood-tree.'

29 'Ye'll take your pack upon your back,
And travel by land or sea;
In brough or land, wherever we meet,
Good billies we shall be.'

30 'I'll take my pack upon my back,
And go by land or sea;
In brough or land, wherever we meet,
A rank thief I'll call thee.'

THE CRAFTY FARMER

This very ordinary ballad has enjoyed great popularity, and is given for that reason and as a specimen of its class.

a. 'The Crafty Farmer,' Logan, A Pedlar's Pack, p. 126, from a chap-book of 1796; 'The Crafty Miller,' Maidment, Scottish Ballads and Songs, 1859, p. 208, from a Glasgow stall-copy; a stall-copy, printed by M. Randall, Stirling.

- 1 THE song that I'm going to sing,
I hope it will give you content,
Concerning a silly old man,
'That was going to pay his rent.
- 2 As he was riding along,
Along all on the highway,
A gentleman-thief overtook him,
And thus to him did say.
- 3 'Well overtaken !' said the thief,
'Well overtaken !' said he;
And 'Well overtaken !' said the old
man,
'If thou be good company.'
- 4 'How far are you going this way ?'
Which made the old man for to smile;
'By my faith,' said the old man,
'I'm just going two mile.
- 5 'I am a poor farmer,' he said,
'And I farm a piece of ground,
And my half-year's rent, kind sir,
Just comes to forty pound.
- 6 'And my landlord has not been at home.
I've not seen him this twelvemonth or
more,
Which makes my rent be large;
I've to pay him just fourscore.'

- 7 'Thou shouldst not have told any body,
For thieves there's ganging many;
If any should light on thee,
They'll rob thee of thy money.'
- 8 'O never mind,' said the old man,
'Thieves I fear on no side,
For the money is safe in my bags,
On the saddle on which I ride.'
- 9 As they were riding along,
The old man was thinking no ill,
The thief he pulled out a pistol
And bid the old man stand still.
- 10 But the old man provd crafty,
As in the world there's many;
He threw his saddle oer the hedge,
Saying, Fetch it, if thou'lt have any.
- 11 The thief got off his horse,
With courage stout and bold,
To search for the old man's bag,
And gave him his horse to hold.
- 12 The old man put his foot in the stirrup
And he got on astride;
To its side he clapt his spur up,
You need not bid the old man ride.
- 13 'O stay!' said the thief, 'O stay!
And half the share thou shalt have;'
'Nay, by my faith,' said the old man,
'For once I have bitten a knave.'
- 14 The thief he was not content,
But he thought there must be bags;
He out with his rusty old sword
And chopt the old saddle in rags.
- 15 When he came to the landlord's house,
This old man he was almost spent;
Saying, Come, show me a private room
And I'll pay you a whole year's rent.
- 16 'I've met a fond fool by the way,
I swapt horses and gave him no boot;
But never mind,' said the old man,
'For I got the fond fool by the foot.'
- 17 He opened this rogue's portmantle,
It was glorious to behold;
There were three hundred pounds in silver,
And three hundred pounds in gold.

- 18 And as he was riding home,
And down a narrow lane,
He espied his mare tied to a hedge,
Saying, Prithee, Tib, wilt thou gang
hame?
- 19 When he got home to his wife
And told her what he had done,
Up she rose and put on her clothes,
And about the house did run.
- 20 She sung, and she sung, and she sung,
She sung with a merry devotion,
Saying, If ever our daughter gets wed,
It will help to enlarge her portion.

JOHN DORY

This ballad had a remarkable popularity in the seventeenth century, as is evinced by the numerous cases of its being cited which Chappell has collected (Popular Music, p. 67 f.). As to the history of the transactions set forth in the ballad, an account of them was given by Carew in his Survey of Cornwall, 1602, p. 135, an account which is likely to have been taken from the ballad, with the specification from tradition that Nicholl was "son to a widow near Foy." The king in the ballad would be John II, the Good, who was taken prisoner at Poitiers, and died in 1364. No John Doria is mentioned as being in his service.

Ravenscroft's Deuteromelia, London, 1609;
No. 1 of Freemen's Songs, sig. B.

- 1 As it fell on a holy-day,
And vpon an holy-tide-a,
John Dory bought him an archling nag,
To Paris for to ride-a.
- 2 And when John Dory to Paris was come,
A little before the gate-a,
John Dory was fitted, the porter was witted
To let him in thereat-a.
- 3 The first man that John Dory did meet
Was good king John of France-a;
John Dory could well of his courtesie,
But fell downe in a trance-a.
- 4 'A pardon, a pardon, my liege and my
king,
For my merie men and for me-a,

And all the churles in merie England,
I 'le bring them all bound to thee-a.'

5 And Nicholl was then a Cornish man,
A little beside Bohide-a,
And he mande forth a good blacke barke,
With fiftie good oares on a side-a.

6 'Run vp, my boy, vnto the maine top,
And looke what thou canst spie-a:'
'Who ho! who ho! a goodly ship I do
see,
I trow it be John Dory[-a].'

7 They hoist their sailes, both top and top,
The meisseine and all was tride-a,
And euery man stood to his lot,
What euer should betide-a.

8 The roring cannons then were plide,
And dub-a-dub went the drumme-a;
The braying trumpets lowde they cride
To courage both all and some-a.

9 The grappling-hooks were brought at
length,
The browne bill and the sword-a,
John Dory at length, for all his strength,
Was clapt fast vnder board-a.

THE GEORGE ALOE AND THE SWEEPSTAKE

In 1611 there were entered to Richard Jones, "Captayne Jennings his songe, which he made in the Marshalsey," etc., and "the second parte of the George Aloo and the Swiftestake, beinge both ballades" (Arber, III, 456). The second part of the George Aloo must needs mean a second ballad, not the printers' second half (which begins in C with st. 14). In The Two Noble Kinsmen, printed in 1634, or earlier, the Jailer's Daughter sings:

The George Aloo came from the south,
From the coast of Barbary-a,
And there he met with brave gallants of war,
By one, by two, by three-a.

Well haild, well haild, you jolly gallants,
And whither now are you bound-a?
Oh, let me have your company
Till [I] come to the sound-a.

These verses certainly seem to belong to another ballad. 'The Sweptacke' was a king's ship in 1545, and 'The Sweepstakes' apparently again in 1666.

a. Percy Papers, "from an ancient black-letter copy in Ballard's collection." b. Rawlinson, 566, fol. 183, 4°. c. Roxburghe, III, 204, in Ebsworth, Roxburghe Ballads, VI, 408.

1 THE George Aloe and the Sweepstakes
too,
With hey, with ho, for and a nony no
They were two merchant-men, a sailing
for Safee.
And along the course of Barbary

2 [The George Aloe to anchor came,
But the jolly Sweepstake kept on her
way.]

3 They had not sayled leagues two or
three
Before they spyed a sail upon the sea.

4 'O hail, O hail, you lusty gallants,
From whence is your good ship, and whither is she bound?'

5 'O we are some merchant-men, sailing
for Safee:'
'And we be French rebels, a roving on
the sea.

6 'O hail, O hail, you English dogs, [hail!]'
'The[n] come aboard, you French dogs,
and strike down your sail!'

7 'Amain, amain, you gallant English-
men!'
'Come, you French swades, and strike down your sails!'

8 They laid us aboard on the starboard
side,
And they overthrew us into the sea so
wide.

9 When tidings to the George Aloe came
That the jolly Sweepstakes by a Frenchman was tane,

10 'To top, to top, thou little ship-boy.
And see if this French man-of-war thou canst descry.'

11 'A sail, a sail, under your lee,
Yea, and another under her bough.'

12 'Weigh anchor, weigh anchor, O jolly boatswain,
We will take this Frenchman if we can.'

13 We had not sailed leagues two or three
But we met the French man-of-war
upon the sea.

14 'All hail, all hail, you lusty gallants,
Of whence is your fair ship, and whither is she bound?'

15 'O we are merchant-men, and bound
for Safee;
'And we are Frenchmen, roving upon
the sea.

16 'Amain, amain, you English dogs!'
'Come aboard, you French rogues, and strike your sails!'

17 The first good shot the George Aloe shot,
It made the Frenchmen's hearts sore
afraid.

18 The second shot the George Aloe did afford,
He struck the main-mast over the board.

19 'Have mercy, have mercy, you brave
English[men].'
'O what have you done with our brethren on [shore]?'
As they sail[ed].

20 'We laid them aboard on the starboard
side,
And we threw them into the sea so wide.'

21 'Such mercy as you have shewed unto
them,
Even the like mercy shall you have
again.'

22 We laid them aboard on the larboard
side,
And we threw them into the sea so
wide.

23 Lord, how it grieved our hearts full sore
To see the drowned Frenchmen float along the shore!

24 Now, gallant seamen all, adieu,
With hey, with ho, for and a nony no
This is the last news that I can write to you.
To England's coast from Barbary

THE SWEET TRINITY (THE GOLDEN VANITY)

B is probably a traditional variation of the broadside A. The conclusion of the broadside is sufficiently inadequate to impel almost any singer to attempt an improvement, and a rather more effective catastrophe is the only signal difference besides names. It is, however, not quite impossible that the ultimate source of the traditional copies may be as old as the broadside.

In the Neather-lands
And it is called The Sweet Trinity,
And was taken by the false gallaly.
Sailing in the Low-lands

2 'Is there never a seaman bold
In the Neather-lands
Is there never a seaman bold
In the Neather-lands
That will go take this false gallaly,
And to redeem The Sweet Trinity?'
Sailing, etc.

3 Then spoke the little ship-boy;
In the Neather-lands
Then spoke the little ship-boy;
In the Neather-lands
'Master, master, what will you give me
And I will take this false gallaly,
And release The Sweet Trinity?'
Sailing, etc.

4 'I'll give thee gold, and I'll give thee
fee,
In the Neather-lands
I'll give thee gold and I'll give thee fee,
In the Neather-lands

And my eldest daughter thy wife shall
be.'

Sailing, etc.

- 5 He set his breast, and away he did swim,
Until he came to the false gallaly.
- 6 He had an augor fit for the [n]once,
The which will bore fifteen good holes at once.
- 7 Some ware at cards, and some at dice,
Until the salt water flasht in their eyes.
- 8 Some cut their hats, and some cut their caps,
For to stop the salt-water gaps.
- 9 He set his breast, and away did swim,
Until he came to his own ship again.
- 10 'I have done the work I promised to do,
For I have sunk the false gallaly,
And released The Sweet Trinity.
- 11 'You promised me gold, and you promised me fee,
Your eldest daughter my wife she must
be.'
- 12 'You shall have gold, and you shall have
fee,
But my eldest daughter your wife shall never be.'
For sailing, etc.
- 13 'Then fare you well, you cozening lord,
Seeing you are not so good as your word.'
For sailing, etc.
- 14 And thus I shall conclude my song,
Of the sailing in the Low-lands
Wishing all happiness to all seamen both old and young.

CAPTAIN WARD AND THE RAINBOW

The Rainbow was the name of one of Drake's four ships in his expedition against Cadiz in 1587; it is mentioned very often from 1589. John Ward, an Englishman of Kent, is said to have commenced 'rover' about 1604, by inducing the crew of a king's ship in which he had some place to turn pirates under his command. His race, though eventful, was, naturally enough, not long. He seems not to be heard of after 1609, in which year Ward and his colleague, Dansekar, are spoken of as the "two late famous pirates." (See Mr Ebsworth's preface in Bagford Ballads, Ballad Society, vi, 423 ff.) George Clifford (Earl of Cumberland), Charles Blount (Lord Mountjoy), and Robert Devereux (Earl of Essex), died, respectively, in 1605, 1606, and 1601.

'The Famous Sea-Fight between Captain Ward and the Rainbow,' London, Printed by and for W. Onley. Bagford Ballads, i, 65. Date, 1680 at the earliest.

1 STRIKE up, you lusty gallants, with musick and sound of drum,
For we have descryed a rover, upon the sea is come;
His name is Captain Ward, right well
it doth appear,
There has not been such a rover found out this thousand year.

2 For he hath sent unto our king, the sixth of January,
Desiring that he might come in, with all his company:
'And if your king will let me come till
I my tale have told,
I will bestow for my ransome full thirty tun of gold.'

3 'O nay! O nay!' then said our king,
'O nay! this may not be,
To yield to such a rover my self will not agree;
He hath deceivd the French-man, likewise the King of Spain,
And how can he be true to me that hath been false to twain?'

4 With that our king provided a ship of worthy fame,
Rainbow she is called, if you would know her name;
Now the gallant Rainbow she rowes
upon the sea,
Five hundred gallant seamen to bear her company.

5 The Dutch-man and the Spaniard she made them for to flye,
Also the bonny French-man, as she met him on the sea:
When as this gallant Rainbow did come where Ward did lye,
'Where is the captain of this ship?'
this gallant Rainbow did cry.

6 'O that am I,' says Captain Ward,
'there's no man bids me lye,
And if thou art the king's fair ship, thou art welcome unto me.'
'I'll tell thee what,' says Rainbow,
'our king is in great grief
That thou shouldst lye upon the sea and play the arrant thief,

- 7 'And will not let our merchants ships
pass as they did before;
Such tydings to our king is come, which grieves his heart full sore.'
With that this gallant Rainbow she shot,
out of her pride,
Full fifty gallant brass pieces, charged on every side.
- 8 And yet these gallant shooters prevailed
not a pin,
Though they were brass on the out-side,
brave Ward was steel within;
'Shoot on, shoot on,' says Captain Ward,
'your sport well pleaseth me,
And he that first gives over shall yield unto the sea.
- 9 'I never wrongd an English ship, but
Turk and King of Spain,
For and the jovial Dutch-man as I met on the main.
If I had known your king but one two years before,
I would have savd brave Essex life,
whose death did grieve me sore.
- 10 'Go tell the King of England, go tell him thus from me,
If he reign king of all the land, I will reign king at sea.'
With that the gallant Rainbow shot,
and shot, and shot in vain,
And left the rover's company, and returnd home again.
- 11 'Our royal king of England, your ship's returnd again,
For Ward's ship is so strong it never will be tane.'
'O everlasting!' says our king, 'I have lost jewels three,
Which would have gone unto the seas
and brought proud Ward to me.
- 12 'The first was Lord Clifford, Earl of Cumberland;
The second was the lord Mountjoy, as you shall understand;
The third was brave Essex, from field
would never flee;
Which would a gone unto the seas and brought proud Ward to me.'

THE YOUNG EARL OF ESSEX'S VICTORY OVER THE EM- PEROR OF GERMANY

This ballad belongs undoubtedly to the eighteenth century, when High Germany had become familiar to the humble English. The ballad-maker's independence, in fact unconsciousness, of history and common sense, beginning with the title, in which young Essex is made Queen Elizabeth's champion, is amusing and not unpleasing. A version (B) from recitation begins with a prologue which must be derived from some other ballad or song.

Queen Elizabeth's Champion, or, Great Britain's Glory,' etc. a. Douce Ballads, III, fol. 80 b. b. Roxburghe, III, 416, in Ebsworth's Roxburghe Ballads, VI, 405.

- 1 COME, sound up your trumpets and beat up your drums,
And let's go to sea with a valiant
good cheer,
In search of a mighty vast navy of
ships,
The like has not been for these fifty long year.
Raderer two, tandaro te,
Raderer, tandorer, tan do re.
- 2 The queen she provided a navy of ships,
With sweet flying streamers, so glorious to see,
Rich top and top-gallants, captains and lieutenants,
Some forty, some fifty, brass-pieces
and three.
- 3 They had not saild past a week on the seas,
Not passing a week and days two or
three,
But they were aware of the proud emperor,
Both him and all his proud company.
- 4 When he beheld our powerful fleet,
Sailing along in their glory and pride,
He was amazed at their valour and fame,
Then to his warlike command[er]s he cry'd.

- 5 These were the words of the old emperor:
Pray who is this that is sailing to me?
If he be king that weareth a crown,
Yet I am a better man than he.
- 6 'It is not a king, nor lord of a crown,
Which now to the seas with his navy
is come,
But the young Earl of Essex, the Queen's lieutenant,
Who fears no foes in Christendom.'
- 7 'Oh! is that lord then come to the seas?
Let us tack about and be steering
away;
I have heard so much of his father
before
That I will not fight with young Essex today.'
- 8 O then bespoke the emperor's son,
As they were tacking and steering
away,
'Give me, royal father, this navy of
s[h]ips,
And I will go fight with Essex today.'
- 9 'Take them with all my heart, loving
son,
Most of them are of a capital size;
But should he do as his father has done,
Farewel thine honour and mine likewise.'
- 10 With cannons hot and thundering shot,
These two gallants fought on the
main,
And as it was young Essex's lot,
The emperor's son by him was taen.
- 11 'Give me my son,' the emperor cry'd,
'Who you this day have taken from
me,
And I'll give to the[e] three keys of
gold,
The one shall be of High Germany.'
- 12 'I care not for thy three keys of gold,
Which thou hast profferd to set him
free,
But thy son he shall to England sail,
And go before the queen with me.'
- 13 'Then have I fifty good ships of the best,
As good as ever were sent to the sea,

And eer my son into England sail,
They shall go all for good company.'

- 14 They had not fought this famous battle,
They had not fought it hours three,
But some lost legs, and some lost arms,
And some lay tumbling in the sea.
- 15 Essex he got this battle likewise,
Tho't was the hottest that ever was
seen;
Home he returnd with a wonderful prize,
And brought the emperor's son to the queen.
- 16 O then bespoke the prentices all,
Living in London, both proper and tall,
In a kind letter, sent straight to the
queen,
For Essex's sake they would fight all.

THE MERMAID

This is the ballad referred to under 'Sir Patrick Spens' (No. 58). It is still common as a broadside.

'The Seamen's Distress,' the second piece in
The Glasgow Lasses Garland, British Museum,
11621, c. 8 (68). "Newcastle, 1765?"

- 1 As we lay musing in our beds,
So well and so warm at ease,
I thought upon those lodging-beds
Poor seamen have at seas.
- 2 Last Easter day, in the morning fair,
We was not far from land,
Where we spied a mermaid on the rock,
With comb and glass in hand.
- 3 The first came up the mate of our ship,
With lead and line in hand,
To sound and see how deep we was
From any rock or sand.
- 4 The next came up the boatswain of our ship,
With courage stout and bold:
'Stand fast, stand fast, my brave lively
lads,
Stand fast, my brave hearts of gold!'

- 5 Our gallant ship is gone to wreck,
Which was so lately trimmd;
The raging seas has sprung a leak,
And the salt water does run in.
- 6 Our gold and silver, and all our cloths,
And all that ever we had,
We forced was to heave them overboard,
Thinking our lives to save.
- 7 In all, the number that was on board
Was five hundred and sixty-four,
And all that ever came alive on shore
There was but poor ninety-five.
- 8 The first bespoke the captain of our ship,
And a well-spoke man was he;
'I have a wife in fair Plymouth town,
And a widow I fear she must be.'
- 9 The next bespoke the mate of our ship,
And a well-bespoke man was he;
'I have a wife in fair Portsmouth,
And a widow I fear she must be.'
- 10 The next bespoke the boatswain of our
ship,
And a well-bespoke man was he;
'I have a wife in fair Exeter,
And a widow I fear she must be.'
- 11 The next bespoke the little cabin-boy,
And a well-bespoke boy was he;
'I am as sorry for my mother dear
As you are for your wives all three.
- 12 'Last night, when the moon shin'd
bright,
My mother had sons five,
But now she may look in the salt seas
And find but one alive.'
- 13 'Call a boat, call a boat, you little Plymouth boys,
Don't you hear how the trumpet[s]
sound?
[For] the want of our boat our gallant ship is lost,
And the most of our merry men is drownd.'
- 14 Whilst the raging seas do roar,
And the lofty winds do blow,
And we poor seamen do lie on the top,
Whilst the landmen lies below.

a. 'The stormy winds do blow,' Chappell's Popular Music of the Olden Time, p. 742. b. The same, p. 743, one stanza and the burden, contributed by Mr Charles Sloman, in 1840. c. Notes and Queries, 6th Series, VII, 276, communicated from memory by Mr Thomas Bayne, Helensburgh, N. B., stanzas 1, 6.

- 1 ONE Friday morn when we set sail,
Not very far from land,
We there did espy a fair pretty maid
With a comb and a glass in her hand,
her hand, her hand,
With a comb and a glass in her hand.
While the raging seas did roar,
And the stormy winds did blow,
While we jolly sailor-boys were up into the top,
And the land-lubbers lying down
below, below, below,
And the land-lubbers lying down
below.
- 2 Then up starts the captain of our gallant
ship,
And a brave young man was he:
'I've a wife and a child in fair Bristol
town,
But a widow I fear she will be.'
For the raging seas, etc.
- 3 Then up starts the mate of our gallant
ship,
And a bold young man was he:
'Oh! I have a wife in fair Portsmouth
town,
But a widow I fear she will be.'
For the raging seas, etc.
- 4 Then up starts the cook of our gallant
ship,
And a gruff old soul was he:
Oh! I have a wife in fair Plymouth town,
But a widow I fear she will be.'
- 5 And then up spoke the little cabin-boy,
And a pretty little boy was he;
'Oh! I am more grievd for my daddy and my mammy
Than you for your wives all three.'
- 6 Then three times round went our gallant ship,
And three times round went she;

For the want of a life-boat they all went
down,
And she sank to the bottom of the sea.

CHILD OWLET

The chain of gold in the first stanza and the penknife below the bed in the fourth have a false ring. The ballad seems at best to be a late one, and is perhaps mere imitation, but, for an imitation, the last two stanzas are unusually successful.

'Childe Owlet,' Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, I, 27; Motherwell's MS., p. 572.

- 1 LADY ERSKINE sits in her chamber,
Sewing at her silken seam,
A chain of gold for Childe Owlet,
As he goes out and in.
- 2 But it fell ance upon a day
She unto him did say,
Ye must cuckold Lord Ronald,
For a' his lands and ley.
- 3 'O cease! forbid, madam,' he says,
'That this shoud eer be done!
How would I cuckold Lord Ronald,
And me his sister's son?'
- 4 Then she's ta'en out a little penknife,
That lay below her bed,
Put it below her green stay's cord,
Which made her body bleed.
- 5 Then in it came him Lord Ronald,
Hearing his lady's moan;
'What blood is this, my dear,' he says,
'That sparks on the fire-stone?'
- 6 'Young Childe Owlet, your sister's son,
Is now gane frae my bower;
If I hadna been a good woman,
I'd been Childe Owlet's whore.'
- 7 Then he has taen him Childe Owlet,
Laid him in prison strong,
And all his men a council held
How they woud work him wrong.
- 8 Some said they woud Childe Owlet hang,
Some said they woud him burn;

Some said they woud have Childe Owlet Between wild horses torn.

- 9 'There are horses in your stables stand
Can run right speedilie,
And ye will to your stable go,
And wile out four for me.'
- 10 They put a foal to ilka foot,
And ane to ilka hand,
And sent them down to Darling muir,
As fast as they coud gang.
- 11 There was not a kow in Darling muir,
Nor ae piece o a rind,
But drappit o Childe Owlet's blude
And pieces o his skin.
- 12 There was not a kow in Darling muir,
Nor ae piece o a rash,
But drappit o Childe Owlet's blude
And pieces o his flesh.

THE WEST-COUNTRY DAMOSEL'S COMPLAINT

The first eleven stanzas are in a fairly popular tone. It will be observed that the first and third verses rhyme in 12-24, but not in 1-11. The whole may be one man's work, who may have thought that an elegy should properly be more artificial, both in form and in style, than a story, but it is more likely that the lament is a later attachment.

a. Douce Ballads, II, fol. 254; Roxburghe Ballads, II, 499, Ebsworth, VI, 635. b. Douce Ballads, II, 245 b. All three, Printed for P. Brooksby (1672-95).

- 1 'WHEN will you marry me, William,
And make me your wedded wife?
Or take you your keen bright sword
And rid me out of my life.'
- 2 'Say no more so then, lady,
Say you no more then so,
For you shall into the wild forrest,
And amongst the buck and doe.
- 3 'Where thou shalt eat of the hips and
haws,
And the roots that are so sweet,

- And thou shalt drink of the cold water,
That runs underneath [thy] feet.'
- 4 Now she had not been in the wild forrest
Passing three months and a day
But with hunger and cold she had her fill,
Till she was quite worn away.
- 5 At last she saw a fair tyl'd-house,
And there she swore by the rood
That she would to that fair tyl'd-house,
There for to get her some food.
- 6 But when she came unto the gates,
Aloud, aloud she cry'd,
An alms, an alms, my own sister !
I ask you for no pride.
- 7 Her sister calld up her merry men all,
By one, by two, and by three,
And bid them hunt away that wild doe,
As far as ere they could see.
- 8 They hunted her ore hill and dale,
And they hunted her so sore
That they hunted her into the forrest,
Where her sorrows grew more and
more.
- 9 She laid a stone all at her head,
And another all at her feet,
And down she lay between these two,
Till death had lulld her asleep.
- 10 When sweet Will came and stood at her head,
And likewise stood at her feet,
A thousand times he kist he[r] cold lips,
Her body being fast asleep.
- 11 Yea, seaven times he stood at her feet,
And seaven times at her head,
A thousand times he shook her hand,
Although her body was dead.
- 12 'Ah wretched me !' he loudly cry'd,
'What is it that I have done ?
O woud to the powers above I'de dy'd,
When thus I left her alone !
- 13 'Come, come, you gentle red-breast now,
And prepare for us a tomb,
Whilst unto cruel Death I bow,
And sing like a swan my doom.
- 14 'Why could I ever cruel be
Unto so fair a creature ?
Alas ! she dy'd for love of me,
The loveliest she in nature !
- 15 'For me she left her home so fair
To wander in this wild grove,
And there with sighs and pensive care
She ended her life for love.
- 16 'O constancy, in her thou 'rt lost !
Now let women boast no more ;
She 's fled unto the Elizium coast,
And with her carryd the store.
- 17 'O break, my heart, with sorrow filld,
Come, swell, you strong tides of grief !
You that my dear love have killd,
Come, yield in death to me relief.
- 18 'Cruel her sister, was 't for me
That to her she was unkind ?
Her husband I will never be,
But with this my love be joynd.
- 19 'Grim Death shall tye the marriage-bands,
Which jealousie shan't divide ;
Together shall tye our cold hands,
Whilst here we lye side by side.
- 20 'Witness, ye groves, and chrystial streams,
How faithless I late have been,
But do repent with dying leaves
Of that my ungrateful sin ;
- 21 'And wish a thousand times that I
Had been but to her more kind,
And not have let a virgin dye
Whose equal there 's none can find.
- 22 'Now heaps of sorrow press my soul ;
Now, now 't is she takes her way ;
I come, my love, without controule,
Nor from thee will longer stay.'
- 23 With that he fetchd a heavy groan
Which rent his tender breast,
And then by her he laid him down,
When as death did give him rest.
- 24 Whilst mournful birds, with leavy
boughs,
To them a kind burial gave,

And warbled out their love-sick vows,
Whilst they both slept in their grave.

JOHN OF HAZELGREEN

Upon the first stanza of E was built Scott's
'Jock of Hazeldean,' first printed in Campbell's Albyn's Anthology, 1816, i, 18.

Elizabeth Cochrane's MS., p. 126.

- 1 INTO a sweet May morning,
As the sun clearly shone,
I heard a propper damsell
Making a heavy moan;
Making a heavy moan,
I marvelled what she did mean,
And it was for a gentleman,
Sir John of Hasilgreen.
- 2 'What aileth thee now, bony maid,
To mourn so sore into the tide?
O happy were the man,' he sayes,
'That had thee to his bride,
To ly down by his side;
Then he were not to mean;'
But still she let the tears down fall
For pleasant Hasilgreen.
- 3 'Oh what for a man is Hasilgreen?
Sweet heart, pray tell to me.'
'He is a propper gentleman,
Dwels in the South Countrie;
With shoulders broad and arms long,
And comely to be seen;
His hairs are like the threeds of gold,
My pleasant Hasilgreen.'
- 4 'Now Hasilgreen is married,
Let all this talking be.'
'If Hasilgreen be married,
This day then woe to me;
For I may sigh and sob no more,
But close my weeping een,
And hold my peace and cry no more,
But dy for Hasilgreen.'
- 5 'Will you let Hasilgreen alone,
And go along with me?
I'll marry you on my eldest son,
Make you a gay lady.'

'Make me a gay lady?' she sayes,
'I am a maid too mean;
I'll rather stay at home,' she cries,
'And dy for Hasilgreen.'

- 6 He takes this pretty maid him behind
And fast he spurred the horse,
And they're away to Bigger toun,
Then in to Biggar Cross.
Their lodging was far sought,
And so was it foreseen;
But still she let the tears down fall
For pleasant Hasilgreen.
- 7 He's ta'en this pretty maid by the hand,
And he is down the toun;
He bought for her a pettycoat,
Yea, and a trailing gown;
A silken kell fitt for her head,
Laid oer with silver sheen;
But still she let the tears down fall
For pleasant Hasilgreen.
- 8 He's taen this bony mey him behind,
And he is to the Place,
Where there was mirth and merryness,
And ladyes fair of face;
And ladyes fair of face,
Right seemly to be seen,
But still she let the tears down fall
For pleasant Hasilgreen.
- 9 Young Hasilgreen ran hastilie
To welcome his father dear;
He's ta'en that pretty maid in his arms,
And kist off her falling tear:
'O bony mey, now for thy sake
I would be rent and rien;
I would give all my father's lands
To have thee in Hasilgreen.'
- 10 'O hold your tongue now, son,' he sayes,
'Let no more talking be;
This maid has come right far from home
This day to visit thee.
This day should been your wedding-
day,
It shall be thy bridall-een,
And thou's get all thy father's lands,
And dwell in Hasilgreen.'

 But aye she loot the tears down fa
 For John o Hazelgreen.

2 'O whaten a man is Hazelgreen?

DUGALL QUIN

B, though corrupted at the end, removes the chief verbal difficulties of A. The conclusion of B is borrowed mostly from 'The Gypsy Laddie' (No. 200).

'Dugall Quin,' The Old Lady's MS. Collection, No. 27.

1 DUGALL QUIN came to the toun,
 An he's ben lang awaa,
 An he is one to Lissie's bed,
 Tartan-trues, an a'.

2 'Hou wad ye leak me, Lisie,' he says,
 'Gin that I war yer ain,
 We raged cot apon my back,
 An singel-soled sheen,
 A littel we bonnet on my head,
 An tua merry wenking ean?'

3 'Well wad I leak ye, Dugall,' she says,
 'Gin that ye war my ain,
 We ragged coat upon yer back,
 An singel-soled sheen,
 A littel we bonnet on yer head,
 An tua merry wenking eyn.

4 'Hou wad ye leak me, Dugall,' she says,
 'Gin I wer yer ain,
 We silken sneed upon my head,
 An gold fann in my hand,
 An madins ning, a' clead in green,
 To be att my comand?'

5 'Well wad I leak ye, Lisie,' he says,
 'Gin ye wer my ain,
 We silken sneed upon yer head,
 An a goud fan in yer hand,
 An madins nine, a' clad in green,
 To be att yer command.

6 'Follou me nou, Lisie,' he says,
 'Follou me throu Farie,
 An reap the boddoms of my pakets,
 An ye'll gett tempeng chiss of farei'

7 Outspak her father, says,
 Lissie, I widna wish ye,
 For gin ye gay we this young man
 They will say I ha bat lost ye.

8 'O had yer toung, my father dear,
 For a' that winne brake me;
 For I will gaa we this young man,
 Since it's his will to take me.'

9 'Follou me nou, Lissie,' he says,
 'An follou me throu Farie,
 An reap the boddom of my poket,
 An ye'll gett tempeng chess of farie.'

10 'Wea matt worth yer well-fared face,
 Alas that ever I saa ye!
 The first an thing that ever ye gaa to
 me
 Was the tempen chess of farie.'

11 Dugall Quin read down the toun,
 Upon Dumfarling's horses,
 An Lisie Meanes folloued him,
 For a' her father's forces.

12 'Follou me nou, Lisie,' he says,
 'An follou me our Boggie;
 I ill make ye lady of ning mills,
 An lady of bonny Garlogë.'

13 She has folloued her tron-love
 [An folloued him] our Boggie,
 An she has marred Dugall Quin,
 An lives belou Strathbogy.

'Donald M'Queen's Flight wi Lizie Menzie,' Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, II, 117.

1 DONALD, he's come to this town,
 And he's been lang awa,

- And he is on to Lizie's bedside,
Wi his tartan trews and a'.
- 2 'How woud you like me, Lizie,' he said,
'An I ware a' your ain,
Wi tartan coat upo my back,
And single-soled sheen,
A blue bonnetie on my head,
And my twa winking een?'
- 3 'Weel woud I like you, Donald,' she said,
'An ye ware a' my ain,
Wi tartan coat upon your back,
And single-soled sheen,
And little blue bonnetie on your head,
And blessings on your een.
- 4 'But how woud ye like me, Donald,' she said,
'An I ware a' your ain,
Wi a siller snood into my head,
A gowd fan in my hand,
And maidens clad in green satins,
To be at my command?'
- 5 'Weal would I like you, Lizie,' he said,
'And ye ware a' my ain,
Wi a siller snood into your head,
A gowd fan in your hand,
But nane o your maidens clad in green,
To be at your command.'
- 6 Then but it speaks her mither dear,
Says, 'Lizie, I maun cross you;
To gang along wi this young man,
We'd think we had but lost you.'
- 7 'O had your tongue, my mither dear,
And dinna think to break me,
For I will gang wi this young man,
If it is his will to take me.'
- 8 Donald M'Queen rade up the green,
On ane o Dumfermlin's horses,
And Lizie Menzie followed him,
Thro a' her father's forces.
- 9 'O follow me, Lizie, my heart's delight,
And follow me for you please;
Rype well the grounds o my pouches,
And ye'll get tempting cheese.'
- 10 'O wae mat worth you, Donald M'Queen!
Alas, that ever I saw thee!
The first love-token ye gae me
Was the tempting cheese o Fyvie.

- 11 'O wae be to the tempting cheese,
The tempting cheese o Fyvie,
Gart me forsake my ain gudeman
And follow a footman-laddie!
- 12 'But lat me drink a hearty browst,
Just sic as I did brew!
On Seton brave I turnd my back,
A' for the sake o you.'
- 13 She didna wear the silken gowns
Were made into Dumbarton,
But she is to the Highlands gane,
To wear the weeds o tartan.
- 14 She's casten aff the high-heeld sheen,
Made o the Turkey leather,
And she's put on the single brogues,
To skip amo the heather.
- 15 Well can Donald hunt the buck,
And well can Lizie sew;
Whan ither trades begin to fail,
They can take their bowies and brew.

THE BROWN GIRL

This little ballad recalls Nos. 69, 73, 77, 78, 84, and has something of them all. Still it is not deliberately and mechanically patched together, and in the point of the proud and unrelenting character of the Brown Girl it is original.

A

'The bonny Brown Girl,' 'The Brown Girl,' The Brown Girl's Garland, British Museum 11621. c. 3 (10), n. d., before 1788.

- 1 'I AM as brown as brown can be,
My eyes as black as a sloe;
I am as brisk as a nightingale,
And as wilde as any doe.
- 2 'My love has sent me a love-letter,
Not far from yonder town,
That he could not fancy me,
Because I was so brown.
- 3 'I sent him his letter back again,
For his love I valu'd not,
Whether that he could fancy me
Or whether he could not.

- 4 'He sent me his letter back again,
That he lay dangerous sick,
That I might then go speedily
To give him up his faith.'
- 5 Now you shall hear what love she had
Then for this love-sick man;
She was a whole long summer's day
In a mile a going on.
- 6 When she came to her love's bed-side,
Where he lay dangerous sick,
She could not for laughing stand
Upright upon her feet.
- 7 She had a white wand all in her hand,
And smoothd it all on his breast;
'In faith and troth come pardon me,
I hope your soul's at rest.
- 8 'I'll do as much for my true-love
As other maidens may;
I'll dance and sing on my love's grave
A whole twelvemonth and a day.'

Taken down about 1894 by the Rev. S. Baring-Gould from a blacksmith, parish of Thrushle-ton, Devon.

- 1 'I AM as brown as brown can be,
And my eyes as black as sloe;
I am as brisk as brisk can be,
And wild as forest doe.
- 2 'My love he was so high and proud,
His fortune too so high,
He for another fair pretty maid
Me left and passed me by.
- 3 'Me did he send a love-letter,
He sent it from the town,
Saying no more he loved me,
For that I was so brown.
- 4 'I sent his letter back again,
Saying his love I valued not,
Whether that he would fancy me,
Whether that he would not.
- 5 'When that six months were overpassd,
Were overpassd and gone,
Then did my lover, once so bold,
Lie on his bed and groan.
- 6 'When that six months were overpassd,
Were gone and overpassd,
O then my lover, once so bold,
With love was sick at last.
- 7 'First sent he for the doctor-man :
'You, doctor, me must cure;
The pains that now do torture me
I can not long endure.'
- 8 'Next did he send from out the town,
O next did send for me;
He sent for me, the brown, brown girl
Who once his wife should be.
- 9 'O neer a bit the doctor-man
His sufferings could relieve;
O never an one but the brown, brown girl
Who could his life reprieve.'
- 10 Now you shall hear what love she had
For this poor love-sick man,
How all one day, a summer's day,
She walked and never ran.
- 11 When that she came to his bedside,
Where he lay sick and weak,
O then for laughing she could not stand
Upright upon her feet.
- 12 'You flouted me, you scouted me,
And many another one;
Now the reward is come at last,
For all that you have done.'
- 13 The rings she took from off her hands,
The rings by two and three:
'O take, O take these golden rings,
By them remember me.'
- 14 She had a white wand in her hand,
She strake him on the breast:
'My faith and troth I give back to thee,
So may thy soul have rest.'
- 15 'Prithee,' said he, 'forget, forget,
Prithee forget, forgive;
O grant me yet a little space,
That I may be well and live.'
- 16 'O never will I forget, forgive,
So long as I have breath;
I'll dance above your green, green grave
Where you do lie beneath.'

WALTER LESLY

A late, but life-like and spirited ballad.

'Walter Lesly,' Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, II, 139.

- 1 ON the second of October, a Monday at noon,
In came Walter Lesly, to see his proper one;
He set a chair down by her side, and gently sat her by,
Says, Will ye go to Conland, this winter-time to lye?
- 2 He's taen a glass into his hand, inviting her to drink,
But little knew she his meaning, or what the rogue did think;
Nor what the rogue did think, to steal the maid away;
'Will ye go to Conland, this winter-time to lye?'
- 3 When they had taen a glass or two, and all were making merry,
In came Geordy Lesly, and forth he did her carry;
Then upon high horseback sae hard's he did her tye,
'Will ye go to Conland, this winter-time to lye?'
- 4 Her mother she came to the door, the saut tears on her cheek,
She coudna see her daughter, it was for dust and reek;
It was for dust and reek, the swords they glanced sae high;
'And will ye go to Conland, this winter-time to lye?'
- 5 When they came to the ale-house, the people there were busy;
A bridal-bed it was well made, and supper well made ready;
When the supper down was set, baith plum-pudding and pie,
'And will ye go to Conland, this winter-time to lye?'
- 6 When they had eaten and well drunken, and a' man bound for bed,
The laddie and the lassie in ae chamber were laid;
He quickly stript her to the smock, and gently laid her bye,
Says, Will ye go to Conland, this winter-time to lye?
- 7 But Walter being weary, he fell fast asleep,
And then the lassie thought it fit to start up till her feet;
To start up till her feet, and her petticoats to tye,
'We'll go no more to Conland, the winter-time to lye.'
- 8 Then over moss and over muir sae cleverly she ran,
And over hill and over dale, without stockings or shoon;
The men pursued her full fast, wi mony shout and cry,
Says, Will ye go to Conland, the winter-time to lye.
- 9 'Wae to the dubs o Duffus land, that eer they were sae deep;
They've trachled a' our horsemen and gart our captain sleep;
And gart our captain sleep, and the lassie win away,
And she'll go no more to Conland, the winter-time to lye.'
- 10 'I'd rather be in Duffus land, selling at the ale,
Before I was wi Lesly, for a' his auld meal;
For a' his auld meal, and sae mony comes to buy;
I'll go no more to Conland the winter-time to lye.
- 11 'I'd rather be in Duffus land, dragging at the ware,
Before I was wi Lesly, for a' his yellow hair;
For a' his yellow hair, and sae well's he can it tye;
I'll go no more to Conland, this winter-time to lye.'
- 12 It was not for her beauty, nor yet her gentle bluid,
But for her mither's dollars, of them he had great need;

Of them he had great need, now he maun
do them by,
For she 'll go no more to Conland, this winter-time to lye.

EARL ROTHES

'Earl Rothes,' Kinloch MSS., i, 333.

- 1 'O EARL ROTHES, an thou wert mine,
And I were to be thy ladie,
I wad drink at the beer, and tippie at the wine,
And be my bottle with any.'
- 2 'Hold thy tongue, sister Ann,' he says,
'Thy words they are too many;
What wad ye do wi sae noble a lord,
When he has so noble a ladie ?
- 3 'O I'll pay you your tocher, Lady Ann,
Both in gear and money,
If ye 'll forsake Earl Rothes's companie,
And mind that he has a ladie.'
- 4 'I do not value your gold,' she says,
'Your gear it's no sae readie;
I'll neer forsake Earl Rothes's companie,
And I don't gie a fig for his ladie.'
- 5 'I'll keep ye i the castle, Lady Ann,
O servants ye shall hae monie;
I'll keep ye till ye're safely brocht to
bed,
And I'll mak you a marquis's ladie.'
- 6 'I do not value your castle,' she says,
'Your servants are no sae readie;
Earl Rothes will keep me till I'm brocht
to bed,
And he'll mak me a marquis's ladie.'
- 7 'Woe be to thee, Earl Rothes,' he says,
'And the mark o the judge be upon
thee,
For the using o this poor thing sae,
For the using my sister so badly.
- 8 'When I'm come to the years of a man,
And able a sword to carry,
I'll thrust it thro Earl Rothes' bodie
For the using my sister sae basely.

- 9 'Fare thee well, Lady Ann,' he says,
'No longer will I tarry;
You and I will never meet again,
Till we meet at the bonny town o
Torry.'

YOUNG PEGGY

'Young Peggy,' Kinloch's Ancient Scottish
Ballads, p. 153.

- 1 'O WHARE hae ye been, Peggy ?
O whare hae ye been ?'
'I the garden amang the gilly-flowrs,
Atween twal hours and een.'
- 2 'Ye've na been there your leen, Peggy,
Ye've na been there your leen;
Your father saw you in Jamie's arms,
Atween twal hours and een.'
- 3 'Tho my father saw me in Jamie's arms,
He'll see me there again;
For I will sleep in Jamie's arms
When his grave's growin green.'
- 4 'Your Jamie is a rogue, Peggy,
Your Jamie is a loun,
For trysting out our ae dochter,
And her sae very young.'
- 5 'Lay no the wyte on Jamie, mither,
The blame a' lies on me;
For I will sleep in Jamie's arms
When your een winna see.'
- 6 Now she has to her ain bouer gane;
He was waiting there him leen:
'I'm blythe to see ye, Jamie, here,
For we maunna meet again.'
- 7 She's tane the wine-glass in her hand,
Pourd out the wine sae clear;
Says, Here's your health and mine, Jamie,
And we maun meet na mair.
- 8 She has tane him in her arms twa,
And gien him kisses five;
Says, Here's your health and mine, Jamie,
I wish weel mote ye thrive.
- 9 'Your father has a bonnie cock,
Divides the nicht and day,

And at the middle watch o the nicht
In greenwud ye 'll meet me.'

10 Whan bells war rung, and mass was sung,
And a' men boun for bed,
She's kilted up her green claithing,
And met Jamie in the wud.

11 Whan bells war rung, and mass was sung
About the hour o twa,
It's up bespak her auld father,
Says, Peggy is awa!

12 'Ga saddle to me the black, the black,
Ga saddle to me the grey;
But ere they wan to the tap o the hill
The wedding was a' bye.

BLANCHEFLOUR AND JELLYFLORICE

Buchan suspects that some "poetaster" has remodelled the story of the romance of Florice and Blanche flour, "modernizing it to suit the climate of his time," that is, perhaps, turning a princess into a sempstress. The only thing in the romance that is even remotely like what we find in the ballad is that Florice saves Blanche flour from the death which his father had contrived for her in order to part the lovers, and this passage does not occur in the English versions of the romance.

'Blanche flour and Jelly florice,' Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, I, 125; Motherwell's MS., p. 588.

1 THERE was a maid, richly arrayd,
In robes were rare to see,
For seven years and something mair
She servd a gay ladie.

2 But being fond o a higher place,
In service she thought lang;
She took her mantle her about,
Her coffer by the band.

3 And as she walkd by the shore-side,
As blythe's a bird on tree,
Yet still she gaz'd her round about,
To see what she could see.

4 At last she spied a little castle,
That stood near by the sea;
She spied it far and drew it near,
To that castle went she.

5 And when she came to that castle
She tirl'd at the pin,
And ready stood a little wee boy
To lat this fair maid in.

6 'O who's the owner of this place,
O porter-boy, tell me;
'This place belongs unto a queen
O birth and high degree.'

7 She put her hand in her pocket,
And gae him shillings three:
'O porter, bear my message well
Unto the queen frae me.'

8 The porter's gane before the queen,
Fell low down on his knee:
'Win up, win up, my porter-boy,
What makes this courtesie?'

9 'I hae been porter at your yetts,
My dame, these years full three,
But see a ladie at your yetts
The fairest my eyes did see.'

10 'Cast up my yetts baith wide and braid,
Lat her come in to me,
And I'll know by her courtesie
Lord's daughter if she be.'

11 When she came in before the queen,
Fell low down on her knee:
'Service frae you, my dame the queen,
I pray you grant it me.'

12 'If that service ye now do want,
What station will ye be?
Can ye card wool, or spin, fair maid,
Or milk the cows to me?'

13 'No, I can neither card nor spin,
Nor cows I canno milk,
But sit into a lady's bower
And sew the seams o silk.'

14 'What is your name, ye comely dame?
Pray tell this unto me:
'O Blanche flour, that is my name,
Born in a strange countrie.'

15 'O keep ye well frae Jelly florice —
My ain dear son is he —
When other ladies get a gift,
O that ye shall get three.'

- 16 It wasna tald into the bower
Till it went thro the ha,
That Jellyflorice and Blancheflour
Were grown ower great witha.
- 17 When the queen's maids their visits paid,
Upo the gude Yule-day,
When other ladies got horse to ride,
She boud take foot and gae.
- 18 The queen she calld her stable-groom,
To come to her right seen;
Says, 'Ye'll take out yon wild waithsteed
And bring him to the green.
- 19 'Ye'll take the bridle frae his head,
The lighters frae his een;
Ere she ride three times roun the cross,
Her weel-days will be dune.'
- 20 Jellyflorice his true-love spy'd
As she rade roun the cross,
And thrice he kissd her lovely lips,
And took her frae her horse.
- 21 'Gang to your bower, my lily-flower,
For a' my mother's spite;
There's nae other amang her maids,
In whom I take delight.
- 22 'Ye are my jewel, and only ane,
Nane's do you injury;
For ere this-day-month come and gang
My wedded wife ye'se be.'

THE QUEEN OF SCOTLAND

On the resemblance of this ballad to the story of Caradoc and his love, see Miss C. A. Harper's article in Modern Language Notes, XIII, 417, and cf. G. Paris, Romania, XXVIII, 214.

'The Queen of Scotland,' Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, I, 46; Motherwell's MS., p. 577.

- 1 'O TROY MUIR, my lily-flower,
An asking I'll ask thee;
Will ye come to my bigley bower
And drink the wine wi me?'
- 2 'My dame, this is too much honour
You have conferd on me;

- I'm sure it's mair than I've deservd
Frae sic a one as thee.'
- 3 'In Reekie's towers I hae a bower,
And pictures round it set;
There is a bed that is well made,
Where you and I shall sleep.'
- 4 'O God forbid,' this youth then said,
'That ever I drie sic blame
As ever to touch the queen's bodie,
Altho the king's frae hame.'
- 5 When that he had these words spoken,
She secretly did say,
Some evil I shall work this man,
Before that it be day.
- 6 Whan a' her maids were gane to bed,
And knights were gane frae hame,
She calld upon young Troy Muir,
To put fire in her room.
- 7 'An asking, asking, Troy Muir,
An asking ye'll grant me;
'O, if it be a lawful thing,
My dame it's granted be.'
- 8 'There is a stane in yon garden,
Nae ane lifts it for me;
But if that ye woud lift the same,
A brave man I'll ca thee.
- 9 'Under yon stane there is a pit,
Most dreary for to see,
And in it there's as much red gowd
As buy a dukedom to thee.'
- 10 'O if I had ae sleep in bed,
And saw the morning sun,
As soon's I rise and see the skies,
Your will it shall be done.'
- 11 When birds did sing, and sun did rise,
And sweetly sang the lark,
Troy Muir to the garden went,
To work this dreary wark.
- 12 He's taen the stane then by a ring,
And lifted manfullie;
A serpent that lang wanted meat
Round Troy Muir's middle did flee.
- 13 'How shall I get rid o this foul beast?
It's by it I must dee;

I never thought the queen, my friend,
Woud work this mischief to me.'

14 But by there came a weelfaird may,
As Troy Muir did tauk,
The serpent's furious rage to lay,
Cut aff her fair white pap.

15 As soon as she the same had done,
Young Troy Muir was set free,
And in ane hour the wound was heald,
That nae mair pain had she.

16 Says Troy Muir, My lily-flower,
Ye hae releas'd me;
But before I see another day,
My wedded wife ye 'se be.

17 He married her on that same day,
Brought her to his ain hame;
A lovely son to him she bare,
When full nine months were gane.

18 As heaven was pleas'd, in a short time,
To ease her first sad pain,
Sae was it pleas'd, when she 'd a son,
To hae a pap again.

YOUNG BEARWELL

This is one of half a dozen pieces sent Buchan by Mr Nicol of Strichen, "who wrote them from memory as he had learned them in his earlier years from old people." It is also one of not a few flimsy and unjointed ballads found in Buchan's volumes, the like of which is hardly to be found elsewhere, that require a respectable voucher, such as Mr Nicol undoubtedly was, for the other five pieces communicated by him were all above suspicion, and have a considerable value. It will not, however, help the ballad much that it was not palmed off on Buchan in jest or otherwise, or even if it was learned from an old person by Mr Nicol in his youth. The intrinsic character of the ballad remains, and old people have sometimes burdened their memory with worthless things.

'Young Bearwell,' Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, II, 75; Motherwell's MS., p. 456, derived from Buchan; Motherwell's Minstrelsy, p. 345.

1 WHEN two lovers love each other well,
Great sin it were them to twinn;

And this I speak from Young Bearwell;
He loved a lady young,
The Mayor's daughter of Birktown-brae,
That lovely, leesome thing.

2 One day when she was looking out,
When washing her milk-white hands,
That she beheld him Young Bearwell,
As he came in the sands.

3 Says, Wae's me for you, Young Bearwell,
Such tales of you are tauld;
They 'll cause you sail the salt sea so far
As beyond Yorkisfauld.

4
'O shall I bide in good greenwood,
Or stay in bower with thee?'

5 'The leaves are thick in good green-
wood,
Would hold you from the rain;
And if you stay in bower with me
You will be taken and slain.

6 'But I caused build a ship for you
Upon Saint Innocent's day;
I'll bid Saint Innocent be your guide,
And Our Lady, that meikle may.
You are a lady's first true-love,
God carry you well away!'

7 Then he sailed east, and he sailed west,
By many a comely strand;
At length a puff of northern wind
Did blow him to the land.

8 When he did see the king and court,
Were playing at the ba;
Gave him a harp into his hand,
Says, Stay, Bearwell, and play.

9 He had not been in the king's court
A twelvemonth and a day,
Till there came lairds and lords anew
To court that lady gay.

10 They wooed her with brooch and ring,
They nothing could keep back;
The very charters of their lands
Into her hands they pat.

11 She's done her down to Heyvalin,
With the light of the moon;

Says, 'Will ye do this deed for me,
And will ye do it soon?'

12 'Will ye go seek him Young Bearwell,
On seas wherever he be?
And if I live and bruik my life
Rewarded ye shall be.'

13 'Alas, I am too young a skipper,
So far to sail the faem;
But if I live and bruik my life
I'll strive to bring him hame.'

14 So he has saild east and then saild west,
By many a comely strand,
Till there came a blast of northern wind
And blew him to the land.

15 And there the king and all his court
Were playing at the ba;
Gave him a harp into his hand,
Says, Stay, Heyvalin, and play.

16 He has tane up the harp in hand,
And unto play went he,
And Young Bearwell was the first man
In all that companie.

THE HOLY NUNNERY

'The Holy Nunnery,' Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, I, 193.

1 FAIR ANNIE had a costly bower,
Well built wi lime and stane,
And Willie came to visit her,
Wi the light o the meen.

2 When he came to Annie's bower-door,
He tirl'd at the pin:
'Ye sleep, ye wake, ye Fair Annie,
Ye'll open, lat me come in.'

3 'O never a fit,' says Fair Annie,
'Till I your errand ken;
'My father's vovd a vow, Annie,
I'll tell you when I'm in.

4 'My father's vowed a rash vow,
I darena marry thee;
My mither's vowed anither vow,
My bride ye'se never be.'

5 'If ye had tauld me that, Willie,
When we began to woo,
There was naithing in this warld wide
Shoud drawn my love to you.

6 'A nun, a nun,' said Fair Annie,
'A nun will I be then;'
'A priest, a priest,' said Sweet Willie,
'A priest will I be syne.'

7 She is gane to her father,
For mither she had nane;
And she is on to her father,
To see if she'd be a nun.

8 'An asking, asking, father dear,
An asking ye'll grant me;
That's to get to the holy nunnery,
And there to live or die.'

9 'Your asking's nae sae great, daughter,
But granted it shall be;
For ye'se won to the holy nunnery,
There to live or die.'

10 Then they gaed on, and farther on,
Till they came to the yate;
And there they spied a maiden porter,
Wi gowd upon her hat.

11 'An asking, asking, maiden porter,
An asking ye'll grant me;
If I'll won to the holy nunnery,
There to live or die.'

12 'Your asking's nae sae great, lady,
But granted it shall be;
For ye'se won to the holy nunnery,
There to live or die.

13 'But ye maun vow a vow, lady,
Before that ye seek in;
Never to kiss a young man's mouth
That goes upon the grun.

14 'And ye must vow anither vow,
Severely ye must work;
The well-warst vow that ye're to vow,
Is never to gang to kirk.'

15 'I will vow a vow,' she said,
'Before that I seek in;
I neer shall kiss a young man's mouth
That goes upon the grun.

- 16 'And I will vow anither vow,
Severely I will work;
The well-warst vow that I'm to vow
Is never to gang to kirk.'
- 17 For seven years now Fair Annie,
In the holy nunnery lay she,
And seven years Sweet Willie lay,
In languish like to die.
- 18 'Is there nae duke nor lord's daughter,
My son, can comfort thee,
And save thee frae the gates o death?
Is there nae remedie?'
- 19 'There is nae duke nor lord's daughter,
Mother, can comfort me,
Except it be my love, Annie,
In the holy nunnery lies she.'
- 20 They've dressd Sweet Willie up in silk,
Wi gowd his gown did shine,
And nane coud ken by his pale face
But he was a lady fine.
- 21 So they gaed on, and farther on,
Till they came to the yate,
And there they spied a maiden porter,
Wi gowd upon her hat.
- 22 'An asking, an asking, maiden porter,
An asking ye'll grant me;
For to win in to the holy nunnery,
Fair Annie for to see.'
- 23 'Your asking's nae sae great, lady,
But granted it shall be;
Ye'se won into the holy nunnery,
Fair Annie for to see.
- 24 'Be she duke's or lord's daughter,
It's lang sin she came here:'
Fair Annie kent her true love's face;
Says, Come up, my sister dear.
- 25 Sweet Willie went to kiss her lips,
As he had wont to do;
Bnt she softly whispered him,
I darena this avow.

YOUNG RONALD

Professor Child observes: "If any lover of ballads should feel his understanding insulted by the presentation of such a piece as this, I can have no quarrel with him. There is certainly much in it that is exasperating, — the greeters in the school, the lifting of the hat, and, most of all, perhaps, the mint in meadows. These are, however, the writer's own property; the nicking with nay and the giant are borrowed from romances. In this and not a very few other cases, I have suppressed disgust, and admitted an actually worthless and a manifestly — at least in part — spurious ballad, because of a remote possibility that it might contain relics, or be a debased representative, of something genuine and better. Such was the advice of my lamented friend, Grundtvig, in more instances than those in which I have brought myself to defer to his judgment."

Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, II, 282; Motherwell's MS., p. 601, derived from Buchan.

- 1 It fell upon the Lammas time,
When flowers were fresh and green,
And craig and cleugh was covered ower
With cloathing that was clean.
- 2 'T was at that time a noble squire,
Sprung from an ancient line,
Laid his love on a lady fair,
The king's daughter o Linne.
- 3 When cocks did crow, and day did daw,
And mint in meadows sprang,
Young Ronald and his little wee boy
They rode the way alang.
- 4 So they rode on, and farther on,
To yonder pleasant green,
And there he spied that lady fair,
In her garden alane.
- 5 These two together lang they stodd,
And love's tale there they taul;
The glancing o her fair color
Did Ronald's own impale.
- 6 He lifted 's hat, and thus he spake;
O pity have on me!
For I could pledge what is my right,
All for the sake of thee.
- 7 'Ye're young amo your mirth, kind
sir,
And fair o your dull hours;
There's nae a lady in a' London
But might be your paramour.

- 8 'But I'm too young to wed, kind sir,
You must not take it ill;
Whate'er my father bids me do,
I maun be at his will.'
- 9 He kissd her then and took his leave,
His heart was all in pride,
And he is on to Windsor gone,
And his boy by his side.
- 10 And when he unto Windsor came,
And lighted on the green,
There he spied his mother dear,
Was walking there alane.
- 11 'Where have ye been, my son, Ronald,
From gude school-house, this day?'
'I hae been at Linne, mother,
Seeing yon bonny may.'
- 12 'O wae's me for you now, Ronald,
For she will not you hae;
For mony a knight and bauld baron
She's nickd them a' wi nae.'
- 13 Young Ronald's done him to his bower,
And he took bed and lay;
Nae woman could come in his sight,
For the thoughts o this well-fard may.
- 14 Then in it came his father dear,
Well belted in a brand;
The tears ran frae his twa gray eyes,
All for his lovely son.
- 15 Then Ronald calld his stable-groom
To come right speedilie;
Says, Ye'll gang to yon stable, bey
And saddle a steed for me.
- 16 'His saddle o the guid red gowd,
His bits be o the steel,
His bridle o a glittering hue;
See that ye saddle him weel.
- 17 'For I've heard greeters at your school-
house,
Near thirty in a day;
But for to hear an auld man greet,
It passes bairns' play.'
- 18 When cocks did crow, and day did daw,
And mint in meadows sprang,
Young Ronald and his little wee boy
The way they rode alang.
- 19 So they rode on, and further on,
To yonder pleasant green,
And there they saw that lady fair,
In her garden alane.
- 20 And twenty times before he ceasd
He kissd her lips sae clear,
And said, Dear lady, for your sake,
I'll fight fell lang and sair.
- 21 'Full haste, nae speed, for me, kind
sir,'
Replied the lady clear;
'Far better bucklings ye maun bide
Or ye gain my love by weir.
- 22 'King Honour is my father's name,
The morn to war maun fare,
And that's to fight a proud giant,
That's wrought him muckle care.
- 23 'Along wi him he is to take
Baith noble knights and squires;
I woud wish you as well-dressd a knight
As ony will be there.
- 24 'And I'll gie you a thousand crowns,
To part amang your men;
A robe upon your ain body,
Weel sewd wi my ain hand.
- 25 'Likewise a ring, a royal thing,
The virtue it is gude;
If ony o your men be hurt,
It soon will stem their blude.
- 26 'Another ring, a royal thing,
Whose virtue is well known;
As lang's this ring your body's on,
Your bluid shall neer be drawn.'
- 27 He kissd her then, and took his leave,
His heart was all in pride,
And he is on to Windsor gone,
And his boy by his side.
- 28 And when he unto Windsor came,
And lighted on the green,
There he saw his auld father,
Was walking him alane.
- 29 'Where hae ye been, my son, Ronald,
From gude school-house the day?'
'O I hae been at Linne, father,
Seeking yon bonny may.'

- 30 'O wae 's me for you now, Ronald,
For she will not you hae;
Mony a' knight and bauld baron
She 's nickd them a' wi nay.'
- 31 'O had your tongue, my father dear,
Lat a your folly be;
The last words that I wi her spake,
Her love was granted me.
- 32 'King Honour is her father's name,
The morn to war maun fare,
And that 's to fight a proud giant,
That 's wrought him muckle care.
- 33 'Alang wi him he means to take
Baith knights and noble squires;
And she wishes me as well drest a
knight
As ony will be there.
- 34 'And she 's gaen me a thousand crowns,
To part amang my men;
A robe upon my ain body,
Weel sewd wi her ain hand.
- 35 'Likewise a ring, a royal thing,
The virtue it is gude;
If ony o my men be hurt,
It soon will stem their blude.
- 36 'Another ring, a royal thing,
Whose virtue is unknown;
As lang 's this ring my body 's on,
My blude will neer be drawn.'
- 37 'If that be true, my son, Ronald,
That ye hae tauld to me,
I 'll gie to you an hundred men,
To bear you companie.
- 38 'Besides as muckle gude harness
As carry them on the lee;
It is a company gude enough
For sic a squire as thee.'
- 39 When cocks did crow, and day did daw,
And mint in meadows spread,
Young Ronald and his merry young men
Were ready for to ride.
- 40 So they rode on, and farther on,
To yonder pleasant green,
And there they spied that lady fair,
In her garden, sair mourning.

- 41 These twa together lang they stood,
And love's tale there they taul,
Till her father and his merry young men
Had ridden seven mile.
- 42 He kissd her then, and took his leave,
His heart was all in pride,
And then he sprang alang the road
As sparks do frae the glead.
- 43 Then to his great steed he set spur;
He being swift o feet,
They soon arrived on the plain,
Where all the rest did meet.
- 44 Then flew the foul thief frae the west,
His make was never seen;
He had three heads upon ae hause,
Three heads on ae breast-bane.
- 45 He bauldly stept up to the king,
Seiz'd 's steed in his right hand;
Says, Here I am, a valiant man,
Fight me now if ye can.
- 46 'Where is the man in a' my train
Will take this deed in hand?
And he shall hae my daughter dear,
And third part o my land.'
- 47 'O here am I,' said young Ronald,
'Will take the deed in hand;
And ye 'll gie me your daughter dear,
I 'll seek nane o your land.'
- 48 'I woudna for my life, Ronald,
This day I left you here;
Remember ye yon lady gay
For you shed mony a tear.'
- 49 Fan he did mind on that lady
That he left him behind,
He hadna mair fear to fight
Nor a lion frae a chain.
- 50 Then he cut aff the giant's heads
Wi ae sweep o his hand,
Gaed hame and married that lady,
And heird her father's land.

tained. There is, however, nothing in the language of the piece as it stands which obliges us to assign it a much higher antiquity. It is here given according to the copy in Herd's MSS. (A a), which he received in 1795 from Andrew Plummer. Scott's version in the Minstrelsy agrees substantially, except for his interpolations. B (from Glenriddell's MSS.) is defective and corrupt, and C (from an Abbotsford MS.) is a fragment. Various attempts have been made to find an historical foundation for 'The Outlaw Murray,' but the ballad corresponds to nothing that is known, or even probably surmised, in the relations between the Murrays and the Scottish kings.

- 1 ETRICK forest is a fair foreste,
In it grows manie a semelie trie;
The hart, the hynd, the dae, the rae,
And of a' [wylde] beastis grete plen-
tie.
- 2 There's a castell biggit with lime and
stane,
O gin it stands not pleasantlie!
In the fore front o that castell fair
Twa unicorns are bra to see.
- 3 There's the picture of a knight and a
ladye bright,
And the grene hollin aboon their brie;
There an Outlaw keepis five hundred
men,
He keepis a royalle companie.
- 4 His merrie men are in [ae] liverie clad,
Of the Lincoln grene so fair to see;
He and his ladie in purple clad,
O if they live not royallie!
- 5 Word is gane to our nobell king,
In Edinburgh where that he lay,

That there was an Outlaw in Etterick forest
Counted him nought and all his cour-trie gay.

- 6 'I mak a vowe,' then the goode king said,
'Unto the man that dear bought me,
I'se either be king of Etrick forest,
Or king of Scotland that Outlaw's bee.'
- 7 Then spak the erle hight Hamilton,
And to the noble king said he;
My sovereign prince, sum counsell tak,
First of your nobles, syne of me.
- 8 'I redd you send yon bra Outlaw till
And see gif your man cum will he;
Desire him cum and be your man,
And hald of you yon forest frie.
- 9 'And gif he refuses to do that,
We'll conquest both his lands and he,
Or else we'll throw his castell down,
And mak a widowe of his gaye ladie.'
- 10 The king called on a gentleman,
James Boyd, Erle of Arran, his brother was he;
When James he came before the king
He fell before him on his knie.
- 11 'Welcum, James Boyd,' said our nobil
king,
'A message ye maun gang for me;
Ye maun hie to Etrick forrest,
To yon Outlaw, where dwelleth he.
- 12 'Ask hym of quhom he haldis his lands,
Or, man, wha may his master be;
Desyre him come and be my man,
And hald of me yon forrest frie.
- 13 'To Edinburgh to cum and gang
His safe-warrant I sall be;
And, gif he refuses to do that,
We'll conquest baith his lands and he.
- 14 'Thou mayst vow I'll cast his castell down,
And mak a widow of his gay ladie;
I'll hang his merrie men pair by pair
In ony frith where I may them see.'
- 15 James Boyd took his leave of the nobill
king,
To Etrick forrest fair came he:

- Down Birkendale brae when that he cam,
He saw the fair forest with his ee.
- 16 Baith dae and rae and hart and hynd,
And of all wylde beastis grete plentie;
He heard the bows that bauldly ring,
And arrows whidderand near him by.
- 17 Of the fair castell he got a sight,
The like he nere saw with his ee;
On the fore front of that castell
Twa unicorns were bra to see.
- 18 The picture of a knight and a ladie bright,
And the grene hollin aboon their brie;
Thereat he spy'd five hundred men,
Shuting with bows upon the lee.
- 19 They a' were in ae liverie clad,
Of the Lincoln grene, sae fair to see;
The knight and his ladye in purple clad;
O gif they lived right royallie!
Therefore he kend he was master-man,
And served him in his ain degree.
- 20 'God mot thee save, brave Outlaw Murray,
Thy ladie and a' thy chivalrie!'
'Marry, thou's wellcum, gentleman,
Sum king's-messenger thou seems to
be.'
- 21 'The King of Scotland sent me hier,
And, gudo Outlaw, I'm sent to thee;
I wad wat of whom ye hald your lands,
Or, man, wha may thy master be.'
- 22 'Thir landis are mine,' the Outlaw said,
'I own na king in Christentie;
Frae Soudron I this forest wan,
When the king nor's knights were not to see.'
- 23 'He desires you'l come to Edinburgh,
And hald of him this forest frie;
And gif you refuse to do this,
He'll conquest both thy landis and
thee;
He has vovd to cast thy castell down,
And make a widow of thy gaye ladie.
- 24 'He'll hang thy merrie men pair by pair,
In ony frith where he may them finde;
'Aye, by my troth,' the Outlaw said,
'Then wad I think me far behinde.
- 25 'Eere the king my fair countrie get,
This land that's nativest to me,
Mony of his nobils sall be cauld,
Their ladies sall be right wearie.'
- 26 Then spak his ladye fair of face,
She said, Without consent of me
That an outlaw shuld come before the
king:
I am right rad of treasonrie.
- 27 'Bid him be gude to his lordis at hame,
For Edinburgh my lord sall never see:
James tuke his leave of the Outlaw keene-
To Edinburgh boun is he.
- 28 And when he came before the king,
He fell before him on his knie:
'Wellcum, James Boyd,' said the nobil
king,
'What foreste is Etrick forest frie?'
- 29 'Etrick forest is the fairest forest
That ever man saw with his ee;
There's the dae, the rae, the hart, the hynde,
And of all wild beastis great plentie.
- 30 'There's a prittie castell of lime and
stone,
O gif it stands not pleasauntlie!
There's on the fore side of that castell
Twa unicorns sae bra to see.
- 31 'There's the picture of a knight and [a]
ladie bright,
And the grene hollin aboon their brie;
There the Outlaw keepis five hundred
men,
O gif they live not royallie!
- 32 'His merry men in [ae] liverie clad,
O the Lincoln grene, so fair to see;
He and his ladye in purple clad,
O gif they live not royallie!
- 33 'He says yon forest is his ain,
He wan it from the Soudronie;
Sae as he won it, sae will he keep it,
Contrair all kings in Christentie.'
- 34 'Gar ray my horse,' said the nobil king,
'To Etrick [forest] hie will I me;
Then he gard graith five thousand men,
And sent them on for the forest frie

- 35 Then word is gane the Outlaw till,
In Etrick forest where dwelleth he,
That the king was cumand to his cuntrie,
To conqess baith his lands and he.
- 36 'I mak a vow,' the Outlaw said,
'I mak a vow, and that trulie,
Were there but three men to tak my part,
Yon king's cuming full deir suld be.'
- 37 Then messengers he called forth,
And bade them haste them speedilie:
'Ane of you go to Halliday,
The laird of the Corehead is he.
- 38 'He certain is my sister's son,
Bid him cum quick and succour me;
Tell Halliday with thee to cum,
And shaw him a' the veritie.'
- 39 'What news? what news,' said Halliday,
'Man, frae thy master unto me?'
'Not as ye wad; seeking your aid;
The king's his mortal enemy.'
- 40 'Aye, by my troth,' quoth Halliday,
'Even for that it repenteth me;
For, gif he lose fair Etrick forest,
He'll take fair Moffatdale frae me.
- 41 'I'll meet him wi five hundred men,
And surely mae, if mae may be:'
[The Outlaw call'd a messenger,
And bid him hie him speedily.]
- 42 'To Andrew Murray of Cockpool,
That man's a deir cousin to me;
Desire him cum and make me aid,
With all the power that he may be.
- 43 'The king has vowd to cast my castell
down,
And mak a widow of my gay ladye;
He'll hang my merry men pair by pair
I[n] ony place where he may them see.'
- 44 'It stands me hard,' quoth Andrew Murray,
'Judge if it stands not hard with me,
To enter against a king with crown,
And put my lands in jeopardie.
- 45 'Yet, gif I cum not on the daye, Surelie at night he sall me see:'

To Sir James Murray, laird of Traquair,
A message came right speedilie.

- 46 'What news? what news,' James Murray said,
'Man, frae thy master unto me?'
'What needs I tell? for well ye ken
The king's his mortal enemy.'
- 47 'He desires ye'll cum and make him aid,
With all the powers that ye may be:'
'And, by my troth,' James Murray said,
'With that Outlaw I'll live and die.
- 48 'The king has gifted my lands lang
syne,
It can not be nae war with me;'
.
- 49 The king was cumand thro Cadden ford,
And fiftene thousand men was he;
They saw the forest them before,
They thought it awsom for to see.
- 50 Then spak the erle hight Hamilton,
And to the nobil king said he,
My sovereign prince, sum counsell take,
First at your nobles, syne at me.
- 51 'Desyre him meet you at Penman's
Core,
And bring four in his companie;
Fyve erles sall gang yoursell before,
Gude cause that you suld honord be.
- 52 'And, if he refuses to do that,
Wi fire and sword we'll follow thee;
There sall never a Murray after him
Have land in Etrick forest frie.'
- 53 The king then called a gentleman,
Royal-banner-bearer then was he,
James Hope Pringle of Torsonse by
name;
He came and knelit upon his knie.
- 54 'Welcum, James Pringle of Torsonse;
Ye man a message gae for me;
Ye man gae to yon Outlaw Murray,
Surely where bauldly bideth he.
- 55 'Bid him meet me at Penman's Core,
And bring four of his companie;

- Five erles sall cum wi mysell,
Gude reason I suld honord be.
- 56 'And if he refuses to do that,
Bid him look for nae gude o me;
There sall never a Murray after him
Have land in Etric forest frie.'
- 57 James came before the Outlaw keene,
And served him in his ain degree:
'Wellcum, James Pringle of Torsonse,
What tidings frae the king to me?'
- 58 'He bids you meet him at Penman's
Core,
And bring four of your companie;
Five erles will cum with the king,
Nae more in number will he be.
- 59 'And gif you refuse to do that,
I freely here upgive with thee,
There will never a Murray after thee
Have land in Etrick forest frie.
- 60 'He'll cast your bonny castell down,
And make a widow of your gay ladie,
He'll hang your merry men pair by pair
In any place where he may them see.'
- 61 'It stands me hard,' the Outlaw said,
'Judge if it stands not hard with me;
I reck not of losing of mysell,
But all my offspring after me.
- 62 'Auld Haliday, young Haliday,
Ye sall be twa to gang wi me;
Andrew Murray and Sir James Murray,
We'll be nae mae in cumpanie.'
- 63 When that they came before the king,
They fell before him on their knee:
'Grant mercy, mercy, royal king,
Een for his sake who died on tre!'
- 64 'Sicken-like mercy sall ye have,
On gallows ye sall hangit be;'
'God forbid!' quo the Outlaw then,
'I hope your Grace will better be.
- 65 'These lands of Etrick forest fair,
I wan them frae the enemy;
Like as I wan them, sae will I keep
them,
Contrair all kings in Christentie.'
- 66 All the nobilis said, the king about,
Pitye it were to see him die:
'Yet graunt me mercye, sovereign
prince,
Extend your favour unto me!
- 67 'I'll give you the keys of my castell,
With the blessing of my fair ladie;
Mak me the sheriff of the forest,
And all my offspring after me.'
- 68 'Wilt thou give me the keys of thy cas-
tell,
With the blessing of thy fair ladye?
I'll mak the[e] shiryff of the forest,
Surely while upwards grows the trie;
If you be not traytour to the king,
Forfaulted sall ye never be.'
- 69 'But, prince, what sall cum o my men?
When I go back, traitour they'll ca
me;
I had rather lose my life and land,
Eer my merry men rebuked me.'
- 70 'Will your merry men amend their lives
And all their pardouns I grant thee:
Now name thy landes whe're they be,
And here I render them to thee.'
- 71 'Fair Philiphaugh, prince, is my awin,
I biggit it wi lime and stane;
The Tinnies and the Hangingshaw,
My leige, are native steeds of mine.
- 72 '.
I have mony steeds in the forest shaw,
But them by name I dinna know.'
- 73 The keys of the castell he gave the
king,
With the blessing of his fair ladye;
He was made sheryff of Etrick forest,
Surely while upward grows the trie;
And, if he was not traytour to the
king,
Forfaulted he suld never be.
- 74 Wha ever heard, in ony tymes,
Sicken an outlaw in his degree
Sic favour get before a king
As did the Outlaw Murray of the forest frie?

FRAGMENTS

"DISPERSED thro Shakspeare's plays are innumerable little fragments of ancient ballads, the entire copies of which could not be recovered," says Bishop Percy in his preface to 'The Friar of Orders Gray.' What he says of Shakspeare is equally true of Beaumont and Fletcher, but it is not true, in either case, that there are many fragments of popular traditional ballads. Portions of ballads of one kind or another, and still more of songs, are introduced into the plays of these authors, though not so frequently as one would suppose from Percy's words. Ten of the twenty-eight stanzas of 'The Friar of Orders Gray' are taken, mostly in part only, from Shakspeare and Fletcher,¹ but the original verses are from songs, not properly from ballads. It is not, however, always easy to say whether an isolated stanza belonged to a ballad or a song. Some snatches from familiar ballads, which occur in Beaumont and Fletcher, have already been given at the proper places. A few bits from unknown pieces, which occur in Shakspeare, or Beaumont and Fletcher (strictly, perhaps, Fletcher), will be given here. It is surprising that other dramatists have not furnished something.

A very meagre gathering of fragments from other sources follows those which have been gleaned from the dramatists, but it must be once more said that there is not an absolute certainty that all of these belong to ballads.

Some popular tales are interspersed with verses of a ballad character, and one or two cases have been incidentally noted already. Examples are 'The Paddo,' Chambers's Popular Rhymes of Scotland, 1870, p. 87;² 'The Red Etin,' ib. p. 89; 'The Black Bull of Norway,' ib. p. 95; 'Child Rowland and Burd Eilen,' Illustrations of Northern Antiquities, p. 397;³ 'The Golden Ball,' see No. 95, H, Child, II, 353-55.

¹ Stanza 11,² of Percy's ballad is from The Taming of the Shrew, iv, 1; 3, 5, 7, are, wholly or in part, from Hamlet, iv, 5; 12, 13, from Fletcher's Queen of Corinth, iii, 2; 15 from Hamlet, as before; 17, 18, from Much Ado about Nothing, ii, 3; one line of 22 from King Lear, iii, 4.

² The verses from this tale are printed separately in Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, I, 117, 'The Maid and Fairy.'

³ But Jamieson confesses: "Of the verses which have been introduced I cannot answer for the exactness of any, except the stanza put into the mouth of the king of Elfland, which was indelibly impressed upon my memory [though J. was only seven or eight years old] long before I knew anything of Shakspeare." The stanza is: [in came the king of Elfland,]

'With fi, fi, fo and fum!
I smell the blood of a Christian man;
Be he dead, be he living, wi my brand
I'll clash his harns frae his harn-pan.'

SHAKSPEARE

From King Lear, Act iii, sc. 4, printed 1608

Child Rowland to the darke tower came.
His word was still, Fy, fo, and fumme!
I smell the bloud of a British man.

1. So 1623: both quartos, darke towne come.

Act iii, sc. 6.

Sleepest or wakest thou, jolly shepheard?
Thy sheepe bee in the corne;
And for one blast of thy minikin mouth
Thy sheepe shall take no harme.

From The Taming of the Shrew, Act iv, sc. 1, printed 1623, I, 221.

It was the friar of orders gray,
As he forth walked on his way.

BEAUMONT AND FLETCHER

From The Knight of the Burning Pestle, produced apparently in 1611, Act ii, sc. 8;
Dyce, II, 173.

She cares not for her daddy,
Nor she cares not for her mammy,
For she is, she is, she is, she is
My lord of Lowgave's lassy.

(Perhaps only a song.)

Give him flowers enow, palmer, give him
flowers enow,
Give him red and white, and blue, green,
and yellow.

Act v, sc. 3; Dyce, p. 226.

With that came out his paramour,
She was as white as the lily-flower.
Hey, troull, troly, loly

With that came out her own dear knight,
He was as true as ever did fight.

From Bonduca, produced before March,
1619: Act v, sc. 2, Dyce, v, 88.

It was an old tale, ten thousand times told,
Of a young lady was turnd into mould,
Her life it was lovely, her death it was bold.

From The Two Noble Kinsmen, printed in 1634, Act iii, sc. 4; Dyce, xi, 388.

For I'll cut my green coat a foot above my knee,
And I'll clip my yellow locks an inch below mine ee.

Hey, nonny, nonny, nonny

He's buy me a white cut, forth for to ride,
And I'll go seek him through the world that is so wide.

Hey, nonny, nonny, nonny

The Complaynt of Scotland, 1549, gives two lines of a song on the murder, in 1517, of the Sieur de la Bastie, a distinguished knight in the service of the Regent, Duke of Albany. The song may, or may not, have been a ballad.

God sen the Duc hed byddin in France,
And Delabautë hed neuyr cum hame.

Ed. Leyden, p. 100.

The History of the Houses of Douglas and Angus, written by Master David Hume of Godscroft, p. 155, Edinburgh, 1644.

Of the treacherous execution of William, sixth Earl of Douglas, at the castle of Edinburgh, in 1440, Hume of Godscroft says: "It is sure the people did abhorre it, execrating the very place where it was done; in detestation of the fact of which the memory remaineth yet to our dayes in these words." Since Hume mentions no ballad, it is not likely that he knew of more than this single stanza, or that more existed. (Sir Walter Scott, however, confidently assumes that there was a ballad. Minstrelsy, 1833, i, 221 f.)

Edinburgh castle, towne, and tower,
God grant thou sinke for sinne!
And that even for the black dinner
Earle Douglas got therein.

Written on the fly-leaf of a little volume printed at Edinburgh about 1670 (Quevedo's Novels), Laing MSS., University of Edinburgh, Div. II, 358. (Communicated by Mr Macmath.)

'He steps full statly on y^e stre[et],
He hads y^e charters of him sell,
In to his cloathing he is compl[ete],
In Craford's mure he bears y^e bell.

'I wish I had died my own fai[r] death,
In tender age, q^u I was young;

I would never have broke my heart
For y^e love of any churl's son.

'Wo be to my parents all,
Y^e lives so farr beyond y^e sea!
I might have lived a noble life,
And wedded in my own countrë.'

Finlay's Scottish Ballads, i, xxxii.

A "romantic ballad, of which, unfortunately, one stanza only has been preserved. The tradition bears that a young lady was carried away by the fairies, and that, although invisible to her friends who were in search of her, she was sometimes heard by them lamenting her destiny in a pathetic song, of which the stanza just mentioned runs nearly thus:—"

O Alva hills is bonny,
Dalycountry hills is fair,
But to think on the braes of Menstrie
It maks my heart fu sair.

The following variant was communicated (with a story of a wife carried off by fairies) by J. C. to The Scottish Journal, II, 275, 1848 (Macmath):—

O Alva woods are bonnie,
Tillycountry hills are fair,
But when I think on the braes o Menstrie
It maks my heart aye sair.

KING EDELBRODE

Sent by Motherwell to C. K. Sharpe, with a letter dated October 8, 1825. Also entered in Motherwell's Note-Book, p. 53 (excepting the second line of the first stanza).

King Edelbrode cam owre the sea,
Fa la lilly
All for to marry a gay ladye.
Fa la lilly.

(Then follows the description of a queen, jimp and sma, not remembered.)

Her lilly hands, sae white and sma,
Fa la lilly
Wi gouden rings were buskit braw.
Fa la lilly

"I cannot get any precise account of its subject, but it related somehow to a most magnificent marriage. The old lady who sung it died some years ago." (Letter to Sharpe.)

"It may be the same ballad as the scrap I have, with something of a similar chorus." (Note-Book, where the "chorus" is Fa fa lilly.)

The reference seems to be to 'The Whum-mil Bore,' No. 27.

C. K. Sharpe's Letters, ed. Allardyce, II, 106 (1813).

'O come you from the earth?' she said,
'Or come you from the skye?'
'Oh, I am from yonder churchyard,
Where my crumbling relicks lie.'

Sharpe somewhere asks, Where does this belong?

Possibly in some version of 'Proud Lady Margaret,' No. 47.

MS. of Thomas Wilkie, p. 80, Scotch Ballads, Materials for Border Minstrelsy, No. 73 C, Abbotsford.

The great bull of Bendy-law
Has broken his band and run awa,
And the king and a' his court
Canna turn that bull about.

Scotch Ballads, Materials for Border Minstrelsy, No. 86 a, Abbotsford, in the handwriting of Thomas Wilkie.

Red-Cap he was there,
And he was there indeed,
And he was standing by,
With a red cap on his head.

Scotch Ballads, Materials for Border Minstrelsy, No. 73a; MS. of Thomas Wilkie, Abbotsford, derived by Wilkie from his father, "who heard a Lady Brigs sing this when he was a boy."

He took a sword in every hand
And on the house did venture,
And swore if they wad not gee her up
He would make all their doors play clatter.

Her angry father, when he saw this,
That he would lose his ae daughter,
He swore if he had not been gude at the sword
He durst not come to make his doors clatter.

NOTES

[The references are to page, stanza, and verse.]

1

Six versions.

2. A a was "printed for F. Coles, T. Vere, I. Wright, and I. Clarke;" b "for W. Thackeray, E. M. and A. M.;" c "by Tho. Norris."

2. A 5¹. a, b, c, d read youngest.

2

Nineteen versions (some of them fragmentary).
3. A 3². B reads: Yea, and the knight in my arms niest [i. e. next].

3. A 9. C (Kinloch's Ballads) adds:—

And ye maun wash it in yon cistran,
Whare water never stood nor ran.

And ye maun dry it on yon hawthorn,
Whare the sun neer shon sin man was born.

3. A 9¹. The broadside reads: needle and sheerless. But cf. C: knife-, sheer-less.

4. A 11². Atween the sant sea and the sand C.

4. A 12². Some versions have "with one peppercorn"; F (Kinloch MSS.) reads "with ae peck o corn."

4. Sts. 18–19 are not appropriate. They perhaps belong to some lost ballad, of which sts. 1–4 may also have formed a part. Cf. No. 4.

3

Two versions and a fragment.

4

Nine versions.

6. H 1. Defective in the MS. A related version (C) begins thus (Herd's MSS., I, 166):—

False Sir John a wooing came
To a maid of beauty fair;
May Colven was this lady's name,
Her father's only heir.

7. H 15. A related version (C) has:—

'O hold your tongue, my pretty parrot,
Lay not the blame upon me;
Your cup shall be of the flowered gold,
Your cage of the root of the tree.'

Up then spake the king himself,
In the bed-chamber where he lay:

'What ails the pretty parrot,
That prattles so long or day?'

'There came a cat to my cage door,
It almost a worried me,
And I was calling on May Colven
To take the cat from me.'

5

Eight versions and a fragment.

7. A 8, 9. Sir Walter Scott's version (B) has:—

And she was clad in the finest pall,
But aye she let the tears down fall.

'O is your saddle set awrye?
Or rides your steed for you owre high?'

8. 24. In a Galloway version (C) the "Billie Blin" (cf. Nos. 6, 30, 53) plays an important part. Contrary to the page's warning, the bride sits down in the magic chair before she is bidden:—

Out then spake the lord's mother;
Says, 'This is not a maiden fair.

'In that chair nae leal maiden
Eer sits down till they be bidden.'

The Billie Blin then outspake he,
As he stood by the fair ladie.

'The bonnie may is tired wi riding,
Gaurd her sit down ere she was bidden.'

The lady persuades her waiting-maid to play the part of bride for her; and when

Childe Branton and the waiting-maid
Into the bridal bed were laid,

Childe Branton says:—

'Now tell to me, ye Billie Blin,
If this fair dame be a leal maiden.'

'I wat she is as leal a wight
As the moon shines on in a simmer night.

'I wat she is as leal a may
As the sun shines on in a simmer day.

'But your bonnie bride's in her bower,
Dreeing the mither's trying hour.'

6

One version.

10. 33. Between sts. 33 and 34, b has eight verses which narrate the carrying out of the Belly Blind's directions: "He did him to the market place," etc. They are, of course, practically a repetition of sts. 30–33.

7

Eleven versions.

11. 1. The name Earl o Bran (otherwise, Earl Bran or Brand) is probably a modification of the Hildebrand found in several Danish versions.

11. 2. This stanza can hardly be the rightful property of 'Earl Brand.' Something very similar is met with in 'Leesome Brand' (No. 15) and is not much in place there.

11. 7. Version A has:—

Until they meet with old Carl Hood;
He comes for ill, but never for good.

11. 13². A has Winchester.

12. 18. In A:—

'Ha, ha, ha! ye are a' mistaen:
Gae count your maidens oer again.'

8

Three versions.

15. *A 14⁴. Another copy reads: 'I'll serve you till my days be near.'

15. B 1². If *A be right, gross injustice is done to the father by changing 'I trow he's weird her' into 'An he wad wed her.' One of the two is a singular corruption.

9

Seven versions.

16. 1. The burden varies. Thus in B (Kinloch MSS.) we have:—

The provost's daughter went out a walking,
A may's love whiles is easy won
She heard a poor prisoner making his moan,
And she was the fair flower of Northumberland.

18. B has a more elaborate ending. The lady's father reproves her, but—

Her mother she gently on her did smile,
O that her love was so easy won!
'She is not the first that the Scotts have beguiled,
But she's still the fair flower of Northumberland.

'She shanna want gold, she shanna want fee,
Altho that her love was so easy won,
She shanna want gold to gain a man wi,
And she's still the fair flower of Northumberland.'

10

Twenty-seven versions.

19. 10. There are three strings made from the girl's hair in the two Icelandic versions, and in the English version B, and the three teta or links in five of the English versions were no doubt taken to make three strings originally. Corresponding to this are three enunciations of the instrument in some of the English and in some of the Scandinavian versions. In those English copies in which the instrument speaks but once, it expresses a desire for vengeance. This is found in no Norse ballad, neither is it found in the earliest English versions. These, and the better forms of the Norse, reveal the awful secret, directly or indirectly, and, in the latter case, sometimes note the effect on the bride. Most impressive of all, with its terse, short lines, is an Icelandic version taken down in the seventeenth century (Grundtvig and Sigurðsson, I'alenzk Fornkvæði, No. 13):—

The first string made response:
'The bride was my sister once.'

The bride on the bench, she spake:
'The harp much trouble doth make.'

The second string answered the other:
'She is parting me and my lover.'

Answered the bride, red as gore:
'The harp is vexing us sore.'

The canny third string replied:
'I owe my death to the bride.'

He made all the harp-strings clang;
The bride's heart burst with the pang.

19. B 1. The 'Binnorie' burden, which Scott says was "the most common and popular," runs as follows in his version (C):—

There were two sisters sat in a bower;
Binnorie, O Binnorie
There came a knight to be their wooer.
By the bonny mill-dams of Binnorie.

11

Fifteen versions.

21. 26. The cause of the bride's enmity for her brother's wife is, in true ballad style, left to be inferred by the hearer.

22. 15, 16. Cf. 'Gil Brenton' (No. 5), A 9-11.

12

Twenty-five versions.

23. 7. For the testament, see 'The Cruel Brother' (No. 11); 'Edward' (No. 13).

13

Three versions (one a fragment).

25. 7. Alexander Laing's MS., 1829, p. 25, has the following stanza (C):—

'O what did the fray begin about?
My son, come tell to me:'
'It began about the breaking o the bonny hazel wand,
And a penny wad hae bought the tree.'

25. 10. For the testament, see 'The Cruel Brother' (No. 11), 'Lord Randal' (No. 12).

25. B. Initial qu for w and z for y have been changed throughout to w and y.

14

Six versions.

26. 1. The burden differs in different versions. In B (Herd's MSS.) the stanza runs:—

There wond three ladies in a bower,
Annet and Margret and Marjorie
And they have gane out to pu a flower.
And the dew it lyes on the wood, gay ladie.

In C (Motherwell's MS.) it is as follows:—

There were three sisters on a road,
Gilly flower gentle rosemary
And there they met a banished lord.
And the dew it hings over the mulberry tree.

26. 2. In some of the versions the three sisters go to the wood separately. Thus in D (Motherwell's MS.):—

The oldest of them she's to the wood gane,
To seek a braw leaf and to bring it hame.
There she met with an outlyer bold,
Lies many long nights in the woods so cold.

15

Two versions.

28. A. The mixture of four-line with two-line stanzas of course comes from different ballads having been blended, but for all that, these ballads might have had the same theme. Sts. 33-35, however, are such as we meet with in ballads of the 'Earl Brand' class (No. 7), but not in those of the class to which 'Leesome Brand' belongs, and st. 4 of 'Leesome Brand' closely resembles st. 2 of 'Earl Brand,' A*.

28. 1. The "unco land" is at least a reminiscence of the paradise depicted in the beginning of many of the versions of the Danish 'Ribold and Guldberg' (Grundtvig, No. 82): see p. 11, above.

28. 28-30. The white hind is met with in no other ballad of this class.

29. 36-41. Stanzas similar to these (and to B 12-16) occur in 'Sheath and Knife' (No. 16), to which they are especially suited by their riddling character. Probably that is where they belong. It is worthy of remark, too, that there is a hind in another ballad, closely related to No. 16 ('The Bonny Hind,' No. 50), and that the hind in 'Leesome Brand' may have come from this.

29. 44-47. These are in no kind of keeping with what goes before, since they speak of the "young son" as having been brought home at some previous time.

29. 3. The "auld son" here, like the first bringing home of the young son in A 45, 47, shows how completely the proper story has been lost sight of. There should be no son of any description at the point at which this stanza comes in. The best we can do, to make sense of st. 3, is to put it after st. 8, with the understanding that woman and child are carried off for burial; though really there is no need to move them on that account. The shooting of the child is unintelligible in the mutilated state of the ballad. It is apparently meant to be an accident. Nothing of the kind occurs in other ballads of the class, and the divergence is probably a simple corruption.

16

Six versions.

30. 3, 4. Cf. 'Robin Hood's Death,' No. 120, B 16.

30. 6. F inserts this stanza:—

It was nae wonder his heart was sair,
When he shoold the mools on her yellow hair.

30. 8. Cf. 'Leesome Brand' (No. 15), sts. 36-41, and 'The Squire of Low Degree,' vv. 117 ff., Percy Folio, Hales and Farnivall, III, 267.

17

Nine versions.

31. 3. B and F have "three singing lav-rocks" (i. e. larks). These are to be taken as curiosities of art. Such birds are often mentioned (Liebrecht, Zur Volkskunde, p. 85 f.).

31. 6. The king's daughter was faithful to Horn, and they were marrying her against her will. The contingency seems not to have been foreseen when the ring was given; but it was better for the ring to change, to the temporary clouding of the lady's character, than to have Horn stay away and the forced marriage go on.

18

Six versions.

34. 1. For the burden, cf. a song of the time of Henry VIII (see Flügel, Anglia, XII, 238).

37. The history of the romance is discussed by Kittredge, American Journal of Philology, VII, 176 ff.; Bugge, Arkiv för nordisk Filologi, VII, 97 ff. (especially with reference to its relation to the Danish ballad of 'The Might of the Harp'), and Hertz, Spielmannsbuch, 2d ed., pp. 356 ff.

37. 1. The burden is Scandinavian and was perhaps no more intelligible to the singer than "Hey non nonny" is to us. For the first line the Danish "Skoven ärle grön (Early green's the wood)" has been suggested by Grundtvig; for the second "Hvor hjorten han går årlig (where the hart goes yearly)." Dr. Axel Olrik prefers "Skoven [er] herlig grön (The wood is magnificently green)" or "Skoven herlig grönnes (The wood grows splendidly green);" and "Hvor urten hun grönnes herlig (Where the plants grow splendidly green)."

20

Nineteen versions.

37. The Danish ballad is thus translated by Professor Child, Ballads, I, 219, from Kristensen, Jydske Folkeviser, I, 329.

Little Kirsten took with her the bower-women
five,

And with them she went to the wood bellive.

She spread her cloak down on the earth,
And on it to two little twins gave birth.

She laid them under a turf so green,
Nor suffered for them a sorrow unseen.

She laid them under so broad a stone,
Suffered sorrow nor harm for what she had done.

Eight years it was, and the children twain
Would fain go home to their mother again.

They went and before Our Lord they stood:
'Might we go home to our mother, we would.'

'Ye may go to your mother, if ye will,
But ye may not contrive any ill.'

They knocked at the door, they made no din:
'Rise up, our mother, and let us in.'

By life and by death hath she cursed and sworn
That never a child in the world hath she borne.

'Stop, stop, dear mother, and swear not so fast,
We shall recount to you what has passed.

'You took with you the bower-women five,
And with them went to the wood belive.
'You spread your cloak down on the earth,
And on it to two little twins gave birth.
'You laid us under a turf so green,
Nor suffered for us a sorrow unseen.
'You laid us under so broad a stone,
Suffered sorrow nor harm for what you had done.'
'Nay, my dear hairns, but stay with me;
And four barrels of gold shall be your fee.'
'You may give us four, or five, if you choose,
But not for all that, heaven will we lose.
'You may give us eight, you may give us nine,
But not for all these, heaven will we tine.
'Our seat is made ready in heavenly light,
But for you a seat in hell is dight.'

39. 23-25. These three stanzas are of course an addition of the broadside hack writer.

21

Two versions.

23

41. The MS. is not divided into stanzas. At the end of vv. 8, 25, 30, the MS. has .ff. This appears to indicate that this line is to be repeated, and we have so printed the text. It will be observed that this makes the stanzas regular throughout.

42. 15¹. The insertion of frek ('man') is suggested by Skeat. The MS. has a blank.

Three versions.

42. 2. A may exhibit the original plot; but it is just as likely that the captain was substituted for a passenger, under the influence of 'Brown Robyn's Confession' (No. 57). A third version, from South Devon, agrees with A in this point.

25

Six versions.

44. 1. A preceding stanza may be supplied from B (Buchan's Ballads of the North of Scotland, I, 185):—

'O Willie my son, what makes you sae sad?'
As the sun shines over the valley
'I lye sarely sick for the love of a maid.'
Among the blue flowers and the yellow

Four versions have this stanza.

26

Two versions.

45. 1. Another version begins—
As I cam by yon auld house end,
I saw twa corbies sittin thereon.

29

48. 28-30. There is something like this in the Gaelic ballad. When MacReith's wife tried on the mantle, it fitted her "as far as the tips of her little fingers and toes." She explains this failure of the mantle to cover her completely: "I once had a kiss in secret from O'Duibhne's son Diarmaid; the mantel would reach the ground, were it not for that."

48. 37². Perhaps, as Percy suggested, two lines have dropped out after this, and the two which follow belong with the next stanza.

30

51. 31². The rub-chadler for thrub chadler of the MS. The fiend is certainly closed under a barrel or tub, probably a rubbish barrel or tub.

52. 43². The MS. has: of the trubchandler.

54. 69. In the part that is lost, the Burlew-beanie explains the use of the powder in blowing the horn.

31

55. 3. What is lost between sts. 3 and 4 may fortunately be supplied from Arthur's narrative in sts. 9-13.

57. 32. Sir Banier is perhaps a mistake for Beduer (Bedivere), Arthur's constable. Sir Bore and Sir Garrett are Sir Bors de Gauves, brother of Lionel, and Gareth (Gaheriet), the younger brother of Gawain.

32

58. 14. And fu o courtesey (Scott).

58. 4. For this Scott has:—

He's taen him to his hunting ha,
For to make bulrly cheir;
When loud the wind was heard to sound,
And an earthquake rocked the floor.
And darkness covered a' the hall,
Where they sat at their meat;
The gray dogs, youling, left their food,
And crept to Henrie's feet.

And louder houled the rising wind
And burst the fastned door;
And in there came a griesly ghost,
Stood stamping on the floor.

59. 14. Not in the MS. Here given from Jamieson, II, 94, who may have obtained it from Mrs Brown. Scott has it, with some verbal variation.

59. 15. Between vv. 2 and 3 Scott has:—

And what's the bed i this house, ladye,
That ye're nae wellcum tee?

59. 15³. O ye maun pu the green heather (Scott).

59. 20. Scott has:—

For I was witched to a ghastly shape,
All by my stepdame's skill,
Till I should meet wi a courteous knight
Wad gie me a' my will.

34

Three versions.

60. 24. A variant is "craig of sea."

61. 18⁴. Scott's version adds :—

And sighing said that weary wight,
I doubt that day I'll never see.

36

63. 3. Maisry's services in washing and combing are more conceivable when rendered by a maid in her proper shape, as in 'Allison Gross' (No. 35), than when attributed to a machrel of the sea; and it is likely that the machrel returned to her own figure every Saturday, and that this is one of the points lost from the story. It is said here, as in 'Allison Gross' (No. 35), that Maisry kames the laily head on her knee.

37

Five versions.

64. 7. Stands as 15 in the MS.

64. 11², 8 are 11³, 2 in the MS. The order of words is still not simple enough for a ballad.

38

Seven versions.

39

Fifteen versions.

67. 3¹. The Museum text reads has belted.

67. 7. After this, in L (MS. at Abbotsford) :—

He's tean her by the milk-white hand,
And by the grass-green sleeve,
And laid her lo at the foot of the tree,
At her he askt no leave.

68. 17. Before this, in L :—

There grows a flower in Charters Woods,
It grows on gravel greay,
It ould destroy the boney young bern
That ye got in your pley.

68. 20. After this, in L :—

If it were to an earthly man,
As [it is] to an elphan knight,
I ould walk [wake?] for my true-love's sake
All the long winter's night.'

68. 23 ff. Cf. D (Motherwell's MS.) :—

But it fell once upon a day,
As hunting I did ride,
As I rode east and west yon hill
There woe did me betide.

O drowsy, drowsy as I was!
Dead sleep upon me fell;
The Queen of Fairies she was there,
And took me to hersell.

Cf. L :—

When I was a boy of eleven years old,
And much was made of me,
I went out to my father's garden,
Fell asleep at yon aple tree:
The queen of Elphan [she] came by,
And laid on her hands on me.

68. 26. B (Glenriddell's MSS.) is simpler and more genuine :—

The night it is gude Halloween,
The fairie folk do ride.

69. 34. Cf. B 34 :—

First dip me in a stand o milk,
And then a stand o water;
Haud me fast, let me na gae,
I'll be your bairnie's father.

The well-water has an occult and very important significance which modern reciters had completely lost knowledge of, as appears by the disorder into which the stanzas have fallen. Immersion in a liquid, generally water, but sometimes milk, is a process requisite for passing from a non-human shape, produced by enchantment or original. Judging by analogy, the naked man should issue from the bath of milk or water, into which he should have gone in one of his non-human shapes, a dove, swan, or snake; but A is the only version which has preserved an essentially correct process: Tam Lin, when a burning glee, is to be thrown into well-water, from which he will step forth a naked knight.

69. 34². Johnson's Museum has burning lead.

69. 41, 42. Cf. B 40, 41 :—

'Had I kend, Thomas,' she says,
'A lady wad hae borrowd thee,
I wad hae taen out thy twa grey een,
Put in twa een o tree.

'Had I but kend, Thomas,' she says,
'Before I came frae hame,
I had taen out that heart o flesh,
Put in a heart o stane.'

41

Three versions.

71. 1. Cf. 'Lady Isabel and the Elf-Knight' (No. 4), st. 1. Elmond is perhaps a corruption of Elf-man.

71. 3. With this and the following stanzas of 'Tam Lin' (No. 39), A 5-7. A rose, as in Tam Lin, would be more ballad-like for Margaret to be plucking.

71. 6. Akin is a corruption for Etin, i.e. "giant." Version B has Etin.

71. 15. The lines about the cupbearer are absurd. Etin was no cupbearer and he is not meant to lie to his son. The "misty night," however, may be significant. In one version there is a magic mist (a common phenomenon) which facilitates the lady's abduction.

73. 18. Nuts is clearly a mistake for the elfin note of A 1.

74. 11. Version C (in Buchan's Ballads) has :

And seven bairns, fair and fine,
There has she born to him,
And never was in gude church-door,
Nor ever got gude kirking.

Ance she took harp into her hand,
And harped them a' asleep,
Then she sat down at their couch-side,
And bitterly did weep.

Said, Seven bairns hae I born now
To my lord in the ha;
I wish they were seven greedy rats,
To run upon the wa,
And I mysel a great grey cat,
To eat them ane and a'.

Cf. 'Fair Annie' (No. 62), A 28.

42

Three versions.

74. 1. Colvill (as in B) is the correct form and Colven a vulgarized one.

75. 14. C (from Forfarshire) has these stanzas which do not occur in A or B: —

He wasna weel laid in his bed,
Nor yet well fa'en asleep,
When up an started the mermaiden,
Just at Clerk Colin's feet.

'Will ye lie there an die, Clerk Colin,
Will ye lie there an die?
Or will ye gang to Clyde's water,
To fish in flood wi me?'

'I will lie here an die,' he said,
'I will lie here an die;
In spite o a' the deils in hell
I will lie here and die.'

43

Six versions.

76. 8. St. 8 of C (Buchan's version) throws light on the magic means employed. The witch-wife says: —

Ye'll pu the bloom frae aff the broom,
Strew't at his head and feet,
And aye the thicker that ye do strew,
The sounder he will sleep.

76. 13-14. These are in no other version, like "Hive Hill" in st. 8. Kinloch's version (D), however, ends savagely with a stanza (addressed to the hawk) which has some resemblance to st. 13: —

Then be it sae, my wager gane,
'T will skaith frae meikle ill,
For gif I had found her in bonnie broom-fields,
O her heart's blude ye'd drunken your fill.

C has a similar, but more cynical, stanza.

77. 1. In all versions except A the tryst is the result of a wager. F, a broadside version, is distinctly jocular.

77. 2. The gap after this stanza may be filled from D 3-5; or from E (Robertson's Note-Book) as follows: —

But when she cam to the bonnie green bower,
Her true-love was fast asleep;
Sumtimes she kist his rosie, rosie lips,
And his breath was wondrous sweet.

77. 4. In C there are similar questions, addressed to hound, hawk, and merry men; in D, to hound and hawk; in E, to merry men and hawk; in F, to hawk, hound, and serving-man.

45

Two versions.

80. 25-27. Of the Egyptian questions only one is at all like the English. "The king proceeded: 'How much does the sun earn each day by his work for each son of Adam?' [The potter] replied, 'One qīrāt; for the day-laborer who works from sunrise to sunset receives that amount.'"

46

Three versions.

84. 8. For two of the three dishes cf. the following song, from a MS. assigned to the fifteenth century (Sloane MS. 2593, British Museum), — Wright's Songs and Carols, 1836, No. 8; as printed for the Warton Club, 1856, No. 29, p. 33: —

I have a 3ong suster fer beyondyn the se,
Many be the drowryis that che sente me.

Che sente me the cherye withoutyn ony ston;
And so che dede [the] dowe withoutyn ony bon;
Che sente me the brere withoutyn ony rynde.
Sche bad me love my lemman withoute longgyng.
How xuld ony cherye be withoute ston?
And how xuld ony dowe ben withoute bon?

How xuld ony brere ben withoute rynde?
How xuld y love myn lemman without longgyng?
Quan the cherye was a flour, than hadde it non ston;
Quan the dowe was an ey, than hadde it non bon;
Quan the brere was onbred, than hadde it non rynd;
Quan the maydyn hajt that che lovit, che is without longgyng.

47

Five versions.

87. 6. Cf. C, st. 6 (Buchan's MSS.): —

'An asking, asking, sir,' she said,
'An asking ye'll grant me: '
'Ask on, ask on, lady,' he said,
'What may your asking be?'

87. 7-8. Version D (Harris MS.) has the following: —

'What gaes in a speal?' she said,
'What in a horn green?
An what gaes on a lady's head,
Whan it is washen clean?'

'Ale gaes in a speal,' he said,
'Wine in a horn green;
An silk gaes on a lady's head,
Whan it is washen clean.'

87. 9. In C there is a third question in this stanza, and a third answer in the next: —

'Or what is the finest thing,' she says,
'That king or queen can wile?'

'And yellow gold is the finest thing,' etc.

87. 10-11. Cf. C 9-10: —

'You have asked many questions, lady,
I've you as many told;'

'But how many pennies round
Make a hundred pounds in gold?'

'How many small fishes
Do swim the salt seas round?
Or what's the seemliest sight you'll see
Into a May morning?'

49

Nine versions.

91. 1. Cf. D (Jamieson) 1-2: —

'O will ye gae to the school, brother?
Or will ye gae to the ba?
Or will ye gae to the wood a-warallin,
To see whilk o's maun fa?'

'It's I winna gae to the school, brother,
Nor will I gae to the ba;
But I will gae to the wood a-warallin,
And it is you maun fa.'

91. 6 ff. D reads: —

Ye'll lift me up upon your back
Tak me to Kirkland fair;
Ye'll mak my greaf baith braid and lang,
And lay my body there.

Ye'll lay my arrows at my head,
My bent bow at my feet,
My sword and buckler at my side,
As I was wont to sleep.

Whan ye gae hame to your father,
He'll speer for his son John:
Say, ye left him into Kirkland fair,
Learning the school alone.

When ye gae hame to my sister,
She'll speer for her brother John:
Ye'll say, ye left him in Kirkland fair,
The green grass growin aboon.

Whan ye gae hame to my true-love,
She'll speer for her lord John:
Ye'll say, ye left him in Kirkland fair,
But hame ye fear he'll never come.

91. 10. Some versions supplement the story with more or less of the ballad of 'Edward' (No. 13).

92. 32. Should be 'It's not for you a weed' (Motherwell).

92. 5-7. A commonplace that may be expected to recur under the same or analogous circumstances, as it does in 'Tam Lin' (No. 39) D, 'The Knight and Shepherd's Daughter' (No. 110), 'Crow and Pie' (No. 111), and in one version of 'The Broom of Cowdenknows' (No. 217). These are much less serious ballads, and the tone of st. 5, which so ill befits the distressful situation, is perhaps owing to that stanza's having been transferred from some copy of one of these. It might well change places with this, from 'The Knight and Shepherd's Daughter,' A: —

Now you have had your will, good sir,
And put my body thus to shame,
Even as you are a courteous knight,
Tel me what is your name.

Much better with this in 'Ebbe Galt,' Danske Viser, No. 63, 8: —

Now you have had your will of me,
To both of us small gain,
By the God that is above all things,
I beg you tell your name.

51

Two versions.

94. 11-12. Cf. the conclusion of No. 49, A.

52

Four versions.

94. 4. Cf. B (Motherwell's MS.), st. 4: —

'How dare ye shake the leaves?' he said,
'How dare ye break the tree?
How dare ye pluck the nuts,' he said,
'Without the leave of me?'

Cf. also 'Tam Lin' (No. 39), A 6.

95. 18. C (Buchan's Ballads) has the following stanza after this: —

'Win up, and see your ae brother,
That's new come ower the sea;
'Ohon, alas!' says fair Annie,
'He spake ower soon wi me.'

53

Fifteen versions.

95. 5. The hero's name is mostly Beichan, with slight modifications like Bekie, Bichan, Bichet, Brechin. Bateman and Bondwell also occur. The heroine is usually Susan Pye.

95. 24. B (Glenriddell MSS.) reads: Which horse and owsn were wont to drie.

96. 9. The following stanzas are from F (Pitcairn's MSS.): —

O she's gaen murning up and down,
And she's gaen murnin to the sea,
Then to her father she has gane in,
Wha spak to her right angrily.

'O do ye mourn for the goud, daughter,
Or do ye mourn for the whyte monie?
Or do ye mourn for the English squire?
I wat I will gar hang him hie.'

'I neither mourn for the goud, father,
Nor do I for the whyte monie,
Nor do I for the English squire;
And I care na tho ye hang him hie.

'But I hae promised an errand to go,
Seven lang miles ayont the sea,
And blythe and merry I never will be
Untill that errand you let me.'

'That errand, daughter, you may gang,
Seven long miles beyond the sea,
Since blythe and merry you'll neer be
Untill that errand I'll let thee.'

O she has built a bonny ship,
And she has set it in the sea,
And she has built a bonny ship,
It's all for to tak her a long journe.

96. 16. Cf. F, st. 21: —

I hae been porter at your yett,
I'm sure this therty lang years and three,
But the fairest lady stands thereat
That evir my twa eyes did see.

96. 17. The next stanzas in F are: —

'She bids you send a bite of bread,
It's and a glass of your gude red wine,
Nor to forget the lady's love
That let you out of prison strong.'

It's up and spak the bride's mother,
A weight of goud hung at her chin:
'There is no one so fair without
But there are, I wat, as fair within.'

It's up and spak the bride herself,
As she sat by the gude lord's knee:
'Awa, awa, ye proud porter,
This day ye might hae excepted me.'

96. 8. "The prisoner's mane" in H (Kinloch's Ballads) is as follows (st. 9): —

My hounds they all go masterless,
My hawks they flee frae tree to tree,
My youngest brother will heir my lands,
My native land I'll never see.

97. 14. The important figure of the Billy Blin is lacking in all other versions except M (Buchan's MSS.), which substitutes "a woman clad in green," obviously a fairy. On the Billy Blin, see note to No. 8 (p. 641, above).

54

Four versions.

98. 3. The tree is a palm in the apocryphal Gospel. In England it is always a cherry, as in the fifteenth of the so-called Coventry Mysteries.

99. B 9-13. These sometimes occur, with variations and additions, as an independent carol, 'Joseph and the Angel.' See Chappell's Christmas Carols, ed. by Rimbault, p. 22, where for st. 11 we have:—

He neither shall be clothed
In purple nor in pall,
But in the fair white linen that usen babies all.

100. 18. This suspiciously modern stanza is wanting in b, c, d.

55

100. 22. Sure all the world will turn, b.

101. 20³, 4.

And made a lowly reverence
To Jesus Christ his grace. b.

56

Two versions.

102. 1. The rich man's name is Diverus in a version (B) in Notes and Queries, 4th Ser., III, 76.

102. 13. In B (with which A b practically agrees):—

Rise up, rise up, brother Diverus,
And come along with me;
There is a place prepared in hell,
For to sit upon a serpent's knee.

58

Eighteen versions, several of them small fragments.

104. 11¹. So in C (Aberdour also in F). The water at St Johnston's wall B; Nore-east, nore-west frae Aberdeen D; There's a brig at the back o Sanct John's toun E; It's forty miles to Aberdeen, And fifty fathoms deep G; O forty miles off Aberdeen H; It's even ower by Aberdour I; It's och, och owre to Aberdour J; Atween Leith an Aberdeen K; Down below Dunbarton castle P. We may fairly say,— somewhere off the coast of Aberdeen. The southern Aberdour, in the Firth of Forth, cannot be meant.

104. 10. In C and E (both in Motherwell's MS.), Sir Patrick sends the boy aloft and sticks to the rudder himself. Thus in C:—

'Wha will come,' the captain says,
'And take my helm in hand?
Or wha'll gae up to my topmast,
And look for some dry land?

'Mount up, mount up, my pretty boy,
See what you can spy;
Mount up, mount up, my pretty boy,
See if any land we're nigh.'

'We're fifty miles from shore to shore,
And fifty banks of sand;
And we have all that for to sail
Or we come to dry land.'

'Come down, come down, my pretty boy,
I think you tarry lang;
For the saut sea's in at our coat-neck
And out at our left arm.

'Come down, come down, my pretty boy,
I fear we here maun die;
For thro and thro my goodly ship
I see the green-waved sea.'

105. G. Scott's version, H (in the Border Minstrelsy, ed. 1803, III, 64), was made up from two versions, the better of which was G, and five stanzas recited by Mr. Hamilton, sheriff of Lanarkshire, who is said to have got them from an old nurse in the middle of the eighteenth century. These are the stanzas:—

'O where will I get a gude sailor,
To take my helm in hand,
Till I get up to the tall topmast,
To see if I can spy land?'

'O here am I, a sailer gude,
To take the helm in hand,
Till you go up to the tall topmast;
But I fear you'll neer spy land.'

He hadna gane a step, a step,
A step but barely ane,
When a bout flew out of our goodly ship,
And the salt sea it came in.

'Gae fetch a web o the silken claith,
Another o the twine,
And wap them into our ship's side,
And letna the sea come in.'

They fetched a web o the silken claith,
Another o the twine,
And they wapped them roun that gude ship's side
But still the sea came in.

105. 3. H gives the letter as follows:—

To Noroway, to Noroway,
To Noroway oer the faem;
The king's daughter of Noroway,
'Tis thou maun bring her hame.

Cf. I (Buchan's Ballads), st. 9:—

But I maun sail the seas, the morn,
And likewise sae maun you;
To Noroway, wi our king's daughter,
A chosen queen she's now.

And the first stanza of J (Harris MS.):—

Hie sits oor king in Dumfermline,
Sits birlin at the wine;
Says, Whare will I get a bonnie boy
That will sail the saut seas fine?
That will hie owre to Norraway,
To bring my dear dochter hame?

105. 12. In J a mermaid appears (st. 18:—

Then up it raise the mermaiden,
Wi the comb an glass in her hand:
'Here's a health to you, my merrie young wae,
For you never will see dry land.'

So in some other versions. Cf. 'The Mermaid,' No. 289.

105. 14. Cf. J, st. 20:—

There was Saturday, an Sabbath day,
And Monnonday at morn,
That feather-beds an silken sheets
Cam floatin to Kinghorn.

59

Three versions.

106. 1. Ravengaard, Röngård, and Ronne-gaar,—found, with variations, in the Scandinavian ballads,—and Rodingar (Roddyngar)—found in Anglo-Latin texts of the story of Gunhild—are the forerunners of the English Sir Aldingar (for Sir Baldingar) and Roddingham.

107. 12. The lady is Gunild in Scandinavian. The English Elinor is probably a later substitution. She may have been meant for the wife of the English King Henry II, less probably for the wife of Henry III.

107. 28. The diminutive size of the champion is emphasized in Scandinavian as well as in the story of Gunild in a thirteenth-century French metrical life of Edward the Confessor (Luard, Lives of Edward, p. 39 f., vii). In the latter he is called Mimecan (in the Scandinavian ballad, Memering). There is perhaps a trace of his dwarfishness in the tale of the Lombard queen Gundeberg.

60

113. 42^a. On tow good renish (Percy).

114. 59^s, 60^l. The words printed in smaller type are acknowledged changes or additions of Percy's.

114. 63. "Some liberties have been taken in the following stanzas" (Percy).

61

115. The first two stanzas in the MS. have been omitted as belonging to another ballad. They are as follows:—

Jesus, lord, mickle of might,
That dyed ffor vs on the roode,
To maintaine vs in all our right
That loues true English blood.

Ffor by a knight I say my song,
Was bold and full hardye;
Sir Robert Briuse wold forth to fight,
In-to Ireland ouer the sea.

116. 29. This unintelligible stanza seems to preserve a trace of an adventure lost in our defective text.

62

Ten versions.

118. 11. The name Lord Thomas was probably suggested by 'Lord Thomas and Fair Annet' (No. 73). The first line of st. 12 reads in D (Herd's fragment, which supplied Scott with sts. 2-6, 12, 17, 19): 'You're welcome to your house, master.'

63

Eleven versions.

124. 1. C (Kinloch's MSS.) begins thus:—

'The corn is turning ripe, Lord John,
The nuts are growing fu,
And ye are bound for your ain countrie,
Fain wad I go wi you.'

'Wi me, Margret, wi me, Margret,
What wad ye do wi me?
I've mair need o a pretty little boy,
To wait upon my steed.'

'It's I will be your pretty little boy,
To wait upon your steed;
And ilka town that we come to,
A pack of hounds I'll lead.'

'My hounds will eat o the bread o wheat,
And ye of the bread of bran;
And then you will sit and sigh,
That eer ye loed a man.'

124. 11. C has the following stanzas (sta. 10-15):—

It's whan she cam to the other side,
She sat down on a stane;
Says, Them that made me, help me now,
For I am far frae hame.

'How far is it frae your mither's bouer,
Gude Lord John tell to me?'

'It's thirty miles, Lady Margaret,
It's thirty miles and three:
And yese be wed to ane o her serving men,
For yese get na mair o me.'

Then up bespak the wylle parrot,
As it sat on the tree,

'Ye lee, ye lee, Lord John,' it said,
'Sae loud as I hear ye lee.'

'Ye say it's thirty miles frae your mither's bouer,

Whan it's but barely three;
And she'll neer be wed to a serving man,
For she'll be your ain ladie.'

['O dinna ye see yon bonnie castle,
Lies on yon sunny lea?
And yese get ane o my mither's men,
For yese get na mair o me.']

['Well see I yon bonnie castle,
Lies on yon sunny lea,
But Ise neer hae nane o your mither's men,
Tho I never gat mair o thee.']

The stanzas bracketed are inserted by Kinloch in his later copy. In H (Motherwell's MS.) there is a corresponding passage (sta. 2-6), in which Lord John informs his love that he has 'a wife and seven bairns' and is contradicted by a 'wild parrot.' G (Buchan's MSS.) has a stanza (10) similar to C 14.

124. 14.

Atho there be a ladie there,
Should sunder you and me,
Betide my life, betide my death,
I will go thither and see. B b.

125. 26.

He has looked oer his left shoulder,
And a loud laugh laughed he;
Says, He's a squire's ae dear son,
I got in the north countrie. B b.

125. 28²⁻⁴.

And the corn in her right hand,
And she's hied her to the stable-door,
As fast as she could gang. B b.

125. 30^{1, 2}.

She has leand her to the manger side
And glen a grievous groan. B b.

125. 31, 32. One stanza in b: —

Then out it spake Lord John's mother,
As she stood on the stair,
'I think I hear a woman groan,
And a bairn greeting sair.'

125. 34. Two stanzas in b: —

'Now open the door, Bird Ellen,' he says,
'O open and let me in,
Or baith the door and the door cheeks
Into the floor I'll fling.'

He is struck the door wi his right foot,
And pushd it wi his knee,
Till iron bolts and iron bars
In flinders he has gard flee:
'Be not afraid, Bird Ellen,' he says,
'For there's nane win in but me.'

Then follows in b: —

The never a word spake that ladie,
As on the floor she lay,
But hushd her young son in her arms
And turnd his face away.

125. 36. Two stanzas in b: —

'And smile on me now, Bird Ellen,
And cast awa your care,
For I'll make you ladie of a' my lands,
And your son shall be my heir.'
'Blessd be the day,' sayd Bird Ellen,
'That I followd you frae the town,
For I'd rather far be your foot-page
Than the queen that wears the crown.'

64

Eight versions.

126. A is confused at the beginning. The following stanzas from a MS. at Abbotsford (Child, iv, 464) are clearer: —

Young Janet sits in her garden,
Makin a heavie maen,
Whan by cam her father dear,
Walkin himself alane.

'It's telld me in my bower, Janet,
It's telld me in my bed,
That ye're in love wi Sweet Willie;
But a French lord ye maun wed.'

'In it be telld ye in yer bower, father,
In it be telld ye in your bed,
That me an Willie bears a love,
Yet a French lord I maun wed,
But here I mak a leel, leel vow
He's neer come in my bed.

'An for to please my father dear
A French lord I will wed;
But I hae sworn a solemn oth
He's neer come in my bed.'

Young Janet's away to her bower-door,
As fast as she can hie,
An Willie he has followd her,
He's followd speedilie.

An whan he cam to her bowr-door

He tirlt at the pin:
'O open, open, Janet love,
Open an let me in.'

'It was never my mother's custm, Willie,
It never sal be mine,
For a man to come the bower within
When a woman's travellin.

'Gae yer ways to my sisters' bower,
Crie, Meg, Marlon an Jean,
Ye maun come to yer sister Janet,
For fear that she be gane.'

127. 30. See No. 7 for the plants from graves. The version mentioned in the first note (above) adds: —

Thae twae met, an thae twae plaet,
An ay they knittit near,
An ilka ane that cam thereby
Said, There lies twa lovers dear.

128. 13-14. Cf. E (Kinloch MSS.), sts 9-10: —

'Now chuse, now chuse now, Fair Janet,
What man you'll ride behind:
'O wha sae fitting as Sweet Willie?
He'll fit my saddle fine.'

O they rode on, and they rode on,
Till they cam to Merrytown green;
But Sweet Willie and Fair Janet
Cam aye hoolie ahin.

The version mentioned in the first note above has (sts. 14-18): —

'But I hae sorn a solemn oath,
Afore a companie,
That ye sal ride this day, Janet,
This day an ye soud die.

'Whae'll horse ye to the kirk, Janet?
An whae will horse ye best?
'Whae but Willie, my true-love?
He kens my mister best.'

'Whae'll horse ye to the kirk, Janet?
An whae will horse ye there?
'Whae but Willie, my true-love?
He neer will doo'd nae maer.

'Ye may saddle a steed, Willie,
An see that ye saddle't soft;
Ye may saddle a steed, Willie,
For ye winna saddle't oft.

'Ye may saddle a steed, Willie,
An see that ye saddle't side;
Ye may saddle a steed, Willie,
But I thought to have been yer bride.'

65

Eleven versions.

130. 25. K (from a MS. at Abbotsford) adds: —

He's burstit the black unto the slack,
The grey unto the brae,
An ay the page that ran before
Cried, 'Ride, sir, an ye may.'

130. 29. In G, Margery (as she is called) blesses her lover most touchingly, with almost her last words (st. 13): —

She turned her head on her left shoulder,
Saw her girdle hang on the tree:
'O God bless them that gave me that!
They'll never give more to me.'

66

Five versions.

131. 14. Sharpe's MS. has their bonneur.
133. 26. In D (Kinloch MSS.) and E (Buchan) one of the brothers (Childe Vyet E) gives the other a choice of swords : —

'There's two swords in one scabbard,
They cost me many a pound;
Take you the best, leave me the worst,
We's fight till they be done.' D.

Cf. 'Little Muirgrave' (No. 81), A 22.

133. 28-31. There is a confusion of two accounts: in one, Lady Maisery does penance by begging; in the other she goes mad (probably a later modification). With st. 28 cf., for example, No. 70, B 25.

67

Three versions.

137. 5. In C (Kinloch's MSS.) : —

He harpit i the king's palace,
He harpit them a' asleep,
Unless it were Burd Bell alone,
And she stud on her feet.

138. 25.

Ye shall na hae to say, Glenkindie,
When you sit at the wine,
That once you loved a queen's daughter,
And she was your footman's quean. C.

68

Eleven versions.

139. 18. Garlick's Wells. Scott (J) has Garlioch Wells.

139. 8. Scott has : —

thy clattering tounge,
That trattles in thy head.

139. 15. Before this Scott has the following stanzas : —

She hadna crossd a rigg o land,
A rigg but barely ane,
When she met wi his auld father,
Came riding all alane.

'Where hae ye been, now, ladye fair,
Where hae ye been sae late?
We hae been seeking Erl Richard,
But him we canna get.'

'Erl Richard kens a' the fords in Clyde,
He'll ride them ane by ane;
And though the night was neer sae mirk,
Erl Richard will be hame.'

140. 19. Before this Scott has : —

'Gar douk, gar douk,' the king he cried,
'Gar douk for gold and fee;
O wha will douk for Erl Richard's sake,
Or wha will douk for me?'

141. 10. D (Motherwell's MS.) has : —

They turnd down his yellow hair,
Turnd up his milk-white feet:
'Lye thou there, Earl Richard,' she said,
'Till the blood seep from thy bane;
That fairer maid than ten of me
Will look lang or thou come hame.'

141. 23. Scott's copy (J) has : —

The maiden touchd the clay-cauld corpse,
A drop it never bled;
The ladye laid her hand on him,
And soon the ground was red.

Cf. B (Kinloch's MSS.) : —

O white, white war his wounds washen,
As white as a linen clout;
But as the traitor she cam near,
His wounds they gushit out.

'It's surely been my bouer-woman,
O ill may her betide!
I neer wad slain him Young Redin,
And thrown him in the Clyde.'

69

Eight versions.

143. 26. D (Motherwell's MS.) ends as follows : —

It's I will do for my love's sake
What many ladies would think lang;
Seven years shall come and go
Before a glove go on my hand.
And I will do for my love's sake
What many ladies would not do;
Seven years shall come and go
Before I wear stocking or shoe.
There'll neer a shirt go on my back,
There'll neer a kame go in my hair,
There'll never coal nor candle-light
Shine in my bower nae mair.

Cf. note to p. 173, 29, and see No. 92, A 3, 4.

70

Two versions.

71

149. 25, 26. These stanzas are remarkably like F 3, 5 of 'Earl Brand' (No. 7), the Percy copy, and may have served in some Scottish version of 'The Douglas Tragedy.'

150. 36-41. These stanzas are borrowed from 'The Knight and Shepherd's Daughter' (No. 110). Folly could not go further than in making the mother clip her locks and kilt her clothes, as in 36; unless it be in making a boat of a coat and a topmast of a cane, as in 3, 4.

72

Four versions.

151. A, as sung, had a sequel of six stanzas, which is found separately and belongs with 'The Wife of Usher's Well' (No. 79); see p. 168, version B.

73

Ten versions.

153. 25. In some versions of the Scandinavian ballad, little Kerstin, the forsaken mistress, sets fire to the bride-house : —

Sir Peter awakes, but he wakes not ere
The flame is playing in the young bride's hair.
Sir Peter springs from his bed, oer late;
He saw Little Kersti go out through the gate.

'Ah, dear Little Kersti, now help thou me!
Another time shall I help thee.'
And it was Little Kersti, her laugh he heard:
'I wot how well you keep your word.'

74

Four versions.

157. The fragments in The Knight of the Burning Pestle are:—

When it was grown to dark midnight,
And all were fast asleep,
In came Margaret's grimly ghost,
And stood at William's feet. (Act II, sc. 8.)

You are no love for me, Margaret,
I am no love for you. (Act III, sc. 5.)

157. 14. The brown girl, characteristic of No. 73, has slipped in from that ballad.

75

Ten versions.

76

Thirteen versions.

163. 3-4. In E (A. Fraser Tytler's Brown MS.), these stanzas are in the direct discourse:—

Your father will shoe your fu fair foot,
Your mother will glove your hand;
Your sister will lace your middle jimp
Wi the new made London band.

Your brother will kaim your yellow hair,
Wi the new made silver kaim;
And the king of heaven will father your bairn,
Till Love Gregor come haim.

164. 28 ff. E ends as follows:—

The wind blew loud, the sea grew rough,
And dashd the boat on shore;
Fair Annie floats on the raging sea,
But her young son raise no more.

Love Gregor tare his yellow hair,
And made a heavy moan;
Fair Annie's corpse lay at his feet,
But his bonny young son was gone.

O cherry, cherry was her cheek,
And gowden was her hair,
But clay cold were her rosey lips,
Nae spark of life was there.

And first he's kissd her cherry cheek,
And neist he's kissed her chin;
And saftly pressd her rosey lips,
But there was nae breath within.

'O wae betide my cruel mother,
And an ill dead may she die!
For she turnd my true-love frae my door,
When she came sae far to me.'

77

Seven versions.

165. 8. In three versions (B D E) Margaret will not give William back his faith and troth unless he resolves certain questions about the state of the dead. Thus in D (from Dr Joseph Robertson's Note-Book):—

'Yere faith and troth ye 'se never get,
Till ye tell me this ane;
Till ye tell me where the women go
That hang themsell for sin.'

'O they gang till the low, low hell,
Just by the devil's kuee;
It's a' clad ower wi burnin pitch,
A dreadfu sicht to see.'

'But your faith and troth ye 'se never get,
Till ye tell me again;
Till ye tell me where the children go
That die without a name.'

'O they gang till the high, high heaven,
Just by our Saviour's kuee,
And it's a' clad ower wi roses red,
A lovelie sicht to see.'

'But gie me my faith and troth, Margrat,
And let me pass on my way;
For the psalms o heaven will be sung,
An I'll be mist away.'

'But your faith and troth yese never get,
Till ye tell me again;
Till ye tell me where the women go
That die in child-beddin.'

'O they gang till the hie, hie heaven,
Just by our Saviour's knee,
And every day at twal o'clock
They 're dipped oer the head.'

165. 11. In C (Motherwell's MS.) there is an impressive scene at the grave:—

She followed him high, she followed him low,
Till she came to yon church-yard;
O there the grave did open up,
And young William he lay down.

'What three things are these, Sweet William,' she says,

'That stands here at your head?'

'It's three maidens, Marjorie,' he says,
'That I promised once to wed.'

'What three things are these, Sweet William,' she says,

'That stands here at your side?'

'It's three babes, Marjorie,' he says,
'That these three maidens had.'

'What three things are these, Sweet William,' she says,

'That stands here at your feet?'

'It is three hell-hounds, Marjorie,' he says,
'That's waiting my soul to keep.'

She took up her white, white hand,
And she struck him in the breast,
Saying, Have there again your faith and troth,
And I wish your soul good rest.

165. 15, 16. These are clearly modern, but very likely represent original stanzas not remembered in form.

166. 8. C (Motherwell's MS.) has:—

'The cocks they are crowing, Marjory,' he says,
'The cocks they are crawling again;
It's time the deid should part the quick,
Marjorie, I must be gane.'

166. F. The first part of this version was evidently derived from No. 47.

78

Eight versions.

167. 1. Version C (from Suffolk) reads:—

Cold blows the wind oer my true-love,
Cold blow the drops of rain;
I never, never had but one sweetheart,
In the greenwood he was slain.

Similarly in some other versions. A fragment (C. K. Sharpe's papers) is: —

O wet and weary is the night,
And evendown pours the rain,
And he that was sae true to me
Lies in the greenwood slain.

167. 3. A stanza in H expresses the common belief that the tears of the living wet the shroud of the dead: —

What is it that you want of me
And will not let me sleep?
Your salted tears they trickle down
And wet my winding-sheet.

167. 5. After this the ghost says, in H: —

If you were not my own sweet-heart,
As now I know you be,
I'd tear you as the withered leaves
That grew on yonder tree.

79

Four versions.

168. 4². Fashes is Scott's emendation for fishes of the MS.; Aytoun reads freshes.

168. B. This version, as sung, formed the conclusion of No. 72 A.

169. C should be compared with D. It is given in order that no text may be omitted which can throw light on this ballad.

170. 4². Perhaps lovely; the MS. is not clear.

170. 9⁴. Read, probably, "They wet our winding sheet." Cf. No. 78, A 3.

80

171. 15². Cooke seems wrongly repeated.

171. 26¹. For light read fayre (?).

81

Fifteen versions.

172. 8. In C and several other versions the lovers try a bribe, a threat, or both, to make the page keep counsel.

173. 29. L (Buchan's MSS.) ends with a vow of penance (cf. note to p. 143, 26).

Ye'll darken my windows up secure,
Wi staunchlons round about,
And there is not a living man
Shall eer see me walk out.

Nae mair fine clothes my body deck,
Nor kame gang in my hair.
Nor burning coal nor candle light
Shine in my bower mair.

Cf. note to p. 143, 26, and see No. 92, A 3, 4.

83

Seven versions.

177. 1. C (Motherwell's MS.) reads: —

Bob Norice is to the grein-wude gane,
He is awa wi the wind.

178. 6.

'Do I nae pay you gowd?' he said,
'Do I nae pay you fee?
How daur you stand my biddin, Sir,
Whan I bid you to flee?' C.

178. 7. These stanzas follow in C: —

'What news, what news, my bonnie wee boy?
What news hae ye to me?'

'Nae news, nae news, Lord Barnet,' he said,
'But your ladie I fain would see.

'Here is a pair o gloves to her,
Thay'r o the silver gray;
And tell her to cum to the merrie green-wud,
And speik to Bob Norice.

'Here is a gay gowd ring to her,
It's aw gowd but the stane;
And she maun cum to the merrie green-wud,
And speir the leive o nane.

'Here is a gay mantell to her,
It's aw silk but the sleive;
And she maun cum to the merrie grein-wud,
And ask not bauld Barnet's leive.'

Then out bespack the yellow nurse,
Wi the bable on her knee,
Sayand, Gif thay be cum frae Bob Norice,
They are welcum to me.

'O haud your tung, ye yellow nurse,
Aloud an I heir ye lie;
For they're to Lord Barnet's lady,
I trow that this be she.'

Lord Barnet's to a dressing-room,
And buskt him in woman's array,
And he's awa to the merrie green-wud,
To speik to Bob Norrice.

84

Three versions.

180. B a was "printed for P. Brooksby, J. Deacon, J. Blare, J. Back." 85

Five versions.

86

Three versions.

183. Scott's version (A) begins with the following stanzas, which are intended to extenuate young Benje's guilt: —

Of a' the maids o fair Scotland
The fairest was Marjorie,
And Young Benjie was her ae true-love,
And a dear true-love was he.

And wow! but they were lovers dear,
And loved fu constantlie;
But ay the mair, when they fell out,
The sairer was their plea.

And they hae quarrelled on a day,
Till Marjorie's heart grew wae,
And she said she'd chuse another luvie
And let Young Benjie gae.

And he was stout, and proud-hearted,
And thought o't bitterlie,
And he's gaen by the wan moon-light
To meet his Marjorie.

183. 5. St. 4 should probably follow st. 5 Scott has: —

Then saft she smiled, and said to him,
O what ill hae I done?
He took her in his arms twa,
And threw her oer the linn.

183. 8. Scott's copy introduces this stanza with the following: —

Then they've taen up the comely corpse,
And laid it on the grund:
'O wha has killed our ae sister,
And how can he be found?
'The night it is her low lykewake,
The morn her burial day,
And we maun watch at mirk midnight,
And hear what she will say.'
Wi doors ajar, and candle-light,
And torches burning clear,
The streikit corpse, till still midnight,
They waked, but naething hear.

183. 9. In Scott's copy —

O wha has done the wrang, sister,
Or dared the deadly sin?
Wha was sae stout, and feared nae dout,
As thraw ye oer the linn?

183. 13. Scott's version ends: —

Tie a green gravat round his neck,
And lead him out and in,
And the best ae servant about your house
To wait Young Benjie on.
And ay, at every seven year's end,
Ye'll tak him to the linn;
For that's the penance he maun drie,
To scug his deadly sin.

Cf. Buchan's version (B): —

'Ye winna Bondsey head, brothers,
Nor will ye Bondsey hang;
But ye'll take out his twa grey een,
Make Bondsey blind to gang.
'Ye'll put to the gate a chain o gold,
A rose garland gar make,
And ye'll put that in Bondsey's head,
A' for your sister's sake.'

87

Four versions.

184. 2. The defective version D (Harris MS.) contains the following mutilated stanza: —

It is the fashion in oor countrie, mither,
I dinna ken what it is here,
To like your wife better than your mither,
That . . . bought you sae dear.

88

Six versions.

186. Introduction. A similar turn is given to the act in E (Buchan's Ballads): —

Ohon, alas, my lady gay,
To come sae hostile!
I thought it was my deadly foe,
Ye had trysted into me.

But E seems to be A altered, or imperfectly remembered, with the addition of a few stanzas.

89

Three versions.

190. 4¹. In the MS. feet is corrected to head, but sleep is not changed to bed. Clearly we should read either sleep and feet, or bed and head.

90

Four versions and a variant.

191. 1. Cf. 'Child Maurice,' No. 83, A 1.

193. 15^{2, 4}. A faint trace of an old feature that comes out clearly in C (Buchan's Ballads):

Then brought to the next borough's town,
And gae him nurses three;
He grew as big in ae year auld
As some boys would in three.
Then he was sent to guld squeel-house,
To learn how to thrive;
He leard as muckle in ae year's time
As some boys would in five.

This extraordinary growth of heroes is a widespread idea, and examples occur in the popular literature of many peoples.

91

Seven versions.

193. 6². Read, perhaps, towers.

193. 2-4. Cf. B (Herd's MSS.): —

But there came knights, and there came squiers
An knights of high degree;
She pleased hersel in Levieston,
They wear a comly twa.

He has bought her rings for her fingers,
And garlands for her hair,
The broochis till her bosome braid;
What wad my love ha mair?
And he has brought her on to Livingston,
And made her lady thear.

194. 19⁴. Read, perhaps, weary for merry.

92

Two versions.

195. The following stanzas of 'The Lowlands of Holland' occur in Herd's MSS. and are all that here concern us: —

'My love hath built a bony ship, and set her on
the sea,
With seven score good mariners to bear her company;
There's three score is sunk, and three score dead
at sea.
And the Lowlands of Holland has twin'd my lov
and me.

'My love he built another ship, and set her on the main,
And nane but twenty mariners for to bring her
hame;
But the weary wind began to rise, and the sea
began to rout,
My love then and his bonny ship turnd wither-shins about.

'Then shall neither colf come on my head nor comb come in my hair;
Then shall neither coal nor candle-light shine in my bower mair;
Nor will I love another one until the day I die,
For I never lovd a love but one, and he's drowned
in the sea.'

'O had your tongue, my daughter dear, be still and be content;
There are mair lads in Galloway, ye neen nae sair lament.'

'O there is none in Gallow, there 's none at a' for me,
For I never lovd a love but one, and he 's drowned
in the sea.'

195. A 3, 4. See note to p. 173, 29.

196. 5^a. Bahome in B (Buchan's Ballads.)

93

Twenty-six versions (including fragments).

94

200. 3^a. And is corrected to Ane in the second edition of Percy's Reliques.

95

Thirteen versions.

200. One version of this ballad has become a children's game (Notes and Queries, 6th Ser., VI, 476). In others the verses are set in a popular tale, and a characteristic explanation is furnished of the heroine's danger: she has lost a golden key, or a golden ball, which had been entrusted to her.

96

Eight versions.

203. 21. In some versions hot lead or gold is dropped on the maiden to make sure whether she is really dead. Thus in C (Motherwell's MS.): —

Then down as dead that lady drapd,
Beside her mother's knee;
Then out it spoke an auld witch-wife,
By the fire-side sat she.

Says, Drap the hot lead on her cheek,
And drop it on her chin,
And drop it on her rose-red lips,
And she will speak again:
For much a lady young will do,
To her true-love to win.

They drapd the het lead on her cheek,
So did they on her chin;
They drapt it on her red-rose lips,
But they breathed none again.

97

Three versions.

205. C (Buchan's Ballads) has a feeble sequel intended to complicate the plot. It is not beyond the invention of the blind beggar who collected ballads for Buchan.

98

Three versions.

99

Twenty versions.

209. 15. Cf. B (Glenriddell MSS.): —

The fetters they are on my feet,
And O but they are cauld!
My bracelets they are sturdy steel,
Instead of beaten gold.

But I will write a lang letter,
And seal it tenderlie,
And I will send to my true-love,
Before that I do die.

209. 26^a. McNaughtan in C (Motherwell's MS.). Other versions give other names.

209. 29^a. In B I have a champion in my court.

210. 31^a. In H (Kinloch MSS.) the champion is described as a "greecy [frightful] ghost;" in L (Campbell MSS.) he is a "fear-some sight," with three women's spans between his brows and three yards between his shoulders; in R (MS. at Abbotsford) he is "a gurrly fellow, with twa lang sclasps between his eyes," and so on. These points are probably taken from another and a later ballad, which is perhaps an imitation, and might almost be called a parody of Johnie Scot, 'Lang Johnny More' (No. 251).

210. 31. Cf. B, sts. 24, 25: —

The king but and his nobles a'
Went out into the plain,
The queen but and her maidens a',
To see young Johnny slain.

The first wound that Johnny gae the champion
Was a deep wound and sair;
The next wound that he gae the champion,
He never spak mair.

In D (Motherwell's MS.) we have: —

Lords and ladies flocked all,
They flocked all amain,
They flocked all to the green wood,
To see poor Johnnie slain.
This Talliant he could find no way
To be poor Johnnie's dead,
But, like unto a swallow swift,
He jumped oer Johnnie's head.

But Johnnie was a clever man,
Cunning and crafty withal,
And up on the top of his braid sword
He made this Talliant fall.

This fatal jump of the Italian occurs in some other versions.

100

Eleven versions.

210. 13. C (Kinloch MSS.) ends thus: —

He's mounted her on a milk-white steed,
Himself on a dapple-grey,
And made her a lady of as much land
She could ride in a whole summer day.

211. 6. This stanza occurs in No. 110, A 15.

101

Four versions.

211. 1. B, C, and D have a more elaborate beginning. Thus in B (Buchan MSS.): —

Willie was an earl's ae son,
And an earl's ae son was he,
But he thought his father lack to sair,
And his mother of low degree.
But he is on to fair England,
To sair for meat an fee,
And all was for Dame Oliphant,
A woman of great beauty.

He hadna been in fair England
A month but barely aye,
Ere he dreamd that fair Dame Oliphant
Gled him a gay gold ring.

He had not been in fair England
A month but barely four,
Ere he dreamd that fair Dame Oliphant
Gled him a red rose flower,
Well set about with white lillies,
Like to the paramour.

212. 9. A popular passage the like of which is found in many of our ballads: as No. 63, A 2, 3; No. 102, A 4; also in many foreign ballads.

212. 13, 14. Cf. B (Buchan MSS.): —

But she's taen a web of the scarlet,
And she tare it fine an sma,
And even into Willie's arms
She leapt the castle-wa;
And Willie was wight and well able,
And he kept her frae a fa.

But the cocks they crew, and the horns blew,
And the lions took the hill,
And Willie's ladie followed him,
And the tears did twinkle still.

Cf. also C (Kinloch MSS.): —

The cocks do crow, and the day does daw,
And the wild fowl bodes on hill;
The lassie she followed her Sweet William,
And let the tears down fall.

102

Three versions.

214. 3. The Earl of Huntingdon has no place in the ancient traditional ballads of Robin Hood, but is of later literary invention. A 17, B 1, and C 1, may, however, very well have belonged to some Robin Hood ballad.

103

Three versions.

219. 59. The concluding stanza of C (Kinloch's Ballads) shows how No. 103 was fitted to the dramatis personae of the Robin Hood cycle: —

The tane was wedded to Robin Hood,
And the tither to Little John;
And it was a' owing to their stepmother,
That garrd them leave their hame.

104

Two versions.

105

220. Brooksby printed 1672-95; J. Walter, 1690-1720 (Chappell).

106

221. a was "printed for J. Hose" (1660-75); b for "W. Thackeray [1660-89] and T. Passinger [1670-82]."

221. 4. The Dean of Derry communicated to Percy in 1776 the following stanzas, which he wrote down from the recitation of his mother, Mrs Barnard, wife of the Bishop of Derry: —

My mother showd me a deadly spight;
She sent three thieves at darksome night;
They put my servants all to flight,
They robd my bower, and they slew my knight.

They could not do me much more harm,
But they slew my baby on my arm;
They left me nothing to wrap it in
But the bloody, bloody sheet that it lay in.

They left me nothing to make a grave
But the bloody sword that slew my babe;
All alone the grave I made,
And all alone salt tears I shed.

All alone the bell I rung,
And all alone sweet psalms I sung;
I leant my head against a block,
And there I cut my lovely locks.

I cut my locks, and chang'd my name
From Fair Eleanore to Sweet William.

Scott inserted in his Border Minstrelsy, III, 80, 1803, seven stanzas under the title of 'The Lament of the Border Widow,' which show broader traces of the sheet-ballad and agreements with 'The Three Ravens' (No. 26). This fragment was given to Scott by the Ettrick Shepherd. It is here given from the MS. at Abbotsford.

My love he built me a bonny bowr,
An cled it a' wi lily-flour;
A brawer bowr ye neer did see
Than my true-love he built to me.

There came a man by middle day,
He spy'd his sport an went away,
An brought the king that very night,
Who brak my bowr, an slew my knight.

He slew my knight, to me sae dear;
He slew my knight, an poind his gear;
My servants all for life did flee,
An left me in extremity.

I sewd his sheet, making my moan;
I watchd the corpse, mysel alone;
I watchd his body night and day;
No living creature came that way.

I took the corpse then on my back,
And whiles I gaed, and whiles I sat;
I digd a grave, and laid him in,
And hapd him wi the sod sae green.

But thinkna ye my heart was sair
When I laid the mool on his yellow hair?
O thinkna ye my heart was wae
When I turnd about, away to gae?

Nae langer there I could remain
Sluce that my lovely knight was slain;

109

Three versions.

230. 6. In B (broadside of 1677): —

For I have a lover true of mine own,
A serving-man of low degree,
One Tommy Pots it is his name,
My first love and last that ever shall be.

230. 12. In B : —

With that the lady began to weep;
She knew not well then what to say,
How she might Lord Phenix deny,
And escape from marriage quite away.

232. 54. Two stanzas in B : —

'O master, yet it is unknown;
Within these two days well try'd it must be;
He is a lord, I am but a serving-man,
I fear I shall lose her with poverty.'
'I prethee, Tom Potts, get thee on thy feet;
My former promises kept shall be;
As I am a lord in Scotland fair,
Thou 'st never lose her with poverty.'

110

Sixteen versions.

235. a was "printed for William Gilbertson" (1640-63); b "for A. M[ilbourne], W. O[nley], and T. Thackeray" about 1680.

237. 1st. C (Kinloch's MSS.) has: a knight frae the High College.

237. 10. C has : —

'Jump on behind, ye weill-faurd may,
Or do ye chuse to ride?'
'No, thank ye, sir,' the lady said,
'I rather chuse to wade;
And afore that he was mid-water,
She was at the ither side.

'Turn back, turn back, ye weill-faurd may,
My heart will brak in three:'

'And sae did mine in yon bonny hill-side,
Whan ye wad [na] lat me be.'

'Whare gat ye that gay claithing
This day I see on thee?'
My mither was a gude milk-nurse,
And a gude nourice was she;
She nursd the Earl of Stockford's daughter,
And gat aw this to me.'

237. 17. C has : —

Then out bespak the queen bersel,
Wha sat by the king's knee:
There's na a knight in aw our court
Wad hae dune that to thee,
Unless it war my brither, Earl Richard,
And forbid it it war he!

Wad ye ken your love,
Amang a hunder men?

'I wad,' said the bonnie ladie,
'Amang five hunder and ten.'

238. 26. C has : —

Whan she cam to yon nettle-dyke,

'An my auld mither she was here,
Sae weill as she wad ye pu.

'She wad boll ye weill, and butter ye weill,
And sup till she war fu,
And lay her head upon her dish-doup,
And sleep like onle sow.'

238. 29, 30. C lacks the mill, but has the following : —

Whan she cam to Earl Richard's house,
The sheets war holland fine:
'O haud awa thae linen sheets,
And bring to me the linsey clouts
I hae been best used in.

'Awa, awa wi your siller spoons,
Haud them awa frae me;
It would set me better to feed my flocks
Wi the brose-cap on my kнее:
Sae bring to me the gude ram's horn,
The spoons I've been used wi.'

238. 33. In C and some other versions, as in Chaucer, the bridegroom is unwilling to turn about and make much of his wife. Cf. C, sts. 29-30: —

'Ye'll turn about, Earl Richard,
And mak some mair o me;
An ye mak me lady o ae puir plow,
I can mak ye laird o three.'

'If ye be the Earl of Stockford's dochter,
As I've taen some thoughts ye be,
Aft hae I waited at your father's yett,
But your face I could never see.'

In F (Buchan's Ballads) and some other versions, the Billy Blin (see note on p. 8, st. 24) reveals the lady's parentage (sts. 60, 61): —

It's out then spake the Billy-Blin,
Says, I speak nane out of time;
If ye make her lady o nine citles,
She'll make you lord o ten.

Out it spake the Billy-Blin,
Says, The one may serve the other;
The King of Gosford's ae daughter,
And the Queen of Scotland's brother.

Thirteen versions.

241. 19. Cf. G (Harris MS.), st. 11: —

The firsten shot that Johnnie shot,
He shot them a' but ane,
An he flang him owre a milk-white steed,
Bade him bear tidings hame.

241. 20. Boy is evidently a corruption of bird. Cf. B 13, and note, and K.

242. 13. Cf. F (Scott's compounded version), sts. 19, 20: —

'O is there na a bonnie bird
Can sing as I can say,
Could flee away to my mother's bower,
And tell to fetch Johnnie away?'

The starling flew to his mother's window-stane,
It whistled and it sang,
And aye the ower-word o the tune
Was, Johnnie tarries lang!

In L, a fragment of one stanza from the Harris MS., information is given in a different way: —

But aye at ilka ae mile's end
She fand a cat o clay,
An written upon the back o it
'Tak your son Johnnie Brod away.'

244. 19. Evidently corrupt. See note on A 19.

116

246. The text is made up as follows: 1-53^a from c; 53^a-111^a from b; 111^a-113^a from c; 113^a-120² from a; 120²-121 from c; 122-128² from a;

128³-161¹ from c; 161²-170 from a. That is, a and b are used for that part of the ballad which they contain and the rest is taken from c. Minor defects in a and b are supplied (within brackets) from c, except 100³, which is from d, e. Full collations will be found in Professor Child's collection. For 'The Second Part of Adam Bell,' which is not a traditional ballad, see Child, III, 34.

117

256. The text is made up as follows: 1-83³ from a; 83⁴-118³ from b; 118⁴-124¹ from a; 124²-127³ from b; 127⁴-133² from a; 133³-136³ from b; 136⁴-208³ from a; 208⁴-314¹ from b; 314²-349³ from a; 349⁴-456 from b. Minor deficiencies in a are in general supplied from b; in c, from other copies. A full collation will be found in Child.

273. 338⁴. The proude shirife than sayd she. f.

119

282. 1, 2. Cf. the beginning of Nos. 116, 121, 148.

283. 30¹. Skeat's reading. The line is almost illegible, but the first word is Robyn.

283. 30². A gap here between two pages, and there are commonly six stanzas to a page.

285. 77⁴. b has Quit me (perhaps better).

120

286, 287. 1-7. Cf. No. 119, sts. 6-12.

287. 48⁴. This probably means that Scarlet, seeing his master is wroth, will say no more. It might mean something stronger, but it is unlikely that Will is so touchy as to throw up fealty for a testy word from a sick man.

288. 23¹. For 'give me mood' Child suggests 'give me my God,' i. e. the host.

289. 14². In b: thou begs.

289. 19. In a two poor stanzas follow, to introduce the epitaph, which, however, does not follow; b has two different stanzas (quite as bad) and the epitaph. For the epitaph, see p. 361. The transitional stanzas in a are as follows: —

Thus he that never feard bow nor spear
Was murderd by letting blood;
And so, loving friends, the story it ends
Of vallant Robin Hood.

There's nothing remains but his eplthaph now,
Which, reader, here you have,
To this very day which read you may,
As it is upon his grave.
Hey down a derry derry down

121

290. 25. St. 29 is wrongly put here in the MS.

291. 28. The order of lines in the MS. is 3, 2, 1, 4.

291. 37². In the MS.: Gere amarsey seyde sche ser(?) than.

292. 50². And [thow]? The scribe may have meant potte (i. e. put) rather than polle.

292. 55², 4. In the MS.: You mey cart ys the bow þat Robyn gaffe me.

293. 74¹, 2. Ought perhaps to be dropped. The scribe, having got the second verse wrong, may have begun the stanza again.

122

294. 9². Half a page gone, as also after st. 17 and st. 25.

296. B a was "printed for F. Grove" (1620-55); d "for I. Clarke, W. Thackeray, and T. Passenger" (1670-86?).

123

297. 1, 2. Cf. the opening verses of Nos. 116, 118, 119, and others. St. 1 has been corrupted, and st. 2 also, one would think, as there is no apparent reason for maids weeping and young men wringing hands in the merry month of May. In 1³ the MS. has: 13 in May. In 1³, 4 month might be changed to moon, to justify thirteen in the second, and to accord with moon in the third. For in May in l. 2, we may read I say or many say. Cf. No. 140, B 1.

297. 3⁴. Curted can mean only 'short-frocked,' which would make the friar a Franciscan. Fountains Abbey was a Cistercian monastery. The friar in the play has a "long cote." Curtal in B seems to be the proper word. It appears to be simply curtilarius (Eng. curtiler), and to be applied to the friar and the dogs because they had the care and keeping of the vegetable garden (curtile) of the monastery.

298. 7¹. For wet weary read probably wel weary.

298. 21. Cf. B, sts. 38-40. We must infer that Robin's offer is accepted; but the Curtal Friar plays no part in Robin Hood story out of his own ballad.

298. B b was "printed at London for H. Gosson" (1607-41); d was "printed for F. Coles, T. Vere, W. Gilbertson" (1640-80?); e was "printed for W. Thackeray, J. Millet, and A. Milbourn" (1680-97?); f was "printed for F. Coles, T. Vere, and J. Wright" (1655-80).

124

301. A a was "printed for F. Coles, T. Vere, and W. G[i]lbertson" (F. Coles, 1646-74; T. Vere, 1648-80; W. Gilbertson, 1640-63); d was "printed by and for Alex. Milbourn" (1670-97).

301. 1. Thus quoted in Munday and Chettle's Life and Death of Robert Earl of Huntington: —

O there dwelleth a jolly pinder
At Wakefield all on the green.

301. 3. Witty is a corruption for wight.

301. 9. Thus quoted in Munday's Downfall of Robert Earl of Huntington: —

At Michaelmas cometh my covenant out,
My master gives me my fee;
Then, Robin, I'll wear thy Kendall green,
And wend to the greenwood with thee.

126

305. A and b were "printed for W. Gilbertson" (1640-63); d "for J. Wright, J. Clarke, W. Thackeray, and T. Passenger" (1670-82?).

305. 8^s. Another seems to be corrupt (cf. 12^s). In 13^s the word makes sense.

127

307. a was "printed for F. Grove, dwelling on Snowhill" (1620-55); b "for I. Clarke, W. Thackeray, and T. Passenger" (1670-86?); c "by J. Hodges," not in black letter.

128

309. a and b were "printed for Richard Burton" (1641-74); e "for J. Clarke, W. Thackeray, and T. Passenger" (1670-82?).

311. 25. Followed in all the copies by seven stanzas which belong to another ballad (No. 130 A).

129

311. a was "printed by and for W. O[nley]" (1650-1702); b "for A. M[ilbourne], W. O[nley], and T. Thackeray" (1670-89?).

Two versions.

133

318. a was printed at London, "for Francis Grove" (1620-55); d was "printed for I. Clarke, W. Thackeray, and T. Passinger" (1670-86).

135

324. c was "printed for John Andrews" (1660); d "for William Thackeray" (1689).

136

326. a was "printed for John Andrews" (1660); d "for William Thackeray" (1689).

138

329. a was "printed for F. Cole, T. Vere, J. Wright and J. Clarke" (Cole, Vere, and Wright, 1655-80; J. Clarke, 1650-82); b "for Alex. Milbourn" (1670-87).

139

331. a was "printed for Fran. Grove" (1620-55); b "for F. Coles, T. Vere, and J. Wright" (1655-80); e "for J. Clarke, W. Thackeray, and T. Passenger" (1670-82?).

140

Three versions.

333. B 3. In C the squires are expressly said to be the three sons of the lady (so she is called, and not "a silly old woman"). C occurs in several editions of Robin Hood's Garland (C a was printed about 1753).

334. B 19 ff. C ends thus:—

'One boon, one boon,' says jolly Robin,
'One boon I beg on my knee;
That, as for the deaths of these three squires,
Their hangman I may be.'
'Soon granted, soon granted,' says great master
sheriff,
'Soon granted unto thee;
And you shall have all their gay cloathing,
Aye, and all their white money.'
'O I will have none of their gay cloathing,
Nor none of their white money,
But I'll have three blasts on my bugle-horn,
That their souls to heaven may flee.'
Then Robin Hood mounted the gallows so high,
Where he blew loud and shrill,
Till an hundred and ten of Robin Hood's men
They came marching all down the green hill.
'Whose men are they all these?' says great
master sheriff,
'Whose men are they? tell unto me.'
'O they are mine, but none of thine,
And they're come for the squires all three.'
'O take them, O take them,' says great master
sheriff,
'O take them along with thee;
For there's never a man in all Nottingham
Can do the like of thee.'

141

337. B a was "printed for William Gilbertson" (1640-63); B d "for J. Wright, J. Clarke, W. Thackeray, and T. Passenger" (1670-86?).

43

338. a was "printed for F. Grove" (1620-55); e "by and for W. O[nley]" (1650-1702).

340. A b was "published April 7th, 1791, by C. Sheppard," London.

145

Three versions.

343. A 22. Sir Richard Lee is known to us already in the Gest.

344. B a was "printed for F. Grove" (1620-55); b "for Francis Grove"; c "for F. Coles, T. Vere & J. Wright" (1655-80); f "for J. W[right], J. C[larke], W. T[hackeray], and T. P[assinger]" (1670-86?).

146

346. d was "printed for William Thackeray" (1689).

147

347. a was "printed for F. Grove" (whose dates, according to Chappell, were 1620-55). Ritson says that the ballad was entered in the Stationers' book by Francis Grove, 2d June, 1656. d was "printed for William Thackeray" (1689).

148

349. a was "printed for F. Coles" (1631?); b "for F. Coles, T. Vere, and W. Gilbertson" (1648-63?); c "for F. Coles, T. Vere, J. Wright, and J. Clarke" (1650-80?); f "for Alex. Milbourn, Will. Ownley, Tho. Thackeray" (after 1670); g "for I. Wright, I. Clarke, W. Thackeray, and T. Passinger" (1670-86?).

149

350. a was "printed for W. O[nley]" (1650-1702); b "for I. Wright, I. Clarke, W. Thackeray, and T. Passinger" (1670-86?); c "by and for Alex. Milbourn" (1670-97).

351. 2. Robin Hood assumes the name of Loxley (Locksley) in No. 145. It appears that there is a Loxley Chase in Yorkshire, and a Loxley River too (Gutch, Robin Hood, I, 75).

353. 46. Arthur a Bradley is printed by Ritson, Robin Hood, 1795, II, 210.

151

357. 29. By "the clergyman" is meant the Prior of York, who in Munday's play, The Downfall of Robert Earl of Huntington, procures his outlawry. The forcing of the sheriff to give the king a supper may be the beggarly author's own invention.

357. 30^a. 4. Supplied from Robin Hood's Garland, York, Thomas Wilson & Son, 1811. The lines are wanting in a b c d.

152

360. 28^a. 4. Supplied from the garland just mentioned; wanting in a b c.

153

361. 18^a. day is found in b, wanting in a c.

154

362. The mutilated parts of the title are supplied, to a slight extent, from a copy in the Bodleian Library (L. 78, Art., 5th tract); the rest from an edition printed for J. Clark, W. Thackeray, and T. Passinger, 1686.

155

Twenty-one versions.

369. A 7. E (Motherwell's Minstrelsy) has:

She laid him on a dressing-table,
She dressed him like a swine;
Says, Lie ye there, my bonnie Sir Hugh,
Wi yere apples red and green!

369. A 9. E has next:—

A schoolboy walking in the garden
Did grievously hear him moan;
He ran away to the deep draw-well,
And fell down on his knee.

Says, Bonnie Sir Hugh, and pretty Sir Hugh,
I pray you speak to me!
If you speak to any body in this world,
I pray you speak to me.

369. A 14. In E this stanza precedes, spoken by Sir Hugh's schoolfellow:—

'Lady Helen, if ye want your son,
I'll tell ye where to seek;
Lady Helen, if ye want your son,
He's in the well sae deep.'

370. B 1. Mirry-land toune is probably a corruption of merry Lincoln (A 16, 17).

370. B 12. After this E has:—

'But lift me out o this deep draw-well,
And bury me in yon churchyard;
.....

'Put a Bible at my head,' he says,
'And a Testament at my feet,
And pen and ink at every side,
And I'll lie still and sleep.

'And go to the back of Maitland town,
Bring me my winding sheet;
For it's at the back of Maitland town
That you and I shall meet.'

O the broom, the bonny, bonny broom,
The broom that makes full sore,
A woman's mercy is very little,
But a man's mercy is more.

A request like that in E 20 occurs in some other versions.

156

Seven versions.

373. 8. E (Kinloch's Ballads) has:—

'O fathers, O fathers, I'm very, very sick,
I'm sick, and like to dee;
Some ghostly comfort to my poor soul
O tell if ye can gie!'

'Confess, confess,' Earl Marshall cried,
'And you shall pardoned be;'
'Confess, confessa,' the King replied,
'And we shall comfort gie.'

374. B 4. In G (MS. at Abbotsford) and some other versions, Earl Marshal gets an oath of immunity. Thus in G :—

But I will swear by my septer and crown,
And by the seas so free,
I will swear by my septer and crown,
Earl Marshall, thow's no dee.

157

Nine versions.

375. 2^s. In D (Kinloch's papers), a pretty, pretty maid; in F (Buchan's Gleanings), a well-fared maid.

158

Three versions.

378. 1. In C, from Aberdeenshire, Hugh is naturally turned into a Scotsman :—

It fell about the Martinmas time
The wind blew loud and cauld,
And all the knichts of fair Scotland
They drew them to sum hald.

Unless it was him young Sir Hugh,
And he beet to sail the sea,
Wi a letter between twa kings, to see an they wald
let down the wars,
And live and lat them be.

381. 23. In C :—

The nexten steed that he drew out
He was the raven-black;
His een was glancin in his head
Like wild-fire in a slack;
'Get here a boy,' says young Sir Hugh,
'Cast on the saddle on that.'

159

383. 11. The Earl of Angus was really on the other side.

383. 13. Vaughan : i. e. Baughan or Buchan. It is very doubtful whether there was an Earl of Buchan in 1346.

386. 64. Crécy was fought 26 Aug., 1346; Poitiers, 19 Sept., 1356.

161

Six versions.

387. 3. Hoppertope hyll, says Percy, is a corruption for Ottercap Hill (now Ottercaps Hill) in the parish of Kirk Whelpington, Tyne-dale Ward, Northumberland. Rodclyffe Cragge (now Rothley Craggs) is a cliff near Rodeley, a small village in the parish of Hartburn, in Morpeth Ward, south-east of Ottercap; and Green Leyton, corruptly Green Lynton, is another small village, south-east of Rodeley, in the same parish.

387. 3^d. Percy's emendation. The MSS. have "Many a styrande (stirande) stage."

388. 26. Mentaye : Menteith. The earldom of Huntley was created in 1449.

391. 11. In b (Scott's copy) :—

Thou shalt not yield to lord nor loun,
Nor yet shalt thou yield to me;
But yield thee to the bracken-bush,
That grows upon yon lilye lee.

391. 12, 13. B agrees with Froissart in making a Montgomery the captor of Percy, whereas A represents that Montgomery was taken prisoner and exchanged for Percy. In No. 162 Sir Hugh Montgomery kills Percy, and in return is shot by a Northumberland archer.

391. 14. Douglas was buried at Melrose Abbey, where his tomb may still be seen.

391. C^s. Scott's text (C) is given below as it stands in the Minstrelsy, 1833, I, 345. There are a few slight variations from the form in which Scott first printed it (in the second edition, 1803, I, 27). Hogg's two copies, which furnished the greater part of C, were complementary, — the first copy containing twenty-nine stanzas (1-24, 35-38, 40), the second copy, eleven (25-34, 39).

- 1 It fell about the Lammas tide,
When the mulr-men win their hay,
The doughty Douglas bound him to ride
Into England, to drive a prey.
- 2 He chose the Gordons and the Grænes,
With them the Lindesays, light and gay;
But the Jardines wald not with him ride,
And they rue it to this day.
- 3 And he has burnd the dales of Tyne,
And part of Bambrough shire,
And three good towers on Reidswire fells,
He left them all on fire.
- 4 And he marchd up to Newcastle,
And rode it round about :
'O wha's the lord of this castle?
Or wha's the lady o't?'
- 5 But up spake proud Lord Percy then,
And O but he spake hie!
I am the lord of this castle,
My wife's the lady gay.
- 6 'If thou'rt the lord of this castle,
Sae weel it pleases me.
For, ere I cross the Border fells,
The tane of us shall die.'
- 7 He took a lang spear in his hand,
Shod with the metal free,
And for to meet the Douglas there
He rode right furiously.
- 8 But O how pale his lady lookd,
Frae aff the castle-wa,
When down before the Scottish spear
She saw proud Percy fa.
- 9 'Had we twa been upon the green,
And never an eye to see,
I wad hae had you, flesh and fell;
But your sword sall gae wi me.'
- 10 'But gae ye up to Otterbourne,
And, wait there dayis three,
And, if I come not ere three dayis end,
A fause knight ca ye me.'
- 11 'The Otterbourne's a bonnie burn;
'T is pleasant there to be;
But there is nought at Otterbourne
To feed my men and me.
- 12 'The deer rins wild on hll and dale,
The birds fly wild from tree to tree;
But there is neither bread nor kale
To fend my men and me.
- 13 'Yet I will stay at Otterbourne,
Where you shall welcome be;

- And, if ye come not at three dayis end,
A fause lord I'll ca thee.'
- 14 'Thither will I come,' proud Percy said,
'By the might of Our Ladye;'
'There will I bide thee,' said the Douglas,
'My troth I plight to thee.'
- 15 They lighted high on Otterbourne,
Upon the bent sae brown;
They lighted high on Otterbourne,
And threw their pallions down.
- 16 And he that had a bonnie boy,
Sent out his horse to grass;
And he that had not a bonnie boy,
His ain servant he was.
- 17 But up then spake a little page,
Before the peep of dawn:
'O waken ye, waken ye, my good lord,
For Percy's hard at hand.'
- 18 'Ye lie, ye lie, ye liar loud!
Sae loud I hear ye lie:
For Percy had not men yestreen
To dight my men and me.
- 19 'But I have dreamd a dreary dream,
Beyond the Isle of Sky;
I saw a dead man win a fight,
And I think that man was I.'
- 20 He belted on his guid braid sword,
And to the field he ran,
But he forgot the helmet good,
That should have kept his brain.
- 21 When Percy wi the Douglas met,
I wat he was fu fain;
They swakked their swords, till sair they
swat,
And the blood ran down like rain.
- 22 But Percy with his good broad sword,
That could so sharply wound,
Has wounded Douglas on the brow,
Till he fell to the ground.
- 23 Then he calld on his little foot-page,
And said, Run speedilie,
And fetch my ain dear sister's son,
Sir Hugh Montgomery.
- 24 'My nephew good,' the Douglas said,
'What recks the death of aue!
Last night I dreamd a dreary dream,
And I ken the day's thy ain.
- 25 'My wound is deep; I fain would sleep;
Take thou the vanguard of the three,
And hide me by the braken-bush,
That grows on yonder lilye lee.
- 26 'O bury me by the braken-bush,
Beneath the blooming brier;
Let never living mortal ken
That ere a kindly Scot lies here.'
- 27 He lifted up that noble lord,
Wi the saut tear in his ee;
He hid him in the braken-bush,
That his merrie men might not see.
- 28 The moon was clear, the day drew near,
The spears in flinders flew,
But mony a gallant Englishman
Ere day the Scotsmen slew.
- 29 The Gordons good, in English blood
They steepd their hose and shoon;
The Lindsays flew like fire about,
Till all the fray was done.

- 30 The Percy and Montgomery met,
That either of other were fain;
They swapped swords, and they twa swat,
And aye the blood ran down between.
- 31 'Now yield thee, yield thee, Percy,' he said,
'Or else I vow I'll lay thee low!'
'To whom must I yield,' quoth Earl Percy,
'Now that I see it must be so?'
- 32 'Thou shalt not yield to lord nor loun,
Nor yet shalt thou yield to me;
But yield thee to the braken-bush,
That grows upon yon lilye lee.'
- 33 'I will not yield to a braken-bush,
Nor yet will I yield to a brier;
But I would yield to Earl Douglas,
Or Sir Hugh the Montgomery, if he were
here.'
- 34 As soon as he knew it was Montgomery,
He struck his sword's point in the gronde;
The Montgomery was a courteous knight,
And quickly took him by the honde.
- 35 This deed was done at the Otterbourne,
About the breaking of the day;
Earl Douglas was buried at the braken-bush,
And the Percy led captive away.

Two versions.

394. 15. Cheviot Chase becomes Chery Chace by the same process by which Teviotdale becomes Tividale.

397. 65². Doubtless corrupt. Skeat's suggestion of a proverb, meaning "That tear, or pull, brought about this kick" is improbable. Perhaps a lamentation: "That ear(ever) begane this spurn!" or possibly that tear is for that there, meaning simply 'there.'

397. B b was "printed for M. G.," perhaps an error for H. G., i.e. Henry Gosson (1607-41); c was "printed for F. Coles, T. Vere and J. Wright" (1655-80?); d "for F. Coles, T. Vere and W. Gilbertson" (1648-61?); e "by and for W. Onley" (1650-1702?); f was probably printed about the beginning of the 18th century.

So we'd best cry in our merry men,
And turn our horses' heeds.

402. 2. Here g has: —

O then calld he his lovely page,
His lovely page then called he,
Who, when he came before the king,
I.o, he fell down on his bended knee.

'Welcome, welcome, thou lovely page,
Welcome, welcome art thou here;
Go sped thee now to the king of France,
And greet us well to him so dear.

'And when thou comst to the king of France,
And hast greeted us to him so dear,
Thou then shall ask for the tribute due,
That has not been paid for many a year.'

403. 8. After this g has : —

O then in wroth rose our noble king,
In anger great then up rose he :
'I'll send such balls to the king in France
As Frenchmen ne'er before ild see.'

167

Three versions.

407. The variants noted below are from a sixteenth-century MS. in York Minster Library (see Child, iv, 502 ff.). There are many other differences.

407. A 1.

It fell against a midsomer moneth,
When birds soonge well in every tree,
Our worthē prence, Kinge Henrye,
He roode untoe a chelvellrye.

407. A 3.

'Ye are welcome home, my rich merchantes,
The best salers in Christentie !'
'We thanke yowe ; by the rood, we are salers
good,
But rich merchantes we cannot be.'

3² is pared away in the Percy MS. The line in the text is from the Reliques.

407. A 6.

The merchantes answered, soore they sight,
With a woefull harte to the kinge againe,
'He is one that robes us of our right,
Were we twentie shippes and he but one.'

407. A 7⁴.

Der take yon robber upon the sea ?

409. A 35.

'Will yowe lend me sexe peece of ordenance, my lord,

To carye into my shippe with mee ?

Toe morrowe by seven a clocke, and souner,
In the morne yowe shall Sir Andrewe see.

'Fore I will set yowe a glasse, my lord,
That yowe shall saille forth all this night ;
Toe morrowe be seven a clocke, and souner,
Yow's se Sir Andrewe Barton, knight.'

Nowe will we leave talkinge of Harry Hunt ;
The worthye Howwarde tooke to the sea ;
By the morne, by seven a clocke, and souner,
My lord hee did Sir Andrewe see.

A larborde, wher Sir Andrewe laye,

They saide he tould his gold in the light ;

'Nowe, by my faith,' saide my lord Charles Howwarde,

'I se yonne Scootte, a worthē wight !

'All our greatt ordlenance wee'll take in ;
Fetch downe my streemers,' then saide hee,
'And hange me forth a white willowe-wande,
As a marchaunte-man that sailles by the sea.'

409. A 39. After this : —

Once I met with the Portingalls,
Yea, I met with them, ye, I indeed
I salted thirtie of ther heades,
And sent them home to eate with breade.

410. A 51. After this : —

'Yet feare no English dogges,' said Sir Andrew Barton,
'Nor fore ther forse stand ye [in] no awe ;
My hands shall hange them all my selfe,
Froo once I let my beames downe fawe.'

168

413. 12. 'Jack with a feather' is said in contempt of the Scottish king's levity or foolhardiness. Dead bodies were sometimes sewn up in a hide before (or instead of) being "lapped in lead."

169

Three versions.

415. B a and b are signed "T. R."

416. C. The substance, or at least the hint of C 21², 4, 17², 4, 26, 15, 22², 4, 23, 24¹, 2, is to be found in the narrative of Lindsay of Pit-scottie, Chronicles of Scotland, ed. Dalryell, ii, 341 ff.

170

Nine versions.

419. 3¹, 5². do is to be pronounced dee.

172

420. 2⁴. horne may be the reading of the MS., instead of turne.

173

Twenty-eight versions (including fragments).

421. 1. Cf. U (MS. at Abbotsford) : —

But word is up, and word is down,
Amang the ladyes a',
That Marie's born a babe sin yestreen,
That babe it is awa.

421. 3. Before this some versions have a stanza corresponding to the following (D, Motherwell's MS.) : —

She's gane to the garden gay
To pu of the savin tree ;
But for a' that she could say or do,
The bable it would not die.

In U, the corresponding stanza (st. 13) mentions an apothecary as Mary's lover : —

My love he was a pottinger,
Mony drink he gae me,
And a' to put back that bonnie babe,
But alas ! it wad na do.

421. 7. U has : —

Slowly, slowly, gat she up,
And slowly pat she on,
And slowly went she to that milk-steed,
To ride to Edinburgh town.

421. 13, 14. C (Motherwell's MS.) has : —

'O all you gallant sailors,
That sail upon the sea,
Let neither my father nor mother know
The death I am to die !

'O all you gallant sailors,
That sail upon the faem,
Let neither my father nor mother know
But I am coming hame.'

422. 16. C has : —

Little did my father know,
When he held up my head,
What lands I was to travel in,
What was to be my deid.

422. 18. The best-known form of this famous stanza is the following, which it bears in Scott's version (I) and several others: —

Yestreen the queen had four Maries,
The night she 'll hae but three;
There was Marie Seaton, and Marie Beaton,
And Marie Carmichael, and me.

422. 1, 2. C begins: —

There lived a lord into the west,
And he had dochters three,
And the youngest o them is to the king's court,
To learn some courtesie.

She was not in the king's court
A twelvemonth and a day,
Till she was neither able to sit nor gang,
Wi the gaining o some play.

U reads: —

My father was the Duke of York,
My mother a gay ladye,
And I myself a daintie dame;
The queen she sent for me.
(And the king desired me. P)

But the queen's meat it was sae sweet,
And her clothing was sae rare,
It made me long for a young man's bed,
And I rued it evermair.

Cf. J (Harris MS.), st. 2: —

Queen Marie's bread it was sae sweet,
An her wine it was sae fine,
That I hae lien in a young man's arms,
An I rued it aye synsyne.

422. 17. V (MS. at Abbotsford) ends: —

O if my father now but kend
The death that I'm to die,
O muckle, muckle wad be the red gowd
That he wad gie for me.

An if my brothers kend the death
That I am now to die,
O muckle, muckle wad be the red blood
That wad be shed for me.

423. Scott's composite version of No. 173 (I) is here printed (Minstrelsy, 1833, III, 294): —

1 Marie Hamilton's to the kirk gane,
Wi ribbons in her hair;
The king thought mair o Marie Hamilton
Than ony that were there.

2 Marie Hamilton's to the kirk gane,
Wi ribbons on her breast;
The king thought mair o Marie Hamilton
Then he listend to the priest.

3 Marie Hamilton's to the kirk gane,
Wi gloves upon her hands;
The king thought mair o Marie Hamilton,
Than the queen and a' her lands.

4 She hadna been about the king's court
A month, but barely one,
Till she was beloved by a' the king's court,
And the king the only man.

5 She hadna been about the king's court
A month, but barely three,
Till frae the king's court Marie Hamilton,
Marie Hamilton durstna be.

6 The king is to the Abbey gane,
To pu the Abbey-tree,
To scale the babe frae Marie's heart,
But the thing it wadna be.

7 O she has rowd it in her apron,
And set it on the sea:
'Gae sink ye, or swim ye, bonny babe!
Ye's get nae mair o me.'

8 Word is to the kitchen gane,
And word is to the ha,
And word is to the noble room,
Among the ladyes a',
That Marie Hamilton's brought to bed,
And the bonny babe's mist and awa.

9 Scarcely had she lain down again,
And scarcely fa'en asleep,
When up then started our gude queen,
Just at her bed-feet,
Saying, Marie Hamilton, where's your babe?
For I am sure I heard it greet.

10 'O no, O no, my noble queen,
Think no such thing to be!
'T was but a stitch into my side,
And sair it troubles me.'

11 'Get up, get up, Marie Hamilton,
Get up and follow me;
For I am going to Edinburgh town,
A rich wedding for to see.'

12 O slowly, slowly raise she up,
And slowly put she on,
And slowly rode she out the way,
Wi mony a weary groan.

13 The queen was clad in scarlet,
Her merry maids all in green,
And every town that they cam to,
They took Marie for the queen.

14 'Ride hooly, hooly, gentlemen,
Ride hooly now wi me!
For never, I am sure, a wearier burd
Rade in your cumpanie.'

15 But little wist Marie Hamilton,
When she rade on the brown,
That she was gaen to Edinburgh town,
And a' to be put down.

16 'Why weep ye so, ye burges-wives,
Why look ye so on me?
O I am going to Edinburgh town
A rich wedding for to see!'

17 When she gaed up the Tolbooth stairs,
The corks frae her heels did flee;
And lang or eer she cam down again
She was condemn'd to die.

18 When she cam to the Netherhow Port,
She laughed loud laughters three:
But when she cam to the gallows-foot,
The tears blinded her ee.

19 'Yestreen the queen had four Maries,
The night she 'll hae but three;
There was Marie Seaton, and Marie Beaton
And Marie Carmichael, and me.

20 'O often have I dress'd my queen,
And put gold upon her hair;
But now I've gotten for my reward
The gallows to be my share.

21 'Often have I dress'd my queen,
And often made her bed;
But now I've gotten for my reward
The gallows-tree to tread.

22 'I charge ye all, ye mariners,
When ye sail ower the faem,
Let neither my father nor mother get wit
But that I'm coming hame!

- 23 ' I charge ye all, ye mariners,
That sail upon the sea,
Let neither my father nor mother get wit
This dog's death I'm to die !
- 24 ' For if my father and mother got wit,
And my bold brethren three,
O mickle wad be the gude red blude
This day wad be spilt for me !
- 25 ' O little did my mother ken,
That day she cradled me,
The lands I was to travel in,
Or the death I was to die !'

177

432. 44¹. Ciuvill is Seville.
433. 55². All that is perhaps an error for All they or All these.

178

Nine versions.

435. A 21. (F 5.) Cf. D (Foulis, 1755): —

'And ein wae worth ye, Jock my man !
I paid ye well your fee;
Why pow ye out my ground-wa-stane,
Lets in the reek to me ?

'And ein wae worth ye, Jock my man !
For I paid you well your hire;
Why pow ye out my ground-wa-stane,
To me lets in the fire ?'

'Ye paid me well my hire, lady,
Ye paid me well my fee,
But now I'm Edom of Gordon's man,
Maun either do or die.'

So in G (Motherwell's MS.), sts. 13-14: —

'O wae be to thee, Carmichael,' she said,
'And an ill death may ye die !
For ye hae lifted the pavement-stane,
And loot up the lowe to me.

'Seven years ye war about my house,
And received both meat and fee :'
'And now I'm Adam o Gordon's man,
I maun either do or dee.'

179

439. 6⁴. Ritson's emendations are indicated by ' '. They have of necessity been allowed to stand.

440. 9². Corbyl. Perhaps for Corbyt, which is a Northern name.

441. 30. Rowland Emerson was perhaps a kinsman of the bailiff. The family of Emerson of Eastgate long exercised the offices of bailiff of Walsingham (the chief borough of Weardale), forester, etc.

180

442. 10. Half a page is torn away, and about nine stanzas are lost. Douglas offers Brown his daughter in marriage to betray the
king.

443. 28. John Hamilton, Archbishop of St
Andrews, must be the person whom Brown
slays for an attempt to poison the young king.
He was, however, hanged by his political enemies, April 7, 1571.

181

Two versions.

444. A 5. According to Sir James Balfour,
"the queen, more rashly than wisely, some few days before had commended" Murray, "in the king's hearing, with too many epithets of a proper and gallant man." Balfour may have had gossip, or he may have had a ballad, for his authority; the suggestion deserves no attention.

444. B 1. Here the Countess of Murray is treated as Huntly's sister.

182

Six versions.

183

Two versions.

446. A. After st. 4 b has the following stanza (which ends the ballad): —

Light was the mirk hour
At the day-dawing,
For Auchindoun was in flames
Ere the cock-crawing.

184

448. 8. After this Scott inserts: —

For the Galliard, and the gay Galliard's men,
They neer saw a horse but they made it their ain.
The Galliard to Nithside is gane,
To steal Slim Crichton's winsome dun.

448. 21¹. In the margin of the MS.: Will of Kirkhill.

185

450. 10. Probably meant for Henry Lord
Scroop of Bolton, who was warden of the West
Marches for thirty years from 1563.

450. 14. Harribie was the place of execution at Carlisle.

450. 18. The Laird's Jock, in the opinion of Mr. R. B. Armstrong, was a son of Thomas of Mangerton, the elder brother of Gilnockie (cf. No. 160).

452. 47². The MS. has "steal the Laird Jock horse" erroneously repeated from the line above. Corrected from Caw (b).

452. 51² 4. Wanting in a. Supplied from b.

187

Four versions.

459. 2. C (Percy Papers, as "collected from the memory of an old person . . . in 1775") has: —

Now Downy's down the water gone,
With all her cots unto her arms,
And she gave never over swift running
Untill she came to Mengertown.

188

Seven versions.

461. 6² (cf. 14², 16²). Explained by B 10²:
he bragged for lower Liddesdale, was from lower Liddesdale.

464. B. The following are the stanzas used by Scott (see p. 461, above) in his second version: —

- 2 'An ye wad be blythe an ye wad be sad,
What better wad billie Archie be,
Unless I had thirty men to mysell,
And a' to ride in our companie?
- 3 'Ten to had the horses' heads,
And other ten to walk alee,
And ten to break up the strang prisoun
Where billie Archie he does lie.'
- 4 Up bespak him mettled John Hall,
The luv o Tevlotdale ay was he;
'An I had eleven men to mysell,
It's ay the twalt man I wad be.'
- 5 Up bespak him coarse Ca'field,
I wat and little gude worth was he
'Thirty men is few enow,
And a' to ride in our companie.'
- 12 'There lives a smith on the water-side,
Sae has he done thirty years and three:
.
- 13 'O I have a crown in my pocket,
And I'll give it every groat to thee
.
'Gin thou shoe my little black mare for me.'
- 14 'The night is mirk, and vera pit-mirk,
And wi candle-light I canna weel see;
The night is mirk, and vera pit-mirk,
'And there 'll never a nail ca right for me.'
- 15 'Shame fa you and your trade baith,
Canna beet a gude fallow by your mysterie!
But lees me on thee, my little black mare,
Thou 's worth thy weight o gowd to me.'
- 19 'My mare is young, and vera young,
And in o the weel she will drown me;'
'But ye 'll take mine, and I 'll take thine,
And soon thro the water we sall be.'
- 20 Then up bespak him coarse Ca'field,
I wate and little gude worth was he;
'We had better lose ane than lose a' the lave,
We 'll leave the prisoner, we 'll gae free.'
- 21 'Shame fa you and your lands baith,
Wad ye een your lands to your born billie?
But hey! bear up, my little black mare,
And yet thro the water we sall be.'

Of these stanzas, 12-15 are indifferent modern stuff.

464. 16⁴. 'And that was her gold-twist to be' is an emendation of Scott's, gold-twist meaning "the small gilded chains drawn about the chest of a war-horse."

191

Nine versions. .

470. 2. Screw: Scroope. The second line is corrupt: read probably crime for scime.
470. 9. Garlard for Carlisle.
470. 11⁴. Corrupt.
470. 13². Rumary: corrupt.

192

Five versions.

472. 4⁴. her should doubtless be him (so Scott). Similarly in 13⁴, 18⁴.

193

Two versions.

473. 2. After this in B (letter at Abbotsford): —

And Crozier says he will do warse,
He will do warse if warse can be;
For he 'll make the bairns a' fatherless,
And then the land it may lie lea.

473. 5. In B: —

They've taen frae him his powther-bag,
And they've put water i his lang gun;
They've put the sword into the sheathe
That out again it 'll never come.

474. 11. In B: —

O turn, O turn, O Johnny Ha,
O turn now, man, and fight wi me;
If ever ye come to Troughend again,
A good black I will gie to thee;
He cost me twenty pounds o gowd
Atween my brother John and me.

474. A 16 ff. B ends thus: —

O fare ye weel, my married wife!
And fare ye weel, my brother John!
That sits into the Troughend ha
With heart as black as any stone.
O fare ye weel, my married wife!
And fare ye weel now, my sons five!
For had ye been wi me this day
I surely had been man alive.
O fare ye weel, my married wife!
And fare ye weel now, my sons five!
And fare ye weel, my daughter Jean!
I loved ye best ye were born alive.
O some do ca me Parcy Reed,
And some do ca me Laird Troughend,
But it's nae matter what they ca me,
My faes have made me ill to ken.
The laird o Clennel wears my bow,
The laird o Brandon wears my brand;
Whae ever rides i the Border-side
Will mind the laird o the Troughend.

194

Three versions.

475. B 9⁴. This is quite wrong as to the duration of their married life. Jean Livingston was but twenty-one years old when she was executed.

195

Two versions.

476. A 1². For house read place? Cf. B 11.
476. A 3. John, the eighth Lord Maxwell, was killed in a battle between the Maxwells and the Johnstones in 1593.
476. 9, 10. Douglas of Drumlanrig, Kirkpatrick of Closeburn, and Grierson of Lag fought on the side of Lord Maxwell in the battle of Dryfe Sands (mentioned above), and fled in the sauve qui peut with which it ended.
476. 11. Robin, etc.: properly Sir Robert Maxwell of Orchardton (cf. B 1), the speaker's cousin; but it is obvious that Lord John's brother Robert is meant.
476. 14. Maxwell's wife was no longer living

196

Five versions.

478. 7. Cf. C 8. A fragment in the Kinloch MSS. (E) has:—

Now wake, now wake you, Rothiemay!
I dread you sleep oer soun;
The bed is burnin us about
And the curtain's faain down.

479. 26. This stanza involves an error. The third line corresponds to nothing that is known of the relations between John Gordon (Viscount Aboyne) and his wife (Sophia Hay). Perhaps the stanza comes from some other ballad.

479. 12. Chalmers really escaped, though lodged in the third story; Colin Ivat (here called Irving) was burnt.

480. C 21. This recalls the fragment "Edinburgh castle, towne, and tower," etc. (p. 637).

197

Two versions.

481. 2. Sir Walter Scott (Sharpe's Ballad Book, 1880, p. 145) remarks: "I conceive Balindalloch, being admitted by Grant, set upon him, and that there should be asterisks between the fourth line [the second stanza] and those which follow."

198

Two versions.

482. A 12. B (Buchan's Ballads) ends as follows:—

Then they rade on, and further on,
Till they came to the Crabestane,
And Craigievar, he had a mind
To burn a' Aberdeen.

Out it speaks the gallant Montrose,
Grace on his fair body!

'We winna burn the bonny burgh,
We'll even laet it be.'

Then out it speaks the gallant Montrose,
'Your purpose I will break;
We winna burn the bonny burgh,
We'll never build its make.

'I see the women and their children
Climbing the craigs sae hie;
We'll sleep this night in the bonny burgh,
And even lat it be.'

490. The song referred to in the Introduction is as follows:—

WALY, WALY, GIN LOVE BE BONY

a. Ramsay's Tea-Table Miscellany, the second volume, published before 1727; here from the Dublin edition of 1729, p. 176. b. Thomson's Orpheus Caledonius, second edition, 1733, i, 71; four stanzas in the first edition, 1725, No. 34.

O WALY, waly up the bank!
And waly, waly, down the brae!
And waly, waly yon burn-side,
Where I and my love went to gae!

I leand my back unto an alk,
I thought it was a trusty tree;
But first it bowd, and syne it brak,
Sae my true-love did lightly me.

O waly, waly! but love be bony
A little time, while it is new;
But when 't is auld, it waxeth cauld,
And fades away like morning dew.

O wherefore shoud I busk my head?
Or wherefore shoud I kame my hair?
For my true-love has me forsook,
And says he'll never love me mair.

Now Arthur-Seat shall be my bed,
The sheets shall neer he fyl'd by me;
Saint Anton's well shall be my drink,
Since my true-love has forsaken me.

Martinmas wind, when wilt thou blaw,
And shake the green leaves off the tree?
O gentle death, when wilt thou come?
For of my life I am weary.

'T is not the frost that freezes fell,
Nor blawing snaw's inclemency;
'T is not sic cauld that makes me cry,
But my love's heart grown cauld to me.

When we came in by Glasgow town,
We were a comely sight to see;
My love was cled in the black velvet,
And I my sell in cramasie.

But had I wist, before I kisssd,
That love had been sae ill to win,
I'd lockd my heart in a case of gold,
And pin'd it with a silver pin.

Oh, oh, if my young babe were born,
And set upon the nurse's knee,
And I my sell were dead and gane!
For a maid again I'll never be.

490. 12. After this B (Kinloch MSS.) continues thus to the end:—

'What's needs me value you, Jamie Douglas,
More than you do value me?
The Earl of Mar is my father,
The Duke of York is my brother gay.

'But when my father gets word o this,
I trow a sorry man he'll be;
He'll send four score o his soldiers brave
To tak me hame to my ain countrie.'

As I lay owre my castell-wa,
I beheld my father comin for me,
Wi trumpets sounding on every side;
But they werena music at a' for me.

'And fare ye weel now, Jamie Douglas!
And fare ye weel, my children three!

And fare ye weel, my own good lord!
 For my face again ye shall never see.
 'And fare ye weel now, Jamie Douglas!
 And fare ye weel, my children three!
 And fare ye weel now, Jamie Douglas!
 But my youngest son shall gae wi me.'

'What ails ye at yer youngest son,
 Sits smilin at the nurse's knee?
 I'me sure he never knew any harm,
 Except it was from his nurse or thee.'

And when I was into my coaches set,
 He made his trumpets a' to soun.

I've heard it said, and it's oft times seen,
 The hawk that flies far frae her nest;
 And a' the world shall plainly see
 It's Jamie Douglas that I love best.

I've heard it said, and [it's] oft times seen,
 The hawk that flies from tree to tree;
 And a' the world shall plainly see
 It's for Jamie Douglas I maun die.

205

491. 6. The cornet was Robert Graham, the "nephew" of Claverhouse, of whom so much is made in Old Mortality. There is no evidence beyond the name to show that he was a near kinsman of his captain. Cf. No. 206, st. 12.

206

492. 1-9. William Gordon of Earlston, a hot Covenanter, while on his way to join the insurgents, fell in with some dragoons who were pursuing his already routed copartisans, and, resisting their attempt to make him prisoner, was killed. His son Alexander, a man of more temperate views, was at Bothwell Bridge, and escaped. Although Earlston in st. 4 is represented as bidding farewell to his father, the narrative with which the ballad begins can be understood only of the father. The last half of st. 9 must be spoken by Monmouth.

492. 12. For the cornet, see No. 205.

207

Four versions.

208

Ten versions.

494. 2. Here Derwentwater seems to be taken for a Scot. The name Derwentwater is preserved in most versions.

494. 8. Other versions show other omens. Thus in D (Kinloch MSS.), st. 6:—

He set his ae fit on the ground,
 The tither on the steed;
 The ring upon his finger burst,
 And his nose began to bleed.

495. A 10. After this we have in some versions a stanza like the following (B):—

O then stood up an old gray-headed man,
 With a pole-axe in his hand:

'Tis your head, 'tis your head, Lord Derwent
 water,
 'Tis your head that I demand.'

496. A 3. Cf. C (MS. at Abbotsford):—

'What news, what news, my bonny boy?
 What news hae ye frae Geordie?'
 'He bids ye sew his linen shirts,
 For he's sure he'll no need many.'

496. 5. After this B (MS. at Abbotsford) has:—

When she cam to the water-side,
 The cobles war na ready;
 She's turnd her horse's head about,
 An in by the Queen's Ferry.

When she cam to the West Port,
 There war poor folks many;
 She dealt crowns an the ducatdowns,
 And bade them pray for Geordie.

When she cam to the Parliament Closs,
 There amang our nobles many,
 Cravats an caps war standing there,
 But low, low lay her Geordie.

When she gaed up the tolbooth-stairs,
 Amang our nobles manle,
 The napkin's tyed oer Geordie's face,
 And the gallows makin ready.

505. A 6. Cf. E 1. In some versions the subject of the dispute is who is the Rose of Yarrow. Thus in D, communicated to Percy by Robert Lambe, Norham, 1768:—

There were three lords drinking of wine
 On the bonny braes of Yarrow;
 There fell a combat them between,
 Wha was the rose of Yarrow.

Up then spak a noble lord,
 And I wot it was bot sorrow:
 I have as fair a flower,' he said,
 'As ever sprang on Yarrow.'

505. 8². The words in '' are so distinguished in the MS., and are of course emendations.

505. 10. Versions differ as to who it is that stabs the hero in the back. The preponderance of tradition, however, is to the effect that he was treacherously slain by his wife's (love's) brother.

505. 11¹. Now Douglas is taken from Hamilton's ballad.

505. 14⁸. wiped: probably substituted for drank (cf. E 12⁸, etc.).

505. 15⁸. her: probably substituted for his.

506. A 2. This stanza probably does not belong to the ballad.

507. 4. E (Buchan's Ballads) has:—

On Wednesday, that fatal day,
The people were convening;
Besides all this, threescore and ten,
To gang to the bride-steel wi him.

507. 9. E has:—

Then they rode on, and further on,
Till they came to the kirk o Gamery;
And every one on high horse sat,
But Willie's horse rade toomly.

507. 10. E has:—

Then out it speaks the bride hersell,
Says, What means a' this mourning?
Where is the man amo them a'
That shoud gle me fair wedding?

508. 18. Read, of course, as in 9:—

He raid in, an forder in,
Till he came to the chin;
And he raid in, and forder in,
Bat never mare came out agen.

508. 13. Here should follow something like B 15. Sts. 14, 15 would come in better after 18, and that arrangement is supported by C (Buchan's Ballads):—

The very hour this young man sank
Into the pot sae deep,
Up it wakend his love Meggie
Out o her drowsy sleep.

'Come here, come here, my mither dear,
And read this dreary dream;
I dreamd my love was at our gates,
And nane wad let him in.'

'Lye still, lye still now, my Meggie,
Lye still and tak your rest;
Sin your true-love was at your yates,
It's but twa quarters past.'

St. 16 seems to be adapted from No. 76 (D 26). It hardly fits the situation. Possibly all three stanzas (14-16) belong to that ballad.

'I hae rade east, I hae rade wast,
And I hae rade ovr the knowes,

I'll horse and gae my way.'

The first time that he calld on her,
Her answer was him Nay:
But the next time that he calld on her,
She was not slow to gae.

He took her by the milk-white hand,
And by the grass-green sleeve,
He's pulld her on behind him,
At the bridegroom speard nae leave.

515. B 9. Cf. I (Motherwell's MS.):—

Then rose up the young bridegroom,
And an angry man was he:
'Lo, art thou come to fight, young man?
Indeed I'll fight wi thee.'

'O I am not come to fight,' he sayd,
'But good fellowship to hae,

The Lawland lads think they are fine,
But the Hieland lads are brisk and gaucy,
And they are awa, near Glasgow toun,

526. 3. In B the suitor retorts:—

'I have got cows and ewes anew,
I've got gowd and gear already;

Sae I dinna want your cows nor ewes,
But I will hae your bonnie Peggy.'

And Peggy adds: —

'I'll follow you oure moss and muir,
I'll follow you oure mountains many,
I'll follow you through frost and snaw,
I'll stay na langer wi my daddie.'

527. 13. B ends thus: —

'See ye no a' yon castles and towrs?
The sun sheens owre them a sae bonnie;
I am Donald, the Lord of Skye,
I think I'll mak ye as blythe as onie.'
A' that Peggy left behind
Was a cot-house and a wee kail-yardle;

527. 2 ff. Cf. B (Buchan's Ballads), sts. 2-5: —

When we had been married for some time,
We walked in our garden green,
And aye he clapped his young son's head,
And aye he made sae much o him.

I turnd me right and round about,
And aye the blythe blink in my ee:
'Ye think as much o your young son
As ye do o my fair body.'

'What need ye clap your young son's head?
What need ye make so much o him?
What need ye clap your young son's head?
I'm sure ye gotna him your lane.'

'O if I gotna him my lane,
Show me the man that helped me;
And for these words your ain mouth spoke
Heir o my land he neer shall be.'

527. 4⁴, 5, 6. Wanting in a; supplied from b.

527. 13. The reply of the boy is found in b:

O here am I, a bonny boy,
That's willin to win meat and fee,
That will go on to Earl Crawford's,
And see an's hairt be faen to thee.

In B Lady Crawford rides to her husband's castle in person to see if the earl will pity her. He shuts his gates and steeks his doors, and will neither come down to speak with her himself nor send his man. She retires weeping. The earl in turn now goes to the castle where his lady is lying, to see if she will pity him. She shuts the gates and steeks the doors, and will neither come down to speak with him nor send her waiting-maid. Not the less she takes to her bed, both she and Crawford die before morning, and both are buried in one tomb.

230

528. 2⁴. James is an alternative reading for John.

528. 3. Cowdenknows is perhaps Sir John Home of Cowdenknows, named as one of the curators of James Haitlie (a minor in 1607). Earlstoun is not determinate. Bemerside is an alternative reading for Earlstoun, and the laird of Bemerside at the date of the slaughter was the turbulent James Haig.

529. 11. B (the Old Lady's MS.) has the following instead of sts. 1-10 of A: —

Earell's na a man.
For fat ye caa the danton o'tt,

531. A 11. F (Sharpe's version) and G (Kinloch MSS.) are not satisfied with this conclusion. The footman is really a lord in disguise, the Earl of Hume or of Cumbernauld. Thus in F:

Cumbernauld is mine, Annie,
Cumbernauld is mine, Annie;
And a' that's mine, it shall be thine,
As we sit at the wine, Annie.

532. 19, 20. In B (Jamieson, II, 382, from a stall copy): —

'Your cow is lowing, Nanny!'

'O be still, my sister Jane,
And leave off all your folly;

'It was never my intention ye should be the waur:
My heavy heart light on Whitehouse o Cromar!
'For you I hae travelled full mony lang mile,

535. 19, 20. B (Buchan's Gleanings) ends thus:—

'My nobles all, ye 'll turn your steeds,
That comely face [I] may see then;
Frae the horse to the hat, a' must be black,
And mourn for bonny Peggy Irvine.'

When they came near to the place,
They heard the dead-bell knellin,
And aye the turnin o the bell
Said, Come bury bonny Peggy Irvine.

*C ends with this stanza:—

We must go to the North, to burry her corps,
Aless for our hear coming!
I rather I had lost a' the lands of Aboyn
Or I had lost bonny Marg[ra]t Irvien!

'Gin ye had been o high renown,
As ye are o low degree,
We might hae baith gane down the streets
Amang gude companie.'

'I tauld you ere we were wed
You were far abeen my degree;
But now I'm married, in your bed laid,
And just as gude as ye.

'Gin ye were dead, and I were dead,
And baith in grave had lain,
Ere seven years were at an end,
They 'd not ken your dust frae mine.'

And she has chosen Glenlogie 'mong a' that was there.

She turned to his footman, and thus she did say:
Oh, what is his name? and where does he stay?

'His name is Glenlogie, when he is from home;
He is of the gay Gordons, his name it is John.'

'Hold up, and ye sal justified be.'

In B (MS. at Abbotsford) we have:—

O hold your hand, my little pretty prince,
And let my breath go out and in,
For spilling of my noble blood
And shaming of my noble kin.

O hold your hand, my little pretty prince,
And let my breath go out and in,

586. The first stanzas of B may be given since they are somewhat clearer: —

It was a worthy Lord of Lorn,
 He was a lord of high degree,
 He sent [his son] unto the schoole,
 To learn some civility.

He learned more learning in one day
 Than other children did in three:
 And then bespake the schoolmaster
 Unto him tenderly.

'In faith thou art the honestest hoy
That ere I blinkt on with mine eye;
I hope thou art some easterling born,
The Holy Ghost is with thee.'
He said he was no easterling born,
The child thus answered courteously;
My father is the Lord of Lorn,
And I his son, perdye.
The schoolmaster turned round about,
His angry mood he could not swage;
He marvelled the child could speak so wise,
He being of so tender age.

 Philiphaugh MS. of No. 305, Edinburgh, 1689-1708 (?). Not now accessible: printed by Aytoun. A supposed transcript extant among the Philiphaugh papers is not older than 1848.
 Fly-leaf of a volume printed at Edinburgh, 1670.
 Laing MSS., Div. II, 358, Library of the University of Edinburgh. (Fragment, p. 637.)
 Elizabeth Cochrane's Songbook, Collection of Songs English and Scots, 1730 (?). Harvard College Library.
 Mrs Cockburn's MS. of No. 305, used by Scott, and described by him as "apparently of considerable antiquity." Edinburgh. Not now accessible.
 Bishop Percy's papers. MS. copies of ballads from Rev. P. Parsons of Wye, Miss Fisher of Carlisle, Principal Robertson of Edinburgh, the Dean of Derry, George Paton of Edinburgh, Rev. Robert Lambe of Norham, Roger Halt, the Duchess Dowager of Portland, and others. In all about 33. 1766-80. Harvard College Library.
 David Herd's MSS., two volumes folio, the second volume duplicating a portion of the first. 1776. British Museum, Additional MSS., 22311-12. (See Mr H. L. D. Ward's Catalogue of Romances, I, 531.)
 MSS. of Mrs Brown of Falkland. 1783-1801.
 (1) Jamieson-Brown MS., mostly taken down from the mouth of Mrs Brown by Professor Scott of Aberdeen about 1783. Laing MSS., Library of the University of Edinburgh.

 (2) William Tytler's Brown MS. Fifteen ballads, with the airs: thirteen being revisions of pieces in (1). Presented by Mrs Brown to W. Tytler in 1783. Described by Anderson in a letter to Percy, Nichols's Illustrations, VII, 176 ff. The MS. has disappeared, but, excepting one, all the pieces it contained are substantially known from (1) or other sources.
 (3) Alexander Fraser Tytler's Brown MS. Nine ballads sent A. F. T. by Mrs Brown in 1800; with the airs. Anderson, as above, VII, 179 f. Aldourie Castle, Inverness-shire. Sir Walter Scott's collection, Abbotsford. 1783-1830.
 (1) Small folio without title, Library, L 2 (Catalogue, p. 57). Two fragments.
 (2) 'Scottish Songs,' 1795. Library, N 3 (Catalogue, p. 104). Seven ballads with airs and three fragments. All the ballads appear to be Mrs Brown's copies altered.
 (3) Letters addressed to Sir Walter Scott, 1796-1831. Ballads enclosed have in most cases been removed, but some seven remain.
 (4) 'Scotch Ballads, Materials for Border Minstrelsy,' a folio volume made up at a recent date from detached pieces to the number of above eighty.
 (5) 'North Country Ballads' in a quarto volume with the title 'Miscellanea Curiosa,' Library B 5 (Catalogue, p. 15).
 (6) 'Miscellanies,' a folio with one ballad and a fragment.
 Glenriddell MS., 1791. In volume XI of Robert Riddell's collection of Scottish Antiquities. (There is an earlier transcript of one of the ballads in vol. VIII.) Library of the Society of Antiquaries of Scotland.
 MS. described by Scott as the 'collection of an old lady's complete set of ballads.' In two portions, the first in 53 pages, on paper of 1805-6-7; the second in 10 pages, on paper of 1818. Contains thirty-two popular ballads and gives the titles of others known to the compiler. Obtained by Skene of Rubislaw in the north of Scotland (but obviously not so early as 1802-3 as endorsed by Scott on the cover of the Skene MS.), turned over to Scott by Skene, and in 1823 by Scott to C. K. Sharpe. In the possession of Mr Macmath.
 Skene MS., nine separate quires, amounting in all to 125 pages, and containing thirty-six pieces. Almost all of these are found in the Old Lady's Collection, from which they appear to have been transcribed, but with misreadings and changes. 118 pages in the pos session of Mr Alexander Allardyce of Edinburgh; the remainder in the possession of Mr Macmath.

Pitcairn's MSS., 1817-25. Three volumes in the writing of Robert Pitcairn; partly from printed sources. In the possession of the representatives of Mr James L. Mansfield, Edinburgh.

Charles Kirkpatrick Sharpe's Collection (besides the Old Lady's MS. and the Skene MS.). (1) 'Songs,' 12mo, in Sharpe's handwriting. (2) MS. of 32 pages, small 4to, on paper of 1822, not in Sharpe's hand. (3) MS. of 12 pages, on paper of 1820, not in Sharpe's hand. (4) An independent transcript by Sharpe of the pieces entitled by Scott 'North Country Ballads.' (5) Letters from Motherwell to Sharpe, enclosing ballads. (6) Single copies of ballads, not in Sharpe's hand. All in possession of Mr Macmath.

Motherwell's MS., 1825 and after. A folio, almost entirely in Motherwell's hand, containing, besides some pieces not indexed, 228 indexed ballads. Most of these are from the West of Scotland, but not a few were given Motherwell by Buchan and are duplicates of copies which occur in Buchan's MSS. In the possession of Mr Malcolm Colquhoun Thomson, Glasgow.

Motherwell's Note-Book, c. 1826-27. A small octavo containing various memoranda referring to ballads, including the whole, or a portion, of several copies. Formerly in the possession of Mr J. Wylie Guild.

Kinloch MSS., 1826 and after. Seven volumes, the fourth being an interleaved (printed) copy of Kinloch's Ancient Scottish Ballads with additions and variations. Vols. I, II, III, VII, are almost wholly in Kinloch's hand; V, VI, are mostly in the writing of James Beattie, John Hill Burton, and Joseph Robertson. Harvard College Library.

Peter Buchan's MSS., about 1828. Two volumes, folio. British Museum, Additional MSS., 29408-9. For a description, see Mr Ward's Catalogue of Romances, etc., I, 537.

Mr David Scott of Peterhead possessed a volume entirely in Buchan's writing "which contains all [the ballads] that Buchan ever collected except some 'high-kilted' ones in another volume." These two volumes are now in the Child Memorial Library of Harvard University. The "high-kilted" volume is entitled 'Secret Songs of Silence,' and its contents are not properly called ballads.

Joseph Robertson's MSS., 1829-32. Four small note-books, one entitled 'Journal of Excursions'; another, 'Adversaria'; also an annotated copy of The New Deeside Guide [1832]. In the possession of Dr Robertson's representatives.

John Hill Burton's MSS., 1829-30. Mostly in the Kinloch collection, but his daughter, Mrs Rodger, Aberdeen, has a small volume containing portions of two ballads.

Alexander Laing of Brechin's MS., 1829-35. 'Ancient Ballads and Songs, etc., etc., from the recitation of old people, never published, 1829.' Three ballads and a fragment. Harvard College Library.

Robert White's Papers, 1829 and after. Ballads selected from his collectanea by M. White of Newcastle-on-Tyne. Harvard College Library.

British Museum, Additional MSS., 20094. 1829. (No. 4.)

Campbell MSS., 1830 or earlier. 'Old Scottish Songs collected in the counties of Berwick, Roxburgh, Selkirk and Peebles.' 2 volumes. Collector unknown. At Marchmont House, Berwickshire.

'Scottish Songs and Ballads,' copied probably before 1830, by a granddaughter of Lord Woodhouselee, mostly from print or from A. F. Tytler's Brown MS., but containing two or three versions of popular ballads not found elsewhere.

Harris MS. Ballads learned by Amelia Harris in her childhood from an old nurse in Perthshire (the last years of the 18th century); taken down by her daughter, who has added a few of her own collecting. With an appendix of airs. Harvard College Library.

Joseph Robertson. An interleaved and annotated copy of The New Deeside Guide [1832] (of which J. R. was the author).

Gibb MS., 1860. Twenty-one ballads written down from the recitation of his mother by Mr James Gibb of Joppa, representing the form in which ballads were recited about the beginning of the century in Angus and Mearns. Harvard College Library.

David Loudon's MS., 1873. Contains four popular ballads derived from reciters in Haddingtonshire. Harvard College Library.

Murison MS., about 1873. Some forty pieces collected by Mrs A. F. Murison in Old Deer, among which there are several traditional popular ballads. Harvard College Library.

A few detached ballads collected by Dr Alexander Laing of Newburgh-on-Tay. About 1873.

Findlay MSS. Two volumes, the first (only) containing several ballads and many fragments gathered from recitation by Rev. William Findlay, of Saline, Fifeshire, 1865-85. In the hands of the collector.

Macmath MS. Ballads and songs recently collected by Mr Macmath. In the possession of the collector.

"Common Place Book filled with a collection of Old Ballads of the 17th century," a MS. formerly belonging to J. Payne Collier, now in the British Museum. Contains thirty ballads written in a forged hand of the 19th century, some of the pieces being also spurious. Nos. 8 C, 137, 168 are in this MS.

Communications, noted in their places, of a single ballad or of several ballads, taken down or remembered by friends or correspondents in Europe and America, and several taken down by Professor Child himself. Child MSS., Harvard College Library.

PRINTED SOURCES

A Gest of Robyn Hode. Fragment without printer's name or date, but of the end of the 15th or beginning of the 16th century: the eleventh and last piece in a volume the other contents of which are nine pieces printed by Walter Chepman and Andrew Myllar—three of these purporting to be printed at Edinburgh in 1508—and one other piece the printer of which is also unascertained.  frame, succeed. sae weel we frame, we are doing, or beginning so well.
 frayers, friars.
 free, adj., is used in a great variety of senses, and is often indefinite and hardly more than a rhyme word: bounteous, gracious, of noble birth or rank, independent, unrestricted, exempt, spirited, valorous, beautiful, precious, excellent in any way. The danger will be in assigning too positive a meaning to the word.

free, adv.: (arowes ifedred) fre, in handsome style.

freely, adj.: freely feed, of noble birth, or beautiful.

freke, freck, freake, freyke, bold man, man.

frem, foreign.

frembde, adv.: frembde bested, in the position of a stranger (other readings, friend, friend).

frese: frese your, our, bowes of ewe, 267, 215; seems to be corrupt. The interpretation in Donaldson's Supplement to Jamieson, where "to frese a bow" (cited as if a phrase in full use) is said to mean unbend, slack, would be entirely inappropriate here, since three men are to make a desperate attack on two hundred and fifty (bende your bowes, st. 218).

f g have, bend we, the required sense. Chese will not do; they have but one bow each.

leese, loose is possible, or dress, or even, free.

frichtit, frightened.

frienged, fringed, gray, referring to mane and fetlocks, or perhaps to long fetlocks only.

gang, gae, go down: like the Scottish be put down, be hanged.

gantrees, barrel-stands.

gar, gaur, make do, cause.

garded, looked at.

gare, gair, gore, properly, a triangular piece of cloth inserted in a garment to give width at that part; in Old English often coat or gown. low down by his (her) gare, is a frequently recurring expression which may be taken literally, down by that part of a garment where the gore would be, low by his knee. she hung't (cup of wine) low down by her gare, 205, 10 (recklessly and absurdly; the cup is in her hand in the next stanza). In, frae my sark ye shear a gare, gare must be a strip large enough to make a bandage for the head.

zare, ready.

garl, gravel (suspicious word).

garlande, rose-garlonde, a circular wreath, apparently hung upon a wand or rod. In 280, 31, this can be nothing more than an extemporized circlet of twigs.

 gine, ginne, n. See gin.
 girded out, guirded, cracked, let.
 girdle, griddle.
 girds, hoops. girth was the gold-twist to be, 464, 16, girth should probably be graith, but admitting this, the sense is not clear, and further corruption may be suspected. We may understand, perhaps, that after the rescue the mare was to have a caparison of gilded chains. Or we may read, her graith was used the gold-twist to be.
 gladdyng, gladdening.
 glamer, glamour, glamourie, glaumry, a charm deluding the eye.
 glashet, darted, flashed.
 glasse, lantern, ship-light.

H

ha, hae, hay, have. See haet.

ha, haa, hall, house, manor-house.

hachebord, hatchbord, 409, 36, 411, 70, would most naturally be interpreted gunwale, or side of the ship, and so archborde, 408, 23. But in 36 Sir Andrew lies at the hache-bord (which is hached with gold), and stern would be a better meaning for hachebord in that place, the high stern of the old ship being a conspicuous place for a captain to lie. See archborde. hached: the hache-bord is hached with gold, gilt (possibly inlaid).

haches, deck; properly a frame of crossbars laid over an opening in a ship's deck.
